No Horti. 230

56
1915

THE TRUSTEES OF THE PUBLIC LIBRARY OF THE CITY OF BOSTON
OMNIVM LVX CIVIVM
1852 1878

Digitized by the Internet Archive in 2022 with funding from Boston Public Library

https://archive.org/details/musicaltimessing5619unse

4041.230
56
1915
Rec'd
JAN 23 1915

No. 863

THE MUSICAL TIMES

FOUNDED 1844

JANUARY 1, 1915.

Price 3d.

M&M

SPENCER · PIANOS

Branches at BIRMINGHAM
BRIGHTON
FOLKESTONE
SOUTHAMPTON
PORTSMOUTH
CHATHAM

THE MOST CHARMING OF BRITISH PIANOS.

Pure, Rich Tone, Light Touch, and well made in every detail. Nearly 70,000 are in use in all parts of the world, and every one is giving complete satisfaction. Handsome Designs in Uprights and Horizontal Grands at moderate prices. A few are fitted with the Connoisseur Player Action.

CATALOGUES FREE.

MURDOCH, MURDOCH & CO.,
PIANO AND PLAYER PIANO EXPERTS,
461 & 463, OXFORD STREET, LONDON, W.

ARCHIBALD RAMSDEN, LTD.

This business was established by ARCHIBALD RAMSDEN in Leeds over 50 years ago. He and the two other Directors are Englishmen by birth, and although they stock Pianos of English, American, and Continental make, the whole of the Capital of the Company is held by Englishmen.

ARCHIBALD RAMSDEN, Managing Director.
ARCHIBALD RAMSDEN, Junr., } Directors.
GEORGE E. ILES, }

103, NEW BOND STREET, LONDON, W.
12, PARK ROW, LEEDS, and Branches.

414

FOUNDED 1837.

AGENTS THROUGHOUT THE WORLD.

Awards for Good Tone:

LONDON - - - 1851
PARIS - - - - 1867
LIMA - - - - 1872
CHRISTCHURCH, N.Z. 1882
LONDON - - - 1885

SHOWROOMS:
ALLISON PIANO FACTORY, LEIGHTON ROAD, KENTISH TOWN, LONDON.

ESTEY ORGANS

A RECORD UNPARALLELED!
MORE THAN 390,000 MANUFACTURED AND SOLD
GRAND PRIX, TURIN EXHIBITION, 1911.
ONLY ONE GRADE OF EACH—
THE HIGHEST POSSIBLE.

ESTEY PIANOS

ESTEY ORGAN Co.
12 RATHBONE PLACE
OXFORD STREET
LONDON, W.

ILLUSTRATED LIST
POST FREE.

NOVELLO'S CIRCULATING MUSIC LIBRARY

160, WARDOUR STREET, LONDON, W.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION—

TOWN.

Class A. ONE GUINEA PER ANNUM.

Entitles the Subscriber to receive Six Pianoforte Pieces or Songs (ordinary sheet music), which may be exchanged once a week.

Class B. TWO GUINEAS PER ANNUM.

Six Months	£1 5 0	Entitles the Subscriber to receive Twelve Pieces (one copy of each), including Volumes or Collections of Music, each Volume counting as three pieces. May be exchanged once a week. On the completion of each subscription, Annual Subscribers are entitled to receive Music (Library Copies) of the value of Half-a-Guinea without further charge.
Three Months ...	0 15 0
One Month	0 8 0
One Week	0 3 0

Class C. THREE GUINEAS PER ANNUM.

Six Months	£1 15 0	Entitles the Subscriber to receive Eighteen Pieces (one copy of each), or a proportionate number of Volumes, which may be exchanged twice a week. On the completion of each subscription, Annual Subscribers are entitled to receive Music (Library Copies) of the value of Half-a-Guinea without further charge.
Three Months ...	1 1 0
One Month	0 12 6
One Week	0 5 0

COUNTRY.

Class D. TWO GUINEAS PER ANNUM.

Six Months	£1 5 0	Entitles the Subscriber to receive Twenty Pieces (one copy of each), including Volumes or Collections of Music, each volume counting as three pieces. May be exchanged twice a month. On the completion of each subscription, Annual Subscribers are entitled to receive Music (Library Copies) of the value of Half-a-Guinea without further charge.
Three Months ...	0 15 0
One Month	0 8 0
One Week	0 3 0

Class E. THREE GUINEAS PER ANNUM.

Six Months	£1 15 0	Entitles the Subscriber to Thirty Pieces (one copy of each), or a proportionate number of Volumes, which may be exchanged once a week. On the completion of each subscription, Annual Subscribers are entitled to receive Music (Library Copies) of the value of Half-a-Guinea without further charge.
Three Months ...	1 1 0
One Month	0 12 6
One Week	0 5 0

THE MUSICAL TIMES

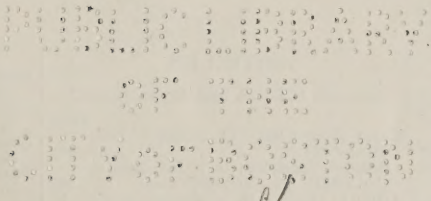
FOUNDED IN THE YEAR 1844

*H041.230
56
1915

JANUARY TO DECEMBER, 1915.

VOLUME LVI.



LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED,
160, WARDOUR STREET, W.
NEW YORK: THE H. W. GRAY CO., SOLE AGENTS FOR THE U.S.A.

1915.

414

Sept. 24, 1916
I vol. (cont.)

INDEX FOR 1915.

MUSIC.

SACRED.

		No.
Give peace in our time, O Lord	F. W. Wadely	863
They that wait upon the Lord	J. Stainer	866
The Lord God planted a garden	Herbert W. Wareing	869
I will lift up mine eyes	Joseph Barnby	871
Thou art my portion	The Rev. Sir Frederick A. Gore Ouseley	872
Four Christmas Carols:
In Bethlehem	B. J. Dale	873
Sleep, Holy Babe	R. Walker Robson
The First Christmas Night	Walter H. Sangster
There dwelt a King	John E. West

SECULAR.

		No.
Go where glory waits thee	Irish Melody (arr. by John E. West)	864
A character of Love	H. M. Higgs	865
In the merry month of May	Dr. Cooke	867
Angelus (Chorus from 'Maritana')	W. Vincent Wallace	868
Echoes	Cuthbert Harris	870
Echo-Song	Oliver King	874

EXTRA SUPPLEMENTS.—MUSIC.

SACRED.

		No.
O Thou that hearest prayer	R. Walker Robson	863
Darkness of night (Hymn)	George C. Martin	863
Benedicite, omnia opera	Arr. to Chants by John Stainer, James Turle, and Herbert S. Irons	864
Lighten our darkness	Josiah Booth	865
Give rest, O Christ. Contakion of the Faithful Departed. (Kieff melody)	Ed. by Walter Parratt	865
Cast me not away	C. Lee Williams	866
The Lord came down from Sinai	John E. West	866
Intercessory Hymn 'Father Omnipotent.' First Edition in E flat (see 874)	Edward German	867
Whoso dwelleth under the defence of the Most High	George C. Martin	868
God the All-Fatherly	Alfred Hollins	869
How blest are they	P. Tschaikowsky	870
O Most Merciful	Ernest Bullock	873
Good King Wenceslas. With varied harmonies by W. G. Ross		873
Intercessory Hymn. Revised edition in D flat (see 867)	Edward German	874
The snow lies thick (Carol)	Geoffrey Shaw	874

SECULAR.

		No.
Weep for the glorious dead. (Funeral March and Chorus from 'The Dream of Jubal')	A. C. Mackenzie	869
Garibaldi's Hymn. Italian National Air (arr. for mixed voices)		871
Peace. A Fable (arr. for mixed voices)	J. Frederick Bridge	872

PORTRAIT AND OTHER ILLUSTRATED SUPPLEMENTS.

	No.		No.
Frederick Delius	865	Emil Mlynarski	867
The Tower of Malines	866	Alexander Scriabin	868
The Clavier of the Malines Carillon	866	William Hayman Cummings	869

THE COMPETITION FESTIVAL RECORD ... ... See special Index on page viii.

This Index is classified thus—

1. Illustrations, Portraits, &c.
2. Articles.
3. Church and Organ Music, with Articles and Notes.
4. Reviews.
5. Correspondence.
6. Obituary.
7. Miscellaneous: Occasional Notes, &c.
8. London and Suburban Concerts, Opera, &c.
9. Provincial and Colonial Concerts, Notes, &c.
10. Foreign Notes.
11. Competition Festival Record.

ILLUSTRATIONS, PORTRAITS, ETC.

(See also 'Portrait Supplements.')

	Page
Anna Mlynarska	266
Bath Abbey, New Organ Loft and Organ Case at	542
Belina Coat of Arms, The (Emil Mlynarski)	265
Bell-Towers at Cattistock, Loughborough, Bournville, Eaton Hall	331
Breslau, Organ in the Centenary Hall	91
Calcutta Cathedral	600
Calcutta Cathedral Organ	602
Down Cathedral Organ from the East	342
——— West	343
Elliott, James William	158
Emil Mlynarski's Children	267
Famous Carillonneurs	203
Lefroy, The Most Rev. G. A.	601
Sammons, Albert	23
Statham, H. D.	603
Steggall, Reginald	347

ARTICLES.

(See also 'Church and Organ Music.')

	Page
Abbey Glee Club, The. By W. G. McNaught	213
Academic Teaching: A Defence and a Criticism. By Edward J. Dent	269
Acting in Opera. By F. Bonavia	79
'Adeste Fideles,' Notes on the History of. By W. H. Grattan Flood	360
——— Correction	400
Art of Programme arrangement, The. By Henry Coates	466
Ashman, E. H. Williams. The Church of the Holy Trinity in Paris, and its Choir	279
Authors' and Composers' Accents. By W. F. P. Stockley	426
Basis of Indian Music, The. By Kathleen Schlesinger	335
Bells and 'Burdens.' By H. C. Colles	530
Berlioz, The Scores of, and Some Modern Editing. By Tom S. Wotton	651
Birmingham Festival, The Question of the. By Ernest Newman (see 17, 18)	77
Bonavia, F. Acting in Opera	79
——— Old English Violin Music	278
Brahms and Wolf as Lyrists. By Ernest Newman (see 649, 718)	523, 585
'Britannia, the Pride of the Ocean.' By W. H. Grattan Flood	159
Buckley, Reginald R. The Growth of British Repertory	588
Burgess, Francis. A Plea for a revised Gregorian Tonale	469
Calcutta Cathedral and its new Organ (Illustrated)	600
Carillon, An 18th Century French. By Frank Kidson	425, 553
——— Recital at Cattistock	531
Carillons. By W. W. Starmer (see 284)	201, 331
——— Malines Bells not destroyed	399
César Franck. By Cecil Gray	341
——— and the Sonata. By H. C. Colles	206
Chimes of Gloucester Cathedral, The. By C. Lee Williams (see 413)	271
Chin rests. Should they be abolished?	105, 223, 284
Church of the Holy Trinity in Paris and its Choir, The. By E. H. Williams Ashman	279
Clay and the Potter, The. By F. Corder (see 94)	15

Page

Clutsam Cradle Keyboard 362
Clutsam, G. H. Questions of Modern Harmony 18
——— Teachers and Text-Books 144, 209
Coates, Henry. The Art of Programme Arrangement 466
Colles, H. C. César Franck and the Sonata 206
——— Bells and 'Burdens' 530
Composer of the Russian National Anthem, The. By M. Montagu-Nathan 82
Concerts in Hospitals, &c. 104
Copyright Act, The 86
Corder, F. The Clay and the Potter. (see 94) 15
Critic, A. Reflections refracted: A reply to 'A Native Compo-er' (see 11, 73, 76, 142) 74
Cummings, William Hayman. Summary of career 395

Dalcroze, see Jaques-Dalcroze.
Delius, Frederick, Sketch of Life of. (see 211) 137
——— Some notes on his music. (By Philip Heseltine) 137
——— List of Compositions 141
Dent, Edward J. Academic Teaching: A defence and a criticism 269
Duncan, Edmondstoune, on the late Prof. G. W. L. Marshall-Hall ... 538

Ecorcheville, Jules. The late 276
Ellis, William Ashton. Richard Wagner contra Militarism 396
——— Wagner and Latter-Day France 463
——— Nietzsche unveiled 525
English Carillons. By W. W. Starmer (see 201, 284) 330
English Folk-Dance: The Country Dance. By Cecil J. Sharp (see 732)... 658
Epigrams and Poems, Musical. By C. Edgar Thomas 661
Execution of Classical Works: Notably those of the older Masters. By Camille Saint-Saëns (translated by Herman Klein) 474

Fielden, Thomas. Harmony and Counterpoint: Their place in Music ... 358
Flood, W. H. Grattan. 'Britannia the pride of the ocean' 159
——— Notes on the History of 'Adeste Fideles' 360

Gatty, Nicholas. Large and Small Orchestras... 82
German Art, Sidelights on: The great Church Music Imposture. By R. R. Terry (see 537, 657) ... 457, 713
German temperament and the new Organ at Breslau. By Aubrey C. de Brisay 224
Germany's claim to 'La Marseillaise' 362
Glastonbury Festival. By H. C. ... 539
Gloucester Cathedral, The Chimes of. By C. Lee Williams 171
Grace, Harvey. A Post-Prandial Visitation (see Church and Organ) 211
Gray, Cecil. Concerning César Franck 341
Growth of British Repertory, The. By Reginald R. Buckley 588

Hall, Prof. G. W. L. Marshall- (see Marshall-Hall).
Harmony and Counterpoint: Their place in Music. By Thomas Fielden 358
Harrison, Julius. Somewhere in France: The Adventures of a Concert Party ... 400
Heseltine, Philip. Some notes on Delius and his music (see 210) ... 137
Holbrooke's New Opera-Ballet: 'The Enchanted Garden.' By F. Gilbert Webb (see 21) 402
Holy Trinity Church, Paris. By A. H. Williams Ashman 279
Hospital Concerts, Account of (see 393) 104
Hugo Wolf and the Lyric. By Ernest Newman (see 523, 585) 649, 718

Illustrations of the History of Music printing in the Library of Mr. Alfred H. Littleton. By Jeffrey Pulver (continued from November, 1914, 651) 21, 84
Indian Music, The basis of. By Kathleen Schlesinger 335
Interpretation of Old Music, The ... 724
Israel's Music-lesson in Egypt. By Jeffrey Pulver 404
Italian Musical Notes; Mascagni and Caruso. By Claude Trevor 553

Jaques-Dalcroze, Emile. Music and the War 656

Kidson, Frank. 'The Star-Spangled Banner' 148

Page

Large and Small Orchestras. By Nicholas Gatty 82
Little less that achieves more, The. (re Long pieces of music) By F. Gilbert Webb 468
Littleton, Alfred H. Illustrations of the History of Music Printing in the Library of the late 21, 84

'Marseillaise, La.' By Ernest Newman (four versions) (see 551, 605) 461
——— Reproduction of the original version 463
Marshall-Hall, The late Prof. G. W. L. By Edmondstoune Duncan 538
Mascagni and Caruso: Some Italian musical notes. By Claude Trevor ... 553
Medtner. By Ernest Newman 9
Miller, Major George. Pages from a Bandmaster's Diary 534, 595
Mlynarski, Emil 265
Montagu-Nathan, M. The composer of the Russian National Anthem ... 82
More Sidelights (see Sidelights).
Music and the War. By Emile Jaques-Dalcroze 656
Music in our Village 671
Music of Death, The. By Ernest Newman 398
Music Printing. Illustrations of the History of, in the Library of the late Alfred H. Littleton. By Jeffrey Pulver 21, 84
Musical Epigrams and Poems. By C. Edgar Thomas 661
Musical Profession, The, and the War: An appeal 393
——— in 1747. By C. Edgar Thomas 425

Newman, Ernest. Medtner 9
——— The Question of the Birmingham Festival (see 17, 18) 77
——— The Public, the Critic, and the Native Composer 142
——— The Music of Death 398
——— Rouget de L'Isle, 'La Marseillaise,' and Berlioz (see 551, 605) ... 461
——— Brahms and Wolf as Lyrists (see 649, 718) 523, 585
——— Hugo Wolf and the Lyric 649, 718
Newmarch, Rosa. Alexander Scriabin 329
——— The Outlook in Russia ... 521
Nietzsche unveiled. By William Ashton Ellis 525

Old English Violin Music. By F. Bonavia 278
Opera in Milan: Caruso's return after several years. By Claude Trevor ... 677
Organ Posts in Canada: An unprofessional opinion. By William Q. Phillips 39
Outlook in Russia, The. By Mrs. Rosa Newmarch... 521

Pages from a Bandmaster's Diary. By Major George Miller 534, 595
Phillips, William Q. Organ Posts in Canada: An unprofessional opinion... 39
Plainsong, Some Pros and Cons. By Harvey Grace 296
Plea for a Revised Gregorian Tonale, The. By Francis Burgess 469
Post-Prandial Visitation, A. By Harvey Grace 211
Public, The, the Critic, and the Native Composer. By Ernest Newman ... 142
Pulver, Jeffrey. Illustrations of the History of Music Printing in the Library of the late Alfred H. Littleton 21, 84
——— Israel's Music-lesson in Egypt 404
Purcell in praise of Princes. By Percy A. Scholes 591

Question of the Birmingham Festival, The. By Ernest Newman (see 17, 18) 77
Questions of Modern Harmony. By G. H. Clutsam 18

Reflections of an English Musical Critic. By F. Gilbert Webb (see 11, 71, 76, 142)... 73
Reflections of a Native Composer (see 73, 74, 76, 142) 11
Reflections refracted: A reply to 'A Native Composer.' By 'A Critic' (see 11, 73, 76, 142) 74
Rouget de L'Isle, 'La Marseillaise,' and Berlioz. By Ernest Newman (see 551, 605) 461
Russia, The Outlook in. By Mrs. Rosa Newmarch 521

Page

Schlesinger, Kathleen. The Basis of Indian Music (being a survey of seven books and articles by various authors) 335
Scholes, Percy A. Purcell in praise of Princes 591
Scores of Berlioz, The, and some Modern Editing. By Tom S. Wotton 651
Scriabin, Alexander. By Rosa Newmarch 329
Sharp, Cecil J. English Folk-Dance: The Country Dance (see 732) 658
Sidelights on German Art: The great Church-Music Imposture. By R. R. Terry (see 537, 657) 457, 713
Somewhere in France: The Adventures of a Concert Party. By Julius Harrison 400
Starmer, W. W. Carillons (see 284) ... 201
——— English Carillons 330
'Star-Spangled Banner, The' (U.S.A. report). Frank Kidson on 148
Stockley, W. F. P. Authors' and Composers' Accents 426

Teachers and Text-Books. By G. H. Clutsam 144, 209
Terry, R. R. Sidelights on German Art: The great Church-Music Imposture (see 537, 657) 457
——— More sidelights on German Art 713
Thomas, C. Edgar. The Musical Profession in 1747 425
——— Some Musical Epigrams and Poems 661
Tilney, F. C. On 'Some Reflections'... 76
Trevor, Claude. Some Italian Musical Notes: Mascagni and Caruso... ... 553 ——— Opera in Milan: Caruso's return after several years 677

Wagner contra Militarism. By William Ashton Ellis 396
——— and Latter-Day France. By William Ashton Ellis 463
War-time, Committee for Music in. Account of Hospital Concerts, &c. (see 393) 104
Webb, F. Gilbert. Some Reflections of an English Musical Critic (see 11, 74, 76, 142) 73
——— Holbrooke's New Opera-Ballet: 'The Enchanted Garden' (see 21) ... 402
——— The Little Less that achieves more (re Long pieces of music) ... 468
Williams, C. Lee. The Chimes of Gloucester Cathedral (see 413) ... 271
Wotton, Tom S. The Scores of Berlioz and some Modern Editing 651

CHURCH AND ORGAN MUSIC.

ARTICLES.

Adcock, Ernest E. The Organ in the Centenary Hall, Breslau (see 224) ... 90
Adeste Fideles, Notes on the History of 360
Adventures of a Long-Metre Tune, The 27
At a Solemn Music (Gloucester Cathedral)... 148

Bath Abbey and its Organ (illustrated), with Specification 542
Breslau Organ (see Adcock above) ... 90

Calcutta Cathedral and its New Organ 601
'Christmas Oratorio,' Worcester Cathedral 280
Compleat Organist, The. By Harvey Grace 24, 88, 151
Custard, Reginald Goss. Close of his Recitals at St. Margaret's 479

Down Cathedral (see Freeman).

Easy Organ Music. By Harvey Grace 663

Freeman, Andrew. The Organ at Down Cathedral (illustrated) 342

Grace, Harvey. The Compleat Organist:
XI. Of a Diocesan Report ... 24
XII. Of his Instrument 88
XIII. Ditto 151
——— Plainsong: some pros and cons 296
——— Lincoln's Inn Chapel and its Music (see 487) 345
——— Old English Service Music (see 544) 408
——— The Hymn Tune in Organ Music ('Three Chorale Fantasias for the Organ,' by C. H. H. Parry) ... 479 ——— Hymns and the War 540
——— Easy Organ Music 663
——— Some Early Anglican Pointing 726

Page

Hymn Tune in Organ Music, The. By Harvey Grace 479
Hymns and the War. By Harvey Grace 540

Lincoln's Inn Chapel and its Music. By Harvey Grace (see 487) 345

Old English Service Music. By Harvey Grace (see 544) 408
Organ at Down Cathedral, The. By Andrew Freeman... 342
Organ in the Centenary Hall, Breslau, The. By Ernest E. Adcock (see 224) 90
Organ Posts in Canada, an Unprofessional Opinion. By William Q. Phillips 39

Services, List of, used at Provincial Cathedrals... 344
Some Early Anglican Pointing. By Harvey Grace 726
Some Principles of Accompaniment to Liturgical Music. By Martin Shaw 615
Summer School of Church Music (Oxford). By Harvey Grace 608

SPECIAL SERVICES, MISCELLANEOUS, ETC.

Appointments 26, 93, 154, 217, 281, 345, 412, 486, 543, 604, 667, 730
Blackpool, St. John's Parish Church. New organ... 154
Bliss, Rev. W. H. Retirement... ... 667
Bombay Cathedral. Recital 543
Boston, Emmanuel Church 412
Boydell, Mr. James. Extraordinary record 604
Bradford and District Association of Organists and Choirmasters 154
Carnforth Society 345
Cartmel Choral Society 345
Cathedral Quarterly, The 216
Church of Ireland Hymnal, The ... 281
City of London Church Organists' Association 411
Custard, Mr. Reginald Goss. Recitals 666
Diss, St. Mary's Church 485
Edinburgh Society of Organists... ... 216
——— Plébiscite Recital 344
Enniscorthy, St. Mary's Church ... 485
Evans, Mr. Edward Colby. Remarkable record 280
Federation of Master Organ-Builders... 154
Free Church Musicians' Union (Newport) 345
——— (Newcastle Centre) 604
Gibraltar Cathedral, Stainer's 'Crucifixion' 281
Glasgow Cathedral, 'St. John' Passion 217
Gregorian Association, The ... 216, 411

Harris, Dr. W. H. Lectures 412
Hinckley Parish Church, Choral Festival 666
Historical Organ Lecture-Recitals (New York) 485
Hucknall Torkard Festival 153

Johnson, Mr. Bernard. Recital at Nottingham 594
Jongen, M. Joseph 604, 729

Kalendar of Hymns Ancient and Modern 666

Legal Right of Access to Organ... ... 543
Lincoln Cathedral, Special Service ... 26
Lists of Music used at Metropolitan Cathedrals and Churches 153, 216, 344
Liverpool, Anfield Wesleyan Church ... 281
——— St. Mary's Church for the Blind 412

LONDON AND SUBURBS:—
Notre Dame de France, Leicester Square. First performance of 'Chœur de Noel,' Neymarck ... 93
Southwark Cathedral, South London Choir Festival 412
——— Diocesan Plainsong Association 412
University of London Memorial Services 729
Upper Tulse Hill, St. Matthias's ... 281
Walthamstow and Buckhurst Hill Choral Societies 345
Westminster Abbey 26

Mann, Dr. A. H. Lectures 542
Mansfield, Dr. Orlando. Chambersburg (Pa. U.S.) 652
Meath Choral Association 485
Medinah Temple (Chicago). Dedication of new organ 751

Page

Melbourne 344, 345, 666
Montreal, Christ Church Cathedral ... 485

National Union of Organists' Associations 604
New York. Union Theological Seminary. Historical Organ Lecture-Recitals by Mr. Clarence Dickinson 345, 485
Newfoundland, St. John's Cathedral ... 542
Nonconformist Choir Union 348
Norrish, Mr. A. J. Heard. Resignation 606, 687, 729
Norwich, Festival of Choirs at ... 485

Ohio, Broad Street Presbyterian Church, Columbus 729
Organ Recitals (see Recitals).
Organist, The, and Access to his Instrument 543
Organists' Benevolent League 217
Oxford, New College Chapel. Recitals 543

Paris, St. George's Church. Discontinuance of Choir School 485
Plébiscite Programmes (Glasgow) ... 651

Recitals, Organ ... 26, 93, 154, 217, 281, 345, 412, 485, 543, 604, 667, 729
Redcliff, Church of St. Mary, Bristol ... 485
Rondebosch, Cape of Good Hope. Recital in St. Paul's Church 666
Royal College of Organists' Diplomas. Sir Alexander Mackenzie (see 240) 159, 555

St. Alban's Abbey Choir Fund 281
Salem Baptist Church 93
Schartau, Herbert. Presentation ... 26
Sheffield Organists' and Choirmasters' Association 604
Shore, Mr. S. Royle. Lectures... ... 543
Southwark Cathedral. Mr. E. T. Cook 176
Summer School of Church Music at Oxford. Report 608

Thorne, Dr. E. H. Bach Recitals ... 666
Toronto, St. Thomas's Church 345

Wadely, Fred. W. Doctor's Degree, Cambridge 496
Walton, Herbert. Glasgow recital ... 657
Westminster Abbey, New Choir School 751

York Minster Choir School 281

SPECIFICATIONS.

Bath Abbey 542
Breslau, Centenary Hall 90
Calcutta Cathedral 600
Lincoln's Inn Chapel 345

REVIEWS (CLASSIFIED).

MUSICAL LITERATURE, INSTRUCTION BOOKS, ETC.

Anderton, H. Orsmond. Life of Granville Bantock 348
Askew, John. Violin Maker 282

Bantock, Granville, Life of (see Anderton)
Barless Psalter Chants, The. By Walter Marshall and Seymour Pile 349
Barker, E. Phillips (see English Folk-Song).
Catalogue of Music in the Library of Christ Church, Oxford. By G. E. P. Arkwright; Preface by T. B. Strong 349
Davis, J. D. 'Pro Patria,' Imperial March 215

Early Opera in America. By O. G. Sonneck
Eggleston, William Morley. John Askew, the Stanhope Violin Maker ... 282
English Folk-Song and Dance. By Frank Kidson and Mary Neal. ('The Compendious Way.' By E. Phillips Barker) (see correspondence on this review, 730, 731) 670

Hymns and Tunes for Sunday School Anniversary Services. Set IV. ... 218

Illustrated History of Music, An. By Thomas Tapper and Percy Goetschius 282
Indian Music, The basis of. By Kathleen Schlesinger 335
Indian Music. By Shahinda (Begum Fyzee-Rahamin) 335
Interpretation of the Music of the 17th and 18th centuries. By Arnold Dolmetsch 724

Little People. By H. Willebeck Le Mair 730

Page

Music and Musical Instruments of Southern India and the Deccan. By Capt. C. R Day 335
Music of Hindostan. By A. H. Fox-Strangways 335
Music of India. By Mrs. E. A. R. Haigh 335

Pitcher, R. J. Recitative and its rendering 282

Quirke, William Michael. Recollections of a Violinist 29

Riley, Athelstan. Concerning Hymn Tunes and Sequences 414
Scaife, G. Arthur. La Cathédrale d'York 486
Some Indian Conceptions of Music. By Maud Mann 335
Sonneck, O. G. Early Opera in America 544
Sources of Keyboard Music in England. By Charles Van den Borren 275
'Star-Spangled Banner, The.' U.S.A. Report. By O. G. Sonneck 148

Tapper, Thomas. Illustrated History of Music 282

White, Robert T. The Composition of Simple Melodies 348

SACRED CHORAL MUSIC.

Alcock, W. G. Mag. and Nunc in B flat 282

Bach Chorales as Evening Hymns ... 283
Barnes, Edward Shippen. The Comforter 414
Benedicite, omnia Opera. Eight settings 218
Blair, Hugh. I will give unto him ... 349
——— Sorrow not 349
——— Save us, O Lord 544
Booth, Josiah. Grant, O Lord ... 154
——— Lighten our darkness 154
Bullock, Ernest. O most merciful ... 218
Burgess, Francis. Missa Festiva ... 605

Halford, George. Ponder my words ... 282
——— The souls of the righteous ... 282
——— Te Deum in D 282
——— Wherewithal shall 282

Ireland, John. Mag. and Nunc in F ... 154

Ley, Henry G. Let all the world ... 486

Pullein, John. Let all the world ... 29

Rickman, F. R. And in that day ... 218
Ross, W. G. Good King Wenceslas (arranged) 730

Stainer, John. They that wait upon the Lord... 349

West, John E. Te Deum and Benedictus in C 349

SECULAR CHORAL MUSIC.

Rootham, Cyril Bradley. For the fallen 605
Spear, William H. In the garden ... 282

ORGAN MUSIC.

Archer, J. Stuart. Romance with variations... 155
——— Allegretto Scherzando... ... 414
——— Ballade in E 668

Bach. Fugue in F minor (Bridge and Higgs) 218
Bach. Two Chorales for use at the conclusion of Evening Service ... 283
Best, W. T. Fugue in E major ... 349 ——— Studies for the Pedal, with sixteen Chorales by English composers 349

Fletcher, Percy E. Festival Toccata 544
——— Fountain Rêverie 544

Gladstone, Francis Edward. Two fanciful pieces for organ 28
Grace, Harvey. Epilogue 93
——— Rhapsody for the organ ... 281

Hollins, Alfred. Romanza 28

King, Oliver. Tone-Poems 155

Latin Organist, The. Book II. Ed. Samuel Gregory Ould 93
Lemare, Edwin H. Minuet Nuptiale... 155
——— Scherzo-Fugue 155

Merkel, Gustave. Sonata in G minor... 486

New Century Organ Solos. Nos. 1-10 605
Nicholson, Sydney H. The Organ Voluntary 283

Page

Organ Loft, The. Book CVII. 544
Organ Transcriptions No. 19. (Dr. Herbert Brewer)... 541
Original Compositions for the Organ (New Series), Nos. 41, 42, 43 544

Parry, C. H. H. Three Chorale Fantasias 479
Pearce, C. W. Phantasy on the National Anthems of the Allies 155
Pye, James T. Voluntary on the Russian National Anthem... 28

Recital Series of Original Compositions for the Organ, Vol. 8 668
Rowley, Alec. Festal Prelude 93

Short Preludes for the Organ. Books IV., V. and VI. 28
Stainer, John. Præludium Pastorale .. 541

Turner, H. Sandiford. Rêverie in D flat 668

Williams, C. Lee. The Chimes of Gloucester Cathedral 544
Woledge, H. R. Nocturne 349

PIANOFORTE MUSIC.

Armstrong, F. Alford. Autumn Leaves 29
——— White Heather 29

Bath, Hubert. Doll's-House Suite ... 667
Berger, Ludwig. Etudes 486
Bertini, H. Etudes 217, 604
Bull, Dr. John. The King's Hunt (edited by Prof. Granville Bantock) 730

Clementi, Muzio. Gradus ad Parnassum 94
Cramer, J. B. Etudes 94
Czerny, Charles. Etudes ... 217, 486
——— School of Velocity ... 94, 604
——— The Art of Finger Dexterity... 486
——— School of Legato and Staccato 604
——— Studies of Mechanism 667

Goodhart, A. M. Tipperary Variations 217

Hollins, Alfred. Spring Song (arr. by H. A. Chambers) 29

Moscheles, Ignaz. Etudes 486

Newton, Ernest. Woodland Dances ... 604

Purcell, Henry. Prelude in G 730

Schmitt, Aloys. Etudes 604
Steibelt, Daniel. Etudes 486

Taylor, Franklin. Etudes 486

Wolff, Edouard. Etudes 667

VIOLIN MUSIC.

MacCunn, Hamish. Romance in G ... 155
Mackenzie, A. C. Tema con Variazioni 668

Paganini's Art of Playing the Violin. By Carl Guhr. Revised by C. Egerton Lowe 478
Parry, C. Hubert H. Radnor Suite in F (arr. by Emily Daymond) ... 486
——— Bourrée; Slow Minuet; Gigue. From Suite in F 668

SONGS.

Arne, Michael. The lass with the delicate air (arr. by Thomas F. Dunhill) 350

Bowie, Percy. Lightheart Lane ... 350

Fletcher, Percy E. Honeysuckle Lane 350

Harty, Hamilton. The Wake Feast ... 93

Ley, Henry G. Second Album of Songs 486

Rootham, Cyril B. A Vignette... ... 93

BOOKS RECEIVED.

29, 155, 218, 283, 350, 414, 486, 544, 730

CORRESPONDENCE.

Academic Teaching and Palestrina ... 350
'Achilles,' H.M.S., Choir and Glee Party 220
Artist and the People, The. S. Fountain on E. Newman 155
Associated Board Examinations ... 487

Beethoven's Nationality (T. Francis Howell) 30
Biography of Coleridge-Taylor (Inquiry) 103
British Composers 284
——— and their critics... 219

Capell, Pte. Richard. Letter from the Front 340
Carillons 284
César Franck and the Sonata 350

Page

Chimes of Gloucester Cathedral, The (S. Gregory Ould) 413
Chin Rests (see 105, 223) 284
Choir and Glee Party of H.M.S. 'Achilles' 220
Church of Ireland Hymnal, The ... 351
'Clay and the Potter' (re Frederick Corder) (see 15) 94
'Conductors.' Formation of Band ... 114
Consecutive Fifths and other matters (E. Newman) (see 94) 156, 218
Conventions of Church Music, The. 103
Copyright 240
Counterpoint and Harmony 283
Country Dance 732
Croatian Music (Lewis L. Kropf) 95, 220

Eighteenth century French Carillon, An 487, 553
Elgar's Service in F at Glasgow Cathedral 487
English Folk-Song and Dance (Miss Lucy Broadwood, Miss Mary Neal, E. Phillips Barker, Frank Kidson, and W. G. Whittaker) 730

Fifth century Carol, A 220
Foreign Names for English Editions ... 553
Form and Composition. (E. G. Turner and Ernest Newman) (see 94) ... 30, 156
French Carillon (18th century), Dunkirk Chimes v. Prussian Tattoo (see 487) 553

Goldmark's 'The Queen of Sheba' ... 157

'He was despised.' The disputed A flat 351, 413
'Hill' Family. Obituary dates wanted 157

Illegal Copying of music 605
International Musical Society, The (Dr. Maclean) 29

Kidson, Frank, on English Folk-Song and Dance 730

Landi, Claude. Musical Education in England 284
Lincoln's Inn Chapel 487
Longest Pianoforte piece 306

Marching Tunes 31
Music and Nationalism. (Francis Toye re Stravinsky) 96, 156
Music wanted 732
Musical Education in England. (Claude Landi) 284

National Marching Tunes, Origin of, &c. (Robert Lorenz, J. Landfear Lucas, and Haydn Matthews). (Re 'The Artist and the People,' by Ernest Newman. October, 1914) 31

Old English Service Music ... 544, 605

Pietà, Signore. Rossini or Stradella? 668
Prussian Tattoo v. Dunkirk Chimes and an 18th century French Carillon (see 487) 553
Psalm Tunes: The melody in the Tenor 32, 103

Stravinsky (E. Newman, Calvocoressi, Francis Toye) 150
Teacher's Library, A. (Ernest Austin) 157
Turner, E. G. Consecutive 5ths, &c. (see Form above).

Versions of 'La Marseillaise' ... 551, 605

Welsh Hymn and its origin, A 668

OBITUARY.

Acton, John 352
Amphlett, Capt. Edward Baylie (at Dardanelles) 414
Appleyard, James William 733
Armes, Emily Jane 606
Augener, George Peter William ... 606

Bapty, Walter 285
Barnby, Lady Edith Mary 487
Barry, Charles Ainslie 220
Bird, Henry R. 733
Bonnell, C. 157
Bradley, Charles 487
Brady, George 158
Bromilow, Hubert Cecil 32
Browne, Denis 407
Burke, Frederick J. 157
Butler, T. O'Brien 352

Carey, Eustace 221
Crosby, Miss Fanny (Mrs. F. Van Alstyne) 553
Crowdy, Wallace Lowe 733
Cummings, William Hayman 394

Page

D'Ambrosio, Alfred 158
De Munck, Chevalier Ernest 158
De Reuter, Baron Herbert 285
Duffell, Dr. John 669
Dyer, Wharton 669

Ecorcheville, Jules 276
Edwardes, George 669
Elliott, James William 158

Fletcher, Charles 733
Forsyth, Neil 352
Foster, John 285

Goldmark, Carl 103
Greene, Edwin 553

Hall, C. W. L. Marshall 487, 538
Haworth, Franklin 158
Hickson, Frederick G. 104
Hockey, F. H. 669
Holder, Francis 414
Holmes, Thomas Weekes 221

Jekyll, Charles Sherwood... 32

Karlyle, Charles 158, 221
Kinkee, Frederick Ralph 221
Küster, Gustav Louis Amédée 285

Lane, Bernard 220
Leschetizsky, Theodor 732
Lèvi, Edgardo 221

Manly, Frank Paul... 414
Marshall-Hall, Prof. G. W. L 487, 538
Mason, Lieut. Edward 351
Monoghan, Albert George 553
Moodie, William 103

Neilson, Mr. and Mrs. 606
Neruda, Franz 285
Nunn, E. Cuthbert... 32

Paterson, John 414
Phillips, J. W. 414

Renaut, F. W. 158
Reuter, Baron Herbert de 285
Rimskopf, Leon 487
Roberts, Cadwalade 414

Safonov (son of the conductor) 606
Sarpy, Pierre 158, 221
Schartau, Herbert 414
Schiever, Ernst 157
Sgambati, Giovanni 32
Smith, Arthur F. 103
Smith, Thomas Sherwood 606
Sneddon, James 285
Stanley, The Hon. Maude (see Competition Record, August) 487
Stavenhagen, Bernhard 158
Stephens, Tom 605

Taneiev, Sergei 487

Von Lengyel von Bagota, Ernst 104, 158

Waldteufel, Emile 158
Wells, Mrs. Emily Jane (Miss Emily Davis) 487
Wicks, Thomas 104
Williams, Warwick 352
Wilson, H. Lane 103

MISCELLANEOUS.

OCCASIONAL NOTES, LECTURES, MEETINGS, ETC.

Abbey Glee Club, The. Dr. McNaught elected hon. member 370
Absentee British Musician, The (Re Concerts) 594
Account Book of a Dublin Harpsichord Maker, The: Ferdinand Weber, 1764-1783 363
Alarming Prospect, An (new version, 'God save the King') 81
Alien Music in Germany 533
Answers to Correspondents 50, 114, 176, 240, 306, 370, 431, 496, 561, 625, 687, 752
Arne Portrait, An 224
Associated Board of the R.A.M. and R.C.M. Awards 50, 309
——— Annual Meeting... 490
——— Examinations. New Syllabuses for 1916 607
——— Examinations, 1916. Metronome Rates of Tests 607
——— 1915—Metronome Rates of Tests 678

B minor Mass. First performance in Scotland (Edinburgh) 114
Bainton, Mr. Edgar. First performance, 'Oithona,' Glastonbury 539
Band of the R.M.L.I. and The King ... 625

Page

Bands, War, Racing, and Fashions. By Pte. Richard Capell (B.E.F.) 340
Baring, Maurice. 36-ft. tone Bass voices! 624
Barker, E. Phillips. 'The Compendious Way,' Review on English Folk-song and Dance (see 730, 731) 670
Bath, Mr. Hubert. On enemy alien music 495
Baylis, Miss Lilian. (Re cheap opera) ... 595
Bechstein Hall. License refused ... 723
Beecham, Mr. Thomas, as Æsop. Colleges and Singers 37, 211
——— 'The burning question, Is music a fine Art or a nuisance' ... 434
Beethoven's use of an Irish air in the 7th Symphony 474
Belgian Music in London 38
Bells at Malines and Queenstown ... 399
Beringer, Mr. Oscar. (Re Naturalization) 400
Bluthner & Co. (Royal Warrant cancelled) 400
Bridge, Frank. Cobbett Prize for String Quartet 434
Bridge Sir Frederick. Lectures ... 751
Brighton Municipal Orchestra 682
British Bandsman. Bandsmen enlisted, 5,833 595
British Music. How to promote publication 415
British Musicians' Society 274
British Pianoforte Factories. Meeting of Employees 414
Brodsky, Dr. Return to England from Ruhleben 274
Browne, Denis. Death of 407
Burgess, Mr. Francis. The Teaching and Accompaniment of Plainsong (extract) 672

Caecilienverein. The Sins of the ... 657
Capell, Richard. Letter from the Front 340
Carnegie Trust Report 407
Cart de Lafontaine, Mr. H. T. (Relinquishes Holy Orders) 114
Catholic Truth Society of Ireland. Conference 668
Cavell Memorial Service. Protest by Martin Shaw 722
Cecil Captain George 240
Chamberlain, Houston Stewart. 'A renegade Englishman' 533
Chopin's Heart, transferred from Warsaw to Moscow 561
Choral Society Programmes ... 606, 678
Choral Technique. By W. G. McNaught (see February Competition Record)
'Christmas Oratorio' in Worcester Cathedral, The 280
Clemens, Mr. Warren T. Appointment to Glasgow Choral Union 479
——— Farewell to Aberdeen 736
Clutsam Cradle Keyboard . 284, 362, 495, 687
——— G. H. 240
Coates, Henry. Marriage to Miss Edith Evans 560
Cobbett Phantasy prize awarded to Mr. Albert Sammons 370
Cobbett String Quartet Competition ... 434
Cochrane, Sir Stanley, Bart. 428
Cold Concert Audiences 723
Coliseum 595
Colleges and Singers: Mr. Beecham as Æsop 37, 211
Committee for Music in War-time (see Music in War-time).
Copyright Act, 1911, Text of the ... 86
Corder, Frederick. On British Music 415
Creighton, Mr. J. A. Appointment as Secretary, R.A.M. 240
Crews, Mr. C. T. Daniel. Legacies to the R.A.M. and Musicians' Company 240
Custard, Mr. Reginald Goss. Close of Recitals at St. Margaret's 479
Czerny. 'Karl' or 'Charles' 211

Dalcroze, Jaques. Demonstration ... 490
Davies, Dr. H. Walford. Lectures (see Royal Institution) 166, 285
——— Music for Soldier Audiences 540
Davies, William. A veteran's suggestion 679
D'Albert, Eugen, and England ... 81, 625
D'Indy, Vincent. On Belgian and German Music 624
De Lara, Isidore (War Emergency Entertainments) 430
Dearmer, Mr. Percy. 'The Cockyolly Bird' 111
Denyn, M. Josef. Carillon Recitals ... 114
Dickin, H. B. The War and Musical Composition 671
'Die Musik' (Stoppage) 657
Dixon, Mr. Walter H. 624

Page

Doubleday, Miss Katherine. Recitals ... 176
'Dresden' Piano Company. Change of name 240
Drysdale, Mr. Learmont 113
Dublin Harpsichord Maker. Account Book of a 363
Dyson, Mr. George. Resignation from Rugby School 306

Edinburgh. First performance of B minor Mass in Scotland 114
Eighteenth Century French Carillon, An (see 487) 425, 553
Elgar, Sir Edward. 'Falstaff' in Paris 240
——— 'Polonia.' First performance 490
Emergency Concerts and Bands. (Rudyard Kipling on) 147
Encores and Knitting 146
English as it should be sung. Lecture (Herman Klein) 37
English Folk-Dance Society. Annual Meeting 686
Evans, Miss Edith. Marriage to Henry Coates 561
Execution of Classical Works: Notably those of the Older Masters, The. By Camille Saint-Saëns. (Translated by Herman Klein) 474

Fellowes, Rev. E. H. Lecture on Wilbye 223
Festival of British Music, A ... 146, 306
Fogarty, Miss May. Appointment ... 752
Folk-Songs, How to popularise 489
Forkel's 'Life of John Sebastian Bach' (Quotation) 474
Fowles, Mr. Ernest. Lectures 488
French Carillon, An 18th Century: Prussian Tattoo v. Dunkirk Chimes 553

German Music. By Sir Charles Stanford 599 ——— Should it be performed? (see Poem, 399) 433, 533, 723
Glasgow Choral Union. New Conductor (Mr. W. T. Clemens) 479
Glastonbury Festival ... 340, 539, 752
——— Production of Bainton's 'Oithona' 539
Glinka's 'Life for the Czar' 176
Godwin, Miss Dorothy. (Harpist) ... 687
Grainger, Mr. Percy. on Delius 625
Guadagnini Violin, Sale of 752
Guarnerius Violin, Sale of 752

Hackney Institute Musical Society. Lectures 686
Harris, Mr. Andrew. Welsh Guards Band 625
Henschel, Sir George. Poem on Germany and the War ... 17, 434 ——— Presentation to Red Cross Funds 240
Higgin, Mr. Clifford. Appointment in Canada 114
Holbrooke, Mr. Joseph. Accident (see 21, 402) 561, 752
Hull, Dr. Eaglefield. Modern Harmony 240
Humours of Opera. By Ernest Newman (The innocent curate) 619

Import Tax on Pianofortes, &c. ... 658
Incorporated Society of Musicians 176, 284, 370, 751
Incorporated Staff Sight-Singing College 561
International Musical Society. Letters regarding position created by the War 160

Janotha, Mlle. 533, 624
Jaques-Dalcroze, M. Lecture-demonstration 490
Johnson, Mr. Bernard. Organ recitals 594

Kalisch, Mr. Alfred. Translations from foreign languages 488
King Albert's Book 17
Kingsway Hall 685
Kipling, Rudyard. Bands for recruiting 147
Kitson, Dr. Strict Counterpoint ... 412
Klein, Mr. Herman. English as it should be sung 37
Kling, Mr. O. M. 81, 624
Knowles, Charles, Farrier Quartermaster-Sergt. Letter from Egypt ... 17

'Lay them aside' (the works of German composers). Poem by M. E. Urch 399
Legacies to the R.A.M. and Musicians' Company 240, 431
Lincoln's Inn Chapel. By Harvey Grace 345, 487
Littleton, Mr. Augustus. Appointed Chairman of Novello & Co., Ltd. ... 147
London Academy of Music. New name (add 'Incorporated') 370
'Long Arm' again, The. Remarkable Coincidence 724
Lord Mayor's Banquet, Music at the ... 722

Page

Lord Roberts. Memorial Service, Music at. Sir Charles Stanford's protest ... 722
Lowe, Mr. C. Egerton. Historical Concert-lectures 240
——— Modern Music 495, 752

Macpherson, Mr. Stewart. Lecture on Modern Harmony 221
Malines Bells not destroyed 399
Matthay, Mr. Tobias ... 150, 687, 752
——— Pianoforte School 491
Melba, Madame 625
Mendelssohn's Wedding March. First used at wedding 723
Metronome rates. Assoc. Board New Syllabuses, 1916 607
Michel, John. A rated Piper on a Battleship 496
Military Bands. Openings for Musicians 108
Modern Flemish School of Music, The 38
Modern Harmony as it affects the Teacher and Student of To-day. (Stewart Macpherson) 221
Montagu-Nathan, Mr. Lectures 370, 431, 495
Morris Dancing at Queen's Park, Glasgow 434
Muir, Dr. (Cape Province). Resignation 370
Multum in Parvo. A remarkable potpourri 724
Music behind the Front 672
Music for Soldier Audiences (Dr. Walford Davies) 540
Music Halls and the War 533
Music in Captivity (Mr. B. J. Dale), (see 473) 310
Music in War-time, Committee for (see 365) 104, 606
——— List of Donations to Musical Times Fund 474, 533, 606, 663
Musical Association Lectures. (Choral Technique, see February Competition Record) 176, 223, 275, 415
Musical doings at the Cape 341
Musical Quarterly, The 339

Nathan, Mr. Montagu-. Russian Literature and Music 352
——— Russian Operatic Gospel, The 370
——— Lecture (Cui's opera, 'Mademoiselle Fifi') 495
National Anthem. An alarming prospect 81
——— Origin of the 351
Naval and Military Music 210
New Army and its Musical Needs, The 147
New Tax on Imported Musical Instruments 685
Niecks, Prof. 'Life of Chopin' ... 561
Novello & Co., Ltd., New Chairman (Mr. Augustus Littleton) 147
——— Roll of Honour 534

Official Marches (United States) ... 532
Old Arabian and Turkish Violins ... 663
Opera (see Rosing) ... 350, 555, 595, 679, 732

Paderewski on The Future of Music ... 473
Park Music, L.C.C. 210
Perpin, Mr. A. H. Appointment to Rugby School 306
Performing Right Society 561
Pianists and Cinemas 230
Plain-song (Harmony and Voice Production) 672
Plea for English Titles, A (see 553) ... 489
Plébiscite Programme of Organ Music 657
Poems (on the War) 17, 399
'Polonia' (Edward Elgar), first performance 491
Prussian Tattoo v. Dunkirk Chimes ... 553
Publication of British music, How to promote 415

Queen's Hall Orchestra (Fine record) ... 340

Rated Piper on a Battleship, A 496
Recreation in War-Time, The Bishop of Birmingham on 473
Recruiting Bands 211
——— Report of Committee 556
Renegade 'Englishman,' A (Houston Stewart Chamberlain) 533
Roll of Honour, Novello & Co. 534
Rosing, Mr. Wladimir (London Opera House Season) 306, 340, 416, 491, 533, 556
Royal Academy of Music. Awards, &c. 38, 401, 489, 554, 733 ——— Legacy (Mrs. Drinan) 431
Royal College of Music. Awards 81, 489
——— Annual Meeting 554
Royal Institution, The. Lectures by Dr. H. Walford Davies—
To untrained listeners 166
Emergency music 285
Royal Normal College for the Blind ... 490
Royal Society of Arts 114
——— Awards 687

Page

Royal Victoria Hall (see Baylis).
Rugby School. Resignation of George Dyson; appointment of A. H. Peppin 306
Russian and French Opera Season (see Rosing).
Russian Literature and Russian Music. By Mr. Montagu-Nathan 352

Saint-Saëns, Dr. Camille 222, 658
——— The execution of classical works, notably those of the Older Masters ... 474
——— 'The Promised Land' (San Francisco) 491, 533
Sammons, Mr. Albert 23
——— wins Cobbett Phantasy Prize 370
Scharrer, Miss Irene. Engagement to Mr. S. G. Lubbock 625
Schott & Co. (Royal Warrant cancelled) 400
Sea Songs and Shanties. By Dr. R. R. Terry 415
Shaftesbury Theatre. Opera 359, 555, 595, 679, 733
Shakespeare and Grand Opera at Twopence 594
Sharp, Mr. Cecil J. Lecture 752
Smyth Dr. Ethel, on the Philharmonic Quartet 491
Society of Women Musicians. Conference 496
Soldiers and their Songs, How to help 671
Sorry World, A. Mr. Beecham's pessimism (see 37) 211
Souvenir Luncheon at the Savoy (Three Arts Fund) 474
Stanford, Sir Charles. Norfolk (Connecticut) Festival 274, 400
——— On British Music 414
——— New Pianoforte Concerto 400, 478
——— On German music 599
Strauss, Richard. 'Alpine' Symphony 625
Stravinsky—as food for Infants 723
Sydney Conservatoire. Appointment of Mr. Henri Verbrugghen 400
Symphony Concerts 595

Tax (Import) on Pianofortes, &c. ... 658
Techniquer. Lecture-demonstration ... 561
'Tenor and Basso too' (Mr. Frank Webster) 274
Terry, Dr. R. R. Lecture. Northumbrian Folk Music... 751
'The Immortal Hour.' Bournemouth (Rutland Boughton) 107
Three Arts Fund, The. Souvenir Luncheon at the Savoy 474
'Three B's' Festival 210
Towers, Mr. John. Retirement (St. Louis, U.S.A.) 751
Translations from Foreign Languages (Lecture by Mr. Alfred Kalisch) ... 488
Trinity College of Music. Awards ... 619
——— Appointments 686
Trotter, Dr. Yorke. Demonstration ... 735
Twopenny Opera, The (see Baylis).

United States Official Marches 532
Urch, M. C. Poem, 'Lay them aside' 399

Verbrugghen, Mr. Henri. Appointment to Sydney 400
'Vow, The' New Opera by Colin McAlpin 433
'Voces Clamantium.' Sir Hubert Parry 751

War and Musical Composition, The. Mr. H. B. Dickin 671
War and Musical Festivals, The (Birmingham) 17
War Emergency Concerts, Mr. Isidore de Lara's 430
Weber, Ferdinand. A Dublin Harpsichord maker. (His Accounts) ... 363
Webster, Mr. Frank ('Tenor and Basso too')... 274
Westminster Abbey. New Choir School 751
Wilbye, John. Lecture by Rev. E. H. Fellowes 223
Women's Institute. Discussion on how to promote publication of British Music. (Miss Eggar, Sir Charles Stanford, and Mr. Frederick Corder) 415

LONDON AND SUBURBAN CONCERTS, OPERA, Etc.

Æolian Hall 734
Albert Hall Sunday Concerts. 'Pro Patria,' first performance, by J. D. Davis (see 215) 299
——— Promenade Concerts 340, 429, 492
——— Ballad Concerts... 678
——— Rachmaninov's Symphony in E minor 734
Alexander, Mr. Harry 430
Alexandra Palace Choral Society 108, 364, 619, 734

Page

Bach-Beethoven-Brahms Festival 210, 275, 360
Bach Choir 203
Bach Concert 169
Balham Strollers' Operatic Society ... 230
Band of the Royal Engineers 42
Barthelmy, Mr. M.... 299
Bateman, Miss Alys ... 434, 687, 751
Battersea Choral Union 370
Belgian Quartet 430
Belgian Relief Fund and British Red Cross 42
Bentwich, Miss Thelma. First appearance 735
British Music Festival 303
Bromley Choral Society 93, 231
Busoni. Violin and Pianoforte Sonata, Op. 34*a* (Melsa and Rosenbloom) ... 493
Butt, Clara. Royal Albert Hall Concert ... ...

'Carillon' (Elgar). First performance 41
Central Croydon Choral Society ... 169
Cernikov, M. Vladimir 687
Chamber Concerts 41, 734
Choral Service Orchestra 561
Clarke, J. C. Fulham Choral Society 231
Classical Concert Society 230, 299, 603, 686, 734
Corder, Frederick. Elegy for Twenty-four Violins 240
Croydon String Players' Club 493
Crystal Palace Patriotic Concerts ... 42

Davis, Mr. J. D. 'Pro Patria,' first performance (see 215) 299
De Lara (see War Emergency Concerts)
Delius, Frederick. First performance of 'North Country Sketches'... ... 364 ——— Reception Music Club... ... 364
Deru, M. Edouard 432
Dulwich Philharmonic Society ... 42, 299
Dunhill, Thomas. Concerts 231
Dushkin, Mr. Samuel 230

Ealing Choral and Orchestral Society 169, 365
Ealing Philharmonic Society 365
Elgar, Edward. First performance of 'Polonia' 490
English Trio, The 495
Epstein, M. Isador 42, 493
Etlinger Opera School 430, 735

Festival of British Music at Queen's Hall 363
Fox, Mrs. C. Milligan. Presentation ... 735
Freeman, Mr. George 42
Fulham and District Choral Society (new conductor, Mr. J. C. Clarke) ... 231

Great Eastern Railway Musical Society 240, 306
Great Western Railway Musical Society 169, 370
Grow, Miss Ethel 492
Guildhall School of Music... ...42, 555, 751

Hambourg, Mr. Mark ... 493, 687, 734
Harrison, Miss May 434
Hither Green Choral and Orchestral Society. ('The Lotus eater,' Parry)... 109
Holbrooke, Mr. Joseph. Chamber Concerts... 364

Independent Music Club, The 240, 430, 495
Ireland, John. New Trio... 299

Kellie, Mr. Laurence 496
Kendall, Madame. Brazilian singer ... 687
Kennedy, Miss Daisy 493
Kimpton, Miss Gwynne (see Orchestral Concerts for Young People).
Kingsway Hall 42, 685
Kontorovitch, Miss Lena, and Mr. Vernon Warner 370

Layton, Mrs. Mary. Annual Concert 495
Leighton House Chamber Concerts 169, 364, 370, 555, 734
Lett, Miss Phyllis 430
London Academy of Music—new name, 'Incorporated' L. A. of Music ... 370
London Choral Society 40, 169, 364, 555, 726
London College of Music 158
London Opera House Season (Mr. Rosing) 306, 340, 416, 491, 533, 556
London School of Opera ... 108, 434, 491
London String Quartet. 41, 42, 299, 492, 734
——— New 'Phantasy' Quartet. By Mr. Albert Sammons 299
London Symphony Orchestra 41, 42, 169, 231, 298, 364, 618, 733

Page

London Symphony Orchestra. First Performance of 'North Country Sketches' (Delius) 364
——— Verbrugghen Farewell Concert 492
London Sunday School Choir 684
London Trio... ... ... 108, 169, 230, 430
Lorenzi, Mr. Mario (Harpist) 493
Lunn, Madame Kirkby, at the Coliseum 595

Maddison, Adela 364
Mansfield House Choral Society ... 170
Mansion House War Concert 17
Manuelle, Miss Doris 364
Marchot, Mr. Alfred 734
Marlein, Mr. Hugh... 493
Matthay, Mr. Tobias 430
Melsa and Rosenbloom. Busoni's Sonata, Op. 34*a* 493
Menges, Miss Isolde 430
Moiseivitsch, M. Benno ... 299, 493, 734
Murdoch, Mr. William 299
Music Club. First performance Légende, Violin and Orchestra (Delius)... ... 169
——— Reception of Mr. Delius ... 364

Nonconformist Choir Union 348
Novello Choir 284, 369

Opera in English at the Shaftesbury Theatre 555, 679
Orchestral Concerts for Young People 41, 169, 430, 496, 687, 752
Orchestral Concerts of British Composers 363, 430
Oriana Madrigal Society ... 40, 231, 429, 686
Orpheus Choral Society 42
Ostend Kursaal Orchestra. Queen's Hall 169, 734
Oxford House Musical Association, Bethnal Green 230

Pachmann 493, 687, 735
People's Palace Choral and Orchestral Society ('King Olaf, &c.) ... 109, 231
Philharmonic String Quartet 491, 492, 495, 734
'Polonia' (Edward Elgar). First Performance 491
Professional Classes War Relief Council (see 104, 474, 533, 606, 663) 365

Queen's Hall Orchestra ... 108, 169, 298, 340, 364, 678, 734
——— Promenade Season ... 492, 555, 619, 678, 734
——— Ballad Concerts 678
——— Symphony Concerts 41, 109, 678

Ravel, Maurice. 'Trois Poëmes de Stéphane Mallarmé' 231
Ronay, M. Kalman ... 495, 561, 686, 735
Rootham, Dr. Cyril (New Quartet) ... 492
Rosenthal, Mr. Archy 687
Royal Academy of Music 41, 158, 240, 298, 489, 554, 734
——— Awards (see under Miscellaneous).
Royal Chelsea Hospital (Open-air Concert) 493
Royal Choral Society 40, 108, 169, 230, 271, 298, 618, 734
Royal College of Music 41, 165, 489, 734, 735
——— Awards, &c. (see under Miscellaneous).
——— Verdi's Requiem 165
Royal Engineers' Band 42
Royal Philharmonic Society 32, 165, 230, 298, 429, 555, 619, 733
——— Berlioz's 'Te Deum' 32
Russian Concerts 42

Sammons, Mr. Albert. His first performance of Elgar's Violin Concerto (see 430, 687) 41
Scotch Festival 42
Seguel, Mlle. Mania 41
Shaftesbury Opera in English 359, 555, 679, 733
Slavonic Concert 493
Société des Concerts Français ... 429, 493
Society of Women Musicians 108
Solomon 495
'Some' Opera 595
South London Philharmonic Society ... 170
South Place Popular Concerts 169, 299, 678, 734
South-West Choral Society ... 42, 240
Southport 687
Streatham and South London String Orchestra 299
Strolling Players' Orchestral Society ... 365

Page

Thornfield, Madame Emily 230
Tovey, Mr. Donald Francis 42
——— First performance of New Symphony 429
Trinity College of Music 42, 176, 298, 490, 619
'Trois Poëmes de Stéphane Mallarmé' (Maurice Ravel). First English performance 231
Twopenny Opera (Lambeth) 416

Verbrugghen, Mr. Farewell Concert... 492
Verne, Miss Mathilde 735
'Veronique' at the Adelphi 352
Victoria Hall. Opera 595

Waller, Percy 434
War Emergency Concerts 113, 211, 274, 299, 430, 488, 625, 687, 735
West London Choral Union 369
Westminster Orchestral Society ... 299
Whitman, Mr. Ben... 42
Wimbledon '1914' Choral Society 299, 735

PROVINCIAL AND COLONIAL CONCERTS, Etc.

Aberdeen 49, 239, 369
——— 'St. Matthew' Passion ... 305
Adelaide 686
——— Mr. Frederick Bevan 560
Auckland 49

B minor Mass. First performance in Scotland (Edinburgh) 114
Bainton, Edgar. First performance of 'Oithona' 539
Bangor 369
Bath 620
Belfast... ... ... 170, 299, 679

Birmingham 42, 109, 170, 231, 299, 365, 430, 556, 620, 679, 735
Birmingham Festival. Letters to The Times on postponement of the 17, 18 ——— Postponement of the. Mr. Ernest Newman on 77
Blackburn 49
Blackpool, Opera at 106, 556
Boughton, Rutland. First performance of 'The Immortal Hour' 107
——— 'The birth of Arthur'... ... 539
Bournemouth 43, 107, 109, 171, 232, 300, 365, 431, 493, 557, 620, 680, 736
——— Bainton's 'Oithona.' First performance 539
Bradford 176, 238, 750
Braintree 239
Brighton 113, 239, 682
Bristol 44, 171, 233, 301, 366, 431, 557, 620, 681, 745
Bristol Madrigal Society 108
Buxton Orchestra 496

Cambridge ... 44, 172, 233, 365, 557, 745
Cape Town 624
——— Report of Municipal Orchestra 494
Cheltenham 239, 434
Clitheroe 176
Cockermouth... 176
Cornwall 44, 110, 172, 233, 301, 367, 432, 493, 557, 620, 681, 745

Devon 44, 110, 172, 233, 301, 365, 432, 493, 557, 620, 681, 745
Dublin... ... 45, 110, 172, 234, 432, 746
Dunedin (N.Z.) 624

Edinburgh 45, 110, 172, 302, 682, 746
——— First Performance of the B minor Mass in Scotland 114
Enniscorthy 434
Exeter 681

Galway, University College. Appointment of Miss May Fogarty 752
Glasgow, 45, 111, 172, 234, 302, 621, 682, 747
——— Ladies' String Orchestra ... 370 ——— Appointment of Mr. Clemens as Conductor of Glasgow Choral Union 479
Glastonbury Festival. Edgar Bainton's 'Oithona,' &c. 539

Halifax Madrigal Society... 49
Hanley 49, 239
Harrogate 558
Hobart (Tasmania)... 113
Huddersfield. New Chamber Music Society 750

Immortal Hour, The (First performance). Rutland Boughton 107
Ipswich (Verdi's 'Requiem') 239

Jersey Choral Society 686
Johannesburg 495

Page

Leeds 48, 113, 175, 238, 750
Leek 176
Lincoln 558
Liverpool 45, 111, 173, 234, 239, 302, 367, 558, 621, 682, 747

Manchester ... 46, 112, 174, 235, 303, 368, 432, 493, 559, 621, 683, 748
McAlpin, Colin. 'The Vow' 433
Melbourne 113
Middlesbrough 751
——— Wagner's 'Holy Supper' ... 369

Nevis (B. W. I.) 113
Newcastle 47, 49, 112, 175, 236, 304, 684, 749
Norwich 113
——— 'St. Matthew Passion 306
Nottingham 47, 175, 237, 239, 304, 621, 684, 750
——— First performance of Colin McAlpin's Opera 'The Vow'... ... 433
Ottery 682
Oxford 48, 237, 432

Penzance. Miss Stevenson's Ladies' Choir 752
Petworth. Brahms's 'Requiem' ... 239
Plymouth ... 44, 110, 233, 621, 681, 745
Pretoria (S.A.) 624

Reading 113
Rhosllanerchrugog, N. Wales. Verdi's 'Requiem' 239
Rugeley 176

Sheffield 48, 237, 304, 623, 685
Southport 49, 176, 239, 306
Stockport Musical Festival ... 561, 686
Stourbridge 240
Sydney (N.S.W.). Opening of Conservatoire 495

Tasmania 560
Timaru (N.Z.) 240
Toronto. The National Chorus 176, 624
Torquay 234, 302, 365, 620, 681

Vancouver 49, 240
Ventnor 50, 474

Winnipeg 624
Woolley, Mr. William (Nottingham) ... 495

Yorkshire ... 48, 113, 175, 238, 305, 685, 750

FOREIGN NOTES.

Amsterdam. 'Tristan' 494
Berlin 686
Chicago 495
Florence. Interview with Caruso ... 554
Kiel. Florence Eastman, of Yorkshire, sings 'Carmen' 561
Los Angeles. 'Fairy Land,' new opera by Horatio Parker (first performance) 560
Milan. Return of Caruso 677
Moscow 624
Paris. First performance in Paris of Elgar's 'Falstaff' 495
——— Charpentier conducts 'Louise' for the first time 495
Petrograd. New ballet by Davidson ... 495
——— English music performed ... 624
Rome. Re Mascagni and Caruso ... 553
Russia, Opera in 626
San Francisco. 'The Promised Land' (Saint-Saëns) 491

COMPETITION FESTIVAL RECORD.

JANUARY (No. 78) TO DECEMBER (No. 89).

No.

Aberystwyth (National Eisteddfod) ...79, 80
Association of Musical Competition Festivals, The. Regrettable and Untimely Criticism 89
Bagpipes in Battle, The 88
Bangor 80, 84, 85, 86, 88
Bath 83, 85
Belfast... 82
Belle Vue (Manchester) 83, 88
Birmingham (Midland Festival)... 83, 88
Blackpool (abandonment) 85
Bristol 83
Brookline (U.S.A.)... 85

Cannock 87
Choirs Short of Men. Some Suggestions 85
Choral Technique. Lecture by Dr. McNaught 79
——— Dr. Coward (extract from book) 88
Cleethorpes 83
Cleveleys (Blackpool) 78
Coleraine 86
Colwyn Bay 79
Coming Competitions ... 79, 80, 81, 82, 83
Competitive Festival for Church Choirs of all Denominations 83
——— Abandoned 84
Competitive Movement, Plea for the continuance of the 81
——— Review of the 84, 85
——— Prospects of the 88
——— Resumption of (Correspondence) 89
Cornwall 84

Douglas (see Manx).
Dublin... ... ... 84, 89
Dundalk 86

Failsworth (Manchester) 80
Federation of Working Girls' Clubs 81, 82
Feis Ceoil (Dublin)... 81
Festivals—1916 89
Free Church Musicians' Union (Newport) 83

Girls' Club Federation 81, 82
Girls' Club Union (London) ... 81, 86
Girls' Friendly Society 83
Glasgow 83
Grace, Harvey. Voice-Training in Girls' Clubs 87

Hastings 83
Haughton (Staffordshire)... ... 82, 88
Henderson, Mr. T. To choirs short of men 85
Huddersfield ('Mrs. Sunderland') ... 80

Ilkley (Wharfedale) 83

Lady Lilford on the Oundle Festival ... 89
List of Festivals announced for 1916 ... 89
London Girls' Club Union ... 81, 86
Londonderry... 81
Long Eaton, Nottingham... 82

Manchester, Belle Vue 83, 88
Manchester Lyric Glee Society. Letter from Conductor, Mr. Grundy ... 86
Manx 78, 82
Mid-Somerset (Bath) 83, 85
Middlesbrough 79
Midland Festival (Birmingham)... 83, 88
Morecambe (Abandonment) 83
Morpeth 82

National Eisteddfod of Wales 79, 80, 84, 85, 86, 88
North Northampton (Oundle) 89
Northampton... 88
Nottingham 80

Penistone 89
People's Palace, London, E. ... 80, 83, 87
——— Announcement to Competitors 80
Plea for simpler music at Girls' Club Competitions, A 85
Plymouth 78, 86, 89
Prospects of the Movement 88

Review of the Movement since the War began 84, 85

'St. Cecilia' Working Girls' Clubs ... 78
Salford Band of Hope Union 82
San Francisco 86
School Competition, Tottenham, A ... 82
——— in South Africa 80, 87
Singing from Memory, and Rests (Dr. Coward on) (extract from book) ... 88
Sligo Feis Ceoil 80, 82
South Africa 80, 87
South and West London 81, 85, 89
Southern Co-operative Choral Association 86
Stanley, The Hon. Maude Aletha (Obituary) 85
Stirchley (Birmingham) 88
Stocksbridge (Sheffield) 85
Stratford and East London ... 81, 82
'Sunderland, Mrs.,' Competition, The 80
Swaledale 81

Taunton 81
Tewkesbury 83
Tottenham High School House Competition 82
Voice-Training in Girls' Clubs. By Harvey Grace 87

Waterford 85
Wateringbury Church Choir (Maidstone) A fine record 89
Welsh Soldiers' Eisteddfod at Winchester, A 88
Widnes 81
Wirral 82
Working Girls' Club Union ... 81, 86
Yorkshire Choirmaster on Continuing Festivals 89

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

FOUNDED IN 1844.

PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH.

No. 863.—Vol. 56.
Registered at the General Post Office for Canadian Postage.

JANUARY 1, 1915.

Price 3d.; Postage 1½d.
Annual Subscription, Post-free, 4s.

ROYAL CHORAL SOCIETY.

ROYAL ALBERT HALL.

Patron: HIS MAJESTY THE KING.

Conductor: SIR FREDERICK BRIDGE, C.V.O.

FRIDAY EVENING, JANUARY 1, AT 7.30.

"MESSIAH" - - - HANDEL.

MISS RUTH VINCENT.
MADAME CLARA BUTT.
MR. BEN DAVIES.
MR. HERBERT BROWN.

SATURDAY AFTERNOON, FEBRUARY 6, AT 3.

(Postponed from January 28.)

"HIAWATHA"- COLERIDGE-TAYLOR.

MISS AGNES NICHOLLS.

MR. JOHN COATES. | MR. GEORGE PARKER.

FULL BAND AND CHORUS.

Organist: MR. H. L. BALFOUR.

Prices: Stalls, 7s. 6d.; Arena, 6s.; Balcony, 4s. and 2s. 6d.; Gallery (Promenade), 1s.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC,

YORK GATE, MARYLEBONE ROAD, LONDON, N.W.

Instituted 1822. Incorporated by Royal Charter, 1830.

Patron: HIS MAJESTY THE KING.

President: H.R.H. THE DUKE OF CONNAUGHT, K.G.

Principal: Sir A. C. MACKENZIE, Mus. Doc., LL.D., F.R.A.M.

LENT TERM BEGINS THURSDAY, JANUARY 7.

ENTRANCE EXAMINATION, MONDAY, JANUARY 4, at 2.

Lecture by Dr. H. W. Richards, Hon. R.A.M., Wednesday, January 27, at 3.30.

Fortnightly Concert, Saturday, January 30, at 8.

Organ Recital, Monday, February 1, at 3.

SPECIAL TRAINING COURSE for TEACHERS. List of Lectures open to non-students obtainable on application.

VOICE-CULTURE LECTURE-LESSONS in preparation for the Easter examination will commence on Saturday, January 9, at 10.30 a.m.

Full particulars on application to—

F. W. RENAUT, Secretary.

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC,

PRINCE CONSORT ROAD, SOUTH KENSINGTON, S.W.

(Incorporated by Royal Charter, 1883.)

Telegrams—"Initiative, Southkens, London." Telephone—"1160, Western."

Patron: HIS MAJESTY THE KING.

President: H.R.H. THE PRINCE CHRISTIAN, K.G.

Director:
Sir C. HUBERT H. PARRY, Bart., C.V.O., D.C.L., M.A., Mus. Doc.

Hon. Secretary: CHARLES MORLEY, Esq.

The NEXT TERM will commence on Thursday, January 7. Entrance Examination, Monday, January 4. The EXAMINATION for ASSOCIATESHIP (A.R.C.M.) will commence on April 19, 1915.

Syllabus and Official Entry Forms may be obtained from

CLAUDE AVELING, Registrar.

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF ORGANISTS.

Examination Regulations, List of College Publications, Lectures, &c., may be had on application.

H. A. HARDING, Hon. Sec.

Kensington Gore, S.W.

THE ASSOCIATED BOARD

OF THE R.A.M. AND R.C.M.
FOR LOCAL EXAMINATIONS IN MUSIC.

Patron: HIS MAJESTY THE KING.

LOCAL CENTRE EXAMINATIONS (SYLLABUS A).

Examinations in Theory held in March and November at all Centres. In Practical Subjects in March-April at all Centres, and in the London district and certain Provincial Centres in November-December also. Entries for the March-April Examinations close Wednesday, February 10, 1915.

SCHOOL EXAMINATIONS (SYLLABUS B).

Held throughout the British Isles three times a year, viz., March-April, June-July, and October-November. Entries for the March-April Examinations close Wednesday, February 3, 1915.

Theory papers set in Examinations of past years (Local Centre or School) can be obtained on application. Price 3d. per set, per year, post-free.

The Board offers annually SIX EXHIBITIONS tenable at the R.A.M. or R.C.M., for Two or Three Years.

Syllabuses A and B, Syllabus in Ear-Training and Sight-Singing, Entry Forms, and any further information, may be obtained post-free from— JAMES MUIR, Secretary,

Telegrams: "Associa, London." 15, Bedford Square, London, W.C.

THE GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

JOHN CARPENTER ST., VICTORIA EMBANKMENT, E.C.

Established by the Corporation of London.

PRINCIPAL .. .. .. LANDON RONALD.

COMPLETE MUSICAL EDUCATION at an inclusive fee.

PRIVATE LESSONS are given in all musical subjects and STAGE TRAINING in Elocution, Gesture, Stage Dancing, Fencing, and OPERA.

WEEKLY ORCHESTRAL PRACTICES ARE CONDUCTED BY THE PRINCIPAL. Prospectus and Syllabus of Local Centre and Local Schools Examinations (open to general public) free.

H. SAXE WYNDHAM, Secretary. Tel. Holborn 1943.

ROYAL MANCHESTER COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

Patroness: HER MAJESTY QUEEN ALEXANDRA.

President: Sir W. H. HOULDSWORTH, Bart., LL.D.

Principal: Dr. ADOLPH BRODSKY.

The COLLEGE YEAR opened on Tuesday, September 29.

Special Houses of Residence recommended for Students.

Students are required to enter upon a complete course of Musical instruction, and are not admitted for a shorter period than one year.

Fee for the year, £30, payable in instalments of £10 at the beginning of each term. Special Fee for Wind Instrument Course, £15.

Systematic Course for the Training of Teachers included in the curriculum.

The Prospectus, with Scholarship information, Diploma Regulations, and Entry Forms, on application.

Opera Class—MISS MARIE BREMA.

STANLEY WITHERS, Registrar.

BIRMINGHAM & MIDLAND INSTITUTE.

SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

Visitor	Sir EDWARD ELGAR, O.M., Mus. Doc., LL.D.
Director	GRANVILLE BANTOCK, M.A.
Visiting Examiner..	W. G. MCNAUGHT, Mus. Doc.

SESSION 1914-1915.

The Session consists of AUTUMN TERM (September 21 to December 19); WINTER TERM (January 18 to March 27); SUMMER TERM (April 12 to June 26).

Instruction in all branches of Music, Students' Choir and Orchestra. Chamber Music, Students' Rehearsals, and Concerts.

Prospectus and further information may be obtained from—

H. M. FRANCIS, Secretary.

BACH'S CHRISTMAS ORATORIO, Parts 4, 5, and 6, with full Orchestra and Organ, will be given at St. Anne's Church, Soho, on Friday, January 8, at 8 p.m. For tickets send stamped addressed envelope to The Rector, 28, Soho Square, W. (North and South Galleries without tickets.)

FREE TO PIANISTS

If you find it impossible to overcome any difficulty in pianoforte technique—remember that it will cost you nothing to consult me (by letter), and that it will put you under no obligation to adopt my methods. The success of 6,000 pupils has proved that

"From Brain to Keyboard"

MACDONALD SMITH'S SYSTEM OF PIANOFORTE TOUCH AND TECHNIQUE

gives permanent mastery over all difficulties of Technique

Pianist's Cramp, Stiffness, Wooden Touch, Lack of Power and Independence, Thumping, Nervousness, Inability to read at sight, to play arpeggios, trills and long skips, Faulty Inflection and Accentuation, are all overcome with amazing rapidity by the eight minutes twice daily application of this System. In fact there is not a single technical requirement of the pianist or organist, from beginner to the most advanced, which is not successfully met by this System. And the results are permanent and not materially affected by neglect of the instrument. The necessity for perpetual keyboard "practice" is totally abolished—a point of the highest value to the busy pianist.

Write for my FREE BOOK to-day

I shall be pleased to send you post free "Light on Pianoforte Playing," which explains my System and its principles. If you will detail any special difficulties you have, I will explain how they can be permanently overcome by my "From Brain to Keyboard" System. My System has been used and cordially endorsed by Sir Frederick Bridge and other leading musicians, and it is therefore well worth your while at least to study carefully the possibilities it holds for you. It is taught by post, does not interfere with your present arrangements, and is indisputably the cheapest, quickest, and most certain way to the permanent mastery of technique. Write to-day to

M. MACDONALD SMITH,
19, BLOOMSBURY SQUARE, LONDON, W.C.
(Personal Interviews by appointment only.)

Sir Frederick Bridge & Pianoforte Sight-Playing

Sir Frederick Bridge recently deplored the general lack of efficiency in Sight-Playing, remarking that he had never been able to give full marks for this subject at examinations, even though the pieces selected for the Sight-Reading Tests were far less difficult than the pieces selected for performance.

OVER ONE THOUSAND SUCCESSFUL PUPILS

testify that my System enables any pianist to solve all Sight-Playing difficulties, and to play all his new music at first sight after three months' practice of the System for a few minutes daily. The same efficiency could only be obtained, by ordinary methods, after many years of practising for several hours daily. No pianist can afford to dispense with this remarkable means of saving time and drudgery.

A pianist writes:—"I am delighted with the progress I have made. The improvement in my reading is simply marvellous. My fingers seem to fall automatically on the right notes. I think your System is wonderful and so thorough—it seems to solve every difficulty." C. C. B., Lancaster.

Book describing the System sent free on application.

The Inventor of this System is a Frenchman domiciled in England.

L. M. EHREMAYER,
27, CHANCERY LANE, LONDON, W.C.

EHREMAYER
System of Pianoforte
SIGHT-PLAYING

LONDON COLLEGE OF MUSIC,
GREAT MARLBOROUGH STREET, LONDON, W.

Patron: HIS GRACE THE DUKE OF LEEDS.

BOARD OF EXAMINATION.
DR. HORTON ALLISON, Mus. D. Dublin; Mus. B. Cantab.; F.R.A.M.
DR. ARTHUR S. HOLLOWAY, Mus. Doc. Oxon.; F.R.C.O.
Dr. F. J. KARN, Mus. Bac. Cantab., Principal.
G. AUGUSTUS HOLMES, Esq., Director of Examinations.

EXAMINATIONS—LOCAL AND HIGHER.

The NEXT EXAMINATION for certificates in Pianoforte, Violin, Singing, Elocution, Organ, Theory of Music, &c., will be held in London and at over 450 Local Centres throughout the United Kingdom in APRIL, 1915. Last day of entry, March 15.

SYLLABUS for 1915, with Annual Report and Forms of Entry, may be had on application to the Secretary.

The HIGHER EXAMINATIONS for the Diplomas of Associate (A.L.C.M.) and Licentiate (L.L.C.M.) take place in April, June, July, and December; and for the Diplomas of Associate in Music (A. Mus. L.C.M.), Licentiate in Music (L. Mus. L.C.M.), and Fellowship (F.L.C.M.), in June, July, and December.

LOCAL CENTRES may be formed in districts unrepresented, either in the United Kingdom or abroad; particulars on application. SCHOOL CENTRES may also be arranged.

In the Educational Department students are received and thoroughly trained under the best Professors at moderate fees. Lessons may commence from any date.

T. WEEKES HOLMES, Secretary.
Telegrams: "Supertonic Reg, London." Telephone: 3870 Central.

VICTORIA COLLEGE OF MUSIC,
LONDON.

(Under the direction of the Victoria College Corporation, Ltd.)

INCORPORATED 1891.

18, BERNERS STREET, OXFORD STREET, LONDON, W.

President: THE MOST HON. THE MARQUIS OF ANGLESEY.

Board of Examination:

Principal: J. H. LEWIS, D.C.L., F.E.I.S., Mus. Doc.
Chairman: J. M. BENTLEY, Mus. Doc. Cantab., Hon. F.R.A.M.
Hon. Director of Studies: CHURCHILL SIBLEY, Mus. Doc., F.I.G.C.M.
ROBERT FOX FREW, Mus. Doc. Dunelm.
Rev. NOEL BONAVIA-HUNT, M.A. Oxon.
Secretary: H. PORTMAN LEWIS.

Metropolitan Examinations in all subjects, including the Diplomas of A.V.C.M., L.V.C.M., F.V.C.M., also for the Teachers' Professional Diploma in the Art of Teaching, April, July, and December.

Local Theoretical Examinations, July and December.

Practical Examinations are now being held at the various Centres.

Gold, Silver, and Bronze Medals are offered for Competition.

Local Secretaries required for towns not represented.

Dr. Churchill Sibley gives personal lectures at the College.

All communications to be addressed as usual to The Secretary, Registered Office, 11, Burleigh Street, Strand, W.C.

INCORPORATED GUILD OF CHURCH MUSICIANS.

Founded 1888.

Incorporated pursuant to Act of Parliament XXX. and XXXI. Victoria, Cap. cxxxi., § 23.

President: THE VERY REV. THE DEAN OF BRISTOL, D.D.

ASSOCIATE (A.I.G.C.M.), LICENTIATE (L.I.G.C.M.), FELLOWSHIP (F.I.G.C.M.) EXAMINATIONS in London and at approved Provincial Centres in December.
Annual Meeting, January 14, 1915.

COMPETITIONS FOR 1914.

SILVER MEDAL for the best Anthem for General Use.
SILVER MEDAL for the best simple Andante for the Organ (Pedal obbligato).
BRONZE MEDAL for the best Hymn Tune, to the words, "The roseate hues of early dawn." Hymns A. and M.
BRONZE MEDAL for the best Carol.
BRONZE MEDAL for the best Double Chant.

REGISTER OF ORGAN VACANCIES.

Organists (Members) have the FREE use of the Register of Vacant Appointments.

Calendar (gratis) and further information of DR. LEWIS, Warden, 18, Berners Street, London, W.

UNIVERSITY OF DURHAM.

Examinations for degrees in Music are held as follows:—Matriculation, April and October; First Mus. B., March and September; Final Mus. B., and Mus. D., September only.

For particulars, apply Secretary of Examinations, University Office, Durham. Copies of former Examination Papers, 1s. per set.

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE OF WALES, ABERYSTWYTH.

(One of the Constituent Colleges of the University of Wales.)

MUSIC SCHOOL.

DEPARTMENT OF INSTRUMENTAL MUSIC.

This Department is now open to all Students of Music. There is no Entrance Examination, and Students may specialise in one subject.

SPECIAL STAFF:—

M. GASTON LE FEUVE .. .. .. VIOLIN.
Formerly Professor at the Schola Cantorum, Paris.

M. HENRI DELANGE .. .. VIOLIN.
Premier Prix du Conservatoire de Bruxelles.

M. CAMILLE DELOBELLE .. .. VIOLONCELLO.
Lauréat du Conservatoire de Paris.

M. CHARLES TURBOUR .. .. .. VIOLA.
Elève de MM. Schwartz et Laforge, Professeurs au Conservatoire de Paris.

MADAME L. ANDRE BARBIER SINGING AND PIANOFORTE.
Elève de M. Archainbaud, Professeur au Conservatoire de Paris, and Organizer of Classical Concerts in Manchester and Wales.

Classes are held in: VIOLIN, VIOLONCELLO, VIOLA, CHAMBER AND ORCHESTRAL MUSIC, THEORY OF INSTRUMENTAL MUSIC, SINGING, VOICE-TRAINING, AND PIANOFORTE.

Special attention is paid to the study and interpretation of Chamber Music, under the direction of the Le Feuve Quartette, and to the Part-Singing Classes for the training of Choirmasters, under the direction of Madame Barbier.

	£	s.	d.
Fee for the Full Course for the Session	12	0	0
Fee for a Single Course for a Term	2	2	0
Registration Fee for the Session	1	0	0
Registration Fee for a Term	0	10	0

Students taking the Full Course may also attend Arts Classes in the College without further charge.

All further particulars may be obtained from the Registrar at the College.

MANCHESTER SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

Patron: Sir W. H. HOULDSWORTH, Bart.

Principal: ALBERT J. CROSS, A.R.A.M. (of the Royal Academy, London, and the Leipsic Conservatorium). Sixty Professors.

All Branches of Music taught. Private or Class Tuition.

Full and String Orchestras, Operas, Lectures, Recitals, Chamber and Orchestral Concerts. Prospectus from The SECRETARY, Albert Square.

SCHUMANN PIANOFORTE STUDIOS (Regd.)

(AN ENTIRELY BRITISH ORGANIZATION).

ÆOLIAN HALL, NEW BOND STREET, W.

COMPLETE TRAINING FOR PIANISTS on the Authentic Traditions of the Schumann School.
PRINCIPAL: MME. AMINA GOODWIN.
(Leipzig and Paris Conservatoires. Franz Liszt and Mme. Schumann Schools.)
STAFF OF TEACHERS TRAINED IN THE SCHUMANN METHOD.

Easter Term commences January 14.
For Prospectus and further particulars apply Secretary.

The Correspondence School of Music,

37, INDERWICK ROAD, STROUD GREEN, LONDON, N.

Graduated Postal Lessons in Harmony, Counterpoint, and all branches of Musical Theory. Pupils prepared for Mus. Doc., Mus. Bac., L.R.A.M., F.R.C.O., A.R.C.M., and any other examination.

LARGE STAFF OF EXPERIENCED TUTORS.

Terms very moderate—from One Guinea per quarter.

Prospectus post-free from The SECRETARY.

BATTERSEA POLYTECHNIC, S.W.

PRINCIPAL - - S. G. RAWSON, D.Sc.

MUSICAL ACOUSTICS.

A Course of Ten Lectures on the above for Students of Music will be delivered at Battersea Polytechnic on Monday Evenings, from 7 to 8, by W. Thomson, M.A.

Opening Lecture, January 18, 1915. Fee for the Course, 5s.

Wharfedale Musical Festival.

APRIL 22, 23, AND 24, 1915.

OPEN EVENTS.

Mixed-Voice Choir, Male-Voice Choir, Mixed-Voice Quartet.
Vocal Solos—Contralto, Tenor, Choir-Boys.
Instrumental Solos—Pianoforte, Violin.
Chamber Music—Pianoforte Trio, String Quartet.

Syllabus now ready.

Apply, ARTHUR T. AKEROYD,
Hon. Secretary, Thorn Bank, Ilkley.

STRATFORD & EAST LONDON MUSICAL FESTIVAL, March 13—20.

OPEN CONTESTS.

Ladies', Men's, and Mixed Choirs, Professional and Amateur Pianists (Senior and Juniors separately), and Solo-singers (Mezzo and Baritone). Also 80 Local Contests.

Syllabus (1d. stamp) from JOHN GRAHAM, Secretary, 74, Park Hall Road, East Finchley, London, N.

MR. W. H. BREARE

VOCAL ADVISER AND TEACHER OF SINGING
TO STUDENTS AND THE PROFESSION.

Author of "Vocalism," "Elocution: Its First Principles," "Vocal Faults and their Remedies."

In the Press, and shortly to be Published: "Vocal Technique: How it feels to Sing."

"The most complete guide to singing in English."—"Lancelot," in the Referee.
"One of the sanest of sane expositions."—Musical Courier, N.Y.
"One step nearer to the ideal."—Referee ("Lancelot").
"Is a reliable expert in all branches."—Gentlewoman.
"A magnificent guide to both teachers and students."—Eastern Morning News.
"Do not hesitate to commend."—Glasgow Herald.
"Well up and enthusiastic in his subject, which he handles in a masterly manner. His technical knowledge is minute, wide and accurate: what he has to say is well worthy of consideration by public singers and music teachers."—Aberdeen Free Press.
"Has had exceptional opportunities of studying his subject. . . . Common-sense in all he utters."—Leeds Mercury.
"Is an acknowledged authority. . . ."—Western Morning News.
"I have not the slightest fear of contradiction when I say that no one knows more about the voice and vocal production than Mr. W. H. Breare."—"Counterpoint," in the Newcastle Journal.

Further Press Opinions on application.

Address: "HERALD" BUILDINGS, HARROGATE,
or 139, NEW BOND STREET, W.

PIANO PEDALS.

EVERY ORGANIST

should investigate the importance and special advantages of

NORMAN & BEARD'S PNEUMATIC PEDAL ATTACHMENT FOR THE PIANO.

Correct relative position of Keys and Pedals guaranteed.
Gives a perfect touch and repetition.
Does not injure the most delicate Piano, all parts of the Pianoforte action being left perfectly free.
Pedals can be instantly removed.
Does not alter the Piano touch.
Every Attachment made specially in our own Factory.

NORMAN & BEARD, LTD., 61 BERNERS ST., LONDON, W.
Telegrams: "Vibrating, London." Telephone: Gerrard 9145.

Auction Rooms specially for the Sale of Musical Property.

MESSRS. PUTTICK & SIMPSON, Auctioneers, 47, Leicester Square, London, W.C., hold SPECIAL SALES of MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS on or about the 20th of every month. Sales of Musical Libraries, Music Plates, and Copyrights, Trade Stocks, Manufacturers' Plant, &c., are held as occasion may require. Valuations for Probate or Legacy Duty, or for Public or Private Sale. Forms on application.

PROFESSIONAL NOTICES.

MISS GRACE CLARE
(CONTRALTO),
5, Victoria Road, Stroud Green, N.

MR. SAMUEL MASTERS
(TENOR).
Telephone: 613 P.O. Kingston.
Address—164, Bank Buildings, Ewell Road, Surbiton.

MR. GEORGE PARKER
(BARITONE). Lay-Vicar, Westminster Abbey.
Engaged for "Hiawatha," Royal Choral Society, 1914-1915.
42, Tregarvon Road, Clapham Common, S.W.

MR.
CHARLESWORTH GEORGE
(BASS-BARITONE).
Pupil of H. Chilver-Wilson, Esq. (London) and Prof. Vincenzo Sabatini (Milan).

I have much pleasure in stating that Mr. Charlesworth George took the part of Samuel in the Oratorio of "King Saul," and that he sang it with admirable intelligence, spirit and dramatic insight.—C. HUBERT H. PARRY.

Morning Post.—A baritone voice of considerable resonance and useful quality.

Standard.—A bass-baritone of a fine, resonant quality throughout.

Yorkshire Observer.—An exceptionally good voice of considerable range and ringing qualities.

49, Avondale Road, Shipley, Yorks.

THE LONDON COLLEGE FOR CHORISTERS.
DIRECTOR: MR. JAMES BATES.

SOLO BOYS for Oratorios, Festival Services, Concerts; also LEADING BOYS for Church Choirs can be supplied for occasional or permanent engagements. Address, E. B. GOLDING, Secretary, 6, Blomfield Crescent, Hyde Park, W.

Telegrams: "Musicomane, Phone, London." Telephone: 5990 Paddington.

MUSICAL REVISER TO MESSRS. NOVELLO FOR THIRTY YEARS.
COMPOSERS' MSS.
REVISED and PREPARED FOR PRINTING; ADVICE GIVEN as to most suitable publishers for various styles of composition.
H. ELLIOT BUTTON, "Harewood," Ardwick Road, Hampstead, N.W.
Reference to the following composers kindly permitted:—
Sir C. HUBERT H. PARRY, Bt., C.V.O., Sir EDWARD ELGAR, O.M., Sir FREDERICK BRIDGE, C.V.O., Dr. WALFORD DAVIES.

DR. A. EAGLEFIELD HULL
MUS. DOC. OXON., F.R.C.O.
Author of "Modern Harmony: Its Explanation and Application" (Augener), and "Organ Playing: Its Technique and Expression."
Address:
MELBOURNE HOUSE, HUDDERSFIELD.

DR. ALLISON instructed by Post Candidates who OBTAINED DEGREES OF MUS.D. and MUS.B. at Oxford, Cambridge, Dublin, London, and Durham Universities, Diplomas of F.L.C.M., L.Mus.L.C.M., A.R.C.M., F.R.C.O., and L.R.A.M. Gold Medals, Silver Medals, Scholarships, Prizes, "Honours," and Pass Certificates (of the Colleges of Music) to the number of eight hundred and seventy. Dr. Allison is quite willing to teach those who neither require nor desire to pass examinations. Harmony, Counterpoint, Orchestration, and Analysis of Composition by Post, to correspondents anywhere. Personal instruction in Theory, Singing, Organ, and Pianoforte. Cambridge House, 68, Nelson St., Manchester.

REVISION OF MUSICAL COMPOSITIONS. Dr. Horton Allison, Mus.D., 68, Nelson Street, Manchester.

DR. CUTHBERT HARRIS, Mus. Doc. Dunelm., F.R.C.O. SPECIALIST IN CORRESPONDENCE TUITION. 333 Successes in Mus. D., Mus. B., F.R.C.O., and A.R.C.O. MSS. revised and arranged for publication. 48, Braxted Park, Streatham, S.W. Telephone: Streatham 487.

MISS H. HEALE COACHES for all EXAMINATIONS in MUSIC (at private residence or at West-End studio), in Pianoforte, Harmony, Counterpoint, Fugue, Form, Orchestration, "Teaching," Modulation, Transposition, &c. For Terms, &c., apply Dunraven House, 41, Albert Bridge Road, S.W.

L.R.A.M. (PAPER WORK).
MR. E. H. BIBBY (Mus. Bac., L.R.A.M., A.R.C.M.) has SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE COURSES for the "Form and Teaching" and "Rudiments and Harmony" papers set at the L.R.A.M. Exams.
LATEST SUCCESSES:—
L.R.A.M. EXAMS., 1910-14.—58 Correspondence Pupils successful. (September, 1914: 7 Successes out of 8 Entries.)
Address, c/o Forsyth Bros., Deansgate, Manchester.

A.R.C.M. (PAPER WORK).
MR. E. H. BIBBY (Mus. Bac., L.R.A.M., A.R.C.M.) has now also SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE COURSES for the Paper Work portions of the A.R.C.M. Exams.
A.R.C.M., April, 1914: 9 Correspondence Successes. NO FAILURES.

MR. BIBBY also gives postal Lessons in RUDIMENTS, HARMONY, FORM, &c., quite apart from the above-mentioned Special Examination Courses.
Address, c/o Forsyth Bros., Deansgate, Manchester.

DR. ARTHUR S. HOLLOWAY, Mus. D. Oxon., 13, Roseleigh Avenue, Highbury, N., continues to PREPARE CANDIDATES for the various Theoretical Examinations. Music of any description revised or arranged. LESSONS in COMPOSITION, by post if desired.

DR. FREDERICK J. KARN (Mus. Bac. Cantab.; Mus. Doc. Toronto), gives Lessons by post, in Harmony, Counterpoint, Fugue, Form and Analysis, Acoustics, Orchestration, &c. Individual instruction. Also Personal Lessons. MSS. corrected for publication. Analyses of Classical Works for Examinations. Terms moderate and inclusive. Candidates prepared by Dr. Karn have obtained the degrees of Mus. Bac. or Mus. Doc. at DURHAM, OXFORD, DUBLIN, CAMBRIDGE, and LONDON Universities. Also F.R.C.O., A.R.C.O., L.R.A.M. (Composition, Pianoforte, Organ, Bandmastership, and Conducting), A.R.C.M. (Composition, Theory of Music, and Pianoforte Teaching), L. Mus. and A. Mus., L.C.M. ASSOCIATED BOARD, &c. Dr. KARN continues to coach for all Musical Examinations. 106, Haverstock Hill, London, N.W. 'Phone 524 Hampstead.

DR. LEWIS, Mus. Doc., F.E.I.S., Warden, Incorporated Guild of Church Musicians, gives LESSONS, Personally or by Post, in HARMONY and COUNTERPOINT. 18, Berners Street, Oxford Street, W.

DR. LEWIS' TEXT-BOOKS:
"HARMONY." (2 vols.) 5s. each, net.
"COUNTERPOINT." 5s. net.
"DOUBLE COUNTERPOINT AND CANON." 5s. net.
"FUGUE." 1s. 6d. net.
"ELEMENTS OF MUSIC." 2s. 6d. net.
"DEVELOPMENT OF ANGLICAN CHURCH MUSIC." 2s. net.
"PRONOUNCING VOCABULARY OF MUSICAL TERMS." 6d. net.
"DICTIONARY OF MUSICAL TERMS." 6d. net.
"MATERIAL OF MELODY." 3d. net.
The above, complete, will be forwarded (carriage paid) for 15s.

MISS F. HELENA MARKS PREPARES for L.R.A.M. and other Examinations. Pianoforte, Harmony, "Form and Teaching," &c. Lessons (oral or by correspondence). Pupils received and visited for the Pianoforte. Many recent successes, L.R.A.M., &c. Pianoforte Classes. 10, Matheson Rd., West Kensington.

DR. H. H. L. MIDDLETON, Mus. D. (Dubl.), F.R.C.O., L.R.A.M., A.R.C.M., makes a SPECIALITY of COACHING FOR DEGREES. L.R.A.M., 1897-1913, ONE HUNDRED AND TWENTY-SEVEN SUCCESSES; A.R.C.M., 1897-1913, THREE HUNDRED AND THIRTY-FOUR SUCCESSES. Equally good results in R.C.O. and other Examinations.
Address, Thornleigh, 6, Elm Park Road, Finchley, N.

MR. H. SCOTT-BAKER, A.R.A.M., L.R.A.M., A.R.C.O. Composition, Pianoforte playing. 14, Hanover Street, Regent Street, W.

PERCY WOOD, Mus. Bac. Oxon., F.R.C.O., Specialist in Correspondence Tuition for F.R.C.O., A.R.C.O. RECENT SUCCESSES: 218 Correspondence Pupils have passed F.R.C.O. or A.R.C.O. SINCE 1909, as follows:

77 F.R.C.O. (Paper Work).	141 A.R.C.O. (Paper Work).
6 F.R.C.O., July, 1914.	12 A.R.C.O., July, 1914.
6 F.R.C.O., Jan., 1914.	11 A.R.C.O., Jan., 1914.
10 F.R.C.O., July, 1913.	10 A.R.C.O., July, 1913.
12 F.R.C.O., Jan., 1913.	6 A.R.C.O., Jan., 1913.

38, Warwick Road, Cliftonville, Margate.

MISS MARGARET YOUNG, L.R.A.M., A.R.C.M. (Pianoforte Teacher), A.T.C.L. (Pianoforte and Vocal Teacher), Correspondence Lessons, Theory, Harmony, Form, Art of Teaching. Successes at R.A.M. and T.C.L. Metropolitan Examinations. Compiler, Musical Terms (English first), Novello, 4d. Bawburgh Vicarage, Norwich.

STUDENT TEACHER. — Young Gentleman WANTED in School of Music in London. Board-residence and small salary. Premium required. State qualifications, &c. to W. F., c/o Novello & Co., Ltd., 160, Wardour Street, W.

WANTED an ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER for the Parish Church of Crediton. The post of Music Master at the Grammar School and High School would also be offered to the successful candidate, and there is a good opening for private teaching. Salary from Church, £70. Salary at present at Schools about £80.
Applications in writing to be sent to J. Symes, Esq., Clerk to the Governors, Crediton, by the sixteenth of January, 1915.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER WANTED, for Grange U. F. Church, Kilmarnock. Two-manual pipe organ. Salary, £70. Applications, with copies of testimonials, to be sent, not later than Tuesday, January 12, to Mr. John Muir, Session Clerk, 27, Woodstock Street, Kilmarnock.

RESIDENT ARTICLED PUPIL. — Dr. A. Eaglefield Hull, Mus. Doc. Oxon., F.R.C.O., Member Royal Philharmonic Society, Organist of Huddersfield Parish Church. Author "Organ Playing," "Modern Harmony," Editor "Bach's Works," will have a Vacancy for a Musical Youth of 16 or 17 as above in January. Two large organs (one facsimile R.C.O.). Premium required. Apply, Dr. Hull, Melbourne House, Huddersfield.

ORGANS (New and Second-hand) for SALE. Various prices. Instruments built for Church or Chamber from £50, on up-to-date principles, at Bedwell & Sons, Cambridge Organ Works, Cambridge.

CHURCH ORGANS FOR SALE (Immediately). Prior to alterations and extension of Factory. Two Manuals, modern compass, pneumatics and latest improvements. Guaranteed. 12 and 22 Stops. W. E. Richardson & Sons, Organ Works, Cornbrook Street, Brooks Bar, Manchester.

THE POSITIVE ORGAN.—A real PIPE ORGAN (all British), giving the effects of two manuals and pedals on its single keyboard. Prices from £77. Over 900 supplied. Estimates given for Repairs, Rebuilds, Two- and Three-Manual Organs, &c.
POSITIVE ORGAN Co. Ltd., 44, Mornington Crescent (opposite Tube Station), London, N.W.

ORGAN PRACTICE.—Three-manual Pipe Organ for Practice—good condition; complete set of Couplers; blown by hydraulic engine. 1s. per hour. Hamilton Evans & Co., 54, London Road, Forest Hill, S.E. (one minute from station). Telephone: 693 Sydenham.

TO COMPOSERS AND HYMN WRITERS.
WE UNDERTAKE TO PUBLISH your MSS., if approved, on a mutually profitable basis, whereby you are not exposed to the usual risk which belongs to publishing. Write for particulars, submit your MSS., or when in Town, call.
KIBBLE & COMPANY, 18, Berners Street, London, W.
Publishers of "LITANY FOR USE IN TIME OF WAR." Composed by J. K. Douglas Bedwell.
"O Gentle Jesus, hear me." Hymn. Words by Mary Chestnut. Music by Kenneth Fellowes.
Price One Penny each.

REPORT OF THE BISHOP'S COMMITTEE ON CHURCH CHOIRS.—Diocese of Wakefield. Price 1d., post 1½d. by W. H. Milnes Ltd., Wakefield.

WANTED.—SECOND-HAND COPIES COMPLETE CHORAL WORKS; any quantities. Smith, 31, Drakefell Road, Brockley, S.E.

FOR SALE.—Pair of ORCHESTRAL TIMPANI (Screws all round). A bargain. Apply Ernest Harcourt, 9, Cambridge Street, Norwich, composer of popular patriotic song, "England's Brave Sons." Sample copy to Profession, 3d., post free (2s. net).

THE OLD FIRM.
P. CONACHER & CO., LTD.,
Organ Builders,
SPRINGWOOD WORKS,
HUDDERSFIELD.
TWO GOLD MEDALS.

ESTABLISHED 1750.
Telephone: 1788 P.O. Hampstead. Telegrams: "Cantabile, London."
GRAY & DAVISON,
ORGAN BUILDERS,
PRATT STREET, N.W.
48, SOUTHFIELD ROAD, OXFORD.
128, HOLT ROAD, LIVERPOOL.
Specifications, Estimates, and Designs free of charge.

PIANO PEDALS with Octave Coupler
This wonderful invention supersedes all Piano Pedals, and is a Master Patent.
THE CATHEDRAL, MANCHESTER,
DEAR MR. MALKIN, Nov. 8, 1910.
I think your Patent Pedal Attachment, which you have fitted to my Steinway, is simply splendid. I find the action absolutely silent and its touch beautiful.—Yours truly,
R. H. P. COLEMAN, F.R.C.O., Sub-Organist.
Terms :—Cash, or instalments of 8s. per month.
Write for Lists, Prices, and Clients' Opinions, and References to—
THE MALKIN PATENT PEDAL CO., LTD.,
Works—Hanley, Staffs. NEWCASTLE-UNDER-LYME.

SOLEMN MELODY
COMPOSED BY
H. WALFORD DAVIES.
FULL ORCHESTRA.

	s.	d.
FULL SCORE	3	0
STRING PARTS	1	3
WIND PARTS	3	9

STRINGS AND ORGAN.

SCORE	2	0
STRING PARTS	1	3
ORGAN	0	6
PIANOFORTE SOLO	1	6
ORGAN SOLO	1	6
VIOLIN AND PIANOFORTE	1	6
VIOLONCELLO AND PIANOFORTE	1	6

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

SERENADE
FROM
"THE WAND OF YOUTH"
(FIRST SUITE)
COMPOSED BY EDWARD ELGAR.

PIANOFORTE SOLO	1s. 6d.
VIOLIN AND PIANOFORTE	2s. od.
VIOLONCELLO AND PIANOFORTE	2s. od.
PIANOFORTE AND STRINGED INSTRUMENTS	2s. 6d.

(Separate String Parts, 3d. each.)
ARRANGEMENT FOR SMALL ORCHESTRA.

STRING PARTS	1s. 3d.
FLUTE AND CLARINET	each 3d.
HARP OR PIANOFORTE	1s. od.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

PAVANE
IN A
COMPOSED BY BERNARD JOHNSON.
ARRANGEMENT FOR PIANOFORTE SOLO
BY
EDWIN H. LEMARE.
Price One Shilling and Sixpence.
London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

THE ORGAN

BY

WALTER G. ALCOCK,

M.V.O.,

Mus. Doc. Dunelm., A.R.C.M., F.R.C.O.

Organist and Composer to His Majesty's Chapels Royal and Assistant-Organist of Westminster Abbey.

Published as a Net Book.

PRICE FOUR SHILLINGS NET.

THE ATHENÆUM.

A fine work . . . and is admirable at all points.

YORKSHIRE POST.

The name of Dr. Walter G. Alcock is in itself a sufficient guarantee of the sound teaching of organ-playing, and his book, "The Organ," more than sustains his reputation. . . . There are many useful exercises on various technical points, and some short original pieces which serve as further illustrations of the author's teaching. It is very clearly printed on good, stout paper, and from every point of view is a desirable book.

YORKSHIRE OBSERVER.

A treatise on the instrument by so eminent an authority as Dr. Walter Alcock is likely to become a standard text-book. The young student could ask for none better.

THE SCOTSMAN.

The work is a distinctly useful addition to books of musical instruction.

THE BRISTOL TIMES AND MIRROR.

Although many books of instruction about the organ have been published, the latest is among the best. Its merits are sundry. . . . If the book be thoroughly mastered no other one is needed for the purpose of tuition, for it is the key to everything that has been written for the king of instruments. The print is exceedingly clear, and the book itself neat and attractive.

THE WESTERN MORNING NEWS.

This is not an "instruction" book in the ordinary use of the term, for its scope is too wide, and the information given is so largely the result of personal experiment and experience that those who have already advanced in the art of organ playing will find many hints and suggestions which will prove of practical service. The book is admirably divided into sections dealing with the elements of organ art; and a very important chapter is that on hymn-playing.

THE SUNDAY TIMES.

Every young organ student will find himself greatly helped by "The Organ," a new manual of the instrument by Dr. Alcock.

THE CHOIR.

We congratulate Dr. Alcock on having produced a work which will rank with the best of its kind.

THE MUSIC STUDENT.

The work is up-to-date in every way, it is well arranged and graduated, and begins at the beginning . . . One must look a long way to find a work which unites as much sound instruction with so much good music of all grades, all under one cover.

THE BOOKSELLER.

Dr. Alcock has produced a very helpful and useful book which the ambitious player will do well to study with great care and attention; he who follows the directions here given will undoubtedly find his work as an organist very materially assisted.

CHURCH FAMILY NEWSPAPER.

Written by a master of his subject, "The Organ" makes an immediate appeal to organists of all descriptions, for the matter contained in the book embraces all that is necessary from simple pedal exercises—called by some "first steps"—up to pieces requiring all the resources of modern organ technique.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

ENGLISH LYRICS

SET TO MUSIC BY

C. HUBERT H. PARRY.

PRICE TWO SHILLINGS AND SIXPENCE EACH SET.

FIRST SET.

*1.	My true love hath my heart ...	Sir Philip Sidney
2.	Good-night	Shelley
3.	Where shall the lover rest	Scott
4.	Willow, Willow, Willow	Shakespeare

SECOND SET.

1.	O mistress mine	Shakespeare
2.	Take, O take those lips away	Shakespeare
3.	No longer mourn for me	Shakespeare
4.	Blow, blow, thou winter wind	Shakespeare
5.	When icicles hang by the wall	Shakespeare

THIRD SET.

*1.	To Lucasta, on going to the wars ...	Lovelace
2.	If thou would'st ease thine heart	Beddoes
*3.	To Althea, from prison	Lovelace
*4.	Why so pale and wan	Suckling
5.	Through the ivory gate	Julian Sturgis
*6.	Of all the torments	William Walsh

FOURTH SET.

*1.	Thine eyes still shined for me	Emerson
*2.	When lovers meet again ...	Langdon Elwyn Mitchell
*3.	When we two parted	Byron
4.	Weep you no more	Anon.
5.	There be none of Beauty's daughters ...	Byron
6.	Bright star	Keats

FIFTH SET.

*1.	A stray nymph of Dian	Julian Sturgis
*2.	Proud Maisie	Scott
*3.	Crabbed age and youth	Shakespeare
4.	Lay a garland on my hearse	Beaumont and Fletcher
5.	Love and laughter	Arthur Butler
6.	A girl to her glass	Julian Sturgis
7.	A Lullaby	E. O. Jones

SIXTH SET.

*1.	When comes my Gwen	E. O. Jones
*2.	And yet I love her till I die	Anon.
*3.	Love is a bable	Anon.
*4.	A lover's garland	Alfred P. Graves
5.	At the hour the long day ends ...	Alfred P. Graves
6.	Under the greenwood tree	Shakespeare

SEVENTH SET.

1.	On a time the amorous Silvy	Anon.
2.	Follow a shadow	Ben Jonson
3.	Ye little birds that sit and sing ...	Thomas Heywood
4.	O never say that I was false of heart ...	Shakespeare
5.	Julia	Herrick
6.	Sleep	Julian Sturgis

EIGHTH SET.

1.	Whence	Julian Sturgis
2.	Nightfall in winter	Langdon Elwyn Mitchell
3.	Marian	George Meredith
4.	Dirge in woods	George Meredith
5.	Looking backward	Julian Sturgis
6.	Grapes	Julian Sturgis

NINTH SET.

1.	Three aspects	Mary E. Coleridge
2.	A fairy town (St. Andrews) ...	Mary E. Coleridge
3.	The witches' wood	Mary E. Coleridge
4.	Whether I live	Mary E. Coleridge
5.	Armida's garden	Mary E. Coleridge
6.	The maiden	Mary E. Coleridge
7.	There	Mary E. Coleridge

The Songs marked * may be had separately, price 1s. 6d. each.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

A NEW SERIES
OF
SACRED SONGS
EDITED, WITH MARKS OF EXPRESSION AND PHRASING, BY ALBERTO RANDEGGER.

PRICE TWO SHILLINGS EACH BOOK.

The two sets of Songs for each voice are also published in four volumes.
CLOTH, SIX SHILLINGS EACH.

FIRST SET.

SOPRANO.

1. My heart ever faithful ... ... J. S. Bach
2. I will sing of Thy great mercies ("St. Paul") F. Mendelssohn-Bartholdy
3. Jerusalem ("Gallia") ... ... Ch. Gounod
4. With verdure clad ("Creation") ... ... J. Haydn
5. I will extol Thee, O Lord ("Eli") ... M. Costa
6. I mourn as a dove ("St. Peter") ... ... J. Benedict

TENOR.

1. O God, have mercy (Pietà, Signore) ... A. Stradella
2. In native worth ("Creation") ... ... J. Haydn
3. Be thou faithful unto death ("St. Paul")... F. Mendelssohn-Bartholdy
4. Cujus animam ("Stabat Mater") ... ... G. Rossini
5. The Lord is very pitiful ("St. Peter") ... J. Benedict
6. The soft southern breeze ("Rebekah") ... J. Barnby

CONTRALTO.

1. Slumber Song ("Christmas Oratorio") ... J. S. Bach
2. But the Lord is mindful ("St. Paul") F. Mendelssohn-Bartholdy
3. What tho' I trace ("Solomon") ... ... Handel
4. Evening Prayer ("Eli") ... ... M. Costa
5. There is a green hill... ... ... Ch. Gounod
6. O Thou afflicted ("St. Peter") ... ... J. Benedict

BASS.

1. Dost thou despise ... ... J. S. Bach
2. O God, have mercy ("St. Paul") F. Mendelssohn-Bartholdy
3. Now heaven in fullest glory shone ("Creation") J. Haydn
4. Pro peccatis ("Stabat Mater") ... ... G. Rossini
5. How great, O Lord ("St. Peter")... ... J. Benedict
6. If Thou should'st mark iniquities ("Eli")... M. Costa

SECOND SET.

SOPRANO.

1. Thou, O Lord, art my Protector (Psalm xix.) C. Saint-Saëns
2. Lo! the heaven-descended Prophet ("The Passion") ... ... C. H. Graun
3. Jerusalem ("St. Paul") ... F. Mendelssohn-Bartholdy
4. Great is Jehovah ... ... F. Schubert
5. Turn Thee unto me ("Eli") ... ... M. Costa
6. Let the bright Seraphim ("Samson") ... Handel

TENOR.

1. Only be still, wait thou His leisure ("If thou but sufferest") ... ... J. S. Bach
2. Daughters of Jerusalem ("St. Peter") ... J. Benedict
3. Thus was the sun ("Samson") ... ... Handel
4. O come, let us worship (Psalm xcv.) F. Mendelssohn-Bartholdy
5. Twilight is gently falling (Ave Maria) ... J. Raff
6. Song of Penitence (Busslied) ... ... Beethoven

CONTRALTO.

1. To living waters ("The Lord is my Shepherd") J. S. Bach
2. O God, have mercy (Pietà, Signore) ... A. Stradella
3. All my heart inflamed and burning ("Stabat Mater") ... ... A. Dvorák
4. The glory of God in Nature (Creation's Hymn) Beethoven
5. Fac ut portem ("Stabat Mater") ... ... G. Rossini
6. Morning Prayer ("Eli") ... ... M. Costa

BASS.

1. Mighty Lord and King all glorious ("Christmas Oratorio") ... ... J. S. Bach
2. Rolling in foaming billows ("Creation") ... J. Haydn
3. Litany for All Souls' Day ... ... F. Schubert
4. The glory of God in Nature (Creation's Hymn) Beethoven
5. Consume them all ("St. Paul") F. Mendelssohn-Bartholdy
6. Nazareth ... ... Ch. Gounod

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

TRINITY COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

(INSTITUTED 1872.)

Chairman of Board:
SIR FREDERICK BRIDGE, C.V.O., M.A., MUS.D.

Director of Studies: G. E. BAMBRIDGE, F.T.C.L., F.R.A.M.

Director of Examinations: C. W. PEARCE, MUS.D.

Lent Term begins January 15.

The College provides Instruction and Training in all Musical Subjects: Instrumental, Vocal, and Theoretical (including Musical History), and the Lessons are arranged to meet the convenience of both day and evening students. Any number of subjects—from one to the Full Course—may be entered for.

The College is open to beginners as well as to advanced students.

Approved complete Courses for the University of London Degrees in Music under recognised Teachers of the University. Also preparation for the degrees of other Universities, the examinations of the Royal College of Organists, Trinity College of Music, etc.

The ORCHESTRAL, CHORAL, and CHAMBER MUSIC CLASSES are open also to sufficiently competent persons who are not College students for any other subjects.

All modern systems of TECHNIQUE, whether for the Pianoforte, Violin, or other Instrument, are taught by qualified Professors.

Tuition in the Rudiments of the Theory of Music, Harmony, Counterpoint, Form, Instrumentation, Composition, and the Art of Teaching is also given by Correspondence.

In the JUNIOR SCHOOL (for Students up to 16 years of age) the fees are reduced.

Particulars of the Teaching Department, with list of Professors, Fees, Scholarships regulations, and the Syllabuses of the Higher and Local Examinations, on application to the undersigned.

SHELLEY FISHER, Secretary.

Mandeville Place, Manchester Square, London, W.

READY SHORTLY.

HANDBOOKS FOR MUSICIANS.

EDITED BY ERNEST NEWMAN.

The Sources of Keyboard Music in England

BY

CHARLES VAN DEN BORREN,

Professor of the Université Nouvelle of Brussels.

TRANSLATED FROM THE FRENCH BY

JAMES E. MATTHEW.

The Interpretation of the Music of the 17th and 18th Centuries

REVEALED BY CONTEMPORARY EVIDENCE.

BY

ARNOLD DOLMETSCH.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

BROADWOOD PLAYER-PIANOS

GRANDS AND UPRIGHTS.

THE MOST SENSITIVE PLAYERS ON THE MARKET.

ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE ON APPLICATION.

JOHN BROADWOOD & SONS, LTD.,
CONDUIT STREET, LONDON, W.

BOSWORTH & CO.

NEW ENGLISH EDITIONS.

	s.	d.
BACH.—First Instructions in, Books I. and II. each	1	0
SASS.—The Secret of Fine Tone	0	6
RACHMANINOFF.—Album Portrait Edition	1	0
GURLITT.—Bagatelles. Books I. and II. ... each	1	0
MENDELSSOHN.—Songs without Words. Portrait Edition	1	8
GRIEG.—Album Portrait Edition	2	6
MODERN MARCH ALBUM	1	0
LEISURE HOURS.—Pianoforte Duet Album. Books I. and II. ... ... each	2	0
BERINGER.—Pianoforte Tutor. Both Fingerings ...	2	6
BERINGER.—Scale Manual. Both Fingerings ...	2	0
LITTLE SEVCIK VIOLIN TUTOR	2	6
PISCHNA.—Exercises	2	0
ZILCHER.—Souvenir Album	1	0
ZILCHER.—Album Joyeuse. Books I. and II. each	1	0
ZILCHER.—Rococo Album	1	0
TRAVERS.—Miniatures	1	0
MOORE'S Candidates' Scales	1	0
SEVCIK.—Bowing Technic. Book I.	2	0
MACDOWELL.—Hexentanz	2	0
MOSZKOWSKI.—Serenata	2	0
MOSZKOWSKI.—Expansion	2	3
HUBAY.—Hejre Kati. Violin and Pianoforte ...	2	3

And many others.

BOSWORTH & CO.,
8, HEDDON STREET, REGENT STREET, LONDON, W.

NAVAL AND MILITARY MUSICAL UNION SONG BOOK

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.

CONTENTS.

No.
1.	A VINTAGE SONG	Mendelssohn
2.	DRINK TO ME ONLY WITH THINE EYES	(Arr. by) H. Elliot Button
3.	FAR DOWN THE GREEN VALLEY..	C. H. Döring
4.	GIPSY SONG	..Mendelssohn
5.	MAIDEN FAIR, O DEIGN TO TELL	Haydn
6.	MEN OF HARLECH	(Arr. by) J. Tilleard
7.	O WHO WILL O'ER THE DOWNS	R. L. de Pearsall
8.	ONCE MORE WITH JOY (Pilgrims' Chorus, Tannhäuser)	Wagner
9.	SERENADE	..Mendelssohn
10.	SOLDIERS' CHORUS (Faust)	Gounod
11.	SWEET AND LOW	J. Barnby
12.	THE COMRADES' SONG OF HOPE	Adolphe Adam
13.	THE DEAR LITTLE SHAMROCK..	(Arr. by) H. Elliot Button
14.	THE FROG (humorous)	Ernest Newton
15.	THE LONG DAY CLOSES	Arthur Sullivan
16.	THE THREE CHAFERS (humorous)	H. Trühn
17.	THE THREE HUNTSMEN (humorous)	C. Kreutzer
18.	THE WINTRY WINDS ARE BLOWING	J. Müller
19.	THURINGIAN VOLKSLIED	Franz Abt
20.	WHAT CARE I HOW FAIR SHE BE ..	Jacques Blumenthal

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

The Musical Times

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

JANUARY 1, 1915.

MEDTNER.

By Ernest Newman.

One result of the present animus against Germany in England will be to make a number of people more curious as to the contemporary music of our Allies. Modern French music is fairly well known over here; but comparatively little is yet known of the music of Russia apart from that of Tchaikovsky. Yet the Russian group—to speak of a 'school' is of course absurd—is on the whole the most interesting in Europe to-day; no other country can show so many composers of ability, or such diversity of ideals among them—a diversity so great that to speak of 'the Russian spirit' or 'the Russian point of view' has a touch of the grotesque about it. One of the most interesting of the modern Russian composers is Nicolai Medtner. Some people, it is true, deny that he is a Russian at all in what they regard as 'the true sense of the word'; but in the first place it does not really matter what the nationality of a composer may be so long as his music is good, and in the second place it is impossible, as I have often pointed out, to get the adherents of the nationalistic theory to agree among themselves as to who is 'national' and what constitutes 'nationalism.' A few weeks ago we had Mr. Francis Toye, for example, denying that Stravinsky's music is Russian. Stravinsky, according to Mr. Toye, is 'a convincing argument against the dangers of "cosmopolitanism"—nothing more. Insensibly there has crept into his music all the defects of the train-de-luxe Ritz-Carlton atmosphere in which he has passed so much of his time. He is about as "Russian" as a salade russe.' Yet Mr. Calvocoressi, whose opinions on Russian music will be listened to with respect by all English readers, assures us that 'Stravinsky is one of the youngest, but also the best, representatives of the actual Russian school whose vicissitudes have of late been so many and so confusing.' He is 'Russian born and Russian in spirit'; he 'has undergone no foreign influence, except perhaps to a slight extent that of the modern French "impressionistic" school—itself much influenced'—[a point that Mr. Toye, in his contempt for cosmopolitanism and the train-de-luxe, seems to have overlooked]—'by the more progressive Russian musicians, like Borodin and Moussorgsky.' Stravinsky is 'not an imitator but a continuer of the chiefs of the nationalist school'; he is 'the only one who has achieved more than mere attempts to promote Russia's true musical spirit and style.' To me this difference of opinion is amusing rather than vital. For my own part, if I do not like Stravinsky's music it does not matter a rap whether he is a 'true Russian,' living in an insanitary hut in the heart of Russia, garbed like a moujik, drinking vodka, and writing 'true Russian music'; and if I do like his music, it is a matter of perfect indifference to me that it should have been written by a Russian who prefers Paris to Odessa—as, I should imagine, every sensible man would do.

Medtner also seems to worry our nationalists a little. In a recently published book on Russian music I read that 'Worthy of mention as emphasising the difficulty of classification and revealing the variegated complexion of contemporary Russian music, are Steinberg, who, though taught for some time by Korsakov, has shaken off that influence, and Medtner, whose German origin must surely account in a large measure—and obviously a good deal more than his Moscow training—for his thoroughly Brahmsian style.' The remark about Medtner's heredity and style puzzles me somewhat. If Medtner is bound, by some law familiar to musicians but as yet unknown to biologists, to write like a German because, though born in Moscow, his parents were German, I cannot understand why Beethoven did not write like a Fleming, and why Delius, whose parents were German, also does not obey the call of his German blood and pen unmistakably German music. But that is not all. It would appear from the passage I have just quoted that if you have German blood in your veins you must inevitably write in 'a thoroughly Brahmsian style'; and that leaves me wondering how Germans like Wagner and Bruckner and Cornelius and Wolf and Strauss and Schönberg and a few hundred others have managed to behave in such a disgracefully un-Brahmsian and, therefore, un-German way as they did. Medtner is evidently one of those plaguey fellows, like Beethoven and Stravinsky and Borodin and Offenbach and César Franck and Delius and Sgambati, who obstinately refuse to fit into the frame the nationalists have so kindly prepared for them. To complete the confusion of the general reader, it only needs to be added that Medtner's style is anything but 'thoroughly Brahmsian.' But Brahmsian or not, Russian or not, Medtner is one of the most interesting young composers of the day*; and that ought to be enough for us.

The first thing that strikes anyone acquainted with Medtner's music as a whole is his extraordinary technical competence. A musician more thoroughly skilled in the mere craft of composition could not be imagined; and when this craft is exercised upon good material it gives us the joy that always comes from watching a master of any game perform at his ease. But I am not sure that the technique did not, in the earlier works, sometimes get in the way of the thinking. His mastery of device was in excess of his invention; hence the rather empty formalism of some of the developmental passages in his longer early works. His superlative pianism, too, has been something of a disadvantage to him at times. It has made him occasionally overload his scores with notes, and seduced him, especially in a few of his songs, into an elaboration of pianistic detail for its own sake that goes beyond what the idea really requires or will really bear. He is a pianoforte writer pure and simple; apart from three short pieces for the violin, and a few songs, the whole of his work, so far as I know, is for the pianoforte. And evidently by the time he began composing he had developed a pianoforte technique that was always a prime consideration with him when writing. Many of his early works are virtually studies in particular pianistic problems, especially problems of rhythm and cross-rhythm.

* He was born at Moscow in 1879. He studied first at the Conservatoire there, afterwards under Savonov.

It is no doubt his absorption in these latter that has made some people imagine him to be merely a Brahmsian. There is certainly this similarity between the two men, that they are endlessly interested in the possibilities of rhythm. It was inevitable that two composers exploring the same field should sometimes hit upon the same discoveries; nor is there any reason to doubt that in his earliest days Medtner was attracted by Brahms's rhythmic innovations. But he soon went far beyond Brahms in rhythmic variety. He was an expert from the beginning in the two or three typical Brahms devices—bar-overlapping, the combination or alternation of duple and triple units, and so on. His later works abound in rhythmic novelties and felicities to which there is no parallel in Brahms; and the rhythm, however unexpected it may be, always gives the impression of perfect spontaneity and inevitableness.

I have already hinted that to a very young man so fine a pianistic technique as Medtner's is occasionally a danger to him as a composer. There is a good deal of mere academicism in the youthful Sonata in F minor (Op. 5),—a rather cubbish work, but with undeniable suggestions of strength about it, especially in the second movement; and there are plentiful signs of what Tchaikovsky used to call mere 'head work' in the fine Sonata in G minor (Op. 22). In such a song as 'Das Veilchen,' too, it is obvious that Medtner has over-written a simple poetic subject in the way that Max Reger so often does; the pianist in him has led him on to elaboration after elaboration when the poet in him must have been vainly whispering to him to stop. But in the bulk of his work the thinking is really helped by his technical assurance. Nothing is more remarkable in Medtner's music than the way in which a figure that is essentially quite simple is made interesting by some slight but effective touch of individuality in the handling of it—the harmonic decoration of the second main theme of the second of the two 'Märchen' (Op. 8), for example, or the curious way in which the melodic contour, the harmonic flavour, and the rhythmic gait all combine to give a clear and unusual physiognomy to the second subject of the G minor Sonata (Op. 22). We see the result of this technical sufficiency, again, in the interest that, from the very beginning, he was able to give to the inner parts of his music.

He resembled Brahms negatively, so to speak, in his scorn of the facile lyricism that is so seductive to most young composers. His mind is on the whole objective rather than subjective: not that he has no heart, but that he is never guilty of wearing it on his sleeve. At first there was a faint but unmistakable Chopinesque strain in him; we can see it in the fifth and eighth of the 'Acht Stimmungsbilder' that constitute his Opus 2; it is a Chopin, however, with a solid modern German technique. But for some years a good deal of his music was really 'Brahmsian' in the sense not that it derived from Brahms, but that it showed the same kind of high seriousness and the same close and skilled workmanship. The traits that remind us even distantly of Brahms have become less and less noticeable as he has developed. He seems to be simplifying his texture as he gets older. He is discovering that when the thinking is sufficiently direct, the vision sufficiently clearly seen, a good many notes can be left out that at one time he would have thought it necessary to put in. In the fine Sonata in E minor (Op. 25, No. 2), for example, the writing is as purely pianistic as in any of his early works; to no one but a pianist would it have occurred to state the ideas of the first couple of pages, for instance, just in the way that Medtner has done. But the involution, the rich decoration, are here not simply plastered upon the idea by the hand of the pianist, as they obviously were in some of the earlier works; now it all seems an organic part of the idea, something inwrought into its very tissue. His imagination and his style are perhaps seen at their best in this Sonata and in the Sonate-Ballade in F sharp major (Op. 27). The music flows swiftly and easily and continuously; there are no such gaps or ill-concealed joins in the texture as are observable in some of the earlier works, or even in a late one like the G minor Sonata, and no such academicism, brilliant as it is, as we have in certain parts of the second of the two 'Märchen' (Op. 8). The more he shakes off the tyranny of his super-pianism the clearer his music becomes, without any loss of weight. The little writing which he has done for the violin has probably made him conscious of this. Thinking in terms of the most sensitive of solo instruments has taught him how to draw lines of greater fineness, and at the same time has made him simplify somewhat the texture of the pianoforte accompaniment.

Individual as his music is, he is far too sane a spirit to think that originality is synonymous with singularity. He has none of the little clichés that the smaller composer fondly imagines will mark him out for all time as original, whereas they merely serve to make him hopelessly out of date in ten years. Medtner is another proof that it is possible to work in the ordinary harmonic medium—developing it in complexity, of course, according to the necessities of the idea—and yet convey an expression of complete originality. For his forms he is content to rely on those that have already shown their serviceableness for his particular purposes. He began with the four-movement sonata, but has discarded this form in his later works of the sonata type, which are all written in one continuous movement, with the exception of that for violin and pianoforte, which is in three movements. But 'abstract' as his music seems on the surface to be, it is evidently the expression, in many cases, of a quasi-poetic train of thought. This is clear even from the markings: in the course of the G minor Sonata, for instance, we get such directions as tenebroso, sempre affrettando, impeto, irato, precipitato, con timidezza, dolente, irresoluto, risoluto (in the next bar), sdegnoso, concentrando. The 'Sonaten-Triade' bears as motto a quotation from Goethe, and the big E minor Sonata one from a Russian poem. There is no doubt there are two strains in him—an abstract one, to whose cultivation he has so far devoted most of his powers, and a delicately poetic one, of which we get many a hint in the 'Sonaten-Triade,' the Violin sonata, the three Nocturnes for violin and pianoforte, some of the songs, and elsewhere. He is still young, and it is quite possible that all he has hitherto written, interesting and masterly as it is, is only by way of prelude to something that shall fully express his whole personality. But already his music is of so fine a quality that no one who wishes to keep abreast of the best activities of the day can afford to neglect it. Those who cannot spare the time to go through his music as a whole will get an excellent idea of him from the following works—'Acht Stimmungsbilder' (Op. 1), the Etude, Moment Musical, and Prelude that form Nos. 1, 3, and 4 of the 'Quatre Morceaux' (Op. 4), the charming 'Idyll' from Op. 7, the 'Zwei Märchen' (Op. 8), the 'Sonaten-Triade' (Op. 11), the three exquisite Nocturnes for violin and pianoforte (Op. 16), the three 'Novellen' (Op. 17; the second is particularly striking), the beautiful Sonata for violin and pianoforte (Op. 21), No. 1 of the 'Zwei Märchen' (Op. 20), the G minor Sonata (Op. 22), the 'Märchen-Sonate' (Op. 25, No. 1), the E minor Sonata (Op. 25, No. 2), the 'Vier Märchen' (Op. 26), and the 'Sonate-Ballade' (Op. 27). Of the songs, the reader may be advised to make the acquaintance first of all of the set to words by Goethe (Op. 18); the third of these, 'Einsamkeit,' is particularly beautiful. Wolf or Marx might have been proud to sign it.*

Fritz Kreisler, who is in the United States, has said to an interviewer, 'My devotion to my own land is well known. I have many friends in France, Belgium, England, and Russia. How could I change my feeling towards them? How could any personal enmity enter in? To bridge over the abysses of hatred that this war will leave behind it—that must be the mission of the artist.'

*Medtner's works are mostly published by the Russischer Musik-Verlag. They can be obtained through Messrs. Novello & Co.

SOME REFLECTIONS OF A NATIVE COMPOSER.

We British composers are not a fortunate race there does not appear to be any particular reason or desire for us even in our own country.

Yet with extraordinary and admirable zeal, we keep on steadily producing a succession of works in the larger, as well as the smaller forms. The great majority of the works we write, if they even achieve a first performance in public, seldom come to a second hearing; and it is only in the rarest cases that they reach the ultimate goal, and secure a place in the national musical repertory. Most of our work that attains a public performance is listened to with bored indifference on the part of the public, and dismissed with faint blame or more damning faint praise by our professional critics. It is as if they said: 'Your music may be good, or it may be bad—we really are not sufficiently interested to decide.'

With unabated industry we continue to bring forth every year a fresh crop of choral works, symphonies, symphonic poems, overtures, concertos, suites. Day after day, our principal champion fights his way out through the ever-growing drift of scores which we send to him, hoping that he may be able to give them a performance during his next season of promenade concerts. But even Sir Henry Wood cannot for ever continue to produce works for which there is no public demand, and there comes a moment in the life of the composer when, the fever of striving having temporarily abated, he drops out of the fight for the time being, and ponders deeply on the problem of why he works so hard, and so continually, for nothing.

He regards, with bewildered eye, the countless days he has stolen from his righteous occupation of teaching, or performing upon an instrument, and the midnight hours he has filched from his proper rest; and it slowly dawns upon him that he may be only wasting his life in a vain dream.

Perceiving in the distance the inevitable logical conclusion to these musings, fear descends upon him, and he hastens back once again to the fray, enduring laborious days and nights that he may, on the one hand, gain the wherewithal to live, and on the other, strive to realise his dream of creating great works that will cause his name to be honoured and beloved in his own land.

When he occasionally becomes articulate with his wrongs and grievances, he wastes his time by blindly and indiscriminately attacking musical critics, musical publishers, and the general public. The truth lies much deeper than he supposes, for he is at odds with a great national quality which, as far at least as it touches him and his works, frequently appears to have degenerated from nobility to injustice. The open generosity with which England has always received his foreign rivals would naturally appeal more strongly to him if, to make room for them, he had not to stand aside.

Napoleon's famous jibe has no sting for us as a nation, because we rightly regard it as a compliment. If we are shopkeepers, we have seen to it that we are very successful ones—but it would be absurd to imagine that because we have our Wagner in German and our supper afterwards in French, this is enough to ensure a reputation for culture; just as it is not really more highly intellectual if we know more of Bach and Goethe than we do of our own Purcell and Shakespeare.

We take foreign invasions too much for granted, though there is a certain lavish grandeur in the way we bring to our shores the best procurable without thought of cost or difficulty. We are ready to pay the most extravagant prices, from our imported Italian and German singers down to our wines and cigars. Perhaps we do not always relish what is sent us, but having paid such a large price, we must at least appear to be pleased and satisfied. There is, of course, the small minority who know perfectly well what vintage to demand and what brand to smoke; our concern is with the innocent majority who feel that so long as they can pour something golden and fizzy out of a champagne bottle, and smoke something with a large red and gold band, it would be vulgar to drink honest English beer or smoke an honest English pipe.

It is just the same in a musical sense, for though there are those who can really understand the superb and rare musical gifts of a Richard Strauss, a Nikisch, or a Casals, the vast majority of our countrymen are entirely convinced that the first thing needful to musical salvation is the possession of a foreign name. Every musician can call to mind instances of fellow-artists who, failing to meet with recognition under their own names, have quietly and unostentatiously changed them to a foreign equivalent, and achieved complete success by means of this ingenious stratagem.*

To come to grips at once, let us look impartially and calmly at the position of music in England, and the chances this country offers to her native musicians.

Our only permanent Opera House is given over to the production of foreign operas in foreign tongues, with foreign conductors and principally foreign singers. Can we, for an instant, imagine a similar state of affairs in any other capital of Europe?

Private enterprise is answerable occasionally for a season of opera given in English, nearly always a failure from a financial point of view, and naturally so, for how can we hope to compete successfully, at a moment's notice, with those who have been familiar with the work and the routine from their childhood? That, under the circumstances, we can do it at all creditably is wonderful enough, and when one comes to consider that in spite of all our disadvantages we in some ways surpass our foreign competitors — notably in ease and purity of vocalisation—we cannot help feeling again that our lot is not fallen in pleasant places.

It is not the present purpose to do more than touch lightly in passing upon this branch of the subject, but assuredly the establishment of a National English Opera House would do greater things, and more speedily raise the conditions of music in England than any other scheme of improvement.

In discussing this reform, one is generally met with the reflection: 'But what is the use of an English Opera House if there is no English opera to produce in it?' The answer is twofold. What is principally needed, at least in the beginning, is opera in English, not necessarily English opera, and further, the British composer cannot be expected to spend years writing works for which there is absolutely no chance of production.

Let us see our National Opera House first—the operas will be written quickly enough when there is somewhere to produce them.

To resume our survey: In London we have two principal orchestras which have now been long enough in existence to be regarded as permanent. One of these, it is no secret, has been enabled to hold its own largely through the generosity of a gentleman resident in our capital, who, alas, we cannot claim as one of our own nationality. It is ironically humorous to reflect that the principal opportunities for the production of new English compositions are given us by this orchestra.

The members of the other permanent organization carry on its work as a limited company, prepared to accept good luck with bad, and gaining respectable audiences in its excellent yearly series of concerts by dint of employing well-known foreign musicians to conduct for it. On the few occasions when, with noble daring, it has chanced English conductors, the result has been of so disastrous a nature from the point of view of audience, that the orchestra in self-defence was obliged to discontinue this particular form of madness. Indeed, it has recently gone one step further, and in response to the cries of lamentation and protest of its subscribers, it has cut out all English compositions from its programmes. It is impossible to blame those responsible, even if during its recent important tour of the United States and Canada, British music was not represented by a single composition. The company must live, and naturally cannot afford to produce works which the public is not anxious to hear, or employ British conductors in whom the public refuses to believe.

The Royal Philharmonic Society (which can hardly be considered a permanent orchestra in the strict sense) recently stated with a kind of proud humility that in all its 102 years of existence it never gave an entirely native programme until last year (1913). Judging from the very moderate audience on that occasion, the experiment will probably not be repeated.

In the smaller forms of the art, the number of concerts and recitals given in London every year is almost incredible, and yet of these the only ones that can be said to pay are those given by certain foreign artists. Outside of London matters are no more encouraging. The principal orchestra in the

* It is significant and of happy augury that this desire to veil nationality by an alteration of name is now being reversed.—[Ed., M.T.]

North is conducted by a German,* and the only permanent orchestra in Scotland by a Pole, and what applies to the smaller concerts given in London is equally true of the provinces.

Looking at the matter from the point of view of the composer, it cannot be denied that the very sound of 'New Symphony by Johannes Schmidt' would have fallen pleasingly and appealingly on the ears of the average English concert-goer, and would have been a 'draw,' while if it had been written by John Smith it could hardly have been considered a business proposition.

An endeavour has been made to define the quality in our people which makes possible this lamentable state of affairs: the truth of what has been said can hardly be questioned by the fair-minded observer.

There is another aspect of the case which should not be left out of sight—though he who reminds British composers of it runs the risk of their displeasure, especially if he himself be one of their number.

We British composers produce with great zeal quantities of a commodity for which there is apparently no market, and we must finally confront the difficult problem, and ask ourselves frankly: Are we and our music really wanted by our countrymen? And if we reply—as we must—in the negative, we must further ask ourselves: Is there a remedy? We must be prepared to deal, and receive, shrewd blows; but before we gird up our loins, let us consider openly and with candour whether there be anything in ourselves that needs putting in order before we can hope to succeed in our campaign.

There is no good in wasting our energy in bitter, aimless attacks upon all who do not appreciate us; we must first of all put our own house in order before we have any right to do a similar office for our neighbours.

It is plain that in order to establish ourselves in that strong position which we feel to be ours by right, we must appeal to the only real and solid tribunal, that is, the people; for whether we wish it or not, it is their voice that decides what is necessary and must live, and what is of no service and may be forgotten. Every day this voice becomes more articulate and pressing. Every artist is first and last the servant of the public, and if he can manage to give the public what they want, even though they may not know how to ask for it, his reward will be swift and sure, and his name held in honour. We are in the strange and sad position of having given over our fields to the stranger, who tills and reaps till he is exhausted; while we, a disconsolate and unsociable band, sit under the hedgerows, and glean what little may have been left when the invader has finished. To a great extent it is our own fault. How can we expect our people to recognise us and encourage our efforts when they see in so much of our music ignoble and servile imitation of the methods of our foreign competitors? This is the root of the matter. If we desire the British public to accept and appreciate our music, we must give up our pathetic attempts to put English cider into empty champagne bottles and pretend it is as good wine as Cliquot or Pol Roger; and recognise that by adding alien colour to our honest home-brewed we have only made it look like claret. It can never taste like the real article. We ought rather to be proud of our own honest native products, and reflect that in their pure state they are just as good in their way, and as difficult for others to counterfeit.

There is a delightful and distinctive savour about old English music: it speaks so simply and so truthfully of our national characteristics, and that is why—unpretentious and unassuming as it is—we have not forgotten it, or allowed it to die.

We must not omit to recognise that the Irish, Scotch and Welsh, as the English, have each their own particular idiom in music, and in course of time will probably become more sharply defined in their aims and method of expression; but they all make up between them what we mean by British, and are in the same boat as far as lack of appreciation is concerned.

At present it is sufficient for a foreign composer who has something new to say, or rather, a new trick of saying old things, to have his name spoken of in England with the proper amount of awe and respect, in order to ensure that his methods and mannerisms will be copied by the young native composer with fatal and complete truthfulness. Just as ten or fifteen years ago most native music was either Brahms or Tchaikovsky, so to-day the methods and idiosyncrasies of Strauss and Debussy are already a commonplace part of our equipment, and now that Schönberg and Scriabin have made their much-heralded appearances amongst us, their conquest of England is probably only a question of months; and we shall recognise their banner and quarterings in the new work of Mr. A or Mr. B. (One of our most celebrated professors of composition was heard to remark, after the first performance in London of Schönberg's 'Five Pieces for Orchestra': 'This is bad enough, but what will it be like in a few months, when my pupils submit their own compositions to me?')

With amusing and child-like trust, we imagine that because we assume the mantle of the new prophet, we shall deceive the patient British public into the belief that it is our usual and national garb! It is possible that we may even succeed for a time in our immoral design, but the public will not buy our works while we are alive, nor be sorry when we are dead. If we could even make money by such trickery there might be some excuse for it; but we fail even there. We are ankle-deep in this bog of deception, and like the Irishman in the story, to be ankle-deep would not be so serious if we had not fallen in head first!

Let us, then, frankly and freely acknowledge that the lack of appreciation which is our lot in our own country may be partly due to our own fault, and let us carefully consider if there be a remedy for our backslidings.

* This was written before the War. It is only fair to state that this orchestra has now entirely reorganized its arrangements, and has engaged a number of British conductors to carry on the concerts.

The great dream of our secret hearts is to write as good music as we know how, and yet have it performed as frequently and successfully as so-called musical comedy, or the latest vapid or insipid drawing-room ballad. Our point of view ought to be that we are writing serious British music that will truthfully paint what serious British people feel and think about their own country—not what they feel about France or Germany, after a hurried week with the invaluable Cook. Deep down in every man's heart is, or ought to be, a special and strong love and pride in his own country, and if we can once again get the priceless fragrance of these qualities into our music, we may be sure of instant and full recognition.

And now, having purged ourselves as with hyssop, let us turn again with renewed joy and zest to the congenial task of rebuking the faults of others towards us; but without bitterness or exaggeration.

In the eyes of the average British composer there are three principal factors operating against him—the indifference of the public, the damning attitude of the professional critics towards British music, and the unwillingness of music publishers to print British works.

It is probable that the average British musical critic does not himself realise how helpful he might be to us; and we must remember that generally he is of the type suited to his generation and public. An ideal critic would be one who by training and special gifts would be capable on the one hand of perceiving not only the bad points and miscalculations in a new work, as well as the original and successful attempts at experiment, and by wise and temperate discussion be of real service to the artist, but he would also be continually helping to educate the masses, and teaching them to look for subtleties which are not at once apparent. At the best of times the critic has no right to lay down his opinion as a law against which there is no appeal, for he is a servant equally of artist and public, without either of whom he would have no being. In the absence of one he would have nothing to criticise, and without the other nobody for whom to criticise it.

To be truthful and honest, it cannot be claimed that—with one or two honourable exceptions—the British musical critic in this country is in every way fitted for his important position. He has, in a good many cases, musical knowledge and training of the most rudimentary type; and he allows himself, no doubt unconsciously, to be used as advance agent to foreign visitors to our shores, distinguished and otherwise. His attitude towards contemporary British music is too often one of insolent contempt. To be fair, however, one must see a certain amount of excuse in that he is employed principally to help to increase the circulation of the paper he represents, and as things are at present, the newspaper reading public holds it as an article of faith that music from abroad always was and always will be immeasurably superior to the home-grown variety. Therefore any periodical whose critic firmly and steadily fought against this impression would no doubt be acting nobly and heroically, but would hardly find that circulation and financial success were increased by this means. Occasionally indeed one may catch a glimpse of a more generous spirit in some newcomer to the ranks of professed critics, but these knightly endeavours do not endure for long. If the majority of our critics are entirely honest with themselves, they must feel, with a pang, how false and equivocal their position really is, and wish that circumstances had rendered their path a less difficult and thorny one to follow.

But to the eyes of the sympathiser it would seem that there might be one way of escape for them: in that knowing themselves to be not completely equipped from a musical point of view they might concentrate upon the literary side of their work. It would be thought that a well-written record of their personal feelings and impressions, without any claim to omniscience or omnipotence in the judging of music, could be made so charming and attractive as to be grateful and helpful alike to the artist and the public. The real musician is his own best and fairest critic, from a purely musical point of view, but he fails because he imagines that the world was created only for music, and the critic that has just been outlined would be of immense service to him in helping him to apprehend that there is a wider significance in everything than such as lies between the pages of his latest score.

The bitter attacks made from time to time upon our publishers can hardly be as justified as our attitude towards our critics. To be a good and successful music publisher one ought to be purely a commercial and businesslike dealer in a certain commodity. The music publisher's business is to buy as reasonably as he can, and sell at the largest possible profit. It must always be remembered that he has to print hundreds of works before he finds one that will repay him for his outlay upon the others, and that he is not in business only for pleasure. He is continually railed at because he publishes music of a cheap and ephemeral type but as a business man is it not his task to find out what he can sell the most of, and produce it as quickly as he can? The wonder is that he ever troubles himself with good music at all, and that he is ready and willing to do so should comfort and sustain our composer. True, the amount that the average native composer makes out of the yearly sales of his works about suffices for one good supper; but no doubt when he begins to produce music which, while still the best that he can do, manages to hit the public taste, he will find his royalties growing steadily in a thrilling and unaccustomed crescendo.

There is but one matter in which the music publisher deals with us rather hardly—he publishes a good many of our works, it is true, but he is too much inclined to look upon them with something of a Bluebeard's eye, and regard them as safest and least harmful in the depths of his darkest cupboard. He would reply to this objection by saying that it is easy for him to disinter them should there be any particular demand for them. It is purely a question of business, but he would very likely find that a little judicious advertisement would, in time, lead to a steady if never brilliant sale. In the meantime, let us not attack so bitterly the music publishers who seem to the fair-minded observer to be as willing to take a sporting chance as any other class of business men.

The principal endeavour of the present writer has been to show that only those who help themselves can reasonably expect to be helped by others, and as a body, composers in this country are not entirely blameless for the scandalous neglect of their own works in their own country. We have, perhaps, been too intent upon our own special task to take an intelligent and searching interest in the fortunes of the rest of the great battlefield around us. A spacious outlook and broad sympathies can only be of help to us.

Therefore, let us occasionally look up from our fashioning and endeavour to gather how the tide of conflict may suddenly advantage us in our hopes and aspirations, and help us to write music that will give comfort and endurance to our brothers in the field.

* * * * * *

Though what has been written may seem to the casual reader to be too iconoclastic in spirit, yet he must remember that it is not logical to rebuild until the foundations are well laid and secure. Only when this is faithfully accomplished can we be sure of at length possessing a national edifice in which we can feel confidence and pride.

The foundations can be well and truly laid only if, from the first, the workmen feel that they have the trust and assistance of their own people, and that they are expected and encouraged to use the familiar, solid material of their own country. Separate details of construction demand fuller and more intimate discussion than can be given to them in this article. The vital question of State aid and the problem of the decentralisation of music, for example, are sides of the subject which demand special and exhaustive treatment.

It is sufficient for the moment if it has been made evident that the attitude of other countries regarding our music can be altered and improved only by our own patriotic exertions.

* * * * * *

To be simple and straightforward, this is an appeal for treatment as sportsmanlike and fair to the aspiring champion of Queen's Hall or Covent Garden Opera as that received by the idols of the National Sporting Club or the Crystal Palace on Cup-tie Day. A reverse to our favourite football team is a matter for serious thought, and we regarded it as a national calamity when, a short time ago, our heavyweight champion was knocked out in a few seconds by a brilliant French rival.

But is it not worse that the competitors in a still more trying art find it difficult even to obtain entrance to the musical ring in their own land?

All that is asked for is an unbiassed public, a just referee, and national sporting rules. Let us merely have the chance of putting on the gloves on equal terms with our foreign rivals, give us a straight fight, and then—well, in the language of the prize ring, 'may the best man win.'

THE CLAY AND THE POTTER.

By F. Corder.

I sing the Teacher: the man who gives so much and receives so little, whose work the whole world relies on, yet never appreciates, who may be greater than the greatest that shines before the public, yet who ranks in critical esteem lower than the lowest; and I sing the Minor Composer, the man who is scoffed at by all as a mere imitator and a thing of no account, yet who, fighting in the ranks and falling in the trenches, does more for his country than the glittering hero at the head who takes all the praise. In every subject save music, in every art and science, it is admitted as beyond question that the teacher condenses the knowledge and experience of previous generations, and sifts from the rubbish the gems of truth and knowledge. Without his assistance we should all be like young Ferguson, the shepherd-boy astronomer, who proudly brought his father a large manuscript volume wherein he had recorded all the principles of mechanics which he had spent months in formulating. How profound was his disappointment when his father reached out his hand and took down a volume of the 'Encyclopædia Britannica,' in which all this and far more was printed for all the world to read! How could there be any progress if we all had to work out the old problems for ourselves? We all acquire knowledge but to pass it on. Yet in the art of music alone this obvious truth is ignored by many and positively denied by some. Inspiration, say these latter, is all-sufficient; to be a great composer all you need is to have great ideas, the teacher can do little for you. If this were so, would not Schubert be a greater composer than Beethoven, Bellini than Schubert, and the writer of 'Tipperary' than either? I wonder whether the foolish people who talk thus have any experience of the embryo composer: nay, I do not wonder—I am sure they have not. What they must do is to conjure up in their minds an imaginary juvenile Beethoven or Wagner—nothing less will serve their purpose—and picture him as they would like him to have been. What he really was like they never, never would believe; but surely they might rely a little upon analogy! The future racehorse is a rough colt, often unpromising and turbulent; where would he be without his trainer? The future statesman or general is usually a dull and uninteresting cub, who afterwards confesses that he owes much (but he never knows how much) to the wise schoolmaster who guided his steps.

Most, if not all, of the greatest figures in the world, notably those two unfortunately chosen examples Beethoven and Wagner, so far from bursting upon an astonished world with brilliant ideas, have only attained to greatness by long and arduous toil. When they won recognition it was always from musicians first, and not from critics. On the other hand, the freak composer may be acclaimed by those too ignorant to perceive his worthlessness, but the man of knowledge 'lays low and says nuffin' lest he should play the pretender's game by advertising him.

It is of very little use to generalise about great and little composers if you ignore the two dominant factors of circumstance and individuality. Therefore it is futile to talk of 'the Beethovens' and 'the Wagners' as if their careers could ever be duplicated. Would you discuss our generals in terms of Hannibal and Cæsar, or compare modern architecture with that of St. Paul's and Westminster Abbey? Among the few general statements which can safely be made concerning musical composers is this: those for whom Nature, or Heaven, has done most will achieve least. The child with the wonderful ear, who extemporises and composes (save the mark!) before maturity rarely becomes a great man; never, unless some wise trainer takes him in hand betimes. But the majority of real composers, whether famous or obscure, begin by writing crudities so appalling that everybody but the experienced teacher declares that they have no 'gift' for music. Their ears, their brains, their industry, all have usually to be coaxed into being; sometimes this is a swift process, more often a very slow one. With no two individuals is it alike. Very rarely do all three powers develop equally, and though I hesitate to assert that all men are capable of becoming great, I have never yet found a point in any man's capacity where you could say, 'Thus far and no farther.' I speak of composers, not of critics.

'But,' you will persist, 'why then does one man become a Beethoven and another only a village organist?' Again I answer that you are taking too extreme a case. No man ever 'became a Beethoven,' or ever could repeat another man's success. If you bring your query down to the more rational form of 'Why are some composers great and others small?' it hardly requires an answer. As well might you ask why some men play the fiddle and others play the fool; the reasons are obvious.

You will admit, I suppose, that the fact of some composers achieving fame while others remain little known, is a very rough criterion of their respective merits. Palestrina is far more famous than Purcell, and Puccini much more popular than Elgar. Stainer's 'Crucifixion' is played far more often than Mendelssohn's 'Elijah,' and the latest music-hall ditty sells more copies in a year than do all Schubert's songs in a generation. There have been many composers who died before reaching maturity, very many who have been starved into abandoning their career; few of even the greatest have become famous until recognition was of no use to them. For the world naturally prefers to leave merit unnoticed until the owner can no longer profit by his fame; this is the nature of the commercial mind.

The young composer, his training nearly completed, often begins life brilliantly—as brilliantly as any Great Master. This is, indeed, the rule with our English ones, such as ——— [name deleted by Censor]. The number that I have seen with simply glorious promise! You say, 'Why is it never fulfilled?' Don't ask me, my dear Sir, or Madam; rather wonder how it comes about that any composer, great or small, ever survives what he has to go through in order to achieve success in his lifetime. The writers who preach Beethoven and Wagner to us quite ignore the fact that in a country where composition is an expensive hobby, and where there is no native opera, these great men would have died in the workhouse. The English composer of brilliant beginnings ends them usually in teaching the pianoforte to school-girls—as did César Franck. Some few achieve a loftier end; they become teachers of form and composition.

Of all that is implied in these last words no outsider—no critic—has the least idea. The mental picture raised in the mind of the ordinary person by the words academy and academic is that of a kind of barrack or board-schoolroom, with a row of young persons standing timidly before a more or less fraudulent bully with a cane in his hand. Anything further from the reality of a modern conservatorium and its inmates could not possibly be imagined. An English school of music is a joyous nursery of the most enlightened form of art, and it certainly has no use for pedants. No; the first idea of the modern teacher here (as, I hope, everywhere) is to awaken the personal affection of his pupils; as to their respect, he knows that will come only if he deserves it. He strives first to arouse their enthusiasm, next their industry, and lastly, their intelligence. He knows that the 'conceit' of the young composer has no existence in fact; that the tyro's first crude attempts cause much more disgust to their creator than to his audience. The wise teacher cheers the struggler on, assists his stammering utterance, and never sneers; he leaves that to the critics, who may be trusted to do it to him all his life long—even as they did to Beethoven and Wagner.

The student comes to his teacher as so much china clay to the hand of the potter, to be moulded into porcelain of various grades, according to the capabilities of the material. It may prove but common crockery, but it rarely gets a chance of proving its quality. The individuality gradually comes into being, but generally not till schooldays are past. If the material fail to stand the fire (to pursue our metaphor), why, some less arduous profession has to be sought—such as musical journalism, for instance.

Once away from the conservatory the young idea commences to shoot; the rising composer blossoms forth, to be quickly wilted and destroyed by the rigours of the climate. There is but one means of livelihood; he must become a teacher. Thus the Young Composer merges into the Sound Musician. After a score of strenuous years, during which he beats his wings against his cage till they drop off, he becomes resigned to his nobler calling, and when, be it by earnest endeavour or mere flux of time, he obtains some solid worldly position he is jeeringly styled an Academic. Well, if it be academic to acquire merit and to pass it on to the next generation, he may accept the epithet with complacency. For Beethoven and Wagner could not have done more, and, as a matter of fact, did not do as much. Perhaps the minor composer is only like a single insect in a coral reef, adding his mite to the vast edifice in which, and for which, he lives and dies; nevertheless, he lives and dies in faith and love for his art, and again, could Wagner or Beethoven do more?

It is of course very brilliant and Bernard Shaw-ish to bid the earnest aspirant choose his own parents—to have great ideas, and simply to compose well if he wants to be a great composer; but you must admit that it is not particularly helpful or sensible. Whereas, to tell a student that his future eminence depends solely upon the amount of his brains and industry, and then to show him all the short cuts, this is a thing that appeals to the learner, produces excellent results, and is a gospel which I defy any man to disprove.

— 1914 —

What music 's this that floats in doleful chords
From friendly shores across the watery main?
It is the wail of innocent children slain,
Of women slaughtered by inhuman hordes.

Where is the tongue that may to deeds lend words
As must for aye a nation's honour stain?
Deeds that e'en to repent now must be vain:
The doom is nearing—Vengeance is the Lord's.

O land of song, how art thou fallen low!
Was it not thou, e'en thou that gavest birth
To Master Music-Makers of the earth?

Abased before the eyes of friend and foe,
Go, hide in shame, O Germany, thy head,
Till thou again prove worthy of thy Dead.

GEORGE HENSCHEL.

Occasional Notes.

'King Albert's Book' (Messrs. Hodder & Stoughton) deserves a very special commendation. It is a beautifully produced volume containing 240 contributions from distinguished persons of thirteen different nationalities and its contents are an eloquent testimony to the sympathy of the civilised world (in this connection, at least, we exclude our unscrupulous enemies) for heroic Belgium. Musicians are represented by specially written compositions from Sir Alexander Mackenzie, Sir Edward Elgar, O.M. (the Carillon recently performed at Queen's Hall), Sir Charles Stanford, Sir Frederic Cowen, Claude Debussy, Edward German, Liza Lehmann, Pietro Mascagni, André Messager, and Dr. Ethel Smyth. Paderewski and Saint-Saëns send forceful literary contributions. The book costs only three shillings. All profits go to the relief of the suffering Belgian people.

The following letter was received too late for insertion in our December number. In order that the numerous friends of Mr. Charles Knowles might not have to wait a whole month, the letter was sent to the Daily Telegraph, and was published therein on November 28. Mr. Knowles has played many parts during his successful career, but he has never before played a nobler one than that for which he is now cast.

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

MY DEAR DR. MCNAUGHT,—I am just writing to let you know that I am in Egypt with my Regiment, and waiting the call for France or elsewhere whenever we are required. We know nothing, but have many rumours as to what is going to happen; all we can do, however, is to wait and see.

I should be glad if you can put a paragraph in the Musical Times mentioning the fact that I am serving with my Regiment ——— in Egypt, so that many of my friends will understand why they do not hear from me, for it is quite impossible to keep up correspondence and do my duty here, for up to now it has been very, very hard work. Though even so, I have done a lot of singing, and I take charge of all our Brigade concerts. We can put on some fine programmes, for we have some good pianists, excellent humorists, and some good singers.

It seems rather strange at times to be singing the 'Prologue' on the desert, or listening to the Polonaise in A flat; but so it is, and General Sir John Maxwell said last Tuesday night that it was the finest concert he had heard. 'My old shako' is the favourite song, and is always asked for by officers and men, also the 'Trumpeter.'

The men and horses are looking very fit and well, and we trust that before very long we shall be ordered to France; and you can take it from me that the ——— will not disgrace the name they bear.

The ——— Brigade to whom we are attached have improved out of all recognition: they are working morning, noon, and night, and though not big men they are born fighters; their physique is wonderfully improved, and their drill is splendid.

Shall be glad to hear from you if you have time to write.—With kind regards, Yours sincerely,

(Signed) CHARLES KNOWLES,
Farrier Quartermaster-Sergt.

Sunday, November 15, 1914.

THE WAR AND MUSICAL FESTIVALS.

The announcement that Birmingham has decided not to hold the Triennial Musical Festival which is due this year has elicited some strong protests in The Times from leaders of the musical profession. The correspondence has interest not only because of its application to Birmingham, but because of its bearing upon the musical situation generally. The discussion was initiated by Sir Charles Stanford. All the letters given below were addressed to the Editor of The Times:

SIR,—May I be allowed to write a word of strong protest against the postponement of the Birmingham Festival next October? The forefathers of the Festival Committee took no such step during the Napoleonic wars of a century ago, when the Empire and Birmingham alike were much smaller and poorer than they are now.

To drop the Festival means a loss to the musical profession, already disastrously hit by the war, of not less than some £5,000. To hold it as usual might or not mean a loss at this juncture of about £2,500. Is not the rich capital of the Midlands prepared to risk that sum rather than fine the players and singers who have worked so loyally for her in the past a sum of nearly treble the amount? There never was a greater claim for 'business as usual.'

I venture to hope for a reconsideration of the decision, and for a wide public request that it should be cancelled and the Festival restored.—Yours faithfully,

CHARLES V. STANFORD.

50, Holland Street, Kensington, W., Dec. 11.

SIR,—Permit me to express my strong agreement with the letter of Sir Charles Stanford on the abandonment of the Birmingham Festival. We, who are connected with large musical institutions, are well aware how greatly incomes, always small, have diminished since the War began among a class of people who shrink from making their wants known. This country is endeavouring with all its might to relieve distress; why create more? We owe it to our Fleet and Army which protect us to see that none of our normal activities shall be disorganized. Such disturbance always means suffering. The Birmingham Musical Festival means much to many. Let us hope that the decision of the Committee is not final.—Yours faithfully,

WALTER PARRATT.

The Cloisters, Windsor Castle, Dec. 12.

SIR,—With reference to the postponement of next year's musical Festival, I think that Sir Charles Villiers Stanford is not aware that the Birmingham General Hospital Committee is now responsible for the financing of the same. The Committee feels that, apart from the many difficulties of making necessary arrangements at this time, it is not justified in risking the depletion of the Hospital's funds. No one regrets the resulting loss to the musical world more than the Committee itself.—I am, Sir, yours truly,

ALFRED H. WIGGIN,
Chairman of Orchestral Committee.

Birmingham, Dec. 14.

SIR,—The musical professors of our two great Universities have entered a protest in your columns against the abandonment of the Birmingham Musical Festival of 1915 on the ground that the Festival is one of the most important means of livelihood to a number of first-rate musicians. But your Birmingham Correspondent puts them right this morning in a single flash of the wire. 'The Festival is promoted in the interests of charity.' Of course! Did these distinguished musicians think that our musical Festivals were promoted in the interests of music or musicians? As long as the musicians can earn thousands for 'charity' they may take a few guineas for themselves. When they cannot, 'charity' will not give them their few guineas, and it appears that no one cares enough about music to keep a Festival going for the sake of music alone.

If each Festival which has earned a thousand pounds for 'charity' had put aside 10 per cent (£100) as a reserve fund, the Festivals could all be kept going now and musicians could earn their livings and make good music without aid from 'charity.'—I am, Sir,

AN UNDISTINGUISHED MUSICIAN.

Dec. 15, 1914.

SIR,—Mr. Wiggin practically puts the responsibility for the suspension of the Birmingham Festival upon the shoulders of the General Hospital Committee. In other words, the Hospital Committee, which has profited by the exertions of musicians to the tune of many thousands of pounds, will not return the compliment if it involves any risk. The Festival, as an historical and artistic institution with a European renown, does not count. But where is the public spirit of the Birmingham of Peyton, of the Beales, of Matthews and of Jaffray, which would never have allowed such a lapse for lack of a guarantee to the hospital against loss? A guarantee which would have meant a hundred pounds apiece from a handful of men who could well afford it.

Save your reputation, Birmingham, as the guardian of a great trust, handed down for a century and a-half by your forefathers, and lead the way in showing that in England music is not always dependent upon commercialism.—Yours faithfully,

CHARLES V. STANFORD.

Dec. 16.

SIR,—In cordially supporting the appeal of Sir Charles Stanford, Sir Walter Parratt, and others for the continuance of the Birmingham Festival, may I mention that the Royal Choral Society has determined to give the usual concerts this season (certainly with some necessary change in the works to be performed), and thus to ensure to the musicians, vocal and instrumental, their usual incomes from this source without any deduction? I am glad to be able to state that so far the public has supported us as well as usual, and the secretary informs me that the prospects of the coming Carol Concert are even better than in previous years.

Surely the Birmingham musical public would do the same by their Festival?—I am, Sir, Yours faithfully,

J. FREDERICK BRIDGE.

The Cloisters, Westminster Abbey, Dec. 17.

We do not doubt that there are many difficulties in the way of the Festival being held, and the precedents of the recent abandonment of the Worcester, Cardiff, and Sheffield Festivals may be quoted to show that Birmingham is not acting exceptionally. Is there no middle course between complete abandonment (the disaster of which will fall entirely on the musical profession, whose aid is universally and so effusively welcomed in the cause of charity) and a festival on the usual scale? Would it not be worth while to hold a series of concerts at prices which would enable those classes of the community of the great city that are rarely able to afford to attend an ordinary Festival, to experience the solace to be derived from hearing the performance of fine music? In coin the scheme would not pay, but in uplifting of the spirit it would be a great gain to all concerned and, moreover, it would help many musicians to live.

The title-page and contents of Vol. 55 (January to December, 1914) are now ready, and can be had post-free by subscribers on application to the publishers.

QUESTIONS OF MODERN HARMONY.

BY G. H. CLUTSAM.

Although the futility of the old systems of teaching harmony by means of contrapuntal exercises is being generally, if tacitly, admitted by all recent writers who reasonably recognise the modern aspect of the subject, there is as yet little sign of a method appearing that will ensure a young and ambitious student any tangible comprehension of the whirlwind of harmonic complexities thrust within his sympathetic purview in recent years. The idea that a student is best assisted to ultimate knowledge by following lines of study that to all intents and purposes recapitulate the history of musical development from the days of modal scales to, let us say, the Choral Symphony, has always appeared to be reasonable, useful, and wonderfully healthy, and has also effectually prevented the ranks of great composers being overcrowded. But the intelligent modern student has, unfortunately for text-books, discovered that the true value of any composer, classical or modern, is generally if not precisely in conformity with the extent of his breaking away from every tradition, convention, or whatever other historical shackle may have been busily occupied at his particular period in impeding or limiting the progress of his individual musical consciousness.

The difficulty in the way of any teacher or theorist using the historical method is that he is compelled at the outset to apologise for the creaking of his teaching wheels. What with being told that any rule, law, or attitude inflicted on his early experiences is only insisted on as a test of the sobriety of his musical thought or vision; that some structure of sounds or other, though called this should actually be that; that any common triad loses its character by inversion, and as a $\frac{6}{3}$ or a $\frac{6}{4}$ takes on other aspects (though his modern ear and his pianoforte tell him that its character is scrupulously immaculate and articulate in any position), the student is likely to be discouraged at the very outset of his work. Further, when he is sufficiently independent to do something on his own account he has a thousand-and-one precedents for justifying any musical criminality his rebel spirit may be induced to perpetrate.

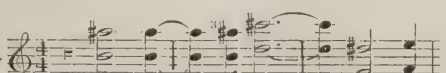
So many ill-equipped and recalcitrant composers have taken the bit between their teeth lately, that their immature efforts have had confusing and perhaps disastrous results on the unprepared and untechnical layman, who cannot be expected to realise the distinction between good, bad, or indifferent of startlingly unfamiliar things that are also in many respects at the outset belligerent retorts to his belief in and satisfaction with his own tranquil musical tastes.

Dr. Eaglefield Hull* has collected over four hundred examples from the music of modern composers (Bordes, Debussy, Delius, Elgar, Grovlez, Karg-Elert, Ravel, Rebikov, Reger, Rimsky-Korsakov, Florent Schmitt, Schönberg, Scriabin, Sibelius, Strauss, and Stravinsky are among those represented) that should quicken the stifled imagination of any student who has been carefully plodding through the mazes of the ordinary text-book in the ordinary way and with the ordinary teacher. Dr. Hull makes no attempt to reconcile modern with ancient systems, although he insists that 'it is the greatest possible mistake to view these modern schools as things separate from the past.' One would, however, prefer to think, with a mighty show of reason, that the aims and ideals of the modern composer have no root in the past whatever. Certain usages and broad lines of method have decidedly been utilised—grafted, as it were, on to the modern stock, which, however, is unquestionably planted and established in a new soil. From any practical point one must profoundly disagree with Dr. Hull in his suggestion that 'Debussy's sequences of sevenths are but a reverberation of the practice of Guillaume de Machault in the 14th century' on the evidence of the following example:

Ex. 1.

It might be equally suggested that the sequence of Scriabin sevenths:

Ex. 1a.

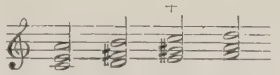


could also reflect the same source.

* 'Modern Harmony, its explanation and application,' by Dr. A. Eaglefield Hull (Augener & Co., 6s. net).

Further, it cannot be sustained that early instances of the tonal chord are to be found in the works of any old composer who landed upon the chord of the augmented fifth in his contrapuntal exercises, and was pleased with its consonance. This chord, which, by the way, would be extremely difficult to find in 17th-century music in any other position than that in the following example, was the outcome of a treatment of the modal minor scale customary in the Polyphonic period:

Ex. 2.

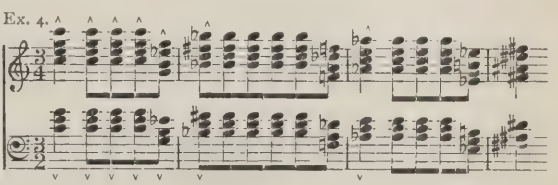


and is actually a primitive harmony. Further, it is no more a tonal chord than a major triad is a dominant eleventh. The 'Valkyrie-call' of Wagner, for instance is no voucher for the composer's appreciation of either the scale system or its chord combination, and however you may delve into old or recent classics it is not possible to discover in any shape or form the tonal chord as understood by the modern composer. You can find this combination in Bach:

Ex. 3.

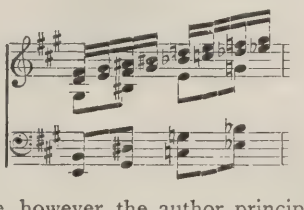
but you would not therefore accuse him of anticipating Schönberg! In his chapter on the tonal scale Dr. Hull gives a couple of examples from Debussy that in no wise illustrate its particular characteristics. The following, of course, is only a series of augmented fifths:

Ex. 4.



and the second, with its clean substructure, easily resolves itself into a pleasant series of complete major ninths which casually harmonizes the tonal scale:

Ex. 5.



In this case, however, the author principally desires to call attention to the unequal look of scale-passages where the scale is concerned, and regrets the clumsiness of the notational system. But this is only a question for the eye, after all, and the eye can take in infinitely more than it has yet been tested with. Of course, there are examples of indubitable tonal scales given, and the possibilities of the chord in the matter of resolution are shown more clearly, as a guidance to the student, than any other of the fanciful harmonic schemes and scale arrangements that are discussed in the volume.

It is probably quite impossible to investigate modern harmony in its broadest and most complete aspect in the same way that the well-defined limitations of the tonal chord or the Scriabin innovations (which, by the way, are well examined by Dr. Hull) can be explored. There are a myriad combinations that will never permit any satisfactory analysis. They may be sensed by the composer from directions that do not involve any scheme of harmony whatsoever. What is the use, for instance, of trying to analyse the chord—definitely expressed and reiterated throughout the work to repletion,—that provides the harmonic leit-motif of 'Elektra'?:

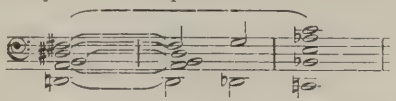
Ex. 6.

To Dr. Hull this stridulant group of fifths would appear as comprised of distinct tonalities running simultaneously, a principle that, as the author develops it, immediately absolves any culprit seeking notoriety from the most outrageous musical misdeed, simply because he could explain it with a certain ingenious facility. The Strauss example could also receive justification from another point, and that on the authority of the composer himself:

Ex. 7.



i.e., a long-drawn-out double appoggiatura, as in 7*a*:

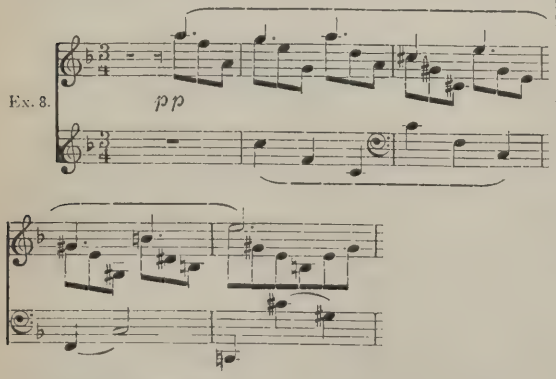
Ex. 7*a*.

with the unessentials taken as an entity, carried through a chromatic succession of basses (precisely as the diminished seventh suffered in its palmy days) and ultimately resolved or not according to the composer's feeling in the matter.

But this explanation would not assist the student either; it would only bewilder him.

In the case of such a passage as the following, from Ravel's 'Valse nobles':

Ex. 8.

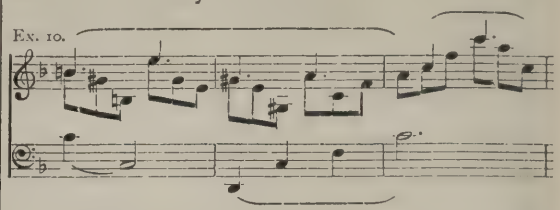


Dr. Hull suggests that the harmonic scheme is based on:

Ex. 9.

evidently indicating three distinct tonalities—tri-plane polytony!—when, by completing the illustrative example (the same harmonic scheme goes gaily on for another five bars), the analytical trouble is settled in a most cynical fashion:

Ex. 10.



Obviously Ravel is simply testing the carrying power of the ear with one of the longest appoggiaturas extant:

Ex. 11.

and after a couple of bars of subtle transition he calmly proceeds to do it all over again a note higher. The C♯ (as in Ex. 9) of course looks after itself in these days of generous added sixths.

It is impossible in the course of a necessarily brief article to discuss fully the points on which one might join issue with Dr. Hull, but the main and probably the essential disagreement would be concerned with the complexities of explanation he considers necessary for comparatively simple matters. He favours evidently the 'twelve-note' or 'duodecuple' scale as a theory basis, but distinguishes it from the 'chromatic' with difficulty and uncertainty. The explanations and analyses generally appear to be written for one who would like to talk about such things with a pose of fantastic intelligence rather than for one who would like to be assisted practically by them. They are for the dilettante rather than the student. Again, the author is extremely promiscuous in his authorities; some of the quotations included are anything but exemplary, and appear dragged in for other than musical reasons. But there is also included much that is splendidly representative of modern art and wholly worthy the attention of the student. Certainly, if after reading Dr. Hull's volume, the disciple can successfully balance an interesting musical structure on the basses provided as exercises in the first Appendix, or harmonize the melodies given in the second, throwing in 'impressionistic outlinings,' or chunks of the whole-tone system, or (see third Appendix) write pieces for pianoforte solo on Scriabin chords, or on some cold inconsequent bars lifted from Ravel, or on the Strauss double-barrelled triad quoted above, or 'compose bi-planal or tri-planal polytony' on combinations such as the following:

Ex. 12.

he is unquestionably quite capable of wasting his time to a greater advantage with some original work. As for the fifth Appendix, why any innocent student should be invited to invent eleven-part chords in orchestral tone-colour, à la Schönberg, surpasses understanding. Besides, the cruelty of it! Again, a passage from Delius's 'Appalachia' is given to be analysed and finally orchestrated. Delius is one of those composers who absolutely resent any sort of technical analysis. The submission of his music to cold and careful examination soon reveals the fact that Delius has the weakest technical ability of any strong composer living. How he creates his artistic illusion is another matter, but who with the best will in the world could analyse the following—the first eight bars of Dr. Hull's extract from the 'Appalachia' variations?:

Ex. 13.

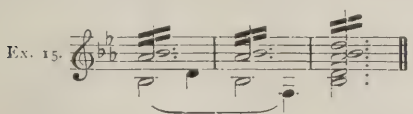
The meandering crudities of all this are appalling!

One must heartily agree with Dr. Hull's opinion of the 'pure scale.' Its obsolescence is not to be denied. Modern chord-structures could not be maintained if the idea of its existence was admitted. Regarding the frequent assertions that many of the old masters anticipated modern innovations, one of the examples that persistently crops up is again quoted by Dr. Hull: 'Take, for instance, the daring horn passage in Beethoven's Symphony in E flat, which is thrown on to a background of A flat and B flat—a major second—in the strings. This is a sufficient presage of the part which that new element, tone-colour, was shortly to play in harmony.' These well-known bars:

Ex. 14.

which are approached by conductors with bated breath and apologetic air, cannot be paralleled in idea in any other of all Beethoven's numerous works, and certainly cannot be accepted as a musical subtlety of the composer's. Its value or effect is scarcely worth a moment's consideration. This is the alternative:

Ex. 15.



Beethoven could easily have made a slip in his notation of the E♭ horn part. His transposition for horn purposes of the phrase required two notes down instead of up! and a moment's carelessness would account for everything unusual in the passage.

The libretto of 'The enchanted garden,' the opera-ballet which Mr. Joseph Holbrooke has been commissioned to write for the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, is by Mr. Douglas Mallock, of Chicago. Madame Pavlova is to be première danseuse in the first production, which is to take place in April next.

ILLUSTRATIONS OF THE HISTORY OF MUSIC PRINTING IN THE LIBRARY OF MR. ALFRED H. LITTLETON.

By Jeffrey Pulver.

(Continued from November number, page 651.)

Another example of German music printing early in the 16th century is found in the 'Syntagma de Musis' by Lilius Graegorius Ziraldus (or Giraldus), printed by Matthias Schurer at Strasburg, in 1511; this work is not in the British Museum. Another volume in Mr. Littleton's collection which shares the distinction of not being represented in the British Museum is Ludovicus Senfel's 'Liber Selectarum Cantionum quas vulgo Mutetas appellant, &c.' This work, printed by Sigismund Grimm and Marcus Wyrsung, at Augsburg, in 1520, is 'a splendid example of music typography, produced by two printings and not by wood blocks as asserted by Fétis, who apparently had never seen the original work.' Another work containing well-printed musical examples from type, produced by two impressions, is the 'Rerum Musicarum Opusculum rarum ac insigne, &c.,' by Joannes Froschius, a folio printed by Petrus Schoeffer (son of the more famous Peter who was the colleague of Gutenberg and Fust) and Mathias Apiarius at Strasburg in 1535. Xistus (or Sixtus) Dietrich's 'Magnificat octo tonorum' (Altus and Tenor) by the same two printers and bearing the same date, is now no longer in this collection, Mr. Littleton having presented it to the Fétis Library (later taken over by the Bibliothèque Royale de Belgique) in order to complete their copy. An interesting work, inasmuch as it is produced from type in one impression, is Sebaldus Heyden's 'De Arte Canendi, &c.,' a quarto printed by Johannes Petreius, at Nuremberg, in 1540. The collection also contains a copy of the 'Dodecachordon' of Glareanus (Henrichus Petri, Bâle, 1547); but since the British Museum possesses two copies of this edition, only this passing mention need be made of it here. Another work not in the British Museum is 'Enchiridion utriusque musicae' (Wittenberg, 1551, Rhaw). Two 'Kirchenordnungen,' one dated Wittenberg, 1552, and the other 1570, are contained in the collection, although not entered in the catalogue: both have lozenge-shaped notes. Interesting, too, is Gallus Dresler's 'Musicae Practicae Elementa, &c.,' printed by Wolffgang Kirchner at Magdeburg in 1571. The British Museum has a copy dated 1575. A similar difference of editions is noticeable in Henricus Faber's 'Compendiolum Musicae Pro Incipientibus,' Mr. Littleton's copy being printed by Conradus Corneus, Henricopoli, 1575, while the British Museum example was issued from Nuremberg in 1579. Katherina Theodorici (Gerlachii relicta), Nuremberg, is represented by Leonartus Paminger's 'Tertius Tomus Ecclesiasticarum Cantionum, &c.' (1576). Paminger's works are not frequently met with, a circumstance which makes the volume all the more interesting. The author was born in Bavaria in 1495, and was a follower of Luther; he is known as the writer of many pamphlets and some hymns in the vernacular, but chiefly as 'one of the greatest contrapuntists of his time' (Proske). The practice of issuing 'Die Psalmen Davids in allerlei Teutsche gesang-reimen' soon became popular in Germany, and an interesting specimen of such a work is Caspar Ulenberg's collection of psalms, printed by Gerwinus Calentius and the successors of Johan Quentels at Cologne in 1582. The same year saw the publication at Bâle of the 'Paedagogus' of Joan Thomas and Joan Osualdus Fregius, a didactic work containing a section on music (pp. 157-217) in the form of a catechism. This work is not catalogued.

[ Since these lines were sent to the press I, in common with musicians in general and musical bibliophiles in particular, have suffered an irreparable loss in the death of Mr. Littleton. None who knew him can but mourn this gap. I for one must ever think with admiration and gratitude of a friend whose endeavour it always was to further music and to assist the musician in his search for knowledge.—Jeffrey Pulver.]

Interesting on account of the size of the type, Francisco Sale's 'Missarum solenniorum, &c.' deserves mention. This work, in large folio, printed by Adam Berg at Munich in 1589, has separate voice-parts on opening pages, printed 'sufficiently large to be easily read by the whole choir from a single copy.' This is the ninth volume of a series produced by Berg under the patronage of the Duke of Bavaria. Mr. Littleton obtained six out of the eight parts that go to make up the complete set of Praetorius's 'Hymnodia Sionia' (1611), and also the famous 'Syntagma Musicum' by the same important writer (vol. i., printed by Johannes Richter, Wittenberg, 1615; vol. ii., by Elias Holwein, Wolfenbüttel, 1619 [Theatrum Instrumentorum, 1620]; vol. iii., by Holwein in 1619), but since they are easily accessible in the British Museum they need not be described more fully here. Especially interesting to us in England is the work which Robert Fludd (1574-1637), physicist and philosopher, published at Oppenheim in 1618. The Littleton collection includes the second part of it—'De Templo Musicae, &c.'—with pictures of instruments, and specimens of music produced by engraved plates, movable types, and wood blocks.

Turning to the products of the Italian presses, we find represented in the collection of Mr. Littleton a fine copy of Franciscus Niger's 'Grammatica Brevis,' printed by Theodorus Francus at Venice in 1480. Both in this example and in the one in the British Museum (showcase) the notes only are printed from types, the lines being wanting. The work is 'the earliest known specimen of secular music printed from type or by any other method.' A later edition (Bâle, 1500) has the staff added. Mr. Littleton considered the copy of 1480 the most important book shown at the Fishmongers' Hall Exhibition, 'and one moreover that seems to have escaped the notice of musico-bibliographers. It is the first book containing melodies or songs, as Gerson's "Collectorium" of 1473 has only five notes. The printer of the "Grammatica Brevis" must have possessed a more or less complete fount of music-type. This book may have been his first venture in the art of music printing, and so far as is known he would seem to have been the first practical printer of non-liturgical music.' Another important treatise on music, the earliest of its kind, is the 'Theoricum opus musice' of Gafurius. The printer was Francisco di Dino, Naples, and the date 1480; no printed music is contained, but spaces are left blank for the purpose of supplying the want in manuscript. In Mr. Littleton's copy the music has been so filled in. An interesting work, printed from type (two colours) is the 'Missale secundum Ordinem Fratrum Predicatorum,' issued from the press of Octavianus Scotus, Venice, 1482. The 'Musices Opusculum' of Nicolaus Burtius, printed by Ugo de Rugeriis, Bologna, in 1487, is also contained in this magnificent collection; it affords examples of the first use of wood blocks for music printing. The British Museum possesses a copy, exhibited in one of the showcases, and Grove gives a reproduction of one of the pages in Mr. Littleton's copy (Ed. 1913, iii., 324; cf. also Grove, iii., 323, col. 2). The 'Theorica Musice' of Franchinus Gafurius (or Gafori), printed by Philippus Mantegatius dictus Cassanus at Milan in 1492, is, in its second edition, another work with music printed from wood blocks. The same method of reproduction was used in the 'Caesenatis Elegia' of Marcellinus Verardus, printed by Eucharius Silber (Franck) at Rome in 1493, and presented by Mr. Littleton to the British Museum, thus completing their copy of 'Caesenatis Historia Baetica' by the composer's uncle, Carolus Verardus. Gafurius is further represented in the Littleton collection by his 'Practica Musice' (Guillaume Signerre, Milan, 1496); 'Musice Utriusque Cantus practica' (the second edition of the foregoing), printed by Angelus Britannicus at Brescia in 1497; the third edition, printed by Bernardino Misinta de Papia at Brescia in 1502; and 'De Harmonia Musicorum Instrumentorum opus,' printed by Gotardus Pontanus at Milan in 1518. 'De Arithmetica, Musica, et Geometria,' by Boethius, and printed by Joannis and Gregorius de Gregoriis Fratres at Venice in 1499, is also in the collection.

With Ottaviano dei Petrucci the art of printing from movable type was much improved, and in his productions we can see some superlatively beautiful specimens of florid-song printing. The collection contains his 'Motetti a Cinque' (Venice, 1505), a wonderful example of printing for that, or any other, period. 'His fount of music-type was so beautiful, and the whole of his workmanship so perfect, that it scarcely admitted of improvement.' For the next few years the noteworthy examples of the music printer's art continued to come from Venice. Bernardino and Mattheo di Vitali, represented by Pietro Aaron's 'Thoscanello de la Musica' (1523); Jo. Antonius de Sabio, by the 'Musica Theorica' of Ludovicus Folianus (1529); Marchio Sessa, by Aron's 'Toscanello in Musica' (1539); Girolamo Scotto, by Aron's 'Lucidario in musica, &c.' (1545), are all included in Mr. Littleton's collection. The famous press of Antonio Gardane (Gardano), in Venice, contributes a quarto of 'Mottetti del Frutto' (1538), printed from type at one working. This was his first essay in music printing, and 'probably the first attempt in Italy at printing from type at one impression.' Other examples from the Gardano press owned by Mr. Littleton are Cipriano de Rore's 'Musici eccelentissimi, &c.,' in five parts (1544), another set of five-part vocal pieces by various authors (1549), and a further fine example of Gardano's work, the 'Novi Thesauri Musici' by Petrus Joannellus (1568).

Equally important in the history of music printing is Hieronymus Scotus, of Venice, and we find him represented in the collection by 'Il Primo Libro de Madrigali a Quatro Voci.' The book was printed 'a Notte negre' in 1550, and contains thirty-eight madrigals (Bassus only preserved). 'Cantorinus ad eorū instructionē, &c.,' printed 'in officina heredii Luceantonii Junte' at Venice in 1550, is a curious production containing square black notes on red lines. Another interesting work is Fabritio Caroso's 'Il Ballarino' (Francesco Ziletti, Venice, 1581), containing specimens of type printing in notation, and also of tablature. Engraved plates were used by Simone Verovio (Rome, 1597), in his issue of Claudio Merulo's 'Toccate d'Intavolatura d'Organo,' and Mr. Littleton said that Verovio 'appears to have been the first printer to use engraved copper plates; his earliest known publication of this kind is dated 1586.' This collection also contains a copy of the folio edition of Peri's music to 'Euridice' (Florence, Marescotti, 1600), printed in full score from type. The British Museum edition is dated from Venice (Rauerii), 1608. Two more works from engraved plates in the library are Frescobaldi's 'Toccate e Partite' (Nicolo Borboni, Rome, 1615), and the same composer's 'Toccate d'Intavolatura di Cimbalo, &c.' (also Borboni, 1637).

(To be continued.)

MR. ALBERT SAMMONS.

Although the 'ill wind' of present days has blown some good to British music by removing many foreign obstacles from its path, it is not to be supposed that every triumph of native art and artists is achieved, as it were, on sufferance. The subject of these paragraphs provides a case in point. At the moment of his definite 'arrival' the Kreislers, Thibauts, and Elmans are far away; but it was arranged long ago that Mr. Sammons should play the Elgar Violin concerto at a London Symphony Orchestra concert, and it was ordained still longer ago that he should have the gifts, intellect and temperament to earn, in such music, the epithet of 'great violinist.' Mr. Sammons has won his position by force of great ability that was bound to bring him to the front in all circumstances, and he has happened to step into the front rank at a time when a conspicuous success by a British artist is peculiarly gratifying. His performance of Elgar's Concerto on November 23, to which reference is made in another column, drew forth glowing unanimous praise from public and Press alike. In view of so notable an event it may interest our readers to have some particulars of his career.

Albert Sammons was born in London on February 23, 1886. The greater part of his education as a violinist was received from his father. Afterwards he had lessons from Ferdinand Weist-Hill and John Saunders. He was, however, satisfied with far less teaching and, moreover, far less practice than is usually found necessary to success. His aptness for the violin was inborn and its development largely self-evolved. Deprived not only of the atmosphere, musical and social, of a teaching institution, but also of its material helpfulness, Sammons did not quickly earn recognition. At length he was engaged for the Beecham Orchestra, and was soon promoted by the perceptive conductor to the post of leader, which he held for five years. He took part in over fifty operatic performances by the Beecham company. He has also done orchestral work as a member of the King's Band and as leader of the Philharmonic Orchestra. His playing of the violin obbligato in 'Ein Heldenleben' at a Philharmonic Concert earned unstinted praise from the conductor, Mengelberg, who is not reputed to lavish it unduly.

As a soloist, Sammons was given his first opportunities by the Patron's Fund. At his first appearance he played the G minor Concerto of Max Bruch; later he achieved a greater success in the B minor Concerto of Saint-Saëns, before an audience that included King George and the composer. He proceeded to fulfil engagements in the provinces, and received the honour of an invitation by M. Monteux to be leader and principal soloist for a season with the Colonne Orchestra at the Casino of Dieppe. Here he quickly lived down the feeling that manifested itself against the 'foreigner.' His rising reputation then led to the engagement with the London Symphony Orchestra that has established his fame. For Elgar's Concerto he has whole-hearted admiration and close temperamental sympathy. He is to repeat his interpretation at the Albert Hall on January 17, with the New Symphony Orchestra. He is studying the Concerto of Brahms, as yet new to him, for performance with the London Symphony Orchestra in April. His style as a soloist is marked by serene confidence and the suggestion that nothing exists for him but the music and his unhampered intimate expression of it. There is no sense of demonstration or of external appeal to the audience.

There is yet to be mentioned a branch of his work that alone would give him a claim to eminence. He is the first violinist of the London String Quartet, a body that has earned a European reputation for an almost unique combination of skill, unity, and expressive power. Its first meeting had something of the casual. His present associates, Messrs. Petre, Waldo Warner, and Warwick Evans, invited him to join them for specific rehearsals. The four revealed to themselves such intimacy of idea and identity of style that they decided to associate permanently, with results that are well known. It was as the New String Quartet that they first came before the public. They quickly established their position in England, and in later visits to Amsterdam and Paris they have materially advanced the esteem in which British executive artists are held abroad. They are equally to be admired in classical and in modern music, but their most notable achievements have been made in the presentation of up-to-date or more than up-to-date works. We are indebted to them for our first acquaintance with Schönberg's Sextet and Quartet and the Quartet of Dr. Ethel Smyth.

[Photo by Histed & Co., London.

Mr. Sammons has a considerable private connection as a teacher, and is an examiner for the College of Violinists. He has written several violin pieces that are published, and his portfolio contains a Concerto and a Fantasy String Quartet.

We print below two extracts from the numerous highly favourable Press notices of Mr. Sammons's performance on November 23:

In quite an unusual degree he possesses the capacity for extracting the last breath of pure emotional beauty from the music without for a moment touching on sentimentality. His tone is very sweet and grateful, and the whole of his sense of style is highly distinguished, while his gift of interpretation is such that without hesitation we give his performance of Elgar's Concerto the palm over all others of the many which we have heard.—Daily Telegraph.

Extraordinary beauty of tone is united to feeling pure and deep, and in addition to an unfailing but unobtrusive technique he has a remarkable power of grasping the meaning of the music he plays. At his hands there was full revelation of the wonders of Sir Edward Elgar's Violin concerto. Heard again after an interval, its greatness, already recognised, becomes more emphatic. There is nothing like it in existence, and it can be held up to the world as an example of what this country can achieve in the direction of original creative music. The same may be said of Mr. Sammons's reading of it. It can be recorded with perfect conviction that one has never really heard the work before until Mr. Sammons gave his version.—Morning Post.

Church and Organ Music.

THE COMPLEAT ORGANIST.

By Harvey Grace.

(Continued from December number, page 700.)

XI.—OF A DIOCESAN REPORT.

At a Diocesan Conference held at Wakefield rather more than a year ago it was resolved: 'That with a view to enhancing the efficiency and reverence of our church music, the Bishop be respectfully requested to appoint a committee'—in a word, will his Lordship kindly see that we have with due speed a full, true, and particular account of the church musical arrangements in our Diocese?

No sooner said than done. A committee was appointed, and the result* lies before me. A most interesting and suggestive pennyworth it is. Mutatis mutandis, so much of it will be found to apply to other dioceses that it deserves a wider circulation than the committee had in view. Obviously, the value of a publication of this kind depends almost entirely upon the constitution of the committee. The findings of a body of well-meaning clergy with more zeal than musical knowledge would be received by choirmasters and their charges with irritation or indifference. Similarly, no group of professional musicians could expect an altogether sympathetic hearing in clerical circles. If it did it would be disappointed. Church music is not a purely musical question. An orchestral or choral society may be satisfactorily run on the lines of absolute monarchy. Given a more or less benevolent despot who knows his work, success may be looked for. The musical arrangements of a parish church demand more democratic methods. The congregation is as the free and independent electorate, whose wishes as to the type of music in a general way may be expressed through its churchwarden or church council. The organist is as the faithful Commons, doing his best to carry out the reasonable wishes of the congregation, but reserving to himself the right to run counter to the wishes when they are not reasonable—always with the minimum of offence and the maximum of persuasiveness. The parson is at the upper House, with the right of veto, which, if he be wise in his generation, he will use but rarely, and even then disguised as a suggestion. Clergy there are, of course, and organists as well, who strive to combine in themselves the three estates. They get all the trouble they ask for. This Wakefield committee deserves a respectful hearing because of its composition. It included such well-known musicians as the organists of Huddersfield, Halifax, and Dewsbury Parish Churches, the Precentor of Wakefield Cathedral, two or three divines whose knowledge of special kinds of church music is equal to, if not greater than, that of the average organist, together with the usual names of local weight.

The committee began its task by preparing a list of questions, and sending it to organists and incumbents. Of the 180 inquiry forms issued, 135 were returned carefully filled up. Passing by some statistics as being of more local than general interest, let us look at some of the findings and suggestions of the committee.

As to choir practices we read: 'Owing to the fact that organists are often delayed by other calls of business, and that many adults also arrive after the hour fixed for rehearsal, full practices are sometimes prolonged to a late hour, a fact which causes parents to be reluctant in some cases for their boys to become choristers. The claims of the night-school also make it increasingly difficult to retain the services of boys, just at the time too when they are beginning to repay choirmasters for all the time and trouble spent on them. This is a problem that will have to be faced, if the musical part of our services is not to suffer.'

This difficulty of late hours for boys applies less to London than to the provinces, especially rural districts. Your London boy, if not at choir-practice till 9.30 or even 10, would very likely be at the local cinema, or running the streets. The evening-school difficulty is one that hits the London choirmaster hard. The most intelligent boys of his district are of course the very ones to gain scholarships, involving evening work either at home or at school, and consequently the choir is not for them. In regard to the lateness of the weekly full practice, I should think that in the winter something may be done in the way of stealing a half-hour on Sundays after the morning service. The mid-day meal on Sundays tends more and more to stretch out a hand towards tea-time. (Shall I ever forget calling at a chorister's home in a noisome street in the Borough at 3.30 on a summer Sunday afternoon and finding the family just about to attack a piping-hot Irish stew?—a noble dish, but not lightly to be taken in hand in the dog-days.) The morning service is usually over by 12.30. With the choir all on the spot, it would surely be possible to rehearse till 1.0, or even later. This should be a rehearsal, not a practice. Boys and men would have prepared their parts separately during the week. This Sunday rehearsal would only be feasible, of course, in small provincial towns or villages, or in London parishes where the choir lives near the church. Where a tram or train journey is involved, as is often the case in central London, it would be out of the question except on special occasions. The Report goes on to say: 'In some choirs there appears to be a difficulty in getting the adults to practise the psalms and hymns on the ground that they know them quite well already. . . . Certain lukewarmness seems to prevail as regards the rehearsal of the Responses, Litany, &c., which, according to the replies sent in, appear to be practised only "when necessary," or "occasionally," or "never."' We know that 'certain lukewarmness!' It is one of the prices we have to pay for using anthems and other delights as a cunning bait wherewith to draw the coy choirman to practice. An excellent plan if, having got him there, you can teach him to acquire a taste for such plain, wholesome fare as routine work done well, details looked after, and so on. Not quite so excellent, however, if it ends in his developing an unhealthy appetite for bait only, with no stomach for anything else. It has been for some time painfully evident that in effect the choirman not only chooses the music, but also decides what shall be practised. In many cases he is thus not only choirman, but choirmaster as well, and the organist is his very humble and obedient servant. This will always be so until organist and vicar put their foot down, regardless of corns in the choir stalls, and intimate that they are prepared to adopt a simpler kind of service rather than submit to the tyranny of the man with (or without) a good voice who condescends to attend practices and services only when there is music in hand that meets with his approval.

* Diocese of Wakefield. Report of the Bishop's Committee on Church Choirs, 1914. (W. H. Milnes, Wakefield. 1*d.*, by post 1½*d.*)

Under the heading 'Choice of music and other details' it is good to see organ music receiving attention. The committee finds that 'little attempt is made to interest congregations in the organ voluntaries, and the opening voluntary in many cases appears to be spoilt by the undue prolongation of bell-ringing.'

On this point, among the recommendations, we read: 'The committee desires to draw attention to the value of five minutes' quiet music as a preparation for matins and evensong, and recommends that with a view to obviating interference with the opening voluntary, all pealing of bells cease at least five minutes before the commencement of the service. Also that steps be taken to interest congregations in the voluntaries, and in other music to be played at the close of the service, by publishing the titles of the music selected.'

This is a welcome recognition of a feature in church music that has great educational as well as devotional possibilities. This country is rich in good organs and capable players. There is abundance of fine organ music, old and new, easy and difficult, long and short. It ought to be impossible to go into a church where there is at least a fair instrument and a man whose special work it is to play it, and to hear before the service a few minutes of rambling alleged improvisation (a blundering printer who once altered the word to 'impoverisation' builded better than he knew!), and at the end a well-worn classic or a trivial march, chosen during the sermon, and played—or rather 'gone through'—without practice. This experience, so far from being impossible, is highly probable. In regard to the opening voluntary, no one is likely to complain when the improvisation is by one gifted in that delightful art. But the gift is rare, and the consciousness of not possessing it is rarer still. I would suggest a further recommendation for any future edition of the report: 'In cases where the organist cannot improvise, and is unaware of his limitations, the bells should be "fired" during the voluntary before the service. If the bells are so hung that they are not very audible inside the building, or if there is no peal, the Sunday-school children should be led up and down the aisle for five minutes, and instructed to walk as far as possible on any iron gratings or other resonant features.' The suggestion that particulars as to the music played after the service should be published is excellent in every way. The parish magazine usually includes a list of choir music for the month. Why not organ-music as well? An organist choosing his voluntaries by the month in this way will inevitably ask himself questions such as, 'How can I make my organ music apposite? I see that on such a Sunday we have Hymn 024. What a good opportunity of playing so-and-so's beautiful fantasia on the tune—a work that can only be properly appreciated by hearers familiar with the hymn, and aware that the organ-piece is based on it!' He will often find himself able to play appropriate pieces by taking thought betimes. A hurried overhauling of the music cupboard at the preacher's 'One more word, dear brothers and sisters, and I have done' is apt to lead to poor results. Or again, he may feel some reasonable anxiety as to the appearance of his list of music under the fierce light that beats upon a parish magazine. There are in every congregation at least a few musical people who know the names of good organ composers. Our organist will hesitate before publishing abroad his neglect of good, strong music, and his use of the commonplace. Induced thus to improve his choice of music, he will find himself compelled to practise, and both he and his congregation will be the gainers. After all, an organist's job is to play the organ. He should not be satisfied by playing as limited and easy a répertoire as possible with no more efficiency than is to be gained from the minimum of practice. He ought, in effect, to say to his congregation: 'We have a good organ. About the organist I will say nothing beyond the fact that he is anxious to do his best. I have in my locker a fine stock of organ music. Let 's enjoy it together, week by week.' I believe that the congregation at such a church would soon become as well educated in organ music as the Promenade audiences have in orchestral music. Even on the lowest grounds such a policy is sound. The organist's reputation as a player would go up, with material advantages that are obvious.

The committee notes with regret that 'there are many choirs where the adult members make no attempt to kneel, either sitting bolt upright or merely bending forward.' One can only wonder how the incumbent at such a church can dare to exhort his people to reverence when he knows, as he must or should, that his choirmen merely pretend to be reverent. On this point the report says: 'It is sometimes urged as an excuse for not dealing with choirmen who do not kneel when they can, and with other acts of irreverence, that a voluntary choir has to be handled very gently. But although there is no compulsion to volunteer, a voluntary singer, once a member, must be just as amenable to rules and discipline as a paid member.' This latter sentence should be printed in bold type and hung up in every vestry, that he who runs may read. It is not unlikely that in some cases he who reads would run. If so, he would be no real loss to the choir, had he the voice of a Caruso.

The report is sorry to say that unaccompanied singing is not sufficiently frequent, and that congregational singing does not seem to be encouraged by practices. On this latter point, more anon.

An interesting suggestion is that organists shall be granted occasional leave of absence, apart from their holidays, in order that they may have the opportunity of hearing services other than their own.

As to the long list of choir rules suggested, it may be pointed out that a rule that cannot be kept is a snare. It is very well in theory to say that a man not attending practice shall not sit in the choir on the following Sunday, but when your only soloist fails to appear on Friday night, and you have either to alter your Sunday music at the last moment or break the rule, the rule generally goes by the board. You cannot have one law for the soloist and another for the duffer, unless the latter knows he is a duffer. But he doesn't. In his heart of hearts he fancies he is a neglected soloist. There is only one rule that no choir can do without, and it is one that may be and should be kept, namely, that the adult section of the choir is open to communicants only. This rigidly enforced, many things that are at present wrong would right themselves.

The report includes various lists of music and books. Some of us may feel regret that there is no mention of plainsong. It seems to be taken for granted, too, that all the little fishes will go on trying to talk like whales—in other words, all the churches will go on attempting a cathedral service. Many other points I pass over, for want of space, to draw attention to a clerical shortcoming that leads to bitterness in many an organ-loft. 'All the blame [for indifferent singing] must not be allowed to rest on the shoulders of choirmasters or choirs. It cannot be doubted that many of the clergy are, musically speaking, a real hindrance. Quite apart from musical inefficiency which a short course of lessons from a competent teacher would do much to remedy in many cases, some of the clergy are guilty of mannerisms and exaggerations that excite wonder in a stranger, whilst the adoption of what is sometimes described as the "Church voice" does much to annoy the sober-minded layman.' It also causes a clerical form of laryngitis, which sympathetic members of the flock ascribe to overwork. Clergy who cannot intone often assume a kind of pride in their incompetence: 'My dear man! I can't sing! I haven't a note in my head. I know only two tunes and neither of them is "God save the King,"' and so on. The results when this bluff humorist attempts to sing the Litany, or delivers the Comfortable Words to a most uncomfortable tune, are only too well known.

On the whole the report leaves one depressed. Here, as in other dioceses, there is much excellent voluntary work being done. Many hundreds of men are cheerfully giving up part of their scant leisure in order to help in the musical part of the church services. All honour to them and their fellows throughout the country. One can only feel regret that their efforts and skill should be so often wasted on unworthy music, and that there seems to be no central organization to ensure that their enthusiasm should be made the most of. And after all, the final responsibility for any slackness that has crept in rests with the parson. He has too often forgotten, and allowed them to forget, that they are members of the congregation, sitting together in a special part of the church for convenience' sake, and not in order that they may indulge in casual behaviour that they would be ashamed of if they sat in the nave.

(To be continued.)

A special service on Festival scale was held in Lincoln Cathedral on December 2 under the conductorship of Dr. G. J. Bennett. Spohr's 'The Last Judgment,' Mozart's 'Dies Iræ,' and Mendelssohn's 'Sleepers, wake' were performed by the Lincoln Musical Society's choir of 200 voices, the Lincoln Cathedral Choir, and an orchestra of fifty (including two musicians from Belgium). The soprano solos were taken by Miss Gladys Moger, and the remaining solos by members of the Cathedral Choir. Prior to the service the orchestra played the 'Adagio espressivo' in C minor from Schumann's second Symphony. The Cathedral was packed to overflowing, and a collection realised £62, all of which goes to the Prince of Wales's Fund.

Choir Festival services were held at the Halifax Place Chapel, Nottingham, on November 15, when Sullivan's 'Prodigal Son' was given under the direction of Mr. E. M. Barber. Mr. C. E. Blyton Dobson presided at the organ.

Mr. Herbert Schartau, senior Lay-Vicar of Westminster Abbey, has retired after thirty-six years' service. His colleagues recently presented him with a silver inkstand, suitably inscribed, as a token of their regard and esteem. We hope Mr. Schartau will live long to enjoy his well-earned period of rest.

On December 4 Sir Frederick Bridge gave an organ recital at Westminster Abbey in aid of the Belgian Funds. His programme included Silas's Elegy 'In Memoriam,' on a theme of the chimes of Malines Cathedral.

Bach's 'Christmas Oratorio' was performed at St. Anne's Church, Soho, on December 11, with the distinction that always characterizes the work of Dr. E. H. Thorne.

ORGAN RECITALS.

Mr. Herbert Hodge, St. Stephen's, Walbrook—Fantasy-Prelude, Charles Macpherson.
Mr. Harvey Grace, St. Mary Magdalene's, Munster Square—Prelude on the hymn-tune 'St. Mary,' Charles Wood.
Mr. G. Virgil Dawson, Abbeydale P. M. Church, Sheffield—Movements from first Sonata da Camera, Peace.
Mr. W. Anderson, Mayfield Parish Church, Edinburgh—Concert Fantasia in D minor, Sir R. P. Stewart.
Mr. Claude A. Forster, St. John's Church, Forfar—Overture in F minor, Morandi.
Dr. James Lyon, Wallasey Parish Church—The Pilgrim's Progress, Ernest Austin.
Dr. Caradog Roberts, Welsh C. M. Chapel, Waterloo, Liverpool—Funeral March and Hymn of Seraphs, Guilmant.
Mr. Ernest J. Turner, Wesleyan Methodist Church, Leamington Spa—Sonata No. 1, Guilmant.
Mr. William H. Dawes, Nazeing Parish Church—March in B flat, Ferris Tozer.
Mr. H. Goss-Custard, St. Saviour's Church, Ealing—Sixth Sonata, Mendelssohn.
Dr. A. H. Mann, Peterborough Cathedral—Fourth Sonata, Mendelssohn.
Mr. C. E. Blyton Dobson, Central Mission, Nottingham—Concert Fantasia, Jackson.
Mr. W. Henry Maxfield, St. John the Evangelist's, Altrincham—Benediction Nuptiale, Hollins.
Mr. Albert Orton, Walton Parish Church, Liverpool—Fourth Sonata, Mendelssohn.
Mr. Paul Rochard, St. Peter's Church, Loughborough—Spring Song, Alfred Hollins.
Rev. A. J. Clark, St. Leonard's Church, Sandridge—Choral Prelude, Stanford.
Mr. Harold M. Dawber, St. George's Church, Heavily, Stockport—Cradle Song and Angel Chorus, Bellerby.
Mr. Edward Bartlett, Arundel Parish Church—Sonata No. 2, J. Callaerts.
Mr. H. Egbert Lane, St. Catherine's, Feltham—Grand Chœur, No. 2, Hollins.
Dr. Orlando A. Mansfield, Wilson College, Chambersburg, Pennsylvania—Concert Overture in E flat, Faulkes.
Mr. J. A. Meale, Wesleyan Central Hall, Westminster—Concert Overture in C major and minor, H. A. Fricker.
Mr. William G. Parkyn, Railway Clerks' Association Meeting, Queen's Hall, London—Romance, Lemare.
Mr. S. H. Wéalé, Conisborough Parish Church—Canzonette, d'Ambrosio.
Dr. E. H. Thorne, St. Anne's, Soho—Toccata and Fugue in D minor, Bach (a Bach programme).
Mr. E. Stanley Jones, Parish Church, Maindee—Sixth Sonata, Mendelssohn.
Mr. Herbert F. Ellingford, St. George's Hall, Liverpool—Sonata in A, F. E. Gladstone.
Mr. W. A. Roberts, Peterborough Cathedral—Legend, Harvey Grace.
Mr. Arthur S. James, St. Peter's Church, Rickmansworth—Postlude in E flat, Lefébure-Wély.
Dr. Hamand, Malvern Priory Church—Fugue in F sharp minor, Liadov.
Mr. W. Cary Bliss, St. Magnus-the-Martyr, London Bridge—Legend, Harvey Grace.
Mr. Donald Edeson, Kidmore End Parish Church—Marche Triomphale, Alcock.
Mr. Sydney Townshend, St. Columba Church, Helensburgh—Fantasia on two English Melodies, Guilmant.
Mr. H. Edward Knott, Kington Parish Church—First Sonata da Camera, Peace.
Mr. G. Bernard Gilbert, Town Hall, Stratford—Funeral March and Hymn of Seraphs, Guilmant.

APPOINTMENTS.

Mr. Greenhouse Allt, organist and choirmaster, St. John the Evangelist's, Edinburgh.
Mr. J. W. Barron, organist and choirmaster, St. Peter's, South Tottenham.
Mr. H. E. Carter, organist and choirmaster, St. Clement's Church, Ipswich.

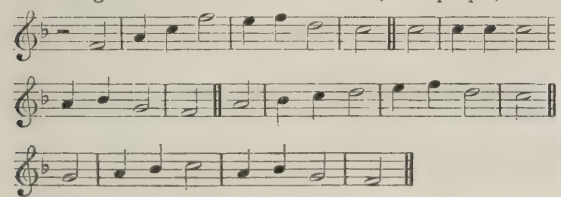
THE ADVENTURES OF A LONG-METRE TUNE.

The article under this title that appeared in our August number has excited considerable interest. We regret that until now the pressure on our space has prevented the insertion of any of the numerous communications received.

Mr. W. COWAN, of Edinburgh, writes:

As supplementing the article in the August Musical Times, entitled 'The adventures of a long-metre tune,' the following additional particulars as to the transmogrifications of the tune and the books in which it has appeared may be of interest. Doubtless the list of books containing the tune might be greatly enlarged, for my references are confined to those books to which at the moment I happen to have ready access.

The date of the earliest appearance of the tune is still uncertain, for it appears in Holdroyd's 'Spiritual man's companion,' third edition, 1733, and may therefore have been in either or both of the two earlier editions of that work, copies of which I have as yet been unable to find. Holdroyd's version of the melody is as follows, the words set to it being those of the Hundredth Psalm, 'All people,' &c.:



This form of melody is found in the following books, but in most of them the final minim of each line is altered to a semibreve, and a minim rest is inserted after the double bar:

A. Milner's 'Psalm-singer's companion,' c. 1750.
Moore's 'Psalm-singer's companion,' Glasgow, 1762.
J. Hewitt's Collection, 1765.
Williams's 'Universal Psalmodist,' 1770.
Knibb's 'Psalm-singer's help,' c. 1775.
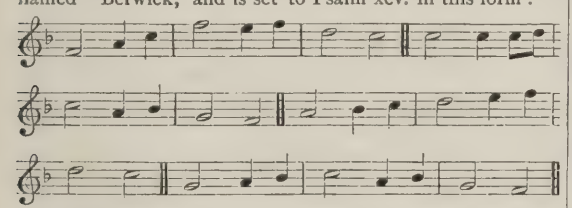
Gilmour's Collection, Paisley, 1793.
Hamilton's 'Psalmist's sure Guide,' Edinburgh, c. 1810.

In the fifth edition of Holdroyd's work, 1753, the tune is named 'Berwick,' and is set to Psalm xcv. in this form:



It will be noticed that the rhythm here closely resembles that in Matthew Wilkins's version. The only other book in which I have found this form is a collection published by James Thomson, Edinburgh, in 1793. Here also it bears the name 'Berwick.'

The form of the melody quoted by Mr. Potter from 'Essex harmony' appears in C. Ashworth's Collection, 1766, and also in the following:

S. Addington's Collection, c. 1780.
Smith and Major's Collection, c. 1790.
Brown's 'The Precentor,' Glasgow, 1799.
'Harmonia Sacra,' Glasgow, 1814.
Robertson's Selection, Glasgow, 1827.
Steven's Selection, Glasgow, c. 1827.
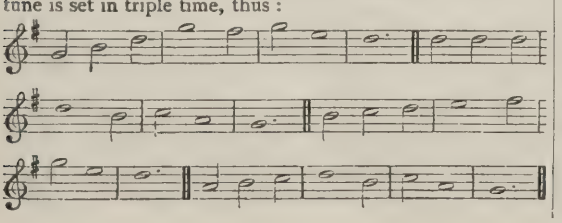
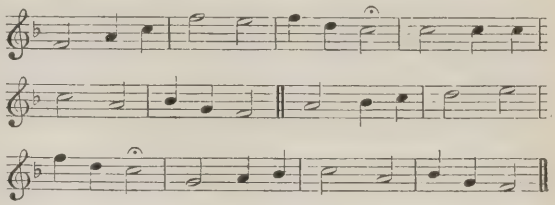
Duncan's 'The Choir,' Glasgow, 1828.

In Harrison's 'Sacred Harmony,' published in 1784, the tune is set in triple time, thus:



This form is also adopted in Clarke's 'Parochial Harmony,' Glasgow, 1831, but without the syncopations in the third bar of each line.

About 1795 a collection of tunes was issued by the Rev. Dr. Rippon, which had much popularity, and went through several editions. In this collection the tune appears thus:



This form is adopted in the following:

Green's 'The clerk's companion,' c. 1820.
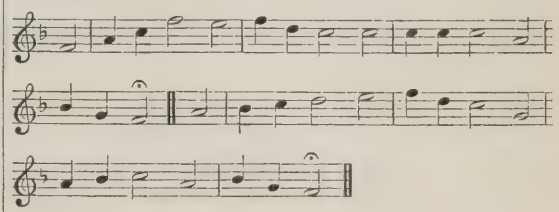
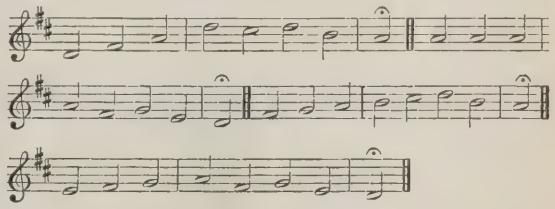
'Psalmo-Doxologia,' 1823.
'The Psalmist,' edited by V. Novello, 1835.
'Companion to the Wesleyan hymn book,' 1846.
'Wesleyan Hymn Tune Book,' 1859.

In Alexander Hume's 'British Psalmody,' Edinburgh, 1844, the tune is again put into triple time, but in the following form:

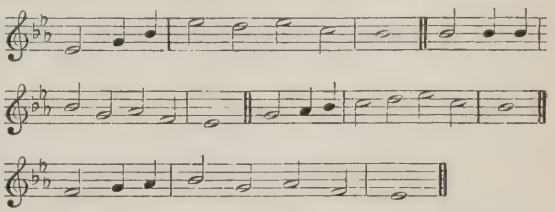


This version appears also in 'Scottish Psalmody,' 1866.

In Gauntlett's 'Comprehensive Tune Book,' 1846, the melody is reduced to equal notes, thus:



Finally, in 'Havergal's Psalmody,' edited by Miss Havergal in 1871, the tune appears as follows with the superscription 'Har. by W. H. H., 1860':



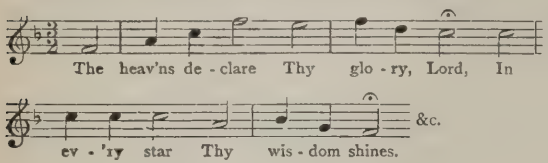
From these notes it will be seen that Mr. Potter is not correct in his conclusion that 'the tune was seldom republished.' Probably fuller investigation would show that the tune is contained in the majority of the books published during the century following its first appearance. It is certainly remarkable that from first to last this tune should have been classed as an iambic long metre, thus doing violence to its rhythm and accentuation. Such incongruous adaptations are, however, not uncommon in the old books of psalmody: and numerous instances might be given in which it seems to have been thought sufficient that the number of notes in the tune should somehow fit the number of syllables in the line, without any regard being paid to the matter of rhythm and accent.

Mr. J. ALLANSON BENSON writes:

In the interesting article on 'The adventures of a long-metre tune,' the writer does not seem to know that the tune under consideration was a fairly-popular one for a long period; and under the name of 'Wells,' and in the form given by Bayley, was included in the collections of Milner (1751), Addington (1787), Rippon (1791), and others. Even in such late collections as those of Warren (1850) and Novello (1851) it appears. (In 'The Psalmist' Novello reharmonizes it and re-bars it.) Harrison (1784) gives it in triple time.

[See above in Mr. Cowan's quotation from Harrison. But Mr. Benson gives it in key F.—ED., M.T.]

The barring of these old tunes cannot be relied on to show the position of the accent. Doubtless this was sung:



if the singers ever troubled about the true rhythm, which I am sure the authors of the hymns did not. When I first saw the tune in Wilkins, I thought I recognized it as a song by one of our early composers, but I have never made any attempt to trace it.

Mr. J. W. EMBURY writes:

Mr. G. W. J. Potter, in his interesting article on 'The adventures of a long-metre tune,' suggests that 'some readers . . . will be able to supply details of an earlier appearance' of the tune in question, which he traces back no further than the beginning of the 18th century. We can find a very much earlier appearance. The tune is simply the Fifth Gregorian Tone, with the extended mediation which is found in the modern 'Parisian Tone.' It would be interesting to know if the 'Parisian Tone' were taken from the 'Long-Metre Tune' or the Tune from the Tone.

Dr. W. H. GRATTAN FLOOD writes:

Mr. G. W. J. Potter's article on the above leaves three important matters unsolved, namely: (a) Who composed the tune? (b) When did it first appear? and (c) When was the name 'Wells' assigned to it? Let me premise that 'Wells' is to be found in the official Methodist Hymn Book, as revised in 1875, and published by the Wesleyan Conference in 1877. Mr. Potter gives us the Hymn Book of Matthew Wilkins, c. 1730 (? 1725), as the earliest appearance of the tune, and he also gives 'The Essex Harmony' of 1785 as the first appearance of the name 'Wells' assigned to it.

(a) As to the composer of the tune, I have been informed by one of the most eminent of hymnologists that it was written by Israel Holdroyd, about the year 1705, and was published by him in a remarkable work entitled 'The Spiritual Man's Companion, containing great variety of Chants and Anthems, and also Tunes fitted to all the different Measures of the Psalms, which may be sung in One, Two, Three or Four Parts.' This quarto volume was issued about the year 1722 by William Pearson for William Dyson. A second edition of this work appeared in 1725, followed by a third in 1733, and a fourth in 1746. Scant biographical details are forthcoming as to Israel Holdroyd, but he flourished in the first half of the 18th century. He described himself as 'Philo-Musicae,' and he apparently died in 1753 after the issue of the fifth edition of his work. His tune 'St. Nicholas' is still sung, and is included in the 'Church Hymnary.'

(b) The earliest appearance of the tune was naturally in the composer's own volume, and it subsequently was reprinted in Matthew Wilkins's Book of Psalmody in 1725, as stated by Mr. Potter.

(c) The name 'Wells' is said to have been given to it in 1745, but personally I have not met with it earlier than in a rare little volume in my own collection of hymn books, which may be dated as 1750. This work is 'A Collection of Tunes in three Parts . . . by Thomas Knibb.' The date of this work is uncertain, although in the Catalogue of the British Museum it is given as '1745?' Possibly, as Warrington writes me, the work was not issued till 1755; but even so, it is thirty years earlier than the work quoted by Mr. Potter, namely, 'The Essex Harmony,' containing 'a variety of plain and fugeing [sic] Psalm and Hymn Tunes,' in 1785.

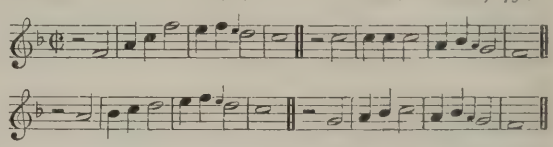
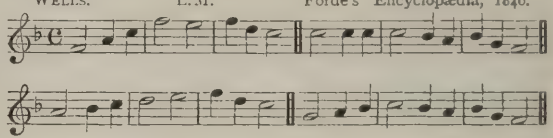
I herewith give the setting of 'Wells' as found in Thomas Knibb's collection, c. 1750, where the melody is assigned to the tenor part:

'WELLS.' L.M. Knibb's Collection, 1750.



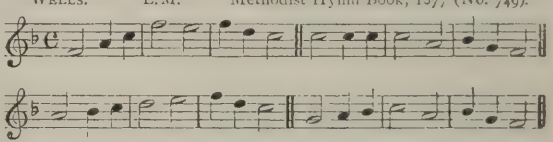
The following is a setting from a MS. book of the year 1835, which is reprinted almost exactly in Forde's 'Encyclopædia of Melody' in 1846, but in the key of G, instead of F:

'WELLS.' L.M. Forde's 'Encyclopædia,' 1846.



Finally, here is the setting of the melody as found in the official Methodist Hymn Book of 1877, but it is the selfsame as that printed by Mr. Cowan from Rippon's 'Selection,' 1791:

'WELLS.' L.M. Methodist Hymn Book, 1877 (No. 749).



Head of Thy Church, Whose Spirit fills
And flows through every faithful soul,
Unites in mystic love, and seals
Them one, and sanctifies the whole.

Reviews.

Two fanciful Pieces for Organ: (1.) The Starling; (2.) A colloquy. By Francis Edward Gladstone.

Voluntary on the Russian National Anthem. For organ. By James T. Pye. (Original Compositions for the Organ, No. 446.)

Romanza. By Alfred Hollins. Original Compositions for the Organ (New Series), No. 35.

Short Preludes for the Organ. Books IV., V. and VI. [Novello & Co., Ltd.]

Dr. Gladstone has taken for the motive of the first of his little pieces the actual song heard from a starling, and has treated it neatly in fugato style. The 'Colloquy' is, as its title suggests, a song without words, in which a soprano and tenor hold melodious discussion.

Organists desirous of making use of the Russian National Anthem for voluntary or recital purposes will find Mr. Pye's arrangement useful. The hymn is treated first quietly, with the air played by a solo stop, and after a few bars of connecting matter, repeated on the full organ with a florid pedal bass.

This Romanza is in the typical Hollins vein, with a pleasant theme, a well-contrasted second subject in the tonic minor, with the two deftly combined by way of close. The piece is not difficult, save for some awkward cross-rhythms on page 6, at which point an easier alternative is thoughtfully provided by the composer.

The 'Short Preludes' in the above collections are intended for use as Voluntaries before divine service, especially under circumstances where the time for such music is limited. Each book contains ten pieces, among the composers being Alfred Hollins, C. H. Lloyd, Percy E. Fletcher, and J. Lemmens. The music is printed on three staves, and is in no case of more than a moderate degree of difficulty. The pieces, besides being admirable for preludial purposes, would be 'grateful and comforting' to many young organ students.

Recollections of a Violinist. By William Michael Quirke. [William Dawson & Sons, Ltd.]

To residents of Brighton, Mr. W. M. Quirke needs no introduction, as he has been honourably connected with the musical life of that city for over forty years. His book—running to 144 closely-printed pages—is packed full of good things. The pen-portrait of Wagner, as he rehearsed the 'Rheingold' at St. James's Hall in May, 1877, is admirable. Several of the second violins pretended to wring water from the tails of their frock-coats, as the result of the extended arpeggi to represent the descriptive music of the Rhine in the opening movement. Suffice it to add that Wagner ceded the baton to Richter. But this is only one item of most interesting anecdotage, told in a pleasant colloquial style. Mr. Quirke tells some capital yarns regarding scenes he witnessed in his native county of Tipperary. The book, which has as a frontispiece a photograph of the genial violinist, can be cordially recommended.

The Dream of Gerontius (miniature full score). By Edward Elgar.

[Novello & Co., Ltd.]

The variety, skill, and inexhaustible beauty of Elgar's orchestration in 'The dream of Gerontius' have long been known and admired. The publication of a full score at a price within the reach of a student's purse will do good service in bringing so splendid a model within the reach of the many.

Let all the world in every corner sing. Anthem by John Pullein.

[Sidney Riorden.]

Mr. Pullein's setting of George Herbert's well-known lines is appropriately vigorous, and would be an excellent musical feature at a festival. While the music is mainly diatonic, it is modern in style. The anthem is short, and moderately difficult.

Autumn leaves. White heather. For pianoforte. By F. Alford Armstrong.

Spring song. By Alfred Hollins. Arranged for pianoforte by H. A. Chambers.

[Novello & Co., Ltd.]

Mr. Armstrong's pieces are both pretty and musicianly. 'Autumn leaves' has the more to commend it, on account of its individuality and a style that grows out of pianoforte technique. 'White heather' is a graceful waltz. Both pieces are neat in design and detail.

Mr. Hollins's well-known 'Spring song' for organ makes very suitable music for the pianoforte. The piece is a characteristic example of the composer's facility in melody and modulation.

There is a green hill far away. By Charles Gounod. Arranged as an anthem with organ accompaniment by John E. West.

[Novello & Co., Ltd.]

Gounod's famous song lends itself admirably to an arrangement of this kind. Mr. West gives the first three stanzas and a part of the fifth to soprano solo, the remainder being delivered in four-part harmony by the choir.

BOOKS RECEIVED.

A Course in Music. By R. T. White. Pp. 187 + vii. Price 4*s.* 6*d.* net. (Cambridge: At the University Press.)

Trouvères and Troubadours. By Pierre Aubrey. Translated from the second French edition by Claude Aveling. Pp. 174 + vi. Price 4*s.* net. (New York and London: G. Schirmer.)

Library of Congress. 'The Star-spangled Banner,' with 25 plates. By Oscar George Theodore Sonneck. Pp. 115. (Washington: Government Printing Office.)

An Open Door for Singers. By R. L. Herman. Pp. xi. + 231. Price 4*s.* net. (London: G. Schirmer.)

Letters from and to Joseph Joachim. Selected and translated by Nora Bickley; with a Preface by J. A. Fuller-Maitland. Pp. 464 + x. Price 12*s.* 6*d.* net. (London: Macmillan & Co., Ltd.)

Correspondence.

THE INTERNATIONAL MUSICAL SOCIETY.

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

SIR,—The following paragraph appeared in the columns of a recent issue of one of your contemporaries: 'The War will break up the International Musical Society. It was never a strong body. The president of the German branch has resigned.' The paragraph is here quoted entire, and there is no context. As I have been the general secretary of the Society for the last six years, and still occupy that position, I beg permission to make a reply in your journal.

The fatidical statement made at the beginning is at least a rash one. Given health and strength on the part of various persons (myself included), the Society will most certainly not be allowed to perish through the War. On the contrary, its chief officers regard the excellent international principle which is its basis, along with the existing organization and machinery, as held in trust by them, to be applied to the best advantage in accordance with the course of public events; and they confidently anticipate that the Society will emerge from the present world-trouble purged, as by fire, of some of its defects.

It is not generally realised in this country to what an extent the International Musical Society is constitutionally independent of what are at the present date to England enemy-countries. The Society is divided into seventeen 'national sections,' corresponding to as many national areas; of these, eleven are outside the said enemy-countries (the United Kingdom, with Colonies, forming one out of the eleven), and only seven are inside the said enemy-countries. The finally-responsible governing body consists of seventeen principal personages, one in each of the national sections; consequently eleven of these are outside and only seven are inside the said enemy-countries, giving a vote to the former of nearly two to one as regards the latter. The governing body elects biennially a central executive of three persons; of these, at the present date, the general president is French, the general secretary is English, and the general treasurer only is German. Of the members, about three-fifths are outside and about two-fifths are inside the enemy-countries.

Under such a constitution, the common-sense policy for national sections separated by the War is for them to pursue the sectional activities (if any) which they deem desirable during the War, and combine again in joint action afterwards. For this purpose, as above said, the central executive is fully determined to keep open the cadre of the Society. By a curious coincidence, a business contract which has bound the Society for a term of years came to an end on September 30, 1914, the ground being thus left clear for new business arrangements.

As regards the statement that the Society 'was never a strong body,' adjectives are unarguable. In dubiis libertas. Nevertheless, weakness is the last attribute which I should have thought could be fairly ascribed to this Society, whatever else might be said of it. I beg to enter a reply to the statement under three heads—General aims, Publications, Congresses. (a) It was certainly no sign of weakness to establish fifteen years ago an organization, then without the least precedent and up till now unique, whereby musicians of almost every civilised country have been brought together under a single banner. If the widely-laid foundations have not yet been fully built upon, that is the most that can be said in derogation of the scheme; and the scheme remains an excellently-thought-out one, doing credit to its founder. (b) Owing to a cumulative defect of editorial organization, of which the Central Executive is quite conscious, and which it means to take the first opportunity to mend, the Society's polyglot publications have gradually tended to become too narrow in their purview. But accepting that purview for what it is, the publications have, I believe, been recognized as the best in existence of their kind. (c) In respect of its Congresses, the Society can surely boast success without fear of detraction. It has held five Congresses in five countries: at Leipsic, Basle, Vienna, London, and Paris. With the growth of the Society the last three have been the most notable. Each Congress has had its own particular merit, but the charge of the Society 'never having been a strong body' comes with a specially bad grace from this country, considering the character of the London Congress of 1911. Assuredly nowhere, and on no occasion, have musicians met with such open-hearted, widely-spread, and thoroughly successful hospitality as was given here to representatives of all countries. We may really hold that there was 'the courteous host and all-approving guest.' The City vied with the West End. The Government for the first time in history entertained musicians to a quasi-banquet in the House of Commons, a member of the Cabinet presiding. The éclat of the Congress was such that 222 new members then and there joined the Society, of whom nearly all have been retained. The life and soul of the London Congress was that extremely able administrator and very lovable personage, Alfred Henry Littleton, whose death we are now deploring.

As regards the statement that 'the president of the German branch has resigned,' all that is known here is as follows: Prof. Hermann Kretzschmar, Director of the Berlin Royal High School of Music, was general president of the Society for two biennial periods from 1904 to 1908; and has been till now president of the North-German National Section (the other four such within the German Empire being Baden, Bavaria, Saxony, and South-West Germany). At a Paris Congress meeting of the governing body held on June 3, 1914, Prof. Kretzschmar was nominated to be general president for two years from October 1, 1914. He accepted the nomination on July 15, 1914. Nothing remained to complete that transaction except a formal written vote by the entire governing body. At the Paris Congress it was also decided to hold the next Congress at Berlin in 1916. On August 4, 1914, war was declared between England and Germany. On September 5, 1914, a 'Copenhagen despatch' contained a paragraph regarding the Society (reproduced in Musical America of October 10, 1914), which included the remark that 'Prof. Kretzschmar and other officials have resigned, and have appealed to German musicians to form a Society exclusively for themselves.' At the end of September, 1914, the Society's Monthly Journal for September was issued at Leipsic, omitting from the wrapper the usual list of national sections and local branches; this may have been due either to Press-censorship or to the action above alleged. Nothing further is known. Comment does not seem desirable on facts so imperfectly ascertained. But it may perhaps be pointed out, first, that all German professors are Government officials; and, secondly, that it is more consonant with the German than with the English character to yield to the emotions on such occasions. These secessions, made as early as the month of August, seem at any rate to have been of a precipitate nature.

May I state, in conclusion, that as regards members in this country they are not being asked for subscriptions from October 1, 1914, or until there is some valid quid pro quo to offer to them. But they are invited to retain their membership, relying on the assurance already mentioned in this letter, that the responsible officers are keeping open the cadre of the Society, and decidedly mean to maintain it in existence, especially with a view to its international characteristics.—Yours faithfully,

Charles Maclean.

November 23, 1914.

BEETHOVEN'S NATIONALITY.

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

Sir,—The present moment seems opportune for raising the question of what nationality was Beethoven, and I do so in the hope of eliciting an authoritative pronouncement.

Undoubtedly the general impression is that Ludwig van (sometimes wrongly written 'von') Beethoven was a German, who was born at Bonn (in 1770) and died at Vienna (in 1827). It will suffice to give an example of this. In the epilogue of the late Emil Reich's 'Germany's swelled head' (1914 edition, at p. 172), is written, 'Of course, no one denies that the world is heavily indebted to the race which has produced Leibnitz, Bach, Lessing, Kant, Niebuhr, Savigny, Goethe, Schiller, Beethoven,' &c. (Kant, by the way, believed himself to be of Scotch antecedents.) Should Beethoven's name be included in this list? Is he one of the builders-up of German 'Kultur'?

In Sir C. Villiers Stanford's recently-published book, 'Pages from an unwritten diary,' Beethoven is thus referred to (at p. 56): '. . . . the immortal Netherlander, wrongly termed a German from the accident of his birth in the Rhineland. (He was no more German than César Franck was French.)'

In a 'Biographical dictionary of musicians' (1900, compiled and edited by Theodore Baker, Ph.D.) we read of Beethoven that 'his grandfather, Ludwig van B., a native of Maestricht, was bass singer, opera-composer, and Kapellur at Bonn to the Elector Clemens August. B.'s father, Johann van B., was a tenor singer in the Electoral Choir: he married Maria Magdalena Laym (née Keverich), the widow of the chief cook at Ehrenbreitstein; and Ludwig was the second child born to them.'

By way of comment on this quotation from Baker's 'Dictionary,' it should be pointed out that according to the article on Beethoven in 'Grove,' vol. i. (1904), the father's name was Johann or Jean, that the mother was the daughter (not widow) of the chief cook, and was at the time of her marriage to Johann van Beethoven a widow by name Leym or Laym.

The 'Grove' article is headed 'Beethoven, Ludwig van,' and to the word 'van' there is the following footnote: 'Van in Dutch is not, like von or de, a sign of nobility. On the attempts to assign a Dutch origin to the composer, see a Lettre à M. le Bourgmestre de Bonn, contenant les prénoms de l'origine hollandaise de L. v. Beethoven, Amsterdam, 1837.'

Is not the inference from this footnote that the writer thinks such attempts have been unsuccessful?

In the body of the article it is said that 'the family belonged originally to a village near Louvain; thence in 1650 they moved to Antwerp, where in 1680 the name appears in the registers.'

Was, then, Beethoven of Dutch or Flemish ancestry; and was he of German origin on his mother's side only?—Yours faithfully,

T. Francis Howell.

22, Stafford Terrace,
Kensington, W.,
December 7, 1914.

[A discussion in the Birmingham Daily Post on the above point has been one of the minor alleviations of life during last month. The question is, Whence does a man derive his national label: from his father, his grandfathers, his mother, his grandmothers, the place where he happens to be born, his artistic environment, or the country of his adoption? The chief hereditary character of Beethoven was Flemish, and all else was what we now label German. But even so, it is a moot point whether Beethoven created German music or German music created Beethoven.—Ed., M. T.]

MR. NEWMAN ON FORM AND COMPOSITION.

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.

Sir,—The hardy individual who sets out to comment on any of Mr. Newman's articles is generally made to look excessively foolish before that gentleman has finished with him. Nevertheless, he serves a useful function. I have read the letters which have appeared on the above subject in the last two numbers of the Musical Times with the eagerness with which I always devour Mr. Newman's contributions. Whilst keenly appreciating and agreeing with the whole of his second letter and most of the first, I should like to make some remarks on his sad experiences as a student of harmony at the hands of the professors and their rules. An outsider may speak for his tutors with more freedom than a professional man. I understand that Mr. Newman finds the teaching of harmony largely a mumbling of formulas and a dogmatising over rules for which no justification is ever vouchsafed to the student. My own experience has been quite otherwise, and I should like to call your attention to the existence of at least one school at which very different methods have been in use.

Mr. Newman asks of the theorists and their rules, 'To what can they appeal in support of their own dogma?' Well, in our case the final court of appeal was always—through the works of the great masters—to the musical instinct of the student: and in all cases of condemned progressions, and so on, the student, on examination, could not but agree with the verdict. The exceptions to the rule were justified to us in precisely the same manner. May I give a simple example of what I mean? Bare consecutive fifths certainly sound objectionable in diatonic part-writing. Once admitted, the rule for their exclusion is reasonable. As for the exceptions, it was pointed out to us that whenever the progressions in the other parts became exciting attention was distracted from the fifths, they became unobjectionable, perhaps interesting, and we might use them with impunity. A few examples of this, and we were convinced we were in future our own judges regarding such rules, and rejoiced in our freedom. This is but a simple example, but the guiding principle was the same throughout. 'Rules' which did not at once carry conviction in this way were never dreamt of for a moment. Rules of another kind, less binding in character, were given us, and readily justified on the ground of expediency. Such rules as those for answering a fugue subject 'correctly,' if I may quote an example outside the subject of harmony strictly speaking, were of this nature. They might be disregarded at will, but the wary student knew that if he did so he was quite likely to land in a situation from which he might find it very difficult to extricate himself without leaving the listener with an impression of imperfect workmanship. If, as I believe, there are many earnest young musicians who have ideas much the same as these, and who are on the best of terms with their tutors and text-books, they will have read with some amazement Mr. Newman's description of a 'petty tyrant' to be kicked 'ignominiously out of the house'!

The school to which I refer is in a Northern University. I studied there only as an amateur, and am not entitled to defend its teaching methods in any way, so I shall not name it. I only hope there are more like it, and that the teaching of harmony is, on the whole, in not quite such a bad way as Mr. Newman would have us believe.—I am, Yours, &c.,

E. O. TURNER.

December 8, 1914.

MARCHING TUNES.

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

SIR,—I should like to ask if the music is on sale, or procurable, of the following old Irish marching tunes, which an esteemed correspondent of your contemporary 'Notes and Queries' enumerates in a communication referring to the very limited number of inspiriting airs for recruiting: 'The girl I left behind me,' 'The peeler and the goat,' 'Maureen from Gibberland,' 'We'll give them the shillelagh,' 'The plant that grows in Paddy's land,' 'Billy O'Rourke,' 'The Fox,' 'Modireen a rhu ra,' 'The Connaught man's rambles,' 'The little home under the hill,' 'The top of Cork Road,' 'The rakes of Mallow,' 'Garry Owen na glory,' 'The young May moon.'

Your obedient servant,

J. LANDFEAR LUCAS
(Spectacle Makers' Company).

Glendora, Hindhead, Surrey.

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

SIR,—In the course of his article in your issue for October Mr. Ernest Newman says: 'The only really national song—i.e., a song that has really come from the people, not from the accredited composers of the race—that is worth the paper it is written on is "La Marseillaise."'

I am, however, forced to disagree with Mr. Newman in the above statement, for I really believe that the Welsh nation has at least two national songs comparable with 'La Marseillaise' in all respects. These are respectively 'Rhyvelgyrch Cabden Margan' (Captain Morgan's March) and 'Rhyvelgyrch Gwyr Harlech' (The March of the Men of Harlech), and both, it may be emphasised, came literally from the people. I am thoroughly of opinion that no other nation throughout the entire universe has finer national songs or possessing such martial rhythmical qualities.

To prove that these national songs of Wales came 'from the people,' and not 'from the accredited composers of the race,' it is necessary for us to investigate the history of their birth.

In the year 1294 formidable insurrections took place throughout Wales, in consequence of the taxes levied by King Edward I. These risings occurred under several provincial leaders. Morgan, a chieftain in Morgannwg (Glamorgan), who was at the head of the oppressed Cymry in that district, drove out the Earl of Gloucester, and it is said regained possession of the territory of which the earl's predecessors had formerly deprived his ancestors. It was during this period of hostility that 'Rhyvelgyrch Cabden Morgan' was composed, and selected by Morgan to animate the march of his followers.

Again, in the reign of Edward IV., when Harlech Castle was besieged by the Earl of Pembroke on behalf of the English king, 'Rhyvelgyrch Gwyr Harlech' was composed, This particular national song has been recognized by some of the greatest men of the day as the greatest war-song in existence.—I am, yours truly,

HAYDN MATTHEWS.

University College, Cardiff.
October 2, 1914.

'The March of the Men of Harlech' is known to everybody, but as the stirring melody of 'Captain Morgan's March' is not so well known, we give it below.—[ED., M. T.]

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

SIR,—From my own experiences with my regiment I can readily confirm the truth of Mr. Newman's statements about the poorness and irrelevance of our marching-songs. We are a battalion of gentlemen, and yet our artistic capacities seem no more developed than those of the regular 'Tommy.' The popularity of certain songs varies with the 'mood' of the men, but amongst those which have been adopted with particular affection are such gems as 'Who were you with last night?' 'Hullo! Hullo! Who's your lady friend?' 'Oh, I do like to be beside the sea-side,' &c. I and a few others have tried to popularize Elgar's march-tune, best known as 'Land of hope and glory,' but so far our efforts have not met with conspicuous success.

The remainder of the article ('The artist and the people') shows Mr. Newman at his very best; in fact, the whole thing is one of the most brilliant contributions that he has given us. Nowhere is Mr. Newman so enlightening and I might say inspiring as when he is sifting the why and wherefore of things and digging deep into the realm of musical æsthetics. England's contribution to the list of first-class composers may not be very great, but she may pride herself on possessing in Mr. Newman one of the deepest and most cultured musical critics and æstheticians who have ever put pen to paper.—Yours, &c.,

ROBERT LORENZ.

14, Craven Hill, W.
October 11, 1914.

PSALM TUNES: THE MELODY IN THE TENOR.

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

SIR,—I am interested in your article 'The Compleat Organist,' for December, in which reference is made to the 'revival of some of the old settings of Psalm tunes with the melody in the tenor.'

I have recently been going through some scores of old Scottish Psalters, and re-arranging such old tunes in the modern way.

The arrangement with the melody in the tenor is the only proper way in men-communities—i.e., in monasteries, ecclesiastical colleges, &c., in which the higher voices (at least), if not all, take the melody, or plainsong theme—the harmonization accompaniment being provided by a small choir of men and boys, or organ, or both.

I have heard plainsong in Notre Dame, Paris, in this wise: the plainsong being sung by ecclesiastical students massed together before the altar.

What I wish to point out is that I think the arrangement is quite unsuitable where treble (women's or boys') voices are in the ascendant, as in our churches—i.e., if congregational worship is desired.

The old arrangement with a tenor as precentor taking the melody lingered on in Scotland, judging by the Psalters, till 1860 or later.

Nowadays treble voices in choirs are not content unless they, as well as the precentor, have the melody. No wonder the old arrangement fell through!

As the tenor arrangement is advocated also in the 'English Hymnal,' it seemed to be necessary to draw the above distinctions.—Yours, &c.,

HERBERT WESTERBY.

Obituary.

We regret to record the death, on December 15, of GIOVANNI SGAMBATI, an eminent Italian musician who, though little known to the public at large, especially in this country, helped by his own compositions and by his propagandist enthusiasm to influence the course of the world's music. He was born at Rome on May 28, 1843, appeared as an infant prodigy pianist, and developed into an interpretative artist of the front rank. The coming of Liszt to Rome led to a strong friendship between the two virtuosi. Sgambati became Liszt's pupil, and in 1869 accompanied him on a tour through Germany. His sympathies for German classical music deepened with the knowledge thus gained, and became a lifelong enthusiasm, which was strengthened by the personal influence of Wagner. On returning to Italy he became an apostle of the music of Beethoven and the great Germans, and by concert-giving he succeeded in awakening his countrymen to a much-needed appreciation of German art. As a composer, Sgambati won considerable renown, although he never achieved greatness. It was owing to Wagner's persuasion that Messrs. Schott published some of his songs and two Quintets. He wrote a Symphony in D (performed at the Crystal Palace in 1882), a Symphony in E, a Pianoforte concerto (played by himself at a London Philharmonic Concert in 1882), an 'Epitalamio Sinfonico' (given at a London Philharmonic Concert in 1891). His best-known work is a dignified 'Messa da Requiem,' written to commemorate the death of King Humbert. His works for pianoforte have earned wide attention for their distinction and grace.

We regret also to record the following deaths:

CHARLES SHERWOOD JEKYLL, on November 7. Born at Westminster, November 29, 1842, he became a chorister at Westminster Abbey, and afterwards organist of St. Paul's temporary Church, Kensington, and assistant-organist of Westminster Abbey (1860-75), organist of the Parish Church, Acton, 1860, St. George's, Hanover Square, 1861-77, and of the Chapels Royal, St. James's Palace and Whitehall, from 1876 until his retirement from the profession owing to ill-health in October, 1891. He wrote two morning and evening services (one for male voices), and many anthems, songs, and part-songs that obtained favour.

HUBERT CECIL BROMILOW, on November 17, at the age of twenty-nine. Trained by Sir George Power, he earned a high reputation as a baritone singer. He gave successful recitals in London, and joined Miss Marie Hall on three of her concert tours, one of which took them to India.

There are many to whom the death of E. CUTHBERT NUNN, which occurred on November 26, brings a keen sense of personal loss. As organist of St. John's Church, Leytonstone, for twenty-five years, as a teacher, and as an assiduous composer of church music and children's music he worked with whole-hearted and unaffected sincerity which, combined with the gentleness of his nature and his sterling ability, earned him the warm regard of a large circle of friends. He was a pupil of the Royal Academy of Music, where he gained the Lucas Prize and the Sterndale Bennett Scholarship. Conspicuous among his numerous compositions are the operettas of which he was author, composer, and producer. He died at the age of forty-six.

THE ROYAL PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.

The second concert of the season was given at Queen's Hall on November 24. The programme was as follows:

Concerto Grosso, for Strings, Pianoforte and Organ .. Handel
Pianoforte .. Miss MARGUERITE ELZY
Organist .. .. Mr. H. GOSS CUSTARD
Air (Tenor) .. 'God breaketh the battle' (from 'Judith') C. H. H. Parry
Orchestral pieces { 'The Dance at the Fair' .. / 'The walk to the Paradise Garden' } Delius
Chorus and Tenor Solo 'Fatherland' .. .. Arnold Bax
Te Deum .. .. Berlioz
Soloist: Mr. WALTER HYDE. The Hallé Choir from Manchester and Choirboys from the London College of Choristers.

Conductor: Mr. THOMAS BEECHAM.

Mr. Delius's pieces are from the opera 'A village Romeo and Juliet,' which was introduced to London by Mr. Beecham. The selection, although divorced from stage action, served very well to exhibit the composer's peculiar idiom and to convey the feeling that he has something interesting to say. Mr. Bax's work, which was first performed at Liverpool in 1911 under the direction of the late Mr. Harry Evans, contains some fine broad effects of the massive kind, but melodic interest is not its strong point.

Thanks are due to the Society for permitting us this opportunity of hearing Berlioz's 'Te Deum.' As we know, the composer thought something of the work, and it may be said that it has suffered undue neglect. It was composed in the years 1849-54, and was dedicated to the Prince Albert, and first performed at St. Eustache, Paris, on April 30, 1855. The 'Te Deum' calls for three choirs, one for S.T.B., another for C.T.B., another of children for S.C., and there are solos for a tenor voice. The choral writing is nearly always of the contrapuntal order, and it presents no particular technical difficulty. It is difficult to believe that Berlioz could have had any experience of children's voices, or he would not have written this part in their most ineffective registers. As a matter of fact, the third choir could only make its due effect when sung by mature contralto voices. Mr. Bates's celebrated boys had no chance to make themselves heard, or even felt. The opening sections of the work give plenty of opportunity for choral effect, and there are some striking climaxes, but it is the long last section, the 'Judex Crederis,' that reveals fully the dramatic power of the composer. The chief theme, which gradually acquires an almost terrible significance, is relentlessly iterated with imposing and thrilling effect, the orchestra pouring out a magnificent stream of sound. None of the possibilities of this number were missed by the choir, which in all it had to do showed first-rate training if not an exceptional sonority. The audience was a good one.

The choice of Tchaikovsky's fourth Symphony and Grieg's Pianoforte concerto for the concert on December 10 lent a popular interest to the programme, which was heightened by the presence of M. Savonov as conductor and Miss Katherine Goodson as pianist. Liadov's 'The enchanted lake' proved an attractive study in delicate tone-painting.

Give peace in our time, O Lord.

FULL ANTHEM FOR FOUR VOICES.

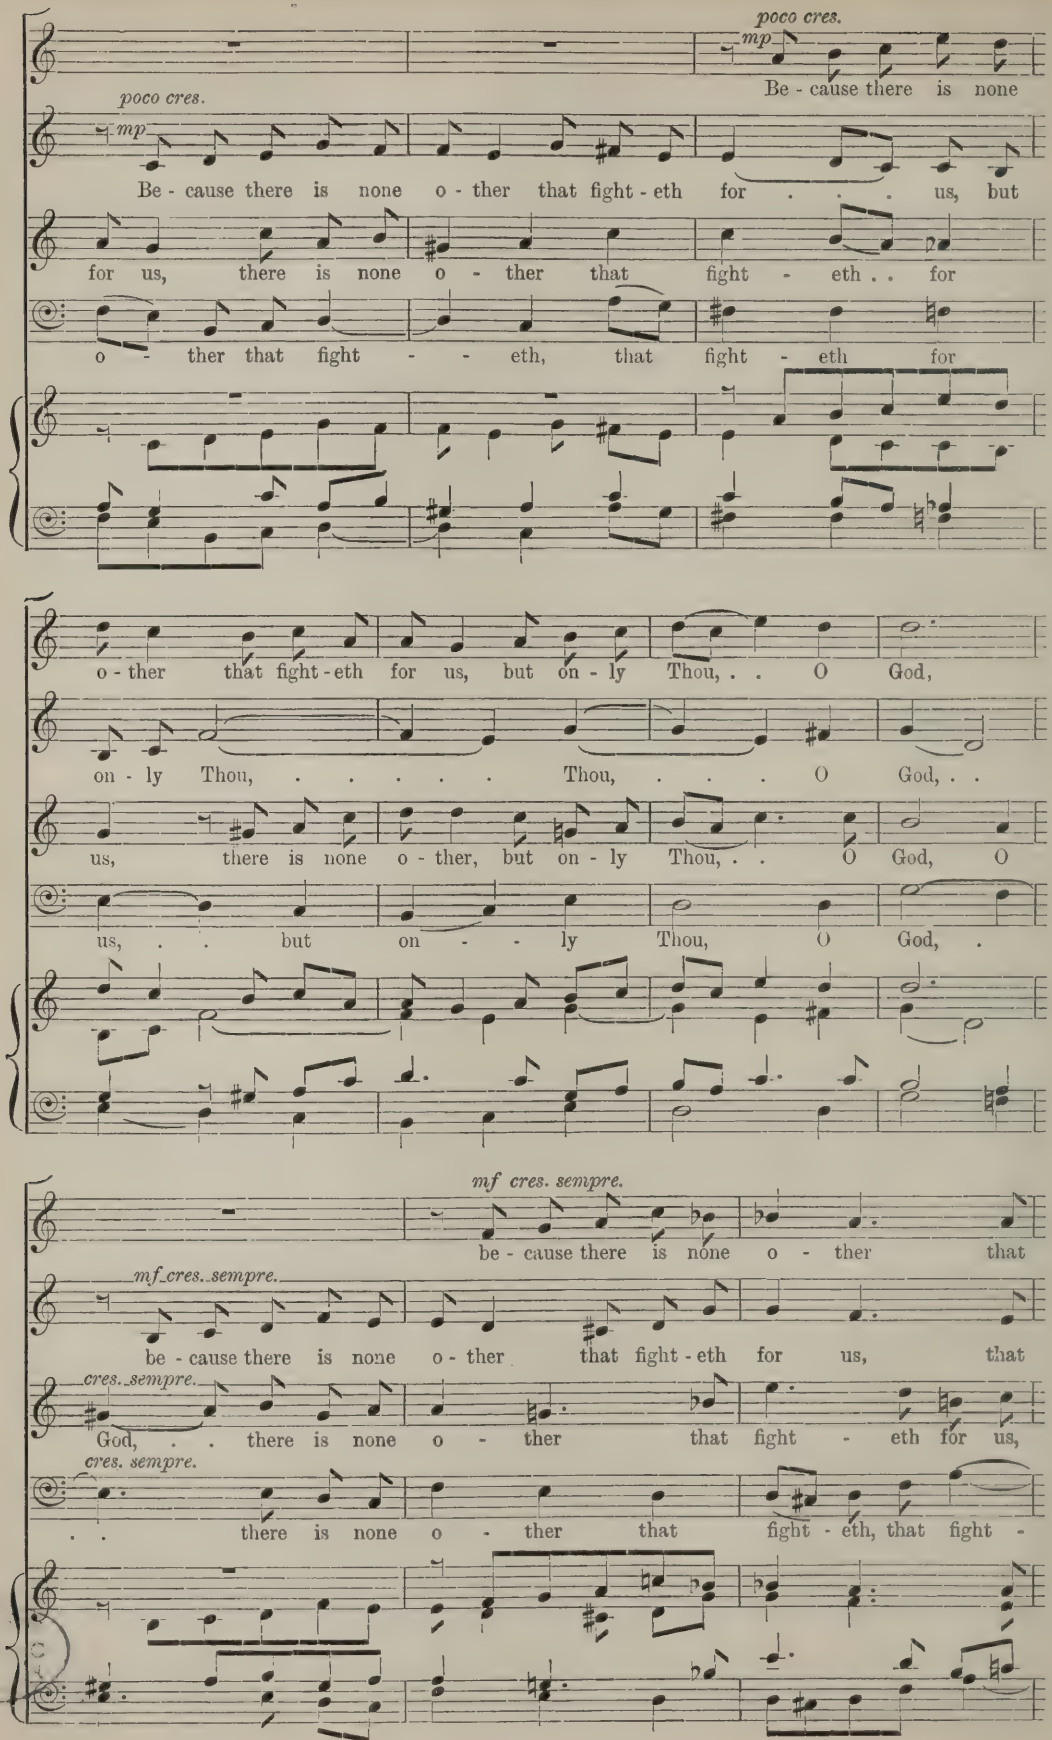
Composed by F. W. Wadely.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited; New York: THE H. W. GRAY CO., Sole Agents for the U.S.A.

Andante sostenuto.
Soprano
Give peace . . . in our time, O Lord, give peace . .
Alto.
Give peace . . . in our time, O Lord, give peace . .
Tenor.
Give peace . . . in our time, O Lord, give peace . .
Bass.
Give peace . . . in our time, O Lord, give peace . .
Andante sostenuto. ♩=60.
(For practice only.)
Poco più mosso.
. . . in our time, O Lord.
. . . in our time, O Lord.
poco cres.
. . . in our time, O Lord. Be-cause there is none o-ther that fight-eth
poco cres.
. . . in our time, O Lord. Be - cause . . . there is . . . . none
Poco più mosso. ♩=69.
poco cres.

Copyright, 1914, by Novello and Company, Limited.

BOSTON PUBLIC LIBRARY



poco cres.
mp
Be - cause there is none
poco cres.
mp
Be - cause there is none o - ther that fight - eth for . . . us, but for us, there is none o - ther that fight - eth . . for o - ther that fight - - - eth, that fight - eth for o - ther that fight - eth for us, but on - ly Thou, . . O God, on - ly Thou, ... Thou, . . . O God, . . us, there is none o - ther, but on - ly Thou, . . O God, O us, . . but on - - ly Thou, O God, .
mf cres. sempre.
be - cause there is none o - ther that
mf cres. sempre.
be - cause there is none o - ther that fight - eth for us, that cres. sempre.
God, . . there is none o - ther that fight - eth for us,
cres. sempre.
. . there is none o - ther that fight - eth, that fight - fight - eth for us, ... there is none fight - eth for us, be - cause there is none o - ther, none be - cause there is none o - ther that fight - - eth for

- - - eth for us, that fight - eth for o - ther that fight - eth for us, none o - ther that fight - eth o - ther that fight - - eth, none o - ther that fight - eth us, none o - ther that fight - eth for us, none us, ... that fight - eth for
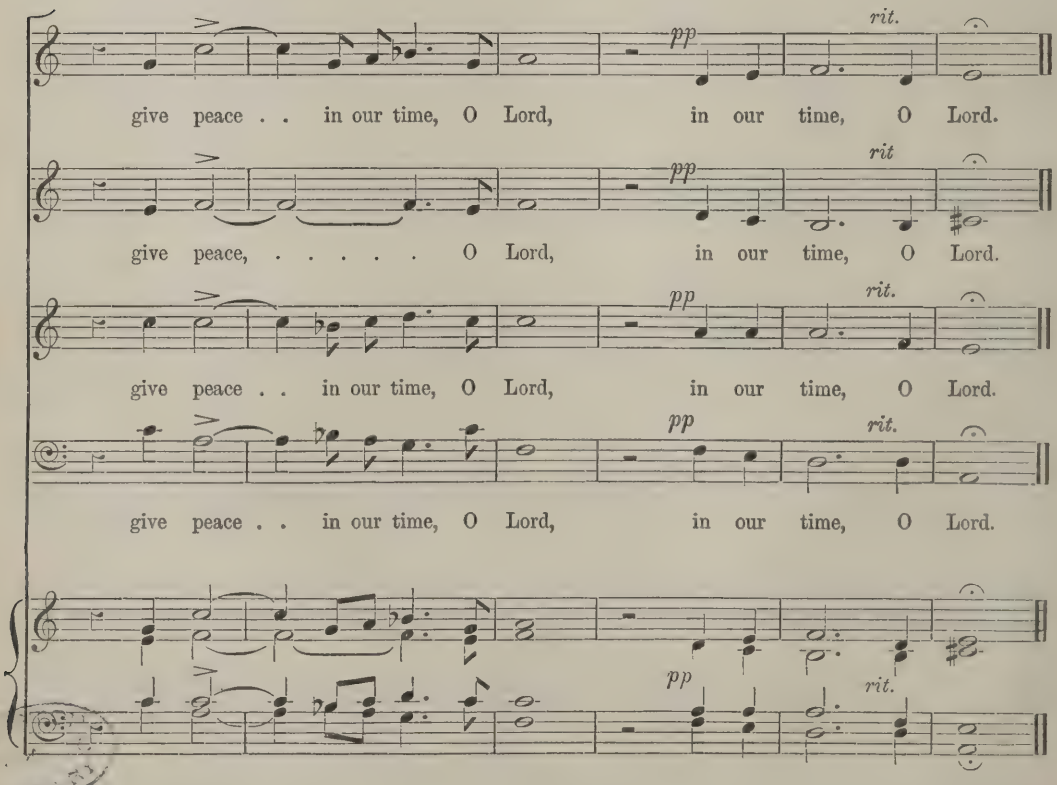
f dim.
for us, but on - ly Thou, . . O God, but on - ly Thou, . . O
f dim.
for us, but on - - ly Thou, but on - - ly
f dim.
o - ther, but on - ly Thou, but on - ly Thou, . . O God, but on - ly
f dim.
us, . . but on - ly Thou, O God, . . . on - - ly
f dim.

rit.
Tempo 1mo.
p
God, O God. Give peace . . in our time, O Lord,
Thou, O God. . . Give peace, ... O Lord,
Thou, O God. Give peace . . in our time, O Lord,
Thou, O God. Give peace . . in our time, O Lord,



pp
rit.
give peace . . in our time, O Lord, in our time, O Lord.
give peace, ... O Lord, in our time, O Lord.
give peace . . in our time, O Lord, in our time, O Lord.
give peace . . in our time, O Lord, in our time, O Lord.

ENGLISH AS IT SHOULD BE SUNG.

LECTURE BY MR. HERMAN KLEIN.

At the monthly meeting of the Tonic Sol-fa Association, held on December 9, Mr. Herman Klein delivered a lecture on 'English as it should be sung.'

Illustrations were given by two of his pupils, Miss Violet Essex and Mr. Laurence Brydall. The former was heard to great advantage in 'Hear ye, Israel,' 'Orpheus with his lute,' and 'Home, sweet home'; while Mr. Brydall gave with excellent emphasis, 'Revenge, Timotheus cries,' 'Thou art so like a flower' and 'The two Grenadiers' (Schumann), and 'The Vagabond' (Vaughan Williams).

Mr. Klein devoted the first part of his lecture to a careful analysis of vowel formation and the effect of speech upon tone and song. In this regard he referred to the experiences of his boyhood at Norwich, and the influences of the Norfolk dialect upon his own youthful tone-production. The English language abounded in broad sounds which were vocal in themselves. Nature had provided us with all the needed apparatus, and if we were only to sing upon the same natural principle that we spoke we should do one as well as we did the other. In the pronunciation of English one of the chief obstacles to be conquered was the delivery of diphthongs in their true proportion. Diphthongs required the first part of the sound to be prolonged and the concluding part shortened. Examples of this were given, and also the difference between the pronunciation of the Tonic Sol-fa syllables as given in the English and Italian manners. They had been invented because they were easy to sing and pronounce, but sung in the Italian manner they were far more pure than in the English. They should be repeated upon a single note as well as upon the notes of the scale, the note being carefully breathed and sustained and the syllables pronounced with very great distinctness.

People who wanted to sing well must sing naturally. The singer must apply the same rules to singing that he would observe in elocution. Thus, the same considerations would apply to a stanza of poetry as to the delivery of the Sol-fa syllables. The first verse of Gray's 'Elegy,' recited on a monotone, might be carefully practised as a study, every word being brought out with equal clearness, strength, and purity. It must be taken for granted that scientific breathing was an indispensable aid towards this, and that neither vowel formation nor enunciation could be properly effected with a stiff jaw. The essential point was that everything should be accomplished without effort. The lecturer gave many examples of words that required to be modified in singing in order to make them sound the same as when heard in speech. He pointed out the dangers of over-accentuation and a too literal sound or long vowel in final syllables, as for example in words like 'nature,' 'curtain,' 'fountain,' 'garden,' and so forth. The effect was disagreeable and bad if they were sung as 'naytewer,' 'curtayn,' 'gardenn,' &c. The English language was prolific in short vowels, and it was highly important to study how to pronounce them correctly and harmoniously.

The singer must command perfect mobility of the muscles of the face. The Americans cultivated this in chewing, but repressed it in singing. Their 'nasality,' however, was a help when they sang. American soprano voices on the average were astonishingly fine. The consonant v was often suggested only by its absence, and th was also often left out. That showed that in singing there was need for what to the singer appeared to be excess of enunciatory action.

Often the singer had to enunciate words with great swiftness, and here the audience should suffer no disadvantage. Throaty singers were only too numerous. Choirboys and curates might often adopt a throaty manner of singing without serious protest, but it could not be tolerated in the trained artist. The pinched, tight, muscular method of the speaker in church was adopted to make his words carry through the large building, and a dark, sombre tone was developed which Nature never intended. Our national training in that matter ought to undergo a revolution. How much colour should be put into the voice?—that was the question. A whole gallery of black-and-white pictures produced a sense of monotony. The variety and beauty of artistic singing depended on the mixing of the colours. Like the painter, the singer must study the effect of colour. The indistinctness of some singers was due to their deep or throaty production. If the English language were more carefully pronounced, it would be found to be second to none as a medium for the singer. In the course of his remarks Mr. Klein quoted from his new edition of Manuel Garcia's 'Hints on singing.'

Mr. F. C. Field-Hyde was in the chair and, as a singing teacher, concurred with Mr. Klein in his experience of the want of care in pronunciation shown by many English singers.

At this juncture it will be of interest to record that Mr. Herman Klein is a native of Norwich. He represents the Belle Alliance, for he is of Russian descent on the paternal side and French on the maternal. His father (a professor of languages at King Edward VI. Grammar School, Norwich, under the Rev. Augustus Jessopp) was born in the Baltic Provinces, and migrated to England in the 'fifties. He became a naturalised British subject, and was among the first of the East Anglians to enrol as a volunteer when that force was organized. He took up his residence in London in 1866. Herman Klein's mother was also born at Norwich. Her father had been a native of Lunéville, in Alsace, but came to this country when a youth, and, after being naturalised, went to live at Norwich, of which city one of his great-grandsons, Mr. Arthur Samuel, was last year the Lord Mayor.

COLLEGES AND SINGERS: MR. BEECHAM AS ÆSOP.

Mr. Thomas Beecham has been saying some strong things about the output of the chief colleges and academies of the country, more especially as regards singers. It was an added piquancy that his first onslaught was made in the course of a speech delivered at the annual meeting of the Royal Manchester College of Music, held at Manchester on December 4. He expressed his gratification that a miracle achieved by the War had been the expulsion of the accomplished foreigner. He then stated his conviction that England had better composers than the Continent, and having thus applied a flattering unction to the souls of his audience (which included the Lord Mayor and a distinguished company), he proceeded to consider 'the hopeless and tragic subject of singing.' Out of all the singers in England to-day he would have the greatest difficulty in getting together a second-rate opera company. The Paris Conservatoire could produce magnificently-trained singers, but in this country there was only one artist he knew of who could walk on the stage with any grace, and only one (it was not made clear whether it was the same rara avis) of whose singing a word could be heard. Dilettantism, lethargy, and amateurism had been the curse of art in this country. Mr. Beecham censored the name of the One; so, fortunately, five hundred or so singers will be able to breathe freely and, judging from our experience behind the scenes, will probably all fully agree with the speaker.

A hot discussion followed in the Manchester Guardian. An able letter from Mr. Stanley Withers, the Registrar of the Manchester College, was the first contribution, and others followed from Mr. William Eller (a member of the College Council) and Miss Edith Robinson; and, 'further South,' Mr. Henry Coates wrote an 'open letter' to Mr. Beecham in the Daily Chronicle, in which he expressed general agreement with Mr. Beecham's views. This led to a long letter from Mr. Beecham, which appeared in the Guardian on December 16. It was a more carefully reasoned statement of the writer's views than was the speech. After severely denouncing commercialism (which, of course, he might also have described as bread and butter), he said that never was talent more eagerly demanded, never efficiency and individuality more strenuously looked for than now, and never were the (commercial?) rewards of merit so magnificent as they were to-day. The public was hungering for first-class singers—witness its rapture when it hailed anyone who had the smallest touch of genius. All over the country musical organizations, festival committees, &c., were scanning the horizon for signs of marked ability, and the sober truth was that there never was a time when the demand for the first-rate was so great and the supply so limited. Then he went on to say that he was concerned in the performance of a work by Mr. Frederick Delius which would be given at the Hallé Concerts in March. He stated his unbelief that the Manchester College had within the last few years turned out a single student who could do justice to such a work, and he challenged the College to produce one. He was authorized by the Hallé Concerts Committee to say that if any young baritone could satisfy Mr. Delius that he could competently sing the rôle in the work (which had frequently been performed in Germany) he would be engaged for the concert. The competition would be confined to students of the College during the last ten years. A letter from Mr. Delius stated that it would be easy to find in Germany twenty or thirty baritones able to give a good account of themselves in this work. The College authorities announced that they hoped the challenge would be taken up. Elsewhere Mr. Beecham hinted at the possibility of his instituting a new Conservatoire to meet the needs of the musical situation.

We may indulge the hope that this stir may result in some useful developments. Although Mr. Beecham included concert singers in his survey he had, we believe, opera mainly in his mind. Whether the fully-equipped and subsidised opera house would give birth to operas and opera singers, or whether composers of genius and great performers would create the opera house, is as difficult a question to settle as that of the chicken and the egg. But it may be hoped that one of the results of the War will be the evolution of both phenomena.

BELGIAN MUSIC IN LONDON.

(TRANSLATED FROM A NOTICE BY FRANZ HELLERS.)

An interesting afternoon's music was given on Thursday, December 10, at the residence of Sir Edward Elgar, a composer well known in Belgium, whose works we have often applauded at our concerts over there. It was an afternoon of art, sincere and full of life, in which some of our best musicians took part before a discriminating audience. The music performed was all Belgian, of recent date and of the most modern type. To some hearers it was a new experience. The first piece was a Quartet for pianoforte and strings, by Joseph Jongen, a composer of the first rank, which has already been heard once or twice in England. It had the advantage of a faultless performance, which did justice to its great merits. The music shows inventive power and variety, ranging from light fancy to impressive depth; it is music that will last, and must be often heard, music full of spirit and refinement, now melancholy, now fiery, an expression of life strongly felt and well realised. The composer was at the pianoforte, and was well supported by the string players, MM. Desiré de Fauw, E. la Prade, and Léon Renland.

A number of songs followed; 'La Ronde,' by Guillaume Lekeu, César Franck's 'Panis Angelicus,' and a very effective setting by Desiré de Fauw of Mallarmé's fine poem, 'Le Sonneur':

> Cependant que la cloche éveille sa voix claire
> A l'air pur et limpide et profond du matin. . . .

This song, accompanied by string quartet, is sombre and grandiose in style, like the words, which describe the despair of the bell-ringer who, unable to realise his ideal, calls on death to deliver him. Irreproachable in style, and of undeniable beauty, it was admirably sung by Madame Marie-Anne Weber Delacre, whose clear and flexible voice and impressive diction quite captured her hearers.

The dominating feature of the programme was a fine Sonata for violin and pianoforte by Guillaume Lekeu, a composer of Liège, snatched prematurely from the art over which he already showed such mastery. The tender and passionate beauty of this Sonata received full justice in the hands of M. and Madame de Fauw. It is a good example of the school of César Franck.

The concert ended with a string of Belgian Folk-songs, some sad, some gay, whose simple charm and natural straightforwardness won much applause. The spirit of these was rightly rendered by Madame Delacre and a choir of amateurs. Altogether an interesting concert, crowned with marked success for composers and performers alike.

THE MODERN FLEMISH SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

At the meeting of the Musical Association held on December 1, M. Prosper Verheyden, of Antwerp, read a paper (in English) on the above subject, in the course of which he dealt very largely with the influence exerted by Peter Benoit on the renaissance of Flemish music. At the time of the establishment of the present kingdom of Belgium in 1830 the Flemings laboured under many disadvantages as compared with the Walloons. The Flemish tongue was despised, and the control of the state was seized by the Walloons, but in 1834 began a long struggle for equal rights and intellectual well-being. The promoters of the movement recognised the great help and power of song, and amongst the composers of an early time were Miry, Gevaert, Van Herzele, and Wytsman, who wrote cantatas and music of a light character. Gevaert in particular of these, by his ability, influenced the general advance of musical art in Flanders.

It was, however, Peter Benoit who devoted himself to inculcating the development of a school of national musical art. By his many works of striking merit, by his example, by his zealous work as an organizer, by his spoken and written word, he strove to persuade his fellow-countrymen of the truth that Flanders could win its own independent place only by developing and improving its own characteristic features. It was a truth not universally recognised fifty years ago, though it was a principle that governed the work of such composers as Grieg, Smetana, Fibich, Dvorák, &c. In 1866 the production of Benoit's Oratorio 'Lucifer' won for its composer an immediate and enduring reputation, and in 1867 he became the Director of the Antwerp School of Music. Here he was enabled to put into practice his views on artistic education, and thus to watch over and influence the growth of the Flemish school.

Benoit was not an opera composer, his only work of that type being 'Isa,' a small and early production, portions of which, however, were still frequently performed on the concert platform. He wrote incidental music to two dramas which were produced in 1875 and 1876, respectively, at a lyric theatre he established. In 1893 further progress was made with a performance of 'Der Freischütz,' which was followed by the production of many other foreign masterpieces, given in Flemish, and thus the public of Flanders had been enabled to appreciate a large number of works with which it was previously unacquainted. Gradually the Flemish people became conscious that it possessed a number of excellent musicians and composers who had profited by the example and teaching of Benoit. An opera by Jan Blockx was produced in 1896 with such success that at Antwerp alone it was performed a hundred times in the course of six years, while it was also given many times in Belgium, France, and Germany. Blockx was in the highest degree original and national, a lesson he had imbibed from Benoit. Some twenty other Flemish composers had also had works produced. If these were not all masterpieces, it could at any rate be said that they conduced to the progress of the national art. Amongst Flemish composers of to-day, August de Boeck deservedly occupied a very high position, but beyond all doubt the very first place belonged of right to Paul Gilson, a Fleming by birth, whose most important works had been composed to Flemish poems.

For the last seven years there had been a most luxurious Opera House at Antwerp, possessing everything required by a modern and up-to-date institution. The City not only provided the building, but voted subsidies, and the people of Antwerp and of Flanders were thus able to enjoy at a very small cost well-performed works by the best foreign composers as well as by native composers. It might truly be said that the results of the last twenty years' endeavour were a guarantee of what might be expected in the future.

The following awards have been made at the Royal Academy of Music: Battison Haynes Prize (composition) to Adolph Hallis (of Port Elizabeth, S. Africa); Hine Prize (composition) to Dorothy Howell; Rutson Memorial Prize (for sopranos) to Mabel James; Sainton-Dolby Prize (singing) to Zöe Körner (of Christ Church, New Zealand); Philip L. Agnew Prize (pianoforte) to Adolph Hallis; Potter Exhibition (pianoforte) to Katharine Hogg; Fred Walker Prize (singing) to Elsie Gough.

ORGAN POSTS IN CANADA: AN UNPROFESSIONAL OPINION.

By WILLIAM Q. PHILLIPS.

'Look after him a bit, will you?' asked my partner, who was himself going away for a month, 'they are awfully decent people, and were very civil to me when I was in London.' With this he threw over a letter stating that 'Our Mr. Algernon Ramsden is sailing for Canada, per s.s. Victorian, and expects to have the pleasure of calling on you about the 25th inst.' So when in due course his card came in I put aside other work and gave him immediate attention. Turncliffe & Ramsden, I knew, had been a firm for at least four generations, and enjoyed an extensive foreign and domestic trade; probably they were opulent—certainly much respected and influential. This was the first time I remembered their sending a man to Canada; but I had noticed that they no longer committed the atrocity of addressing letters to 'Canada, U.S.A.,' which is not only inaccurate but undiplomatic. Canadians do not like the suggestion that they belong to the United States of America.

But to return to Mr. Algernon Ramsden: one could see the effect of a century of family comfort in the well-knit, well-groomed young fellow of easy manners, who probably regarded business chiefly as a good thing to provide an income, and give one a chance to exercise a little authority; always remembering that there are other things in life,—which is a sane and wholesome doctrine for those who can afford it. Knowing my man, or rather his class, I encouraged him to talk about his trip.

Montreal had been kind to him, he said, especially after it was discovered he spoke French. The trip up the Gulf—the junction of ocean and inland navigation—the number and size of the churches—all these he mentioned without in any way lugging them into the conversation; and it seemed quite the thing that he should speak of the excellent placing of the fine organ in Notre Dame, and the impressive effect of a Bach fugue as heard from the ground floor. If a Yankee 'drummer' had talked to me like this I should have thought him daft. Eventually, of course, Ramsden got me to promise to look over his new samples, and when business had been concluded preferred a small request. A relation in England, who was an organist, proposed to come to Canada. Toronto had been mentioned as a likely centre to afford him professional employment; what did I think, or could I put him in the way of reliable information?

'Not in my line,' I said, 'I have just a nodding acquaintance with our organist—think he is an Englishman who has done very well here. But perhaps I can put you in the way. Anything to do to-night?'

Accordingly, in the evening I took him for a run in my car, and just before the long, warm twilight faded, stopped at the tasteful bungalow of my friend, Billy Barron, amateur of church music and several other things, in time to discover Billy himself busy drenching his flower-beds and lawn with our highly-nutritious city water. He hailed me cheerfully, and upon my presenting Ramsden, dexterously shook hands without in any way interrupting his labours. He would have acted in exactly the same way if I had been presenting him to King George V.—at least I think so! But it appeared that he and Ramsden were well met, for they were soon deep in the discussion of a new variety of cannas and the best way of growing sweet peas. When darkness put a stop to the feeble imitation of J. Pluvius there was an adjournment to the verandah for a smoke, Ramsden producing a typical bull-dog pipe, which he preferred to a cigar, and lighting up with great satisfaction. Then he unfolded his subject.

'An English organist,' repeated Billy doubtfully, 'well now, can he play? That is—oh, you know what I mean—is he a first-class performer and good with a choir?'

'Yes,' replied Ramsden, 'decidedly a good executant, and quite successful with a choir. Of course, I am giving you my own opinion.'

'Yes, of course,' said Billy, shifting uneasily in his seat, 'but it's a serious thing to advise a man to break up his connections and come to a new country. How old is he?'

'Under thirty, I should say; single—at present.'

Billy nodded encouragingly. "That's good,' he said, 'and I'll tell you why. Canada is a big country, that runs into long distances, as you know. A young man coming here to look for a berth as organist might have to do a lot of travelling to get a good opening. He would need to be foot-free and without encumbrance. Also, some private means, at least enough for a few months, unless he would engage in other employment while looking around.'

'Yes, I see,' replied Ramsden, 'and now can you give me any idea of what he might expect—under favourable circumstances?'

'Why, it all depends on the man himself. For instance, is he used to a good mixed choir? Some of our best appointments are with the Methodists and Presbyterians, who have mixed choirs as a matter of course. Very good choirs, too, composed of well-educated people, who must be treated with tact and civility. They would be quick to discover a duffer, but to a capable man—one whose musicianship was attractive—they would give loyal support. It is not at all the same thing as handling a choir of boys.'

'I can understand that,' said Ramsden, 'but go on.'

Billy wriggled uneasily. What he wanted to say was, 'There is not a bit of use a man coming out here who has been a failure in England or anywhere else,' but this was obviously not the way to put it.

'I suppose he could pass a decent exam.?' he inquired.

'He is an L.R.A.M. and an A.R.C.O.' said Ramsden, smiling, 'and used to conducting a small choral society. His best subjects are the organ and composition. Can blow a horn, on occasion, I believe.'

'Oh, that's all right,' remarked Billy, with evident signs of relief. 'Not that we pay much attention to alphabetical decorations, but they indicate that a man can at least read music, and play a hymn-tune. Do you know, there have been alleged English organists among us who could do neither—properly? On the other hand, reputable graduates, blessed with common-sense, and not too old to be adaptable, get along very well.

'You'll hardly believe it,' he continued, 'but I have met queer specimens, usually of the Micawber type—not even decent amateurs—but with a fixed idea that anything will do for the Colonies. That is a great mistake so far as music is concerned; our local standards are rather high. I suppose you have heard of the Mendelssohn Choir? Yes? But I was going to say—a few years ago, when I came here from a small town, where I dabbled in choir-work, I was appealed to by the Rev. Hollingsworth to help in an emergency. He had an organist, just out from England (he said) and claiming to have great experience; but he could not get along with the choir at all. Would I take charge for a few weeks?

'I refused at first, knowing it would be a thankless job, but Hollingsworth was a decent fellow, an old acquaintance, and at last I promised to do what I could, until he could make better arrangements.

'Just as I expected, I found things generally run down, and all the music we could attempt for the next Sunday was of the simplest. The new organist, Simmons by name, was a rough-looking individual, with the hands and manners of a labourer. His playing of the vestry harmonium was slipshod, but you can't judge by that sort of thing.

'On the Sunday I discovered that the church organ was horribly out of tune, and at first supposed that Simmons's peculiar style of playing was intended to make the best of things. In giving out a tune or chant he produced an inarticulate wail, beginning and ending with the swell closed, and with a humped-up crescendo in the middle. With the music before one it was possible to identify the sound with the notes—in spots—but as an intimation of what was to be sung, to those who did not know, it was vague—very vague! So were all the accompaniments; time and tune were uncertain, there were amazing experiments with the stops, and the result was a queer discordant background which the singers wisely ignored. Not content with the score, our organist embellished as many chords as possible with sevenths and ninths, not taking the slightest trouble to resolve them. His pedalling was of the hit and miss variety, and altogether ad libitum.

'Needless to say I didn't like his playing at all, but it was not for a week or two that I made up my mind to the simple explanation that Simmons was grossly incompetent. His voluntaries were nearly all improvised, that is, the most aimless, dreary vamping you can imagine. His fingers simply "wandered idly over the noisy keys"—the swell pumping so persistently that he might have hitched it to the bellows!

'I took occasion to look over a few sheets of music he had brought to church, and found scraps from elementary works for the piano—the sort of thing that a ten-year-old girl might play—and about half a dozen of the shortest and easiest pieces by Batiste. This was the only organ music I ever heard him attempt. On one occasion, however, he asked for a copy of the "Messiah," as he proposed to perform the "Hallelujah Chorus." You never heard such a row! He could play only the easiest parts, and these he mangled over and over again, concluding with a flourish of his own. "Grand, wasn't it?" he asked me afterwards. The absurdity of the whole thing was that he took himself seriously, and was quite huffy because his playing was not appreciated.

'Simmons soon got to be beyond a joke. The members of the choir spoke their minds, and there were complaints from the congregation. He and I did not pull together, because he was jealous of my being there at all, and anyway I queered myself with the fellow by remarking that the church organ was all out of tune, only to be told he had just finished tuning it—quite a versatile genius! It was discovered afterwards that he had done a lot of damage to the pipes, some of which looked as though he had been operating with an axe.

'I told the parson that his English organist was an impostor, whereat the good man was grieved and surprised. "The poor fellow has a wife and family," he said, "and I should be sorry to turn him off; besides, he claims to have had a great deal of experience, and at least knows the service." Simmons was a voluble and plausible talker, when it suited him, and had got on the soft side of the parson, who knew nothing of music, and was otherwise what we call an "easy mark" in this country. I told him that Simmons ought to be at work with a pick and shovel instead of masquerading as an organist. At the best he was an undisciplined, half-baked amateur, who could barely read music. I had discovered that he played mostly by ear, and he probably never had a lesson in his life. But the parson was very loth to act, and after all Simmons saved him the trouble.

'More than once he had come to the church smelling strongly of whisky, and on the last Sunday night when we were favoured with his services he was plainly tipsy. How he pulled through the first part of the service I don't know, but his playing was not much worse than usual. In sermon-time he went fast asleep, and not responding to a gentle shake, I deemed it best to let him alone, and finished the service myself. When the people had gone we roused him up—very nasty and quarrelsome he was, and I was glad that a policeman off duty, a member of the choir, undertook to see him home. That was evidently the beginning of a spree. A day or two afterwards he was arrested in the street, drunk and disorderly, and got thirty days of durance vile. Hollingsworth, the parson, like the good man he was, looked after Simmons's wife and children, and got the fellow a job afterwards, which he soon lost because he would neither work honestly nor keep sober.

'Now I don't suppose, for a moment, that he was in any sense a sample of the genus English organist—nothing but an impostor: in fact, who had taken advantage of Hollingsworth's good nature and credulity—the very last type of man we want in Canada in any capacity. But perhaps I must apologise for dragging him into the conversation, for you will be thinking it an insinuation——'

'Oh, not at all,' said Ramsden, laughing. 'No offence meant, I'm sure, and none taken. Rather good story, and I happen to know where I can retail it with good effect when I get back home.'

'Well,' resumed Billy, 'about your friend: if he comes here I can at least introduce him to some members of the profession, and in the summer I might get him an opportunity to supply—to show his mettle. But I won't make any rash promises, and—er—you might intimate to him that we are not exactly savages.'

'Certainly,' said Ramsden.

'And now to answer your question about possible earnings. At St. Luke's, where I attend, which is a typical parish church, we pay six hundred dollars a year—call it £120. Not enough for a man to live on if he is married and keeping house, but our organist has other employment, so that altogether he makes a good living. At that big Methodist church across the street the organist gets twelve hundred dollars, and makes as much more teaching vocal music, which is his speciality. Besides, he has odds and ends, lecturing at the University for example, for he is a man of culture, an Oxford graduate, and well regarded personally. Of course, he did not build up his connection in a month, or even a year.

'In a country town, where it is often easier for a new-comer to get a start, an organist with the indispensable qualification of choirmaster will get from £50 to £100, English, and make as much more teaching if he is a good teacher, who can prepare his pupils for the local exams. of the University and Conservatories. If not, he will need other employment, which he may accept without any loss of caste. In this country, an organist is not necessarily and ex officio a gentleman or a menial, but exactly what he makes himself, socially and professionally.

London Concerts.

ROYAL CHORAL SOCIETY.

A performance of Christmas Carols and Patriotic Music drew a large audience on Saturday afternoon, December 19. No doubt it was difficult to construct a scheme the jangling keynotes of which were severally 'Peace and goodwill to all men' and warlike sentiments. 'The Cradle of Christ,' a Christmas Cantata by Sir Frederick Bridge, was one of the most important and interesting features of the programme. The carols selected included some old favourites, and a new Festival Carol, 'Ring out, wild bells' composed by Percy Fletcher for choir, orchestra, and organ. This new work was a great success. A selection from Sir Hubert Parry's Cantata 'War and Peace,' conducted by the composer, was a great feature of the second part of the programme. Another item that was well received was the chorus 'The comrades' song of hope' (Adolphe Adam), accompaniments to which had been scored effectively by Percy Fletcher. The soloists were Miss Emily Shepherd, Madame Kirkby Lunn, Mr. Alfred Heather, and Mr. Frederick Ranalow, and Mr. H. L. Balfour presided at the organ. Sir Frederick Bridge conducted.

LONDON CHORAL SOCIETY.

This Society is helping bravely to keep music going. On December 9, with the assistance of attractive resources, it gave a popular concert at Queen's Hall for the benefit of Princess Mary's Fund. Miss Carrie Tubb and Miss Gwladys Roberts were the soloists. The National Hymns of the Allies and 'It comes from the misty ages' (the last chorus of Elgar's 'The Banner of St. George') brought out the power of the choir, which as usual was conducted by Mr. Arthur Fagge. Nothing gave more pleasure than the performance of a Fantasia on 'Tipperary,' played by the Coldstream Guards Band under Captain Rogan. The well-known humorous potentialities of the bassoon were admirably exploited.

THE ORIANA MADRIGAL SOCIETY.

The annual concert of Christmas music given by this choir on Tuesday, December 15, at the Westminster Cathedral Hall, was as usual a feast of good things. The conductor is surely a past-master in the art of drawing up programmes of beautiful and unhackneyed items. The music on the occasion under notice was chosen from a wide field. All was English, save Bach's fine cantata 'The Sages of Sheba.' Among the ancients were represented Gibbons, Dering, and Byrde, and the moderns included Von Holst, Norman O'Neill, Rutland Boughton, and Vaughan Williams. Although the choir was smaller than usual, there was no falling short of the high standard of excellence we have come to look for. Mr. C. Kennedy Scott acted as conductor and accompanist. There was a large audience.

LONDON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA.

The War has had a disastrous influence on music, but it is also responsible for some compensations. The barring of the alien enemy has laid bare the fact that we have amongst us British executants of the first rank who have not hitherto had their fair chance owing to the infatuation of so many concert-goers for foreign names. The large audience that assembled at the concert given by this Orchestra on November 23 was astonished at the outstanding ability displayed by Mr. Albert Sammons in his memorable performance of Elgar's Violin concerto. Rarely has an instrumental executant earned such a tribute as was almost excitedly bestowed on this occasion. Mr. Sammons did not show merely adequate technical skill; it was his interpretation that moved his listeners. His reading was suffused with the individuality of his temperament, and he revealed new beauties in the work. Elsewhere in our issue (p. 23) we give Mr. Sammons's portrait and a short account of his career. The programme of the concert included Schumann's 'Manfred Overture,' Beethoven's second Symphony, and Mozart's delightful Serenade in C—which the conductor, M. Vassili Savonov, from the time of his first coming to this country has almost made his own.

The fourth concert of the season, given on December 7, derived special interest from the reappearance of M. Henri Verbrugghen, the Belgian conductor, and the first performance of Sir Edward Elgar's orchestral piece associated with the poem, 'Chantons, Belges, chantons,' written by M. d'Emile Cammaerts, and on this occasion recited with extraordinary intensity of feeling by the poet's wife, Madame Tita Brand. The poem recalls the woes of the Belgian nation, and breathes vengeance on their brutal aggressors. The music is entitled 'Carillon,' and is founded upon a descending tetrachord which is repeated 255 times, mostly as a ground bass. As all the movements are in triple time, the four notes of the theme are presented with every possible variety of accent. Except for a few thrillingly solemn bars, the music comes only between the verses of the poem. Although the music, theoretically, is in the shackles of a contrapuntal device, it flows with conspicuous freedom. The orchestration is brilliant, and the welcome 'Elgar touch' is always evident. The combined work of poet, composer (who conducted), and reciter was received with almost frenzied enthusiasm by a large audience. The programme also included Beethoven's 'Egmont' Overture and his seventh Symphony, and Bach's 'Brandenburg' Concerto in G. Mr. Arthur Rubinstein gave a notable performance of Brahms's Pianoforte concerto in B flat. M. Verbrugghen fully maintained his reputation as conductor.

The 'Carillon' was repeated with equal success at the concert given by the London Symphony Orchestra on December 17, again with Madame Tita Brand as reciter and Sir Edward Elgar as conductor. The remainder of the programme was conducted by M. Savonov. Wishnegradski's second Symphony earned respectful attention, although no great enthusiasm, as its inspiration does not run high. M. Meytschik played Scriabin's F sharp minor Pianoforte concerto with feeling for the Chopinesque charm of the composer's early manner. Tchaikovsky's 'Manfred' Symphony completed the programme.

QUEEN'S HALL SYMPHONY CONCERTS.

On November 28 distinction was given to the programme by the inclusion of Elgar's first Symphony, a work that had a remarkable vogue for a time, but which has not been frequently heard in recent seasons. This performance served to confirm the best opinion that the work is one of the noblest and most beautiful produced by the composer. Sir Henry Wood conducted sympathetically. Brahms's Violin concerto was the other important item. It was played very finely by Miss Lena Kontorovitsch.

At the Symphony Concert of December 12, Tchaikovsky's 'Pathetic' Symphony was played, to the evident delight of a large audience. The interpretation had all the fire that has always characterized Sir Henry Wood's reading of the work, and some new points of individuality. In Saint-Saëns's second Pianoforte concerto M. Benno Moiseivitsch (wearing some Russian national costume) gave a remarkable exhibition of brilliance and expressive power. The programme further included Beethoven's 'Coriolanus' Overture and Debussy's Nocturne 'Fêtes.'

ORCHESTRAL CONCERTS FOR YOUNG PEOPLE.

The second of this excellent series took place at Æolian Hall on November 21, Miss Gwynne Kimpton being as usual the conductor and Mr. Stewart Macpherson the lecturer. His preliminary address was on the subject of Mozart's orchestra, and little solos on the various wind instruments were given by way of illustration. Miss Irene Scharrer gave Schumann's Pianoforte concerto and Miss Doris Montrave sang. The concert was one of the best that Miss Kimpton has given. On December 5 the Symphony was Beethoven's 'Pastoral.' The soloists were Miss Fanny Davies, who gave Schumann's 'Introduction and Allegro,' and Miss Florence Giles, who sang two of Elgar's 'Sea-songs.'

CHAMBER CONCERTS.

Beethoven's Pianoforte trio in C minor was played for the Classical Society at Bechstein Hall on November 25 by Miss Adila d'Aranyi, Miss Rebecca Clarke, and Miss Guilhermina Suggia. Miss Jelly d'Aranyi joined her sister in Spohr's Duo in A minor for two violins, and the vocalist of the concert was Mr. Frederic Austin.

On December 2 Haydn's Quartet in F sharp minor (Op. 50, No. 4) and Beethoven's posthumous Quartet in B flat were played by the English String Quartet. Miss Myra Hess played Schumann's Pianoforte sonata in G minor.

The London String Quartet took part in the concert of December 9. It was heard in Beethoven's E flat major Quartet and, with Mr. Charles Draper, in Mozart's A major Clarinet quintet.

At Æolian Hall, on December 3, the London String Quartet exercised its great powers with exceptionally attractive results upon a programme made up of Quartets by Glazounov (Op. 26, in G) and Dr. Ethel Smyth (in E minor), and Schubert's Quintet in C (Op. 163), in which Mr. Cedric Sharpe was the second violoncellist. The playing was throughout of the highest standard, and held the attention of a large audience. It was interesting to resume acquaintance with the Quartet of Dr. Smyth, a work of characteristic strength and crowded with individual ideas.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

The programme of the chamber concert given by the Royal Academy of Music at the Duke's Hall on November 25 was largely drawn from the compositions of Academy students, past and present. It included movements from J. B. McEwen's String quartet in A minor; the first Movement from B. J. Dale's Pianoforte sonata in D minor; Hood's 'Queen Mab,' with Sir A. C. Mackenzie's incidental music; three pieces for violin by Miss Bessie Kiek; and three Preludes for pianoforte by Miss Morfydd Owen. Beethoven's String quartet in F (Op. 135) was also in the programme.

The Royal Academy of Music Orchestral concert took place under Sir A. C. Mackenzie's direction at Queen's Hall on December 11. Sir Charles Stanford's Variations on 'Down among the dead men,' for pianoforte, played by Miss Hilda Klein, and a clarinet Fantasy by Eric Grant, played by Mr. E. J. Augarde, were among the items of particular interest.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

An admirable 'costume recital' of Humperdinck's 'Hänsel und Gretel,' given at the Royal College of Music on December 7, served to prove once more the enterprise and skill devoted to this side of the College students' training. The chief characters were played by Miss Ethel Toms (Hänsel), Miss Bessie Jones (Gretel), Miss Helen Davidson (the Mother), Mr. William Allen (the Father), and Miss Etty Ferguson (the Witch). Sir Charles Stanford conducted.

An orchestral concert was given by the College on December 14, under Sir Charles Stanford's direction. Miss Maud Gold played Bruch's D minor Concerto, Miss Margaret Champneys sang, and the orchestra gave two pieces by Herbert Howells, and Schumann's second Symphony.

The Violin sonata in G of Alberic Magnard, a Belgian civilian who died in September at German hands, was chosen as the opening number of a concert given at Æolian Hall on November 24, in aid of the Belgian Relief Fund and British Red Cross Society. It was performed by M. Samuel Dashkin, a Polish violinist, accompanied by Mr. Walter Morse Rummel. The vocalists of the concert were Madame Marie-Anne Webber and M. Tony Magnus, both of Belgium, and Prof. Joseph Jongen accompanied.

A concert with similar objects was given at Æolian Hall on December 1. The London String Quartet, Miss Agnes Nicholls, M. Arthur de Greef, the noted Belgian pianist, and Mr. Albert Sammons, supplied an excellent programme, and gave effect to it in the manner of front rank artists.

The Band of the Royal Engineers, under Mr. Neville Flux, gave a concert at Queen's Hall on November 25, the most interesting features of which were provided by the Misses May and Beatrice Harrison. The former played Lalo's 'Symphonie Espagnole,' and her sister the 'Rococo' Variations of Tchaikovsky. The band played a Fantasia on extracts from Glinka's 'La vie pour le Tsar.'

A St. Andrew's Day Scotch Festival and Patriotic Chorus took place at the Albert Hall on November 30, a number of well-known artists assisting. The 'Boy Scouts' Patrol,' by Miss Henriette Murkens, given by fifty Scouts and the Band of the Scots Guards, proved highly popular. Mr. William Carter's Choir also took part.

Mlle. Mania Seguel, assisted by M. Richard Brinkman, a Belgian violinist, and Madame Krasavina, a Russian vocalist, gave a concert at Æolian Hall on December 2 in aid of the Belgian Relief Fund and the Three Arts Fund.

A series of matinée recitals by pianoforte pupils of M. Isador Epstein opened at Portman Rooms on December 2.

A recital was given by Mr. Ben Whitman, an American violinist, at Æolian Hall on December 3.

Mr. D. F. Tovey gave a recital of works by Chopin at Æolian Hall on December 4, devoting the proceeds to the Motor Ambulance Fund.

A group of able Belgian musicians gave a successful concert at Æolian Hall on December 9 in aid of the Belgian Red Cross Fund for the relief of wounded Belgian soldiers in England.

The programme of a concert given by Mr. George Freeman at Æolian Hall on December 10 included a number of compositions by Mr. F. Alford Armstrong, characterized by refinement and graceful melody.

The chief feature of the students' concert given by the Guildhall School of Music on December 12 was the violin-playing of Miss Margaret Harrison, a sister of the Misses May and Beatrice Harrison. The orchestra gave Mozart's 'Figaro' Overture and a Haydn Symphony under Mr. Landon Ronald's direction.

Under the direction of Mr. Frank Idle, the Patriotic Concerts given on Saturday evenings at Kingsway Hall have upheld their success and good standard. It is announced that the series is to be continued into the spring.

The series of Patriotic Concerts at the Crystal Palace on Saturday evenings, under Mr. W. W. Hedgcock, is also to be continued. The concerts take place in the theatre, and various military bands and well-known soloists provide interesting programmes.

M. Savonov, assisted by M. Michael Doré (violin), M. Emile Dorhaerd (violoncello), and some members of the London Symphony Orchestra, gave an interesting chamber concert at Bechstein Hall on December 14, the programme including Beethoven's Septet and Tchaikovsky's Trio in A minor.

Two Russian concerts in aid of patriotic funds were given at Æolian Hall on December 14, the artists being Miss Alys Bateman (vocalist), M. Mischa Violsky (violin), M. Parlovitz (pianoforte), and Mr. F. A. W. Docker (organ).

Trinity College of Music gave an orchestral concert at Queen's Hall on December 15, under the direction of Mr. Wilhelm Sachse. Elgar's first 'Wand of Youth' Suite and Cowen's Overture 'The butterfly's ball' were the chief numbers in an excellent programme, which served to bring forward a large array of talent.

Mr. Arnold Dolmetsch, assisted by his family and other able musicians, gave an interesting concert of Old Dances at the Art-Workers' Hall on December 16.

Suburban Concerts.

The South-West Choral Society gave a concert at Battersea Town Hall on December 2 in aid of the Daily Telegraph Belgian Fund. Under the direction of Mr. Arthur Saunders, the choir gave a selection from 'Judas Maccabæus' in creditable style. Solos were given by Miss Maude Willby, Mr. Allen Engles, and Mr. Furness Williams (vocalists), and Mr. Nicholas Rivera, of the Brussels Conservatoire of Music.

Mr. G. Day-Winter's thirty-seventh annual concert took place at the Great Assembly Hall on November 16. His choir gave Elgar's 'The banner of St. George' and Bridge's 'The flag of England' with excellent effect. The solo parts were taken by Miss Maude Willby and Mr. Joseph Farrington.

Schumann's 'Paradise and the Peri' and Elgar's 'The banner of St. George' were performed with success by the Dulwich Philharmonic Society at Goldsmiths' College on December 12, under the direction of Mr. Martin Klickmann. The solo parts were taken by Miss Maidstone-Campbell, Miss Dorice Cullerne, Miss Lysette Mostyn, Mr. Harry Turnpenney, and Mr. Humphrey Bishop.

The good qualities of the Orpheus Choral Society were shown at the Hampstead Conservatoire, on December 15, in a selection of madrigals that were creditably sung under the direction of Mr. Claud Powell. A large part of the programme consisted of a vocal recital by Mr. John Coates, whose singing was all that was expected of so eminent an artist.

Music in the Provinces.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

BIRMINGHAM.

Most of the minor concerts given at Birmingham during December were in aid of the Belgian Refugees Fund, and these were plentiful. The Midland Musical Society inaugurated their season's concert with an excellent all-round performance of 'Elijah,' which always attracts the masses no matter how often it is given. Mr. A. J. Cotton has considerably raised the artistic standard of this old-established amateur choral organization since he took over its training and conductorship some years ago, and each season shows improvement in every direction, especially in the fine tone-quality of the choir and in the art of phrasing, as well as in vocal technique. Indeed, Mr. Cotton gave us at the Town Hall, on November 21, the finest and most poignant interpretation of 'Elijah' yet attained under his beat. He was well served by the principal artists, who included Miss Annie Danks, Miss Florence England, Mr. Stanley Phillips, and Mr. Alfred Askey, the latter a new local bass who will make his mark. Mr. C. W. Perkins was the organist, and able assistance was rendered in the concerted numbers by Miss E. Joyce, Miss A. Sack, Mr. A. Cornwell, Mr. J. N. Greenacre, and Mr. C. Penson.

The newly-formed Barfield Mixed Choir gave a miscellaneous concert in the Town Hall on November 25, in aid of the Belgian Refugees Fund. The programme was of a patriotic character, including the National Anthems of Belgium, France, Russia, and Great Britain. The main feature was Stanford's 'Sea Songs,' accompanied on the pianoforte by Mr. Barfield. The soloist was Mr. Hamilton Harris, whose fine sonorous voice and impassioned singing created an excellent impression. The Choir has for trainer and conductor Mr. Joseph Lewis, and although it is early yet to form a decided opinion of its capabilities, it however gave proof of being a finely balanced body of singers gifted with excellent voices. Miss Irene Scharrer, a favourite pianist in the Midlands, contributed several solos attractively.

The twenty-sixth annual Scottish concert promoted by the Birmingham and Midland Scottish Society was held in the Town Hall, November 28, in the presence of an enormous audience, who encored nearly every item in a programme given by the famous Glasgow Choir, conducted by Mr. A. J. Lancashire, which showed to great satisfaction what can be accomplished by small vocal forces if carefully and adequately trained. Mr. C. W. Perkins was the organist. The proceeds of this concert went to the Prince of Wales's Fund.

The second Harrison Concert of the current series was given in the Town Hall on November 23, the chief feature of attraction being the reappearance at these concerts of Miss Fanny Davies, who played a Beethoven Sonata and other pieces with her customary artistic finish. The vocalists were Miss Ruth Vincent, Miss Edna Thornton, and Mr. John Coates. The solo violinist was Miss Marjorie Hayward (a newcomer here), and the accompanist Mr. R. J. Forbes.

A concert of high standard was given in aid of the Belgian Refugees Fund by our local pianist, Miss Marjorie Sotham, and Miss Joan Willis (violoncello), at Queen's College on December 4. The solo violinist was Miss Gertrude Fuller, and the vocalist Mr. Frank Mullings.

The talented Birmingham boy pianist, Master Frank Stanley Shale, gave his second annual concert in the Temperance Hall on December 7, assisted by Miss Eva Rich, Mr. Arthur Jordan, Mr. Alfred Askey, and Mr. Wassell's excellent Male-Voice Choir. His playing of a Beethoven Sonata revealed poetical instinct and intellectual grasp of his subject. Mr. Wassell has every reason to be proud of such a gifted pupil.

The Catterall String Quartet gave their second concert of the season in the New Gallery of the Royal Society of Artists on November 24, under the auspices of the Birmingham Chamber Concerts Society. The programme was restricted to a performance of Schubert's String quartet in A minor, Op. 29, Tchaikovsky's String quartet in F major, Op. 22, and the first movement of the Double Concerto for violin and violoncello in A minor, Op. 102, the latter being interpreted by Mr. Catterall and Mr. Hock, with Mr. Clarence Raybould at the pianoforte. The Quartet played magnificently; indeed, one may justly class them as one of the finest organizations of chamber music interpreters in this country.

The second Mossel Drawing-room Concert, held in the Grosvenor Room, Grand Hotel, December 10, served to introduce two new artists to Birmingham, Miss Myra Hess (pianoforte) and Mr. Arnold Trowell (violoncello), who fully upheld the reputations that preceded them. They were assisted by Mr. Frank Mullings.

The Birmingham Symphony Orchestra's first concert of the season was held in the Town Hall on December 5, under Mr. Julian Clifford's conductorship. The feature of attraction was the second appearance here of the great Russian pianist M. Sapellnikov, who played Chopin's Concerto in E minor, Op. 11. His playing was a revelation, and created an enormous sensation. He also joined Mr. Julian Clifford in a performance of Saint-Saëns's 'Theme and Variations on a Beethoven subject for two pianofortes.' Nothing could have surpassed their playing in delicacy, finish, and unanimity. The Hon. Mrs. Clifford was the vocalist, and sang with much charm. The Orchestra confined their efforts to popular items.

The Birmingham Choral and Orchestral Association gave a successful patriotic concert in the Town Hall on December 12, in aid of the local Belgian Refugees Fund. The programme contained a number of orchestral items, part-songs for the choir (including the National Anthems of the Allies), most impressively sung, in addition to songs contributed by Mr. Thomas Howell (baritone). Part-songs were also given by the Victoria Male-Voice Choir, under Mr. W. E. Robinson's conductorship. Mr. Joseph H. Adams was the conductor-in-chief.

A vocal and pianoforte recital was given in the large Lecture Theatre of the Midland Institute on December 12 by Mr. Frank Mullings and Mr. Arthur Cooke, the proceeds being devoted to the War Refugees Fund and Free Studentships Fund of the School of Music. The accompanist was Mr. Anthony Bernard, the newly-appointed organist of the Edgbaston Oratory. The programme contained songs and pieces by Russian composers, also compositions by Mr. Anthony Bernard.

BOURNEMOUTH.

The Symphony concerts have been continued with much success, and Mr. Dan Godfrey and the orchestra may congratulate themselves upon the consistently good work they have accomplished. Among the compositions of particular interest that have been received with favour we may cite Schumann's D minor Symphony, Kopylov's Scherzo (first performance at these concerts), and Havergal Brian's 'English Suite,' the composer himself conducting (in khaki). The soloists were Mr. Arthur Shattuck, who presented for the first time here a very commendable Pianoforte concerto by G. F. Boyle, and played it with much taste, Miss Annie Godfrey (violin), Miss Lydia Stace (in Holbrooke's Tone-poem for pianoforte and orchestra, 'Gwyn-ap-Nudd'), and Mr. Anton Maaskov.

Variety has been the keynote of the Monday 'Pops' series, as the ensuing abstract of the leading details will show: November 16, 'Popular Overtures'; November 23, 'National Rhapsodies'; November 30, 'Opera' programme; December 7, British Composers—'Molly on the Shore' by Percy Grainger, 'Suite Syrienne' by Alfred Pratt, Variations on an old English Theme (for strings) by Ernest Austin, and Roger Quilter's 'Three Shakespeare songs.' At the concert on November 16 the scheme was adapted to include the Aria from Weber's 'Der Freischütz,' 'Softly sighs,' with which our principal local soprano, Miss Nora Read, won hearty applause, and the week following there were incorporated into the programme two movements from Grieg's Sonata for violoncello and pianoforte, which were charmingly performed by two talented members of the Municipal Orchestra, Mr. H. Wolters and Mr. Montague Birch.

The miscellaneous concerts, too, continue to prove that the absence of performers of certain nationalities incurs but little detriment to high artistic ideals. Madame Clara Butt's hosts of admirers laid veritable siege to the Winter Gardens on November 21, her noble voice evoking unbounded enthusiasm. Yet another visit from the Russian Ballet is to be recorded, a pleasing new ballet, 'Fleurs d'Orange,' being performed for the first time at Bournemouth. On November 25 a delightful pianoforte and song recital by Miss Myra Hess and Mr. J. Campbell McInnes was noteworthy for its appeal to the higher levels of criticism. A Beethoven recital, at which three of the master's violin and pianoforte sonatas were presented, brought together Miss Helen Sealy and M. Vassili Savonov; the latter's pianoforte playing was almost as great as his orchestral conducting. On December 5 Miss Marie Hall revealed her powers in Lalo's 'Symphonie Espagnole' to the best advantage, and on the Wednesday following a recital by M. Arthur de Greef, the Belgian pianist, was full of interest, an excellent programme being brilliantly performed. The terminal concert of the Bournemouth School of Music (of which Mrs. Farnell-Watson and Mr. Hamilton Law are the directors) was given on December 11, when an exacting programme was carried out by the various vocal and instrumental students in a most encouraging manner; a new violin composition by one of the pupils, Frederick C. Senior, showed a nice feeling for melody, and was very favourably received.

Last but not least, the Municipal Choir and Orchestra's first combined concert of the season took place on December 1, Handel's 'Judas Maccabæus' being the selected work. The choir sang with rare dash and vitality, and both Mr. Godfrey, who conducted, and Mr. Thomas J. Crawford, the new chorus-master, deserve much credit. Miss Carrie Tubb, Mr. Frank Mullings, and Mr. Thorpe Bates were the soloists.

BRISTOL AND DISTRICT.

Owing to the buildings being required for the accommodation of troops, the Colston Hall and the Victoria Rooms are not available for concerts. The performances of the Bristol Choral Society have in consequence been cancelled, and other Societies engage smaller halls.

On November 25 the Society of Bristol Gleemen held a concert in the hall of the Grammar School, the proceeds of which were devoted to the Red Cross Society. Most of the compositions were of a martial character, and under the skilful direction of Mr. C. W. Stear excellent performances were given. The Society secured the assistance as soloists of Miss May Peters, Mr. Lionel Venn, and the Bristol Glee Singers (Messrs. Wilfred Gay, L. Venn, Frank Baber, and Alfred Parkman). Mr. Percy Lewis contributed violoncello solos. The large audience, which included the Lord Mayor and Sheriff of the city, were highly gratified with the concert.

Bristol Musical Society on December 5 gave a concert at the Grammar School in aid of the Lord Mayor's Fund. Coleridge-Taylor's 'A Tale of Old Japan' and a miscellaneous selection were interpreted, the soloists being Miss Mary Leighton, Miss Maude Wright, Mr. John Collett, and Mr. David Brazell. Mr. Gilbert Tonkin was at the organ, and there was an efficient orchestra. Mr. C. W. Stear directed the performance, which was an admirable one.

The second Clifton Chamber Concert of the season was held on December 7 at the Royal West of England Academy. The players were Messrs. Herbert Parsons (pianoforte), Maurice Alexander and Edgar Hawke (violin), Alfred Best (viola), and Percy Lewis (violoncello). Fauré's Sonata in A major (Op. 13) for pianoforte and violin, and César Franck's Quartet in D major were agreeably interpreted. Mr. Parsons gratified with solos by Debussy, and Mr. Lewis with a solo by d'Indy.

A concert in aid of the Prince of Wales's Fund was given by Bristol New Philharmonic Society on December 9 in the Grammar School. The principal vocalists were Miss Lilian Dillingham and Mr. Charles Tree, and there was an excellent body of instrumentalists. Mr. Arnold Barter conducted with judgment, and an interesting scheme was admirably carried out. B. J. Dale's 'Before the paling of the stars,' and Parry's 'Blest Pair of Sirens' were given by the choir; it also gave effect to the choruses in Stanford's 'Songs of the Fleet,' which Mr. Tree's capable voice enabled him to render with spirit. The first three movements of Tchaikovsky's 'Pathetic' Symphony were effectively played.

Clevedon Philharmonic Society interested a large audience at the Public Hall on December 1 with a performance of 'Messiah,' under the direction of Mr. Edward Cook. The soloists were Miss Amy Richards, Miss Marian Neale, Mr. W. Cunnington, and Mr. Herbert V. Spiller. The leader of the orchestra was Mr. Frank S. Gardner.

At Knightstone Pavilion, on December 10, the Weston-super-Mare Philharmonic Society gave Mendelssohn's 'St. Paul' in a highly creditable manner, Mr. Edward Cook being the conductor. Miss Lilian Dillingham, Miss Marian Neale, Mr. Sydney Coltham, and Mr. Robert Charlesworth were the soloists. Before the Oratorio was commenced the National Anthems of the Allies, arranged by Arthur Fagge, were effectively delivered.

CAMBRIDGE.

The War has necessitated considerable rearrangement in the concerts for this season. Much to the general regret the performance of Purcell's 'Fairy Queen,' the practices for which had already been commenced during the Long Vacation, has been postponed indefinitely. The University Musical Society Chamber concerts have been abandoned, with the exception of one, which was given on November 11 by Miss Fanny Davies and Mr. Plunket Greene. Miss Davies played Beethoven's Sonata in E major, Op. 109, and pieces by Arne, Purcell, Couperin, Debussy, and Philipp, and a Praeludium by M. van den Gheyn, carillonneur of Louvain in 1721, and Mrs. Plunket Greene sang a varied selection of songs ranging from Boyce to Vaughan Williams. The Musical Society gave a choral and orchestral concert on December 4, when Bach's Motet 'Jesu, Priceless Treasure,' Beethoven's Pianoforte concerto in E flat, Op. 73, 'The Emperor,' with Mr. Edmund Taylor as solo pianist, and a Fantasia on a Tallis theme by Vaughan Williams were performed. In spite of the absence of so many people the numbers in the Society's choir and orchestra have kept up wonderfully well, and with the usual enthusiasm prevailing the concerts promise to be as great a success as ever. The only arrangement so far completed for next term is the concert to be given by the Musical Society on March 12, when Parry's 'Prometheus Unbound' and Dvorák's Symphony, 'From the New World,' are to be performed. It is hoped that two or three chamber concerts may also be given.

The members of the University Musical Club continue to hold their weekly concerts, which so far have been highly successful. On Saturday, November 14, a new String quartet in C major by Dr. Cyril Rootham was performed, and was most enthusiastically received.

DEVON AND CORNWALL.

PLYMOUTH.

Nearly £80 was realised by a concert given at Plymouth on November 25, to provide comforts for the troops of the peace garrison of Plymouth, now serving at the Front. Mrs. Nelson, wife of Brigadier-General E. F. Nelson, C.R.A., was the prime mover, and the main portion of the programme was provided by the Band of the R. G. A., conducted by Mr. R. G. Evans, who managed to secure for the occasion the musicians who were on active service at forts in the district, and thus for the first time for many months had an almost complete band under his baton. The general character of the programme was in sympathy with the mood of the moment, and was given very artistic and discriminative performance. Miss Florence Smith played a pianoforte solo.

St. Levan Ladies' Choir gave a concert of part-songs at Devonport on December 3, in aid of Red Cross Funds, Miss F. George being the trainer of the Choir. In Sherwell church, on December 9, Mr. A. C. Faull gave an organ recital, and the choir sang choruses and anthems, a collection being made for the Belgian Relief Fund. The choir sang with appreciation a scena for baritone solo and chorus, unaccompanied, with organ interludes, composed by Mr. Faull and entitled 'A Vision.'

A 'Sullivan' night was arranged by Mr. D. Parkes in Plymouth on December 7, comprising an interesting and representative programme of part-songs, madrigals, quartets, trios, vocal and instrumental duets, and solos.

OTHER DEVONSHIRE TOWNS.

Classical, popular, and patriotic concerts have provided variety at the Torquay Municipal Pavilion. Several artists have paid visits during the month, including Mlle. Laure Miquel-Alzieu (pianoforte), and Madame Ada Crossley and Miss Marion Beeley (vocalists).

Barnstaple Musical Festival Society, conducted by Dr. H. J. Edwards, turned their usual autumn effort to charitable purposes, and gave a miscellaneous concert on December 7 in aid of the Belgian Fund. The choruses, well chosen and excellently sung, included 'Britons, alert,' 'Land of hope and glory,' and 'It comes from the misty ages' (Elgar); Faning's 'The Vikings,' and Macfarren's 'The three fishers.' Assistance was given in the course of the programme by Dr. Edwards (pianoforte), Mrs. Hall Parlby (violin), Miss Barbara Battishill, Mr. Sydney Harper, and Mr. John Northcote (vocalists), M. de Bourguignon, a Belgian pianist, Mr. E. Manning (organ), and Mr. R. Simper (accompanist). Holsworthy Philharmonic Society, conducted by Mr. F. J. Sluman, gave 'The Messiah' on December 10, with solo assistance from the Misses Ada Tunks and Gertrude Macaulay, and Messrs. A. G. Wills and A. E. Old.

At Dartmouth on December 3 the Operetta 'Princess Zara' was sung under the direction of Mrs. Douglas Dimes.

CORNWALL.

Some interesting male-voice music was sung at Truro on November 18 by Truro People's Palace Male Choir, conducted by Mr. Wallace Smith. 'Music, all powerful,' a Choral March, 'Border ballad,' 'Hard times,' and 'Hymn before action' were sung with attention to expression and technical detail. M. Debevor, a Belgian violoncellist, and others contributed to the programme. Camborne Ladies' Choir and Male-Voice Choir combined to sing patriotic choruses at Camborne on December 3, Messrs. F. E. Lake and H. V. Pearce conducting. Under the direction of Mr. Pendarves Trist, a patriotic concert was given at Falmouth on December 4, in aid of funds for recreation huts for the troops, Miss Ada Thomas, an operatic singer, being the chief attraction.

A band and choir numbering 150 performed 'Judas Maccabæus' at Redruth on December 10, in aid of Belgian relief. Mr. M. Clemens conducted, and the principals were Mlle. de Yaltam, of Belgium, Miss Maria Yelland, and Messrs. A. N. Maynard and C. L. Forrester. St. Day Choral Society, under the direction of the Rev. W. W. Bickford, sang Dr. Vincent's 'Fantasia on National Airs' and part-songs on December 9.

DUBLIN.

The recitals at the Royal Dublin Society during the month have been given, on November 30, by Mr. Alfred Hollins (organ), and on December 14 by the Wessely Quartet. The programme of the latter recital included Dr. Charles Wood's attractive Quartet in A minor (the first performance at Dublin), Beethoven's Quartet Op. 135, and Bach's Double Concerto in D minor, played by Mr. Hans Wessely and Mr. Spencer Dyke, with Mr. C. W. Wilson at the pianoforte. The recitals arranged for November 23 and December 7 by the Petrograd Quartet and the Brodsky Quartet fell through owing to the War. The usual Christmas performances of 'Messiah' have been given in several of the churches, including the Stephen's Green Centenary Methodist Church and Rathmines Parish Church.

At Christ Church Cathedral on Advent Sunday Bach's 'Sleepers, wake' was given with organ and string orchestra accompaniment, and on December 17 Brahms's 'Requiem' was performed with Dr. Percy Buck at the organ and Dr. Kitson conducting the choir and string orchestra. Mr. Gabriel Cleather played the timpani.

The Sunday Orchestral Concerts completed a series of six concerts on December 13. During the month the programmes have included Beethoven's fifth and sixth Symphonies, Schubert's 'Unfinished' Symphony, Tchaikovsky's 'Rococo' Variations (beautifully played by Mr. Clyde Twelvetrees), Bantock's 'Scenes from the Scottish Highlands' (first performance), and Bossi's 'Intermezzi Goldoniani' (first performance). The soloists have been Miss Jean Nolan, Madame Borel, Miss Joan Burke, and Mr. T. W. Hall (vocalists), Mr. H. Leeming (flute), and Mr. Patrick Delany and Signor Simonetti (violin).

Dr. Esposito announces a further series of these concerts, to commence on Sunday, January 10.

EDINBURGH.

A French-Russian programme was submitted at the Orchestral Concerts on November 23. Saint-Saëns's Symphony for orchestra and organ was a great success, with Dr. Ross at the organ. Ravel's 'Mother Goose' Suite was a welcome repetition of last year's success. On November 30 Dr. Vaughan Williams conducted his own 'London Symphony,' and Madame Renée-Chemet created quite a sensation in Lalo's 'Symphonie Espagnole,' for violin and orchestra. M. Dalvarez appeared for the first time at these concerts on December 7, and Tchaikovsky's fourth Symphony met with the usual cordial reception. On December 14 M. Henri Verbrugghen took M. Mlynarski's place as conductor, and gave Beethoven's fifth Symphony according to his revised score. Mr. Philip Halstead gave a very vital reading of Rachmaninov's second Pianoforte concerto, a novelty at these concerts.

The second Harrison Concert on November 28 was well patronised. Miss Edna Thornton, Mr. John Coates, and Miss Fanny Davies were the chief artists. Madame Clara Butt gave a patriotic concert with characteristic success on December 5.

The organ recital series came to a conclusion on December 12 with a return visit of Mr. Edwin Lemare. These recitals have had a wonderful amount of public support in view of the national crisis. Mr. Lumsden is to be congratulated on his enterprise.

GLASGOW.

The Bach Choir, under Mr. J. M. Diack, gave a very interesting concert on November 20, the programme including the Cantata 'Phœbus and Pan' and some chamber music. The Choral Union had announced for November 24 a first performance in this country of Novoviejski's Oratorio 'Quo Vadis?'; but owing to the impossibility meantime of bringing the band parts to this country, Stanford's 'The Revenge' and Cliffe's 'Ode to the North-east wind' were substituted. The performance of the former work was chiefly notable for its vigour, and the singing of the female-voice music in the 'Ode' was remarkably good. M. Mlynarski conducted. At the fourth Classical Concert on December 1 M. Mlynarski secured a magnificent performance of the 'Eroica' Symphony. No less enjoyable was Madame Renée-Chemet's playing of the solo-part in Lalo's 'Symphonie Espagnole' and Saint-Säens's 'Introduction and Rondo Capriceioso' for violin and orchestra. At the fifth concert, on December 8, Glazounov's eighth Symphony, given for the first time here, secured a brilliant performance under M. Mlynarski. The other novelties—Handel's Concerto Grosso No. 1, and two pieces for small orchestra by Delius—were in striking contrast. Madame Margarita d'Alvarez, as vocalist, made a highly successful first appearance here.

The Choral Union, under the very energetic direction of M. Henri Verbrugghen, gave 'Elijah' at the sixth Classical Concert on December 15. Although this was the Union's twenty-first performance of Mendelssohn's choral masterpiece, it proved as acceptable as ever to both choir and audience. The solo music was given by Misses Carrie Tubb and Margaret Balfour and Messrs. John Booth and Frederick Ranalow, and the accompaniments by the Scottish Orchestra, with Mr. W. Forbes Forsyth as organist.

In unaccompanied choral-singing the Glasgow Orpheus Choir (Mr. Hugh S. Roberton) easily takes first place among Scottish choral bodies, and this was again demonstrated at the Choir's annual Scottish concert on December 10. The programme comprised numbers by Scottish composers, choral arrangements of Scottish melodies, and original settings of Scottish subjects. Possibly the outstanding item on the programme both as to conception and execution was Bantock's setting of the Hebridean 'The Seal Woman's Croon.' Mrs. Kennedy-Fraser, Miss Boyd Steven, and Mr. J. W. Ferguson were solo vocalists, and of these Miss Steven's fine singing merits special mention.

The Saturday Popular Orchestral Concerts, as well as the Scottish Orchestra's 'Corporation' Concerts, continue to be splendidly supported. A series of chamber concerts has been given on Thursday evenings at the Royal Glasgow Institute of Fine Arts.

LIVERPOOL AND DISTRICT.

The fifth Philharmonic Concert, on December 1, was conducted by M. Gabriel Pierné, who received a specially warm greeting both as an ally and as a musician of great eminence. He had a congenial task in interpreting Lalo's Overture 'Le Roi d'Ys,' Debussy's 'Nuages' and 'Fêtes,' and three movements of Ravel's Suite 'Ma mère L'Oye.' In Mozart's A major Violin concerto the leader of the orchestra, Mr. Arthur Catterall, had an opportunity for the first time at these concerts of distinguishing himself as a soloist. Mr. Walter Hyde was the vocalist, and sang especially well in 'Four impressions,' by Mr. Landon Ronald, a series of short songs of modern type cleverly orchestrated.

At the third concert of the Symphony Orchestra Schubert's C major Symphony was followed by a selection from Wagner, including the 'Faust' Overture and 'Siegfried Idyll.' Great distinction was given to the programme by the singing of Madame Kirkby Lunn. At the fourth concert, on December 8, Mr. Akeroyd conducted a fine performance of Elgar's 'Variations,' and Miss Isolde Menges played with conspicuous skill and art in Beethoven's Violin concerto with cadenzas by Auer, her master.

Miss Marcelle de Vrin, a Belgian vocalist, sang with dramatic effect at the fourth concert of the Rodewald Club on November 23, at which Mr. H. Van Damme (violoncello) and Dr. Stanley Dale (pianoforte) collaborated well in various works. At the fifth concert, on December 14, the Misses Isabel, Mary, and Helena McCullagh, three well-known local players on the violin, violoncello, and pianoforte respectively, gave delightful performances of a trio 'Caprice,' by Paul Juon, 'Tema con Variazioni,' by Tchaikovsky (Op. 50), and Beethoven's Trio in D (Op. 70, No. 1).

An address on 'Leschetizky's method of pianoforte playing' was given on November 20 to the local branch of the Music Teachers' Association by Mr. Isidor Leo Pavia, a British-born musician who had studied under the Viennese master. The speaker considered that the Sandow-like force cultivated by many modern pianists was responsible for the lack of delicacy and of individuality of playing which were cultivated by the Leschetizky method. He believed that the war would have a really good effect on the British musical profession, for the British teacher was quite as capable and not so expensive as his Continental confrère, who invariably condemned all music by British composers. Leschetizky pupils had not only to avoid all British music but also that of Brahms. The speaker considered that the musical 'atmosphere' of Germany and Austria was much overrated.

One of the largest audiences on record assembled in the Philharmonic Hall, on November 28, at Madame Clara Butt's concert in aid of the fund founded for the purpose of securing employment for necessitous members of the musical profession. The concert-giver was assisted by Mr. Percy Heming, Miss Molly Blower, and Miss Essie Faulkner (violin duets), Mr. W. H. Squire (violoncello), and Miss Constance Collier (recitations). £58 was raised by the sale of Union Jacks during the interval.

Mr. Adrian Boult's four popular orchestral concerts, in the Sun Hall, gradually gained ground in public favour, and both the programmes and the performances maintained a high level.

Brahms's 'Requiem' was sung on December 13 by the choir of St. Lukes's in a manner reflecting credit on the large voluntary choir of this city church, and on the energetic organist, Mr. Walter G. Withers.

Wolf-Ferrari's opera, 'The jewels of the Madonna,' as produced at Liverpool for the first time, on December 4, by the Carl Rosa Opera Company. It cannot be said that the work was received with special favour. Apart from the fascinating entr'actes, the music gave few impressions of beauty or of real dramatic force in depicting the melodramatic features of the composer's own libretto, of which the story of sacrilege, lawless love, and tragedy is unedifying. The opera was well-staged, and evidently no pains had been spared in its preparation. A line of appreciation is due to the performance of Miss Beatrice Miranda (Maliella), Mr. Edward Davies (Gennaro), and Mr. Hebden Foster (Rafaele). Mr. Eugene Goossens conducted.

Following on the Carl Rosa Company's visit, the Joseph O'Mara Opera Company occupied the Bootle Metropole Theatre and gave a week's performances of familiar works, including 'Carmen,' in which Miss Zélie de Lussan, Mr. Llewys James, and Mr. O'Mara appeared.

The Walton Philharmonic Society, which continues to thrive apace under Mr. Albert Orton, chose Cliffe's 'Ode to the North-east Wind' and Coleridge-Taylor's 'Death of Minnehaha' for its concert on December 16, at which the principal singers were Madame Cearns Owen and Mr. J. C. Brien. Beethoven's Pianoforte concerto in B flat, Op. 19, was lucidly played by Mr. Orton, accompanied by the small orchestra.

There is considerable choral activity in the district of Wallasey, where they not only support a Gentlemen's Glee Club, conducted by Mr. Wilfred Shaw, but also a Ladies' Choral Society, recently formed under the direction of Mr. R. T. Edwards. The Glee Club is suffering the temporary loss of many members who have joined the Colours, but at the recent concert, which the Mayor of Wallasey and the Belgian Consul attended, the members remaining were agreeably heard in an interesting selection of male-voice glees. A third Society, the Liscard Choral, which has also been recently formed, sang 'The Messiah' in the Liscard Concert Hall on December 12. The vocal principals were Madame Cearns Owen, Miss Craggs James, Mr. Herbert Pope, and Mr. J. C. Brien. Mr. Percy Coller conducted. Performances have also been given by the Wallasey Male-Voice Choir of thirty voices, conducted by Mr. Henry Roberts, and also by the Liscard Orchestral Society, at whose concert on December 5 Stanford's Prelude to 'Œdipus Rex' was played, and Miss Marjorie Balmforth appeared as solo pianist.

A new instrumental combination, Mr. Fred Hanley's Orchestra, made its début in the New Brighton Assembly Rooms on December 16, when Miss Edith Byrom played in Grieg's Pianoforte concerto and Miss A. Newton-Hague sang.

The sixth Philharmonic Concert on December 15 was devoted to a first performance in England of Pierné's musical legend, 'The Children's Crusade,' a setting of Marcel Schwob's poem based on a pathetic legend of the 13th century. In 1904 it was awarded a special prize by the City of Paris, which offers every three years a prize of 10,000 francs for a musical composition in large form.

M. Pierné's work, which is divided into four scenes, is orchestrally one of great descriptive and dramatic power, with an interwoven choral part on a big and elaborate scale. In the modernity of its expression, harmonic complexity, and newness, the music makes demands upon the hearer as well as upon the executive forces which a single performance, however meritorious, could not entirely justify. It was evident that great efforts had been made in the preparation of this immensely difficult music, with results as satisfactory as humanly possible. The list of soloists was a lengthy one, and included Miss Esta d'Argo and Miss Caroline Hatchard, with four highly competent local singers, Miss Edith McCullagh, Miss Norah Dall, Miss Helen Anderton, and Miss Hilda Craggs James. Mr. John Harrison and Mr. Robert Radford sang the tenor and baritone music respectively, and the part for the children was extremely well sung by seventy-five boys supplied by the Church Choir Association. The composer, who conducted his complex score with inspiring confidence, received enthusiastic applause.

The Institute of Archæology (Faculty of Arts), of Liverpool University has established a fellowship in the Archæology of Music. This is, we believe, the first instance of Academic support and recognition that has been accorded to this branch of music. The position has been offered to Miss Kathleen Schlesinger, and has been accepted by her. Miss Schlesinger is a well-known expert in all that pertains to the early evolution of music. Her lectures and writings (some of which have appeared in the Musical Times) place her in the front rank of investigators.

MANCHESTER AND DISTRICT.

Viewed in retrospect, the first half of the current season has revealed the undoubted fact that the War has made us all feel our music with greater keenness—not perhaps with greater zest, because one cannot get away from the fact that music seems an almost culpable joy in face of the European turmoil and desolation—but the message of great music is coming home to the average man or woman as never before, and where heroic feeling is the dominant note, conductor, players and audience have been swept up to heights not before reached in our generation. I think it may be stated with perfect fairness that the two Hallé concerts conducted by Beecham have excelled all others by virtue of the freshness of the music, the manner of its performance, and the public recognition of the fact. From now to the end of March the Hallé concerts will be conducted by Beecham, Cowen, Bantock, Hamilton Harty, Verbrugghen, R. H. Wilson (chorus-master), and Albert Coates.

It may interest many of their friends to know that Dr. Brodsky is interned at Raabs, near Vienna, and Carl Fuchs at Ruhleben, near Berlin, where he has Frederic Lamond for companion in distress; Egon Petri, although of pure Dutch birth, is also detained at Berlin. On November 19 Savonov conducted a series of well-known works at Hallé's—his first appearance at Manchester, though not in Lancashire. Probably most concert-goers here thought they knew their Tchaikovsky 'Pathetic' very well indeed until Savonov came and illumined its well-known features, much as one of Colburn's portrait-photographs of famous men throws absolutely fresh light upon a physiognomy thoroughly familiar to us all—this or that unsuspected aspect of his features being thrown into higher prominence, another one toned down, with a result that is nothing less than a complete revelation. Savonov took inordinate pains at rehearsal with his reading of the great 'Leonora No. 3' Overture, particularly of the first section, but slowness to the point of deliberation marred the perspective of the whole, for surely here, if anywhere, the necessity for just proportion is of paramount importance.

November 26 brought Rossini's 'Stabat Mater' and Mendelssohn's 'Hymn of Praise,' with Misses Esta d'Argo, Mabel Corran, and Annie Middleton, and Messrs. Frank Mullings and Thorpe Bates as soloists. Mr. R. H. Wilson conducted.

Beecham's programme on December 3 was characteristically fresh, containing Balakirev's 'Thamar' ballet-poem and a longish selection from Delius's 'Village Romeo and Juliet.' Recognition of Delius's orchestral gifts has been extraordinarily slow at Manchester. His 'Sea-drift' was given here (the night after the first performance of Elgar's Symphony No. 1) to an audience of less than three hundred, and in the interval I can only recall the playing of 'Brigg Fair' and 'Appalachia.' Delius was present on December 3, as on the 'Sea-drift' occasion, and we may hope that our warm recognition of the beauty of his writing will obliterate to some extent the (to us as well as to him) bitter memory of the earlier occasion. It is some gratification to learn that on January 7 we are to gain further acquaintance with the work of this rare spirit in English music, Beecham having promised to include the 'Paris' Poem. The Misses Beatrice and May Harrison gave the Brahms double Violin-violoncello concerto with marvellously beautiful tone and style. No previous playing of the work here could compare for a moment with it, whether regarded from the executive or interpretative point of view. Saint-Saëns's organ-cum-pianoforte-cum-orchestra C minor Symphony was interesting as a show-piece for the players, if somewhat unsatisfying æsthetically.

On December 10 Cowen introduced his Gloucester Festival 'Phantasy of Love and Life,' and Mr. R. J. Forbes boldly challenged comparison with the giants by selecting for his first appearance at these concerts the Tchaikovsky Pianoforte concerto. Only in the second movement was the result completely satisfying.

'Messiah,' on December 17, brought to a close the first half of this momentous season.

Mr. Percy Harrison's November concert gave us three fine singers in Miss Ruth Vincent, Miss Edna Thornton, and Mr. John Coates, but little of outstanding musical worth, this feature being more amply provided in the playing of Miss Fanny Davies.

The second Bowdon Chamber Concert, on December 5, should have brought the St. Petersburg Quartet, but War conditions necessitated the substitution of the Geloso party, who repeated their recent playing of the Debussy, and also gave five 'Noveletten' of Glazounov. Miss Caroline Hatchard sang some new songs by J. B. McEwen to poems by Verlaine, Austin Dobson, and Constance Turner.

The Municipal Concerts, under the artistic guidance of the City organist, Dr. J. Kendrick Pyne, were started on December 2. As is not infrequently the case, municipal bodies think they have only to plaster up a notice at the Town Hall and ratepayers will flock to hear, and this painfully unenterprising policy resulted in an audience unworthy of the occasion; at subsequent concerts this defect was remedied. Dr. Pyne's antiquarian researches have brought to light many items which rarely (perhaps never) would have been performed under modern conditions. Corelli, Pergolesi, Purcell, Maurice Greene, and Orlando Gibbons were some of the early composers drawn upon; Beethoven's 'Grand Septuor' and Bach's 'Actus Tragicus' have been the works of greatest dimensions thus far performed, but our Town Hall is not a fitting room for a Bach cantata with Bach's meagre accompaniment.

The mid-day Cathedral organ recitals on Tuesdays have not been given this winter, but Dr. Pyne has filled the breach by playing from 1.0 to 1.50 p.m. to business men who can snatch a hurried lunch and enjoy their music before going on change; it was a gratifying experience to find so many faces familiar enough as cotton, yarn or cloth buyers and sellers 'on the boards' appreciating, say, Rheinberger's E minor Sonata, instead of a smoke and coffee over a game of dominoes.

The music sub-committee of the Parks Committee of the Manchester Corporation is already making arrangements for choral concerts next summer on selected recreation grounds and in open spaces in the crowded districts of the city. There is still opportunity for choirs to offer services, so that the number of such concerts may be increased.

The recital of M. Joseph Jongen, the Liège organist, at the University on December 9, unhappily clashed with one of Dr. Pyne's Municipal Concerts and an unusually interesting programme missed its full measure of appreciation.

Passing mention must be made of the Manchester Musical Society's Concert on December 11, when the Misses Truman, of Nottingham, paid a return visit, giving works for two pianofortes by Max Bruch, Saint-Säens, and Grieg.

The orchestral concert on December 16 of Mr. Cross's School of Music included, for the first time here, Elgar's 'Crown of India' Suite and Percy Fletcher's 'Prelude to an unwritten Symphony.' The operatic class are at work on Auber's 'Fra Diavolo.'

NEWCASTLE AND DISTRICT.

The Darlington Choral and Orchestral Society gave their first concert in the Court Kinema on December 8, when a programme of patriotic music was sung by the choir, with Mr. Montague Borwell as soloist. The part-songs included the National Anthems of our Allies, 'Rule, Britannia,' 'The Minstrel Boy,' Pierson's 'Ye Mariners of England,' and Cooke's 'How sleep the brave.' Mr. Borwell, who was received with great enthusiasm by the audience, sang Handel's 'Revenge, Timotheus cries,' and 'Arm! arm, ye brave,' Walford Davies's fine 'Hymn before action,' and Elgar's 'Land of Hope and Glory.' The orchestra played Mozart's 'Paris' Symphony in D, Weber's 'Jubilee' Overture, Enna's 'Little Match Girl' Prelude, and two of Grieg's Norwegian Dances. There was a crowded audience.

The Darlington Chamber Music Society's second concert was given in the Mechanics' Hall on October 27 by the Verbrugghen String Quartet, who played Beethoven's Op. 18, No. 4 in C minor, Op. 59, No. 1, and the Variations on an air by Tchaikovsky from Arensky's Quartet in A minor. The same performers, with the assistance of Miss Dorothy Silk (vocalist) and Mr. Paul Kilburn, gave the chamber concert of the Auckland Musical Society on October 25, and that of the Middlesbrough Musical Union on October 26. The inclusion of several songs by Hugo Wolf in the former programme, sung in German, resulted in some patriotic correspondence in a local newspaper during the week following.

The Union of Wesleyan Choirs in the district gave a performance of Handel's 'Messiah' in the Town Hall, Middlesbrough, on December 9, conducted by Mr. R. G. Thompson. The choir, numbering 1,000 voices, gave a notable performance of the choruses, especially 'Worthy is the Lamb' and the 'Amen.' There have been numerous patriotic concerts in the district, one of the most striking being that of the Darlington Burns Association on December 2, in which several local Belgian refugees took part. The Haughton-le-Skerne Choral Society gave their first concert on December 9, singing Bridge's 'Flag of England,' and Somervell's 'Charge of the Light Brigade.'

NOTTINGHAM AND DISTRICT.

The visit of Madame Clara Butt on November 17 took the shape of a 'civic' performance, attended by the Mayor and Sheriff. The great singer was assisted by Miss Constance Collier, Mr. Percy Heming, Mr. W. H. Squire, Miss Molly Blawer, Miss Essie Faulkner, Mr. A. E. Godfrey, and Mr. Harold Craxton. The choir of the Sacred Harmonic Society, under Mr. Allen Gill, also lent valuable aid.

Miss Cantelo's chamber concert took place on November 19, when she was assisted by the London String Quartet. The programme included Tchaikovsky's Quartet in D, Brahms's Quartet in G minor, and compositions by Speaight and Percy Grainger. Miss Cantelo selected as solo Liszt's 'Legende de St. Francis de Paule.'

The Sacred Harmonic Society are to be heard on February 25, when Wesley's 'In exitu Israel,' Bach's 'Sing ye to the Lord,' and Mendelssohn's 'Hear my prayer' are to be given, with Miss Emily Shepherd as soloist. The same Society will also give an orchestral concert on February 4, when the programme will include two movements from Tchaikovsky's 'Pathetic' Symphony, Guilmant's Organ concerto in D, with Mr. Bernard Johnson at the organ, and Miss Florence Mellors as vocalist.

'Elijah' was given at St. Augustine's, New Basford, on November 22, when the solos were undertaken by Miss Edith Rayson, Miss Nellie Lowe, Mr. E. Lowe, and Mr. Charles Keywood. Mr. G. W. A. Hollings was at the organ.

Brahms's 'Requiem' was selected for performance on November 29 by the Albert Hall Choir, in memory of those who have fallen in the War. Mr. Allen Gill conducted, Mr. Bernard Johnson presided at the organ, and the soloists were Miss Florence Mellors and Mr. Harold Glover.

Mr. Bernard Johnson gave a 'Saint-Saëns Recital' on December 6. The programme included the Pianoforte concerto in G minor (the solo part being ably interpreted by Miss Irene Truman), the Fantasie in E flat, Op. 101, and the 'Danse Macabre,' Op. 40.

The University College concert this year will be given on March 18, when C. H. Lloyd's 'Hero and Leander' will form the first part, and the second, with a mainly orchestral programme, will include Mendelssohn's 'Italian' Symphony.

OXFORD.

All the more important concerts and musical doings have been abandoned this term, as both the Town Hall and the Examination Schools have been turned into hospitals. The entertainments—many quite informal—which have been given have been mainly for the very large number of Belgian refugees who have come here to find a temporary home. However, concerts and entertainments of such a miscellaneous type need scarcely be chronicled in an essentially musical journal, but there is one event, the lecture by the Professor of Music, Sir Walter Parratt, which was given in the Hall of the New College on December 1, on 'War Music,' which was altogether of great interest. The Professor began by saying that from the very earliest times—from the throbs of the savage drum—to the present day war music had been a favourite subject with composers. He played a number of examples on the pianoforte, amongst them the noble 'Agincourt Song,' the martial music from 'Judas Maccabæus' and 'Joshua,' and Beethoven's 'Battle of Vittoria.' A very interesting 'Battle piece on the Virginals' by Byrd calls for more than passing notice, this being from the Library of Christ Church, and lent to the lecturer for the occasion by the Dean, Dr. Strong. Amongst other sections it contains 'The Souldiers Sommons,' 'The Marche of Footemen,' 'The Marche of Horsmen,' 'Now foloweth the trumpetts,' 'The Irishe Marche,' 'The bagpipe and the drone.' As further illustrations, the ever-fresh and delightful 'Come, if you dare' by Purcell, and Clement Jannequin's extraordinary 'Battaille de Marignan' were well-performed by a small choir under Dr. Allen's able direction. The Professor brought the lecture to a close with the remark that though he had been assured that the Germans had quite recently composed over forty war marches in honour of General von Hindenberg and his unfinished victories, he ventured to think it might be premature to give extracts from them yet, especially to a non-military audience.

SHEFFIELD AND DISTRICT.

'Elijah' appears to be by common consent a suitable work for the present troubled times. Two more important performances are to be recorded. The Sheffield Amateur Musical Society adopted it for their winter concert on December 15, in place of 'St. Paul,' originally chosen. Sir Henry Wood conducted a highly vitalised and in many ways an interesting performance. His adoption of slower tempi in many movements made for a more serious and dignified reading, while he never permitted it to detract from either the vividness or the dramatic force of the music. The choir of this old-established Society, now entering its second half-century, is better than ever. A reduction of sopranos and an influx of tenors have at last secured an ideal balance. There was a competent orchestra, drawn mainly from local sources. The soloists were Miss Ada Forrest, Miss Violet Oppenshaw, Mrs. J. A. Rodgers, Mr. Webster Millar, and Mr. Robert Charlesworth. Their intelligent singing was quite at one with the high spirit of the performance. Mr. J. W. Phillips was organist.

The same work was given at Barnsley by the St. Cecilia Society. The choir was smaller than usual, but there was in the singing the enthusiasm one expects always from this Society. Mr. Joseph Soar secured an expressive interpretation, and controlled his forces with a firm hand. The soloists were Miss Edith Groat, Miss Amy Durant, Mr. G. R. Barnett, and Mr. Topliss Green.

The Sheffield Choral Union and the Sheffield Symphony Orchestra (No. 2) joined forces in a varied concert given in the Albert Hall. The Orchestra, which is in the main a training ground for the senior branch of the Society, played very precisely in Suites by Coleridge-Taylor and Cowen, and in Ansell's 'Plymouth Hoe' Overture and Elgar's 'Serenade Lyrique.' They also co-operated with the choir in the Polonaise from Glinka's 'A life for the Tsar.' The choir sang with good tone and expression in a group of part-songs by Elgar. Mr. J. H. Parkes and Mr. E. A. Jessop conducted.

Mr. Thomas Beecham made his first visit to Sheffield as an orchestral conductor, and led the Hallé Orchestra through the labyrinthine beauties of Bantock's 'Fifine at the Fair,' which was strongly and yet sympathetically played. The work made a deep impression. Delius's 'Paris' and Saint-Saens's Symphony in C minor for orchestra and organ were also played. 'Paris' rather missed fire, owing to the difficulty of its comprehension. A work so beautiful and individual should soon be heard here again, and no doubt Mr. Beecham, who met with a cordial reception, will see to it. Mr. J. W. Phillips was organist.

A visit by the Henkel Quartet, who played works by Tanéïèv (in E), W. Y. Hurlstone, and Mozart (in G minor), proved as successful as it was interesting. The concert was organized by the University Musical Society. The Brunswick Choir, conducted by Mr. W. A. Hamer, gave a deeply reverent performance of Spohr's 'The Last Judgment.'

YORKSHIRE.

LEEDS.

Two more of the Leeds Saturday Orchestral concerts call for mention, and it is satisfactory to record that their popularity seems on the increase, very large audiences having been attracted by those already given. The programme on November 28 was just what the occasion demanded; all of it was good, but each piece was a recognized favourite with the musical public. Franck's Symphony was the exception, being new to Leeds, but it was well played under Mr. Fricker's direction, and seemed to make a distinct impression. Tchaikovsky's Pianoforte concerto in B flat minor is, on the other hand, fairly familiar in the town, and being exactly suited to the dashing execution and impetuous style of Mr. Frederick Dawson—who is very popular in his native town—it excited much enthusiasm. The orchestra of local musicians has improved of late years, and in the opening of the 'Oberon' Overture achieved a result worthy of a crack orchestra in its perfect refinement and finish. At the concert on December 12 Dvorák's 'From the New World' was the Symphony, and Mr. Robert Radford sang in impressive fashion the Scene of 'Wotan's farewell,' Stanford's first Irish Rhapsody being among the other things in an equally interesting programme. The Leeds Choral Union's performance of 'Hiawatha' on November 19, briefly mentioned last month, was a distinct success, and must be numbered among the Society's happiest efforts. For the present it is contenting itself, perhaps wisely, with familiar works, and on December 15 gave 'Elijah,' with Madame Gleeson-White, Miss Elsie Ford, Mr. Frank Mullings and Mr. William Hayle as principals, Dr. Coward conducting the performance. Miss Fanny Davies's playing was the most striking feature of the Harrison Concert on December 1. At the Leeds Parish Church the customary Advent performance of Brahms's 'German Requiem' took place on December 8, and Mr. W. H. Williams secured a sympathetic and reverent treatment of the work. The soprano solo was sung by six boys, and Mr. Hayle gave an artistic reading of the baritone solos. The Bohemian Chamber Concert on December 16 introduced Beethoven's fine Quartet, in F minor (Op. 95), Dvorák's Op. 105, and a Quartet by the late Mr. Arthur Grimshaw, a Leeds musician, whose premature death is greatly regretted. This Quartet had already been heard at these concerts, and

THE MORRIS BOOK

A HISTORY OF MORRIS DANCING WITH A DESCRIPTION OF DANCES AS PERFORMED BY THE MORRIS-MEN OF ENGLAND.

By CECIL J. SHARP and HERBERT C. MACILWAINE.

PART I. (Second Edition). Containing a description, &c. of the Dances in Sets I. & II. of Traditional MORRIS DANCE TUNES.

PART II. Containing a description, &c., of the Dances in Sets III. and IV. of Traditional MORRIS DANCE TUNES.

PART III. Containing a description, &c., of the Dances in Sets V. and VI. of Traditional MORRIS DANCE TUNES.

PART IV. Containing a description, &c., of the Dances in Sets VII. and VIII. of Traditional MORRIS DANCE TUNES.

PART V.

Containing a description, &c., of the Dances in Sets IX. and X. of Traditional MORRIS DANCE TUNES.

Price, Two Shillings and Sixpence each Part. Cloth, Three Shillings and Sixpence each Part.

MORRIS DANCE TUNES

ARRANGED WITH PIANOFORTE ACCOMPANIMENT.

Price Two Shillings each Set.

SET I. (Second Edition.)

Bean Setting (Stick Dance).
Laudnum Bunches (Corner Dance).
Country Gardens (Handkerchief Dance).
Constant Billy (Stick Dance).
Trunkles (Corner Dance).
Rigs o' Marlow (Stick Dance).
How d'ye do? (Corner Dance)
Tideswell Processional (Morris).

SET II. (Second Edition.)

Blue-Eyed Stranger (Handkerchief Dance).
The Maid of the Mill (Linked Handkerchief Dance).
The Old Woman tossed up (Handkerchief Dance).
Shepherd's Hey (Stick or Hand-Clapping Dance).
The Cuckoo's Nest (Stick, or Hand-Clapping Dance).
The Black Joke (Stick, or Hand-Clapping Dance).
Tideswell Processional Morris

SET III.

Morris On, or Hey Diddle Dis.
Hunting the Squirrel (Stick Dance).
Getting Upstairs (Handkerchief Dance).
Double Set Back (Handkerchief Dance).
Haste to the Wedding (Handkerchief Dance).
Rodney (Stick Dance).
Processional Morris.

SET IV.

Morris On, or Hey Diddle Dis.
Jockie to the Fair.
Old Mother Oxford.
Old Woman Tossed up in a Blanket.
Bacca Pipes Jig.
Processional Morris.

SET V.

Flowers of Edinburgh (Handkerchief Dance)
The Maid of the Mill (Handkerchief Dance).
The Maid of the Mill (Handkerchief Dance) Alternative Version.
Bobbing Joe (Handkerchief Dance).
Shepherd's Hey (Handkerchief Dance). 2nd Version.
Glorishears (Handkerchief Dance).
The Gallant Hussar (Handkerchief Dance).
Leap-Frog (Handkerchief Dance).

SET VI.

Shooting (Stick Dance).
Brighton Camp (Handkerchief Dance).
Green Garters (Handkerchief Dance).
Princess Royal (Jig).
Lumps of Plum Pudding (Jig).
The Fool's Dance (Jig).
Derbyshire Morris Dance (Handkerchief Dance).
Derbyshire Morris Reel (Handkerchief Dance).

SET VII.

The Old Woman tossed up in a Blanket (Handkerchief Dance),
The Cuckoo's Nest (Handkerchief Dance).
The Monks' March (Heel-and-Toe Dance).
Lads a-Bunchun (Corner Dance).
Longborough Morris, or Hey Diddle Dis (Handkerchief Dance)
London Pride (Handkerchief Dance).
Swaggering Boney (Corner Dance).
Young Collins (Handkerchief Dance).
The Rose (Handkerchief Dance).
Field Town Morris (Handkerchief Dance).

SET VIII.

Heel-and-Toe (Handkerchief Dance).
Bobby and Joan (Stick Dance).
Banks of the Dee (Handkerchief Dance).
Dearest Dicky (Corner Dance).
Step Back (Handkerchief Dance).
I'll go and enlist for a Sailor (Jig).
Sherborne Jig (Jig).
Princess Royal (Jig). 2nd Version.
None so pretty (Jig).

SET IX.

Old Black Joe (Handkerchief Dance, Badby Tradition)
The Beaux of London City (Stick Dance, Badby Tradition).
The Gallant Hussar (Handkerchief Dance, Bledington Tradition).
Trunkles, 2nd Version (Corner Dance, Bledington Tradition).
William and Nancy (Handkerchief Dance, Bledington Tradition).
Leap-Frog (Handkerchief Dance, Bledington Tradition).
Lumps of Plum Pudding, 2nd Version (Jig, Bledington Tradition)
Ladies' Pleasure (Jig, Bledington Tradition).
Helston Furry Dance (Processional).

SET X.

Bonny Green (Handkerchief Dance, Bucknell Tradition)
Room for the Cuckoo (Hand-clapping Dance, Bucknell Tradition).
The Queen's delight (Corner Dance, Bucknell Tradition).
Saturday Night (Progressive Dance, Bucknell Tradition).
Bonnets so Blue (Jig, Bucknell Tradition).
Constant Billy, 2nd Version (Handkerchief Dance, Longborough Tradition).
Shepherd's Hey, 4th Version (Handkerchief Dance, Field Town Tradition).
Leap Frog, 2nd Version (Handkerchief Dance, Field Town Tradition)
Wyresdale Greensleeves Dance (Three-Men Dance)
Castleton Garland Dance (Processional).

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

This Supplement is part also of the January issue of THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW, and can be obtained with the REVIEW, price 1½*d.*

The Competition Festival Record

No. 78.

MANX MUSIC FESTIVAL.—March 23, 24, 25.

The syllabus of the twenty-fourth annual Festival is now issued. It gives particulars of the tests selected for fifty-seven classes. In the open, Mixed-Voice Choral Society Class the tests are the Cantata 'The Battle of the Baltic' (Stanford) and the choral song 'Love's Tempest' (Elgar)—one of the set recently published. In the chief Male-Voice Choir section the tests are 'The Reveille' (Elgar) and 'The Hag' (S. E. Lovat). In the open Pianoforte Solo Class Brahms's Rhapsody in G minor (Op. 71, No. 2) is down. This is a severe test, but no doubt some of the Isle of Man pianists will live up to it. Except in the two chief choral classes the competitions are only open to residents in the Isle of Man. The secretary is Mr. W. A. Craine, North Cliff, Douglas, Isle of Man.

CLEVELEYS (BLACKPOOL).—November 20 and 21.

This event appealed mostly to juniors. It represents the laudable desire of Mr. Joseph Slater to keep matters alive, especially as the great Blackpool Festival was abandoned this year. The following were the chief results :

Pianoforte (under 16).—Test : 'Salut d'amour' (Elgar).—1st, George Altham.

Pianoforte (Open).—Test : 'Etude de concert,' Op. 36 (MacDowell).—1st, Frederick Gardener.

Violin (Open) (under 16 years).—Test : 'Simple Aveu' (Thome).—1st, Edna Hodgson.

Violin (Open).—Test : 'Concerto No. 9' (De Beriot).—1st, Donis Eglin.

SOLO-SINGING.

Boys.—Test : 'Jerusalem' (Mendelssohn).—1st, Harold Gosling.

Soprano.—Test : 'Solveig's Song' (Grieg).—1st, Miss Hilda C. Whipp.

Contralto.—Test : 'Where corals lie' (Elgar).—1st, Miss Emily Woodward.

Baritone.—Test : Recit. and Air, 'O star of eve' (Wagner).—1st, Mr. Walter Haythornthwaite.

The adjudicators were Mr. Herbert Whittaker and Mr. Joseph Slater.

PLYMOUTH.—December 1 and 2.

This famous town is one of the few that determined to hold its Festival (which was inaugurated this year) notwithstanding the discouragement of the War. The result fully justified the committee in their decision. Adult choirs were missing, but in a number of other classes there were no fewer than 222 entries from all parts of Devon, and good audiences were attracted. We give the chief results of the competition :

PIANOFORTE (JUNIOR). 15 entries.
Test : 'Bagatelle' (Beethoven).
1st. Miss H. M. Jones.

PIANOFORTE (SENIOR). 28 entries.
Test : 'Album leaf in A flat' (Hiller).
1st. Miss Catherine E. Pile.

PIANOFORTE (ADVANCED). 11 entries.
Test : 'Fantaisie Impromptu' (Chopin).
1st. Miss H. G. Ricketts.

SIGHT-READING. 13 entries.
Test : Accompanying violin solo.
1st. Miss D. M. Porter.

VIOLIN (under 15 years). 4 entries.
Test : 'Concerto in G' (Seitz).
1st. Miss A. G. L. Webb.

VIOLIN (over 15 years). 6 entries.
Test : 'Mazurka in D' (Borovski).
1st. Mr. S. M. Robins.

SOLO-SINGING.

SOPRANO OR MEZZO-SOPRANO (under 16 years). 18 entries.
Test : 'The first violet' (Mendelssohn).
Girls—1st. Miss V. L. Axford.
Boys—1st. L. Gully.

SOPRANO OR MEZZO-SOPRANO (over 16 years). 15 entries.
Test : 'Solveig's song' (Grieg).
1st. Miss H. Burstow.

CONTRALTO. 12 entries.
Test : 'None will know' (Landon Ronald).
1st. Miss Enid Cruickshank.

(Miss Cruickshank obtained the highest marks awarded to any competitor.)

BARITONE OR BASS—3 entries.
Tests : 'Son of mine' (Wallace).
'The rebel' (Wallace).
1st. Mr. J. Collier.

GOLD MEDAL CLASS.
(For senior soprano, contralto, and baritone.)
1st. Miss Cruickshank.

HIGH AND SECONDARY SCHOOL CHOIRS. 2 entries.
Tests : Boys—'Greeting' (Mendelssohn).
Girls—'Twelve by the clock' (Lloyd).
Sight-reading.
1st. St. Dunstan's Abbey Girls.

ELEMENTARY SCHOOL CHOIRS (over 11 years). 4 entries.
Tests : Boys—'Drake's drum' (S. Coleridge-Taylor).
Girls—'Oh ! the summer' (S. Coleridge-Taylor).
1st. St. Peter's Boys' School.
2nd. Hyde Park Road Girls' School.

ELEMENTARY SCHOOL CHOIRS (under 11 years).
Tests : Boys—'Blow, blow, thou winter wind' (Arne).
Girls—'A rose song' (Parker).
1st. Stuart Road Girls' School.
2nd. Hyde Park Road Girls' School.

Dr. Arthur Somervell was the adjudicator. Mrs. Waldorf Astor distributed the prizes. Mr. J. H. Lucas, the honorary secretary, has every reason to be satisfied with the results of his labours.

'ST. CECILIA' WORKING GIRLS' CLUBS SINGING COMPETITION.—December 12.

THIRTEENTH COMPETITION.

This event was held at Whitefield's Tabernacle in Tottenham Court Road, London, W. The entries were excellent, and the success of the competition was an ample justification of the policy of Mrs. Lousada (the chief promoter) and her committee in determining to go on as usual notwithstanding the War. Surely nothing but good could arise from these three or four hundred young women being occupied in earnest and cheering musical study ! The social influence of the rehearsals must necessarily have been great, and the prospect of meeting one another at the combined gathering must have provided a healthy moral stimulus.

The choirs were grouped into two divisions. We give some criticisms and all the marks obtained :

INTERMEDIATE DIVISION.

Tests :

Unison songs :

(a) 'The crystal spring' (Old Somerset).

(b) 'It was a lover and his lass' (Thomas Morley).

(c) 'To carry the milking pail' (Old English).

(100 marks for these three pieces.)

Two-part song : 'In praise of May' (John Ireland). (40 marks.)

Sight-singing test, in unison ; either notation. (The marks in this optional section were not reckoned in the total.)

Name of Club.	Marks. Songs (a) (b) (c)	2-part song. (d)	Total.	Reading.
Alexandra (London — Madame Amy Dewhurst)	81	78	159	—
Sunbeam (Bermondsey — Miss Rickwood and Miss Horne) ...	84	69	153	32
St. Philip's (Bethnal Green—Mr. J. F. Warner)	74	67	141	32
Beatrice (Notting Hill—Miss Ryan)	73	74	147	33
Queen Victoria (Lambeth—Miss K. Evans)	72	66	138	35
St. Ursula (Whitechapel—Mr. William Holmes)	82	84	166	39
All Hallows (Southwark—Mr. A. V. Cox)	90	80	170	—
Kilburn (Miss Phillips Keely) ...	92	90	182	36
Cornwall (Lambeth—Miss E. M. Yates)	83	83	166	36
Millbank (Westminster — Miss Effie Cass)	81	72	153	26
Salamanca (Lambeth—Miss Lyon)	74	63	137	26
West Central (St. Pancras and Soho—Mr. Harvey Grace) ...	86	88	174	36

ADVANCED DIVISION.

Tests :

Two parts : (a) 'Over hill, over dale' (Ch. Lloyd).

Three parts : (b) 'The Little Sandman' (Brahms). (Arr. for trio by John E. West.)

(c) 'Highland laddie' (unacc.) (Arr. by Granville Bantock).

Sight-singing (in two parts).

(100 marks each piece and 40 for sight-singing.)

Name of Club.	Marks. Songs. (a)	(b)	(c)	Reading.	Total.
St. Paul's (Herne Hill—Mr. F. J. Buckle) ...	79	79	82	36	276
Roehampton (Lambeth—Mr. George Grace) ...	84	83	89	38	294
Marylebone (Miss E. M. G. Reed)	83	94	83	33	293
West Central (St. Pancras and Soho—Mr. Harvey Grace)	91	87	87	37	302
Passmore Edwards (St. Pancras—Mr. William Holmes)...	82	85	89	30	286

The following are selections from the adjudicators' criticisms :

INTERMEDIATE DIVISION.

Kilburn (Miss Phillips Keely). (1st.)

(a) Words excellent. Voice-production showed good training. Words well formed. Great unity of style. Pace good (not too slow, as it was with some other choirs). Very good indeed.

(b) Again a lively pace, and words again a feature. Tone very pleasant, musical quality. A slight failure in the intonation was noticeable. A very-well-studied and intelligent interpretation. Caught the needed vitality.

(c) Words again wonderfully good. The consonants not overdone—no spluttering of finals. Gay, festive pace. Rhythm also very attractive.

(d) Pace again well chosen. The swing of the rhythm in duple time was the right treatment. The attack showed excellent training. Technically first-rate, and as expressive interpretation equally good.

West Central (Mr. Harvey Grace). (2nd.)

(a) A well-studied interpretation. Good sostenuto combined with movement. No delays for supposed good effect, and the rhythm clearly defined. Words excellent. Tone full and sweet, and well in tune.

(b) Neat execution. The words so sharp and clean. A rather severe attack on the last quavers in the bars—the tone bulging. A finished performance as regards details.

(c) Pointed—somewhat overmuch for the flow of the tune. Very gay. Tone good. Full, if not invariably sweet.

(d) The tone fair, but this was not a conspicuously good point. Eager, bright attack. Very confident A well-trained choir.

ADVANCED DIVISION.

West Central (Mr. Harvey Grace). (1st.)

(a) Fine tone—blendful. Vivid expansions—always tuneful. Attack excellent. Exact, clean execution. Full of point. A delicate, dainty rhythm.

(b) Good start. Then it seemed too loud. Missed the tender, affectionate feeling. Yet there was some tender feeling. Tone musical and a capital blend. A wee bit square as rhythmic treatment. Always in tune (except perhaps second soprano, last page at top). Very good performance.

(c) Eager, impulsive attack, just somewhat overdone by a few. Expressed the buoyancy. Rhythm full of life. A striking performance, because of its abundant vitality and musical character.

Roehampton (Mr. George Grace). (2nd.)

(a) A bright, sweet quality. Good tonal attack (no sliding). Some charming effects of accent. The rhythm had constant interest. There were no great expansions of tone, but still there was plenty of variety of force. Words a good feature.

(b) An attractive start. But surely rather urged? Not quite soothing—too square for this piece. Better more legato-sostenuto. Very well in tune. Got almost dainty as rhythm. Was this right? The tone very good indeed. Refined performance.

(c). Neat—well unified. First soprano capital. An arch expression. A free-flowing rhythm. Balance good. Much to admire. Considerable finish—polish in the execution. Always fluent. Tone good.

Marylebone (Miss E. M. G. Reed). (3rd.)

(a) Very delicate tip-toe start. Tone seemed rather frail. Why the pull up, page 17? The lagging here gave the impression of want of vitality. Yet there were some luminous spots. The end was delightful. Tone good, although, as remarked, it was frail. A thoughtful design in the interpretation.

(b) A tender, emotional start. Excellent pace, and the treatment of the rhythm—sostenuto—showed fine taste and correct judgment in proportioning the amount of tone. Beautifully in tune. Expressive—almost tearful in its tenderness. So gentle and loving. Wonderfully well governed as voice delivery. Words clear without enunciation being intrusive. An achievement of skilful training. Beautiful end.

This performance was the high-water mark of the whole competition.

(c) First treble inclined to vibrate. But the style was very winning. Pace smart. A slight unsteadiness of tonal attack. This hindered good chording. Rhythmic attack not perfect —not sufficiently unified.

Dr. McNaught and Mr. McNaught were the adjudicators.

NOVELLO'S HANDBOOKS FOR MUSICIANS.

EDITED BY ERNEST NEWMAN.

CHORAL TECHNIQUE & INTERPRETATION

BY

HENRY COWARD.

MUS. DOC. OXON.

Published as a Net Book. Price, Cloth, gilt, Five Shillings net.

THE TEACHING AND ACCOMPANIMENT OF PLAINSONG

BY

FRANCIS BURGESS.

Published as a Net Book.
Price, Cloth, gilt, Three Shillings and Sixpence net.

THE MUSIC OF THE BIBLE

With some account of the Development of Modern Musical Instruments from Ancient Types.

BY

JOHN STAINER.

New Edition, with Additional Illustrations and Supplementary Notes

BY

THE REV. F. W. GALPIN, M.A., F.L.S.

Published as a Net Book.
Price, Cloth, gilt, Five Shillings net.

SONGS FROM THE PLAYS OF WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE

With Dances and Incidental Music as sung and danced by the Bermondsey Guild of Play.

WRITTEN AND COMPILED BY

MRS. G. T. KIMMINS.

Published as a Net Book.
Price, Half Bound, Paper Sides, gilt top, Five Shillings net.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

No. 1048. NOVELLO'S OCTAVO ANTHEMS. Price 3d.

O Thou that hearest prayer

COMPOSED BY

R. WALKER ROBSON.

953. A charge to keep I have ... King 3d.
884. A crown of grace for man Brahms 4d.
478. A few more years shall roll H. Blair 3d.
597. A prayer for peace ... Crotch 3d.
801. A solemn prayer ... A. H. Brewer 2d.
935. A song of joy John E. West 3d.
917. Abide with me ... Ivor Atkins 3d.
424. Abide with me ... R. Dunstan 3d.
805. Adeste Fideles ... H. Hofmann 4d.
927. All go unto one place Wesley 3d.
247. All nations whom B. Luard-Selby 4d.
113. All they that trust ... ... Hiller 8d.
1033. All Thy works ... T. Adams 3d.
475. All Thy works ... J. Barnby 4d.
503. All Thy works ... G. H. Ely 4d.
30. All Thy works ... E. H. Thorne 3d.
719. All ye who seek ... H. M. Higgs 3d.
9. All ye who weep ... ... Gounod 3d.
592. Alleluia ! now is Christ T. Adams 3d.
729. Alleluia ! the Lord liveth C. Harris 3d.
548. Almighty Father ... B. Steane 3d.
937. Almighty God, give us Wesley 3d.
261. And all the people saw J. Stainer 6d.
699. And God shall wipe Greenish 3d.
229. And it was the third hour Elvey 4d.
485. And Jacob was left alone J Stainer 6d.
658. And Jesus entered H. W. Davies 4d.
732. And suddenly there came H. J. Wood 3d.
675. And the Lord said T. W. Stephenson 3d.
357. And the wall of the city Oliver King 3d.
778. And there shall be signs Naylor 4d.
402. And when the day C. W. Smith 3d.
861. Angel Spirits P. Tchaikovsky 2d.
642. Angel voices, ever singing E. V. Hall 3d.
611. Angels from the realms Cowen 3d.
749. Ditto P. E. Fletcher 3d.
751. Ditto E. V. Hall 3d.
228. Art thou weary ... C. H. Lloyd 6d.
923. Arise, shine ... G. F. Cobb 4d.
1017. Arise, shine ... T. Adams 3d.
948. As Christ was raised Wareing 3d.
311. As I live, saith the Lord E. T. Chipp 3d.
333. As it began to dawn Ch. Vincent 3d.
498. As Moses lifted up F. Gostelow 3d.
643. As the earth bringeth A. H. Brewer 4d.
24. As the hart pants (S.S.T.E.) Gounod 3d.
147. Ascribe unto the Lord Travers 6d.
109. Ascribe unto the Lord S. S. Wesley 4d.
399. At the Lamb's High E. V. Hall 3d.
456. At the Sepulchre H. W. Wareing 4d.
957. Author of Life Divine Button 2d.
660. Awake, awake John E. West 3d.
700. Awake, awake, put on Greenish 4d.
56. Awake, awake, put on J. Stainer 6d.
759. Awake, awake, put on Stephenson 4d.
149. Awake, awake, put on M. Wise 4d.
955. Awake ! O Zion ... C. Forrester 3d.
199. Awake, thou that sleepest Stainer 6d.
150. Awake up, my glory M. Wise 3d.
744. Be glad and rejoice M. B. Foster 3d.
578. Be glad and rejoice ... B. Steane 3d.
212. Be glad, O ye righteous H. Smart 4d.
989. Be glad then, ye ... A. Hollins 3d.
143. Be merciful ... ... H. Purcell 6d.
257. Be merciful E. A. Sydenham 3d.
597. Be peace on earth ... Crotch 3d.
567. Be Thou exalted ... C. Bayley 3d.
583. Be ye all of one mind A. E. Godfrey 3d.
471. Be ye therefore ... A. S. Baker 3d.
440. Before the heavens H. W. Parker 3d.
651. Behold, all the earth G. F. Huntley 4d.
598. Behold, God is great E. W. Naylor 4d.
865. Behold, God is my John E. West 3d.
636. Behold, God is my F. C. Woods 4d.
349. Behold, how good (Male) Caldicott 3d.
349.* Ditto (S.A.T.B.) Caldicott 3d.
419. Ditto Hamilton Clarke 4d.
1035. Ditto J. Battishill 3d.
89. Behold, I bring you J. Barnby 3d.
348. Ditto J. Maude Crament 4d.
296. Ditto E. V. Hall 3d.
810. Behold, I come quickly Ivor Atkins 2d.
713. Behold, I have given you C. Harris 3d.
554. Behold, I send ... J. V. Roberts 4d.
587. Behold My servant J. F. Bridge 3d.
65. Behold now, praise J. B. Calkin 3d.
631. Behold now, praise F. Iliffe 3d.
912. Behold now, praise John E. West 3d.
315. Behold, O God ... F. W. Hird 4d.
524. Behold, the days come Woodward 4d.
1045. Behold the Heaven A. R. Gaul 3d.
652. Behold the Name ... Percy Pitt 4d.
501. Behold, two blind men J. Stainer 3d.
938. Bethlehem ... ... Ch. Gounod 1½d.
378. Bless the Lord ... M. Kingston 4d.
796. Bless the Lord, O my soul Hailing 3d.
855. Bless the Lord thy God Roberts 3d.
450. Bless thou the Lord C. Bayley 4d.
374. Bless thou the Lord Oliver King 3d.
693. Blessed are the dead B. L. Selby 2d.
667. Blessed are the pure A. D. Arnott 3d.
390. Blessed are they A. W. Batson 3d.
616. Blessed are they ... H. Blair 3d.
77. Blessed are they ... W. H. Monk 3d.
182. Blessed are they ... Arthur Page 3d.
15. Blessed be the God S. S. Wesley 2d.
756. Blessed be the Lord J. Barnby 3d.
570. Blessed be the Lord J. F. Bridge 6d.
895. Blessed be the Lord O. Gibbons 2d.
876. Blessed be the Lord E. V. Hall 3d.
183. Blessed be the Lord ... Heap 6d.
770. Blessed be the Lord Markham Lee 3d.
331. Blessed be the Lord C. L. Williams 4d.
1006. Blessed be the Name Macfarren 3d.
724. Blessed be Thou E. C. Bairstow 4d.
838. Ditto ... ... J. Kent 4d.
400. Blessed City A. C. Fisher 4d.
284. Blessed is He F. E. Gladstone 2d.
262. Blessed is He ... C. H. Lloyd 8d.
292. Blessed is He A. C. Mackenzie 4d.
206. Blessed is the man Clarke-Whitfeld 3d.
64. Blessed is the man ... John Goss 4d.
769. Blessed is the man H. W. Wareing 3d.
1004. Blessed is the soul (S.B.) Macfarren 3d.
286. Blessed Jesu (Stabat Mater) Dvorák 6d.
943. Blessed Lord S. S. Wesley 2d.
5. Blessing, glory, wisdom B. Tours 4d.
950. Ditto ... A. H. Brewer 3d.
632. Blow up the trumpet F. Iliffe 3d.
97. Blow ye the trumpet Henry Leslie 3d.
961. Born to-day ... J. P. Sweelinck 3d.
118. Bow Thine ear ... W. Bird 3d.
939. Bread of Heaven ... E. German 3d.
774. Break forth into joy H. E. Button 3d.
415. Ditto S. Coleridge-Taylor 3d.
798. Ditto ... H. A. Matthews 3d.
92. Ditto ... ... R. Prentice 6d.
491. Ditto ... ... B. Steane 3d.
1024. Ditto ... W. G. Alcock 3d.
323. Brightest and best ... E. V. Hall 4d.
340. Bring unto the Lord Gladstone 3d.
98. Brother, thou art gone ... J. Goss 4d.
279. By Babylon's wave Gounod 2d.
197. By the rivers of Babylon L. Samson 4d.
121. By the waters of Babylon Boyce 4d.
511. Ditto ... H. Clarke 4d.
853. Ditto ... H. M. Higgs 3d.
644. Ditto S. Coleridge-Taylor 3d.
742. By Thy glorious death A. Dvorák 4d.
116. Call to remembrance J. Battishill 6d.
952. Ditto ... J. V. Roberts 3d.
680. Calm on the list'ning ear Parker 3d.
841. Cast me not away C. Lee Williams 2d.
975. Ditto S. S. Wesley 3d.
497. Christ both died E. W. Naylor 3d.
454. Christ is risen G. B. J. Aitken 3d.
368. Christ is risen ... J. M. Crament 3d.
666. Christ is risen ... W. Jordan 4d.
533. Christ is risen ... J. V. Roberts 3d.
814. Christ is risen E. A. Sydenham 3d.
307. Christ our Passover E. V. Hall 3d.
783. Christ the Lord is risen again „ 4d.
370. Christ the Lord is risen to-day „ 3d.
488. Christians, awake ... J. Barnby 3d.
648. Christians, awake ... H. M. Higgs 4d.
983. Christmas Day ... G. von Holst 4d.
445. Cleanse me, Lord G. F. Wrigley 3d.
52. Come, and let us return ... J. Goss 3d.
95. Come, and let us return W. Jackson 3d.
805. Come hither, ye faithful Hofmann 4d.
283. Come, Holy Ghost ... G. Elvey 4d.
201. Come, Holy Ghost ... J. L. Hatton 4d.
829. Come, Holy Ghost ... Palestrina 2d.
717. Come, Holy Ghost C. L. Williams 2d.
881. Come, let us join our E. V. Hall 3d.
293. Come, my soul ... G. C. Martin 4d.
989. Come and let us ... A. Hollins 3d.
314. Come now, and let us H. W. Wareing 4d.
1. Come unto Him ... Gounod 2d.
946. Ditto ... ... H. Leslie 3d.
256. Come unto Me H. R. Couldrey 3d.
635. Come unto Me ... G. J. Elvey 3d.
103. Come unto Me (Bach) J. Stainer 3d.
922. Come with high and holy ... Blair 3d.
1005. Come ye, and let us... Macfarren 3d.
748. Come, ye children and J. Booth 3d.
924. Ditto ... ... H. J. King 3d.
334. Come, ye faithful ... E. V. Hall 3d
921. Come, ye faithful, raise the strain „ 3d.
1019. Come, ye Saints ... H. E. Button 3d.
951. Come, ye sin-defiled J. Stainer 2d.
931. Come, ye thankful ... B. Steane 3d.
914. Comes at times ... Woodward 3d.
1008. Ditto ... ... H. Oakeley 2d.
994. Coronation Offertorium Elgar 2d.
622. Create in me a clean heart P. J. Fry 3d.
688. Crown Him the ... B. Luard-Selby 2d.
356. Daughters of Jerusalem H. J. King 3d.
449. Dawns the day ... R. H. Legge 3d.
213. Day of anger (Requiem) ... Mozart 6d.
682. Day of wrath ... J. Stainer 2d.
252. Death and life Walter Parratt 3d.
968. Death is swallowed up in Hollins 3d.
849. Deliver us, O Lord Gibbons 3d.
90. Distracted with care ... Haydn 4d.
887. Do not I fill heaven H. Blair 3d.
737. Doth not wisdom cry D. S. Smith 3d.
703. Drop down, ye heavens Stainer 4d.
277. Enter not into Judgment ... Clarke 2d.
362. Eternal source ... F. Brandeis 2d.
1008. Evening and Morning Oakeley 2d.
854. Exalt ye the Lord H. Elliot Button 3d.
764. Except the Lord build ... Edwards 3d.
771. Ditto ... Eaton Faning 4d.
628. Ditto H. Gadsby 4d.
470. Eye hath not seen (S.A.) Foster 3d.
584. Ditto (S.A.T.B.) M. B. Foster 3d.
625. Far be sorrow ... E. V. Hall 3d.
672. Far from the world H. W. Parker 3d.
329. Far from their home Woodward 3d.
364. Father, hear the prayer F. Brandeis 2d.
763. Father, now Thy grace W. Coenen 3d.
46. Father of Heaven ... Walmisley 3d.
384. Father of Life ... S. J. Gilbert 3d.
768. Father of mercies ... E. V. Hall 3d.
671. Father of mercies John E. West 3d.
28. Fear not, O land ... John Goss 3d.
916. Fear not, O land ... W. Jordan 3d.
872. Fear thou not, for I am J. Booth 1½d.
446. Flee from evil ... W. J. Clarke 3d.
553. For a small moment ... J. Stainer 2d.
254. For ever blessed Mendelssohn 3d.
198. For the mountains L. Samson 3d.
901. For this mortal ... S. S. Wesley 3d.
728. Forsake me not ... J. Goss 4d.
273. From the deep I called Spohr 6d.
227. Give ear, O Lord T. M. Pattison 2d.
433. Give ear, O Shepherd A. Whiting 3d.
88. Give ear, O ye heavens ... Armes 3d
956. Ditto W. G. Alcock 3d
604. Give thanks, O Israel Ouseley 4d.
741. Give the King Thy W. G. Alcock 6d.
990. Ditto A. H. Brewer 3d.
309. Give the Lord ... C. H. Lloyd 8d.
383. Give unto the Lord H. W. Parker 4d.
933. Glorious and powerful God Gibbons 3d.
1039. Glorious in Heaven ... Vittoria 3d.
2. Glory be to God ... S. S. Wesley 2d.
779. Glory to God in the E. M. Lee 3d.
341. God be merciful ... A. H. Mann 4d.
49. God be merciful ... S. S. Wesley 3d.
236. God be merciful unto us C. F. Lloyd 6d.

NOVELLO'S

OCTAVO EDITION OF ANTHEMS.

105. God came from Teman ... Steggall 4d.
967. God is a Spirit W. S. Bennett 1½d.
128. God is gone up ... ... Croft 4d.
892. God is gone up ... O. Gibbons 3d.
864. God is gone up Walter B. Gilbert 2d.
605. God is my salvation C. F. Bowes 3d.
131. God is our hope ... Greene 6d.
332. God is our refuge ... A. Foote 4d.
101. God is our refuge ... H. Hilse 6d.
75. God said, Behold ... G. Macfarren 4d.
969. God so loved the world H. Moore 3d.
473. Ditto ... ... J. V. Roberts 3d.
1012. Ditto ... ... E. G. Monk 4d.
342. God, that madest earth A. C. Fisher 2d.
344. God, who at sundry times J. H. Mee 4d.
715. God's peace is peace eternal Grieg 3d.
550. Grant, we beseech Thee M. Elvey 2d.
388. Grant, we beseech Thee Roberts 3d.
517. Great and marvellous J. F. Bridge 4d.
187. Great and marvellous Monk 3d.
848. Ditto T. Tomkins 3d.
223. Great is Jehovah (Male) Schubert 4d.
987. Great is Jehovah ... Schubert 4d.
602. Great is our Lord M. B. Foster 4d.
136. Great is the Lord ... ... Hayes 4d.
708. Great is the Lord A. W. Marchant 3d.
237. Great is the Lord ... F. Ouseley 6d.
481. Great is the Lord ... B. Steane 3d.
813. Great is the Lord E. A. Sydenham 3d.
220. Grieve not the Holy Spirit Stainer 3d.
609. Guide me, O Thou H. Blair 3d.
427. Hail! gladdening Light J. T. Field 2d.
545. Hail! gladdening Light Martin 4d.
326. Hail, thou that art ... A. Carnall 4d.
560. Hail to the Christ ... J. Barnby 3d.
945. Hail, true Body ... H. Willan 2d.
499. Hallelujah, Christ is risen Steane 3d.
382. Hallelujah! the Light Oliver King 3d.
173. Happy is the man ... E. Prout 8d.
681. Hark, the glad sound M. B. Foster 3d.
909. Hark, the glad sound A. R. Gaul 3d.
487. Hark, the glad sound E. V. Hall 3d.
345. Hark, the herald angels E. V. Hall 3d.
444. Hark! what news ... Oliver King 3d.
404. Harvest Hymn ... F. Tozer 2d.
820. Haste Thee, O God John Shepherd 3d.
784. Have mercy upon me J. Barnby 2d.
535. Have mercy upon me J. Goss 4d.
1013. Ditto ... ... E. Minshall 3d.
377. Have mercy upon me Kellow J. Pye 3d.
401. Have mercy upon me J. Shaw 3d.
794. He sendeth the springs Wareing 4d.
701. He shall swallow up Greenish 3d.
707. He that dwelleth ... J. Booth 4d.
837. He that shall endure Mendelssohn 2d.
898. He that spared not His Gladstone 3d.
900. He will swallow up death Wesley 1½d.
389. Hear me when I call (Male) Distin 2d.
339. Hear my prayer ... Mendelssohn 4d.
146. Hear my prayer ... C. Stroud 4d.
1001. Hear my prayer ... H. Purcell 2d.
443. Hear my words C. H. H. Parry 8d.
310. Hear, O God ... A. Friedländer 6d.
138. Hear, O heavens P. Humphreys 3d.
94. Hear, O Lord ... John Goss 2d.
139. Hear, O Lord ... C. King 2d.
162. Hear, O Lord ... F. Ouseley 4d.
831. Hear, O My people J. Holbrooke 3d.
203. Hear, O Thou Shepherd ... Clarke 4d.
522. Ditto T. A. Walmisley 4d.
776. Hear the voice and prayer Tallis 2d.
773. Hearken unto me W. H. Bell 3d.
376. Hide not Thy face Kellow J. Pye 2d.
366. Ho! every one J. M. Crament 4d.
246. Ho! every one ... G. C. Martin 4d.
330. Holy Ghost, to earth ... Dvorák 4d.
111. Holy, holy, holy ... ... Crotch 3d.
842. Holy, Lord God T. Bateson 4d.
412. Honour the Lord ... J. Stainer 4d.
129. Hosanna (in C) ... O. Gibbons 3d.
1015. Ditto (in E flat) O. Gibbons 3d.
43. Hosanna ... G. A. Macfarren 3d.
657. Hosanna to the Lord W. Jordan 4d.
646. Hosanna to the Lord Luard-Selby 3d

1021. Hosanna we sing ... J. E. West 3d.
260. How beautiful are the feet Handel 3d.
691. How blest are they Tschaikowsky 4d.
321. How excellent is Thy ... Cowen 6d.
615. How great is the loving West 3d.
373. How long wilt Thou Oliver King 2d.
867. Ditto Jeremiah Clarke 3d.
647. How lovely are ... C. Salaman 3d.
104. Ditto ... ... Spohr 8d.
988. Ditto ... J. Brahms 2d.
766. I am Alpha ... Ch. Gounod 3d.
539. I am Alpha ... J. V. Roberts 3d.
623. I am He that liveth T. Adams 4d.
664. I am the Resurrection ... Croft 3d.
662. I am the Resurrection R. Rogers 4d.
268. I am well pleased J. Rheinberger 3d.
120. I beheld, and lo ... ... Blow 6d.
280. I beheld, and lo ... ... Elvey 6d.
496. I came not to call C. Vincent 3d.
207. I cried unto the Lord ... Heap 4d.
537. I declare to you ... Cruickshank 4d.
168. I desired wisdom ... J. Stainer 6d.
230. I did call upon the Lord Pattison 4d.
515. I do not ask, O Lord ... Roberts 3d.
117. I have set God ... ... Blake 6d.
420. I have set God Hamilton Clarke 4d.
130. I have set God ... J. Goldwin 3d.
122. I have surely built ... ... Boyce 4d.
219. I have surely built T. T. Trimnell 4d.
590. I heard a great voice G. F. Cobb 3d.
396. I heard a voice ... John Goss 2d.
903. I looked, and behold H. Willan 3d.
1029. I love to hear ... M. B. Foster 3d.
171. I saw the Lord ... J. Stainer 6d.
1022. Ditto ... ... C. Harris 3d.
114. I was glad ... ... T. Attwood 4d.
993. I was glad ... ...A. H. Brewer 3d.
32. I was glad ... ... G. Elvey 3d.
79. I was glad ... ...C. E. Horsley 6d.
743. I was glad ... C. H. H. Parry 4d.
379. I was glad ... T. T. Trimnell 4d.
119. I was in the spirit ... ... Blow 6d.
205. I will alway give thanks ... Clarke 3d.
1034. I will cause the shower ... Naylor 3d.
874. I will cry unto God ... H. J. King 3d.
73. I will cry unto God ... Steggall 3d.
502. I will extol Thee C. M. Hudson 4d.
29. I will give thanks ... J. Barnby 4d.
156. I will give thanks ...E. J. Hopkins 6d.
568. I will give thanks ... Mozart 2d.
915. I will give unto him ... H. Blair 2d.
674. I will give you rain H. W. Wareing 4d.
225. I will go unto ... ... Gauntlett 2d.
591. I will go unto the altar C. Harris 3d.
437. I will greatly rejoice Cruickshank 4d.
1037. Ditto E. C. Bairstow 3d.
495. I will lay me down A. C. Edwards 3d.
195. I will lay me down... H. Gadsby 2d.
209. I will lay me down... H. Hiles 3d.
739. I will lift up mine eyes D. S. Smith 3d.
958. Ditto J. V. Roberts 3d.
394. I will love Thee ... Kingston 4d.
126. I will love Thee, O Lord J. Clark 4d.
760. I will magnify Thee W. H. Bell 4d.
78. I will magnify Thee J. B. Calkin 4d.
27. I will magnify Thee ... John Goss 3d.
633. I will magnify Thee ... F. Iliffe 3d.
405. I will magnify Thee Oliver King 4d.
780. I will magnify Thee E. M. Lee 3d.
1010. Ditto ... C. H. Lloyd 3d.
929. Ditto A. W. Marchant 3d.
886. I will magnify Thee Palestrina 3d.
153. I will magnify Thee ... J. Shaw 3d.
154. I will mention ... A. Sullivan 6d.
790. I will not leave you ... W. Byrd 3d.
575. I will not leave you ... B. Steane 2d.
519. I will open rivers E. Pettman 3d.
371. I will set His dominion H. W. Parker 4d.
100. I will sing a new song ... Armes 8d.
608. I will sing of the mercies J. Booth 3d.
134. I will sing of Thy power Greene 4d.
192. I will sing unto the Lord Wareing 3d.
6. I will wash my hands Hopkins 3d.
710. If any man hath not H. W. Davies 4d.

819. If Christ be not raised Macpherson 4d.
979. If the Lord had not E. C. Bairstow 3d.
825. If the Lord Himself ... W. Child 3d.
758. If the Lord Himself Walmisley 6d.
53. If we believe that Jesus died Goss 1½d.
544. If ye love Me ... ... B. Steane 2d.
453. If ye love Me H. W. Wareing 3d.
789. If ye then be risen Ivor Atkins 4d.
469. If ye then be risen (S.A.) M. B. Foster 3d.
58. If ye then be risen ... Naylor 3d.
61. In Christ dwelleth ... John Goss 3d.
913. In divers tongues ... Palestrina 2d.
619. In every place incense John E. West 3d.
655. In heavenly love ... H. Parker 3d.
403. In my Father's house Crament 3d.
777. Ditto H. Elliot Button 3d.
102. In sweet consent ... E. H. Thorne 3d.
278. In that day ... ... G. Elvey 4d.
802. In that day (Christmas) Bridge 3d.
720. In the beginning C. Macpherson 4d.
582. In the beginning ... F. Tozer 4d.
890. In the day shalt H. W. Wareing 3d.
338. In the fear of the Lord J. V. Roberts 3d.
980. In the hour of my ... Davies 4d.
659. In the Lord ... C. Macpherson 4d.
282. In the Lord ... ... R. Stewart 6d.
385. In Thee, O Lord ... S. C. Taylor 3d.
33. In Thee, O Lord ... B. Tours 3d.
148. In Thee, O Lord ... J. Weldon 3d.
467. Is it nothing (S.A.) M. B. Foster 3d.
571. Is it nothing (4 voices) M. B. Foster 3d
725. Is it not wheat-harvest T. Adams 3d.
91. It came even to pass Ouseley 4d.
180. It is a good thing ... J. Barnby 6d.
231. It is a good thing T. M. Pattison 4d.
215. It shall come to pass ... Garrett 6d.
908. Jesu, Lord of life and glory Elgar 3d.
397. Jesu, lover of my soul (Male) F. Iliffe 2d
907. Jesu, meek and lowly... Elgar 3d.
1031. Jesu, our Lord ... Ch. Gounod 2d.
654. Jesu, Thou joy ... E. H. Davies 3d.
844. Jesu, Thou sweetness H. J. King 3d
904. Jesu, word of God incarnate Elgar 2d.
788. Jesus Christ is risen to-day Gaul 4d.
455. Jesus Christ is risen Oliver King 4d.
971. Jesus lives! no longer now Foster 3d.
618. Jesus of Nazareth ... G. Byrd 4d.
548. Joy in harvest ... ... B. Steane 3d.
7. Judge me, O God ... Mendelssohn 1½d.
677. Just Judge of Heaven ...Garrett 6d.
614. Justorum animæ ... ... Byrd 3d.
179. King all glorious ... J. Barnby 6d.
997. Ditto (4 voices) J. Barnby 4d.
581. Kings shall be thy G. C. Martin 2d.
894. Kings shall see and arise Bridge 6d.
425. Lead, kindly Light... R. Dunstan 3d.
528. Lead, kindly Light C. L. Naylor 4d.
589. Lead, kindly Light D. Pughe-Evans 3d.
37. Lead, kindly Light... J. Stainer 4d.
706. Let all the world ... W. Jordan 4d.
132. Let God arise ... Greene 6d.
375. Let God arise T. T. Trimnell 4d.
857. Let my complaint Arthur Batten 2d.
346. Let my complaint (Male) Thorne 3d.
509. Let not thine hand... J. Stainer 3d.
807. Let not your heart Eaton Faning 3d.
438. Ditto ... M. B. Foster 3d.
438.* Ditto (8 v.) M. B. Foster 3d.
795. Let the heavens be glad M. Higgs 4d.
226. Let the peace of God J. Stainer 4d.
565. Let the righteous ... R. F. Lloyd 3d.
328. Let the words of my A. D. Culley 3d.
494. Let Thy merciful ears W. B. Bell 2d.
308. Let us now praise (Male) Thorne 3d.
962. Ditto A. J. Silver 3d.
96. Lift up thine eyes ... John Goss 6d.
897. Lift up your heads O. Gibbons 3d.
18. Ditto ...J. L. Hopkins 1½d.
409. Ditto S. Coleridge-Taylor 3d.
847. Ditto ... William Turner 2d.
343. Lift up your hearts... J. Barnby 4d.
972. Light in darkness D. C. Jenkins 3d.
595. Light of the world ... E. Elgar 3d.
408. Lighten our darkness G. R. Vicars 2d.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

DEDICATED TO WILLIAM WHITEMAN, ESQ.

O THOU THAT HEAREST PRAYER

ANTHEM FOR LENT OR GENERAL USE

Words compiled by the Rev. J. U. GLANVILLE, M.A.

COMPOSED BY

R. WALKER ROBSON.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED; NEW YORK: THE H. W. GRAY CO., SOLE AGENTS FOR THE U.S.A.

Lento ed espressivo.

SOPRANO. mp

O Thou that hear - est prayer, un - to Thee shall all flesh

ALTO. mp

O Thou that hear - est prayer, un - to Thee shall all flesh

TENOR. mp

O Thou that hear - est prayer, un - to Thee shall all flesh . .

BASS. mp

O Thou . . that hear - est prayer, un - to Thee shall all flesh . .

Lento ed espressivo.

ACCOMPT. (ad lib.) mp

come. . . But my mis - deeds . . . pre - vail a - gainst me, . . O be Thou come. . . But my mis - deeds . . . pre - vail a - gainst me, . . O be Thou come. . . But my mis - deeds . . pre - vail . . a - gainst me, be come. But my mis - deeds pre - vail a - gainst me, O be Thou

Copyright, 1914, by Novello and Company, Limited.

mf
Più mosso.
p mer - ci - ful, mer - ci - ful un - to our sins. God of
mp
mer - ci - ful, be Thou mer - ci - ful . . un - to our sins. God of mer - ci - ful, be Thou mer - ci - ful un - to our . . sins. God of mer - ci - ful, be Thou mer - ci - ful . . un - to our sins. God of cres.
par - dons, Fa - ther of mer - cies, in . . the Son of Thy Love hast Thou par - dons, Fa - ther of mer - cies, in the Son of Thy Love hast Thou par - dons, Fa - ther of mer - cies, in the Son of Thy Love hast Thou par - dons, Fa - ther of mer - cies, in . . the Son of Thy Love hast Thou Tempo 1mo. found a ran - som. . . O be Thou mer - ci - ful, mer - ci - ful un - to our found a ran - som. . . O be Thou mer - ci - ful, be Thou mer - ci - ful . . un - to our found a ran - som. . . O be Thou mer - ci - ful, be Thou mer - ci - ful . . un - to our found a ran - som. O be Thou mer - ci - ful, be Thou mer - ci - ful . . un - to our pp

Più mosso.
p sins. Let my prayer be set forth in Thy sight as the in - cense. Shew the sins. Let my prayer be set . . forth in Thy sight as the in - cense. Shew the sins. Let my prayer be set forth in Thy sight as the in - cense. Shew the sins. Let my prayer be set forth in Thy sight as the in - cense. Shew the Più mosso.
pp
p
Light of Thy coun-ten-ance up - on Thy ser - vant. Thou that hear - - est
f
Light of Thy coun-ten-ance up - on Thy ser - vant. Thou that hear - est
Light of Thy coun-ten-ance up - on Thy ser - vant. Thou that hear - est
Light of Thy coun-ten-ance up - on Thy ser - vant. Thou that hear - est prayer, Thou that hear - - est prayer. And I will re - joice, re - joice in the prayer, Thou that hear - est prayer. And I will re - joice, re - joice in the prayer, Thou that hear - est prayer. And I will re - joice, re - joice in the prayer, Thou that hear - est prayer. And I will re - joice, re - joice in the

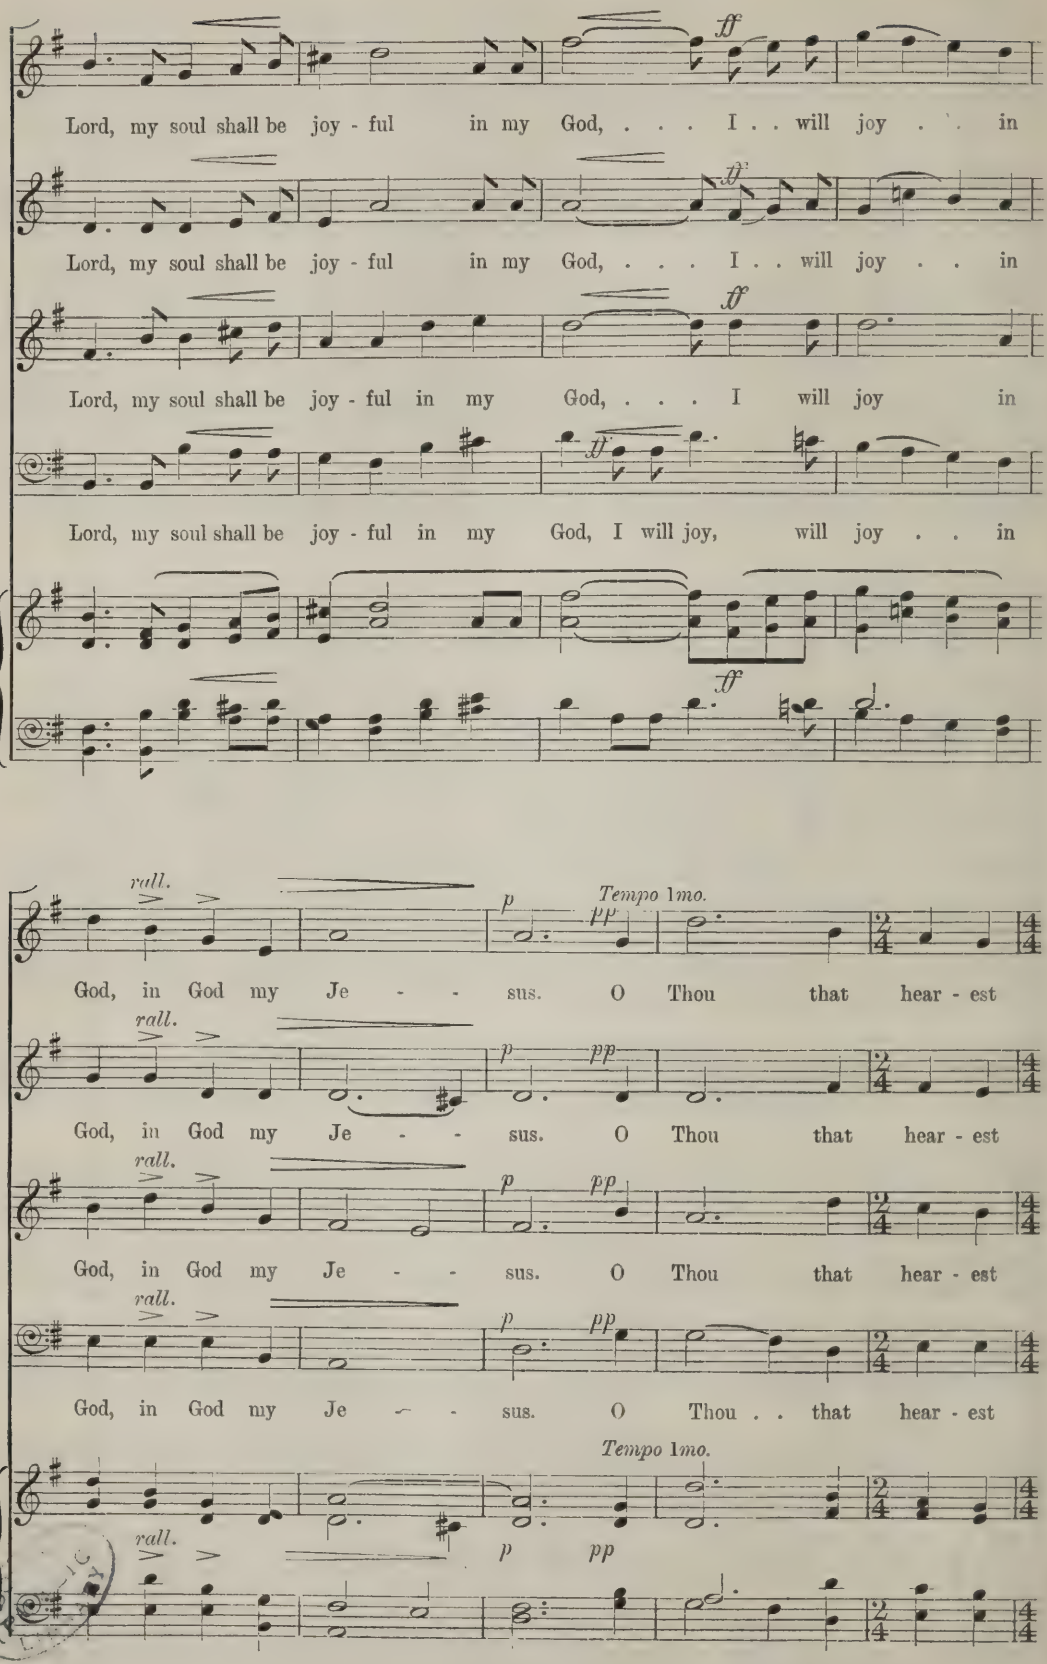
BOSTON PUBLIC LIBRARY



Lord, my soul shall be joy - ful in my God, . . . I . . will joy . . in Lord, my soul shall be joy - ful in my God, . . . I . . will joy . . in Lord, my soul shall be joy - ful in my God, . . . I will joy in Lord, my soul shall be joy - ful in my God, I will joy, will joy . . in rall.
Tempo 1mo.
God, in God my Je - - sus. O Thou that hear - est
God, in God my Je - - sus. O Thou that hear - est
God, in God my Je - - sus. O Thou that hear - est
God, in God my Je - - sus. O Thou . . that hear - est
Tempo 1mo.

prayer, . . . O Thou that hear-est prayer, be Thou mer - ci - ful, prayer, . . . O Thou that hear-est prayer, be Thou mer - ci - ful, be Thou prayer, . . . O Thou that hear-est prayer, be Thou mer - ci - ful, be Thou prayer, . . . O Thou that hear-est prayer, be Thou mer - ci - ful, be Thou
pp
mer - ci - ful un - to our sins. A - - men.
mer - - ci - ful un - to our . . sins. A - - - - men.
mer - - ci - ful . . un - to our sins. A - - men.
mer - - ci - ful un - to our sins. A - - - - men.
p
pp

BOSTON PUBLIC LIBRARY

Also published in Novello's Tonic Sol-fa Series, No. 2215, price 1½d.

Demy 8vo, 390 pp., with an Introduction (6 pp.), Tables of the Mediations and Endings, and the Tones of the Psalms. Cloth, gilt lettered on back, price 4s. 6d. Net Book.

Words only, 1s. 6d. Net Book.

The Accompanying Harmonies, prepared by W. G. A. SHEBBEARE.
Super Royal 8vo, price 3s. 6d., cloth. Net Book.

A MANUAL OF PLAINSONG

FOR DIVINE SERVICE

CONTAINING

THE CANTICLES NOTED

THE PSALTER NOTED

TO GREGORIAN TONES

TOGETHER WITH THE LITANY AND RESPONSES

A NEW EDITION

PREPARED BY

H. B. BRIGGS AND W. H. FRERE

UNDER THE GENERAL SUPERINTENDENCE OF

JOHN STAINER

(Late President of the Plainsong and Mediæval Music Society)

EXTRACT FROM INTRODUCTION.

The forms of the tones used at Salisbury have been adopted in this revision of the Psalter, and the pointing is based on the principles followed in the palmy days of Plainsong, and preserved in the early manuscripts. The rationale of this system is explained in the recent works of the Benedictines of Solesmes.

PREFACE.

THE first edition of The Psalter Noted was published in 1849 under the supervision of the late Rev. Thomas Helmore, and secured for the Gregorian Tones a general recognition of their appropriateness for Divine worship. Subsequently Mr. Helmore's scheme was enlarged by the issue of The Canticles Noted, of A Brief Directory, and of three Appendixes to the Psalter; and the whole collection was issued in one volume under the title of A Manual of Plainsong. The Manual had also two companion books, one of Words only, containing The Canticles and Psalter Accented, the other a collection of Accompanying Harmonies. Thus complete provision was made for the musical performance of the regular services of the Prayer Book. Practical objections, however, to the monotony of the recitation of several Psalms to one Tone without the relief of Antiphons, added to certain difficulties in the pointing, led to the issue of other Psalters which have competed with The Psalter Noted, but without obtaining, any of them, a marked supremacy; and nothing has been issued which covers the whole field so completely as Mr. Helmore's Manual.

Study of the art of Plainsong during the last half century has, however, undergone something like a revolution; on every branch of the question new light has been thrown, and not least upon the principles of pointing. In consequence of repeated demands for a new edition of the Manual, the work of revision was entrusted to the late Sir John Stainer. He readily undertook the task, and called into collaboration Mr. H. B. Briggs and the Rev. W. H. Frere, with the result that before his death he had passed for the press the greater part of the revised proofs prepared by them for the new edition. He had also devoted much time to the consideration, with Mr. Shebbeare, of the Organ Accompaniments, so that the complete work may be considered as his last contribution to the music of the English Church.

The Manual thus appears in a New Edition, revised in accordance with modern standards of taste and science; it does not cover quite so large a field as formerly, for it contains no music for the Holy Communion; but it has the same counterparts as before in the shape of The Canticles and Psalter Accented, and The Accompanying Harmonies prepared by Mr. Shebbeare, which include accompaniments for the Responses, Te Deum and Litany, as well as for the Tones.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

18-4-13.

The Musical Times. EXTRA SUPPLEMENT. January 1, 1915.

No. 929. NOVELLO'S PARISH CHOIR BOOK. Price 1*d*

Darkness of Night.

VESPER HYMN FOR TIME OF WAR.

MARY BRADFORD WHITING. GEORGE C. MARTIN.

Copyright, 1914, by Novello and Company, Limited.

PUBLIC LIBRARY

DARKNESS of Night!
Day fades from out the sky;
Break, heavenly Light, o'er land and sea,
Shine out where'er Thy servants be,
That they may know Thee nigh,
That they may know Thee nigh!

Darkness of Woe!
The War clouds loom above;
Be Thou our loved ones' watch and ward,
In pain or peril be their guard,
That they may feel Thy love,
That they may feel Thy love!

Darkness of Death!
When strife and warfare cease,
When life's long battle ebbs away,
How bright shall dawn the heavenly Day
Upon the shores of Peace,
Upon the shores of Peace!

[Copyright.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.
NEW YORK: THE H. W. GRAY CO., SOLE AGENTS FOR THE U.S.A.
Words only, 1*s.* 6*d.* per 100, net.

Settings of the Vesper Hymn

"LORD, KEEP US SAFE THIS NIGHT"

(on Cards)

No.
662.	ANON. — ("Silently, softly falleth the night"), in F	1d.
286.	ASHTON, A. T. LEE.—In B flat	1d.
329.	BEETHOVEN.—Two Settings in G	1d.
665.	MATTHEWS, H. A.—In D	1d.
261.	STEANE, B.—In F .. .. (Sol-fa, 1½d.)	1d.
541.	SULLIVAN, A. — In F (with Sevenfold Amen) .. .. .. (Sol-fa, 1d.)	1d.
264.	VINCOE, A. L.—In F	1d.

Amens (on Cards).

457.	ELLIOTT, J. W.—Sevenfold Amen in D ..	1d.
603.	GIBBONS, ORLANDO.—Threefold Amen in D. Staff and Sol-fa Notation	1d.
431.	GODFREY, A. E.—Sevenfold Amen in G ..	1d.
284.	GOUNOD, C.—Two Concluding Amens, Threefold and fourfold, in E flat ..	1d.
574.	LEMARE, E. H.—Threefold Amen in G ..	1d.
	LEMARE, E. H.—Final Amen in G flat. (A.T.T.B B.)	1d.
485.	SOMERVELL, A.—Fourfold Amen in F ..	1d.
656.	STAINER, J.—Sevenfold and Dresden Amen in A .. .. (Sol-fa, 1d.)	1d.
	STAINER, J.—Sevenfold Amen (A.T.T.B.) in E flat..	1d.
541.	SULLIVAN, A.—Sevenfold Amen in F, with Vesper Hymn .. .. (Sol-fa, 1d.)	1d.
577.	WAGNER. — Dresden Amen in A flat (arranged, from "Parsifal," by G. J. Bennett)	1d.
	WAGNER. — Dresden Amen in E flat (A.T.T.B. or A.T.B.B.), (arranged, from "Parsifal," by G. J. Bennett)	1d
492.	WEST, JOHN E.—Threefold Amen in G ..	1d

LONDON: NOVELLO AND CO., LIMITED; NEW YORK: THE H. W. GRAY CO., SOLE AGENTS FOR THE U.S.A.

showed that as a composer he had both technical resource and a delicate fancy. The Carl Rosa Company's visit on December 7 presented nothing new to Leeds, Wolf-Ferrari's 'Jewels of the Madonna,' of which a most spirited and complete performance was given, being the most striking feature of the week.

OTHER TOWNS.

The Bradford Subscription Concert on November 20 presented nothing fresh, but M. Savonov, with the Hallé Orchestra, repeated a familiar success in Tchaikovsky's fifth Symphony, and Miss Nevada displayed her very artistic vocalisation in airs by Mozart and Donizetti. Quite a remarkable performance, so far as the choral side of the work was concerned, was that of 'Elijah,' given by the two chief Bradford Choral Societies on November 23. The experience of the one and the fresh quality of the other united to make the finest choir heard at Bradford for many years past, and Mr. Fricker, who conducted, made the most of his large but thoroughly efficient choir. The principals were Miss d'Argo, Miss Nuttall, Mr. John Booth, and Mr. Herbert Brown. The orchestra detracted from the general excellence of the performance, but as it was a voluntary one —the proceeds of the concert being given to War relief funds—its efforts must not be too severely criticised. On December 5 Mr. Hamilton Harty conducted the Bradford Permanent Orchestra in his orchestral tone-poem, 'With the wild geese,' which was fairly well played, though obviously requiring rather more rehearsal. Mr. John Dunn gave a very fine performance of Mendelssohn's Violin concerto, taking the first movement unusually slowly, but realising the charm of the Andante and the vivacity of the Finale exceedingly well. Miss Annie Cockcroft's simple and expressive singing of Mimi's song from 'La Bohème' also deserves mention.

Some Advent music must be briefly referred to. The 'German Requiem' was given by the York Choral and Orchestral Societies, under Dr. Bairstow's direction, in York Cathedral on December 15, and on December 18, under Mr. C. H. Moody, in Ripon Cathedral, while in Wakefield Cathedral, Mr. G. H. Hirst, the organist of Dewsbury Parish Church, conducted Mendelssohn's 'St. Paul' on November 27. On November 30, the Pudsey Choral Union gave a creditable performance of Handel's 'Samson,' Mr. H. H. Pickard conducting, and Miss Nellie Judson, Miss Baxandall, Mr. Brearley, and Mr. Norman Allin being the principals. The Doncaster Musical Society chose Sullivan's 'Golden Legend' for its concert on November 26, a good, all-round performance being given under the direction of Mr. Wilfrid Sanderson. Miss Eva Rich, Miss May Peters, and Messrs. Frank Webster and Norman Williams were the soloists. The Halifax Chamber Concerts have attained great popularity with local music-lovers, and a large audience assembled on November 27 to hear the Rawdon Briggs Quartet in Beethoven's fine Quartet in B flat, Op. 130, and, with Mr. Herbert Johnson, Dohnànyi's very attractive Pianoforte quintet.

Country and Colonial News.

BRIEFLY SUMMARIZED.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the opinions expressed in this summary, as the notices are either prepared from local newspapers or furnished by correspondents

Correspondents are particularly requested to enclose a programme when forwarding reports of concerts.

ABERDEEN.—Several concerts have been given recently, greatly to the benefit of the various Funds. A choral concert to which Madame Clara Butt gave her services yielded £300. £60 was raised at a concert of the Male-Voice Choir at which Mr. John Coates and M. Arthur de Greef assisted, and on another occasion the Male-Voice Choir helped to raise £175. Great credit is due to the conductor, Mr. Arthur Collingwood, for this enthusiastic work.

AUCKLAND.—A concert was given by the Liedertafel (a thoroughly British institution, in spite of its name) on October 22, the proceeds being given to patriotic funds. Under Dr. W. E. Thomas the Society sang 'Hues of day' (Berlear), 'Drowsy wood' (Storch), 'Sea fight' (Paliard), 'Lend an ear, lady fair' (Abt), and other part-songs, and Mendelssohn's 'Festgesang.'

BLACKBURN.—The Ladies' Choir, conducted by Mr. F. Duckworth, more than lived up to its reputation on December 14, when it gave a concert in aid of the Mayor's War Relief Fund. Admirable interpretations were given of Vaughan Williams's 'Sound sleep,' Stanford's 'Valentine's Day,' and two part-songs by Dr. F. H. Wood, of Blackburn, entitled, 'Alpha and Omega' and 'Britons beyond the seas.' Solo contributions were made by Miss N. Keighley (vocalist), Mrs. Walter Briggs (pianoforte), and Mr. E. Romaine O'Malley (violin).

HALIFAX.—A patriotic concert by the Halifax Madrigal Society took place at the Victoria Hall on December 12. Under Mr. H. Shepley's direction the choir, deservedly one of the most famous in the North of England, gave the National Anthems of the Allies, Fletcher's 'For Empire and for King,' Havergal Brian's 'Stars of the summer night,' Walford Davies's 'Hymn before action,' and Elgar's 'The reveille.' Solo numbers were given by Mr. Philip Ritte (vocalist), Miss Miriam Timothy (harp), and Mr. Victor Borlée (flute).

HANLEY.—A patriotic concert in aid of the Mayor's Fund was given at the Victoria Hall on December 3 by the North Staffs District Choral Society. The conductor was Prof. Granville Bantock, whose 'Coronach' and choral arrangements of 'Scots, wha ha'e' and the 'March of the Cameron men' were in the programme. A tribute was paid to the late Mr. Harry Evans,—who was appointed conductor to the Society a short time before his death,—by the performance of his arrangements of three Welsh airs. The North Staffs Symphony Orchestra, under Mr. John Cope, played German's 'Welsh Rhapsody,' Sibelius's 'Finlandia,' and Elgar's 'Imperial march,' and Mr. Frank Mullings gave solos. The choir also gave the National Anthems of England, France, Russia, Belgium, and Japan.

JARROW-ON-TYNE.—On December 13 the choir of the Wesleyan Church, augmented, and with organ and orchestral accompaniment, under the direction of Mr. G. R. Pattison, organist and choirmaster, gave a spirited performance of Gade's 'Crusaders.' The soloists were Miss Ada Elliott, Mr. M. Newton, and Mr. W. H. Frith, all of whom were in excellent voice. Mr. A. F. Milner presided at the organ, and Mr. Williams led the orchestra.

NEWCASTLE.—A concert of patriotic music was given at the Town Hall on November 25 by the Newcastle and Gateshead Choral Union. Stanford's 'The Revenge' was the chief work given, the programme also including Coleridge-Taylor's 'Viking song,' Elgar's 'Britons, alert,' national songs, and national anthems. Dr. Henry Coward conducted, and solos were given by Madame Gleeson-White and Mr. Robert Burnett.

REDRUTH.—'Judas Maccabæus' was performed at the United Methodist Church, Fore Street, on December 10, in aid of the Belgian Relief Fund. A band and choir of 150 performers were conducted by Mr. M. Clemens. The soloists were Mlle. de Jalhem, Miss Yelland, Mr. C. L. Forrester, and Mr. Maynard.

SOUTHPORT.—The Southport Choral Society's patriotic concert, on December 1, besides being a great musical success, has resulted in the sum of £82 5*s.* 9*d.* being handed to the Mayor towards the Belgian Relief Fund. This amount, in addition to the Society's musical assistance generously given to Madame Clara Butt's concert, constitutes a record highly creditable to the public spirit of the Choral Society. The programme included part-songs by Elgar, Cowen, Faning, and Oliver King. Assistance was given by the Vocal Union (male choir), which sang a couple of part-songs in its best style. The soloists were Miss Melville Iredale, Mr. Ernest Hartley, Mr. Edward de Jong (flute), and Mr. Whitfield (violin). Miss Brough recited 'The Day,' to which accompanying music had been written by the conductor, Mr. J. C. Clarke. The orchestra played with great effec Elgar's 'Pomp and Circumstance' March in D, 'Solemn melody' (Walford Davies), and 'Country Dance' (Cowen). Miss Carrie Lumbers was a skilful accompanist.

VANCOUVER.—On November 17 the Musical Society gave what was described as the best choral concert heard at Vancouver since the Sheffield Choir from England visited the city four years ago. The programme included Brahms's 'Song of Destiny,' Coleridge-Taylor's 'Viking song' for chorus and orchestra, Colin Taylor's third 'Slumber song of the Madonna' for ladies' voices, Wagner's 'Hail, bright abode,' from 'Tannhäuser,' Handel's male-voice chorus 'The Lord is a man of war,' Tchaikovsky's third 'Cherubim song,' and Mendelssohn's 'Judge me, O God.' The orchestra played Haydn's sixth Symphony. Under the direction of Mr. G. P. Hicks, performances of great merit were given, especially noteworthy being the interpretation of Brahms's work. Violin solos were contributed by Miss Grace Hastings.

VENTNOR.—A successful violin recital was given at the Friendly Societies' Hall on December 9 by Miss Eveline Petherick, assisted by Mrs. Raeburn (vocalist) and Miss Gwladys Williams (pianoforte). Miss Petherick played Grieg's Sonata in F and Mendelssohn's Concerto.

WINDSOR.—The annual evening concert of the Royal Albert Institute was given on November 16 with the distinguished assistance of Sir Walter Parratt as conductor, Lady Maud Warrender as vocalist, and the Rev. E. H. Fellowes as violinist. The choral numbers included Arensky's 'The pearl,' Mackenzie's 'The fisherman's song,' Stevens's 'The cloud-cap't towers,' Parry's 'The brown burns of the Border,' Calcott's 'Peace to the souls of the heroes,' and Dr. Pearce's Fantasia on the Allies' National Anthems.

Miscellaneous.

The Associated Board of the R.A.M. and the R.C.M. has awarded exhibitions to Ethel A. Bartlett (pianoforte), Dorothy Chalmers (violin), and Bessie B. Kerr (singing), at the Royal Academy of Music; and Freda M. Swain (pianoforte), Leslie C. Martin (violoncello), and Emmeline M. Wynter (violin), at the Royal College of Music. The exhibitions previously held by Dorothy M. Davies, Mary G. Frazer, Kathleen Levi and Elsie Watson at the Royal Academy of Music, and by Leonard S. Jefferies, Hubert A. M. Marno, and Freda Sweet at the Royal College of Music, have been renewed for a further period of one year. The exhibition held by Hyman Grünbaum at the Royal College of Music has been extended for one term.

The Festivals Committee of the Crystal Palace have arranged the following dates for the Summer festivals:—The London Sunday School Choir, June 5; the National Union of School Orchestras, June 12; the Tonic Sol-fa Association, July 3; the National Temperance Choral Union, July 10.

Mr. Russell Bonner has just completed a series of sixteen pianoforte recitals at the various branches of the Metropolitan Academy of Music. The programmes consisted entirely of compositions by Chopin.

Sir Charles Stanford has been invited to conduct a selection of his own compositions at the Norfolk (Connecticut) Festival in June, 1915. His new Pianoforte concerto will be given for the first time.

Dr. Markham Lee gave a lecture on Debussy to a meeting of the Incorporated Society of Musicians (London Section) on December 12.

Mr. D. F. Tovey announces six recitals of Beethoven's pianoforte works to be given for the Red Cross Fund and that of the Committee for Music in War-time.

Herr Fritz Kreisler, the great violinist, who was wounded while serving in the Austrian Army, arrived convalescent at New York late in November.

Dr. Cyril Bradley Rootham has been honoured by election to a Fellowship of St. John's College, Cambridge.

Mr. Dalton Baker has joined the staff of the Toronto Conservatory of Music.

Answers to Correspondents.

G. P. B.—We do not know of 'A collection of lyrics containing verses suitable for hymns for various occasions including war-time.' If such a collection obtains, the question of the existence of copyright would have to be ascertained by the inquirer. There is no regulation fee for the use of copyright verses: their value depends upon merit and the standing of the author.

W. H. STEERS (Victoria, Australia).—Usage varies as to the pace of performing 'La Marseillaise.' Crotchet = M. 108 is a good marching time. It is sometimes performed faster as a song or chorus. We are grateful to you for all your good wishes, which we reciprocate.

G. S. PEARCE (Plymouth).—We have to confess that we do not know the song from which you say erroneously that it has been stated in our columns that 'Tipperary' was derived. The once-popular French song 'Partant pour la Syrie' was given as a Supplement in our October number.

[Other answers are held over or have been given privately.]

CONTENTS.

	Page
Medtner. By Ernest Newman	9
Some Reflections of a Native Composer	11
The Clay and the Potter. By F. Corder	15
1914. By George Henschel	17
Occasional Notes	17
Questions of Modern Harmony. By G. H. Clutsam ...	18
Illustrations of the History of Music Printing in the Library of Mr. Alfred H. Littleton. By Jeffrey Pulver	21
Mr. Albert Sammons (with portrait)	23
Church and Organ Music	24
The Compleat Organist. By Harvey Grace (continued)	24
The Adventures of a Long-Metre Tune...	27
Reviews	28
Correspondence	29
Obituary	32
The Royal Philharmonic Society...	32
English as it should be Sung	37
Colleges and Singers: Mr. Beecham as Æsop... ...	37
Belgian Music in London...	38
The Modern Flemish School of Music	38
Organ Posts in Canada: An Unprofessional Opinion By William Q. Phillips...	39
London Concerts	40
Suburban Concerts	42
Music in the Provinces	42
Country and Colonial News	49
Miscellaneous	50
Answers to Correspondents	50

MUSIC:

'Give peace in our time, O Lord.' Full Anthem. For Four Voices. By F. W. WADELY 33

THREE Extra Supplements are given with this number:

1. O Thou that hearest prayer. Anthem for Lent or General Use. By R. Walker Robson.
2. Darkness of Night. Vesper Hymn for Time of War. By George C. Martin.
3. Competition Festival Record.

DURING THE LAST MONTH.

Published by NOVELLO & CO., LIMITED.

ADAMS, DAVID B.—"Ye Mariners of England." Part-Song. For T.T.B.B. 4d.

ARCHER, J. STUART.—Romance with Variations. (Original Compositions for the Organ (New Series), No. 37). 2s.

BANTOCK, GRANVILLE.—"The Great God Pan." A Choral Ballet. In two Scenes, with a Prologue. Part I., Pan in Arcady. Choruses only. 2s. 6d.

BATH, HUBERT.—"Children of Britain." Poem by ALFRED NOYES. Song, with Organ obbligato. 1s. net.
Arranged as an Anthem or Unaccompanied Part-Song for Mixed Voices. 3d.
Arranged for Children's Voices with Accompaniment. 3d.; Melody only, 1d.

BLAXILL, H. E.—Vesper Hymn ("Heavenly Father, in our weakness"). 1d. Words only, 2s. per 100.

BRIDGE, SIR FREDERICK.—A Christmas Canticle ("Wings, white in the dawn"). Song. Adapted to Handel's Largo. 2s.

CLEMENTI, MUZIO.—Gradus ad Parnassum. Twenty-four Selected Studies, edited and fingered by Franklin Taylor. (Edition Novello, No. 15.) Complete, 3s. Or in Four Books (Edition Novello, Nos. 15A, 15B, 15C, 15D), 1s. each.

COATES, HENRY.—"Wayside Roses." Song. For Medium Voice. 2s.

CORRI, GHITA.—"Fight, fight, fight!" Patriotic Song. 6d.

DENNIS, C. H.—"Huddersfield: A Song of Home." Unison Song. 2d.

ELGAR, EDWARD.—"Follow the Colours." Song. With Chorus for Men's Voices ad lib. 2s.

FELLOWES, OLIVE.—"To Britain's Daughters." Four-part Song. 3d.

FLOYD, A. E.—"Carpe Diem." The song of the Oswestry Boys' High School. 2d.

GATES, H. H.—Two Hymn Tunes ("Bless'd are the pure in heart" and "To the Name of our Salvation"), and Music for a Litany, in metrical form. 2d.

GRACE, HARVEY.—Epilogue. (No. 46, Recital Series of Original Compositions for the Organ.) Edited by EDWIN H. LEMARE). 2s.

HARRISON, H.—"Lord God, our strength and stay." (Tune, "Amfridus.") Post Benediction Hymn for use in time of War. On Card. 2d.

HELY-HUTCHINSON, VICTOR.—"Bravo." Song. The words by FRED. E. WEATHERLY. 2s.

HOLBROOKE, J.—Fantasie-Sonate for Violoncello and Pianoforte. (Op. 19.) 3s. 6d.

JONES, R. O.—"Lord, lead Thy hosts from far." Hymn in time of War. Both Notations. On Card. 1d.

LITTLETON, A. H.—"Jesus lives!—no longer now." Hymn and Tune. (No. 928, Novello's Parish Choir Book.) On Card. 1d.

MARTIN, G. C.—"Darkness of Night." Vesper Hymn for time of War. (No. 929, Novello's Parish Choir Book.) On Card. 1d.

MATTHEWS, T. R.—"Thou didst leave Thy throne." (No. 376, Novello's Christmas Carols.) 1d.

MORETON, H.—A War Hymn ("Father, before Thy mercy seat"). 1d.

OLDEN, G. R. C.—"The Light of Man." Christmas Carol. 1d.

OUSELEY, F. A. GORE.—"The Lord is my Shepherd." Full Anthem. (No. 1054, Novello's Octavo Anthems.) 3d.

PASCOE, C. F.—"O little town of Bethlehem." Christmas Carol. 1½d.

ROWLEY, ALEC.—Festal Prelude. Original Compositions for the Organ, New Series (No. 36). 2s.

SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW.—No. 271 contains the following music in both Notations:—
"Christmas Bells." Norwegian Carol. Unison Song. Arranged by EDMONDSTOUNE DUNCAN; "Obedient to the Call" (Valete). Composed by EATON FANING. Arranged as a Unison Song. 1½d.

SCHOOL SONGS.—Edited by W. G. MCNAUGHT. Published in two forms. A. Voice Parts in Staff and Tonic Sol-fa Notations, with Pianoforte Accompaniment (8vo). B. Voice Parts only, in Tonic Sol-fa Notation.
No. 865. "The Maple Leaf for ever." Canadian National Song. A. MUIR 1d. — B.
,, 885. "Appendix to School Choir Training." By MARGARET NICHOLLS 2d. —

SHORE, ROYLE.—Te Deum laudamus, for congregation, with or without a choir, and an alternative chant setting. The People's Part. 2d.

SHORT PRELUDES FOR THE ORGAN.—Books 4, 5, and 6. 1s. each.

SILVER, R.—"To the Snow." Song for Medium Voice. 1s. 6d.

STRICKLAND-CONSTABLE, M.—"The Muster of the Guards." Song. 2s.

TONIC SOL-FA PUBLICATIONS:

BUFFEY, T. G.—"The Jackdaw of Rheims." Humorous Cantata (Two-part). For Children. 6d.

TONIC SOL-FA SERIES. — Edited by W. G. MCNAUGHT:

No. 2202. "Soldier, rest!" (The Lady of the Lake). Part-Song for S.A.T.B. D. STEPHEN 1½d.
,, 2207. "There is a green hill far away." C. GOUNOD. Arranged as an Anthem for Soprano Solo and Chorus by JOHN E. WEST ... 2d.
,, 2208. "The Marseillaise" Hymn ... 1d.
,, 2211. "Ring out, wild bells." Festival Carol. PERCY E. FLETCHER 3d.
,, 2212. "God, the all-terrible." Russian Melody. A. LWOFF 1d.
,, 2213. "The Minstrel Boy." Irish Air. Arranged for S.A.T.B. by T. F. DUNHILL ... ... 1½d.

WADELY, F. W.—"Give peace in our time, O Lord." Short Anthem. (No. 863, The Musical Times.) 1½d.

WARD, JOHN.—Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis, in G minor. (No. 6, The Cathedral Series of Church Service Music. Edited by ROYLE SHORE.) 1s.

WESLEY, S. S.—Benedictus. Adapted by SIR FREDERICK BRIDGE to the music of the Jubilate from the Service in E. (No. 920, Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 4d.

WILLIAMS, H. G.—Thirty-six Pedal Basses added to Ancient and Modern Hymn Tunes. 9d.

PUBLISHED FOR
THE H. W. GRAY CO., NEW YORK.

ANDREWS, MARK.—"At the Mermaid Inn." Part-Song for T.T.B.B. 15 cents (6d.).

ARMSTRONG, W. D.—"Lord, I call upon Thee." Short Anthem for General Use. 10 cents (3d.).

CONVERSE, F. S.—"Song of the World Adventurers." Chorus for Mixed Voices. 12 cents (4d.).

HAGUE, ELEANOR.—Folk-Songs from Mexico and South America. Pianoforte accompaniments by Edward Kilenyi. $1 (4s.).

HILTON-TURVEY, T.—"The Bluebell's Wedding." Four-part Song. 10 cents (3d.).

DURING THE LAST MONTH—(continued).

LAMBORD, B.—"A Health to King Charles." Song. 2s.

—— "Hey-Ho Robin." Madrigal. For Mixed Voices. 15 cents (6d.).

MATTHEW, GEORGE.—"Killarney." Arranged for Male Voices. 10 cents (3d.).

—— "My Lagan Love." Old Ulster Melody. Arranged for Contralto Solo, with Male-Voice Chorus. 10 cents (3d.).

—— "The Harp of Tara." Arranged for Baritone Solo, with Male-Voice Chorus. 10 cents (3d.).

SEILER, C. LINN.—"April." Song. 2s.

THRESHER, W. H.—Communion Service in E flat. 12 cents (4d.).

WARD, F. E.—"Holy Father, great Creator." Anthem. 12 cents (4d.).

—— "The Fairies." Part-Song. For S.A.A.T.B.B. 15 cents (6d.).

HOME MUSIC STUDY UNION.

President: W. H. HADOW, M.A., Mus.D.

Vice-Presidents:

ARTHUR SOMERVELL, M.A. | PERCY C. BUCK, M.A., Mus.D.
C. HARFORD LLOYD, M.A., Mus.D. | Mrs. ROSA NEWMARCH.

The Home Music Study Union is a Comradeship open to all who are interested in Music, whether as performers or listeners. Its object is to stimulate real enthusiasm for the art, to cultivate habits of study, and to encourage wide views.

CIRCULARS explanatory of the Union's work may be had FREE. For SPECIMEN COPY of The Music Student enclose 1½*d.* to cover postage. Office: 30, Carlton Terrace, Child's Hill, London, N.W.

MUSIC MISTRESSES.

ASSISTANT MISTRESS to teach Piano, Violin, and if possible Class Singing, in a Girls' High-Class School, within easy reach of London. A good salary will be given. Res. No. 1452.

ASSISTANT MISTRESS to teach good Piano, and to prepare Pupils for R.A.M. and R.C.M. Examinations. Also to teach Theory, Harmony, and Class Singing. Churchwoman essential. Private Girls' School in the South West of England. Salary, £45 to £50. Res. No. 1484.

For further particulars, please apply to Messrs. Gabbitas & Thring, 36, Sackville Street, Piccadilly, W.

ST. MARTIN-IN-THE-FIELDS, TRAFALGAR SQUARE, W.C.—WANTED, TENORS and BASSES for the Church Choir. Good readers. Experienced. Salary £10 per annum. Apply by letter to The Organist. Copies of testimonials, also particulars as to age, occupation, and experience are required. Selected candidates only will receive a reply.

ST. GEORGE'S CHURCH, HART STREET, BLOOMSBURY.—ALTO WANTED. £10 per annum. Letters only, to Organist, Vestry Hall, Little Russell Street.

BASS WANTED. £10. ST. CLEMENT'S, KING WILLIAM STREET, E.C. Close to Bank Tube Station. Sunday 11 and 6.30. Friday Rehearsal. Good Reader and Catholic Churchman. Apply Dr. C. W. Pearce, 8M, Hyde Park Mansions, W.

BRAVE HEARTS. Stirring words in praise of our Soldiers, by Edward Oxenford, music by J. J. Jones (composer of 'March of the Sea-King,' &c.). 'This rattling rhythmical song tells of determination and pluck.'—Music Trades Review. 'Altogether amongst the best of its class.'—The Queen. One shilling. Weekes & Co., London.

THE MUSICAL TIMES.

SCALE OF TERMS FOR ADVERTISEMENTS.

	£	s.	d.
Two Lines	0	3	0
Three Lines	0	3	4
For every additional Line	0	0	10
One inch (displayed)	0	10	0
Half a Column	2	0	0
A Column	4	0	0
A Page	7	10	0

Special Pages (Cover, &c.) by arrangement.

A remittance should be sent with every Advertisement.

OVER 6,000,000 COPIES OF CALEB SIMPER'S FAMOUS COMPOSITIONS NOW SOLD.

NEW EASTER ANTHEM, ETC.

WORTHY IS THE LAMB. (Sol-fa, 2d.) .. .. 4d.
A fine Anthem, with beautiful Solo and very interesting Choruses.
NEW HYMN for Use during WAR .. .. 1d.
"O LORD OF HOSTS," with refrain, "Thou who makest war to cease, Grant us soon a lasting peace." Suitable for every Sunday, and especially for Intercession Services. O. N. and Sol-fa in same copy. Words separately, 1s. 6d. per 100.
NEW No. 22 SELECTION of Eight Hymns and Tunes for Children's Festivals, Anniversaries, &c. Complete, 2d. Words only, 3s. 6d. per 100. Liberal terms for quantities.
The STORY of the CRUCIFIXION. Price 6d. Sol-fa .. .. .. 4d.
An easy and very effective short Work for Holy Week. The fourth 1,000 now ready. "Highly appreciated."
THREE SHORTENED FORMS of the BENEDICITE. Complete, 2d. Favourite Settings. Order as Benedicite No. 8.
Two New VOLUNTARY BOOKS, Nos. 9 and 10, each 1s. 6d. 17 Pieces in each book, for Organ, American Organ, or Harmonium. One of the most useful series ever published. Over 200 Editions have been sold.
London: WEEKES & Co., 14, Hanover Street, Regent Street, W.
Chicago, U.S.A.: CLAYTON F. SUMMY Co., 64, E. Van Buren Street.
Canada: ANGLO-CANADIAN M.P.A. Ltd., 144, Victoria St., Toronto.

DR. ARNE
AND RULE, BRITANNIA
BY WILLIAM HAYMAN CUMMINGS.

PREFACE.

The glorious National Song, "Rule, Britannia," is familiar to the whole British Race; nevertheless, very few men and women are acquainted with the history of its birth and parentage.

In the following pages I have endeavoured to chronicle all the facts which are discoverable by diligent research, and to present them in an attractive and entertaining manner.

The life of Dr. Arne, the composer of "Rule, Britannia," offers to the reader and to the music student an interesting and instructive story, showing that natural ability, even when combined with genius, is not sufficient to ensure a triumphant and successful career. Morality and conscientious rectitude in the affairs of life are essential, and had Arne exercised these, his exceptional gifts might have enabled him to surpass his great contemporary, Handel.

It only remains to be noted that many letters and documents are here printed for the first time, some of them copied from the original autographs in my possession. They illuminate much which has hitherto been obscure and uncertain in the career of a famous composer.

CLOTH, GILT,
Price Three Shillings and Sixpence net.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

THE BRITISH STRING QUARTET.

THOMAS FUSSELL, 1st Violin. | RAYMOND JEREMY, Viola.
ERNEST LEGGETT, 2nd Violin. | CEDRIC SHARPE, 'Cello.

All inquiries as to terms, dates, &c., to be addressed to CEDRIC SHARPE, 108B, Philbeach Gardens, S.W. Telephone: Western 617.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

To ensure insertion in their proper positions, Advertisements for the next issue should reach the Office, 160, Wardour Street, London, W., not later than

FRIDAY, JANUARY 22. (FIRST POST.)

MUSIC FOR LENT.

*THE PASSION OF OUR LORD. (According to St. Matthew.) J. S. BACH. Edited by EDWARD ELGAR and IVOR ATKINS. 2s. 6d.; paper boards, 3s. 6d. Vocal Parts, 1s. each. Tonic Sol-fa, 1s. Words only, 15s. per 100.

*THE PASSION OF OUR LORD. (According to St. Matthew.) J. S. BACH. 2s.; paper boards, 2s. 6d. Choruses only, Tonic Sol-fa, 1s. Words only, 15s. per 100.

*THE PASSION OF OUR LORD. (According to St. Matthew.) J. S. BACH. Abridged, as used at St. Paul's Cathedral. Octavo, 1s. 6d. Book of Words, with Music to the Chorales, 6d. Words only, 10s. per 100.

*THE PASSION OF OUR LORD. (According to St. John.) J. S. BACH. 2s.; paper boards, 2s. 6d.; cloth, gilt, 4s.

*THE PASSION OF CHRIST. G. F. HANDEL. 3s.; paper boards, 3s. 6d.; cloth, gilt, 5s. Abridged edition for Church use, 1s. Words only, 10s. per 100.

*THE PASSION OF OUR LORD. (The Seven Words of Our Saviour on the Cross.) J. HAYDN. 2s.; paper boards, 2s. 6d.; cloth, gilt, 4s.

THE PASSION OF OUR LORD. (The Seven Words of Our Saviour on the Cross.) CH. GOUNOD. 1s.

*THE PASSION OF OUR LORD ("Der Tod Jesu.") C. H. GRAUN. 2s.; paper boards, 2s. 6d.; cloth, gilt, 4s. Choruses only, 1s.

THE PASSION OF OUR LORD. H. SCHÜTZ. 1s.

*PASSION MUSIC (from the Oratorio "St. Peter"). By SIR JULIUS BENEDICT. 1s. 6d.

*OUT OF DARKNESS. (Psalm cxxx.) For Soli, Chorus, and Orchestra. GEORG HENSCHEL (Op. 30). 2s. 6d.

OUT OF DARKNESS (De Profundis). (Psalm cxxx.) For Soli, Chorus, and Orchestra. Composed by CH. GOUNOD. English or Latin words. 1s.

*ZION'S WAYS DO LANGUISH. Soprano Solo and Chorus, from "Gallia" (Motet). CH. GOUNOD. 1s.

MISERERE MEI, DEUS, &c., as sung at St. Paul's Cathedral, preceding Bach's Passion on Tuesday in Holy Week. Arranged by J. STAINER. 3d. Tonic Sol-fa, 3d.

MISERERE MEI, DEUS. The Music composed by J. BARNBY. 3d.

MISERERE MEI, DEUS. Set to the well-known Ancient Chant, as arranged and harmonised by VINCENT NOVELLO. Price 2d.; Ditto, Latin words, 3d.

MISERERE MEI, DEUS. (Chant Setting.) The Music composed by EDGAR PETTMAN. Price 1½d.

MISERERE MEI, DEUS. The music composed by GREGORIO ALLEGRI. As used at St. Paul's Cathedral Lenten Services. Edited by GEORGE C. MARTIN. 4d.

MISERERE MEI, DEUS. The music composed by G. P. DA PALESTRINA. Edited by W. BARCLAY SQUIRE. Latin and English words. 4d.

MISERERE MEI, DEUS, in F. The music composed by F. E. GLADSTONE. Latin words, 3d.

MISERERE MEI, DEUS, in F sharp minor. The music composed by F. E. GLADSTONE. Latin words, 6d.

MISERERE MEI, DEUS. A simple Unison Arrangement with Organ Accompaniment, 1d.

*Orchestral Parts of the works marked * can be had.*

THE BENEDICITE

SET TO MUSIC BY

THE FOLLOWING COMPOSERS.

BAIRSTOW, E. C. (on the plan of the Paragraph Psalter)	3d.
BENNETT, GEORGE J. (in E flat)	1½d.
BENNETT, GEORGE J. (in G)	1½d.
BENNETT, GEORGE J. (in D, Unison)	3d.
BEST, W. T. (in C). (Sol-fa, 1½d.)	3d.
BLAIR, HUGH (in G)	1½d.
BRIDGE, J. F., JAMES TURLE, and Dr. HAYES	1½d.
BUTTON, H. ELLIOT (in D)	1½d.
C., H. B.	1½d.
COBB, G. F. (in G)	2d.
ELLIOTT, J. W. (in G)	1½d.
ELLIOTT, J. W. (in G)	2d.
ELLIOTT, J. W. (in G)	4d.
ELLIOTT, M. B. (in G)	1½d.
ELLIOTT, R. B. (in G)	1½d.
EYRE, ALFRED J. (in E flat). (With a Quadruple Chant for the Te Deum)	2d.
EYRE, ALFRED J. (No. 2, in F)	1½d.
FOSTER, MYLES B. (in F, Chant Form)	4d.
FROST, PERCY H. (in D)	2d.
GADSBY, HENRY (in G, Chant Form)	1½d.
GALE, C. R. (in D)	1½d.
GLADSTONE, F. E. (in C, Chant Form)	1½d.
GLADSTONE, F. E. (in G, Unison)	1½d.
GODFREY, A. E. (in C)	3d.
GODFREY, A. E. (No. 2, in G)	3d.
HERVEY, F. A. J. (in A flat, Chant Form)	1½d.
HUGHES, W. (in E flat)	1½d.
ILIFFE, FREDERICK (No. 1, in E flat, Chant Form)	1½d.
LEMARE, E. H. (in B flat)	3d.
LLOYD, C. HARFORD (in E flat, Chant Form)	2d.
LUCAS, P. T. (in A flat, shortened form)	1½d.
MACPHERSON, CHARLES (in F, rhythmic setting)	4d.
MARTIN, G. C. (No. 1, in F; No. 2, in E flat; No. 3, in G) each	4d.
MATTHEWS, T. R. (in E flat)	1½d.
MERBECKE (arranged by GEORGE C. MARTIN)	2d.
MILLER, C. E. (second setting) (in G, Chant Form)	2d.
PETTMAN, EDGAR (No. 1, in C; No. 2, set to Double Chants)	2d.
PETTMAN, EDGAR (in E flat)	1½d.
PULLEIN, J. (in E flat)	1½d.
ROBERTS, J. VARLEY (in B flat)	4d.
SLATER, W. (in F)	1½d.
SMITH, BOYTON (in A flat)	1½d.
SMITH, CHAS. W. (in C). S.A.T.T.B., also simplified for S.A.T.B.	6d.
STAINER, J., and B. BLAXLAND (in F, Chant Form)	1½d.
STAINER, J., R. DE LACY, A. GIBBS, and F. CHAMPNEYS	1½d.
STAINER, J., W. WINN, and F. WALKER	1½d.
STAINER, J., W. WINN, and F. WALKER (Welsh words). (Sol-fa, 1d.)	1½d.
STAINER, J. (in D, Chant Form)	1½d.
STEWART, C. HYLTON (on the plan of the Paragraph Psalter)	3d.
BARNBY, J. FOSTER, JOHN SMITH, MONTEM (two settings) TURLE, J. (two settings) WICKES, C. A. (two settings)
TOZER, FERRIS (in G)	2d.
TOZER, FERRIS (in A). Short and simple	2d.
WEST, JOHN E. (in G)	4d.
WEST, JOHN E. (in C)	1½d.
WESTBURY, G. H. (in C)	1½d.
WILLAN, HEALEY (in D). Shortened Form	1½d.
WOOD, W. G. (in D)	1½d.
WRIGLEY, G. F. (in G, Quadruple Chant)	1½d.

THE STORY OF THE CROSS

FOR VOICES AND ORGAN

With Short Interludes, giving opportunity for Meditation.

THE WORDS BY

THE REV. E. MONRO

SET TO MUSIC BY

BUTTON, H. ELLIOT	2d.
FOSTER, MYLES B. (Sol-fa, 1½d.)	3d.
ROBERTS, J. VARLEY (Sol-fa, 1½d.)	3d.
SOMERVELL, ARTHUR (Sol-fa, 1½d.)	3d.
STAINER, J. (Sol-fa, 1½d.)	3d.

Words only, 1s. 6d. per 100.

Large Type Edition, 2s. 6d. per 100.

THE REPROACHES

SET TO MUSIC BY

DYKES, REV. J. B.	3d.
GOUNOD, CH.	2d.
PALESTRINA (together with the proper plain-chant melodies) (Edited by W. S. Vale)	4d.
WILLAN, HEALEY (Double Choir) (unaccompanied)	3d.

ANTHEMS IN THE LUTE SERIES.

121	Give sentence with me, O God	F. Lewis Thomas	3d.
38	Hear me, O Lord	W. H. Dixon	3d.
*197	Hear me when I call	A. W. Marchant	3d.
*13	Hear, O Lord	Michael Watson	3d.
193	Just as I am	Ferris Tozer	3d.
110	Like as the hart; O send out Thy Light	C. Lochnane	3d.
27	Oh most Merciful	J. F. Bridge	3d.
67b	O Lord, rebuke me not	Gaynor Simpson	1½d.
200	O Saving Victim	J. Lionel Bennett	3d.
113	Out of the deep have I called	Hamilton Clarke	3d.
145	Ponder my words, O Lord	Norman Hatfield	3d.
196	Remember not, Lord	J. M. Bentley	3d.
67a	Rend your heart	W. H. Dixon	1½d.
*2	Seek ye the Lord	J. F. Bridge	3d.
*77	There is a green hill	Fred. H. Burstall	2d.
165	Turn Thee, O Lord	Norman Hatfield	3d.
206	Turn Thy face from my sins	Cuthbert Harris	3d.

Those marked thus * are also published in Tonic Sol-fa.

NOVELLO'S ANTHEMS FOR LENT.

*All ye who seek for sure relief	H. M. Higgs	3d.
All ye who weep	Ch. Gounod	3d.
And Jacob was left alone	J. Stainer	6d.
And Jesus entered into the Temple	H. W. Davies	4d.
*Art thou weary	C. H. Lloyd	6d.
*As pants the hart	Spohr	1½d.
At Thy feet in adoration	Anton Dvorák	3d.
Behold, I come quickly	I. Atkins	2d.
Behold, two blind men	J. Stainer	3d.
Be merciful unto me	E. A. Sydenham	3d.
Be not Thou far from me, O God	F. W. Hird	1½d.
Blessed are they that mourn	A. W. Batson	3d.
*Bow down Thine ear	Attwood and Beale, each	1½d.
*Bow Thine ear, O Lord	W. Byrd	3d.
*By Babylon's wave	Ch. Gounod	2d.
By the waters of Babylon	Boyce and H. Clarke, each	4d.
By the waters of Babylon	Higgs and *Coleridge-Taylor, each	3d.
By Thy glorious Death	Anton Dvorák	4d.
*Call to remembrance	R. Farrant	1½d.
Cast me not away	C. Lee Williams	2d.
Cast me not away	S. S. Wesley	3d.
*Cast thy burden upon the Lord	Mendelssohn	1½d.
*Come, and let us return (Two-part Anthem)	G. A. Macfarren	2d.
*Come, and let us return	J. Goss and W. Jackson, each	3d.
Come, let us worship	Palestrina	1½d.
*Come now, and let us reason together	R. Briant	1½d.
Come now, let us reason together	H. W. Wareing	4d.
*Come unto Him	Ch. Gounod	2d.
Come unto Him	Henry Leslie	3d.
Come unto Me	Bach, Couldrey, and Elvey, each	3d.
Come unto Me	H. Hiles	2d.
Come unto Me	M. Kingston and J. S. Smith, each	1½d.
*Come, ye sin-defiled and weary	J. Stainer	2d.
*Comfort, O Lord	W. Crotch	1½d.
Comfort the soul of Thy servant (A.T.T.B.)	John E. West	4d.
Create in me a clean heart	Percy J. Fry	3d.
Daughters of Jerusalem	G. J. Elvey	1½d.
Daughters of Jerusalem	H. J. King	3d.
Enter not into judgment	T. Attwood	1½d.
Flee from evil	W. J. Clarke	3d.
For our offences	Mendelssohn	1½d.
Forsake me not, O Lord, my God	Goss	4d.
Give ear, O Lord	C. Oberthür	1½d.
*Give ear, O Lord	T. M. Pattison	2d.
Give ear, O Shepherd of Israel	A. Whiting	3d.
Give ear unto my prayer	J. Arcadelt	1½d.
God's Peace is peace eternal	Grieg	3d.
*God so loved the world	Goss, Kingston, and Stainer, each	1½d.
*God so loved the world	Harold Moore and J. V. Roberts, ea.	3d.
Grant, we beseech Thee	J. Booth	1½d.
Grant, we beseech Thee	M. Elvey	2d.
Grant, we beseech Thee	J. V. Roberts	3d.
Have mercy upon me, O God	J. Goss	4d.
Have mercy upon me, O God	J. Barnby	2d.
Have mercy upon me	Barnby, Minshall, Pye, and Shaw, each	3d.
Have mercy upon me	J. White	1½d.
*Hear me when I call	King Hall	1½d.
Hear me when I call (A.T.T.B.)	T. Distin	2d.
*Hear my prayer	J. Kent	3d.
*Hear my prayer	*Mendelssohn and C. Stroud, each	4d.
Hear my prayer	Winter	1½d.
Hear, O Lord	J. Goss	2d.
Hear, O Thou Shepherd	J. Clarke-Whitfeld & T. A. Walmisley, ea.	4d.
Hear the voice and prayer	J. L. Hopkins	1½d.
Hear us, O Saviour	M. Hauptmann	1½d.
He in tears that soweth	F. Hiller	1½d.
Hide not Thy Face	K. J. Pye	2d.
How long wilt Thou	Oliver King	2d.
*Hymn of Peace	W. H. Callcott	1½d.
*I came not to call the righteous	C. Vincent	3d.
If any man sin	H. Hiles	1½d.
*Incline Thine ear	Himmel	1½d.
In Thee, O Lord	*S. Coleridge-Taylor and J. Weldon, each	3d.
*In Thee, O Lord	B. Tours	3d.
*Is it nothing to you? (S.A.T.B.)	M. B. Foster	3d.
*Is it nothing to you? (for S.A.)	M. B. Foster	3d.
I will arise	C. Wood	1½d.
I will cry unto God	H. J. King and C. Steggall, each	3d.
*I will look unto the Lord (Two-part Anthem)	G. A. Macfarren	2d.
*I wrestle and pray	J. C. Bach	4d.
Jesus of Nazareth (Turbarum voces)	G. Byrd	4d.
*Jesu, Blessed Word of God	Ch. Gounod	1½d.
Jesu, Lord of life and glory	G. A. Naumann	1½d.
Jesu, Saviour, I am Thine	B. Steane	1½d.
*Jesu, Word of God	Gounod, Hoyte, Mozart, and White, each	1½d.
*Jesu, Word of God Incarnate	E. Elgar	2d.
Judge me, O God	Ouseley and *Mendelssohn, each	1½d.
Lead, kindly Light	R. Dunstan	3d.
Lead, kindly Light	C. L. Naylor and *J. Stainer, each	4d.
*Lead, kindly Light	Pughe-Evans	3d.
*Lead me, Lord	S. S. Wesley	1½d.
Let my complaint (A.T.T.B.B.)	E. H. Thorne	3d.
*Let my prayer come up	H. Purcell	1½d.
Let the words of my mouth	H. Blair and J. Barnby, each	1½d.
Let the words of my mouth	A. D. Culley	3d.
Let us come boldly	C. H. Lloyd	1½d.
Like as the hart	T. Adams and J. H. Clarke, each	3d.
*Like as the hart	V. Novello	1½d.
Lord, for Thy tender mercies' sake	*R. Farrant, G. R. Vicars, ea.	1½d.
Lord, how are they increased	*Kent	2d.
Lord, how long wilt Thou forget me	Mendelssohn	1½d.
Lord, I call upon Thee	Ouseley, West, and Culley, each	1½d.
Lord, on our offences	Mendelssohn	1½d.
Lord, teach us to number our days (A.A.T.T.B.B.)	C. H. Lloyd	3d.
Lord, Thou hast searched	A. Whiting	3d.
Lord, what is man	W. Boyce	3d.
Make me a clean heart	J. Barnby and A. W. Batson, each	3d.
Mine eyes look unto Thee, O Lord God	H. Baker	3d.
My God, I love Thee	G. J. Bennett	3d.
My God, look upon me	J. L. Hopkins	3d.
*My God, look upon me	J. Reynolds	1½d.
My soul is weary	J. C. Beckwith	4d.
O all ye that pass by	Vittoria	3d.
*O bountiful Jesu	J. Stainer	1½d.
O God, Thou hast cast us out	H. Purcell	4d.
O God, Whose nature	A. Gray and *S. S. Wesley, each	1½d.
O have mercy	H. Leslie	1½d.
*O hearken Thou	A. Sullivan	1½d.
O Jesu! Victim blest	J. B. Powell	3d.
*O Lamb of God	J. Barnby	3d.
O Lamb of God	G. E. Lake	1½d.
*O Lord, correct me	J. Coward	1½d.
O Lord, give ear	W. H. Cummings	2d.
O Lord God, Thou strength	J. Goss	1½d.
O Lord, look down	J. Battishill	3d.
*O Lord, my God	C. Malan and S. S. Wesley, each	1½d.
O Lord, my God	C. Lee Williams	2d.
O Lord, rebuke me not	H. Lahee	1½d.
O most merciful	J. W. Elliott	1½d.
O saving Victim	W. A. C. Cruickshank and Rossini, each	3d.
*O saving Victim	Ch. Gounod	4d.
*O saving Victim	J. Stainer	2d.
O saving Victim	B. Tours and *F. Kœnig, each	1½d.
*O Saviour of the world	J. Goss	1½d.
*O Saviour of the world	Harold Moore	3d.
O Saviour of the world (A.T.T.B.)	J. V. Roberts	2d.
Out of the deep	F. E. Gladstone and G. C. Martin, each	3d.
Out of the deep	Mozart	1½d.
Out of the deep	H. W. Davies and J. Naylor, each	4d.
*O ye that love the Lord	S. Coleridge-Taylor	1½d.
O ye that love the Lord	F. A. W. Docker and G. J. Elvey, each	4d.
O ye that love the Lord	J. W. Elliott	1½d.
O ye that love the Lord	H. W. Wareing	3d.
Ponder my words, O Lord	A. D. Culley	1½d.
Put me not to rebuke, O Lord	W. Croft	4d.
*Remember not, Lord	H. Purcell	1½d.
*Remember now thy Creator	C. Steggall	4d.
Remember, O Lord	T. A. Walmisley	4d.
*Rend your heart	J. B. Calkin	1½d.
Rend your heart	J. Clippingdale	3d.
Rend your heart (Turn ye even to Me)	A. E. Godfrey	3d.
Save me, O God	C. S. Jekyll	1½d.
*Seek ye the Lord	C. Bradley	1½d.
Seek ye the Lord	H. Kinsey and *J. V. Roberts, ea.	3d.
Show me Thy ways	J. V. Roberts	3d.
Spare us, Lord, most holy	E. A. Sydenham	1½d.
*Teach me, O Lord	T. Attwood and B. Rogers, each	1½d.
Teach me Thy way	Spohr and W. H. Gladstone, each	1½d.
The Lord is full of compassion	F. E. Gladstone	3d.
*The Lord is nigh	W. H. Cummings	1½d.
*The path of the just	J. V. Roberts	1½d.
*There is a green hill far away	Ch. Gounod	4d.
*There is a green hill far away	Lord H. Somerset	1½d.
The Reproaches (from the "Redemption")	Ch. Gounod	2d.
The Reproaches	Healey Willan and J. B. Dykes, ea.	3d.
*The sacrifice of God	H. W. Wareing	1½d.
The sacrifices of God	H. Blair	1½d.
*The Story of the Cross	Stainer, Somervell, Foster, & Roberts, ea.	3d.
The Story of the Cross	H. Elliot Button	2d.
Think not that they are blest alone	F. Brandeis	2d.
Thou didst turn Thy face	T. Attwood	1½d.
*Through peace to light	J. H. Roberts	3d.
Thus saith the Lord	G. M. Garrett	6d.
Try me, O God (A.T.T.B.)	A. D. Culley	2d.
Try me, O God	C. Wood	1½d.
Turbarum voces (Jesus of Nazareth)	G. Byrd	4d.
Turn Thee again, O Lord	T. Attwood	1½d.
*Turn Thy face from my sins	T. Attwood and A. Sullivan, each	1½d.
Turn Thy face from my sins	C. Steggall	4d.
Turn Thy face from my sins	C. Lee Williams	2d.
Turn ye even to Me (Rend your heart)	A. E. Godfrey	3d.
Unto Thee have I cried	G. J. Elvey	3d.
*Wash me throughly	S. S. Wesley	3d.
Watch ye and pray	G. R. Vicars	2d.
*Weary of earth	Ferris Tozer	1½d.
*Weary of earth	E. Vine Hall	3d.
Whom the Lord loveth	C. Macpherson	3d.
Why art Thou so vexed	C. Macpherson	2d.
Word of God Incarnate	Ch. Gounod	3d.
Ye who from His ways have turned	Mendelssohn	3d.

*Anthems marked thus * to be had in Tonic Sol-fa, 1d., 1½d., and 2d. each.*

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

CANTATAS FOR LENT.

THE STORY OF CALVARY

FOR TENOR AND BASS SOLI AND CHORUS.

THE WORDS SELECTED AND WRITTEN BY
ROSE DAFFORNE BETJEMANN

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY
THOMAS ADAMS.

PRICE ONE SHILLING AND SIXPENCE. PAPER BOARDS, 2S. TONIC SOL-FA, 9D. WORDS ONLY, 10S. PER 100.

IN THE DESERT AND IN THE GARDEN

FOR
SOPRANO, TENOR, AND BARITONE SOLI AND CHORUS

THE WORDS WRITTEN AND SELECTED BY
VIOLET CRAIGIE HALKETT

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY
FERRIS TOZER.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.
Paper boards, 2s.
Tonic Sol-fa, 1s. Words only, 7s. 6d. per 100.
Parts for Strings and Timpani may be had on hire.

THE CRUCIFIXION

A MEDITATION
ON THE
SACRED PASSION OF THE HOLY REDEEMER

THE WORDS SELECTED AND WRITTEN BY
W. J. SPARROW-SIMPSON, M.A.

SET TO MUSIC BY
J. STAINER.

Vocal Score, paper cover, One Shilling and Sixpence.
Paper boards, 2s. Tonic Sol-fa, 9d.
Words only, with Hymn Tunes, 2d.; Tonic Sol-fa, 2d.
Words, complete, 10s. per 100; Words of Hymns, 5s. per 100.

THE DARKEST HOUR

FOR
SOPRANO, TENOR, AND BARITONE SOLI AND CHORUS
WITH
HYMNS TO BE SUNG BY THE CONGREGATION

THE WORDS SELECTED, AND THE MUSIC COMPOSED, BY HAROLD MOORE.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.
Paper boards, 2s.; Tonic Sol-fa, 9d.
Words only, 7s. 6d. per 100. String Parts, 6s. 6d.
Wind Parts and Full Score, MS.

THE CROSS OF CHRIST

WORDS SELECTED FROM THE HOLY SCRIPTURES, INTERSPERSED WITH APPROPRIATE HYMNS, BY W. MAURICE ADAMS

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY
THOMAS ADAMS.

Price One Shilling.
Tonic Sol-fa Edition, 6d. Words only, 7s. 6d. per 100.

IS IT NOTHING TO YOU?

AN EASY CANTATA

For use during the Season of Lent, and on Good Friday, specially adapted for Country Choirs

BY
E. V. HALL, M.A.

Price Eightpence.
Tonic Sol-fa, 3d. Words, with Music to the Hymns, price 2d.

VIA DOLOROSA

A DEVOTION

FOR BARITONE SOLO AND CHORUS
Suitable for the Seasons of Lent and Passiontide

THE WORDS DERIVED MAINLY FROM ANCIENT SOURCES

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY
E. CUTHBERT NUNN.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.
Paper boards, 2s.
Words only, 7s. 6d. per 100.

OLIVET TO CALVARY

FOR
TENOR AND BARITONE SOLI AND CHORUS
INTERSPERSED WITH HYMNS TO BE SUNG BY THE CONGREGATION

THE WORDS SELECTED AND WRITTEN BY
SHAPCOTT WENSLEY

THE MUSIC BY
J. H. MAUNDER.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.
Paper boards, 2s. Tonic Sol-fa, 9d. Words only, 10s. per 100.
String Parts, 11s. Wind Parts, 13s. 6d. Full Score, MS.

AT THE FOOT OF THE CROSS

(STABAT MATER)

FOR SOLI, CHORUS AND ORCHESTRA
COMPOSED BY
ANTON DVOŘÁK.
(Op. 58.)

THE ENGLISH ADAPTATION BY FRED. J. W. CROWE.

Price Two Shillings and Sixpence.
Tonic Sol-fa, 1s. 6d. Words only, 5s. per 100. Vocal Parts, 9d. each.
String Parts, 10s. Wind Parts, &c., 20s. Full Score (Latin words), 45s.

LAST NIGHT AT BETHANY

THE WORDS WRITTEN AND COMPILED BY
JOSEPH BENNETT

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY
C. LEE WILLIAMS.

Price Two Shillings.
Paper boards, 2s. 6d. Tonic Sol-fa, 1s.
String Parts, 8s. 6d.; Wind Parts, 15s. 6d.; Full Score MS.
Words only, 7s. 6d. per 100.

GETHSEMANE

THE WORDS WRITTEN AND COMPILED BY
JOSEPH BENNETT

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY
C. LEE WILLIAMS.

Price Two Shillings.
Paper boards, 2s. 6d. String Parts, 10s. 6d. Wind Parts and Full Score, MS
Words only, 7s. 6d. per 100.

ISSUED AS NET BOOKS.

SUITABLE FOR PRESENTS.

THE CATHEDRAL PSALTER

WITH PROPER PSALMS

POINTED FOR CHANTING, WORDS ONLY

TOGETHER WITH THE

MINIATURE MUSIC EDITION OF HYMNS ANCIENT AND MODERN

(1889 EDITION).

Imperial 32mo ($5\frac{1}{2} \times 4\frac{5}{8}$ inches), on India Paper.

RUTLAND MOROCCO ... ... 8s. 0d. net. | TURKEY MOROCCO ... ... 10s. 0d. net.

RUSSIA LEATHER ... ... 12s. 6d. net.

THE CATHEDRAL PRAYER BOOK

WITH CANTICLES AND PSALTER POINTED FOR CHANTING

TOGETHER WITH THE

MINIATURE MUSIC EDITION OF HYMNS ANCIENT AND MODERN

(1889 EDITION).

Imperial 32mo ($5\frac{1}{2} \times 4\frac{5}{8}$ inches), on India Paper.

RUTLAND MOROCCO ... ... 10s. 6d. net. | TURKEY MOROCCO ... ... 12s. 6d. net.

RUSSIA LEATHER ... ... 15s. 0d. net.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

NOW ISSUED AS A NET BOOK.

THE NEW CATHEDRAL PSALTER

CONTAINING

THE PSALMS OF DAVID

TOGETHER WITH THE CANTICLES AND PROPER PSALMS.

EDITED AND POINTED FOR CHANTING BY

COSMO GORDON LANG, D.D. (ARCHBISHOP OF YORK).
CHARLES H. LLOYD, M.A., Mus.D. (Late Precentor of Eton).
HENRY SCOTT HOLLAND, D.Litt. (Canon and late Precentor of St. Paul's).
GEORGE C. MARTIN, Mus.D. (Organist of St. Paul's).

WORDS ONLY.

		Cloth. s. d.	Red Bazil. s. d.
No. 51.	With Superimposed notes. Demy 8vo	2 6	4 6
No. 61.	With Prosody signs. Imperial 32mo..	1 0	2 0
No. 62.	With Prosody signs. Demy 8vo (large type)	2 6	4 6
No. 71.	With Varied type. Imperial 32mo	1 0	2 0
No. 72.	With Varied type. Demy 8vo (large type)	2 6	4 6

NEW CATHEDRAL PSALTER CHANTS.

			Paper. s. d.	Cloth. s. d.	Red Bazil s. d.
No. 81.	For Cathedral use, "The St. Paul's Cathedral Chant Book." Revised Edition.	F'cap 4to ..	1 6	2 0	3 0
No. 81A.	Ditto ditto	Post 4to ..	2 6	3 0	4 6
No. 82.	For Parish Church use, no Treble recitation note higher than D.	F'cap 4to	1 6	2 0	3 0
No. 82A.	Ditto ditto	Post 4to	2 6	3 0	4 6
No. 83.	For Village Church use, no Treble recitation note higher than C.	F'cap 4to	1 6	2 0	3 0
No. 83A.	Ditto ditto	Post 4to	2 6	3 0	4 6

PSALTER AND CHANTS COMBINED.

		Cloth. s. d.	Red Bazil. s. d.
No. 53.	With Superimposed notes and CHANT BOOK No. 81. Demy 8vo	3 6	5 6
No. 54.	With Superimposed notes and CHANT BOOK No. 82. Demy 8vo	3 6	5 6
No. 55.	With Superimposed notes and CHANT BOOK No. 83. Demy 8vo	3 6	5 6
No. 63.	With Prosody signs and CHANT BOOK No. 81. Demy 8vo	3 6	5 6
No 64.	With Prosody signs and CHANT BOOK No. 82. Demy 8vo	3 6	5 6
No. 65.	With Prosody signs and CHANT BOOK No. 83. Demy 8vo	3 6	5 6
No. 73.	With Varied type and CHANT BOOK No. 81. Demy 8vo	3 6	5 6
No. 74.	With Varied type and CHANT BOOK No. 82. Demy 8vo	3 6	5 6
No. 75.	With Varied type and CHANT BOOK No. 83. Demy 8vo	3 6	5 6

The "New Cathedral Psalter," though founded on the old Cathedral Psalter, is a distinct book, and the two books cannot be used together. The old Cathedral Psalter is still in circulation in all its editions, with the exception of No. 1, formerly published at 9d.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

NOVELLO'S ANTHEM BOOK.

BOOK 1.

ADVENT	O King and Desire of all Nations	Stainer
CHRISTMAS	Arise, shine, for thy Light is come	Elvey
LENT	Lord, for Thy tender mercies' sake	Farrant
,,	Enter not into judgment	Attwood
,,	O ye that love the Lord	Coleridge-Taylor
EASTER	O give thanks	Goss
WHITSUN	Come, Holy Ghost	Attwood
HARVEST	The Lord is loving unto every man	Garrett
GENERAL	O love the Lord	Sullivan
,,	The day Thou gavest, Lord	Woodward
,,	Blessed are they that dwell	Tours
,,	Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace	Lee Williams

BOOK 2.

ADVENT	Hosanna in the highest	Stainer
CHRISTMAS	Sing and rejoice	Barnby
LENT	O Saviour of the world	Goss
,,	Teach me, O Lord	Attwood
,,	Jesu, Word of God Incarnate	Gounod
EASTER	Christ is risen	Elvey
HARVEST	Great is the Lord	Steane
GENERAL	What are these?	Stainer
,,	O how amiable	West
,,	O taste and see	Sullivan
,,	The Lord is my Shepherd	Macfarren
,,	God that madest earth and heaven	Fisher

BOOK 3.

ADVENT	Far from their home	Woodward
CHRISTMAS	Four Christmas Carols	Various
LENT	Turn Thy face from my sins	Sullivan
,,	O Lord, my God	Wesley
,,	Jesu, Word of God Incarnate	Mozart
EASTER	Break forth into joy	Barnby
HARVEST	O Lord, how manifold	Barnby
GENERAL	Seek ye the Lord	Roberts
,,	I was glad	Elvey
,,	The radiant morn	Woodward
,,	O praise God in His holiness	Weldon
,,	Doth not wisdom cry	Haking

BOOK 4.

ADVENT	Arise, O Jerusalem	King
CHRISTMAS	Let us now go even unto Bethlehem	Hopkins
LENT	In Thee, O Lord	Tours
,,	Comfort, O Lord, the soul of Thy servant	Crotch, arr. by Goss
,,	God so loved the world	Stainer
EASTER	Christ our Passover	Goss
WHITSUN	Praised be the Lord daily	Calkin
HARVEST	Ye shall dwell in the land	Stainer
GENERAL	O how amiable are Thy dwellings	Barnby
,,	O taste and see how gracious the Lord is	Goss
,,	Thine, O Lord, is the greatness	Kent
,,	O give thanks unto the Lord	Elvey

BOOK 5.

ADVENT	The Great Day of the Lord	Martin
CHRISTMAS	It came upon the midnight clear	Stainer
LENT	Incline Thine ear	Himmel
,,	Lead me, Lord	Wesley
,,	Rend your heart	Calkin
EASTER	Awake up, my glory	Barnby
WHITSUN	O for a closer walk with God	Foster
HARVEST	The eyes of all wait on Thee, O Lord	Elvey
GENERAL	I am Alpha and Omega	Stainer
,,	O how amiable are Thy dwellings	Richardson
,,	Blessed are the merciful	Hiles
,,	I will sing of Thy Power, O God	Sullivan

BOOK 6.

ADVENT	Hearken unto Me, My people	Sullivan
CHRISTMAS	O Zion, that bringest good tidings	Stainer
LENT	Turn Thy face from my sins	Attwood
,,	O Saving Victim, slain for us!	Stainer
,,	There is a green hill far away	Gounod
EASTER	Now is Christ risen from the dead	West
WHITSUN	O Holy Ghost, into our minds	Macfarren
HARVEST	Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem	Maunder
GENERAL	Sweet is Thy mercy, Lord	Barnby
,,	I will lift up mine eyes	Clarke-Whitfeld
,,	Rejoice in the Lord, O ye righteous	Elvey
,,	I will alway give thanks unto the Lord	Calkin

BOOK 7.

ADVENT	It is high time to awake out of sleep	Barnby
CHRISTMAS	Come, ye lofty	Button
LENT	Bow down Thine ear	Attwood
,,	Come unto Him	Gounod
,,	The Lord is nigh unto them	Cummings
EASTER	Open to me the gates	Adlam
WHITSUN	When God of old came down from heaven	Vine Hall
HARVEST	Look on the fields	Macpherson
GENERAL	Weary of earth and laden with my sin	Tozer
,,	Sing praises unto the Lord	Cruickshank
,,	Deliver me, O Lord	Stainer
,,	Blessed are the poor in spirit	Hiles

BOOK 8.

ADVENT	Day of Wrath! O day of mourning	Stainer
CHRISTMAS	Like silver lamps in a distant shrine	Barnby
LENT	Cast thy burden upon the Lord	Mendelssohn
,,	Seek ye the Lord	Bradley
,,	The sacr fice of God	Wareing
EASTER	This is the day	Vine Hall

BOOK 8 (continued).

WHITSUN	Spirit of mercy, truth, and love	Selby
HARVEST	Behold, I have given you every herb	Harris
GENERAL	All people that on earth do dwell	West
,,	Through the day Thy love has spared us	Naylor
,,	The King shall rejoice	Goss
,,	Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace	Calkin

BOOK 9.

ADVENT	Blessed is He Who cometh	Gounod
CHRISTMAS	Sing, O Heavens	Gaul
LENT	O bountiful Jesu!	Stainer
,,	O Lord, correct me	Coward
,,	By the waters of Babylon	Coleridge-Taylor
EASTER	The strife is o'er	Steane
WHITSUN	Grieve not the Holy Spirit of God	Stainer
HARVEST	Great is the Lord	Marchant
GENERAL	Lead, kindly Light	Pughe-Evans
,,	O Lord, my trust is in Thy mercy	King Hall
,,	Hymn of Peace	Callcott
,,	How dear are Thy counsels	Crotch

BOOK 10.

ADVENT	God shall wipe away all tears	Field
CHRISTMAS	Sing, O Heavens	Maunder
LENT	Jesu, Word of God Incarnate	Elgar
,,	Hear the voice and prayer	Hopkins
,,	By Babylon's wave	Gounod
EASTER	Unto the Paschal Victim bring	West
WHITSUN	Our Blest Redeemer	Vine Hall
HARVEST	Great is the Lord	Sydenham
GENERAL	Blessed be the Lord my strength	Markham Lee
,,	Abide with me	Atkins
,,	O how amiable	Maunder
,,	The Lord is exalted	West

BOOK 11.

ADVENT	The night is far spent	Steane
CHRISTMAS	Nazareth	Gounod
LENT	God so loved the world	Moore
,,	I came not to call the righteous	Vincent
,,	Wash me throughly	Wesley
EASTER	Alleluia! now is Christ risen	Adams
WHITSUN	Holy Spirit, come, O come	Martin
HARVEST	The earth is the Lord's	Hollins
GENERAL	Saviour, Thy children keep	Sullivan
,,	The day is past and over	Marks
,,	Jesu, priceless Treasure	Roberts
,,	O worship the Lord	Hollins

BOOK 12.

ADVENT	Rejoice greatly	Woodward
CHRISTMAS	Hark! what mean those holy voices	Sullivan
LENT	Give ear, O Lord	Pattison
,,	Come now, and let us reason	Briant
,,	Is it nothing to you	Foster
EASTER	Christ is risen	Roberts
WHITSUN	I will not leave you comfortless	Steane
HARVEST	Father of mercies	West
GENERAL	Praise ye the Lord	Button
,,	Save us, O Lord, while waking	Martin
,,	Come, weary pilgrims	Tozer
,,	Comes, at times	Woodward

BOOK 13.

ADVENT	Prepare ye the way of the Lord	Garrett
CHRISTMAS	In a stable lowly	King
LENT	Hear me when I call	King Hall
,,	Come, ye sin-defiled and weary	Stainer
,,	In Thee, O Lord	Coleridge-Taylor
EASTER	As it began to dawn	Foster
WHITSUN	God is a Spirit	Bennett
HARVEST	O God, who is like unto Thee	Foster
GENERAL	Nearer, my God, to Thee	Adams
,,	Lord, I have loved the habitation	Torrance
,,	Send out Thy light	Gounod
,,	O God, whose nature	Wesley

BOOK 14.

ADVENT	The night is far spent	Foster
CHRISTMAS	Glory to God in the highest	Bayley
LENT	The path of the just	Roberts
,,	Come, and let us return	Jackson
,,	O Saviour of the world	Moore
EASTER	Who shall roll us away the stone?	Torrance
WHITSUN	If I go not away	Adams
HARVEST	The woods and every sweetsmelling tree	West
GENERAL	The Lord is my Light	Sydenham
,,	Evening and morning	Oakeley
,,	Holiest, breathe an evening blessing	Martin
,,	Let the righteous be glad	R. F. Lloyd

BOOK 15.

ADVENT	Awake, awake, put on strength	Borton
CHRISTMAS	See, amid the winter's snow	West
LENT	There is a green hill far away	Somerset
,,	Weary of earth	Vine Hall
,,	Come, and let us return	Goss
EASTER	Come, ye saints	Button
WHITSUN	If ye love Me	Stewart
HARVEST	The eyes of all wait on Thee	Gaul
GENERAL	Bread of Heaven	German
,,	Blessing, glory, wisdom, and thanks	Brewer
,,	Thy word is a lantern	Young
,,	Hymn to the Trinity	Tschaikovsky

PRICE ONE SHILLING EACH BOOK. TONIC SOL-FA, NINEPENCE EACH BOOK.

MUSIC FOR USE IN TIME OF WAR.

ANTHEMS.

A prayer for peace. (Arr. by J. Stainer) .. .. W. Crotch 3d.
(Words only, 2s. per 100.)
All ye who weep .. .. C. Gounod 3d.
*Almighty and everlasting God .. .. .. Gibbons 1½d.
Be merciful unto me, O God .. .. Purcell 6d.
*Be not afraid .. .. Mendelssohn 2d.
Behold, God is my salvation .. .. .. John E. West 3d.
Bow Thine ear, O Lord .. .. Bird 3d.
*But the Lord is mindful .. .. .. Arr. by G. A. Löhr 1½d.
Call to remembrance, Battishill 6d. ; *R. Farrant and V. Novello 1½d.
*Call to remembrance .. .. J. V. Roberts 3d.
*Cast thy burden upon the Lord .. .. Mendelssohn 1½d.
*Come, and let us return .. .. .. J. Goss and W. Jackson 3d.
Come, let us worship .. .. Palestrina 1½d.
Comfort the soul .. *Crotch, 1½d. ; John E. West (A.T.T.B.) 4d.
*Deliver me, O Lord, from mine enemies .. .. J. Stainer 1½d.
Father, hear the prayer we offer .. .. .. F. Brandeis 2d.
*Give ear, O Lord .. .. T. Mee Pattison 2d.
Give ear unto my prayer .. .. J. Arcadelt 1½d.
*Give peace in our time, O Lord .. .. W. H. Callcott 1½d.
*He that shall endure to the end .. .. Mendelssohn 1½d.
*He watching over Israel .. .. .. Mendelssohn 1½d.
*Hear me when I call .. King Hall, 1½d. ; A. W. Marchant 3d.
Hear my prayer Purcell (8 voices), 2d. ; *Mendelssohn (S.S.A.) 3d.
Hear my prayer .. .. Winter 1½d.
Hear, O Thou Shepherd J. Clarke-Whitfeld & T. A. Walmisley 4d.
*Hear the voice and prayer .. J. L. Hopkins, 1½d. ; Tallis 2d.
*Hear us, O Saviour .. .. M. Hauptmann 1½d.
Hide me under the shadow of Thy wings .. John E. West 1½d.
How long wilt Thou forget me .. J. Clark, 3d. ; O. King 2d.
*In Thee, O Lord .. .. S. Coleridge-Taylor 3d.
*In Thee, O Lord .. .. B. Tours 3d.
In Thee, O Lord .. .. J. Weldon 3d.
*Incline Thine ear .. .. Himmel 1½d.
*Judge me, O God .. .. Mendelssohn 1½d.
Just Judge of heaven .. .. G. M. Garrett 6d.
*Lead me, Lord .. .. S. S. Wesley 1½d.
Let God arise .. .. Greene 6d.
Let my prayer be set forth .. .. .. G. C. Martin 1½d.
Let my prayer come up .. .. Purcell 1½d.
*Let Thy merciful ears .. .. A. R. Gaul 1½d.
Let us come boldly .. .. C. H. Lloyd 1½d.
Look upon my adversity .. .. J. Blow 2d.
Lord, how are they increased .. J. H. Clarke, 6d. ; J. Kent 2d.
*Lord of life and light and glory .. .. A. C. Mackenzie 3d.
Lord of our life .. .. J. T. Field 3d.
*Lord, Thou alone art God .. .. .. Mendelssohn 2d.
Lord, Thou art God .. .. J. Stainer 8d.
Lord, we beseech Thee .. .. Batten 1½d.
Lord, we pray Thee .. H. A. Chambers, 1½d. ; *J. V. Roberts 1½d.
My soul truly waiteth .. .. T. Attwood 3d.
O come, and behold the works of the Lord W. H. Longhurst 4d.
*O come, let us worship .. .. *Himmel, 1½d. ; Mendelssohn 2d.
O God, Thou hast cast us out .. .. .. Purcell 4d.
O God, wherefore art Thou absent .. .. .. J. Blow 3d.
O hearken Thou .. .. .. E. Elgar, 2d. ; *A. Sullivan 1½d.
O hearken Thou (Verse and Chorus) .. .. .. E. Elgar 3d.
O Lord, give ear .. .. W. H. Cummings 2d.
O Lord God of my salvation J. C.-Whitfeld, 3d. ; E. Ford (T.T.B.B.) 4d.
O Lord, look down from heaven .. .. .. J. Battishill 3d.
*O Lord, my trust is in Thy mercy .. .. .. King Hall 1½d.
*O Lord, the Maker of all thing .. .. .. Henry VIII. 1½d.
O Lord, we beseech Thee .. .. J. Shaw 2d.
O Lord, we trust alone in Thee .. .. .. Handel 1½d.
*O love the Lord .. .. A. Sullivan 2d.
O most merciful .. .. J. W. Elliott 1½d.
O rest in the Lord—He that shall endure .. .. Mendelssohn 2d.
O Saving Victim .. Gounod, 4d. ; Tours, 1½d. ; J. L. Bennett 3d.
*O Saving Victim .. .. Kœnig, 1½d. ; Stainer 2d.
*O Saviour of the world .. .. .. J. Goss, 1½d. ; H. Moore 3d.
O Saviour of the world (A.T.T.B.) .. .. J. V. Roberts 2d.
O tarry thou the Lord's leisure (A.T.B.B.) .. John E. West 2d.
Our Father, which art in heaven J. Barnby, 2d. ; A. J. Phillips 1½d.
*Our Father, which art in heaven .. .. C. Lee Williams 3d.
O Thou that hearest prayer .. .. .. R. W. Robson 3d.
Out of the deep .. .. Mozart 1½d.
Out of the deep .. .. J. B. Calkin and F. E. Gladstone 3d.
Out of the deep .. .. H. Walford Davies and J. Naylor 4d.
*Plead Thou my cause .. .. Mozart 6d.
Remember not, Lord .. .. J. W. Bentley, 3d. ; *Purcell 1½d.
Remember, O Lord, what is come upon us .. T. A. Walmisley 4d.
Save, Lord, and hear us .. .. W. Hayes 6d.
Save me, O God .. .. .. W. Boyce and J. L. Hopkins 2d.
*Save us, O Lord .. .. E. C. Bairstow, 3d. : G. C. Martin 1½d.
*Shew us Thy mercy .. .. Mendelssohn 1½d.
The joy of our heart is ceased .. .. .. M. B. Foster 1½d.
The Lord hear thee .. J. E. Barkworth and C. S. Jekyll 2d.
*The Lord is my Light .. .. H. Hiles 3d.
*The Lord is nigh unto them .. .. .. W. H. Cummings 1½d.
The Lord our God be with us .. .. J. Stainer 1½d.
The Lord shall be thy confidence .. .. J. V. Roberts 4d.
*Thou wilt keep him .. S. S. Wesley, 3d. ; C. L. Williams 2d.
Thus saith the Lord .. .. G. M. Garrett 6d.
Turn Thee again, O Lord .. T. Attwood and A. Sullivan 1½d.
Whoso dwelleth .. .. G. C. Martin 4d.
Why standest Thou so far off .. .. .. M. B. Foster 3d.
Withdraw not Thou Thy mercy .. .. .. T. Attwood 4d.

*Anthems marked thus * to be had in Tonic Sol-fa.*

PART-SONGS, ETC.

†Allegiance we swear .. .. H. R. Bishop 2d.
†An Empire song .. .. A. C. Mackenzie 3d.
Battle Song, A .. .. E. A. Sydenham 3d.
Battle of the Baltic, The. (Sol-fa, 2d.) .. .. C. H. Lloyd 4d.
Battle song. (Sol-fa, 1d.) (Irish air) Arr. by T. R. G. Jozé 3d.
Battle song (T.T.B.B.) .. .. Laurent de Rillé 4d.
†Belgian National Song (Sol-fa, 1½d.) .. .. F. Campenhout 1½d.
Ditto. Unison Song .. .. 1d.
Blue Bells of Scotland, The. (Sol-fa, 1d.) .. .. A. Neithardt 1½d.
*Boys of our Empire. (Unison song) .. .. .. W. Brooks 2d.
British Flag, The. Unison or S.S.A. (Sol-fa, 1d.) M. B. Foster 1½d.
†Britons, alert (Caractacus). (Sol-fa, 1½d.) .. .. E. Elgar 3d.
Britons, strike home .. .. Purcell 1½d.
*Children's Song, The. Unison, or S.A.T.B. .. W. C. Gore 1½d.
Comrades' Song of Hope, The. (Les enfans de Paris.) A. Adam 1d.
(T.T.B.B., Sol-fa, 1d.)
Ditto. (Sol-fa, 1d.) Arr. for S.A.T.B. by Percy E. Fletcher 2d.
Ditto. Arr. for Unison or S.S.A. .. .. ,, 2d.
†Empire and Motherland. (Sol-fa, 1½d.) .. .. C. Harris 3d.
Empire Flag, The. (Sol-fa, 1½d.) .. .. A. C. Mackenzie 1½d.
* Ditto. Unison Song with Chorus ad lib. .. .. .. 1½d.
England. (Sol-fa, 1d.) .. .. J. L. Hatton 1½d.
Ditto. Arranged for S.S.A. (Sol-fa, 1d.) .. .. .. 2d.
†Follow the Colours. Marching Song for Soldiers E. Elgar 4d.
(Sol-fa, 2d. Melody only, 2d.)
†For Empire and for King. (Sol-fa, 2d.) .. Percy E. Fletcher 6d.
*God bless our King and Country. Two-part .. T. Facer 2d.
*God bless the Prince of Wales. Unison .. .. B. Richards 1½d.
†God save the King. (Sol-fa, 1d.) Arr. by Sir Michael Costa 3d.
* Ditto. For S. & A. Soli and Chorus S.S.A. .. .. .. 1½d.
† Ditto. (Sol-fa, 1d.) (Words, 1s. per 100.) Har. by V. Novello 1½d.
* Ditto in G, on card .. .. 1d.
† Ditto. Solo, Duet, Trio, and Chorus. Arr. by Vincent Novello 3d.
Ditto. Gaelic words .. .. .. (Tonic Sol-fa) 1d.
Ditto. (Sol-fa, 1d.) .. Arr. for Male Voices by J. Barnby 2d.
* Ditto. Arr. for S.S.A. .. .. 1½d.
† Ditto. (Sol-fa, 1d.) .. .. Arr. by E. Elgar 3d.
Hark! 'tis the Indian Drum. H. R. Bishop (3 voc.), 1d. ; †Do. (4 voc.) 1½d.
Hear, holy Power. (Masaniello.) (Sol-fa, 1d.) .. Auber 1½d.
*Heart of oak. (Unison song) .. .. W. Boyce 1½d.
†Heroes, The. (Sol-fa, 1½d.) .. .. F. H. Cowen 4d.
How sleep the brave .. .. B. Cooke 1½d.
†Hurrah for merry England. (Sol-fa, 1½d.) .. .. F. Berger 1½d.
Ditto. Solo, with Chorus. (Sol-fa, 1d.) H. H. Pierson 1½d.
Ditto. Arr. for S.S.A. (Sol-fa, 1d.) .. .. 2d.
Hymn before Action. Arr. for T.T.B.B. (Sol-fa, 1d.) H. W. Davies 3d.
†It comes from the misty ages. (Sol-fa, 2d.) .. E. Elgar 4d.
Let the hills resound .. .. Brinley Richards 4d.
Ditto. Arr. for S.S.A. .. .. ,, 3d.
* Ditto. Unison arrangement .. .. ,, 1½d.
March of the Cameron men. (Sol-fa, 1½d.) .. .. G. Bantock 3d.
†Marseillaise Hymn, The. .. .. .. Arr. by J. Barnby 1½d.
Ditto. (T.T.B.B.) .. .. .. Arr. by H. Elliot Button 2d.
* Ditto. Unison Song, with Chorus. S.S.A. .. .. .. 1½d.
Ditto. ditto. With French words .. .. .. 1½d.
*Minstrel Boy, The. Unison Song .. Harmonized by Balfe 1d.
Ditto. S.A.T.B. (Sol-fa, 1d.) .. .. 1d.
*My own country .. .. J. Cliffe Forrester 1½d.
Now pray we for our country (Sol-fa, 1d.) .. Eliza Flower 1½d.
* Ditto. Arr. for S.S.A. .. .. 1d.
O my Warriors (Caractacus). (Sol-fa, 1½d.) .. E. Elgar 3d.
*Old Boys' Song. Unison Song .. .. C. Lee Williams 2d.
*Our Heroes (S.S.A.) .. .. Hamilton Clarke 3d.
Our Island Home. (Sol-fa, 1½d.) .. .. Eaton Faning 3d.
Our Sailor King. (Sol-fa, 1½d.) .. .. .. C. H. Lloyd 3d.
Patriotic Part-songs. In 19 Nos. .. .. J. Tilleard. Each 1d.
*Patriotic Poesies. Action-Song .. .. Kate Boundy 4d.
Pibroch of Donuil Dhu (T.T.B.B.) (Sol-fa, 2d.) .. G. Bantock 4d.
Polonaise with Chorus (Life for the Czar). (Sol-fa, 1½d.) Glinka 3d.
Proclaim to every son of France. (Partant pour la Syrie). French Air 1½d.
Rataplan (T.T.B.B.) (Sol-fa, 1½d.) .. .. Laurent de Rillé 4d.
Red, White, and Blue, The .. .. .. H. Russell 1d.
Reveille, The (T.T.B.B.) (Sol-fa, 4d.) .. .. E. Elgar 6d.
Rule, Britannia. (Sol-fa, 1d.) .. .. Har. by Vincent Novello 1½d.
† Ditto. Soli and Chorus .. .. 3d.
* Ditto. Solo and Chorus S.S.A. .. .. 1½d.
Ditto. For A.T.T.B. .. .. .. Arr. by J. B. Lott 3d.
Ditto. For T.T.B.B. .. .. .. Arr. by J. Tilleard 1d.
†Russian National Anthem .. .. .. Arr. by J. Barnby 1½d.
Ditto. (God the All-Terrible.) Unison. (Cho. S.S.A. ad lib.) 1½d.
Ditto. S.A.T.B., 1d. .. .. (Sol-fa) 1d.
*Scout Song. (Be prepared.) Unison Song .. .. E. Newton 1½d.
*Sisters of the Sea, The (Glee) .. .. W. Jackson 2d.
Soldiers, brave and gallant be. S.S.A.T.B. (Sol-fa, 1d.) Gastoldi 1½d.
*Song of the Boy Scouts .. .. John E. West 1½d.
Sons of Britain. Two-part .. .. T. Facer 1½d.
To arms! prepare (A.T.B.) .. .. .. H. R. Bishop 1½d.
Toast, A (A.T.T.B.) .. .. A. Herbert Brewer 2d.
Trumpet sounds, The (T.T.B.B.) (Sol-fa, 1½d.) .. L. de Rillé 4d.
†Union Jack, The. S.A.T.B. .. .. A. R. Gaul 4d.
†* Ditto. Unison Action-Song. (Voice Parts, 2d.) .. .. 6d.
†We love our island story. (Sol-fa, 1½d.) .. Eaton Faning 3d.
*What can I do for England. Unison Song .. J. H. Maunder 1½d.
Who rides for the King. (Sol-fa, 1½d.) .. R. Somerville 3d.
Ye Gallant Men of England .. .. E. Hecht 3d.
†Ye Mariners of England. (Sol-fa, 1½d.) .. H. H. Pierson 1½d
* Ditto. Solo, with Two-part Chorus .. .. .. 1½d.
Ye Mariners of England .. .. .. C. Lee Williams 3d.

Orchestral Parts may be had of the pieces marked †.

Pieces marked are issued in Staff Notation and Tonic Sol-fa combined.*

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

HYMNS FOR USE IN TIME OF WAR.

1. LET GOD ARISE

Words by A. C. AINGER. Music by J. STAINER.

2. O LORD OF HOSTS, WHO DIDST UPRAISE

Words by A. C. BENSON. Music by C. HARFORD LLOYD.

3. O GOD OF LOVE

Words by REV. SIR H. W. BAKER. Music by J. B. DYKES. (Posthumous.)

4. LORD, HEAR THY PEOPLE'S PRAYER

Words by REV. W. H. DRAPER. Music by JOHN E. WEST.

5. FROM HOMES OF QUIET PEACE

Words by REV. W. H. DRAPER. Music by J. VARLEY ROBERTS.

6. LORD OF LIFE AND LIGHT AND GLORY

Words by JOSEPH BENNETT. (A LITANY.) Music by T. POPPLEWELL ROYLE.

7. O LORD OF HOSTS, WITHOUT WHOSE WILL

Words by REV. A. A. TOMS. Music by J. BARNBY.

8. O LORD OUR BANNER, GOD OF MIGHT

Words by E. WORDSWORTH. (JEHOVAH-NISSI.) Music by GEORGE J. BENNETT.

9. O GREAT REDEEMER

Words by REV. A. A. TOMS. Music by WILLIAM CRESER.

10. MONARCH OF THE HEAVENLY HOST

Words by E. WORDSWORTH. (A LITANY.) Music by SIR G. C. MARTIN.

* 11. HYMN AFTER VICTORY

Words by REV. A. A. TOMS. Music by WILLIAM CRESER.

* 12. HYMN AFTER VICTORY

Words by REV. A. A. TOMS. Music by SIR J. F. BRIDGE.

PRICE ONE PENNY EACH.

Words only (Hymns 1 and 2 together) ... 2*s.* 6*d.* per 100. | Words only (Hymns 4 and 5 together) 2*s.* 6*d.* per 100.
Words only (Hymn 3) ... ... 1*s.* 6*d.* per 100. | Words only (Hymns 6, 7, 8, 9, 10) each 2*s.* 6*d.* per 100.
Words only (Hymns 11 or 12)... ... ... 2*s.* 6*d.* per 100.

* The same hymn set by different composers.

GOD OF OUR FATHERS

Words by A. C. AINGER. Price 1*d.* Words only, 1*s.* 6*d.* per 100. Music by A. M. GOODHART.

TO THEE OUR GOD WE FLY

Words by THE LATE BISHOP WALSHAM HOW. Music by J. ARMISTEAD or H. WALFORD DAVIES.
Price 1*d.* each. Words only, 1*s.* 6*d.* per 100.

PRAISE THE LORD

Words by A. C. AINGER. Price 1*d.* Words only, 1*s.* 6*d.* per 100. Music by J. BARNBY.

GOD THE ALL-TERRIBLE

Words by H. F. CHORLEY. Price 1*d.* each. Words only, 1*s.* 6*d.* per 100. Music by J. STAINER, G. C. MARTIN, or A. LWOFF.

GOD OF OUR FATHERLAND

Words by A. W. LETTS. Price 1*d.* Words only, 1*s.* 6*d.* per 100. Music by J. H. MAUNDER.

O FATHER, KING OF EARTH AND SEA

Words by L. M. S. PASLEY. Price 1*d.* Words only, 2*s.* 6*d.* per 100. Music by J. B. DYKES.

FATHER, FORGIVE

Words by S. REYNOLDS HOLE. Price 2*d.* Words only, 5*s.* per 100. Music by J. STAINER.

FLAG OF OUR COUNTRY

Words by REV. W. H. DRAPER. Price 1*d.* Words only, 1*s.* 6*d.* per 100. Music by MYLES B. FOSTER.

GOD BLESS OUR NATIVE LAND

Words by W. E. HICKSON. Price 1*d.* Words only, 1*s.* 6*d.* per 100. Music by J. H. MAUNDER.

THE LORD OF HOSTS OUR KING SHALL BE

Words by REV. C. A. ALINGTON. Price 1*d.* Words only, 1*s.* 6*d.* per 100. Music by ARTHUR SULLIVAN.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

Music for Lent and Easter

BY

EDWARD BUNNETT, MUS. D. CANTAB.

Te Deum in A. Four Voices	3d.
Benedicite in F	2d.
Benedictus in A. Four Voices	3d.
Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis in D	3d.
Cantate and Deus in E	3d.

REDUCED IN PRICE.

Communion Service in E	6d.
Communion Service in G. For Men's Voices ...	6d.
130th Psalm—Out of the deep	6d.
The Story of the Cross	2d.
Lead me in Thy truth (Lent)	3d.
If we believe. Easter Anthem	6d.
If we believe. Tonic Sol-fa	1½d.
The Good Shepherd	3d.

ORGAN MUSIC.

Twelve Short and Easy Pieces. 1st Set	2 0
" " " 2nd Set	2 6
Largo in E flat	1 0
Introduction, Air with Variations, and Fugue in B flat	2 0

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

PENITENCE PARDON AND PEACE

J. H. MAUNDER.

The Musical Times, 1/1/99: "An admirable example of a commendable class of Church music. Consists of writing of that melodious and effective nature for which the composer is so widely famed."
Musical Opinion, 1/2/98: "A fine Church composition."
Musical News, 15/1/98: "We have no hesitation in cordially recommending it."
Musical Standard, 5/3/98: "Deserves considerable popularity."
Organist and Choirmaster, 15/2/98: "For the music we have nothing but praise."
Birmingham Post, 5/3/98: "The music is of a high artistic value."
Liverpool Courier, 2/8/98: "A work of great merit in every respect."
Manchester Courier, 9/3/98: "It will doubtless be used in many 'quires and places where they sing.'"
Newcastle Leader, 23/2/98: "A well-written work."
Western Morning News, 25/3/98: "A good composition. Striking and original."
Chester Chronicle, 16/4/98: "A beautiful work, very tuneful, and exceedingly effective."
Lichfield Mercury, 4/2/98: "Extremely effective, containing some really beautiful music."
Journal of the Incorporated Society of Musicians, 1/2/98: "A well-written work. We can strongly recommend it."

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.

Paper boards, 2s.; Tonic Sol-fa, 1s. Words, 2s. per 100.

Band Parts may be hired or purchased from Messrs. Goodwin & Tabb, 34, Percy Street, W.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

RECENTLY PUBLISHED.

COMMUNION SERVICE IN G FOR S.A.T.B.

By F. J. MARCHMENT.

Originally written for the St. Agnes Choir of the Church of St. John Evangelist, Upper Norwood. An Appendix containing Second Soprano and Contralto Parts provides for its use by similar Choirs.

PRICE ONE SHILLING.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

NOVELLO'S Sunday School Anniversary Music

ANTHEMS.

Thine for ever	H. ELLIOT BUTTON
I love to hear the story	MYLES B. FOSTER
Lord, Thy children guide and keep	J. H. MAUNDER
Hosanna we sing	JOHN E. WEST

Price Threepence each.

Tonic Sol-fa, price 1½d. each.

HYMNS AND TUNES.

SET I.

No.
1.	Come, children, on and forward	GEORGE C. MARTIN
2.	For the freshness of the morning	Lady EUAN-SMITH
3.	I love to hear the story	FREDERIC CLAY
4.	Come, O come! in pious lays	J. STAINER
5.	Thine for ever! God of Love	W. C. HARVEY
6.	Jesu, Whom Thy children love	H. ELLIOT BUTTON
7.	Sweetly o'er the meadows fair	F. A. CHALLINOR
8.	Would you gain the best in life	C. J. MAY
9.	On our way rejoicing	WALTER B. GILBERT
10.	Now the daylight goes away	J. ADCOCK

SET II.

1.	Again the morn of gladness	J. STAINER
2.	The Angels' Song	ALBERTO RANDEGGER
3.	Forward, Christian children	ALFRED MOFFAT
4.	The Golden Shore	J. STAINER
5.	Saviour, blessèd Saviour	JOHN E. WEST
6.	Enter with thanksgiving	F. H. COWEN
7.	Man shall not live by bread alone ..	J. VARLEY ROBERTS
8.	Stars, that on your wondrous way	J. STAINER
9.	The day is past and over	JOSEPH BARNBY
10.	God will take care of you	FRANCES R. HAVERGAL

SET III.

1.	We march, we march, to victory	JOSEPH BARNBY
2.	Hark! hark! the organ loudly peals ..	GEORGE J. BENNETT
3.	O what can little hands do?	H. ELLIOT BUTTON
4.	While the sun is shining	T. ADAMS
5.	I love to hear the story	H. J. GAUNTLETT
6.	The roseate hues of early dawn	A. SULLIVAN
7.	Lord, Thy children guide and keep	A. S. COOPER
8.	In our work and in our play	F. WESTLAKE
9.	The Beautiful Land	J. STAINER
10.	Gentle Jesus, meek and mild	J. STAINER

Both Notations, price Fourpence per Set.

Words only, 5s. per 100.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

SONS OF THE EMPIRE

CANTATA

(With or Without Action).

FOR JUNIOR SCHOOLS AND CLASSES.

THE WORDS WRITTEN BY MARY BRADFORD WHITING.

THE MUSIC BY

THOMAS FACER.

PRICE ONE SHILLING AND SIXPENCE.
Tonic Sol-fa, Sixpence.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

NEW CHANT SETTINGS of the Venite, Te Deum, and Benedictus. By C. J. Whittington. Price 2d.
London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.
Specimen copy sent gratis on application to Composer, Sandhills, Betchworth, Surrey.

GILL'S EASY VOLUNTARIES.—Messiah, Elijah, Creation, St. Paul, Judas, One Shilling each. GILL'S EASY ANTHEMS, No. 1 to No. 7, Twopence each; Sol-fa, One Penny. London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

CHRISTMAS VACATION.

SELECTED LIST OF NOVELLO'S EDUCATIONAL MUSIC.

NOVELLO'S GRADED PIANOFORTE MUSIC
For use with the Associated Board Examination Music.
See Special List of these Pieces.

NOVELLO'S PIANOFORTE ALBUMS
Collections of Pieces by the Great Masters and Eminent Composers.
One Shilling each.

NOVELLO'S PROGRESSIVE STUDIES FOR THE PIANOFORTE
Arranged in Groups.
Edited and the fingering revised and supplemented by FRANKLIN TAYLOR.
56 Books at One Shilling each.

SELECTED PIANOFORTE STUDIES
Progressively arranged.
Edited and the fingering revised and supplemented by FRANKLIN TAYLOR.
Eight Books at 1s. 6d. each.

NOVELLO'S SCHOOL MARCHES FOR THE PIANOFORTE
Two Books at One Shilling each.

NOVELLO'S SCHOOL OF PIANOFORTE MUSIC
Edited by KARL KLINDWORTH.
Fourteen Books at prices from 1s. 6d. each.

MELODIOUS TECHNIQUE FOR THE PIANOFORTE
By J. A. O'NEILL.
Two Books at Two Shillings each.

A PRACTICAL GUIDE TO THE THEORY OF MUSIC
By J. A. O'NEILL.

A MODERN SCHOOL FOR THE VIOLIN
Edited by
AUGUST WILHELMJ and JAMES BROWN.

THE JUNIOR VIOLINIST
Edited by
C. EGERTON LOWE.

PROGRESSIVE EXERCISES FOR VOICE
Edited by
ALBERTO RANDEGGER.

VOICE-CULTURE FOR CHILDREN
BY JAMES BATES.

INSTRUCTION BOOKS FOR SIGHT-SINGING
Edited by
W. G. McNAUGHT.

ELEMENTARY MUSIC MANUALS
Edited by
W. G. McNAUGHT.

SCHOOL OPERETTAS AND CANTATAS
Edited by
W. G. McNAUGHT.

UNISON, PART-SONGS, AND ROUNDS
Edited by
W. G. McNAUGHT.

ENGLISH FOLK-SONGS
Edited by
CECIL J. SHARP and R. VAUGHAN WILLIAMS.

THE MORRIS BOOK
A History of Morris Dancing, with a Description of the Dances.
Edited by CECIL J. SHARP.

THE COUNTRY DANCE BOOK
Edited by
CECIL J. SHARP.

THE SWORD DANCES OF NORTHERN ENGLAND
Edited by CECIL J. SHARP.

SCHOOL BAND MUSIC
Simply arranged for Strings and for Pianoforte and Strings.

MENDELSSOHN'S "LIEDER OHNE WORTE"
Novello's Complete Editions.
From One Shilling.

MESSRS. NOVELLO & CO. offer every facility to Teachers for the selection of Educational Music. A Special Room at their Wardour Street House is set aside for this purpose. Assistance and expert advice will be given if required.

Detailed Lists of the above Publications on application to :
160, WARDOUR STREET, W.

SHORT PRELUDES
FOR THE
ORGAN

These Short Preludes are intended for use chiefly as Introductory Voluntaries to Divine Service, more especially in those churches where the time allowed for such is, of necessity, somewhat limited.

BOOK I.

No.
1.	Andante Grazioso	Thomas Adams
2.	Andante	W. G. Alcock
3.	Largamente	George J. Bennett
4.	Andante Religioso	Myles B. Foster
5.	Andantino	Alfred Hollins
6.	Adagio Cantabile	Alfred Hollins
7.	Larghetto	Charles J. May
8.	Andante con Moto	John E. West
9.	Andantino quasi Allegretto	John E. West
10.	Andante	W. Wolstenholme

BOOK II.

1.	Andante con Moto	Thomas Adams
2.	Con Moto	W. G. Alcock
3.	Moderato	H. A. Chambers
4.	Marziale, poco Lento	Myles B. Foster
5.	Moderato	Alfred Hollins
6.	Andantino	Alfred Hollins
7.	Adagio	Charles J. May
8.	"Hymnus"—Andante e Sostenuto	John E. West
9.	Andante Serioso	John E. West
10.	Adagio	W. Wolstenholme

BOOK III.

1.	Moderato e Legato	Thomas Adams
2.	Moderato	W. G. Alcock
3.	Andante con Moto	George J. Bennett
4.	Andante	H. A. Chambers
5.	Grazioso molto Espressivo	Myles B. Foster
6.	"Song without Words"—Con Moto	Alfred Hollins
7.	Andante	Alfred Hollins
8.	Andante Dolente	John E. West
9.	Andante Pastorale	John E. West
10.	Adagio	W. Wolstenholme

(Just Published.)

BOOK IV.

1.	"Elevation"—Andante e Legato	Thomas Adams
2.	Andante Religioso	Myles B. Foster
3.	"Simplicity"—Andante	Barry M. Gilholy
4.	Largamente	R. G. Hailing
5.	"Dialogue"—Andante Grazioso	Charles H. Lloyd
6.	Andantino	Arthur W. Marchant
7.	Con Moto Moderato	William Sewell
8.	Andante Amabile	William Sewell
9.	Andante	Clement M. Spurling
10.	Andante Sostenuto	F. Cunningham Woods

BOOK V.

1.	"Invocation"—Andante Grazioso	Thomas Adams
2.	Andante con Moto	Percy E. Fletcher
3.	Poco Adagio	Myles B. Foster
4.	Andante Espressivo	Ignace Gibsone
5.	Adagio	Alfred Hollins
6.	Poco Lento	Charles H. Lloyd
7.	Andante Dolente	Arthur W. Marchant
8.	Andantino con Tenerezza	W lliam Sewell
9.	Andante con Moto	Clement M. Spurling
10.	Adagio Molto	F. Cunningham Woods

BOOK VI.

1.	Dolente	Edmund T. Chipp
2.	Andante Sostenuto	Myles B. Foster
3.	Andantino	R. G. Hailing
4.	Con Moto	Alfred Hollins
5.	"Communion"—Cantabile	J. Lemmens
6.	Andante Religioso	Arthur W. Marchant
7.	Lento	Charles J. May
8.	Larghetto	Albert Robins
9.	Adagio e Mesto	William Sewell
10.	Andante Affetuoso	William Sewell

Price One Shilling Each Book.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

RAINBOW
OUR MUSIC READING LADDER FOR BEGINNERS
By ERICA LOSH.
A first step towards rapid Reading. An original and simple colour scheme that will appeal to children.

Price Three Shillings and Sixpence.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

ORIGINAL COMPOSITIONS
FOR THE
ORGAN.
(New Series.)

No.			s.	d.
1.	Seven Chorale Preludes	C. H. H. Parry	3	6
2.	Prelude in C	W. Wolstenholme	1	6
3.	Festival Prelude on "Ein' Feste Burg"	W. Faulkes	1	6
4.	Meditation	W. Faulkes	1	6
5.	Postludium	W. Faulkes	1	6
6.	Jour de Noces	J. Stuart Archer	1	0
7.	Cantilène	R. G. Hailing	1	0
8.	Ite Missa Est (Edited by John E. West)	J. Lemmens	1	6
9.	Triumphal March (Edited by John E. West)	J. Lemmens	1	6
10.	Fanfare (Edited by John E. West)	J. Lemmens	1	0
11.	Cantabile (Edited by John E. West)	J. Lemmens	1	6
12.	Finale (Edited by John E. West)	J. Lemmens	1	6
13.	A Fantasy	C. Edgar Ford	1	6
14.	Intermezzo (A Marriage Souvenir)	W. Wolstenholme	1	6
15.	Legend	Harvey Grace	1	6
16.	Meditation	Alfred Hollins	1	0
17.	Barcarolle	A. W. Pollitt	1	0
18.	Cantique	Edward Elgar	1	6
19.	Prelude and Fugue in C (Edited by John E. West)	J. L. Krebs	2	0
20.	Epilogue	W. Wolstenholme	1	6
21.	Suite Ancienne	F. W. Holloway	2	6
22.	Fantasia and Fugue	C. H. H. Parry	2	6
23.	Voluntary	W. G. Alcock	1	0
24.	Impromptu	W. G. Alcock	1	0
25.	Legend	W. G. Alcock	1	0
26.	Intermezzo	J. Stuart Archer	1	6
27.	Twelve Miniatures	H. M. Higgs	3	0
28.	Toccatina	W. G. Alcock	1	0
29.	Romance in A flat	H. Sandiford Turner	1	0
30.	Nocturne	Thomas F. Dunhill	1	0
31.	Festal Prelude	Thomas F. Dunhill	1	6
32.	Caprice de Concert	J. Stuart Archer	2	0
33.	Romance	H. R. Woledge	1	0
34.	Prelude in G minor	W. S. Vale	1	0
35.	Romanza	Alfred Hollins	1	6
36.	Festal Prelude	Alec Rowley	2	0
37.	Romance with Variations	J. Stuart Archer	2	0
38.	Tone-Poems (In the Press)	Oliver King	2	0

(To be continued.)

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

FANTASIA
ON
TWO ENGLISH MELODIES
("HOME, SWEET HOME," AND "RULE, BRITANNIA")
FOR THE ORGAN.
COMPOSED BY
ALEX. GUILMANT.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

JUST PUBLISHED.

NO. 9, NOVELLO'S ELEMENTARY MUSIC MANUALS.

SCHOOL CHOIR TRAINING
A PRACTICAL COURSE OF LESSONS ON
VOICE-PRODUCTION,
FOR THE GUIDANCE OF TEACHERS OF CLASS-SINGING
BY MARGARET NICHOLLS.

PRICE TWO SHILLINGS.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

WEBSTER'S
GROUNDWORK OF MUSIC
PART II., WITH KEY. VALUABLE FOR EXAMINATIONS.
PART II., ONE SHILLING; KEY, 1s. 6d.

WEBSTER'S
Child's Primer of the Theory of Music.
ONE SHILLING.
TWENTY-SECOND THOUSAND.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

THE BEST PRESENT FOR OUR LADS IN KHAKI AND BLUE.

FIGHT, FIGHT, FIGHT! A War Song.

Words by RICHARD NEVILLE LYNN. Music by GHITA CORRI.
Sung by the Composer and Leading Vocalists.
"It has the true 'Rule, Britannia' ring."
"This magnificent Marching Song." "A great National Song."
Popular Key, Illustrated Cover, Price Sixpence net.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

TO THE SNOW

SONG FOR MEDIUM VOICE.

THE WORDS BY

ROBERT EUSTACE.

THE MUSIC BY

REGINALD SILVER.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence net.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

PRELUDE IN C SHARP MINOR

COMPOSED BY

S. RACHMANINOFF

(Op. 3, No. 2).

ARRANGED FOR FULL ORCHESTRA

BY

HENRY J. WOOD.

Full Score, 5s.; 1st Violin, 3d.; 2nd Violin, 3d.;
Viola, 3d.; Violoncello, 3d.; Basso, 3d.;
Wind Parts, &c., 8s. 9d.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

JUST PUBLISHED.

No. 86, NOVELLO'S MUSIC PRIMERS.

A PRACTICAL GUIDE
TO THE
THEORY OF MUSIC

CONTAINING

NUMEROUS TEST-QUESTIONS WITH ANSWERS.

BY

JULIA A. O'NEILL

Composer of "EXERCISES FOR THE WEAKER FINGERS" (Progressive Studies, Edited by FRANKLIN TAYLOR, Book 53) and of "MELODIOUS TECHNIQUE."

Price One Shilling. Paper Boards, 1s. 6d.

THE TIMES.

It is in its clear statement of facts, both in writing and by the use of simple diagrams, that Miss Julia O'Neill's book excels.

THE MORNING POST.

Her manner of putting down the facts is concise and clear. An immense amount of ground is covered in logical sequence, and the book is one of the most helpful publications as yet made. It is satisfactory to note that ear-cultivation is touched upon.

MUSICAL OPINION.

It is really surprising the amount of useful matter that Julia A. O'Neill has managed to compress within the covers of her primer, "A Practical Guide to the Theory of Music." Teachers who wish to keep abreast of the times in an educational sense will find this well-written guide calculated to help them to a knowledge of the latest and most accepted method of elementary theoretical instruction. We are pleased to note that the all-important subject of ear-culture has not been neglected in the present primer.

THE LADY.

Is a thoroughly praiseworthy attempt to present the cardinal facts of musical theory in a plain and straightforward manner to the beginner. Wholly admirable is the way the gradual formation of our present-day clefs is explained.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

EDITION NOVELLO.

		s.	d.
BEETHOVEN—Sonatas and Sonatinas, edited and fingered (English fingering) by Agnes Zimmermann,
	cloth, gilt edges	16	0
	Ditto, in 2 Vols., paper each	5	0
Six Sonatinas		1	6
Sonatas and Sonatinas, 8vo		5	0
	Ditto, ditto, cloth, gilt edges	7	6
	Ditto, ditto, roan	9	0
	Ditto, in 2 Vols., paper each	2	6
Six Sonatinas, 8vo		1	0
CLEMENTI—Gradus ad Parnassum. 24 Select Studies. (Franklin Taylor)		4	0
Or, in 4 Books each		1	0
CRAMER—56 Select Studies. (Franklin Taylor)		4	0
Or, in 5 Books each		1	0
CZERNY—30 Select Studies from Op. 299. School of Velocity. (Franklin Taylor)		2	6
Or, in 3 Books each		1	0
19 Select Studies from Op. 636. Preparatory School of Velocity. (Franklin Taylor)		1	6
ROBERT SCHUMANN—Complete Works for the Pianoforte, edited and fingered by Agnes Zimmermann. (Continental fingering):—
OPUS.
1	Variations on the name "Abegg"	1	0
2	Papillons	1	0
3	Studies on Paganini's Caprices, with Preface	1	6
4	Intermezzi	1	6
5	Impromptus on a Theme by Clara Wieck, with Appendix to the Second Edition of the same	1	6
6	Die Davidsbündler, with Preface	1	6
7	Toccata in C	1	0
8	Allegro in B minor	1	0
9	Carnival. Scènes Mignonnes sur Quatre-Notes	1	6
10	Six Concert Studies on Caprices by Paganini	1	6
11	Grand Sonata in F sharp minor	1	6
12	Phantasiestücke	1	6
13	Studies in the Form of Variations (Symphonic Etudes)	2	0
14	Third Grand Sonata (Concerto without Orchestra) in F minor	2	0
15	Scenes of Childhood	1	0
16	Kreisleriana	1	6
17	Phantasie in C major	1	6
18	Arabesque in C major	1	0
19	Flower Piece in D flat major	1	0
20	Humoresque in B flat major	1	6
21	Novelettes	2	6
22	Second Sonata in G minor	1	6
23	Night Pieces	1	0
26	Carnival Freak from Vienna	1	6
28	Three Romances	1	0
32	Scherzo, Gigue, Romance, and Fughetta	1	0
56	Six Studies for the Pedal Pianoforte	1	6
58	Four Sketches for the Pedal Pianoforte	1	0
68	Forty-three Pianoforte Pieces for the Young—
	Part I., Nos. 1 to 18	1	0
	Part II., Nos. 19 to 43	1	6
72	Four Fugues	1	0
76	Four Marches	1	6
82	Forest Scenes	1	6
99	Leaves of many colours. Fourteen Pieces	2	0
111	Three Phantasiestücke	1	0
118	Three Pianoforte Sonatas for the Young	1	0
124	Album Leaves (20 Pieces)	1	6
126	Seven Pieces in Fughetta Form	1	0
133	Songs of the Dawn	1	0
Complete Works in Three Volumes, cloth—
	Vol. 1, Op. 1 to Op. 12	16	0
	,, 2, Op. 13 to Op. 23	16	0
	,, 3, Op. 26 to Op. 133	16	0
In Three Volumes, 8vo, paper covers, each volume		5	0
,, ,, ,, cloth ,, ,,		7	6

Novello's selected List of Classical and Romantic Music for Pianoforte Solo will be sent gratis and post-free on application.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

CHAPPELL & CO.'S NEW SONGS AND BALLADS.

Price 1s. 6d. net cash each. By Post 1s. 7d. each.

LIZA LEHMANN.

"The Poet and the Nightingale" .. .. In E flat (G to F) and F.
"Didn't you know?" In C (D to F) and E flat.
"'Tis the hour of farewell" .. .. .. In G (B to D) and A flat.

Three Snow Songs:
1. "Snowflakes." 2. "Robin Redbreast." 3. "Christmas Eve."
For Mezzo-Soprano and Soprano. Complete 2s. 6d. net cash.

GUY D'HARDELOT.

"Your Heart" .. .. In F (C to D) A flat and B flat.

TERESA DEL RIEGO.

"My Son" .. .. In D (A to E) and E flat.
"A Song for Women" .. .. In F (C to F).

DOROTHY FORSTER.

"Just a World of Roses" .. .. .. In D (B to E) and F.
"I Wonder if Love is a Dream" .. .. In F (C to F) and A flat.

AMY E. HORROCKS.

"My Little House" .. .. In E flat (E flat to F).
"The Baby Child of Mary" .. .. In C (C to E).

ETHEL BARNS.

"I Long to Live" .. .. In B flat (C to D) and D.

KENNEDY RUSSELL.

"The Stars that light my garden" .. .. In C (C to E) and E flat.
"There's an Orchard Green in Avalon" In A flat (C to E flat) and B flat.
"A Little World of Love" .. .. .. In C (E to F) and D.
"Who's for this Flag?" .. .. In D (B to E).

FRANK E. TOURS.

"Apple Time" .. .. In E flat (C to F) and F.

HERMANN LÖHR.

"I Dream of a Garden of Sunshine" In D flat (A flat to D) E flat and F.

ERIC COATES.

"Marry me, Nancy, do!" .. .. .. In E flat (C to E flat).
"A Japanese Farewell" .. .. .. In D (A to D) and F.
"The Hour of Love" .. .. In C (B to D) and F flat.

HAYDN WOOD.

"The Gunner" .. .. In C (C to D) and D
"O Flower Divine" .. .. In E flat (B to E flat) F and A flat

HAROLD CRAXTON.

"A Requiem" .. .. In D flat (D flat to D flat).
"Come you, Mary" .. .. In C (C to D).

BOTHWELL THOMSON.

"Gipsy Love" .. .. In E flat (B to F) and G.

HAROLD GARSTIN.

"Love in a Garden" .. .. In C (C to E).

WILFRID DAVIES.

"Land o' Hame and Purple Heather" In E flat (B flat to E flat) and F.

F. S. BREVILLE-SMITH.

"There's only one England" .. .. .. In C (G to E) and E flat.

H. LYALL PHILLIPS.

"Friends Again" .. .. .. In E flat (B flat to E flat) and G.

MONTAGUE F. PHILLIPS.

"Nought of Tears" .. .. In E minor (B to E) and A minor.
"Spring's Secret" .. .. In C (B to E) and E flat.
"Thy Years be Roses Sweet" .. .. In D flat (D flat to A).

CHAPPELL & CO., LTD., 50, NEW BOND STREET, LONDON, W.
NEW YORK, TORONTO, AND MELBOURNE.

CLEMENTI.

GRADUS AD PARNASSUM

TWENTY-FOUR SELECTED STUDIES

EDITED AND FINGERED BY
FRANKLIN TAYLOR.

In One Volume, Price 3s. Or in Four Books, Price 1s. each.

CRAMER.

FIFTY-SIX SELECT STUDIES

EDITED BY
FRANKLIN TAYLOR.

In One Volume, Price 4s. Or in Four Books, Price 1s. each.

CZERNY.

SCHOOL OF VELOCITY

THIRTY SELECTED STUDIES

EDITED BY
FRANKLIN TAYLOR.

In One Volume, Price 2s. 6d. Or in Three Books, Price 1s. each.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

London:—Printed by NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited, at Novello Works, Soho, and published at 160, Wardour Street, Soho, W.
Sold also by SIMPKIN, MARSHALL, HAMILTON, KENT AND CO., Ltd., Paternoster Row, E.C.—Friday, January 1, 1915.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

FOUNDED IN 1844.

PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH.

No. 864.—Vol. 56. Registered at the General Post Office for Canadian Postage.

FEBRUARY 1, 1915.

Price 3*d.*; Postage 1½*d.* Annual Subscription, Post-free, 4*s.*

ROYAL CHORAL SOCIETY.

ROYAL ALBERT HALL.

Patron: His Majesty The King.

Conductor: Sir FREDERICK BRIDGE, C.V.O.

SATURDAY AFTERNOON, FEBRUARY 6, at 3.

(Postponed from January 28.)

"HIAWATHA"- COLERIDGE-TAYLOR.

MISS AGNES NICHOLLS.

MR. JOHN COATES. | MR. THORPE BATES.

SATURDAY AFTERNOON, FEBRUARY 27, at 3.

(Postponed from February 17.)

"THE DREAM OF GERONTIUS" (ELGAR).

MADAME CLARA BUTT.

MR. GERVASE ELWES. | MR. ROBERT RADFORD.

FULL BAND AND CHORUS.

Organist: Mr. H. L. Balfour.

Prices: Stalls, 7s. 6d.; Arena, 6s.; Balcony, 4s. and 2s. 6d.; Gallery (Promenade), 1s.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC,

YORK GATE, MARYLEBONE ROAD LONDON, N.W.

Instituted 1822. Incorporated by Royal Charter, 1830.

Patron: HIS MAJESTY THE KING.

President: H.R.H. The Duke of Connaught, K.G.

Principal: Sir A. C. Mackenzie, Mus. Doc., LL.D., F.R.A.M.

LENT HALF-TERM BEGINS THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 18.

ENTRANCE EXAMINATION, MONDAY, FEBRUARY 15, at 3.

Organ Recital, Monday, February 1, at 3.

A Lecture by Dr. H. W. Richards, Hon. R.A.M., will be given in the Duke's Hall on Wednesday, February 3, at 3.30. Admission for non-students, 1s.

Three Lectures by Sir A. C. Mackenzie, Mus.D., will be given in the Duke's Hall on Wednesdays, February 10, 17 and 24, at 3.30. Admission for non-students, 1s. per lecture.

Fortnightly Concerts, Saturdays, February 13 and 27, at 8. Chamber Concert, Monday, February 22, at 3.

Full particulars on application to—

F. W. RENAUT, Secretary.

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC,

PRINCE CONSORT ROAD, SOUTH KENSINGTON, S.W.

(Incorporated by Royal Charter, 1883.)

Telegrams—"Initiative, Southkens, London." Telephone—"1160, Western."

Patron: HIS MAJESTY THE KING.

President: H.R.H. THE PRINCE CHRISTIAN, K.G.

Director:

Sir C. Hubert H. Parry, Bart., C.V.O., D.C.L., M.A., Mus. Doc.

Hon. Secretary: Charles Morley, Esq.

The HALF TERM will commence on Thursday, February 18. The EXAMINATION for ASSOCIATESHIP (A.R.C.M.) will commence on April 19, 1915. Last day for receiving application forms, Monday, March 1.

Syllabus and Official Entry Forms may be obtained from

CLAUDE AVELING, Registrar.

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF ORGANISTS.

Examination Regulations, List of College Publications, Lectures, &c., may be had on application.

H. A. HARDING, Hon. Sec.

Kensington Gore, S.W.

THE GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

JOHN CARPENTER ST., VICTORIA EMBANKMENT, E.C

Established by the Corporation of London.

Principal .. .. .. LANDON RONALD.

COMPLETE MUSICAL EDUCATION at an inclusive fee.

PRIVATE LESSONS are given in all musical subjects and STAGE TRAINING in Elocution, Gesture, Stage Dancing, Fencing, and OPERA.

WEEKLY ORCHESTRAL PRACTICES ARE CONDUCTED BY THE PRINCIPAL. Prospectus and Syllabus of Local Centre and Local Schools Examinations (open to general public) free.

H. SAXE WYNDHAM, Secretary. Tel. Holborn 1943.

ROYAL MANCHESTER COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

Patroness: Her Majesty Queen Alexandra.

President: Sir W. H. Houldsworth, Bart., LL.D.

Principal: Dr. Adolph Brodsky.

The COLLEGE YEAR opened on Tuesday, September 29.

Special Houses of Residence recommended for Students.

Students are required to enter upon a complete course of Musical instruction, and are not admitted for a shorter period than one year.

Fee for the year, £30, payable in instalments of £10 at the beginning of each term. Special Fee for Wind Instrument Course, £15.

Systematic Course for the Training of Teachers included in the curriculum.

The Prospectus, with Scholarship information, Diploma Regulations, and Entry Forms, on application.

Opera Class—Miss Marie Brema.

STANLEY WITHERS, Registrar.

BIRMINGHAM & MIDLAND INSTITUTE.

SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

Visitor .. .. Sir Edward Elgar, O.M., Mus. Doc., LL.D.
Director .. .. Granville Bantock, M.A.
Visiting Examiner.. W. G. McNaught, Mus. Doc.

Session 1914-1915.

The Session consists of AUTUMN TERM (September 21 to December 19); WINTER TERM (January 18 to March 27); SUMMER TERM (April 12 to June 26).

Instruction in all branches of Music, Students' Choir and Orchestra. Chamber Music, Students' Rehearsals, and Concerts.

Prospectus and further information may be obtained from—

H. M. FRANCIS, Secretary.

MANCHESTER SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

Patron: Sir W. H. Houldsworth, Bart.

Principal: Albert J. Cross, A.R.A.M. Sixty Professors.
New Violin Professor: Mr. John Dunn.

All Branches of Music taught. Private or Class Tuition.

Full and String Orchestras, Operas, Lectures, Recitals, Chamber and Orchestral Concerts. Prospectus from The Secretary, Albert Square.

The Opera Class will give Auber's "Fra Diavolo" in April.

UNIVERSITY OF DURHAM.

Examinations for degrees in Music are held as follows:—Matriculation, April and October; First Mus. B., March and September; Final Mus. B., and Mus. D., September only.

For particulars, apply Secretary of Examinations, University Office, Durham. Copies of former Examination Papers, 1s. per set.

GLASGOW CHORAL (COMPETITION) FESTIVAL

SATURDAY, MAY 1, 1915.

Classes:

Children's Choirs. | Quartets.
Female-Voice Choirs. | Vocal Solos.

Adjudicator: Dr. W. G. McNaught.

Syllabus on application (enclosing stamp) to Hon. Secretaries Glasgow Choral Festival, 115, Renfield Street, Glasgow.

The Correspondence School of Music,

37, INDERWICK ROAD, STROUD GREEN, LONDON, N.

Graduated Postal Lessons in Harmony, Counterpoint, and all branches of Musical Theory. Pupils prepared for Mus. Doc., Mus. Bac., L.R.A.M., F.R.C.O., A.R.C.M., and any other examination.

LARGE STAFF OF EXPERIENCED TUTORS.

Terms very moderate—from One Guinea per quarter.

Prospectus post-free from The SECRETARY.

NATIONAL CONSERVATOIRE

INST., 1895. OF MUSIC, LTD. INCOR., 1900.

London: 149, Oxford Street, W.; Liverpool: 44, Princes Road.

Warden: Professor ALEXANDER PHIPPS, Mus. Bac.

LOCAL MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS (all Towns). APRIL. DIPLOMAS, ASSOCIATE, LICENTIATE, and FELLOW. Thorough training all Subjects, for professional and amateur students.

INCORPORATED GUILD OF CHURCH MUSICIANS.

Founded 1888.

Incorporated pursuant to Act of Parliament XXX. and XXXI. Victoria, Cap. cxxxi., § 23.

President: THE VERY REV. THE DEAN OF BRISTOL, D.D.

ASSOCIATE (A.I.G.C.M.), LICENTIATE (L.I.G.C.M.), FELLOWSHIP (F.I.G.C.M.) EXAMINATIONS in London and at approved Provincial Centres in July and December.

COMPETITIONS FOR 1915.

SILVER MEDAL for the best Setting of the Nicene Creed to Easy Ecclesiastical phrases, not necessarily Gregorian Tones.

SILVER MEDAL for the best Magnificat, set to one of the Festal Gregorian Tones, with varied Bourdons to Verses 3, 4, and Gloria Patri.

BRONZE MEDAL for the best simple Andante for the Organ (Pedal obbligato).

BRONZE MEDAL for the best Kyrie.

April 28, 1915, Annual Service.

May 27, 1915, Lecture: "Some Æstheticisms of Ecclesiastical Etiquette," by Dr. T. Westlake Morgan.

REGISTER OF ORGAN VACANCIES.

Organists (Members) have the FREE use of the Register of Vacant Appointments.

Calendar (gratis) and further information of DR. LEWIS, Warden, 18, Berners Street, London, W.

VICTORIA COLLEGE OF MUSIC, LONDON.

(Under the direction of the Victoria College Corporation, Ltd.)

INCORPORATED 1891.

18, BERNERS STREET, OXFORD STREET, LONDON, W.

President: THE MOST HON. THE MARQUIS OF ANGLESEY.

Board of Examination:

Principal: J. H. LEWIS, D.C.L., F.E.I.S., Mus. Doc.

Chairman: J. M. BENTLEY, Mus. Doc. Cantab., Hon. F.R.A.M.

Hon. Director of Studies: CHURCHILL SIBLEY, Mus. Doc., F.I.G.C.M.

ROBERT FOX FREW, Mus. Doc. Dunelm.

Rev. NOEL BONAVIA-HUNT, M.A. Oxon.

Secretary: H. PORTMAN LEWIS.

Metropolitan Examinations in all subjects, including the Diplomas of A.V.C.M., L.V.C.M., F.V.C.M., also for the Teachers' Professional Diploma in the Art of Teaching, April, July, and December.

Local Theoretical Examinations, July and December.

Practical Examinations are now being held at the various Centres.

Gold, Silver, and Bronze Medals are offered for Competition.

Local Secretaries required for towns not represented.

Dr. Churchill Sibley gives personal lectures at the College.

All communications to be addressed as usual to The Secretary, Registered Office, 11, Burleigh Street, Strand, W.C.

PIANO PEDALS with Octave Coupler

This wonderful invention supersedes all Piano Pedals, and is a Master Patent.

THE CATHEDRAL, MANCHESTER,
Nov. 8, 1910.

DEAR MR. MALKIN,

I think your Patent Pedal Attachment, which you have fitted to my Steinway, is simply splendid. I find the action absolutely silent and its touch beautiful.—Yours truly,

R. H. P. COLEMAN, F.R.C.O., Sub-Organist.

Terms :—Cash, or instalments of 8s. per month.

Write for Lists, Prices, and Clients' Opinions, and References to

THE MALKIN PATENT PEDAL CO., LTD.,

Works—Hanley, Staffs. NEWCASTLE-UNDER-LYME.

LONDON COLLEGE OF MUSIC,

GREAT MARLBOROUGH STREET, LONDON, W.

Patron: HIS GRACE THE DUKE OF LEEDS.

BOARD OF EXAMINATION.

DR. HORTON ALLISON, Mus. D. Dublin; Mus. B. Cantab.; F.R.A.M.
DR. ARTHUR S. HOLLOWAY, Mus. Doc. Oxon.; F.R.C.O.
Dr. F. J. KARN, Mus. Bac. Cantab., Principal.
G. AUGUSTUS HOLMES, Esq., Director of Examinations.

EXAMINATIONS—LOCAL AND HIGHER.

The NEXT EXAMINATION for certificates in Pianoforte, Violin, Singing, Elocution, Organ, Theory of Music, &c., will be held in London and at over 450 Local Centres throughout the United Kingdom in APRIL, 1915. Last day of entry, March 15.

SYLLABUS for 1915, with Annual Report and Forms of Entry, may be had on application to the Secretary.

The HIGHER EXAMINATIONS for the Diplomas of Associate (A.L.C.M.) and Licentiate (L.L.C.M.) take place in April, June, July, and December; and for the Diplomas of Associate in Music (A. Mus. L.C.M.), Licentiate in Music (L. Mus. L.C.M.), and Fellowship (F.L.C.M.), in June, July, and December.

LOCAL CENTRES may be formed in districts unrepresented, either in the United Kingdom or abroad; particulars on application. SCHOOL CENTRES may also be arranged.

In the Educational Department students are received and thoroughly trained under the best Professors at moderate fees. Lessons may commence from any date.

T. WEEKES HOLMES, Secretary.

Telegrams: "Supertonic Reg, London." Telephone: 3870 Central.

MR. W. H. BREARE

VOCAL ADVISER AND TEACHER OF SINGING

TO STUDENTS AND THE PROFESSION.

Author of "Vocalism," "Elocution: Its First Principles," "Vocal Faults and their Remedies."

In the Press, and shortly to be Published: "Vocal Technique: How it feels to Sing."

"The most complete guide to singing in English."—"Lancelot," in the Referee.

"One of the sanest of sane expositions."—Musical Courier, N.Y.

"One step nearer to the ideal."—Referee ("Lancelot").

"Is a reliable expert in all branches."—Gentlewoman.

"A magnificent guide to both teachers and students."—Eastern Morning News.

"Do not hesitate to commend."—Glasgow Herald.

"Well up and enthusiastic in his subject, which he handles in a masterly manner. His technical knowledge is minute, wide and accurate: what he has to say is well worthy of consideration by public singers and music teachers."—Aberdeen Free Press.

"Has had exceptional opportunities of studying his subject. . . . Common-sense in all he utters."—Leeds Mercury.

"Is an acknowledged authority. . . ."—Western Morning News.

"I have not the slightest fear of contradiction when I say that no one knows more about the voice and vocal production than Mr. W. H. Breare."—"Counterpoint," in the Newcastle Journal.

Further Press Opinions on application.

Address: "HERALD" BUILDINGS, HARROGATE,
or 139, NEW BOND STREET, W.

PIANO PEDALS.

EVERY ORGANIST

should investigate the importance and special advantages of

NORMAN & BEARD'S PNEUMATIC PEDAL ATTACHMENT FOR THE PIANO.

Correct relative position of Keys and Pedals guaranteed.
Gives a perfect touch and repetition.
Does not injure the most delicate Piano, all parts of the Pianoforte action being left perfectly free.
Pedals can be instantly removed.
Does not alter the Piano touch.
Every Attachment made specially in our own Factory.

NORMAN & BEARD, LTD., 61 BERNERS ST., LONDON, W.

Telegrams: "Vibrating, London." Telephone: Gerrard 9145.

BACH'S "PASSION" (ST. JOHN), accompanied by full Orchestra and Organ, will be given at St. Anne's, Soho, each Friday Evening at 8 o'clock, during Lent. Tickets may be had by sending stamped addressed envelope to The Rector, 28, Soho Square, W. North and South Galleries will be free and unappropriated.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

METROPOLITAN EXAMINATION, CHRISTMAS, 1914.

The following CANDIDATES have passed:—

HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT AND COMPOSITION.

AS A TEACHER.—Sylvia Elizabeth Currey.

EXAMINERS.—F. Corder, Dr. A. J. Greenish, and Sir A. C. Mackenzie.

SINGING.

AS TEACHERS.—Beatrice Ashton, Walter Bains, Arthur Binns, Elsie Mary Buscall, Lilian Foote, George Frederick Goodspeed, John Hutcheson, Frank Ellison Jones, Margaret Lewis, Elsie Skilletter Metcalf, Violet Cook Roberts, Irene Lily Thompson.

AS PERFORMERS.—Madeline Mary Badock, Beatrice S. Batchelor, Dorothy Elizabeth Bennett, Reginald Blow, Gertrude Blumenthal, Judith Norah Fowler, Elsie Gough, Winifred Jones, Marthe Lermyte, Ethel Dora Port, Elsie Olive Riley, Lilian Rockliffe, Rena Myrtle Sara, Margaret Ethel Thomas, Irene van Dyck.

EXAMINERS.—Edward Iles, Frederic King, Thomas Meux, Arthur Thompson.

PIANOFORTE PLAYING.

AS PERFORMERS AND TEACHERS.—Jack Beaver, Lina Elsie Cooper, Frances Coopman, Valerie Claire Corliss, Catherine Budd Deane, Vida Harrison.

AS TEACHERS.—Doris Ainsworth, Carrie Anderson, Ulrica Marie Olivia Anderson, Bert L. Andrews, Bessie Armitage, Monica M. Armstrong, Dorothy Frances Ashby, Lucy Adèle Auerbach, Hilda Alice Mary Back, Alice Mary Baker, Evelyn Phyllis Theodora Barnett, Constance Bayley, Kathleen Margaret Bayley, Alice Olive Beard, Gertrude Mary Bell-Smith, Dorothy Elizabeth Bennett, Lucy Bennett, May F. Bennett, Dorothy Rachel Benscher, Barbara Stevenson Beveridge, Daisy Black, Dorothy Bohren, Beryl Bonning, Olive Claudine Bosscher, Beatrice Boulter, Dorothy Eileen Bousfield, Irene Florence McLeod Bracey, Ethel Bradbeer, Marjory Eleanor Breach, Marguerite A. Bright, Charles Gregory Broan, Hilda Brocklehurst, Lilma G. E. Browne, Sibyl Mansfield Buckland, Edith Ruth Burrage, Eiola Burrell, Mary Rose Busby, Edith Baskerville Butcher, Edith Florence Butler, Gertrude J. L. Charteris, Gertrude Child, Lily Clark, Bertha Coape-Arnold, Doris Christine Cole, Florence Lorna Mildred Colman, Christine Cooper, Percival Craven, Elizabeth Gardiner Crookston, Agnes Crowther, A. Etheldreda M. Crowther, Elsie Nellie Crowther, Phyllis Tegwen Sibyl Curtis, Dorothy M. David, Vera Mary Davies, Cicely Dodds, Vera d'Orloff, Elizabeth Montgomery Douglas, Minnie Rose Dudeney, Katherine Duggan, Mary Hilda Duncan, Phyllis Dunthorne, Hilda Florence Eastoe, Kate Edmunds, Harold William Edwards, Lucy Newcome Elborne, Emily Gertrude Erwood, Constance Lucie Esbester, Lucy Farrow, Elsie Finch, Irene Fish, Grace Foster, Ethel Maud Fox, Ethel Freeman, Ethel Mary Freeman, Mabel Annie Freeman, Kathleen L. Gane, Isabella Jeffrey Gardner, Irene Elsie Gass, Winifred R. Gibson, Dorothy Gwendoline Gledhill, Ada Goodwin, Minnie Mitchell Gray, Barbara Greaves, Winifred Green, Violet Gregg, William Griffiths, Frances Marjorie Grindon, Doris Grover, Freda Haines, Harold Edgar Hale, Violet Hammond, Edith Mary Handford, Mary Palmer Harding, Ethel Gertrude Hardwick, Gwendoline Harman, Annie Gray Harper, Mary Seppings Harrison, Elizabeth M. Hay, Ethel Herbert-Harvey, Marion F. Hilton, Kathleen Hay Holbrook, Gladys Ruth Holdaway, Elsie Elizabeth Hollis, Elizabeth Maude Hughes, Emma Florence Hughes, Gladys Hunter, Kathleen Hunter, Olwen Gwynn Jenkins, Marguerite Louise Jennings, Irene Johnston, Vera Marcia Jones, Winifred Gladys Jones, Doris Kay, Grace Mary Kelk, Lucretia Mabel Kelly, Maud Alice Amy Kerr, Dorothy King, Ethel M. Kirby, Hilda Larroudé, Mabel Winifred Lasham, Margaret Brownlow Latham, Doris Mary Laughland, Nellie L. Laughland, Gladys Frances Lawrence, Mary Leece, Frances Gertrude London, Dorothy Frances Lucas, Mabel Frederica Lush, Jessie Lyall, Madge F. MacLaren, Arthur Maiden, Sybil Manwaring, May Marriott, Eveline May Martin, Rebecca Hannah Mawer, Margaret McCollum, Sybella Mackinlay McKerchar, Mary Young McKerrow, Ethel Frances Mercer, Mary Octavia Montanaro, Sarah Moore, Gladys Catherine Morgan, Eva Morley, Reginald Arthur Nevill, James Edward Nicholson, Sophie Jane Ogilvie, Mary Agnes Oldham, Olive Osborne, Florence Ethel Owens, Annie Paisley, Oonagh Davis Park, Kathleen Maud Gertrude Parkes, Dorothy Parr, Katharine I. Parry, Edith Mary Scott Peer, Violet F. Phillips-Conn, Lucie Gertrude Player, George William Punter, Frederick Carrington Purvis, Florence Harriet Rainey, Bethea Forrest Renwick, Katharine Margaret Richardson, Winifred Richardson, Edith Annie Rookledge, Dorothy Ross, Agnes Russell, Ruth Saunders, Sarah Catherine Sellers, Marion Taylor Shaw, Ethel Sheldon, Hilda Shipinson, Mabel Emma Shutes, Annie Simmons, Hilda May Simms, May Sinclair, Jessie Ellis Slater, Alice Phœbe Smallpeice, Beryl Iris Smart, Christine Smith, Clarice Mildred Smith, Doris Smith, Lilian Agnes Smith, Sybil Madeline Southwell, Elsie Spencer, Mabel Spencer, Irene Glady Spokes, Blanche Stephens, Mary Townley Sugden, Elizabeth Bertha Sutcliffe, Elsie Winifred Syme, Lilian Thayers, Gwendolen Margaret Thompson, Amy MacDougall Thoms, Gladys Mary Edith Trezise, Sybil Turford, Ethel May Turner, Edith Mary Tyler, Violet Gertrude Louise Unwin, Ethelwynne Christina Walker, Helen Merrifield Walker, Jessie Walker, Olive Hilda Walters, Mary Caroline McWhinny Watson, Olive Mary Watson, Barbara Phyllis Watts, Florence Weber, Louie Winifred West, Olive Ellen Westlick, Marion Sybil Weston, Irene May White, Mary Wilkins, Dorothy Beatrice Emilie Wilkinson, Fanny Browning Williams, Mary P. Williamson, Doris Wilson, Elsie Maynard Wilson, Marguerite Dorothy Wilson, Elma Kathleen Woodward, Constance Wright.

AS PERFORMERS.—Gertrude Cohen, Dora Edith Dyer, Dorothy Josephine Norman, May Harley Tulloch.

EXAMINERS.—Carlo Albanesi, Oscar Beringer, Sydney Blakiston, York Bowen, H. R. Eyers, Dr. Greenish, Evlyn Howard-Jones, Ernest Kiver, T. B. Knott, H. Lake, Tobias Matthay, Frederick Moore, Claude Pollard, Chas F. Reddie, Felix Swinstead, Percy Waller, Septimus Webbe, Cuthbert Whitemore.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

METROPOLITAN EXAMINATION—(Continued).

ORGAN PLAYING.

Richard Goodwin, George William Hilditch, George Frederick Rush.

EXAMINERS.—Sir George C. Martin, Dr. H. W. Richards, Reginald Steggall.

VIOLIN PLAYING.

AS PERFORMERS AND TEACHERS.—Gwendolen Helen Mary Cavell, Nora Cookes, William John Fry, Kathleen E. Lindars.

AS TEACHERS.—Hilda Bishop, Marjorie Anne Boyd, Cicely Brock, Marjorie Choules, Annie Gertrude Watson.

AS PERFORMERS.—Gladys Mary Alexander, Mercia Stotesbury, Phyllis Ward.

'CELLO PLAYING.

AS A PERFORMER AND TEACHER.—Phyllis Enid Kidner.

AS TEACHERS.—Frank Govier Butler, Arthur Lawrey Martin.

EXAMINERS.—F. Corder, Spencer Dyke, Alfred Gibson, Hans Wessely, Rowsby Woof, B. Patterson Parker, Herbert Walenn.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

VOICE CULTURE AND CLASS SINGING FOR CHILDREN, CHRISTMAS, 1914.

The following CANDIDATES were successful:

Lucy E. M. Cook (Honours), Ellen J. Edmonds, Alfred Henry Harvey (Honours), Leonora Rosalind Jones, Julius B. Lemmer, Kathleen F. Murphy (Honours), Edith Spikes.

EXAMINERS.—Dr. John E. Borland and Dr. Henry W. Richards.

THE OLD FIRM.

P. CONACHER & CO., LTD.,

Organ Builders,

SPRINGWOOD WORKS,

HUDDERSFIELD.

TWO GOLD MEDALS.

ESTABLISHED 1750.

Telephone: 1788 P.O. Hampstead. Telegrams: "Cantabile, London.

GRAY & DAVISON,

ORGAN BUILDERS,

PRATT STREET, N.W.

48, SOUTHFIELD ROAD, OXFORD.

128, HOLT ROAD, LIVERPOOL.

Specifications, Estimates, and Designs free of charge.

RECENTLY PUBLISHED.

THE

DREAM OF GERONTIUS

BY

CARDINAL NEWMAN.

SET TO MUSIC FOR

SOLI, CHORUS, AND ORCHESTRA

BY

EDWARD ELGAR

(Op. 38).

MINIATURE SCORE,

Price 7s. 6d.; Cloth, 10s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

PETERS EDITION.

Messrs. NOVELLO & Co. beg leave to inform their customers that they still have in Stock a large and varied Selection of the Peters Edition, and that a complete list of the numbers included in their Stock can be supplied on application.

160, WARDOUR STREET, LONDON, W.

TO PERFECT TECHNIQUE

If you find it impossible to overcome any difficulty in pianoforte technique—remember that it will cost you nothing to consult me (by letter), and that it will put you under no obligation to adopt my methods. The success of 6,000 pupils has proved that

"From Brain to Keyboard"

MACDONALD SMITH'S SYSTEM OF PIANOFORTE TOUCH AND TECHNIQUE gives permanent mastery over all difficulties of Technique

Pianist's Cramp, Stiffness, Wooden Touch, Lack of Power and Independence, Thumping, Nervousness, Inability to read at sight, to play arpeggios, trills and long skips, Faulty Inflection and Accentuation, are all overcome with amazing rapidity by the eight minutes twice daily application of this System. In fact there is not a single technical requirement of the pianist or organist, from beginner to the most advanced, which is not successfully met by this System. And the results are permanent and not materially affected by neglect of the instrument. The necessity for perpetual keyboard "practice" is totally abolished—a point of the highest value to the busy pianist.

Write for my FREE BOOK to-day

I shall be pleased to send you post free "Light on Pianoforte Playing," which explains my System and its principles. If you will detail any special difficulties you have, I will explain how they can be permanently overcome by my "From Brain to Keyboard" System. My System has been used and cordially endorsed by Sir Frederick Bridge and other leading musicians, and it is therefore well worth your while at least to study carefully the possibilities it holds for you. It is taught by post, does not interfere with your present arrangements, and is indisputably the cheapest, quickest, and most certain way to the complete and permanent mastery of technique. Write to-day to

M. MACDONALD SMITH,
19, BLOOMSBURY SQUARE, LONDON, W.C.
(Personal Interviews by Appointment only.)

SIGHT-PLAYING BECOMES EASY

once its underlying principle is mastered—and applied systematically. This principle is, that between the notes of the sheets of music and the muscular action of depressing the keys, there can and should be a permanent association of such strength that the fingers fall automatically on the right keys at the sight of the notes. This automatic association can easily be acquired by anyone after only three months of about a quarter of an hour's daily practice, and will enable a musician to play at sight any piece of music within his or her technical abilities. For a full explanation of this, write for Booklet (sent post free on application).

"P. F." reports: "It is becoming harder to play wrong notes, as I feel as though I hit the spots on the paper as I see them, and forget that the pianoforte keys are there at all."

"E. B." reports: "I do not now have any difficulty in reading at sight, and also when trying new pieces over I do not feel nervous at doing so before others as I used to."

The Inventor of this System is a Frenchman domiciled in England.

L. M. EHREMAYER,
27, CHANCERY LANE, LONDON, W.C.

The Ehremayer System of Pianoforte Sight-Playing

PROFESSIONAL NOTICES.

MR. SAMUEL MASTERS
(TENOR).
Address—164, Bank Buildings, Ewell Road, Surbiton.

MR.
CHARLESWORTH GEORGE
(BASS-BARITONE).
Pupil of H. Chilver-Wilson, Esq. (London) and Prof. Vincenzo Sabatini (Milan).

I have much pleasure in stating that Mr. Charlesworth George took the part of Samuel in the Oratorio of "King Saul," and that he sang it with admirable intelligence, spirit and dramatic insight.—C. HUBERT H. PARRY.

Morning Post.—A baritone voice of considerable resonance and useful quality.

Standard.—A bass-baritone of a fine, resonant quality throughout.

Yorkshire Observer.—An exceptionally good voice of considerable range and ringing qualities.

49, Avondale Road, Shipley, Yorks.

MISS ETHEL VISICK
RECEIVES PUPILS FOR PIANOFORTE TUITION
AT HER STUDIO, 4, COLEHERNE TERRACE, S.W.

THE LONDON COLLEGE FOR CHORISTERS.
DIRECTOR: MR. JAMES BATES.

SOLO BOYS for Oratorios, Festival Services, Concerts; also LEADING BOYS for Church Choirs can be supplied for occasional or permanent engagements. Address, E. B. GOLDING, Secretary, 6, Blomfield Crescent, Hyde Park, W.

Telegrams; "Musicomane, Phone, London." Telephone: 5990 Paddington.

MUSICAL REVISER TO MESSRS. NOVELLO FOR THIRTY YEARS.
COMPOSERS' MSS.
REVISED and PREPARED FOR PRINTING; ADVICE GIVEN as to most suitable publishers for various styles of composition.
H. ELLIOT BUTTON, "Harewood," Ardwick Road, Hampstead, N.W.
Reference to the following composers kindly permitted:—
Sir C. HUBERT H. PARRY, Bt., C.V.O., Sir EDWARD ELGAR, O.M.,
Sir FREDERICK BRIDGE, C.V.O., Dr. WALFORD DAVIES.

DR. A. EAGLEFIELD HULL
MUS. DOC. OXON., F.R.C.O.
Author of "Modern Harmony: Its Explanation and Application (Augener), and "Organ Playing: Its Technique and Expression."
Address:
MELBOURNE HOUSE, HUDDERSFIELD.

DR. ALLISON instructed by Post Candidates who OBTAINED DEGREES OF MUS.D. and MUS.B. at Oxford, Cambridge, Dublin, London, and Durham Universities, Diplomas of F.L.C.M., L.Mus.L.C.M., A.R.C.M., F.R.C.O., and L.R.A.M. Gold Medals, Silver Medals, Scholarships, Prizes, "Honours," and Pass Certificates (of the Colleges of Music) to the number of eight hundred and seventy. Dr. Allison is quite willing to teach those who neither require nor desire to pass examinations. Harmony, Counterpoint, Orchestration, and Analysis of Composition by Post, to correspondents anywhere. Personal instruction in Theory, Singing, Organ, and Pianoforte. Cambridge House, 68, Nelson St., Manchester.

REVISION OF MUSICAL COMPOSITIONS. Dr. Horton Allison, Mus.D., 68, Nelson Street, Manchester.

DR. CUTHBERT HARRIS, Mus. Doc. Dunelm., F.R.C.O. SPECIALIST IN CORRESPONDENCE TUITION. 333 Successes in Mus. D., Mus. B., F.R.C.O., and A.R.C.O. MSS. revised and arranged for publication. 48, Braxted Park, Streatham, S.W. Telephone: Streatham 487.

MISS H. HEALE COACHES for all EXAMINATIONS in MUSIC (at private residence or at West-End studio), in Pianoforte, Harmony, Counterpoint, Fugue, Form, Orchestration, "Teaching," Modulation, Transposition, &c. For Terms, &c., apply Dunraven House, 41, Albert Bridge Road, S.W.

DR. ARTHUR S. HOLLOWAY, Mus. D. Oxon., 13, Roseleigh Avenue, Highbury, N., continues to PREPARE CANDIDATES for the various Theoretical Examinations. Music of any description revised or arranged. LESSONS in COMPOSITION, by post if desired.

L.R.A.M. (PAPER WORK).

MR. E. H. BIBBY (Mus. Bac., L.R.A.M., A.R.C.M.) has SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE COURSES for the "Form and Teaching" and "Rudiments and Harmony" papers set at the L.R.A.M. Exams.

LATEST SUCCESSES:—

L.R.A.M. EXAMS., 1910-14.—68 Correspondence Pupils successful. (September and Christmas, 1914: 17 Successes out of 21 Entries.)

Address, c/o Forsyth Bros., Deansgate, Manchester.

A.R.C.M. (PAPER WORK).

MR. E. H. BIBBY (Mus. Bac., L.R.A.M., A.R.C.M.) has now also SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE COURSES for the Paper Work portions of the A.R.C.M. Exams.

A.R.C.M., April, 1914: 9 Correspondence Successes. NO FAILURES.

MR. BIBBY also gives Postal Lessons in RUDIMENTS, HARMONY, FORM, &c., quite apart from the above-mentioned Special Examination Courses.

Address, c/o Forsyth Bros., Deansgate, Manchester.

DR. FREDERICK J. KARN (Mus. Bac. Cantab.; Mus. Doc. Toronto), gives Lessons by post, in Harmony, Counterpoint, Fugue, Form and Analysis, Acoustics, Orchestration, &c. Individual instruction. Also Personal Lessons. MSS. corrected for publication. Analyses of Classical Works for Examinations. Terms moderate and inclusive. Candidates prepared by Dr. Karn have obtained the degrees of Mus. Bac. or Mus. Doc. at DURHAM, OXFORD, DUBLIN, CAMBRIDGE, and LONDON Universities. Also F.R.C.O., A.R.C.O., L.R.A.M. (Composition, Pianoforte, Organ, Bandmastership, and Conducting), A.R.C.M. (Composition, Theory of Music, and Pianoforte Teaching), L. Mus. and A. Mus., L.C.M. ASSOCIATED BOARD, &c. Dr. KARN continues to coach for all Musical Examinations. 106, Haverstock Hill, London, N.W. 'Phone 524 Hampstead.

DR. LEWIS, Mus. Doc., F.E.I.S., Warden, Incorporated Guild of Church Musicians, gives LESSONS, Personally or by Post, in HARMONY and COUNTERPOINT. 18, Berners Street, Oxford Street, W.

DR. LEWIS' TEXT-BOOKS:

HARMONY. (2 vols.) 5s. each, net.
COUNTERPOINT. 5s. net.
DOUBLE COUNTERPOINT AND CANON. 5s. net.
FUGUE. 1s. 6d. net.
ELEMENTS OF MUSIC. 2s. 6d. net.
DEVELOPMENT OF ANGLICAN CHURCH MUSIC. 2s. net.
PRONOUNCING VOCABULARY OF MUSICAL TERMS. 6d. net.
DICTIONARY OF MUSICAL TERMS. 6d. net.
MATERIAL OF MELODY. 3d. net.

The above, complete, will be forwarded (carriage paid) for 15s.

MISS F. HELENA MARKS PREPARES for L.R.A.M. and other Examinations. Pianoforte, Harmony, "Form and Teaching," &c. Lessons (oral or by correspondence). Pupils received and visited for the Pianoforte. Many recent successes, L.R.A.M., &c. Pianoforte Classes, 10, Matheson Rd., West Kensington.

DR. H. H. L. MIDDLETON, Mus. D. (Dubl.), F.R.C.O., L.R.A.M., A.R.C.M., makes a SPECIALITY of COACHING FOR DEGREES. L.R.A.M., 1897-1913, ONE HUNDRED AND TWENTY-SEVEN SUCCESSES; A.R.C.M., 1897-1913, THREE HUNDRED AND THIRTY-FOUR SUCCESSES. Equally good results in R.C.O. and other Examinations.

Address, Thornleigh, 6, Elm Park Road, Finchley, N.

MR. H. SCOTT-BAKER, A.R.A.M., L.R.A.M., A.R.C.O. Composition, Pianoforte playing. 14, Hanover Street, Regent Street, W.

PERCY WOOD, Mus. Bac. Oxon., F.R.C.O., Specialist in Correspondence Tuition for F.R.C.O., A.R.C.O. RECENT SUCCESSES: 218 Correspondence Pupils have passed F.R.C.O. or A.R.C.O. SINCE 1909, as follows:

77 F.R.C.O. (Paper Work).	141 A.R.C.O. (Paper Work).
6 F.R.C.O., July, 1914.	12 A.R.C.O., July, 1914.
6 F.R.C.O., Jan., 1914.	11 A.R.C.O., Jan., 1914.
10 F.R.C.O., July, 1913.	10 A.R.C.O., July, 1913.
12 F.R.C.O., Jan., 1913.	6 A.R.C.O., Jan., 1913.

38, Warwick Road, Cliftonville, Margate.

MISS MARGARET YOUNG, L.R.A.M., A.R.C.M. (Pianoforte Teacher), A.T.C.L. (Pianoforte and Vocal Teacher), Correspondence Lessons, Theory, Harmony, Form, Art of Teaching. Successes at R.A.M. and T.C.L. Metropolitan Examinations. Compiler, Musical Terms (English first), Novello, 4d. Bawburgh Vicarage, Norwich.

DURHAM CATHEDRAL.

CHORISTERSHIPS.—Board, Lodging, Education, and Medical Attendance Free. Candidates must have a good voice and correct ear, and should be between 8 and 11 years of age. Apply to the Rev. The Precentor, The College, Durham.

WANTED, BARITONE.—Good reader. Sundays and Practice. Salary £6 per annum. Apply Wednesday at 8. Christ Church, Endell Street, W.C.

TENOR WANTED for S. Clement's Church, King William Street, E.C. Close to Bank Tube Station. £12. Catholic Churchman. Good reader. Cathedral service. Apply Dr. C. W. Pearce, 8M, Hyde Park Mansions, W.

MEN (TENOR AND BARITONE) WANTED. Experienced in Plainsong. £8—£10 per annum. Apply, Choirmaster, St. Andrew-by-the-Wardrobe, Queen Victoria Street, Friday, at 8 p.m.

BARITONE WANTED. Pimlico. Communicant. Plainsong. £15. Organist, 11, Redcliffe Road, S.W.

SOPRANOS, TENORS and BASSES WANTED (Voluntary) to assist in "Messiah," for Lent, in S.E. District. Letter only, Organist, 367, Coldharbour Lane, S E.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER REQUIRED for All Saints' Parish Church, Kings Langley (Euston 40 minutes). Organist and Choirmaster Resident in Kings Langley preferred but not obligatory. New Norman & Beard Two-manual organ just erected. Reply, stating salary required and qualifications, to Rev. F. Halsey, Vicarage, Kings Langley.

FROME.—Parish Church of St. John Baptist. WANTED at Easter, ORGANIST AND CHOIRMASTER. Must thoroughly understand voice-production. Weekly Sung Eucharist. Daily Evensong. Gregorians. Good opening for private pupils. £80. Apply Prebendary Randolph.

MR. C. E. DE M. LEATHES, M.A. Cantab. Mus. Bac. Oxon., F.R.C.O., is open to receive a RESIDENT Pupil (Gentleman or Lady) in his house at Bangor, N. Wales. Organ, Piano, Harmony, Counterpoint, &c., Pupils successfully coached for Exams. Recent success: Organ Scholarship, Royal College of Music, February, 1914. Address: "Bryneglwys," Upper Bangor, N. Wales.

LADY (A.T.C.L.) desires Engagement as MUSIC TUTOR in School. Piano, Theory, Harmony. Vicinity Plumstead, Eltham. G. A. G., 49, Bramblebury Road, Plumstead, S.E.

STUDENT TEACHER. — Young Gentleman WANTED in School of Music in London. Board-residence and small salary. Premium required. State qualifications, &c. to W. F., c/o Novello & Co., Ltd., 160, Wardour Street, W.

PIANOFORTE AND VOCAL TEACHING CONNECTION required, or Share in Good MUSIC SCHOOL. Particulars to "Connection," c/o Novello & Co., Ltd., 160, Wardour Street, W.

ORGAN FOR SALE—Two Manuals, 12 Stops. New. ALFRED MONK, Organ Builder. Established 43 years. Organs built of high-class work, best mechanism, richest tones; moderate prices. Tuners sent regularly to all parts. Works, 49, Grayling Road, Lordship Road, Stoke Newington, London, N.

ORGANS (New and Second-hand) for SALE. Various prices. Instruments built for Church or Chamber from £50, on up-to-date principles, at Bedwell & Sons, Cambridge Organ Works, Cambridge.

CHURCH ORGANS FOR SALE (Immediately). Prior to alterations and extension of Factory. Two Manuals, modern compass, pneumatics and latest improvements. Guaranteed. 12 and 22 Stops. W. E. Richardson & Sons, Organ Works, Cornbrook Street, Brooks Bar, Manchester.

THE POSITIVE ORGAN.—A real PIPE ORGAN (all British), giving the effects of two manuals and pedals on its single keyboard. Prices from £77. Over 900 supplied. Estimates given for Repairs, Rebuilds, Two- and Three-Manual Organs, &c.

POSITIVE ORGAN CO. LTD., 44, Mornington Crescent (opposite Tube Station), London, N.W.

ORGAN PRACTICE.—Three-manual Pipe Organ for Practice—good condition; complete set of Couplers; blown by hydraulic engine. 1s. per hour. Hamilton Evans & Co., 54, London Road, Forest Hill, S.E. (one minute from station). Telephone: 693 Sydenham.

"THE GOLDEN GLOVE." Old English Song. Words and Music wanted. Would pay for copy of MS. C. W. J. C., c/o Novello & Co., Ltd., 160, Wardour Street, W.

PEDAL BASSES added to Thirty-six A. & M. Tunes. By H. G. Williams, Hon. Assistant-Organist, St. Margaret's, Lee. Price 9d. London: Novello & Company, Ltd.

ORIGINAL TUNES

FOR CATHOLIC HYMNS

BY

FRANCIS EDWARD GLADSTONE.

No. I.—FIVE HYMNS FOR PASSIONTIDE.

Price Sixpence.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

THE ORGAN

BY

WALTER G. ALCOCK,

M.V.O.,

Mus. Doc. Dunelm., A.R.C.M., F.R.C.O.

Organist and Composer to His Majesty's Chapels Royal and Assistant-Organist of Westminster Abbey.

Published as a Net Book.

PRICE FOUR SHILLINGS NET.

THE ATHENÆUM.

A fine work . . . and is admirable at all points.

YORKSHIRE POST.

The name of Dr. Walter G. Alcock is in itself a sufficient guarantee of the sound teaching of organ-playing, and his book, "The Organ," more than sustains his reputation. . . . There are many useful exercises on various technical points, and some short original pieces which serve as further illustrations of the author's teaching. It is very clearly printed on good, stout paper, and from every point of view is a desirable book.

YORKSHIRE OBSERVER.

A treatise on the instrument by so eminent an authority as Dr. Walter Alcock is likely to become a standard text-book. The young student could ask for none better.

THE SCOTSMAN.

The work is a distinctly useful addition to books of musical instruction.

THE BRISTOL TIMES AND MIRROR.

Although many books of instruction about the organ have been published, the latest is among the best. Its merits are sundry. . . . If the book be thoroughly mastered no other one is needed for the purpose of tuition, for it is the key to everything that has been written for the king of instruments. The print is exceedingly clear, and the book itself neat and attractive.

THE WESTERN MORNING NEWS.

This is not an "instruction" book in the ordinary use of the term, for its scope is too wide, and the information given is so largely the result of personal experiment and experience that those who have already advanced in the art of organ playing will find many hints and suggestions which will prove of practical service. The book is admirably divided into sections dealing with the elements of organ art; and a very important chapter is that on hymn-playing.

THE SUNDAY TIMES.

Every young organ student will find himself greatly helped by "The Organ," a new manual of the instrument by Dr. Alcock.

THE CHOIR.

We congratulate Dr. Alcock on having produced a work which will rank with the best of its kind.

THE MUSIC STUDENT.

The work is up-to-date in every way, it is well arranged and graduated, and begins at the beginning . . . One must look a long way to find a work which unites as much sound instruction with so much good music of all grades, all under one cover.

THE BOOKSELLER.

Dr. Alcock has produced a very helpful and useful book which the ambitious player will do well to study with great care and attention; he who follows the directions here given will undoubtedly find his work as an organist very materially assisted.

CHURCH FAMILY NEWSPAPER.

Written by a master of his subject, "The Organ" makes an immediate appeal to organists of all descriptions, for the matter contained in the book embraces all that is necessary from simple pedal exercises—called by some "first steps"—up to pieces requiring all the resources of modern organ technique.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

POPULAR MARCHES

FOR THE

ORGAN.

VOLUME 1.

1.	Marche Triomphale	F. Archer
2.	The Bride's March, from "Rebekah"	J. Barnby
3.	Harvest Thanksgiving March	J. B. Calkin
4.	March for a Church Festival	E. T. Driffield
5.	Imperial March	E. Elgar
6.	March to Calvary, from "The Redemption"	Ch. Gounod
7.	Religious March	G. A. Macfarren
8.	March, from "Abraham"	B. Molique
9.	March in B flat	E. Silas
10.	Festive March in D	Henry Smart
11.	March in G	B. Tours
12.	March in D minor	Agnes Zimmermann

VOLUME 2.

1.	March for a Church Festival	W. T. Best
2.	Processional Wedding March	H. R. Bird
3.	Festal March	J. B. Calkin
4.	Solemn March, from "The Black Knight"	E. Elgar
5.	Festal March	G. Elvey
6.	Marche Solennelle	Ch. Gounod
7.	March, from "St. Polycarp"	F. A. G. Ouseley
8.	March, with Pastoral Trio	B. Luard-Selby
9.	March in G	H. Smart
10.	Jubilant March	J. Stainer
11.	March in F	J. H. Wallis
12.	Commemoration March	John E. West

VOLUME 3.

1.	Festal March	George Calkin
2.	Festal March	C. S. Heap
3.	Triumphal March	Alfred Hollins
4.	Secular March	G. A. Macfarren
5.	Solemn March ("Story of Sayid")	A. C. Mackenzie
6.	Pilgrims' March (Symphony No. 4)	Mendelssohn
7.	Marche Religieuse	G. Merkel
8.	Bridal March and Finale	C. Hubert H. Parry
9.	Marche Serieuse	B. Luard-Selby
10.	Grand Solemn March	Henry Smart
11.	March and Chorus ("Tannhäuser")	R. Wagner
12.	Festival March	Herbert W. Wareing

VOLUME 4.

1.	Marche Religieuse	J. Baptiste Calkin
2.	Wedding March	William Faulkes
3.	Marche Triomphale	Alex. Guilmant
4.	March in E flat	Lefébure-Wely
5.	Funeral March ("Dream of Jubal")	A. C. Mackenzie
6.	Solemn Processional March	C. J. B. Meacham
7.	Schiller-March	G. Meyerbeer
8.	March in E flat	R. Schumann
9.	Nuptial March	B. Luard-Selby
10.	Marche Funèbre	P. Tschaïkowsky
11.	Grand March (Introduction to the 3rd Act of "Lohengrin")	R. Wagner
12.	Bridal Chorus ("Lohengrin")	R. Wagner

Price Four Shillings and Sixpence each.

In Cloth, Six Shillings and Sixpence each.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

NOVELLO'S HANDBOOKS FOR MUSICIANS.
Edited by Ernest Newman.

CHORAL TECHNIQUE & INTERPRETATION

BY

HENRY COWARD.

Mus. Doc. Oxon.

Published as a Net Book. Price, Cloth, gilt, Five Shillings net.

THE TEACHING AND ACCOMPANIMENT OF PLAINSONG

BY

FRANCIS BURGESS.

Published as a Net Book.
Price, Cloth, gilt, Three Shillings and Sixpence net.

THE MUSIC OF THE BIBLE

With some account of the Development of Modern Musical Instruments from Ancient Types.

BY

JOHN STAINER.

New Edition, with Additional Illustrations and Supplementary Notes

BY

THE REV. F. W. GALPIN, M.A., F.L.S.

Published as a Net Book.
Price, Cloth, gilt, Five Shillings net.

SONGS FROM THE PLAYS OF WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE

With Dances and Incidental Music as sung and danced by the Bermondsey Guild of Play.

WRITTEN AND COMPILED BY

MRS. G. T. KIMMINS.

Published as a Net Book.
Price, Half Bound, Paper Sides, gilt top, Five Shillings net.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

TRINITY COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

(Instituted 1872.)

Chairman of Board:

Sir FREDERICK BRIDGE, C.V.O., M.A., Mus.D.

Director of Studies: G. E. BAMBRIDGE, F.T.C.L., F.R.A.M.

Director of Examinations: C. W. PEARCE, Mus.D.

Students may enter at any time.

The College provides Instruction and Training in all Musical Subjects: Instrumental, Vocal, and Theoretical, and the Lessons are arranged to meet the convenience of both day and evening students. Any number of subjects—from one to the Full Course—may be entered for.

The College is open to beginners as well as to advanced students.

Approved complete Courses for the University of London Degrees in Music under recognised Teachers of the University. Also preparation for the degrees of other Universities, the examinations of the Royal College of Organists, Trinity College of Music, etc.

The Orchestral, Choral, and Chamber Music Classes are open also to sufficiently competent persons who are not College students for any other subjects.

All modern systems of Technique, whether for the Pianoforte, Violin, or other Instrument, are taught by eminent Professors.

Tuition in the Rudiments of the Theory of Music, Harmony, Counterpoint, Form, Instrumentation, Composition, and the Art of Teaching is also given by Correspondence.

In the Junior School (for Students up to 16 years of age) the fees are reduced.

Particulars of the Teaching Department, with list of Professors, Fees, Scholarships regulations, and the Syllabuses of the Higher and Local Examinations, on application to the undersigned.

SHELLEY FISHER, Secretary.

Mandeville Place, Manchester Square, London, W.

NOVELLO'S EDITIONS

OF THE

FAVOURITE OPERAS

ADAPTED FOR

CONCERT USE.

1. FAUST.
   Price 1s. Tonic Sol-fa, 9d.

2. IL TROVATORE.
   Price 1s. 6d. Tonic Sol-fa, 1s.

3. TANNHÄUSER.
   Price 1s. 6d.

4. MARITANA.
   Price 1s. 6d.

5. THE BOHEMIAN GIRL.
   Price 1s. 6d.

6. THE DAUGHTER OF THE REGIMENT.
   Price 1s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

BROADWOOD PIANOS

BOSWORTH & CO.'S

MUSIC TEACHERS' GUIDES

MUSIC OF MERIT

Classified and Graded for

READY REFERENCE

A and B. Very easy to moderately difficult.
C. Intermediate and advanced.

TO THE MUSIC PROFESSION.

It is a recognized fact that success in teaching is largely the result of careful selection of music suited to each pupil's individual capacity.

This Guide is designed to assist Teachers in the choice of suitable music, with the object of saving much valuable time and trouble.

From our very large catalogue of modern music we have chosen some of the most widely appreciated items, ranging from the very easy pieces to those of moderate difficulty, and arranged them in four grades (I. to IV.), each grade being sub-divided into three sections, A, B, C, forming a thematic list of easy teaching compositions by Oscar Beringer, Graham P. Moore, Gurlitt, Spindler, Travers, Liftl, Norden, Aletter, &c.

These Guides will be sent post-free on application.

We make a Speciality of Easy Teaching Music.

Write for our Lists of Teaching Pieces for Pianoforte, and Violin (with Pianoforte accompaniment), with Thematic examples. Gratis and Post free.

Suitable Selection Parcels of Music sent on approval.

BOSWORTH & CO.,

8, Heddon Street, Regent Street, London, W.

Publishers of Sevcik Violin Method and Practical Teaching Material for Piano (Germer), and Violin (Kross).

Beringer's, Moore's, Ward's, and "The Rapid" Methods.

SOLEMN MELODY

COMPOSED BY

H. WALFORD DAVIES.

FULL ORCHESTRA.

	s.	d.
Full Score	3	0
String Parts	1	3
Wind Parts	3	9

STRINGS AND ORGAN.

Score	2	0
String Parts	1	3
Organ	0	6
Pianoforte Solo	1	6
Organ Solo	1	6
Violin and Pianoforte	1	6
Violoncello and Pianoforte	1	6

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

The Musical Times
AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.
FEBRUARY 1, 1915.

[The article in our January issue giving 'Some reflections of a native composer' has attracted much attention. We give below comments made by writers fully competent to discuss the questions raised by our contributor. For our part we think that on the whole critics deal very sympathetically with British music, and they are as glad as are the public and the publishers when the man arrives.]

SOME REFLECTIONS OF AN ENGLISH MUSICAL CRITIC.

By F. Gilbert Webb.

The recent and present attention drawn to the position and condition of British musicians, and particularly to the lot of British composers, surely augurs well for their immediate future.

The Musical Times, ever reflective since its foundation in 1844 of the phases of the passing hour, has had several articles of late on the subject. Mr. Ernest Newman, in an open letter to composers, has given sage advice with fatherly solicitude, and last month Mr. Frederick Corder pleaded the cause of the teacher, while an anonymous writer gave us 'Some reflections of a native composer.' These and other articles are evidently written with the best of intentions; but through them all runs a vein of pessimism which especially in the last-named effusion is calculated to reduce young composers to despair. Not only is it maintained that the British public has shown callous indifference to native music, that its performance spells ruin, and compatriot critics treat it with insolent contempt, but the conceptions of our writers are all wrong and their works 'are ignoble and servile imitations of the methods of our foreign competitors'! The intention of the reflective accuser may be excellent, but one instinctively thinks of the lines:

> Perhaps it was right to dissemble your love,
> But—why did you kick me downstairs?

Nothing is more dangerous to truth than the endeavour to prove a case, and few social influences are more destructive than accusations containing half-truths. The present moment is so full of opportunities for our art that it is most necessary to arrest the circulation of statements conducive to false impressions. Above all is it most undesirable to depress our creative musicians by exaggerating the mistakes they have made and the wrongs they have suffered in the past. That past will soon be very far away. Whatever course the War may take, we stand on the eve of a new era of social life. Already the observer can see subtle changes in our midst which must inevitably develop.

It is not a time for looking back, but for careful watchfulness of the present and anticipation of the future. Music is, and always has been, the reflection of the general outlook, mode of living, and paramount emotionalism of its period, and to the student of men the revolutionary nature of many recent compositions was but the harbinger of what has now come, and is coming, upon us.

Now this future will be a sorry one for our musicians if 'the reflections of a native composer' are true. It is evident, however, that his mirror is of the distorting kind which confuses rather than clears the minds of those who look into it. First with regard to the attitude of the British public. It is true that the London Symphony Orchestra in its season of 1913-14 eschewed British works, but in the present season the ban has been removed; and no one who has attended the Promenade Concerts given by the Queen's Hall Orchestra can say that works by British composers are not attentively listened to, and their merits acknowledged to the full, by the audience. Moreover, works which prove successful are repeated in the succeeding season. The history of classic music contains nothing to compare with the interest excited by the production of Elgar's first Symphony and the number of its performances in the first twelve months of its existence. The same composer's Violin concerto has excited the admiration of musicians the world over. Mackenzie's 'Britannia' Overture, Stanford's 'Irish Rhapsodies,' Cowen's 'The Butterfly's Ball,' Edward German's 'Welsh Rhapsody' and 'Henry VIII. Dances,' works by Delius, and pieces by Balfour Gardiner and Percy Grainger, and many others all possess a well-known attractive power to the British public.

Turning to choral works, Sullivan's 'Golden Legend,' Coleridge-Taylor's 'Hiawatha' and 'A Tale of Old Japan,' Hubert Bath's 'The Wedding of Shon Maclean' are all popular successes; and no choral work in recent years has attained such widespread acceptance as Elgar's 'The Dream of Gerontius.' The popularity of our song-writers of all grades is too obvious to dwell upon. The ceaseless stream of production may make it difficult for any particular song to become prominent, but prominence is attained by a certain number, and it is doubtful if the activity of London publishers in the issue of new matter is equalled by any Continental firm. Certainly no nation can show such a list of popular songs by women composers. With the artistic value of all these productions I am not now concerned, but their existence and their enormous sales negative the assertion that the British public is indifferent to native art.

The charges against English critics are little short of 'insolent' perversion. To say that native works are 'dismissed with faint blame or more damning faint praise by our professional critics' does more credit to the writer's imagination than to his perception of veracity and knowledge of criticism. As a matter of fact an obvious fault of English critics is that they are too lenient. One has only to turn back to the comments on festival novelties to perceive that nearly all the new works have been over-praised and their faults lightly touched upon. The success of Elgar's Violin concerto was imperilled by the laudatory Press remarks made before its production. To say that the critic's 'attitude towards contemporary British music is too often one of insolent contempt' is an untruth that confutes itself. Such an attitude would not be tolerated by the editor of any journal of repute.

In any body of men there must be varying ability, and now and again one of narrow views or distorted vision, but he is the exception that proves the rule. Recent musical criticism of the London Press testifies to the knowledge, acumen, sanity, earnestness, and artistic perception of the writers. The fact that London criticisms are among the most prized by Continental musicians is an irrefutable proof of the justness of their verdicts and their integrity. It would be unnecessary to state these facts were it not that the above wild accusations brought against critics were calculated to stimulate the spirit of animosity which unfortunately ever slumbers between the creator and the critic. This instinctive feeling of opposition is to be discouraged, because the creator and the critic can be of such great help to each other. If one considers for a moment, the man who spends his life in listening and analysing all classes of music must in a few years either have a keen perception of the value of a work or be a hopeless dullard. It should not be forgotten that a critic's position and success in his profession depend upon the truth of his criticisms.

Finally, our composers are accused of 'ignoble and servile imitations of the methods of our foreign competitors.' Now all the greatest composers have in their early days been imitators, but we scarcely call their early efforts 'ignoble or servile.' Very few writers possess originality, but those who do convert old material and methods into something new. Sullivan studied for some time at Leipsic, but there is nothing German in his music. It is doubtful if any man possesses a more intimate or wider knowledge of contemporary music than Elgar, but it has not hampered the development of his individuality. Parry, Mackenzie, Stanford, all studied the works of foreign composers, and under foreign teachers, but there is nothing foreign in their best works. Education can only be achieved by the analysis of the finest models, and it must be admitted that the greatest works are by foreigners. The fault of many of our composers is not their intimate acquaintance with foreign works and methods, but that they have used these methods as mediums of expression instead of employing them as tools to work out their own ideas.

With regard to publishers, are they not often maligned, and are not a considerable number of composers living comfortably on their royalties? It is said that Sullivan only received £5 for his setting of 'Orpheus and his lute,' but he made £3,000 by 'The lost chord.' It is the reputation of the composer which is of value to the publisher, consequently the unknown writer has no market value whatever. To publish his work is a speculation. If it be a success the publisher will be the first to recognise it, and the composer will benefit.

Our composers are faced with many obstacles and difficulties, but they are not 'the indifference of the public, the damning attitude of the professional critics towards British music, and the unwillingness of British publishers to print British works.' To say this is to engender suspicion and class-hatred of which no good can come. Many attributes are necessary to secure success. The fundamental cause of failure lies in the man himself, and in most cases is misconception of his abilities. What our young composers most need is development of their individuality by study of literature and human nature. The true composer is a poet first and a musician afterwards.

REFLECTIONS REFRACTED: A REPLY TO 'A NATIVE COMPOSER.'

By 'A Critic.'

When I began to read your reflections in the last number of the Musical Times, I thought you were one of those miserable 'grousers' who do infinite harm to the art by making the world imagine that music and manhood are incompatible. I put the article down once as not worth reading, but I am glad that I took it up again, because by persevering to your fourth column I found that my first impression was wrong. Perhaps the Editor was not actually as kind as were his intentions in giving you such a free run on his space. The blue pencil has its uses sometimes, and if it had robbed you of your opening growl at the unkindness of the world it would have insured a greater number of people reading the pith and substance of your thought, which begins to make itself clear on page 14.

But there! I am beginning, according to my odious habit as a critic, by finding fault, which of course will put your back up at once, whereas my true intent is not to find fault but to draw attention—my own, yours, and other people's—to some of your ideas by thinking about them on paper.

I daresay that you have a good deal of right on your side in what you say about critics. Having searched my conscience narrowly I cannot feel quite confident that you would place me amongst the 'one or two honourable exceptions.' Not that my musical knowledge and training are so very rudimentary (they may have been quite as thorough in their way as yours have been in the art of musical composition); nor because I am browbeaten by editors and proprietors (I am not), but because I can recall many instances where I have had to pass a hasty judgment for publication in a paper which happened to be going to press unconscionably early. Sometimes I have been so painfully aware of the haste of the thing that I have not dared to open the paper and read my own article next day. You composers, on the other hand, suffer from too much leisure; you grind away at your full score for weeks, or perhaps months, until everything in it seems to you to be plain as a pikestaff. You get tremendously interested in details, and by the time you have done with it you are absolutely dead sure that that score is brimming over with new and vital ideas put in a way which have never been dreamed of before. You have no idea either how many of those details are really mere platitudes, or how few of those that are new can be grasped by the listener who hears the music for the first time and gleans one general impression. The things that jump to his ear most readily are the likenesses to a dozen other works which he knows, and you are naturally dreadfully disappointed when he remarks in his paper next day that the new symphonic poem is 'wanting in originality,' or something which seems to you like blank stupidity backed by apathy.

I am afraid that such leisure as yours and such haste as the critic's will go on being at loggerheads. But need that trouble you very much? Perhaps you say 'Yes' because, though you do not care a straw what the critic says, and indeed 'never read the newspapers,' &c. (most composers do say that), the unthinking public takes its opinions from them, and the laconic remark about want of originality may ruin the chances of a second performance. Personally I doubt it. I am so used to praising works which the public will not listen to a second time, and crabbing others which the public swarms to hear, that I cannot be a devout believer in the omnipotence of the Press. Where I believe that the Press has power is as a corroborative influence. If Jones hears your new symphonic poem and likes it, he tells Robinson: 'I heard a ripping thing last night, and the Daily Trumpeter says it's the finest thing that's been done since the "Pathetic" symphony.' Then, I admit, Jones and Robinson look out for a second performance. But suppose Jones hears it and does not care for it, and the Daily Trumpeter still trumpets; he just says, 'These critic fellows are always bucking over tosh of that sort,' and he and Robinson go to see the 'Girl from Uganda,' or wherever the reigning girl of the moment may hail from. The fact is you have got to get your public first and then the Press can help you along, but not before.

But perhaps you will turn up a nose of scorn at the idea of courting the vulgar Jones and Robinson. You have a right to do so. There are two perfectly sane and logical attitudes for an artist to take towards his public, but he cannot take them both. He may say 'I am writing simply what I feel as I feel it, and those who cannot appreciate it are the losers'; or he may say, 'I am going to find out what the public can appreciate, and do it as well as I can for them.' In the first case he is nobody's servant, so he cannot complain if nobody pays him. He may, of course, one day become the master of the public, like Wagner; but he cannot be sure of it, though he may spend his life, as Wagner did, in prophesying his mastery. In the second case he may expect payment in proportion as he serves the public well.

But here comes the difficulty. He who sets himself to serve the public is apt, as we all know, not only to play down to the public but to play the public down below itself. You complain, in what I take to be the best part of your reflections, of the attempt to serve up counterfeit foreign music to a public which too greedily devours the genuine article. That is one way in which the attempt to serve the public goes wrong amongst British composers, but I am not at all sure that a conscious nationalism is its cure. A conscious nationalism is just as likely to be superficial as any other conscious 'ism,' and on your own showing it is very unlikely to be successful as a means of serving the public's requirements. I am afraid I see signs of this superficiality in your very words on the subject. For example, you talk about putting 'English cider into empty champagne bottles.' Do you suppose that one Briton in a thousand drinks English cider? You know we drink bad beer in public houses and worse tea in —— shops. It is no use romancing about it; those are the commonplace British drinks. But directly the British composer begins to think about his 'Britishness' he becomes an incorrigible romancer. He talks about 'English cider,' conjures up the days of 'good Queen Bess,' and translates his country into terms of a drinking chorus in a comic opera. We are back again in an artificiality as dire as the affected foreign accent.

You speak of 'the delightful and distinctive flavour of old English music,' and I agree with you. There is no music that I love better. But do you suppose that the writers of that music were trying to be national? Not a bit of it. Look at Purcell, with his overtures like those of Lully, and his sonatas written 'after the best Italian models.' And yet we feel Purcell's music to be British to the bone. Lully could no more have written the music to 'King Arthur' or the 'Faery Queen' than Saint-Saëns could have written 'Blest Pair of Sirens.' The two composers of these works, whose names both happen to begin with a P, have written typically British music which no foreigner could have written or would have cared to have written. But how have they done it? Not by thinking about their 'Britishness,' but because they happened to be part and parcel of the life around them. In fact, because they could not help it.

If that be true, and I for one am sure that it is, it does not very much matter which of the two attitudes the composer adopts towards his public. Or rather he will not adopt one at all. If he has really learned to express himself in his music, his nationality will come out in it just to the extent, and no further, to which his own mind and character are reflections of his nation's mind and character. Other members of his nation will recognize this, will feel that his music chimes with some thought or aspiration of their own, and so come to love it.

How soon they will make the discovery depends upon a lot of things. If the work is technically simple, like Walford Davies's 'Solemn Melody' for example, they can make it at once; if it is big and complicated, like—what shall I say? Elgar's 'Falstaff,' to choose an example at random—it may take a long, long time. So it may be greeted with applause at Promenade concerts, or it may wait two hundred years to produce the agreement of two rather cantankerous people (like you and me) who will say that it has 'a delightful and distinctive flavour.' In either case it will not matter very much what the Daily Trumpeter says the day after its first performance; but if the critic of the Daily Trumpeter happens to be among the first to taste that delightful and distinctive flavour,—well, he is a lucky fellow: that is what he lives for.

In the 'Music and Art' Friday column of the Yorkshire Post, to which so many readers look forward, the well-known musical critic of that paper devotes a large part of his article on January 1 to a consideration of the Musical Times article. He says:

As for the professional critics, it is, to begin with, not quite just to lump them together. If an English critic has any merit, it is that he is independent. As a rule he takes his own line, and is not much influenced by even his most friendly colleagues. I remember how Francis Hueffer, of The Times, one of the earliest Wagnerians in this country, used to 'chum' with Sutherland Edwards, of the St. James's Gazette, the biographer of Rossini and historian of the Prima Donna, whose sympathies were largely with the old Italian opera. And, speaking generally, it will be found that the critic represents himself, and that his opinions, whether good or bad, are at least his own, and so individual that it is impossible to lump them with those of his contemporaries in the airy fashion adopted by those who talk with contempt of what 'the critics' say. The writer in the Musical Times asserts that the critic's 'attitude towards contemporary British music is too often one of insolent contempt,' a generalisation which it is more easy to make than to disprove, though my own impression is that, if one were to search the 'Press opinions' quoted in advertisements of oratorios and cantatas published by Novello, one would find not a few cases where the glamour of a first performance had warmed the writer to a glow of enthusiasm that did more credit to his heart than to his head—or let us say to his patriotism than to his critical judgment.

The 'excuse' put forward on his behalf by the writer may be repudiated with contempt. He says, in the words following the sentence already quoted, 'To be fair, however, one must see a certain amount of excuse in that he is employed principally to help to increase the circulation of the paper he represents, and as things are at present the newspaper-reading public holds it as an article of faith that music from abroad always was and always will be immeasurably superior to the home-grown variety.' Presumably the critic has the interests of his paper at heart, but I do not think it can be said that this affects his judgment to the extent of making him profess to dislike that which in his heart he approves. Certainly the public opinion that is expressed in applause of the inartistic antics of a virtuoso or the shop ballads sung by a popular prima donna will not be found to have an echo in the criticism of any responsible critic.

To suggest, however, that a newspaper critic has any influence upon the public taste seems to me to be a mistake. He may satisfy his conscience by upholding what he thinks is good, but, after all, the public, when it pays to listen to music, will have what it likes, and if the British composer can satisfy the public taste he will meet with recognition in spite of the 'insolent contempt' which it is said is the critic's attitude towards him. J. W. Davison, the most powerful critic of his day, who never ceased to extol Sterndale Bennett and to abuse Wagner, was no more able to make a place among the elect for the one than he was to stay the triumph of the other by a single hour. As regards the attitude of the public, I do not believe that 'the vast majority of our countrymen are entirely convinced that the first thing needful to musical salvation is the possession of a foreign name.' The popularity which Sullivan achieved, and which Elgar now enjoys, are a sufficient proof to the contrary, and, so far as my own observation extends, it is to the effect that the public entertains a certain prejudice against 'long-haired foreigners.' And, as regards conductors, to whom the writer devotes some space, I am under the impression that such expert conductors as Henry Wood, Thomas Beecham, and Landon Ronald have a very considerable following, in spite of their indubitable British origin.

Mr. F. C. Tilney sends us the following comments:—

In your admirable article, 'Some Reflections of a Native Composer' (January 1, 1915), you ask for 'an unbiassed public,' a desideratum which, as you imply, would put British music on its feet. Of whom, Sir, do you ask this: of the public itself? The public is not a concrete thing. It cannot be buttonholed, reprimanded, or pleaded with, for it is a mere abstraction. The only way is to find out what causes its bias and then set about the adjustment.

A committee was recently formed with the intention of reinstating the British musical reputation. I do not know whether this committee is still at work or not; but I know that its first meeting showed little promise. It gathered together all branches and sections of the profession, each of which had its grievance to air, although none could suggest a remedy. That was not surprising, because of all those represented factors there was not one which was a defaulter. They were all victims. The culprit was not there. He had not been invited. The culprit is the patron.

When you, Sir, ask for an unbiassed public, you are asking for a patron with a conscience. If such a creature exists he is the nearest approach to anything tangible in that nebulous entity the public.

First of all, what section of the public is responsible for the bias? The lower classes? No, for they support the home-industries of the music-hall. The middle-classes, then? No, for they are the real amateurs and applaud what pleases them regardless of the nationality of composers. They have made Elgar, as they made Edward German and Sullivan. It must be the upper-classes, then, who are responsible for the bias. Since music has in the past been a sign of superior culture, and has therefore implied good breeding, the upper-classes, being in the mass conservative, have always supported it. Since, further, any music associated with distant lands and unpronounceable names implied still more distinction from the bourgeois population with whom travel and foreign tongues were not in common usage, the upper-classes have been able to adopt a pose of wider taste and more liberal education by pretending to hunger for what was caviare to the general. This set the fashion, put the premium upon foreign art, and stultified the native product. The rest was simply the rolling of the ball: the effect after the cause.

The cheques of the aristocracy are the backbone of the finances of the Royal Opera House, Covent Garden. When one walks round the tiers of that famed pile and reads the names upon the doors of the boxes it is like reading Debrett. The operas there produced are those of Italy, Germany, and France. Within the last thirty years there have been some important opportunities for these aristocratic patrons to write cheques in support both of British opera and of British singers in foreign opera. Have they done so? Never once. These ventures have failed for lack of the financial support which keeps the foreign opera syndicates flourishing. Here we are, then, with our finger upon the plague spot.

British music was stultified when the Hanoverians first came to our Court. The term 'native' then became synonymous with 'undistinguished.' Under such conditions it is easy to see that the foreign music-master stepped, by invitation, into the shoes of the British teacher; and that foreign music came, ipso facto, to bear the cachet of superiority, which meant that native art was looked upon as the mediocre strivings of an uninspired community. This stigma has been handed down along with the family diamonds of the aristocracy and its boxes at the opera,—wherein the occupants probably wish themselves at some less boring Society function.

Surely, then, the first step towards doing justice to British music is to approach this aristocratic patronage; to beg it to cast away its conventions and affectations and to widen its sympathies. On the present patriotic wave these patrons would lend a ready ear. The newly-formed committee should enrol the leading lights of the nobility, who would be glad to act in so patriotic a cause. They could work among their peers, making them pledge their honour to support British music and British executants. Everything else would follow naturally, for the agents, entrepreneurs, and publishers have no bias except towards the thing that will pay. The effect of this upon native composition would soon be felt. The English tradition in music is not yet so far moribund as to be beyond recovery. Sir Hubert Parry, for one, has kept it alive. I am convinced that English music would catch at the hearts of the people at once if it were really spontaneous. We cannot shut our eyes to the fact that even revivals of old styles, like the 'Henry VIII. Dances,' find their billet at once and stick. The popularity of the Savoy operas was due to the English characteristics which Sullivan deliberately adopted. They were clear outline, joyous sweetness, diatonic progression, and a downrightness that we find in Purcell. Surely all this is not incompatible with modern orchestration and modern colour and effects? We can develop on one line as well as on another. Let us develop on our own. An art that is indigenous will be popular however advanced it be. With music as a popular expression, we should have no more 'Tipperary' booms, for we should be a musical country as we were in the days of the Tudors and the Stuarts.

THE QUESTION OF THE BIRMINGHAM FESTIVAL.

By Ernest Newman.

Readers of The Times correspondence about the Birmingham Festival, reproduced in the Musical Times last month, will have noticed that the discussion was initiated by one London musician, Sir Charles Stanford, and continued by two other London musicians, Sir Walter Parratt and Sir Frederick Bridge. One would have thought that the place most concerned in the matter was not London but Birmingham. As a resident of Birmingham, and one especially interested in the development of music there, I should like to express the Birmingham view on the subject, or at least one of the Birmingham views. So far as I know, it is a view that has not yet found expression in The Times. We have had Sir Charles Stanford objecting to the postponement of the Festival because it means a monetary loss to certain performers—mostly Londoners—who might have been engaged for it. We have had Mr. Alfred Wiggin, the chairman of the Orchestral Committee, declaring that it is necessary to postpone the Festival because to hold it this year would probably mean a money loss to the Birmingham General Hospital—which, owing to the folly of our ancestors, is inseparably mixed up, to our bane, with the question of music in Birmingham. But there is a third question to be considered, which, to my mind, is of greater importance than that of the artists' pockets or that of the coffers of the General Hospital; and that is the question of music in Birmingham and the effect of the Festival on this. A Festival is a very jolly thing for people who come to it from a distance. They may be lucky enough to hear two or three unusually good works unusually well performed; they hear a new work or two—perhaps even a new work of their own—and one or two works that they have little chance of hearing elsewhere; they spend a pleasant day or two in the town, meeting old friends, enjoying, besides the music, much good eating and drinking and talking; and they go home again happy for another experience of a kind that cannot be had in any other way. That is all very well for them; but what of the town that provides this feast? What the more thoughtful residents always ask themselves after one of these functions is: 'Is it better to have good music just once in three winters, or once every week in every winter? And is it possible to have the latter while so much energy and so much money are wasted on the former?' It is because Birmingham people, having asked this question in a desultory and half-serious way for many years, are now asking it very seriously and answering it very bluntly, that the feeling for the Festival is everywhere cooling down among the musicians of the town. Birmingham is the least musical large town in Europe—perhaps we may say, in the world. It has few good concerts; it has no real orchestra; it is ignorant not merely of music as a whole and of new music in particular, but of many works that have within the last few years become more or less familiar to London, Liverpool, Manchester, and Glasgow. We want to make Birmingham a musical city. What stands in the way of that achievement? Firstly, the lack of a strong local leader sufficiently above all partisanship to be able to reconcile the cliques whose jealousies have done so much to injure Birmingham music. In the second place, we want an organized financial effort that will secure for us a more or less permanent orchestra, with a succession of competent conductors. Many attempts have been made to establish orchestral concerts, but all have failed, largely because the financial backing was insufficient. The guarantee system has broken down. The easiest year for any new concert venture is the first. The most difficult are the second and the third, when the primary enthusiasm has abated somewhat, and a few guarantors have begun to regret the sums they have had to pay. After the third year it is generally hard to keep going, though everyone feels that if we could get through a fourth and fifth season the success of the concerts would be assured. The same people are called upon to finance each new venture; it is not to be wondered at that it becomes increasingly difficult to induce them to guarantee. It is now clear that the only sure basis for an orchestral foundation in Birmingham is a capital fund the interest on which would suffice for the inevitable losses in the first few years, when the expenses are always relatively greatest, and would afterwards permit of a good deal of boldness in the matter of new programmes. £100 paid under a guarantee is gone for ever; the same £100 given as a contribution to a capital fund remains for ever, only the interest being used. We may put the average loss on a series of winter concerts in Birmingham at about £700 to £800. The interest on a capital fund of £20,000 would provide for this; the amount given in guarantees and donations—and wasted on the Festival—during the last fifteen years or so cannot be far short of that sum.

A town must make its choice between having a Festival and being musical. It cannot have both. The proof of this stares us in the face. The really musical provincial towns—Liverpool, Manchester and Glasgow—have no Festivals. Those that have Festivals—Birmingham, Leeds, Sheffield, Norwich, Bristol, &c.—are not musical in the sense that the towns just mentioned are; they do not get so much music as those three places, the music as a whole is not so good, and they hear fewer new works. The antinomy is not accidental; it is in the nature of cause and effect. A big Festival destroys the general musical life of a town by draining it of money, and by spending that money wastefully. The most liberal of people will set aside each year only a certain amount for the support of local music; and if too much of this goes in one direction too little of it will necessarily have to go in others. Musical Festivals are run in a wasteful fashion partly because the traditions make for needless expenditure, partly because they are in the hands of well-meaning people who do not know the musical world. Examine, in the light of pure business, one or two of the items in the expenditure of the average Festival. Many of the performers connected with it are absurdly overpaid. A Festival is regarded by them all as fair game; it is to them what a rich estate is to the lawyers. As the conductor of one big Festival remarked to me, 'Just mention "Festival" to them, and up go their prices like a rocket.' I have heard of a case of a singer's fee being £300 for four performances, and not by any means exacting performances. There is not a singer in England worth half that amount to any box office. Take again the point of advertising. Huge posters are put up in all sorts of likely and unlikely places in all sorts of towns; prospectuses are sent out; advertisements are inserted in various London and provincial papers; yet the real return from all this expenditure must be very slight. The people outside the town who are interested in the Festival know quite well when it is due, and generally know—from the musical journals, for instance—what the programme is to be. For all the actual good it does to the box office, nine-tenths of the money spent on advertising the Festival might as well be thrown into the sea. So with the sums spent on furnishing and decorating the rooms of the principal artists. If these rooms are good enough for the same people a month before or a month after the Festival, they are surely good enough for them during the Festival. Excessive payments, again, are made to composers for the doubtful privilege of a first performance of a new work. In a country in which concerts are so few and composers so plentiful as in this, a composer should be thankful that he can get a big work performed at all. There might be some reason for paying a large sum for the first performance of one of the world's masterpieces; but the average work given at a Festival is a long remove from being that. For the ordinary work of the ordinary composer nothing more should be paid than the performing fee the composer could command in the ordinary course from any English concert society. If he did not choose to accept this, he could be politely recommended to get a bigger fee elsewhere,—if he could.

And what is the outcome, so far as Birmingham is concerned, of all this waste? Many of the performances have nothing to distinguish them from an ordinary concert given by precisely the same people at another time of the year. But the public is expected to pay two or three times as much for a performance that is only a little, or perhaps not at all, better than the average. And how is a Festival audience made up? Of Birmingham music lovers? By no means. First of all there are a number of critics from various parts of the country—excellent fellows, of course whose countenances give an intellectual look to the hall that it would otherwise lack, but not a source of financial profit to the Festival. There are a small number of enthusiasts from other towns—mostly people whom one sees at almost every Festival in the country. There are a number of people from Birmingham and the neighbouring country towns whose interest in music is obviously of the slightest, for they take no part in the musical life of the town during the intervening three years; their interest in the Festival is partly charitable, partly social. There are a few hundred of the richer music lovers of the city. There are a number of empty seats, or, which is a worse scandal, seats that would otherwise be empty are occupied by nurses in uniform or by other people who are as obviously deadheads. The upshot of it all is that out of the million inhabitants of Birmingham and the immediate neighbourhood, not more than about a thousand get any benefit out of the Festival at all, and of these thousand not three hundred are people who help to keep music going during the rest of the year—the real lovers of music. There are many who would like to go, but the prices are prohibitive; and they are prohibitive because the Festival is run with an improvidence that would bring any ordinary business into the bankruptcy court in six months. These Festivals are in the hands of men whose good intentions are beyond dispute, but who simply have not and cannot have the knowledge and the experience that such work requires. Things were bad enough in this respect in the old days; but now one hears, with amazement, that the Birmingham General Hospital Committee is responsible for the financing of the Festival. With all respect, I can only say that these worthy people are about as well qualified to run a musical Festival as I am to perform an operation for appendicitis.

I hope I have made it clear to Londoners why Sir Charles Stanford's appeal for the continuance of the Festival in the interests of the performers has fallen on deaf ears so far as Birmingham is concerned. Sir Charles Stanford put it in his first letter that 'to drop the Festival means a loss to the musical profession . . . of not less than some £5,000. To hold it as usual might or might not mean a loss at this juncture of about £2,500. Is not the rich capital of the Midlands prepared to risk that sum rather than fine the players and singers who have worked so loyally for her in the past, a sum of nearly treble the amount?' (I do not quite follow Sir Charles's arithmetic, by the way.) In a second letter he says that 'the Hospital Committee, which has profited by the exertions of musicians to the tune of many thousands of pounds, will not return the compliment if it involves any risk.' But surely all this is very fallacious? If I were the Hospital Committee I think I should reply something like this: 'It is not a case of "returning a compliment." We are under no obligation whatever to the musicians who have taken part in past Festivals. We have not "profited by their exertions." It is a misuse of language to speak of our "fining" loyal workers by not re-engaging them. For whatever they have done they have been paid, and paid very handsomely. If we do not feel we can afford a Festival this year, Sir Charles Stanford has no more right to expect us, with all the other calls we have upon us, to lose £2,500 in order to fill the pockets of a few London musicians, than we have to expect him to order a dozen superfluous diamond rings this winter in order to help the Birmingham jewellery trade, which has been grievously hard hit by the War. We will take up the Festival again when we feel we can afford it.'

If the question is purely one of business and charity, I fancy such an answer would be conclusive. I admire Sir Charles Stanford for the sympathy he shows with the performing members of the musical profession, and for his desire to do what he can to help them in these hard days; but it is useless to press the matter upon either the Birmingham Committee or the Birmingham citizens on the lines he adopted in his letters. The more sensible citizens in particular, with the knowledge that a local orchestra will some day have to be endowed, that such an endowment will be harder than ever to raise after this war, and that every £100 spent on the Festival is at the best of times £100 lost to the cause of permanent music in the town, would view with horror the spending of £2,500 of Birmingham money on London musicians for sentimental reasons. I, for my part, would prefer to see the Festival shelved for ever in favour of a permanent orchestra. All the Festival can do, this could do; but the concerts would be more plentiful, the prices would be more reasonable, and the genuine musical public of the town would be better off. As a necessary consequence, the musical profession would also be better off, for the performers would get far more Birmingham engagements. I am well aware that if the Festival were discontinued, nothing like the whole of the money spent on it would be given to the cause of music pure and simple. Nor would I wish the Hospital to suffer the least loss. The people who give to the Festival only for the sake of the Hospital could send their donations to this direct; while the musical subscribers could give their contributions direct to the cause of a permanent orchestra. It is really monstrous that the development of music in Birmingham should be held back for all time by the greedy hand of the General Hospital. The correspondent who wrote under the title of 'An Undistinguished Musician,' did well to wax sarcastic at the expense of the Hospital Committee. Music has done great things for the Hospital; if the Hospital will do nothing for music in Birmingham, it is surely time for music to begin to look after itself.

ACTING IN OPERA.

By F. Bonavia.

The severe censure passed recently upon the acting of English singers has called attention to a subject seldom discussed, and only mentioned when it is found in superlatively good or bad degree. Is competent acting much rarer in opera than in drama? Are English singers less gifted in this respect than foreign singers? These are the questions which present themselves most urgently to one's mind.

The answer to the first is not easy. Really good acting (as distinguished from competent or tolerable acting) is extremely rare in either case. As long as Falstaff on the dramatic stage may be mistaken for Father Christmas, and Rosalind is reminiscent of the pert boy in the pantomime, it cannot be wondered at if the action of singers is seldom deserving of notice at all. The ability to act, though often considerably under-estimated, is not the only or the most necessary qualification for the operatic stage. As a general rule singing still remains the main consideration. Singers, moreover, have not a tradition in regard to acting. Before Irving, there were at least a dozen eminent actors whose fame has lived. Acting in opera is a comparatively modern accomplishment. Rossini demanded 'voice, voice, and again voice' of his interpreters. We may read everywhere of the marvellous voices that singers such as Mario, Pasta, or Malibran had, but of their skill in acting there is hardly any mention to be found anywhere. What tradition there is in regard to acting is misleading, if not worse. Before Wagner there were the commonplaces of the Italians. With Wagner there came a new idea which in its turn has become a danger and an obsession. The notion that the actors should form a series of pleasing pictures was originally meant, no doubt, as a revolt against the conventionality which was gradually suffocating all individuality. The old Italians, for instance, never dared turn their back to the public or take their eye from the conductor. In combating these and similar absurdities the movement was distinctly beneficial.

To-day its task is done and it must in its turn make way for something less stilted, less angular, which would not offend our notions of what acting should be. Its use and abuse can be seen to-day in any Wagnerian production. The ludicrous step of the Wagnerian Knights in 'Lohengrin' and 'Parsifal' is the direct outcome of this school of acting, although there are reasons to suspect that this peculiarly slow and inelegant gait was devised to meet the requirements of the music. If the procession of Knights in Grail Castle, or if the Knights who set the lists for the combat in 'Lohengrin,' were to march in the usual way, they would reach the furthest end of the stage long before the accompanying music had come within sight of the last bars. Hence this 'snail-step' in which after one foot has advanced the other is dragged behind it, giving an impression of some physical defect in each foot in turn. The proceeding has been hallowed by the usual catch-words of traditional reverence and æstheticism, but it is difficult to imagine a more unheroic effect than the procession of Grail Knights swaying first to right and then to left like a ship tossed in a heavy sea, to say nothing of the complications arising should a Knight step out with the wrong foot.

It is said that every step and every gesture in Wagnerian opera has been approved and its infallibility established by a committee of Wagnerian mandarins. And seeing that the practice varies so very little, I have no difficulty in believing it. Every Siegmund I have ever seen—after the sudden opening of the door in the first Act of 'The Valkyries'—has taken Sieglinde to the fireside to sing the joys of springtime. Yet the action is undefensible. The sudden bursting open of the door is a masterpiece of dramatic effect. Imagine the two lovers in the dark hut with Hunding lying drugged in the next chamber. Imagine the furtive hopes, the stealthy steps, the anxious preparations for urgent flight, then the sudden flood of light and air. No wonder Sieglinde shrieks, asking the name of the dreaded visitor. Obviously, what any sensible Siegmund would then do would be to reassure her, and he might even grow extravagantly lyrical in praise of spring, but without taking first the precaution of a comfortable attitude in a cosy corner. Actors of a fixed type, the exponents of a not perfect system, are apt to blunder no less than actors of the so-called 'natural' kind. The former can be absolutely grotesque; the latter, at worst, utterly vulgar.

A serious disadvantage of opera singers is that they rarely have the chance of testing their skill in the acting of comedy. What a world of good it would do to these Siegfrieds, Samsons, and Manricos to go through a thorough course of Gilbert and Sullivan. Nothing else could show them quite as well the point where the sublime becomes ridiculous; nothing else would teach them to define with the same nicety between dignity and pompousness, for comedy punishes all excess. It is significant that Germany, the cradle of the 'beautiful picture' movement in opera, has never shown any creative appreciation of comedy.

This, of course, is not equivalent to an apology for 'natural' acting. The best actors have something of the studied harmony which is the outcome of serious consideration as well as the plasticity and the plausibility of perfectly instinctive action. Chaliapin makes a magnificent picture when he first comes on the stage in 'Boris,' but it is impossible to think of him at all as one thinks of a noble piece of statuary or painting. The ever-changing shades of facial expression, the gestures, the gait, are inseparable in the final impression. It is not any one definite moment that remains in the memory, but the whole character is left vividly impressed, just as good novelists can stamp a character in a sentence and then add to our knowledge of it by every subsequent word. Chaliapin is the ideal actor. But to expect others to equal him would be impossible. What can be expected from others is that they should avoid what is obviously absurd.

No other theatre in Europe offers the same opportunities that Covent Garden does of seeing the gulf which divides the average singer, as an actor, from Chaliapin. Covent Garden is the arena where the best singers of France, Italy and Germany compete for the favour of the London public. There we may see an Italian chorus—all nature's gentlemen—enjoying so much their temporary status as courtiers, warriors, conspirators, that they forget to be human. What loftiness of scorn in their gestures, and how they can roar in victory or defeat! There we may see the 'snail' step in all its varieties, and German choristers planted as firmly on their feet as if the stage were limed. There one has seen a singer confront Scarpia in 'Tosca' as an angry fishwife confronts another; or a singer whose chief notion of by-play seems to be a vigorous nodding of the head, as a spoilt child will do in affirmation or denial. Of course Covent Garden has no monopoly in incompetent acting. All the chief European theatres of opera are much on the same footing. And at Covent Garden one sees occasionally some excellent performances. English singers are very much in the minority there, yet one of the most remarkable pieces of acting during the last season was that of an English singer—Madame Edvina in 'Tosca.' It was not only a capital realisation of all the play stands for; it was also a criticism and a considerable refining of the author's ideas. Where the author saw violence, Madame Edvina brought force and tragedy; what had seemed before only a 'sensational case' became poignant and dramatic. Fortunately her part is free from lines like Scarpia's 'My poor supper has been interrupted,' which, hardly credible as it seems, are meant to make us shudder and to reveal the depth of the man's wickedness. The writers of text-books for operas are often another cause of poor acting. If there had been no other good performances by English singers this one alone would be enough to turn the scales heavily in their favour. Certainly no other soprano singer did anything as good last season, either at Covent Garden or Drury Lane.

Occasional Notes.

AN ALARMING PROSPECT.

The following paragraph is from the column headed 'The Office Window' that appeared in the Daily Chronicle on January 20:

'God save the King' is a good tune, but it is not an equitable or a correct one. It gives, as it were, short measure. It is unsymmetrical. The first part is deficient by two bars. The unmusical may gauge this by the words and lines; to the musical the defect is made tolerable only by custom. It is an improving and interesting exercise to set yourself to supply two bars to follow the first two. The present writer is much attached to his own (unpublished) interpolation.

What is the matter with the poor old tune? Do all other 6.6.4.6.6.6.4 tunes and hymns come under the curse? It is not clear whether the ominous statement is by the office boy or the distinguished, amiable and modest critic of the journal.

EUGEN D'ALBERT AND ENGLAND.

The following paragraph appeared in The Times on January 5 in its column headed 'Through German Eyes.'

The famous composer and pianist Eugen d'Albert has authorized the publication of a letter which he wrote in 1884 from Munich protesting against being called 'an English pianist' because he was born in England. He said:

Unfortunately I studied for a time in that land of fog, but during this period I learned absolutely nothing, and if I had stayed longer in England I should have been ruined. It is my firm conviction that the system of music teaching in England is such that every talent based upon it must be destroyed. I only began to live when I left that horrible country, and I still live only for the true and glorious German art.

On January 7 the following letter appeared:

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE TIMES.'

SIR,—To-day in your column 'Through German Eyes' you quote a statement made by Eugen d'Albert in 1884, the reproduction of which he authorizes and which, therefore, presumably he repeats as an expression of his present opinion. But in November, 1904, twenty years after 1884, in the course of a handsome appreciation of his career, he authorized the editor of the Musical Times to say:

'The former prejudice which I had against England, which several incidents aroused, has completely vanished since many years.'

Will German papers please copy? Yours faithfully,

W. G. MCNAUGHT, EDITOR.

The article in our November, 1904, number was a full biographical sketch with portrait and an illustration of d'Albert's residence at Meina, Lago Maggiore. His life in England and the warm welcome extended to him on every occasion of his public appearance were duly recorded. No one knows better than d'Albert that artists of every nationality have always been appreciated in this country—some would say that this favour has been too lavishly bestowed. Is it true that the main complaint of d'Albert was that he did not receive sufficient attention from a German pianoforte teacher at the National Training School of Music? However this may be, it is gratifying to record that d'Albert showed some milk of human kindness in his nature, when in 1896, twelve years after the splenetic outburst quoted above, he wrote as follows to Sir John Stainer. (We are permitted by Mr. J. F. R. Stainer, now a Corporal in the Army, to make the extracts):

Leipsic,

November 30, 1896.

DEAR SIR,—First of all I must beg to be excused for not having answered your kind letter any sooner. Your request, however, put me to a difficult dilemma. On the one side I found it hard to refuse anything to you, who were always so kind and dear to me . . . I state, however, expressly, dear Sir, that this is by no means referable to yourself, and that in other respects I shall ever be readily at your disposal, as I remember with joy and sympathy the short time of my youth during which I had the favour of coming in contact with you. Believe me, dear Sir, Yours very faithfully, (Signed) EUGEN D'ALBERT.

It would seem from this that the charm and geniality of Stainer's personality touched even Eugen d'Albert.

Eugen d'Albert was born at Glasgow on April 10, 1864. His father, whose full name was Charles Louis Napoleon d'Albert, was of German nationality, he having been born at Nienstetten on February 5, 1809. He settled at Newcastle-on-Tyne, and married a Miss Annie Rowell there. He was a dancing-master and composer of dance music. Eugen, at the age of twelve, gained a Queen Victoria Scholarship at the National Training School of Music. In 1881 he gained the Mendelssohn Scholarship, which he held for one year only. He became a pupil of Liszt, and in 1882 he settled in Germany.

We understand that Mr. O. M. Kling, who for many years has been associated with Messrs. Breitkopf & Härtel's London branch, has on his own account taken over the music publishing business of Messrs. J. & W. Chester, of Brighton. A London branch will be carried on at 54, Great Marlborough Street. Although Russian and other Continental music will form a speciality of the business, British music will receive due attention, and a lending library will be established. Mr. Kling, although so long connected with a German firm, is a Swiss. He was born at Geneva in 1866, and his father, Mr. Henry Kling, who for some time was chief of the Geneva Conservatoire of Music, was born at Paris; his mother was a Genevese. Mrs. O. M. Kling (née Victoria Kop) is a Belgian, and comes of an old Brussels family. From 1890 to 1897 Mr. Kling managed the foreign department of Messrs. Novello & Co., and subsequently he transferred his services to Messrs. Breitkopf & Härtel.

At the conclusion of the Christmas Term at the Royal College of Music the following awards were made: Council Exhibitions to Lily F. Coles, Beatrice Betts, Ethel F. Toms (singing), Thomas Whitley (oboe), Dorothy T. Davies, Alice E. Norman, Marjorie B. Wills (pianoforte), and Bernard A. R. Shore (organ); the Edmund Grove Exhibition to Alice K. E. Pattenden; the Dove Prize to William R. Allen (Scholar); the Lesley Alexander Gift between S. Dorothy Thuell (Scholar) and Timothy Toomey; the Manns Memorial Prize to Herbert N. Howells (Grove Scholar); the Leo Stern Memorial Gift for a violoncellist to Timothy Toomey.

LARGE AND SMALL ORCHESTRAS.

By Nicholas Gatty.

It is a great pity that we do not recognise more clearly the essential difference between the large and small orchestra. Much more is involved than the mere question of numbers, and if it were properly understood we should no longer have perpetrated upon us such tonal outrages as 'Festival' performances, so-called, of Beethoven symphonies and the like. The modern large orchestra came into being to interpret adequately modern music, since the style of writing was, in the first place, entirely changed from what had gone before; while, in the second, fresh instruments were permanently introduced, to become an integral part of the tonal scheme. The newer orchestration involved an increase in the number of strings to obtain a right balance of tone, the reason being that the wind instruments, besides being also augmented in number, were written for in a much more penetrating manner. But when so magnificent an organization is set to play music in the older style it is thought quite sufficient to double all the wind parts in the hope of getting a good balance, it being entirely forgotten that the scoring is of an absolutely different character. Hence there result a hideous strenuousness of expression and a painful forced tone from the wind in the desperate effort to keep up with the dynamic volume of sound from the strings.

Observe, too, how the point is missed here, as was proved by the 'faking' adopted by Mr. Henri Verbrugghen at the Beethoven Festival at the Queen's Hall last April. He worked upon the plan of reducing the number of strings in the soft passages. If he had reduced them in the loud there would have been more reason in the proceeding. Surely it is sufficiently obvious that a large string orchestra can play softly enough to satisfy anyone. What matters is, whether the wind can play loud enough without destroying quality, that is, in the typical instrumental passages of the period such as are found in the Beethoven scores. This is not just the view of the purist who desires everything to be as historically exact as possible; it is simply for æsthetic reasons that the absurd practice of hoping to compete with a huge body of strings by means of doubled wind is to be so greatly deplored. Of course it is not to be denied for one moment that many of the Beethoven string passages do sound truly splendid when delivered by a large body of players under the control of an expert, and it only requires a moment's thought to realise that if one takes the period further back one can get equally fine effects from Bach and Handel. Sir Frederick Bridge always performs the 'Messiah' with Handel's own scoring, and does not hesitate to employ a number of oboes and bassoons, just in fact as happened in Handel's time. Both the old masters scored as differently from Beethoven, Mozart, and Schubert, as these last did from Wagner and Richard Strauss.

Another thing which seems to be forgotten in this connection is that the climax of dynamic force is a purely relative thing. The high-lights are just as impressive on the small as they are on the large orchestra; mere numbers, from the æsthetic standpoint, have got nothing to do with the matter at all. Probably the evil procedure in vogue at present owes its inception to Wagner himself, who did not hesitate to alter the scoring of the Choral symphony—one can never hear his alterations in the Scherzo, the new horn parts especially, without great regret. Fortunately this version is not always used.

It is not likely, however, that there will be any change yet awhile in this deplorable practice; modern audiences are so accustomed to tonal shocks that their ears are in danger of losing the sense of appreciation of what one may call the finer qualities of instrumental expression. But when the day of orchestral sensationalism has passed, which of course it will do in due time, musical folk will be keener than they are just at present to distinguish between the purely physical and emotional effects of musical sounds.

THE COMPOSER OF THE RUSSIAN NATIONAL ANTHEM.

By M. Montagu-Nathan.

The Russian National Anthem appears to take precedence of all other tunes in the public favour at the present time. When troops are on the march, with or without a band, this eighty-year-old refrain—practically unknown in Britain three months ago—is heard more often even than 'La Marseillaise,' which for a long time has been looked upon as the model of what a martial tune should be. It has acquired a prominent place in the repertory of the errand-boy; 'Tipperary' itself is but a 'good second' in popularity.

In the circumstances it seems rather odd that while this marching music has achieved such a vogue there should be so little curiosity in regard either to its origin or to the personality of its composer. The fact that his musical career was sufficiently distinguished to bring him under the notice of such giants as Schumann, Berlioz, and Wagner, would appear to justify an assumption that the Russian National Anthem is not the sole evidence of his talent.

Alexis Feodorovich Lvov, the son of a musician, was born at Reval in 1799. In those days music was not commonly looked upon in Russia as a means of gaining a livelihood, and the lessons he received at home prior to embarking upon a military career were no doubt intended to foster a taste for the art that his father, who was Director of the Imperial Court Chapel at St. Petersburg, had good reasons for revering. This intention was fully realised, for while young Lvov devoted himself so earnestly to 'soldiering' as to gain rapid promotion, he contrived to equip himself with a musical technique that in both the creative and the executive departments placed him well above the status of the mere dilettante.

Russia has produced more than one instance of a composer who, following with distinction a career totally different from that of music, has had the satisfaction of seeing his operas produced in the principal musical centres of Europe. Borodin, the composer of 'Prince Igor,'—enthusiastically acclaimed at Drury Lane last summer—was an eminent scientist. César Cui, whose musical activities were spread over the two spheres of composition and criticism, was, like Lvov, a soldier, and like him too ultimately attained the rank of General. In regard to Cui, who specialised in fortification, it is interesting to note that the present Tsar was his pupil in that branch of military science. Moussorgsky, the composer of 'Boris Godounov,' and Rimsky-Korsakov, whose 'Ivan the Terrible,' 'A Night in May,' and 'The Golden Cockerel' secured for him the somewhat belated British recognition of his genius, both relinquished their commissions (the former was in the Army, the latter in the Navy) to devote themselves to music. In their case there is thus a difference from those cited above in that they never attained any particular distinction in their first-chosen career. Lvov however differs from them all, for, while the other composers achieved a considerable fame in the operatic domain, Lvov's dramatic works, 'The Village Bailiff,' 'Bianca and Gualtiero,' 'Undine,' 'Starosta Boris,' and 'The Embroideress,' have none of them survived despite the fact that the second and third mentioned were performed as far afield as Dresden and Vienna.

His fame as a composer rests therefore entirely upon the Russian National Anthem. Fortunately, however, there is some quite startling evidence of his possession of an executive skill unequalled by any of his contemporaries who excelled him in the creative sphere. Among Schumann's collected essays in which, by his timely tributes to Chopin, Brahms, and Wagner, he testified sufficiently well to his genius for recognising and acclaiming merit, is one written in 1840 for that 'organ of youth and movement,' the Neue Zeitschrift für Musik. It runs as follows:

'The composer of the famous Russian National Hymn, as well as of other works that yet await publication, Colonel Alexis Lvov, adjutant to the Tsar of Russia, arrived here a few days ago. . . . This respected guest gave a small circle the opportunity of becoming acquainted with his remarkable skill as a violinist. The writer of this article considers that occasion as one of the most delightful that music and its votaries have ever afforded him. Herr Lvov is so remarkable, so rare a player, that he can only be placed beside the very first artists. . . . Many an even great artist will be reminded when listening to this man, so highly favoured by fortune, that he has felt how superior to the enjoyment which merely technical mastery offers us is that presented by some artistic nature that has preserved its inward elevated freshness entire. I say this after listening to only two quartets, one by Mozart and one by Mendelssohn, in which Herr Lvov played the first violin. Mendelssohn himself was present, and seemed to think that he had perhaps never heard his music more finely played. It was a perfect enjoyment. If there are many such dilettanti in the Russian capital, many artists may learn more there than they can teach. And should these lines ever meet the eyes of this admired musician, we trust he will accept them as an expression of the thanks of many whom he delighted on that evening, and who place his name beside the most honoured names that belong to modern art.'

That a talent deserving such a eulogy as this from such a source should have been ignored by chroniclers of a later generation is a melancholy proof of the fleeting nature of the instrumentalist's reputation as compared with that of the creative artist, who can at least leave behind him some tangible evidence of his merit.

Another account of Lvov's playing, no less interesting though penned by one whose opinion was not precisely expert, is that left by Dr. A. B. Granville, Physician-in-Ordinary to H.R.H. The Duke of Clarence and member of many learned Societies, who in a Journal of Travels to and from St. Petersburgh (published in 1828) paid the following tribute to the gallant fiddler:

'St. Petersburgh has its musical clubs, and a Société Philharmonique. I think the finest dilettante violin player in Europe is to be found in the last-mentioned Society. I have not heard a more delightful amateur performer since the time when La Marchesa Pallavincini used to lead some of the largest orchestras of dilettanti in Italy on that most unsightly and anti-feminine musical instrument. The effect produced on those occasions was admirable; and so it is in the case of Colonel Lvov, whose execution is of the most brilliant description, but whose appearance in his decorated uniform, holding fiddle and bow, is scarcely less singular than that of La Marchesa used to be. I heard this officer, at one of the meetings of the members of the Philharmonic Society, perform some variations of his own composition on a national air, written in a minor key, in which it was not easy to determine whether his taste, coup d'archet, or exquisite facility was most conspicuous. The expression with which he drew the most melodious notes from his instrument was inconceivably fine.'

By the time of Berlioz's visit to St. Petersburg in 1847, Lvov had already made some little reputation as an operatic composer, and his French visitor refers to him not as a performer, but as General Lvov, aide-de-camp to the Emperor, 'a composer of rare talent.' It is possible that this judgment may have been the outcome of feelings of intense amiability towards everybody and everything at St. Petersburg. That Berlioz's 'Romeo and Juliet' was 'royally, imperially organized and performed,' and that the composer cleared twelve thousand francs at a single concert in the capital, where he found to his delight 'no wretched bargaining, no limitation of rehearsals,' seem sufficient reasons for supposing that he was in no mood to criticise the work of one who was not in any sense a rival. The memory of this visit had evidently not faded when, five years later, he wrote to Lvov from Paris. '. . . . Next month,' he says, 'I shall go back to England, where, at least, the wish to love music is real and persistent. If I can be of the least use to you in my newspaper articles, commend me, dear master. It will be a pleasure to tell our few earnest French readers of the great and good things that are done in Russia. It is a debt I shall gladly pay, since I shall never forget the warmth of my reception and the kindness of your Empress and your great Emperor's family. What a pity he himself does not like music!'

To Wagner we are indebted for the reminder that Lvov was at Dresden in 1844, a visit that probably led to the production of one of the General's operas in that city. Wagner mentions in his autobiography that Lvov shared a stage box with Spontini and Meyerbeer at a performance of 'Rienzi' 'before an audience of no ordinary importance.' 'I sought no opportunity,' he continues characteristically, 'of learning the impression made by my opera upon these learned judges and magnates of the musical world. It was enough for me to have the complacent satisfaction of knowing that they had heard my oft-repeated work performed before a crowded house and amid overwhelming applause.' He does not seem to have been any more impressed by Lvov's personal appearance than by his capacity for the due appreciation of Wagnerian music-drama, for, nearly twenty years later, when making arrangements with the General, then manager of the Grand Theatre, Moscow, for three concerts to be held there, he recorded the impression in his diary that 'in spite of the Orders hanging from his neck [Lvov] looked a very insignificant person.'

Lvov, had he had any say in the matter, would no doubt have chosen to be remembered first by his operas, then by his talent for violin-playing, and perhaps last of all by the little tune which he dedicated to so great a purpose. Circumstance and posterity have decreed otherwise. As the composer has in his memoirs given us a detailed account of the source and origin of the now famous hymn, we cannot do better than quote his own words.

'In 1833 I accompanied the Emperor Nicholas on his journeys to Prussia and Austria. On returning to Russia, I was informed by Count Benkendorff that the Sovereign had expressed a regret that we Russians possessed no national hymn: being, moreover, tired of the English tune which had been used for a stop-gap for a very long time, he commissioned me to make an attempt to write a Russian anthem.

'This momentous duty seemed likely to prove difficult of accomplishment. In recalling the British anthem, "God save the King," which is so imposing, the French song, so full of originality, and the Austrian hymn, of which the music is so touching, I felt and fully appreciated the necessity of accomplishing something which would be robust, stately, stirring, national in character, something worthy to reverberate either in a church, through the soldiers' ranks, or amongst a crowd of people, something which would appeal alike to the lettered and the ignorant. This consideration absorbed me, and I was perplexed by the problem of fulfilling all these needs.

'One night, on returning to my quarters at a very late hour, I composed and wrote out the tune of the hymn on the spur of the moment. Next day I went to Joukovsky* and asked him to suggest some words; but he was by no means musical and had a lot of trouble in adapting them to the minor close of the first cadence. Subsequently I was able to inform Count Benkendorff that the hymn was ready. The Emperor expressed a desire to hear it, and came on November 23, 1833, to the Court Chapel, accompanied by the Empress and the Grand Duke Michael. I had assembled the whole choir, and it was supported by two orchestras.

'The Sovereign ordered the hymn to be played over several times, and asked to hear it sung without accompaniment; then he had it played by each orchestra in turn, and finally with the united body of performers. His Majesty then said to me in French: "It is really superb," and there and then he commanded Count Benkendorff to inform the Minister of War that the hymn was adopted for the Army. This measure was officially ratified on December 4, 1833. The first public performance took place on December 11, at the Grand Theatre, Moscow. The Emperor was apparently desirous of submitting my work for the approval of the Moscow public. On December 25, the hymn resounded through the halls of the Winter Palace on the occasion of the blessing of the Colours.

'The Sovereign graciously presented to me a gold snuff-box adorned with diamonds, as a mark of the Imperial pleasure, and also ordered that the words "God protect the Tsar"† should be added to the armorial bearings of the Lvov family.'

ILLUSTRATIONS OF THE HISTORY OF MUSIC PRINTING IN THE LIBRARY OF MR. ALFRED H. LITTLETON.

By Jeffrey Pulver.

(Continued from January number, page 22.)

Sebastian Virdung, one of the chief sources of our knowledge of the 15th- and 16th-century musical instruments, is represented in the Littleton collection by his very rare 'Musica getutscht und aussgezogen durch Sebastianum.' This small oblong quarto, without the printer's name, produced at Bâle in 1511, is perhaps one of the most interesting and entertaining books that could fall into the hands of the musical historian. In naive fashion the author, following the then frequent custom of writing treatises in dialogue, describes the instruments then in use, and gives hints on how they were to be manipulated. Some of his remarks are exceedingly valuable to us to-day, and not a few of his personal views are very quaint and often amusing. The book is profusely illustrated, and Mr. Littleton's catalogue reproduces three of the cuts. The work is not contained in the British Museum. It will perhaps be best to mention at this point the 'Musurgia seu praxis Musicae,' by Ottomar Luscinius (Nachtgall or Nachtigall), printed by Joannes Schott, of Strasburg, in 1536. This book is a Latin translation of Virdung's work, just mentioned, and contains the same pictures.

Another writer to use Virdung's book was Martin Agricola. He re-issued the earlier work, in German verse, under the title, 'Musica instrumentalis deudsch, &c.,' in 1529 (Georg Rhaw, Wittenberg), and also copied the illustrations; these are identical, although reversed in copying. At least as much interest attaches to the writer of this work as to Virdung, for between them they are, as Riemann justly remarks, the chief authors to whom we have to go for the history of the instruments of the time. Agricola, properly Sohr or Sore (probably after his birthplace, Sorau), was born in 1486 and died in June, 1556. The issue just mentioned was the first of some half-dozen editions. Mr. Littleton's copy (1529) is complete, while the British Museum possesses but the last dozen pages of this edition. The national storehouse, however, has a copy of the edition of 1532. A reprint appeared at Leipsic in 1896. To correct a slight error prevalent in some quarters, it should be noted that the colophon of Agricola's work is dated 1529, while the Preface is 'Geben zu Magdeburg am Tage Bartholomei, 1528.'

France contributes a 'Missale secundum usum Romane Ecclesie,' a folio printed by Mathias Hus at Lyons in 1485; only the stave is printed, and the music was to be filled in by hand. Towards the middle of the 16th century Pierre Attaignant became the most popular printer in France, and his work from type is quite good, though not in any way to be compared with the productions of Petrucci at Venice so much earlier. Attaignant is represented in Mr. Littleton's collection by Claude Gervaise's 'Quart Liure contenant XXVI. Chansons, &c.' (Paris, 1550), executed from type at one printing. Another work from a Lyons press is that of Pierre Davantes—'Pseaumes de David'—in French verse (1560). This book is especially interesting, as it exhibits the system of numerical notation which Davantes claimed to have invented. The press of Pierre Ballard, which got so busy in the time of the Lully opera, is represented by a very fine set of 'Airs,' edited by Gabriel Battaile, and 'mis en Tablature de Luth.' The collection includes seven books of these airs, while the British Museum has eight; but two of the latter are from different editions, as a comparison of the dates proves: Littleton copy, Book I., 1612; Books II., III., and V., 1614; Book IV., 1613; Book VI., 1615; and Book VII., 1622; in the Museum copy, Book VII., is dated 1617, and Book VIII. 1618.

The Netherlands can also show some interesting works to illustrate the history of music printing; and especially noteworthy are the 'Souter-Liedekens' of which Dr. D. F. Scheurleer has such a fine collection.* Mr. Littleton's copy of the famous Souter-Liedekens, printed by Symon Cock, of Antwerp, in 1540, is produced in two colours, red and black, and was actually the second book to appear in the Low Countries containing music printed from type. While on the subject it will be well to note that the date given by some authors to this work is 1511, an error due to a misreading of the 'MCCCCC ende XL.' in which the L (Gothic) looks very like an I. Further interesting Netherlands publications in the collection are the 'Nederlandtsche Gedenck-Clank' by Adrian

* A well-known Russian poet. † The first line of the anthem's text.

* See Musical Times for August, 1914.

Valerius (Haarlem, 1626), with music from type, and containing lute-tablature,—an entertaining volume of hymns and songs to popular tunes, such as French Bransles, French Courantes, 'English Daphne,' Morris-Dances, &c.—and the 'Amsterdamsche Pegasus,' printed by Paulus Aertsz van Ravesteyn (Amsterdam, 1627). Jan Janszoon Starter's 'Friesche Lust-Hof, &c.' (Amsterdam, 1634) is represented by its fifth edition; the first was published in 1621, the sixth was undated, and a reprint of the latter was issued in 1864. The British Museum does not possess a copy of this 1634 edition, which is enriched by some fine etched illustrations. The Elzevir press of Amsterdam, from which so many beautiful literary works were issued, contributes the 'Antiquae Musicae' of M. Meibomus (1652).

Turning now to England we are first confronted with that most interesting and scarce work of Ranulph Higden—'Policronicon. Englysshed by Syr Johan de Trevysa'—a fine specimen of the work done by Wynkyn de Worde at Westminster in 1495. This contains 'the earliest known specimen of musical notation printed in England. In Caxton's edition of this work (1482) space is left blank for the notation to be filled in by hand.' There is only one specimen of music in this book, and that is used to illustrate a passage describing the consonances of Pythagoras. As frequently mentioned, the double-octave contains a note too much. The specimen in question is quoted by Grove (ed. 1913, iii. 325), and the whole page is reproduced in facsimile in Mr. Littleton's catalogue. The specimen was contrived by 'putting together the "quads." and "rules" used in his ordinary typographical work. Thus, by a practical application of the old adage "necessity is the mother of invention," Wynkyn de Worde really, though unconsciously, invented music-type printing; that is to say, the printing of the lines and notes at one impression.' In 1549 Robert Crowley printed 'The Psalter of David newly Translated into Englysh Metre . . . . wherunto is added a note of four partes. . . . .' The work is very rare, 'only two other copies appear to be known.' In the following year John Merbecke's epoch-making 'Booke of Common Praier noted' was issued from the press of Richard Grafton (London, 1550). It was produced by two impressions, and the lines are continuous. Quite apart from its typographical interest, this work is of great historical value, since it 'supplied a deficiency sure to have been felt throughout the country on the substitution of the English for the Latin office.' John Day (1561) produced an edition of Jan Utenhove's 'Hondert Psalmen Dauids' in Dutch rhymes, set to music printed from separate types. The work, thinks Rimbault, was 'printed for Dutch refugees.' The device of the printer, which occupies a page of the book, is reproduced in Mr. Littleton's catalogue, and contains the information 'Ghedruckt te Londen, bij Jan Daye . . . 21 Junii, 1561.' The same publisher was responsible in the following year for the issue of 'The Whole Booke of Psalmes collected into Englysh Metre by T. Starnhold, I. Hopkins, and others . . . with a Short Introduction into the Science of Musicke,' Mr. Littleton's copy being one of the three examples now known to exist. The other two are in the British Museum and the John Rylands Library at Manchester. In 1563 John Day printed 'The Whole Psalmes in foure Partes, whiche may be song to al musicall instrumentes, set forth for the encrease of vertue: and abolishyng of other vayne and trifling ballades.' This was produced from type in one impression. The work consists of four separate parts (Medius, Contra Tenor, Tenor, and Bassus), and contains sixty-one psalms and settings of the Creed, some prayers, and the Canticles. Similarly produced, and by the same printer, was the 'Mornyng and Euenyng prayer and Communion, &c.' (1565). The Littleton collection includes only the Secundus Contra-Tenor part (folio) of this, 'the earliest collection of Services and Anthems for the English Church.' The library possesses also John Day's 1565, 1567, and 1578 editions of 'The Whole Booke of Psalmes.' Interesting from a typographical point of view is 'Cantiones, quae ab argvmento sacrae vocantvr, &c.,' by Tallis and Byrd, and printed by Thomas Vautrollier in 1575. This printer, enjoying the privileges which Queen Elizabeth's patent granted to the two composers afforded him, produced some excellent type printing, this work being a particularly fine specimen for the time. Thomas East, another very popular printer of the 16th century and assignee of William Byrd, contributes this composer's 'Psalmes, Sonets and Songs of sadnes and pietie, &c.' (1588); Nicolas Yonge's 'Mvsica Transalpina,' a collected set of madrigals by various composers (1588); Byrd's 'Songs of Sundrie natures, some of grauitie, and others of myrth, fit for all companies and voyces, &c.' 1589 (slightly imperfect); Thomas Watson's 'First sett of Italian Madrigalls Englished, not to the sense of the originall dittie, but after the affection of the Noate. There are also heere inserted two excellent Madrigalls of Master William Byrds, composed after the Italian vaine, at the request of the sayd Thomas Watson' (1590); and Yonge's 'Second Booke of Madrigalles' ('Musica Transalpina,' 1597). The edition of the 'Whole Booke of Psalmes,' by Sternhold, Hopkins, and others, appearing in 1594, was from the press of John Windet (London), and this particular copy is especially interesting by being bound up 'with a Bible dated 1595, for King James I., the Royal Arms stamped on the cover. Thomas Snodham gives two works to the collection: John Ward's 'First Set of English Madrigals, &c.' (1613), containing an elegy on Prince Henry; and Robert Tailour's 'Sacred Hymns. Consisting of Fifti Select Psalms of David and others, Paraphrastically turned into English Verse' (1615); the latter has a viol and lute accompaniment in tablature. Thomas Ravenscroft's 'Whole Booke of Psalmes: with the Hymnes Evangelicall, And Songs Spiritvall,' by 'sundry Authors,' was printed 'For the Company of Stationers' (London, 1621), and a reproduction of the title-page in facsimile is given in Mr. Littleton's catalogue. And so it would be possible to go on in chronological order, mentioning such works as Butler's 'Principles of Musick' (Haviland, London, 1636), the work of which genial old John Jenkins thought so highly; the brothers Lawes' 'Choice Psalmes' (James Young, 1648), the book for which John Milton wrote a complimentary sonnet, and to which Dr. Wilson, John Taylor, John Cobb, Simon Ives, John Jenkins, John Hilton, and others contributed Elegies 'to the memory of their much respected, esteemed, friend and fellow, William Lawes, servant to his Majesty'; the 1655 edition of 'Parthenia' (from engraved plates; the first edition dated 1611 was the first 'English collection of music thus printed'), engraved by William Hole and published by John Clarke; Playford's 'Introduction to the Skill of Musick' (edition 1658, W. Godbid; and fourth edition, 1664); Christopher Simpson's 'Division Violist' (Godbid for John Playford, 1659) from engraved plates and type; he same genial and interesting violist's 'Chelys, &c.,' or bi-lingual 'Division-Viol' (second edition, folio, 1667); Thomas Mace's 'Musick's Monument, &c.' (T. Ratcliffe & N. Thompson, London, 1676); and very many other productions of the 17th-century printing-press in England.

Enough has been said, I think, to show that these books, considered in order of publication, constitute an almost unbroken record of music printing; a series of works illustrating the history of an interesting and useful art that must have afforded unbounded delight to their possessor, and incalculable instruction to those permitted to examine them. Among the latter I have the good fortune to count myself, and I should be lacking in the most elementary principles of courtesy and gratitude if I were to close this slight account without acknowledging my indebtedness to the late Mr. Alfred Littleton for his permission to inspect this collection. I also desire to thank Mr. Henry King for his valuable assistance.

THE COPYRIGHT ACT, 1911.

[1 & 2 Geo. 5 Ch. 46.]

We give below the chief provisions of this Act that affect the interests of composers and other owners of musical rights. The full text of the Act can be obtained from Wyman & Sons, Ltd. (Fetter Lane, London, E.C.), or through any bookseller at the price of 3*d.*

The Act is said to amend and consolidate the Law relating to Copyright and it is dated December 16, 1911. The matter is set out in three parts (Part I., Imperial Copyright, in twenty-eight sections; Part II., International Copyright, in two sections; and Part III., Supplemental Provisions, in seven sections).

The Act came into operation on July 1, 1912.

The following are extracts (clauses that do not affect music are omitted):

PART I.—IMPERIAL COPYRIGHT.

RIGHTS.

1.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this Act, copyright shall subsist throughout the parts of His Majesty's dominions to which this Act extends for the term hereinafter mentioned in every original literary dramatic musical and artistic work, if—

(a) In the case of a published work, the work was first published within such parts of His Majesty's dominions as aforesaid; and

(b) In the case of an unpublished work, the author was at the date of the making of the work a British subject or resident within such parts of His Majesty's dominions as aforesaid;

but in no other works, except so far as the protection conferred by this Act is extended by Orders in Council thereunder relating to self-governing dominions to which this Act does not extend and to foreign countries.

(2) For the purposes of this Act, 'copyright' means the sole right to produce or reproduce the work or any substantial part thereof in any material form whatsoever, to perform, or in the case of a lecture to deliver, the work or any substantial part thereof in public; if the work is unpublished, to publish the work or any substantial part thereof; and shall include the sole right,—

(a) To produce, reproduce, perform, or publish any translation of the work; and to authorize any such acts as aforesaid.

(b); (c); . . .

(d) In the case of a literary, dramatic, or musical work, to make any record, perforated roll, cinematograph film, or other contrivance by means of which the work may be mechanically performed or delivered.

(3) For the purposes of this Act, publication, in relation to any work, means the issue of copies of the work to the public, and does not include the performance in public of a dramatic or musical work.

INFRINGEMENT OF COPYRIGHT.

2.—(1) Copyright in a work shall be deemed to be infringed by any person who, without the consent of the owner of the copyright, does anything the sole right to do which is by this Act conferred on the owner of the copyright: Provided that the following acts shall not constitute an infringement of copyright:—

(i.) Any fair dealing with any work for the purposes of private study, research, criticism, review, or newspaper summary.

(ii.) to (vi) . . .

TERM OF COPYRIGHT.

3.—The term for which copyright shall subsist shall, except as otherwise expressly provided by this Act, be the life of the author and a period of fifty years after his death:

Provided that at any time after the expiration of twenty-five years, or in the case of a work in which copyright subsists at the passing of this Act thirty years, from the death of the author of a published work, copyright in the work shall not be deemed to be infringed by the reproduction of the work for sale if the person reproducing the work proves that he has given the prescribed notice in writing of his intention to reproduce the work, and that he has paid in the prescribed manner to, or for the benefit of, the owner of the copyright royalties in respect of all copies of the work sold by him calculated at the rate of ten per cent. on the price at which he publishes the work; and, for the purposes of this proviso, the Board of Trade may make regulations prescribing the mode in which notices are to be given, and the particulars to be given in such notices, and the mode, time, and frequency of the payment of royalties, including (if they think fit) regulations requiring payment in advance or otherwise securing the payment of royalties.

COMPULSORY LICENCES.

4.—If at any time after the death of the author of a literary, dramatic, or musical work which has been published or performed in public a complaint is made to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council that the owner of the copyright in the work has refused to republish or to allow the republication of the work or has refused to allow the performance in public of the work, and that by reason of such refusal the work is withheld from the public, the owner of the copyright may be ordered to grant a licence to reproduce the work or perform the work in public, as the case may be, on such terms and subject to such conditions as the Judicial Committee may think fit.

PROVISIONS AS TO MECHANICAL INSTRUMENTS.

19.—(1) Copyright shall subsist in records, perforated rolls, and other contrivances by means of which sounds may be mechanically reproduced, in like manner as if such contrivances were musical works, but the term of copyright shall be fifty years from the making of the original plate from which the contrivance was directly or indirectly derived, and the person who was the owner of such original plate at the time when such plate was made shall be deemed to be the author of the work, and, where such owner is a body corporate, the body corporate shall be deemed for the purposes of this Act to reside within the parts of His Majesty's dominions to which this Act extends if it has established a place of business within such parts.

(2) It shall not be deemed to be an infringement of copyright in any musical work for any person to make within the parts of His Majesty's dominions to which this Act extends records, perforated rolls, or other contrivances by means of which the work may be mechanically performed, if such person proves—

(a) That such contrivances have previously been made by, or with the consent or acquiescence of, the owner of the copyright in the work; and

(b) That he has given the prescribed notice of his intention to make the contrivances, and has paid in the prescribed manner to, or for the benefit of, the owner of the copyright in the work royalties in respect of all such contrivances sold by him, calculated at the rate hereinafter mentioned.

(3) The rate at which such royalties as aforesaid are to be calculated shall—

(a) In the case of contrivances sold within two years after the commencement of this Act by the person making the same, be two and one-half per cent.; and on the ordinary retail selling price of the contrivance calculated in the prescribed manner, so however that the royalty payable in respect of a contrivance shall in no case be less than a halfpenny for each separate musical work in which copyright subsists reproduced thereon, and, where the royalty calculated as aforesaid includes a fraction of a farthing, such fraction shall be reckoned as a farthing:

(b) In the case of contrivances sold as aforesaid after the expiration of that period, five per cent.

Provided that if at any time after the expiration of seven years from the commencement of this Act, it appears to the Board of Trade that such rate as aforesaid is no longer equitable, the Board of Trade may, after holding a public inquiry, make an order either decreasing or increasing that rate to such extent as under the circumstances may seem just, but any order so made shall be provisional only and shall not have any effect unless and until confirmed by Parliament; but, where an order revising the rate has been so made and confirmed, no further revision shall be made before the expiration of fourteen years from the date of the last revision.

(c) Notwithstanding any assignment made before the passing of this Act of the copyright in a musical work, any rights conferred by this Act in respect of the making, or authorizing the making, of contrivances by means of which the work may be mechanically performed shall belong to the author or his legal personal representatives and not to the assignee, and the royalties aforesaid shall be payable to, and for the benefit of, the author of the work or his legal personal representatives.

EXISTING WORKS.

24.—(1) Where any person is immediately before the commencement of this Act entitled to any such right in any work as is specified in the first column of the First Schedule to this Act, or to any interest in such a right, he shall, as from that date, be entitled to the substituted right set forth in the second column of that schedule, or to the same interest in such a substituted right, and to no other right or interest, and such substituted right shall subsist for the term for which it would have subsisted if this Act had been in force at the date when the work was made and the work had been one entitled to copyright thereunder:

Provided that—

(a) If the author of any work in which any such right as is specified in the first column of the First Schedule to this Act subsists at the commencement of this Act has, before that date, assigned the right or granted any interest therein for the whole term of the right, then at the date when, but for the passing of this Act, the right would have expired the substituted right conferred by this section shall, in the absence of express agreement, pass to the author of the work, and any interest therein created before the commencement of this Act and then subsisting shall determine; but the person who immediately before the date at which the right would so have expired was the owner of the right or interest shall be entitled at his option either—

(i.) On giving such notice as hereinafter mentioned, to an assignment of the right or the grant of a similar interest therein for the remainder of the term of the right for such consideration as, failing agreement, may be determined by arbitration; or

(ii.) Without any such assignment or grant, to continue to reproduce or perform the work in like manner as theretofore subject to the payment, if demanded by the author within three years after the date at which the right would have so expired, of such royalties to the author as, failing agreement, may be determined by arbitration, or, where the work is incorporated in a collective work and the owner of the right or interest is ths proprietor of that collective work, without any such payment;

The notice above referred to must be given not more than one year nor less than six months before the date at which the right would have so expired, and must be sent by registered post to the author, or, if he cannot with reasonable diligence be found, advertised in the London Gazette and in two London newspapers.

APPLICATION TO BRITISH POSSESSIONS.

25.—(1) This Act, except such of the provisions thereof as are expressly restricted to the United Kingdom, shall extend throughout His Majesty's dominions: Provided that it shall not extend to a self-governing dominion unless declared by the Legislature of that dominion to be in force therein either without any modifications or additions, or with such modifications and additions relating exclusively to procedure and remedies, or necessary to adapt this Act to the circumstances of the dominion, as may be enacted by such Legislature.

FIRST SCHEDULE.

EXISTING RIGHTS.

Existing Right.	Substituted Right.
In the case of Musical and Dramatic Works.
Both copyright and performing right.	Copyright as defined by this Act.
Copyright, but not performing right.	Copyright as defined by this Act, except the sole right to perform the work or any substantial part thereof in public.
Performing right, but not copyright.	The sole right to perform the work in public, but none of the other rights comprised in copyright as defined by this Act.

PART II.

INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT.

POWER TO EXTEND ACT TO FOREIGN WORKS.

29.—(1) His Majesty may, by Order in Council, direct that this Act (except such parts, if any, thereof as may be specified in the Order) shall apply—

(a) To works first published in a foreign country to which the Order relates, in like manner as if they were first published within the parts of His Majesty's dominions to which this Act extends;

(b) To literary, dramatic, musical, and artistic works, or any class thereof, the authors whereof were at the time of the making of the work subjects or citizens of a foreign country to which the Order relates, in like manner as if the authors were British subjects;

(c) In respect of residence in a foreign country to which the Order relates, in like manner as if such residence were residence in the parts of His Majesty's dominions to which this Act extends.

Part III.

Supplemental Provisions.

'Performance' means any acoustic representation of a work and any visual representation of any dramatic action in a work, including such a representation made by means of any mechanical instrument;

'Delivery,' in relation to a lecture, includes delivery by means of any mechanical instrument;

'Plate' includes any stereotype or other plate, stone, block, mould, matrix, transfer, or negative used or intended to be used for printing or reproducing copies of any work, and any matrix or other appliance by which records, perforated rolls or other contrivances for the acoustic representation of the work are or are intended to be made.

Church and Organ Music.

THE COMPLEAT ORGANIST.

By Harvey Grace.

(Continued from January number, page 26.)

XII.—OF HIS INSTRUMENT.

Musicus. Organicus.

Musicus.—Has it ever struck you as being odd that the instruments most sung by the poets are among the least satisfactory? Pegasus has rarely been hauled from his stable on behalf of the violin and pianoforte—two instruments as near perfection as can be. But he has had many a gallop while his rider—generally ignorant of both music and instruments—has sung himself hoarse in praise of the harp and organ. There is something to be said for the harp on the score of picturesqueness. It certainly beats all other instruments in an appeal to the eye. When the ear is concerned, however, a very few minutes of its tinkling is enough to satisfy. The organ has nothing in its appearance to commend it to the lover of the beautiful. You may deck it with carven wood, add gilded angels blowing something between a Bach trumpet and a post-horn, arrange dummy pipes in nice gradation, with other delights. But these things are not the instrument. They are merely trimmings. Behind them all is a monstrous collection of pipes and machinery. If there is a detached console, it looks for all the world like a harmonium afflicted with dropsy.

Organicus.—May I——

Musicus.—You may—later. What a ghastly compromise your organ is! A menagerie!—a collection of effects and devices many of which will not bear inquiring into—a gigantic box of mystery—the sausage of musical instruments! For example, you have a stop called 'Vox humana.' Why, my dear fellow, if you or I or anybody else got up on our hind legs in public and emitted sounds like it, we should receive what I believe is known in the more plebeian houses of entertainment as 'the bird.' Then you have also a 'Voix celeste.' We can say nothing as to the correctness of the name, because none have heard a celestial voice—a fact which makes the choice of name even more absurd. You might as reasonably call a stop 'Voix de fée.' Fairies, however, being hopelessly pagan, can hardly look to be so honoured. Moreover, you generally get this 'celestial' effect by using two stops purposely out of tune with one another! Why not extend the idea to the choir-stalls? You want to give your congregation a taste of celestial music. Very well. All you have to do is to turn on a couple of solo-boys, one of them singing slightly sharp. But you don't. The only effects of the kind in your choir are unrehearsed, and lead to trouble when you next meet the culprits. Then you have your mixtures—an abomination, if ever there was one. You take delicate harmonics, and exaggerate them out of all proportion by making little tin whistles to sound them. Also you make one stop do duty under different names, using it on one manual under one name, and borrowing it for another manual and calling it something else. Your motley army of pipes is a fearful compromise in the matter of tuning. I believe that if some of you organists heard a passage played in the pure scale you would find it objectionable, forgetting that the fault is in your vitiated ears. Further, in a big modern organ, how rare it is to hear passages for full organ sound like anything but a hopeless muddle! Old Haydn, had he lived to-day, need not have been at the pains to compose his extremely mild 'Representation of chaos.' He would have saved time, and been more convincing, had he written some rapid passage-work and directed it to be played full organ with all couplers.

Organicus.—But—

Musicus.—Exactly! You are going to point out that the fault occasionally lies with the player. This is true, I admit. It is also sometimes the fault of the composer, who writes 'Full organ' over many a passage that would be more effective with half the stops. For example, you are playing a rapid pedal solo. 'Full pedal organ,' says the composer. So you shoot out all your pedal stops, and start on your mad career. Now, your full pedal includes a 32-ft., a heavy booming 16-ft. open, and a hoarse 16-ft. reed. Your other pedal stops, and those on the manuals played through your couplers, back you up loyally enough. But how many of the semiquavers do the bigger pipes of your heaviest pedal stops give? Listen carefully, and you will hear intermittent hoarse noises—spasmodic coughs from the underworld, as of some monster in pain. Why don't your players reserve these slow-speaking heavy stops for suitable passages? I admit their effectiveness when holding on some long, relentless pedal-point, or for delivering a grandly-stalking cantus firmus. What composer for the orchestra ever gave his tuba and bass-trombone rapid passages in unison with the bass strings? Even the 16-ft. tone of the strings is rarely called upon for a sprint, save for special effects. Do you suppose that Beethoven would have used the double-basses for the giving out of the fughetta subject in the Scherzo of the C minor Symphony if he had wished the passage to be clear and the effect purely musical? Not a bit of it! Why do audiences smile at the elephantine capers of the basses at this point? Either Beethoven meant to make them smile with one of his rough jokes, or he made a miscalculation. I think we know our Beethoven well enough to decide which is the case. Yet you organists play pedal passages—not quite so rapid as the Beethoven passage, I admit, but too quick for clear effect—with your most lumbering stops drawn, and seriously think the effect is satisfactory. Similarly, you play a presto passage on your full Great, with full Swell, coupled, which means that doubles and reeds are included. This is pretty much as if an orchestral composer should direct all the strings, wood-wind, and brass to play a brilliant cadenza in unison!

Organicus.—It seems to me——

Musicus.—Let me edge in a word or two! Is there anything in musical terminology more absurd than your haphazard collection of stop-names? You have odds and ends of half-a-dozen languages, and many of the titles are absolute misnomers. For instance, the stop that you call Horn, and with which some of you play passages in transcriptions that are in the original played by the horn of the orchestra, is not at all like the real thing. Some of your flue stops can be used as very fair imitations of the orchestral horn, so of course you call them various kinds of diapasons. Your oboe is merely a milder form of your so-called horn, and is not a bit like the orchestral one. The stop that goes nearest to giving us the real 'tang' of an oboe is usually what you call a Gamba—which of course is a name borrowed from the old string family. The piccolo of the orchestra sounds an octave higher than its big brother the flute. Your corresponding stop you call a Flute 4-ft., and your piccolo sounds two octaves higher than the real flute. Perhaps as a result of our present (possibly fleeting) preference for English things, including language, we may find the organ specification of the future couched in our own tongue. I amused myself the other day by drawing up a list of stops in your usual linguistic muddle (for instance, you frequently find Flöte, Flauto, and Flute in the same specification!), afterwards giving a literal English version. Here it is:

Geigen.	Gemshorn.
Clarabella.	Waldflöte.
Hohl-flöte.	Quint.
Dulciana.	Contra Gamba.
Sesquialtera.	Tuba mirabilis.
Flauto traverso.	Gedackt.
Lieblich Gedacht.	Salicet.
Vox humana.	Suabe Flöte.
Unda maris.	Flautina.
Bourdon.	Contra fagotto.
Rohrflöte.	Vox Angelica.
Voix celestes.	Cor de nuit.
Hautboy.	Piccolo.
Lieblich Bourdon.	Tibia plena.
Viola da Gamba.

How many of our builders dare use these titles in a tongue understanded of the people? Here they are, in their proper order:

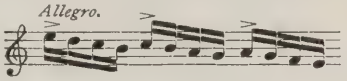
Fiddle.	Chamois horn.
Clear-beautiful.	Wood flute.
Hollow flute.	Fifth.
Sweet.	Double knee.
Whole and half another (!)	Wonderful trumpet.
	Closed.
Cross flute.	Little willow.
Lovely closed.	Swabian flute.
Human voice.	Little flute.
Wave of the sea.	Double faggot.
Burden.	Angelic voice.
Reed flute.	Night horn.
Celestial voice.	Little.
Highwood.	Full bone.
Lovely burden.
Knee violin.

There's a medley for you! And of all of them the funniest is perhaps your 'Unda Maris.' Where was your sense of humour when you called your ridiculous trembling effect 'Wave of the sea'? 'Wave in a teacup' would be nearer the mark!

However, leaving this amusing side of your alleged musical instrument, what of it as regards dynamics? To begin with, you have no means of obtaining accent. I laugh when I see composers of organ music peppering their pages with sforzando marks. And, mind you, they don't merely mean a touch on the swell-pedal (of which monstrosity I shall have somewhat to say anon). This is proved by the fact that such marks often occur when both feet are engaged in pedalling. Moreover, we often meet with an accent mark over one note, played on the same manual as others not so marked. How can it be done?

Organicus.—We——

Musicus.—Yes, I know how you organists fondly imagine you get over the difficulty. You think that by lengthening your accented notes, and taking a bit off the less important ones, you give us a satisfactory substitute. The method is fairly successful in passages where the rate of movement is slow, but how when it is rapid? Compare your performance of such a phrase as:



with that of a violinist or pianist. Not only can you give no real accent; you cannot obtain a crescendo. You may thrust out a hoof and put in action some more or less clumsy mechanism by means of which you open some shutters, and let out more sound—which is not the same thing at all. A good crescendo by a voice or any other wind instrument—any wind instrument, that is, but yours—gives the hearer not only more sound, but an impression of growing intensity as well. The motive power—air—is under the control of the performer, and the pressure can be varied. But you have no control over your wind supply, and your alleged crescendo by means of opening the swell is a poor thing because it is so obviously a cheap 'fake.' When you build your organ you intern what is often nowadays the finest part of your instrument in a huge wooden box. You make it as soundproof as you can, and when the composer demands a crescendo you dole out the noise. Even then, with all your care, your swell doesn't play the game, for the first inch or so of opening the shutters produces as much effect as all the other inches together, so you have 'shot your bolt' too early to get any prolonged cumulative effect. Your diminuendo is of course as great a failure. Just as you have to prepare for your crescendo by entombing half your organ, so in playing you have to get ready for your diminuendo by opening your swell.

Organicus.—But——

Musicus.—That's a delusion. You were about to argue that you can get your increase and decrease of tone by means of stops. I admit that by drawing or pushing in stops you make more or less noise, but the sound comes on in chunks, and goes off in the same way. Even the German 'Rollschweller' is only a modified success, though it is sufficiently good to deserve more general adoption in this country. Of course when you play on your Great or Choir alone your tone is absolutely fixed and level—and the joke is that some of you pretend to like it! Would you like a voice or a pianoforte or any other instrument to possess the same virtue? Besides, if it is a virtue in your Great and Choir, why make your Swell vicious by enclosing it? Then your tremulant! You think you can reproduce the almost imperceptible wave which a good voice discovers in moments of emotion, and you set about this impossible task by creating a commotion in the swell-box with a fan! My dear fellow, when I sing I can get a better tremulant than that by playing five-finger exercises on my Adam's apple!

What an instrument! Apply some of its methods to other branches of executive music—the choral, for example. Behold in your mind's eye the Royal Choral Society. Before they commence to sing, the members draw on a diver's helmet. Why? They must prepare for crescendos by enclosing the sound. They must be able to see the conductor, so obviously a diver's helmet is the only wear. A crescendo is demanded, Sir Frederick signifying the same in the usual manner. Two thousand little trap-doors open at the top of as many helmets, and a thrilling effect is the result. Observe, too, that when the sound goes out the air comes in, and the choir goes on its way refreshed and rejoicing. (Over what happened on one occasion when a thoughtless composer demanded six consecutive pages of pianissimo singing let us draw a veil. In vain did Sir Frederick 'Sh-sh-sh!' —some unfortunate member was constantly coming to the surface for air!)

Organicus.—Look here, if you call this sort of thing argument——

Musicus.—Keep your eye on the Royal Choral! A crescendo lasting over several pages is desired. This is more than the helmet-shutters can manage. So the first step is to reduce the choir. This is done by silencing all the singers save the Montmorencys, De Veres, Marchbanks, and Chumleys. The remaining clans are added in accordance with the accession of strength required. For a slight addition the ffoulkes, Mortimers, or Standishes are sufficient. For a sudden burst the Jones's, Browns, or Robinsons are called on, while for the final crash (corresponding to your coupling of Solo to Great) the Smiths step into the breach, with what effect you may imagine. To see Sir Frederick haling these families in and setting them to work is one of the joys of London life. But see! a soloist rises, and begins to sing. There is a demand for emotional display in the second page of his song. He raises a superlatively manicured hand, and with a couple of fingers beats a light tattoo on his throat. The effect is magical. As the liquid, trembling notes steal over the vast hall, women silently weep, and strong men sniff and draw their sleeve across their brow. Even the timpanist, a hard man not easily moved, especially when, as now, he has 72 bars rest to count, blows his nose with stifled ferocity, the tuba-player thereby incurring in next morning's Daily Semaphore a rebuke for a wrong entry.

Returning to the choir for a moment, you will of course understand that prolonged diminuendos are managed by inverting the crescendo arrangements. The Smiths are first to be dismissed, and finally the Chumleys and Marchbanks are left in sole possession.

Ridiculous? Of course it is. But these are your own methods at the organ.

Finally—for I observe signs of impatience—can you wonder that decent composers refuse to touch your uncouth monster with a barge-pole? I was talking recently to one of the cleverest of our English composers, and asked him why he never wrote for the organ, although he played it. He replied, 'When I write for pianoforte I know what I am writing for, since one pianoforte is pretty much like another. I am also on safe ground in dealing with strings, and when I write for orchestra I say what instruments I require, and I know that they will be forthcoming. But when I write for the organ I may be writing for anything, since there is no standard. There is the Albert Hall organ on the one hand, and the box of whistles at a village church on the other. You may as well call a flea and an elephant by the same name, and ask a saddler to fit 'em both from the same pattern.'

Organicus.—Now, if you're quite finished, perhaps I may be permitted to say something on behalf of the defence. I fancy it will not be difficult to show that many of your objections have the slenderest of foundations. And—before I get to work—apropos the Anglicising of stop-names, since you object to our use of fragments of foreign tongues, I hope you will practise what you preach.

Musicus.—How?

Organicus.—When next your pianoforte needs the tuner's attention, you will of course send him a card, asking him to come and tune your 'soft-loud!'

(To be continued.)

THE ORGAN IN THE CENTENARY HALL, BRESLAU.

By Ernest E. Adcock.

The inauguration of the giant organ in St. Michael's Church at Hamburg, and the publication of the great Liverpool Cathedral scheme (Musical Times, January, 1913), caused no small stir and controversy in the organ-building world, and now we have to record the erection of an even larger instrument in the 'Jahrhunderthalle' at Breslau. The two first-named organs have 163 and 167 speaking-stops respectively, but the Breslau organ boasts a total of 187.

The builders of the new organ are the well-known firm of Wilhelm Sauer of Frankfort-on-Oder, the present proprietor of which is Herr Paul Walcker, a son of Eberhard Friedrich Walcker, one of the founders of the famous Ludwigsburg firm. Herr Walcker appears, therefore, to have a splendid opportunity of combining the excellence and traditions of the Sauer and Walcker houses. The following is a short list of the largest organs turned out by the Frankfort firm:

			Speaking-stops.
Breslau	...	Jahrhunderthalle	187
Berlin	...	Cathedral	113
,,	...	Kaiser Wilhelm Memorial Church	94
Leipsic	...	St. Nicholas's Church	94
Jena	...	St. Michael's Church	94
Leipsic	...	St. Thomas's Church	88
Wesel	...	St. Willibrord's Church	80

The specification of the Centenary Hall organ was drawn up by Herr Karl Straube, organist at St. Thomas's Church, Leipsic, who holds the position once occupied by the immortal Bach. The building of the instrument possibly creates a record for rapidity of construction, for the work occupied only ten months. The order was placed in November, 1912. By March, 1913, the first portions were despatched to Breslau; and the inauguration of the completed organ took place on October 5.

The Hall which contains this huge instrument is an amphitheatre capable of seating about 5,000 persons, and is said to be the largest auditorium in Germany that is set apart for music. It was erected to commemorate the defeat of Napoleon by the Nations at Leipsic in 1813.

The action of the organ is electric, the power for which is supplied by a motor and accumulating battery, which are from the workshops of P. Hardeger & Co., of Berlin. Wind is supplied to the main organ by an electric motor of 12 H.P., and to the Echo organ by one of 1½ H.P. Both of these were installed by Pollrich & Co., of Leipsic—a firm which apparently does a great deal of this class of work.

The Echo Organ (Fernwerk) is played from Manual V., and is placed in an elevated position at a distance of 80 metres (about 260 ft.) from the main organ. The cable which connects it with the console, however, is 360 metres (1,180 ft.) in length. The Echo Organ, it will be observed, possesses 31 speaking stops, 23 of which are assigned to the manual, and eight to an independent pedal. It is therefore a complete organ in itself.

It should also be noted that all the stops of Manual IV. are borrowed upon either Manual I. or Manual II.; so that although there appear to be 200 speaking-stops in the organ, there are in reality only 187.

As will be seen from the illustration, the case is exceedingly plain, and one is forced to express the opinion that the authorities would have been better advised to have made their organ of smaller dimensions, and thus have had sufficient funds to provide a more artistic exterior. Had the front only been relieved by a judicious mixture of semi-circular and V-shaped towers of pipes, much would have been gained in dignity. As it is, owing to the almost uniform length of the front pipes, and the deadly dull flatness of the centre, the case does not present an imposing appearance. There is a good deal of truth in the saying that the eye can assist the ear, or at least the reverse is true that what troubles the eye may also trouble the ear.

BOSTON PUBLIC LIBRARY

The illustration of the console shows that, as is usual in modern German organs, stop-keys are used instead of draw-knobs. For those who are fond of figures a list of the console fittings is here given :

	No.
Stop-keys	203 (white).
Couplers	26 (black, at top of console).
Drückknopfe (pistons)	156
Free combination pistons ..	911
Composition and other pedals	30

The free combination pistons are to be found in a double row above the white stop-keys on both sides of the console, and in addition to these there are, of course, the ordinary pistons below the manuals, as well as the composition pedals.

The stops of Manuals II., III., IV. and V. are all placed in swell-boxes, but apparently none of the Pedal pipes are enclosed except those belonging to Manual V.

For purposes of comparison a short table is appended, so that readers may draw their own conclusions as to the power, size, &c., of the Breslau, Liverpool, and Hamburg organs :

	No. of Speaking Stops.	Pipes.	Reed Stops.	Ranks of Mixture.	Pipes in Mixture Ranks.	Highest Wind Pressure.
Breslau	187	15,133	35	*c.100	5,754	8-in.
Liverpool	167	10,567	52	37	2,025	50-in.
Hamburg	163	12,173	29	*c.65	4,022	7½-in.

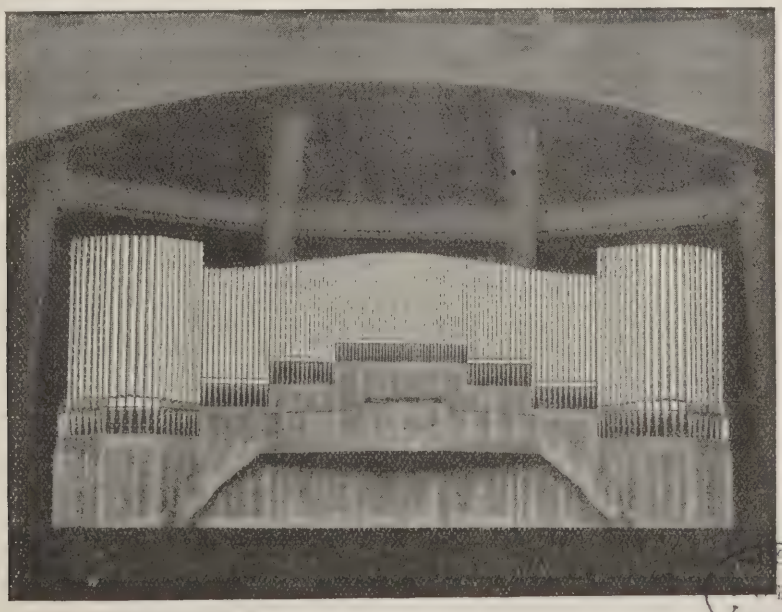
* It is a little difficult to count ranks in these organs, as some of the Mixtures are of 3 to 5 ranks, 7 to 9 ranks, &c., &c.



BOSTON PUBLIC LIBRARY

SPECIFICATION.

MANUAL I.—(42 stops.)

	Feet.		Feet.
Prinzipal	16	Violini	4
†Majorbass	16	Viol d'amour	4
Gedeckt	16	Gedecktquinte	5⅓
Prinzipal	16	Quinte	2⅔
Geigenprinzipal	8	†*Pikkolo	2
Prinzipal Amabile	8	Oktave	2
Viola di Gamba	8	Rauschquinte	2⅔ and 2
†*Stentorgamba	8	Progressiv	3 to 4 ranks.
Harmonika	8	Gross Cymbel	5 to 6 ,,
Doppelflöte	8	Scharf	3 ,,
Flûte harmonique	8	Mixtur	3 to 4 ,,
Flauto dolce	8	Mixtur	4 to 5 ,,
Spitzflöte	8	Gross-Mixtur	7 to 9 ,,
Gedeckt	8	Kornett	5 ,,
Gemshorn	8	Posaune	16
Quintatön	8	†*Tuba mirabilis	8
†*Gross-Oktave	4	Basson	8
Oktave	4	Trompete	8
Flûte Octaviante	4	†*Oboe	8
Gemshorn	4	†*Clairon	4
Rohrflöte	4	Clarine	4

MANUAL II.—(40 stops.)

(In a Swell-box.)

	Feet.		Feet.
Gamba Major	16	Dolce	4
Quintatön	16	Quintatön	4
†*Stentorprinzipal	8	†*Flûte Octaviante	4
Prinzipal	8	Quinte	2⅔
Schalmei	8	Sesquialter, 2 ranks.
Viola	8	Pikkolo	2
†*Stentorflöte	8	Mixtur	3 ranks.
Flûte Harmonique	8	Kornett	4 ,,
Soloflöte	8	*†Gross-Kornett	3 to 5 ,,
Quintatön	8	Cymbel	3 ,,
Flauto dolce	8	Scharf	5 ,,
Dulciana	8	†*Bombarde	16
Geigenprinzipal	8	Basson	16
Flötenprinzipal	8	Posaune	8
Bourdon	8	†*Trompete	8
Harmonika	8	Cor Anglais	8
Vox Angelica	8	Klarinette	8
Oktave	4	Clairon	4
Jubalflöte	4	Glockenspiel (30 notes).
Fugara	4	Pizzicato for Glockenspiel.
Zartflöte	4

MANUAL III.—(41 stops.)

(In a Swell-box.)

	Feet.		Feet.
Nachthorn	16	Flûte d'amour	4
Salizional	16	Bifra	8
Prinzipal	8	Dulciana	4
Flötenprinzipal	8	Gemshorn	4
Geigenprinzipal	8	Flautino	2
Nachthorn	8	Sifflöte	1
Jubalflöte	8	Nassat	2⅔
Quintatön	8	Rauschquinte	2 ranks.
Spitzflöte	8	Harmonia aetheria	3 ,,
Violoncello	8	Kornett,	5 ,,
Wienerflöte	8	Mixtur	4 ,,
Flûte d'Amour	8	Scharf	3 ,,
Gedeckt	8	Cymbel	4 ,,
Gemshorn	8	Gross-Cymbel	7 ,,
Salizional	8	Fagott	16
Aeoline	8	Trompete harmonique	8
Voix céleste	8	Oboe	8
Praestant	4	Klarinette	8
Nachthorn	4	Vox humana	8
Rohrflöte	4	Trompete	4
Violini	4	Tremulant to Vox humana.

MANUAL IV.—(13 stops.)

(In a Swell-box.)

	Feet.		Feet.
Majorbass	16	*Gross-Kornett, 3 to 5 ranks.
*Stentorprinzipal	8	*Bombarde	16
*Stentorgamba	8	*Tuba mirabilis	8
*Stentorflöte	8	*Trompete	8
*Oktave	8	*Oboe	8
*Flûte octaviante	4	*Clarino	4
*Pikkolo (2 ranks)	2

MANUAL V. (Echo.)—(23 stops.)

(In a Swell-box.)

	Feet.		Feet.
Dulciana	16	Flageolett	2
Bourdon	16	Mixtur	3 ranks.
Prinzipal	8	Kornett	3 to 4 ,,
Hohlflöte	8	Basstuba	16
Viola di Gamba	8	Tuba	8
Aeoline	8	Trompete	8
Voix céleste	8	Basson	8
Quintatön	8	Klarinette	8
Flûte harmonique	8	Vox humana	8
Gedeckt	8	Tremulant to Vox humana.
Oktave	4	Clarine	4
Flauto dolce	4	Glockenspiel (25 notes).

PEDAL.—(33 stops.)

	Feet.		Feet.
Prinzipal	32	Dulziana	8
Kontraviolon	32	Quinte	5⅓
Untersatz	32	Gross Rauschquinte, 2 ranks.
*Kontrabass	16	*Oktave	4
Prinzipal	16	Spitzflöte	4
Violon	16	Fugara	4
Subbass	16	Sesquialter, 2 ranks.
Gemshorn	16	Oktave	2
Harmonikabass	16	Kornett, 4 to 5 ranks.
Lieblich Gedeckt	16	Kontraposaune	32
Quintbass	10⅔	Posaune	16
Prinzipal	8	Fagott	16
Oktavbass	8	Trompete	8
Violoncello	8	Ophikleide	8
Gemshorn	8	Bassklarinette	8
Flötenbass	8	Clairon	4
Gedecktbass	8

PEDAL TO ECHO ORGAN.—(8 stops.)

(Enclosed.)

	Feet.		Feet.
Violon	16	Bassflöte	8
Subbass	16	Dolce	8
Dolce	16	Trompete	8
Viola	8	Oktave	4

COUPLERS, ETC.

Man. II. to Man. I.	Man. V. to Pedal
,, III. to ,, I.	,, V. Super
,, IV. to ,, I.	,, V. Sub
,, V. to ,, I.	,, IV. Super
,, III. to ,, II.	,, IV. Sub
,, IV. to ,, II.	,, III. Super
,, V. to ,, II.	,, III. Sub
,, IV. to ,, III.	,, III. to II. Super
,, V. to ,, III.	,, III. to II. Sub
,, I. to Pedal	,, II. to I. Super
,, II. to Pedal	,, II. to I. Sub
,, III. to Pedal	Pedal super
,, IV. to Pedal	Rollschweller to Man. I., II., and III.

Compass—Manuals, 61 notes. Pedal, 32 notes with extra pipes for super-octave coupler.

* On heavy wind. † By transmission from Manual IV.

Many combinations can be brought on by the composition pedals, and the fixed pistons between the manuals, but it must suffice here to say that they provide p, mf, f, and tutti combinations for each department, and for the organ as a whole. Beside the above there are also such combinations as Manual I. Flutes, Manual II. Reeds, &c., &c., and over and above these there are the 911 free combination pistons. It is also to be noted that many of the couplers can be brought on, not only by touching the black stop-keys, but also by pistons and composition pedals.

How long will the people of Breslau be allowed to enjoy the very doubtful honour of possessing the largest organ in the world? Probably not for long; for the 'megalomaniacs' (a favourite word of the late Mr. Thomas Casson) in America apparently do not intend to allow themselves to be beaten. Doubtless many readers are already aware that the great St. Louis Exhibition organ was purchased by Mr. John Wanamaker, and placed in the court of his vast Philadelphia store. We are informed that it is proposed to add forty-five stops to this instrument, thus bringing the total number of speaking stops to 185. This was decided upon before the dimensions of the Breslau organ were properly known, and a matter of a few more stops is hardly likely to be a hindrance to still further enlargement. Even so, unless more than 5,000 pipes are added to the present total of Wanamaker's organ, its claim to be the largest will be disputed. Therefore one asks 'Cui bono?' Most people will agree that perfection of tone and construction, and a pleasing exterior, are far higher ideals to be aimed at than mere size. Moreover, a total of about 100 speaking stops seems ample, even for a concert organ. A greater number involves many useless duplications, and consequently money spent in that direction is sheer waste.

For information respecting the organ under notice, the writer is indebted to a profusely illustrated brochure entitled 'Die Riesen Orgel von Breslau,' published by the builders of the instrument.

Brahms's 'Requiem' was sung by Bromley Choral Society at Bromley Parish Church on December 15, under the conductorship of Mr. Frederic Fertel. Accompaniment was supplied by a string orchestra, organ (Mr. P. S. Hodsoll), pianoforte (Mr. F. Wilkins), and drums. The soloists were Miss Dora Mason and Mr. Joseph Farrington.

At Skelmorlie Parish Church on January 11 a recital in aid of the Belgian Relief Fund was given by Mr. Arthur S. Manfield (organ), Madame Verbrugghen (vocalist), and Mr. Henri Verbrugghen (violin), with Miss Ailie Cullen as accompanist. The chief organ work in the programme was Bach's Prelude and Fugue in B minor.

At the Church of Notre Dame de France, Leicester Square, London, during the Christmas services, a motet 'Chœur de Noel,' by the late Jean Neymarck, of Paris, was given for the first time. We understand that a Mass by the same composer is also to be given.

The following carols were sung, after the evening service on January 3, at Pegent Square Presbyterian Church: 'Noel' (F. A. Docker), 'Morning dawns, the flocks are feeding' (Davan Wetton), 'Immanuel, Babe of Bethlehem' (Allan Brown), and, with carillon accompaniment, 'Sweet Christmas Bells' (Stainer), 'Come, ye people, hasten near' (Wetton), and Bell Carol (Pearce). Mr. L. T. Ellis Webb was at the organ, Mr. E. E. Withall at the carillon, and Mr. Allan Brown conducted.

Haydn's first Mass in B flat and Rossini's Stabat Mater were given at Salem Baptist Church, Porth, South Wales, on Christmas Day, 1914. Mr. Rhys Evans conducted, and a small orchestra, supported at the organ by Dr. T. D. Edwards, organist of Treharris Baptist Church, supplied accompaniment. The vocalists were Miss Blodwen Lloyd, Madame Winifred Lewis, Mr. Gwynne Davies, and Mr. Ivor Foster.

Part 1 of 'Messiah' and the two concluding choruses were sung by the choir at Halifax Place Chapel, Nottingham, on December 20, under the direction of Mr. E. M. Barber. The soloists were Miss Emmie Warner, Madame Ethel Parkin, Mr. J. Franklin Pearson, and Mr. Thomas Stoton. Mr. C. E. Blyton Dobson was at the organ.

ORGAN RECITALS.

Mr. Herbert Hodge, St. Nicholas Cole Abbey, Queen Victoria Street, E.C.—Fantasy Prelude, Charles Macpherson.

Mr. Percy J. Fry, the Minster, Warminster—Sonata in D minor, J. Lemmens.

Mr. H. C. Tonking, Royal Albert Hall—Fantasia in F, Best.

Mr. T. A. Aldridge, Harlesden Parish Church—Fantasia and Fugue, Brosig.

Mr. Allan Brown, the Leysian Hall, City Road—Phantasy on the National Anthems of the Allies, Pearce.

Mr. Henry Coleman, Guildhall, Londonderry—Toccata and Fugue in D minor, Bach.

Mr. F. A. Mouré, University of Toronto—Fantaisie Polonaise, Novoviejski.

Mr. Claude A. Forster, St. John's Church, Forfar—Concert Overture in C major, Hollins.

Mr. Matthew Kingston, St. Magnus-the-Martyr, London Bridge—Capriccio, 'Fairyland,' Capocci.

Mr. Paul Rochard, St. Peter's Church, Loughborough—Grand Chœur in D major, Guilmant.

Mr. J. A. Meale, Wesleyan Central Hall, Westminster—Overture in E minor and major, Morandi.

Mr. J. W. Y. Bannard, Church of St. Bartholomew, Greens Norton—Prelude and Fugue in D minor, Bach.

Mr. William H. Dawes, Nazeing Parish Church—Grand Chœur, No. 2, Hollins.

Mr. C. E. Blyton Dobson, Central Mission, Halifax Place, Nottingham—Allegro vivace in D, Speer.

Mr. Allan Brown, Old Ford Wesleyan Mission, London—Grand Offertoire in D, Batiste.

Mr. Herbert F. Ellingford, St. George's Hall, Liverpool—Finale from C minor Sonata, Reubke.

Mr. W. Lynwood Farnam, Harvard Club, Boston—Chaconne and Fugue Trilogy with Choral, Op. 73, Karg-Elert.

Mr. J. Charles Maclean, Tabernacle Chapel, Powell Street, Aberystwyth—Commemoration March, John E. West.

Mr. Jesse A. Longfield, St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Victoria, B.C.—Second Sonata, Mendelssohn.

Mr. Herbert Hodge, St. Stephen's, Walbrook, London—Prelude and Fugue on the name 'Bach,' Liszt.

Mr. J. W. Aldridge, St. Stephen's, Seaton Delaval—Sonata on the 94th Psalm, Reubke.

Mr. G. Bernard Gilbert, Town Hall, Stratford—Sketch in F sharp minor, E. T. Chipp.

APPOINTMENTS.

Mr. William H. Evans, organist and choirmaster, All Saints' Church, Hampton-on-Thames.

Mr. W. F. Jenkins, organist and choirmaster, North Finchley Baptist Church, London.

Reviews.

SONGS.

A Vignette. By Cyril B. Rootham.

The Wake Feast. By Hamilton Harty.

[Novello & Co., Ltd.]

Dr. Cyril Rootham again gives us an example of the best song-writing. In 'A Vignette' he makes himself one with the poet (Robert Bridges), and earns the rare praise that the poem loses nothing in the composer's hands. The lines 'Among the meadows lightly going, With worship and joy my heart o'erflowing,' express in ten couplets a single graceful thought; the composer finds a simple melodic phrase (it speaks as do some folk-song melodies) to suggest in music the simple faith that runs through the poet's words, and on this he builds a one-idea song—a simple psychological moment in music, where many composers would be tempted to make a little drama or a display of fine imagination, with the words as a mere framework. There is a gentle rise and fall of emotion, abundant modulation, and musicianly procedure, but the music never departs from its theme, or takes matters into its own hands. 'A Vignette' is not a momentous song, but it perfectly represents an ideal that composers so often forget in their zeal, or vanity—the perfect fitting of the verbal and musical pictures. The range of the song suits a low voice; the accompanist will meet with no difficulty.

Mr. Hamilton Harty's 'The Wake Feast' (bearing the sub-title 'A young girl dead') has the same thoughtful quality. Here more emotional licence is permitted in the presence of tragedy (Alice Milligan's poem 'Man of the house, soft-hearted with your sorrow'), but the composer does not give way to frenzy. His music lends the right warmth and varying intensity to a young man's outburst of confession and sorrow. Mr. Harty shows the same care in his verbal accentuation. The song, in fact, is one of the best type, and will repay the attention of artists (baritone or contralto) who sing with brain as well as voice.

Epilogue. By Harvey Grace. (Recital series of original compositions for the Organ, No. 46)

Festal Prelude. By Alec Rowley. Original Compositions for the Organ (New Series), No. 36.

The Latin Organist. Edited by Samuel Gregory Ould. Book II.

[Novello & Co., Ltd.]

Mr. Harvey Grace's 'Epilogue' is music worthy of the instrument for which it is written. It is a thoughtful, musicianly work that should appeal to organists ('compleat' or otherwise) and their hearers. Its seriousness is unbroken, but it does not tend to severity. The dignified phrases of the broad opening of the theme of the fugal section sound a human note which is intensified by some chromatic warmth in the harmonies. The piece opens with two pages of well-connected melody over a strongly moving bass. The fugal statement in A major boldly intrudes an E natural after a full close in D flat major. Its theme is taken from the opening music, and a fugal episode is used to lead back without a break to the resumption. A highly effective Coda is made by developing the principal phrases of the work as a choral-vorspiel accompaniment to 'St. Anne.' The D for E in the twelfth bar of page 3 is a misprint that should be self-evident.

Mr. Alec Rowley's 'Festal Prelude' is a very vigorous piece of music, abounding in bold diatonic passages, and with an effective mixture of chordal and scale work. The tuneful middle section is an excellent foil to the rugged main theme, which by the way is not the less festive for being in a minor key. The Prelude, which is only moderately difficult, would serve equally as a postlude or recital item.

'The Latin Organist' aims at supplying music suitable for performance in the Roman Church—music, that is, in the spirit of the Papal rescript issued in 1903. Book II. contains Bach's short Prelude on 'Tonus Peregrinus,' a Prelude on 'Et in terra pax' by that old worthy, Georg Böhm, a Meditation on 'Pange Lingua' by Dr. F. E. Gladstone, a solemn Fughetta on the intonation to the Creed by Dr. C. W. Pearce, and six short Processional verses on 'Pange Lingua,' by William Sewell. All the music is of excellent quality, and as the various themes are familiar to members of the Church of England, the book might well appeal to a wider public than the compiler had in view.

School of Velocity. For Pianoforte. By Charles Czerny, Op. 299. Edition Novello, No. 18.

Gradus ad Parnassum. For Pianoforte. By Muzio Clementi. Edition Novello, No. 15.

Études. For Pianoforte. By J. B. Cramer. Edition Novello, No. 16.

[Novello & Co., Ltd.]

Not merely from a patriotic view will music-teachers welcome the opportune issue in a new English edition of three sets of famous Pianoforte Studies. The works are so clearly printed and excellently edited by Mr. Franklin Taylor that they should at once rank as the standard teaching edition. Taking them in the order of degree of difficulty we have first the ever-green School of Velocity ('École de la Vélocité'), by Czerny. Thirty Studies have been selected from the above, issued in one book, price 2*s.* 6*d.* complete, or in three separate books, price 1*s.* each. Next come twenty-four Studies selected from Clementi's celebrated 'Gradus ad Parnassum,' also in one volume, price 3*s.* net, or in four books, each 1*s.* Finally, we have Fifty-six selected Studies by J. B. Cramer, in one volume, 4*s.* net, or in five books, each 1*s.* net.

It is a sign of the times that the titles and prices are given both in English and French, likewise the keys. The editor has revised the fingering where necessary; but he appears mostly to have adhered to the original. This is wise; some of the fantastic alterations recently given in certain foreign editions may appeal to a few here and there; but probably the majority of teachers have not welcomed them. Needless to say the Universal Fingering, 1 2 3 4 5, has been retained; to publish English pianoforte music with the erroneously so-called 'English Fingering' would absolutely debar it from circulation in any other country whatsoever. This fact alone should suffice to make patriotic music-teachers fall in line with their co-workers all the world over. It only remains to add that the selection of Studies has been done very judiciously. No attempt has been done to grade them; they are given in their original order, omitting those which are of least practical value.

Correspondence.

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

Sir,—Opening my Musical Times for this month I observe an article by Mr. Corder. I glance at the opening of it, and see that Mr. Corder is about to oblige the company with a song. 'I sing,' he says, 'The Teacher'—much as the shoemaker might say, 'I sing Leather'; and a few lines further on, 'I sing the Minor Composer'—much as the milkman might announce, 'I sing the Cow.' 'Ah!' I said to myself, 'Mr. Corder is in a lyrical mood to-day; let me listen intently and respectfully to this vocal fantasia of his upon two original themes.' I listened: the performance was really a very good one. Now and then, it is true, a pinched falsetto note crept in among the manly chest tones of Mr. Corder; but then, who is perfect? And I fancied I could see how the one or two less pleasant notes came to be there: the idea of A CRITIC had occurred to Mr. Corder, and reduced him to a condition that is known in the nursery, I believe, as 'temps.' To suggest 'critics' in Mr. Corder's hearing is like saying 'cats-s-s-s' in the neighbourhood of a terrier: it brings on a brain storm—what the pathologists call an attack of emotional insanity. But we all have our amiable little weaknesses, and none of us who like and admire Mr. Corder—and I have always been one of these—would look with any but an indulgent eye on this little weakness of his. So I listened admiringly to the end of the song. Just before the finish one or two phrases used by Mr. Corder seemed to have a familiar ring for me. In another moment the dread truth dawned on me: Mr. Corder was quoting me, and the whole of this performance that I had been enjoying so much was a protest against my advice to a certain young composer, which advice Mr. Corder finds 'not particularly helpful'!

Then did the cup of my anguish overflow. 'What,' I said to myself in the bitterness of my spirit, 'What is the use of my writing twelve columns or so to make it clear what I mean, if the only result of it all is to make Mr. Corder think I mean just the opposite? What is the use of being a black-hearted, blood-stained cynic if you are merely to be mistaken for an idealist dealing out the wrong prescription?' 'Helpful' to the Minor Composer! Mon chapeau! Where did I say I wanted to be helpful to him? The whole subject of my open letter was to discourage him! (As Richter said to the young man who told him he had written a lot of music—'Ees eet nezezzary?') I go to the trouble and expense of putting a brass plate on my door with the words—'Professor of Infanticide; Undesired and Undesirable Infants Executed with Promptitude and Despatch'; and lo! an agitated professional accoucheur comes along and tells me, with tears in his kindly eyes, that strychnine isn't nearly such a helpful diet for babies as milk! But I am not in the milk business at present; I used to be, but I gave it up some time ago. I am in the strychnine business now. But why need Mr. Corder and I quarrel? Can't we work together? So long as he can gratify his humanitarian instincts by bringing superfluous infants into the world, and I can gratify my homicidal instincts by helping other critics ('expert coffin trimmers,' as I saw them styled in an American cinema picture the other day) to put them out of it, can't we both be happy?

Mr. Turner's letter on the subject of consecutive fifths is a gallant effort to put a good face on a bad job, but I am afraid it will not do much to help that earnest young composer to whom my open letter was addressed. The problem is, how to know legitimate consecutive fifths from illegitimate ones. The late Dr. Prout lays it down, for example, that 'consecutive fifths by simultaneous motion are not allowed between any two parts.' That is categorical enough. Equally categorical is the practice of composers, great and little, who as Dr. Prout proceeds to show by quotations from Beethoven, Haydn, and Kullak, use consecutive perfect fifths by simultaneous motion between any two parts just when it suits them to do so.

How does Dr. Prout attempt to get out of this difficulty? 'These examples,' he says, 'are not for the student's imitation; experience is required to understand when they may be properly introduced; but it is needful to mention them here for the sake of completeness. By beginners the prohibition of consecutive fifths must be strictly attended to.' Why, in the name of reason, if such a sequence occurs to the student as one of those quoted by Dr. Prout, should he cut out the fifths? If they sound well when a Kullak puts them on paper, how can they sound ill when put on paper by a young student who may have better music in him at sixteen than a Kullak at sixty? 'Experience,' says the pedagogue, 'is required to understand when they may be properly introduced.' Nothing of the kind. The only thing that makes any sensible musician think well or ill of consecutive fifths is how they sound—whether they talk sense or nonsense; and a student with a natural gift for talking sense in music might use fifths in a rational way from the beginning. What excuse would the pedagogue have for striking them out? If I had gone to Dr. Prout with an exercise containing the following passage it would have been blue-pencilled till it was hardly recognisable:

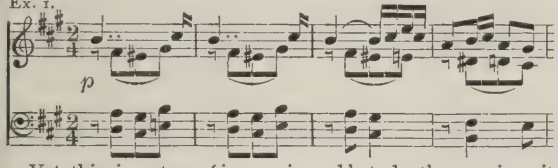
Ex. 1.



Yet this is not an 'inexperienced' student's exercise; it is a quotation from Ravel's Sonatina, and as delicious a passage as anyone could wish to hear. Why is it all right, in spite of the text-books? Simply because it sounds all right—i.e., it talks sense. And that is the point of my complaint against the text-books and the professors: they cannot, or will not, see that a young student with the root of the matter in him may intuitively have that 'experience' which Dr. Prout says is the only sure guide as to when to write consecutive fifths and when not to. 'Experience' simply means good taste, a sure sense of fitness; and while some men have this from their birth, no teaching can give it to others. Consecutive fifths, like everything else, must be judged by their results. The pedagogical talk about the 'experience' of the 'great masters' is fudge. If the consecutive fifths sound all right, it does not matter in the least whether they were written by a man of fifty or a boy of fifteen, by John Sebastian of Leipsic or John Willie of Liverpool. My original point was that no 'rules,' no teacher, can give the requisite taste, the requisite sense of fitness, to a student who has not already got it by the grace of God.

Mr. Turner's attempted defence of teaching on this subject is, I venture to say, no defence at all. 'Bare consecutive fifths,' he says, 'certainly sound objectionable in diatonic part-writing.' The answer to that is simply, 'They don't always.' It all depends on the idea that they are meant to express. Except to a pedant on the hunt for infractions of 'rules,' there is nothing in the least objectionable in the following passage of Beethoven:

Ex. 2.

Or this from Borodin's song, 'The sea queen' (Mr. Turner may say, of course, that here the writing is not wholly diatonic, but the general æsthetic problem is independent of considerations of this kind):

Ex. 3.

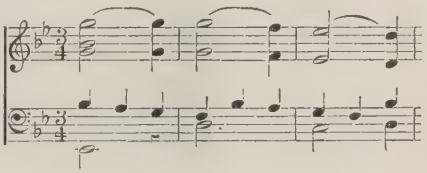
But when do Mr. Turner and his teachers permit consecutive fifths as unobjectionable? 'Whenever the progressions in the other part become exciting,' because then 'attention is distracted from the fifths.' But in the passage I have just quoted from Borodin, as in a hundred others that might be quoted, the composer has not the least desire that our attention should be 'distracted' from his fifths. On the contrary, he wants us to be fully conscious of them, for it is on them that the charm of the passage depends. And in these passages from the 'Pelleas' prelude of Debussy, where the fifths are as right as right can be, Mr. Turner must be made of very inflammable stuff indeed if he can get 'excited' over what is going on:

Ex. 4.

On the other hand, I shall be happy to write for Mr. Turner, if he would like me to do so, some passages containing any number of distracting things, but the fifths will not on that account be interesting or even tolerable.

No, it is as I said; the 'rule' is a tyrant to little boys and girls, but hasn't a word to say for itself when a man kicks it out of the house. I can, however, give Mr. Turner a quite infallible test for knowing good consecutive fifths from bad ones. (As a rule I send this information only in return for twelve postage stamps; but I will give it free to Mr. Turner on condition that he doesn't tell anyone else.) It is a rule that I have discovered after years of research and fakir-like meditation. It runs thus—Consecutive fifths are right when the composer meant them, and wrong when he didn't. If a student accidentally wrote such a passage as the following, for example:

Ex. 5.



his teacher would pounce on him in a minute. It would be obviously wrong. But as Elgar has intentionally written it in his 'Carillon,' it is all right.

ERNEST NEWMAN.

CROATIAN MUSIC.

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

SIR,—The late Abbé Liszt, in his well-known book 'Des Bohémiens et de leur musique en Hongrie,' has made the bold statement that there was no such thing as a Hungarian national music, but only a music of gipsies. A writer in the October number of the Edinburgh Review, however, has gone several steps further, and made the still bolder assertion that all the music the world has been made familiar with under the name of 'Hungarian' is really Croatian, for the so-called Hungarian melodies and folk-songs are, generally speaking, Slavonic-Croatian in origin, and have merely been altered—not for the better—by Magyar plagiarists. The Magyars, we are told, have robbed Croatia, among other things, of her artistic reputation. Even Brahms and Liszt were not above pilfering from the Southern Slavonic music, and Lehár has founded one of his best works—'Der Rastelbinder'—on Southern Slavonic airs. The gipsies of Hungary, popularly regarded as the guardians of Magyar music, have probably (?) most largely plundered from the Croatian folk-melodies and dances. Thus far the Edinburgh Reviewer, many passages in whose contribution show only too clearly that he is one of those authors who cannot write even about music, folk-lore—or, in fact, about anything—without dragging in current politics.

To begin with, let us dismiss from the case, as lawyers would say, the three composers cited by him. Liszt, although born in a neighbourhood the population of which is thickly intermingled with Croatians, evidently did not know of the Croatian origin of the Hungarian folk-melodies as played by Magyar gipsies, or he would have assigned them to their real owners; and we know where Brahms obtained his knowledge of Hungarian music. Any biography of this composer will tell us that it was Ede Reményi—who, by the way, was not a gipsy violinist as some English writers will have it—who made him familiar with the melodies upon which his 'Hungarian Dances' were founded. Reményi knew some of the original composers of these melodies, and they were certainly not Croatians. On the other hand, he informed the interviewer from the New York Herald (January 18, 1879) that Piece No. 5 in Brahms's collection was a Slavonic dancing air. And as regards Lehár, the Edinburgh Reviewer evidently does not know that a Rastelbinder is a Slovák wandering mender of broken pots, and that the first part of the operetta is taking place in a small village near Trencsény in Upper Hungary, right in the midst of a Slavonic population. To give the play a local colour, Lehár was of course obliged to introduce Slavonic music, and to brand him for this as an associate of pilferers is as reasonable as to blame Sullivan for introducing Japanese music into his 'Mikado.'

Those of your readers who are interested in the controversy raised by Liszt should read the pamphlet issued against his book by, say, August von Adelburg, a writer, well known in his day, on Russian subjects.

Haydn, according to our Reviewer, was evidently not a pilferer but a Croatian, and his famous national hymn of Austria is neither more nor less than a drinking song of his own country people, a song especially sung by the Slavs round about Bistritz, wherever that may be. There are several places of that name in other parts of Hungary, but all far away from the region where Haydn had acted as Prince Eszterházy's Kapellmeister in the very centre of Croation colonies. Most of your readers will remember Dr. W. H. Hadow's book on this subject, which was published in London in 1897 under the title of 'A Croatian Composer,' in which the author tries to prove his point. But Haydn was commissioned to set the Austrian National Anthem in 1797, and it was only about eighty years afterwards that Dr. Kuhác, of Zágráb (Agram), set to work to collect and publish his great collection of South Slavonic melodies. In 1880, the year before the last part of these appeared, he issued a special pamphlet on Haydn's relation to these tunes which was translated for, and issued by, Dr. Hadow in English. But there is not the slightest doubt that Haydn was of German nationality, and the drinking song may be a faint echo of the anthem and not vice versâ. Dr. Hadow airily brushes aside the resemblance of Telemann's 'Rondo' to Haydn's tune as nothing more than 'fortuitous' or as probably being referable to the same source, although the composer of the Rondo belonged to Hamburg, and we have no record of his ever having come in contact with Croatians unless they were the descendants of the notorious Trenck's whiskered pandurs. Such fortuitous resemblances, of course, can be found. Thus, for instance, the present writer heard in 1912, a gang of coolies, pushing a heavy railway wagon in Bombay docks, singing a tune which he had heard about thirty-five years before in Hungary, the words of the latter song being supposed to be a dialogue between an old Magyar gipsy woman and her love-sick daughter.

When attempting to decide whether a song is of Hungarian or Croatian origin, one must not lose sight of the fact that in the long wars against their common foe, the Turk, the two nationalities fought side by side for centuries, and that it is somewhat difficult to settle to-day the true ownership of a tune.

The Edinburgh Reviewer further complains that little is known about Croatian music outside its own native country. Whose fault is that? Partly, we are told, of the old native composers, who unpatriotically have sunk their nationality in that of more powerful nations. Such things will happen, as we know, even in the British Isles, where native composers will publish dance music under assumed Polish names. We have also the authority of the Hungarian writer who wrote the preface to Adelung's pamphlet, that he knew of dozens of Magyar composers who had handed their compositions to gipsy bands, who then presented them to the public as their own works.

Both Hadow and the Edinburgh Reviewer (the Right Hon. W. F. Bailey) mention the fact that a school of Croatian music was founded at Zágráb under the direction of the most famous national musicians, and in 1846 the modern school suddenly awakened to the realisation of the beauty of Vatroslav Lisinski's Croatian opera 'Ljubovi Zlova.' Who were those most famous national musicians? The Western world does not know them, and even Lisinski's opera cannot be found in the British Museum Library; it is mentioned in Félix Clement and Pierre Larousse's 'Dictionnaire des Opéras' (Paris, n. d.).

The Edinburgh Reviewer mentions other causes which have prevented Croatian music from becoming known in Western Europe. True Croatian music, we are told, is scarcely ever heard in its original purity and perfection beyond the frontiers of its native country—(is it heard at all?)—and there is considerable difficulty about transmitting this Slav music to paper exactly as it is sung or played, for it is based generally 'on ancient modes,' and the intervals cannot easily be modified by the truly musical ear (?); while again it possesses notes which it is impossible to reproduce in our notation. Consequently, without an intimate knowledge of the ancient modes, Croat-Slavonic melodies cannot be harmonized. Nil desperandum! Have not Liszt, Brahms, Lehár, and the Hungarian gipsies managed to accomplish something in that direction? All that is required now is to send red Croatian bands to Western Europe to oust the blue Hungarian bands and make us familiar with their native music in its original purity. Gramophone records also would be welcome, as they could prepare the way until we received the real article. In the meantime we shall have to content ourselves with the weak efforts in Dr. Hadow's book and with the Edinburgh Reviewer's wholly unsupported statements.—Yours faithfully,

Lewis L. Kropf.

Wandsworth Common.

MUSIC AND NATIONALISM.

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

Sir,—In your issue of January 1, Mr. Ernest Newman quotes a short letter I wrote to the Nation some time ago by way of protest against some of his views on musical nationalism. In this letter I suggested that Stravinsky, originally strongly 'nationalist,' as in 'L'Oiseau de Feu' and 'Pétrouchka,' had not been improved by the cosmopolitan influences noticeable in his later works, 'Le Sacre du Printemps' and 'Le Rossignol.'

Mr. Newman now tries to annihilate me by quoting Mr. Calvocoressi's statement that 'Stravinsky, . . . Russian born and Russian in spirit, . . . is one of the youngest but also the best representatives of the actual Russian school.' But I should like to ask Mr. Newman in return whether Mr. Calvocoressi said this before or after 'Le Sacre du Printemps' and 'Le Rossignol' were written. I am writing away from books of reference during a few minutes snatched from work of quite another character, but I am very strongly of the opinion that Mr. Calvocoressi wrote thus of the early, not the late, Stravinsky. If so, Mr. Newman is quite unjustified in trying to make us, so to speak, cancel each other out.

Francis Toye.

London, January 7, 1914.

(Continued on page 103.)

Go where glory waits thee.

Words by Moore.

Irish Melody, arranged as a Four-part Song by John E. West.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited; New York: THE H. W. GRAY CO., Sole Agents for the U.S.A.

Lento espressivo.*
mp
poco rit.
pp
Soprano.
Go where glo - ry waits thee, But, while fame e - lates thee, Oh! still . . . re -
Alto.
Go where glo - ry waits thee, But, while fame e - lates thee, Oh! still re -
Tenor.
Oh! still . . . re -
Bass.
Oh! still . . . re -
Lento espressivo. ♩=56.*
Piano. (For practice only.)
a tempo.
p
- mem - ber me. . . . When the praise . . . is sweet - est,
- mem - ber me. . . . When the praise . . . is sweet - - est,
- mem - ber me. . . . When the praise thou meet - est To thine ear is sweet - est,
- mem - ber me . . . When the praise thou meet - est To thine ear is sweet - est,

* The time, generally, should be somewhat ad libitum, sufficiently so to give clearness to the phrasing and expression to the words.

Copyright, 1915, by Novello and Company, Limited.

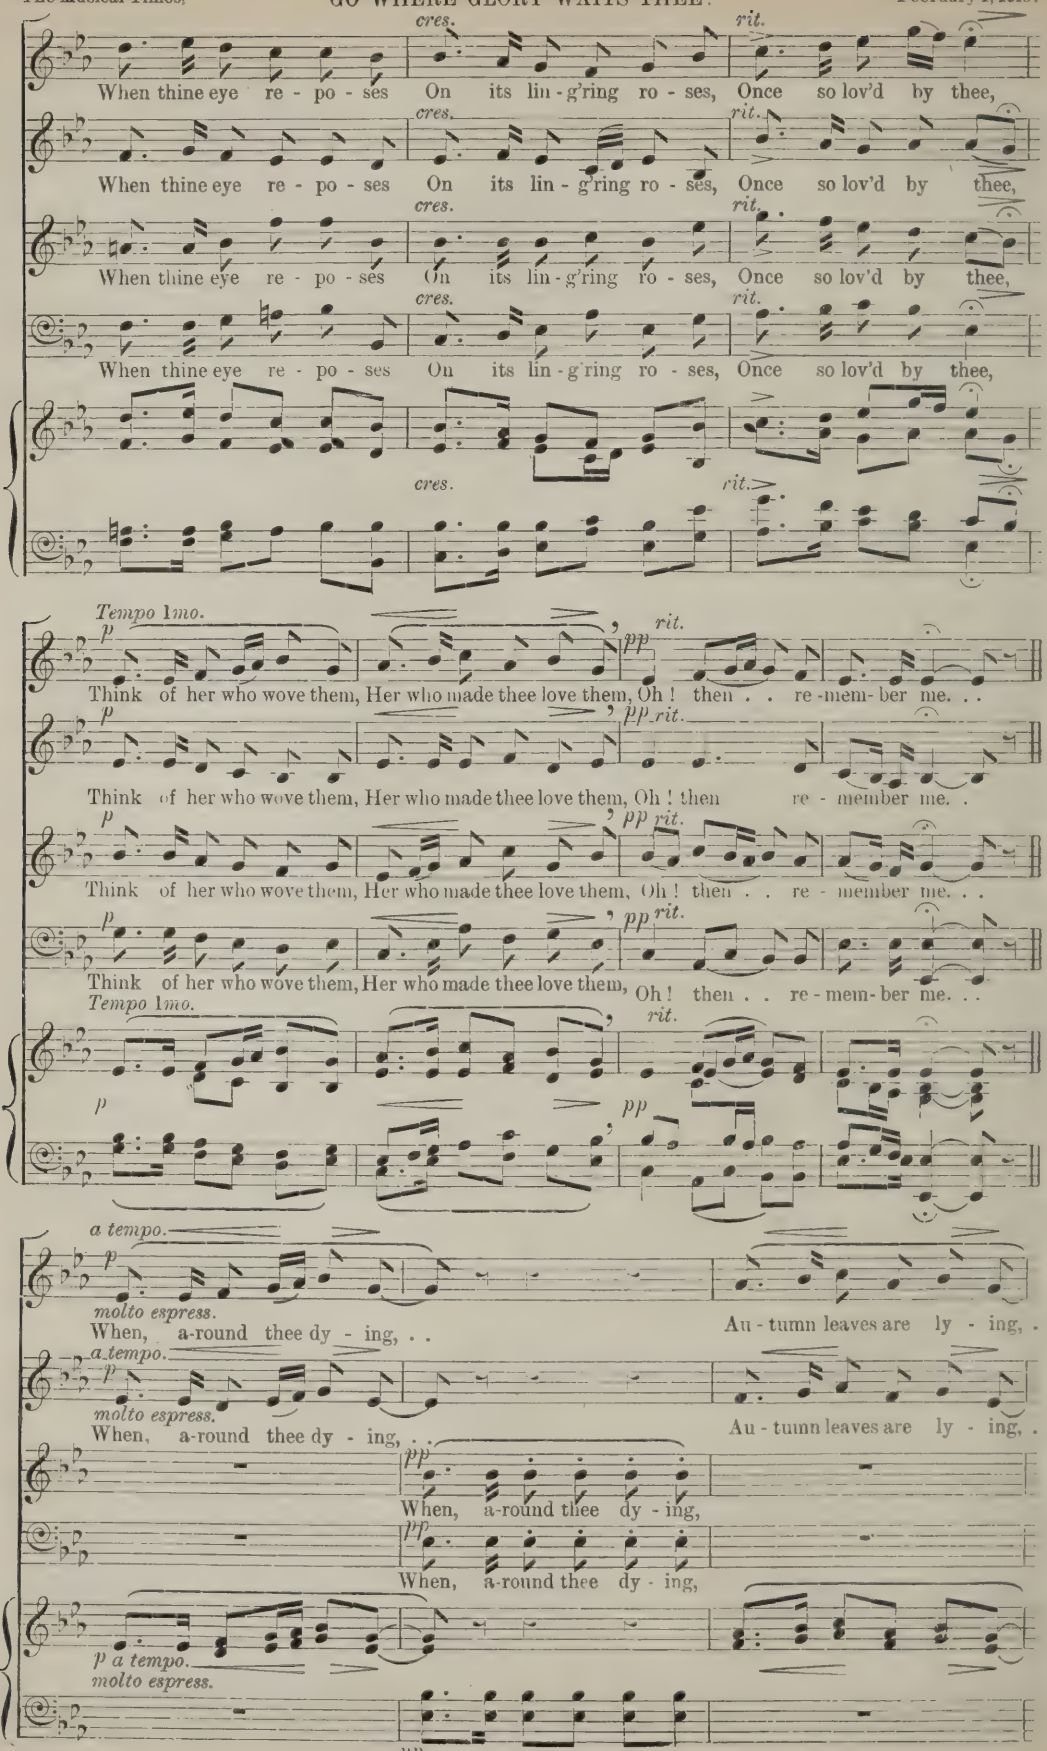
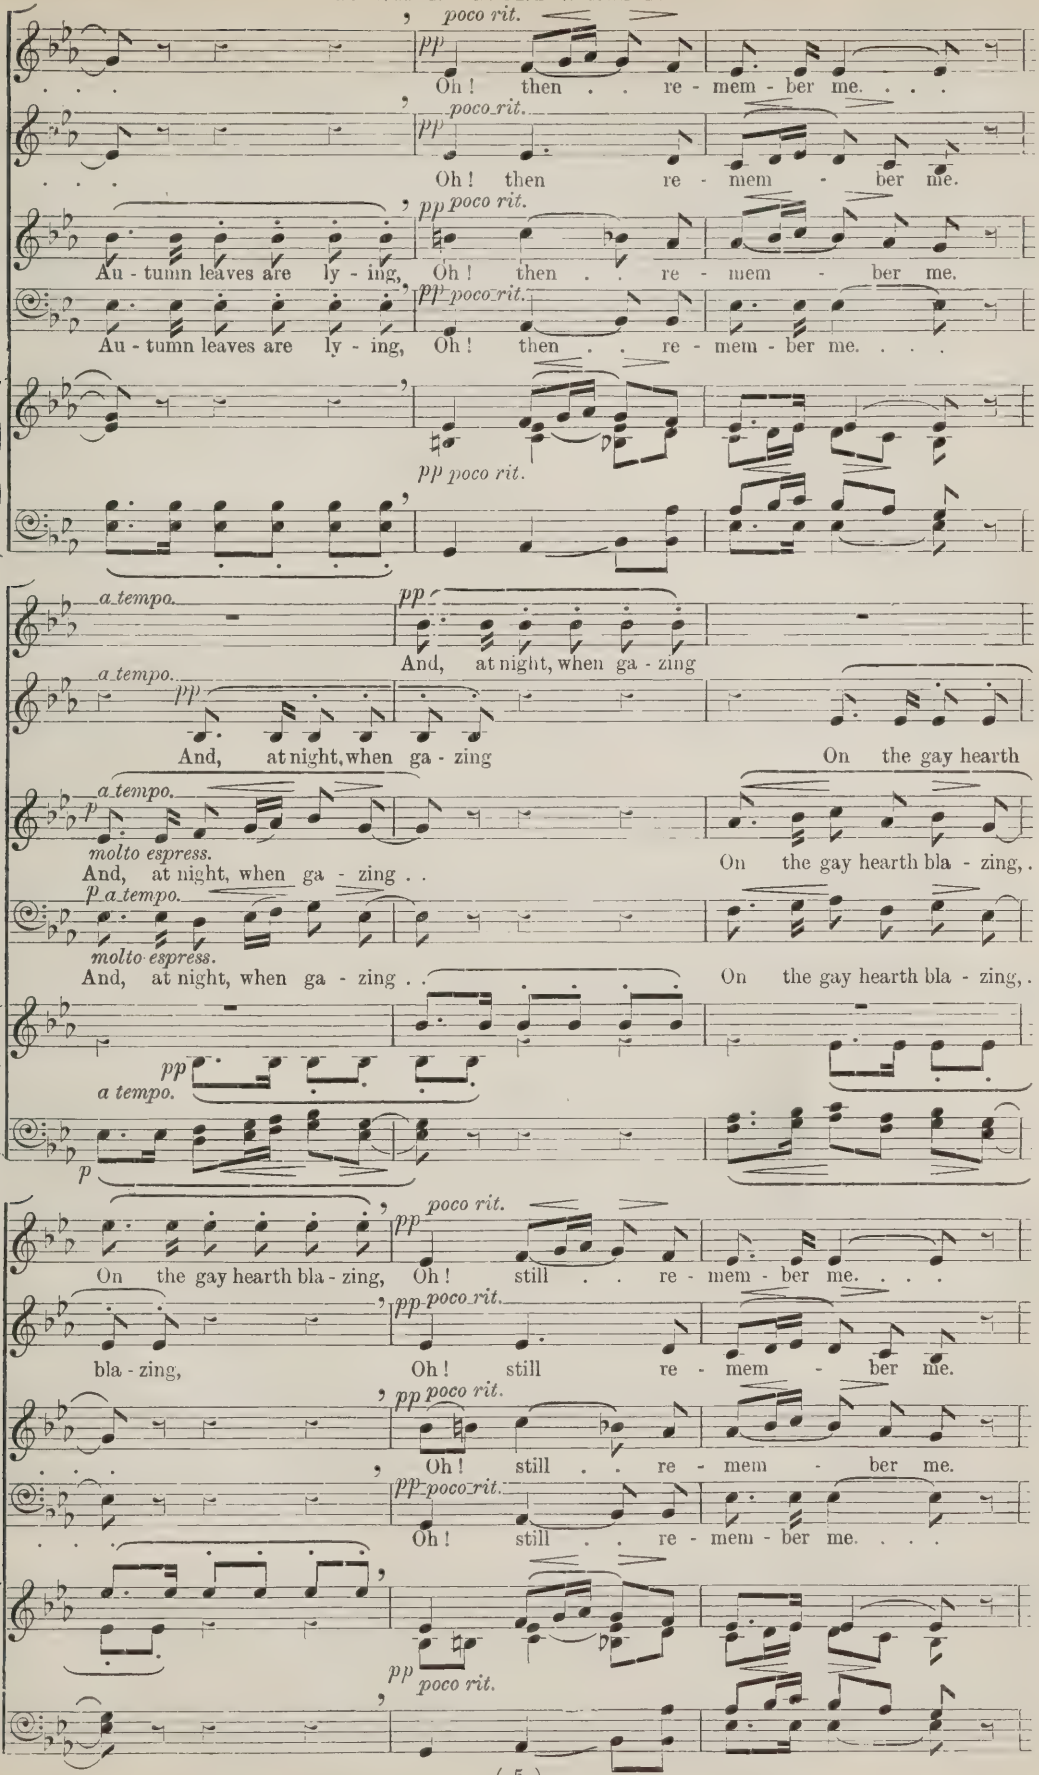
pp poco rit.
Oh! then . . re - mem - ber me. . .
mp Poco più mosso.
O - ther arms may press thee,
mp
Oh! then re - mem - ber me. . .
O - ther arms may press thee,
Oh! then . . re - mem - ber me. . .
O - ther arms may press thee,
Oh! then . . re - mem - ber me. . .
O - ther arms may press thee,
cres.
rit.
Dear - er friends ca - ress thee, All the joys that bless thee Sweet - er far may be;
Dear - er friends ca - ress thee, All the joys that bless thee Sweet - er far may be;
Dear - er friends ca - ress thee, All the joys that bless thee Sweet - er far may be;
Dear - er friends ca - ress thee, All the joys that bless thee Sweet - er far may be;
Tempo 1mo.
p
But when friends are nearest, And when joys are dear-est, Oh! then . . re - mem - ber me. . .
But when friends are near-est, And when joys are dear-est, Oh! then re - mem-ber me. . .
But when friends are near-est, And when joys are dear-est, Oh! then . . re - mem-ber me. . .
But when friends are near-est, And when joys are dear-est, Oh! then . . re - mem - ber me. . .

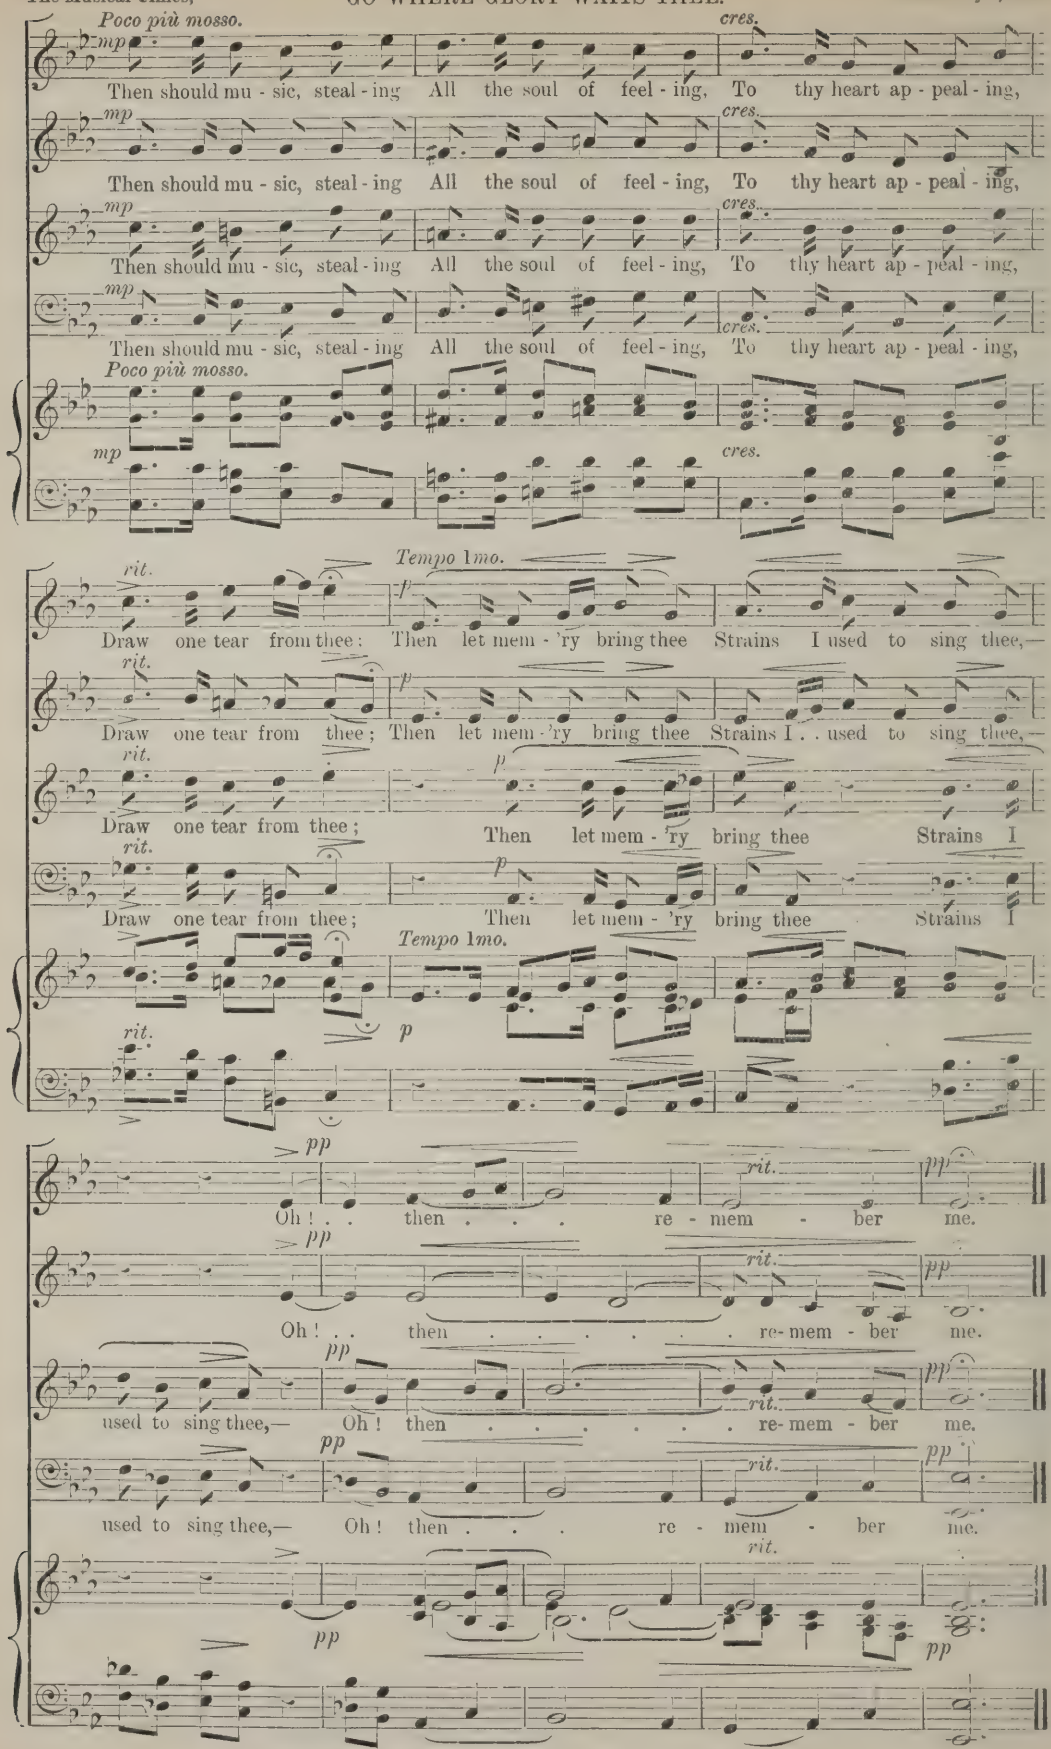
pp poco rit.
Oh! then . . re -
mp a tempo.
When, at eve, thou ro - vest By the star thou lov - est, Oh! then . . re -
a tempo.
- mem - ber me. . . Think, when home re - turn - ing, Bright we've seen it burn - ing,
p
Bright we've seen . . it burn - ing,
Bright we've seen . . . it burn - - - ing,
poco rit.
Oh! thus . . re - mem - ber me. . .
Poco più mosso.
Oft as sum - mer clo - ses,



cres.
rit.
When thine eye re - po - ses On its lin - g'ring ro - ses, Once so lov'd by thee,
Tempo 1mo.
p
pp
Think of her who wove them, Her who made thee love them, Oh! then . . re-mem- ber me. . .
Think of her who wove them, Her who made thee love them, Oh! then re - member me. .
Think of her who wove them, Her who made thee love them, Oh! then . . re - member me. . .
Think of her who wove them, Her who made thee love them, Oh! then . . re - mem- ber me. . .
a tempo.
molto espress.
When, a-round thee dy - ing, . .
Au - tumn leaves are ly - ing, .
When, a-round thee dy - ing,
When, a-round thee dy - ing,



poco rit.
pp
Oh! then . . re - mem - ber me. . . .
Oh! then re - mem - ber me.
Au - tumn leaves are ly - ing, Oh! then . . re - mem - ber me.
Au - tumn leaves are ly - ing, Oh! then . . re - mem - ber me. . . .
a tempo.
And, at night, when ga - zing
And, at night, when ga - zing
On the gay hearth
molto espress.
And, at night, when ga - zing . .
On the gay hearth bla - zing, .
On the gay hearth bla - zing, Oh! still . . re - mem - ber me. . . .
bla - zing, Oh! still re - mem - ber me.
Oh! still . . re - mem - ber me.
Oh! still . . re - mem - ber me. . . .



Poco più mosso.
mp
cres.
Then should mu - sic, steal - ing All the soul of feel - ing, To thy heart ap - peal - ing,
Then should mu - sic, steal - ing All the soul of feel - ing, To thy heart ap - peal - ing,
Then should mu - sic, steal - ing All the soul of feel - ing, To thy heart ap - peal - ing,
Then should mu - sic, steal - ing All the soul of feel - ing, To thy heart ap - peal - ing,
Poco più mosso.
mp
cres.
rit.
Tempo 1mo.
p
Draw one tear from thee: Then let mem - 'ry bring thee Strains I used to sing thee,—
Draw one tear from thee; Then let mem - 'ry bring thee Strains I . . used to sing thee,—
Draw one tear from thee; Then let mem - 'ry bring thee Strains I
Draw one tear from thee; Then let mem - 'ry bring thee Strains I
Tempo 1mo.
rit.
p
pp
Oh! . . then . . . re - mem - ber me.
Oh! . . then . . . . . re-mem - ber me.
used to sing thee,— Oh! then . . . . . re-mem - ber me.
used to sing thee,— Oh! then . . . re - mem - ber me.

Also published in Novello's Tonic Sol-fa Series, No. 2222, price 1½d.

THE CONVENTIONS OF CHURCH MUSIC.

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

Sir,—Under the heading of 'The Compleat Organist,' Mr. Harvey Grace has made some very useful protests against certain bad habits of the average Church organist. The addition of the 7th to the tonic chord and things of this kind are only likely to offend the more highly susceptible ears. To my mind a far more objectionable and far more common practice is the continued monotony of the Pedal Bourdon or Open Diapason in the lower registers. The reason for this is probably that many organists give their right foot to the Swell Pedal directly they sit down, so that only their left foot is free and only the lower octave of the pedals is heard. Then, again, not many organists in accompanying hymns and chants avoid playing the bass part on the manuals when at the same time they are playing it on the pedals, so producing a wholly unnecessary doubling. Also when the bass part passes out of the reach of the left foot it frequently gets played on the lower octave on the pedals. These abuses of the Pedal organ never fail to produce a sort of 'wet blanket' result which tends to make the general effect sound flat.

Another groove into which many organists have fallen is the continued use of the Swell to Great coupler. Thus an obvious means of contrast and relief as between the independant Swell and Great is lost.

The practices I have referred to are of course only found in the case of church organists in places where there is not enough money available to pay a trained musician. I have merely called attention to them because it seems to me that it is possible for any organist to avoid them without making any new demand upon technique.

Lastly, I would like to call attention to the attempts of village and other voluntary choirs to sing hymns and chants in harmony while the congregation sing in unison. These attempts are not often successful, and it is really waste of time for the choir to practise the alto, tenor, and bass parts. Unison singing of hymns and chants, as suggested by Dr. Vaughan Williams in his Introduction to the 'English Hymnal,' would be far better and much less discordant.—Yours, &c.,

B.

Birmingham.
November 4, 1914.

PSALM TUNES: THE MELODY IN THE TENOR.

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

Sir,—I shall be obliged if you will allow me to assure Mr. Westerby that as a result of eight years' use of the psalm tunes arranged in the above manner in the 'English Hymnal' I am convinced, first, that the congregation is in nowise confounded, but can and will stick to the melody (this I know from the evidence of my own ears); secondly, the choir enjoys singing them (a small matter, perhaps, but I set it down); thirdly, their use is generally approved in the nave (at all events, I never heard anything but approval expressed). By the way, the reason congregations fail to stick to their part in Tallis's Festal responses is to be found in the fact of the theme being too indefinite. Indeed, in at least one response the plainsong eludes search even on paper.

In regard to Mr. Westerby's objection to the arrangement when women's voices are in force, surely the effect is analagous to a frequent organ registration scheme: a solo in the tenor part of a manual with 8- and 4-ft. stops, with 8-ft. accompaniment. In cases where the fauxbourdon goes below the psalm tune, the effect is merely that of an extra alto part.—Yours, &c.,

Harvey Grace.

A BIOGRAPHY OF COLERIDGE-TAYLOR.

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

Sir,—I am now within sight of the conclusion of the Memoir of Coleridge-Taylor, the writing of which I have undertaken at the request of his family; and I shall be grateful if you will allow me to ask, through your pages, for any further letters or material of his which your readers may possess, in order that my work may be as complete a picture of the man as possible. Every care will of course be taken of such material, which will be returned promptly.

There is another matter even more important. It was a common habit of Coleridge-Taylor to lend his manuscripts to friends, and I am afraid he did not keep any written record of such loans. As a consequence several of his smaller compositions, songs, &c., and the score of a movement from a symphony, besides various pieces which figure in some of his programmes, have not been traced. Some of these without doubt he destroyed, as his self-criticism was exquisite and unrelenting; but this cannot possibly be the case with all of them, and perhaps your readers can assist Mrs. Coleridge-Taylor to recover these.

W. C. Berwick Sayers.

'Bindon,' 65, Avondale Road,
Croydon.

Obituary.

It is announced from Vienna that Carl Goldmark, the composer of the popular opera 'Der Königin von Saba,' has died, at the age of eighty-four. He was born, of a Jewish family, at Keszthaly, Hungary, showed early talent for the violin, and entered the Vienna Conservatoire, where he studied also composition and the pianoforte. In 1860 he definitely settled at Vienna as a teacher, and soon won recognition as a composer. The well-known 'Sakuntala' Overture was first performed at a Philharmonic Concert in 1865. 'Der Königin von Saba' appeared in 1875 after ten years of slow creation and careful revision, and was successful from the first. Being based upon a Biblical story it has not yet been staged in England. Goldmark's later operas are 'Merlin,' 'Das Heimchen am Herd,' 'Die Kriegsgefangene,' 'Götz von Berlichingen,' and 'Der Fremdling.' He wrote two Violin concertos; a Symphony in E flat; six Orchestral overtures, of which 'Sakuntala' and 'Im Frühling' are well known, other orchestral works including a Symphonic-poem, 'Zrinyi'; 'Frühlingshymne' for alto solo, chorus and orchestra; choral songs; concerted chamber music; violin and pianoforte works, and songs. He was a strong supporter of Wagner, whose works he praised, early in the 'sixties, in his capacity of musical critic. Goldmark's music is characterized by an easy command of colour and effect, by abundant vitality, and by melodic interest.

By the death of Mr. William Moodie, which took place on January 17, Glasgow has lost her oldest and one of her most highly-respected musicians. Mr. Moodie was born in the Vale of Leven eighty-two years ago, and was entirely self-taught. In addition to holding the office of choirmaster in several leading city churches, he was in the early seventies Lecturer in Music at the Church of Scotland Training College and conductor of the St. George's Choral Union, a body which gave successful oratorio concerts. Latterly, he was one of the visiting singing-masters in the schools under the Glasgow and Govan Boards, from the duties of which he retired only a few years ago. He possessed a considerable gift for musical composition, and many of his part-songs have been popular for more than a generation. He was one of the most genial, warm-hearted and lovable of men, and his death breaks another of the few remaining links with the early days of music at Glasgow.

We regret also to record the following deaths:

H. Lane Wilson, on January 8, at the age of forty-four. He first claimed notice in the musical profession as accompanist to Madame Albani. As a singer he studied under Mr. Arthur Oswald and Sir Charles Santley, and soon won the regard of the public for his admirable baritone voice and his expressive manner. He also earned popularity as a song composer, and his arrangements of Old English melodies have had wide vogue. He was a brother of Miss Hilda Wilson, the well-known contralto.

Arthur F. Smith, Mus. Bac., A.R.C.O., for forty years organist of St Werbergh's Church, Derby. He was for twenty-one years conductor of the Orpheus Society and for thirty years music-master at the Diocesan Training College. Mr. Smith was successful as a composer of Church music and light secular music.

Frederick G. Hickson, organist of Holy Trinity Church, Malvern, for eighteen years. He died on December 17, after a brief illness, at the age of forty-three, a man loved and respected by all who knew him.

Thomas Wicks, chorister of Wells Cathedral, at the age of ninety-five.

At the moment of going to press we hear of the death of Ernst von Lengyel, to which fuller reference will be made in our next issue.

THE MUSIC IN WAR-TIME COMMITTEE.

In our November, 1914, issue pp. 645-6, we described the proposals of this influentially supported Committee. Briefly its aims were to find or create engagements for native professional performers whom the War had deprived of work, and to keep choral Societies going, as well as to give concerts in camps and hospitals and schools. The report of the operations of the Committee up to the end of 1914 has just been issued. It shows that notwithstanding restricted means, the Committee has been able to carry on a remarkable amount of good work. Up to the end of the year, 146 performers had been engaged at fifty-two concerts, and grants had been made to eight choral and orchestral Societies. All the management of the Society is honorary.

A very good idea of the manner in which the Committee carries on its mission may be gathered from the following extracts from the report (which can be obtained from Mr. J. E. Barkworth, hon. secretary of the Committee, at 13-14, Prince's Gate).

IN A BASE HOSPITAL.

'Will you give us a concert?' 'Of course we will,' I replied, 'the softest and sweetest ——' 'Oh, no you don't,' he interrupted vigorously, 'not at all, please; what we want is good rousing stuff with a chorus if possible.' 'For the wounded?' I gasped. 'Certainly. It may surprise you, but we have a gramophone in every ward. Drastic, eh? Well, it does them any amount of good.' And he proceeded to explain their clever Colonel's discovery, that complete quiet was by no means the most satisfactory form of rest cure for men suffering from shrapnel nerves. Why? Because the brain went on repeating the sound of bursting shells from force of habit. Unless this could be effaced in some way, silence (intensifying it) was unendurable, and no one could long bear the strain of this constant mental recurrence without breaking down. Music, he found, effects obliteration best; hence much bodily nourishment, the gramophone between meals, and three concerts a week were his rule.

'When shall we come?' 'Thursday.' 'For how long?' 'Four-thirty till six.'

Day and time appointed, I set about finding a select troup, and in due course we arrived. The usual war weather prevailed, but the recreation room made that a matter of small moment, for it was warm and cosy. Our party, arriving early, found its bright green card-tables and comfortable arm-chairs still in place, but the good Corporal, anxious to know if everything was all right, asked us to postpone tea till we had set his mind at ease. This was easy. A new pianoforte was waiting for us (the old Broadwood respectfully on the reserve), a large platform, and plants and flags everywhere to make it gay. Half-an-hour later we came back to find everything ready. Soldiers were sitting everywhere. Chairs covered the space where the card-tables had been; benches, window-sills, stools, every nook and corner was furnished with a blue-clad figure waiting for the music to begin. A procession of many too badly wounded to be out of bed was forming up on wheeled stretchers in front, their pale, tired faces revealing sufferings so clearly that, smitten with anxiety lest our songs should after all prove too much for them, I turned again to our Corporal with a question. 'Ah, come on,' he said, 'don't worry about that. Just you watch them.' So we made ready and began.

The little Soprano went up first, and with the opening bars a subtle change passed over the room. The audience had guessed how she was going to sing from the look of her, and found they were right. Gentle murmurs of pleasure grew into a crescendo of clapping as she finished, and heavy eyes drooped perhaps a little less. One or two poor fellows, stretched out full length, craned their heads to get a better view, and a nurse ran off to bring pillows to prop them higher up.

Then our Baritone began a Somerset Folk-Song; and halfway through I heard someone say, 'Go and tell him it's a good concert,' and presently the door opened to admit a tall figure garbed in a dressing-gown, who tottered unsteadily across the floor to sink into the only arm-chair still available. We learned afterwards that he was an officer who had been under shrapnel since the beginning of the War—four months, and a week or two ago had come back a nervous wreck. The usually restful silence of the Home chosen had been torture, but the music cure was doing its work well, and sleep coming back to him by degrees. Soon after he came in others followed, till the hall was overflowing with people. Every doctor, orderly, and nurse who could be spared, looked in for a little while, and a low window was opened so that anyone in the garden could have his share too by standing on tip-toe.

One hero who had lost a leg clapped notwithstanding so joyously all the way through that I remarked upon it, and learned he was to be married next week. Thereupon our Baritone, who has a gift for such things, changed the refrain of his next song to fit the occasion, affording thereby such a fine opportunity for chaff that its victim was thoroughly embarrassed before the end. Our Entertainer has by nature a somewhat thoughtful face, and when he stepped forth and said he would like a few quiet words with the men, they, believing him a Truthful James, prepared to hear them as best they might. It is hard to say who enjoyed the fun most when it dawned that his innocent appearance was but a cloak for guile.

Six o'clock came, and we dutifully paused to be discharged, but the Colonel looked at his men and then at us, and said, 'Just a little more. It's doing them no end of good.' So we gave it for another quarter of an hour, and then finished with a rag-time chorus, audible, I should say, at——; but never mind where. Reticence is always becoming. Little by little those who had come in utterly weary from pain had forgotten all about it, and were whistling, calling for encores, stamping away with perhaps the one leg left, or a crutch, for all they were worth, and it needed an effort to realise they were not hale and hearty men—if one's eyes were turned away.

Perhaps the nicest tribute was from a young St. George, who said of our bonny contralto as he passed out, 'I could have listened to her all day and all night.' And the next nicest was the invitation to come again.

SOLDIERS' AND SAILORS' WIVES.

Much is heard nowadays of the war fever, its danger and excitement—and those who know it best believe in treating it by inoculation with the milder excitement of music.

Anyone who has addressed 400 or 500 working girls at a big League of Honour Meeting knows that war-excitement, perhaps to their cost. The factory girl of big towns is a strangely excitable being. In common with most people who badly need it, she abhors good advice, but she loves music, and can bear even good advice when softened by music.

She is no mean critic. She appreciates the difference between second best and best, though she cannot always describe it—as, for instance, the girl who, though she had never heard of tone-colour, said it reminded her of 'mother's kettle boiling.'

An audience of such girls, united in sympathy by good music, is ready to hear sympathetically the good advice to which in cold blood they might be less willing to listen.

If we are right, as surely we are, in giving good music to working girls, we owe it even more to working women, especially those whose men-folk are gone out to fight.

A club for soldiers' wives, that boasts a membership of 500 and a long waiting-list, is a veritable home of music, and a concert there is a very touching sight. The women arrive at all hours, for many are working late, but quietly the room fills up, till not a seat is left.

To ensure quiet, and also to give the mothers a little rest, the babies are all being 'minded' in another room, and given the time of their small lives among toys from richer homes than their own.

And for their mothers an evening which might be sadly or even foolishly spent, passes in pure enjoyment.

There is an interval for refreshment, and then the music begins again—solos and recitations by good artists—choruses by the women. For they are themselves learning to sing in this admirable Club—under the auspices of a good professional teacher—who is glad enough 'in War-time' of the unwonted job.

The women love both singing and listening—it all helps to 'take them out of themselves,' and even the latest news from the Front, often anxious enough, is for the moment forgotten.

United by a common sacrifice and a common interest, they make a splendid audience, and delight the singers who delight them.

CHORAL CAMP CONCERTS.

After some strenuous rehearsals we emerged from the seclusion of a practice room in the Temple into the glare of the White City. Dr. Walford Davies had drawn some fifty recruits chiefly from his own and other church choirs, had arranged for their use two or three dozen national and popular songs, and now the recruits were mobilised into an efficient expeditionary force. The vast hall of the White City would have embarrassed any less fully equipped concert party. At the back of the hall soldiers were playing vigorous games of ping-pong, others were boxing, some were absorbed in chess and draughts; besides there was a floating population whose interest we had to engage, but fifty voices trained to corporate action succeed where individuals fail. We came away feeling that we had made our mark and that the concert had been enjoyed by those who wanted it.

A little later we had another and a very different kind of success, at Fleet: instead of fifty Dr. Davies took only five singers with him (the chief point of his choir is that it can be used in large or small numbers as circumstances require, and the five could do at Fleet even more than fifty could do at the White City). A Corporal met us, and guided us along boggy ground to the tent where the concert was to take place. We started with three national anthems—English, French, and Russian; then came the policeman'ssong from 'Pinafore.' The soldiers immediately seized on the chorus, and after that the concert became a joyous sing-song with little distinction between performers and audience. Since then our experiences have been many, and at some concerts we have had the help of lady singers engaged by the Committee.

On December 12 we went to Aldershot, and after the concert joined in a hymn at Prayers in which the men sang splendidly. Our train back to town that night was nearly an hour late, so we filled up the waiting time by giving the whole programme of our choruses to three Scotsmen who were in the guard room at the railway station. One joined in the choruses with his eyes firmly closed, and rewarded Dr. Davies with two hot potatoes.

It is hard to say which are the most popular songs. 'The Bay of Biscay,' 'Ben Backstay' (with its chorus of 'With a chip, chop, cherry top'), 'Step Out,' and the 'Poacher' are always a success. In the last one, however, the Tommies always insist on substituting 'O it's nice to get up in the morning, but it's nicer to lie in bed' for the original chorus, 'It's my delight on a shining night.' But not only rousing songs are popular, 'Breathe soft, ye winds' (Paxton) has proved an unfailing success every time we have sung it, and the strange pathos of some of the negro melodies of the Fisk Jubilee Singers appeals very strongly to the men. Often they come to the concert tired out by the day's hard drilling or a route march. Of course, then one must begin by keeping them awake; but once they are awakened there is no need to go on making a noise. At one concert quite recently the men seemed at first almost too tired to be interested; before the end we were able to sing the Jubilee song, 'Nobody knows the trouble I've seen, Lord,' to an audience who listened breathlessly to every note.

There is another side to the activities of the choir which is important to the scheme of the Committee. It is designed to help choral societies by sending detachments of singers to take part in concerts which are not created by the emergency of war, but rather are being carried on under difficulties and in spite of the emergency. Up to the present we have sent out reinforcements to five such places: Battersea Town Hall, the Portman Rooms, the Hampstead Conservatoire, Tonbridge, and the Bishopsgate Institute. We hope to do more in this direction in the coming year, and three other Societies are to be visited shortly. The letters received from all the conductors of Societies to whom we have lent a hand show that this kind of work is helpful to the cause of Music in War-time.

SCHOOL CONCERTS.

There is one other class of audience—and that but little diminished by the War—to whom good concerts have proved highly acceptable, viz., girls and boys at school.

A cheerier sight cannot be imagined than one of our concerts in a big L.C.C. Secondary School. Anything from 100 to 500 girls, all—even the small ones in the front rows—as keen as possible; a fair number of parents and friends, and the teachers—tired, but never obscured by the daily round of teaching—whose enthusiasm for their art is specially delightful in its knowing appreciation of the best music. Can a more perfect audience be imagined?

Many of the schools even in London are so far from a concert hall that the pupils seldom hear any music except their own. And for the same reason it is possible in the country to give even greater pleasure than in London. In some cases, concert tours have been proposed to include several schools, and these give pleasure and friendship as well as work and generous remuneration to the artists who take part in them.

AN ORCHESTRAL CONCERT.

On December 15 Mrs. Julian Marshall took her orchestra, engaged for the occasion by means of a grant from the Committee, to give a concert to 8,000 Territorials at the White City. Mrs. Marshall writes: 'It was a huge success. A vast place, packed to overflowing with khaki; there must have been thousands of them. They had not the slightest difficulty in hearing us, and they were a magnificent audience, and most enthusiastic. They said they had never had anything like it. You helped greatly towards this result, so both orchestral players and soldiers are much indebted to your Committee.'

In January, the Committee decided to unite with a more comprehensive body, the Professional Classes War Relief Committee, and by agreement they now take up all the musical side of that Council's work.

Money is sadly needed. We hope that some of our readers will be moved to assist or to get assistance by way of subscriptions. As will be evident, the appeal is a double one: the profession needs help, and the wounded in our hospitals need the inspiration and solace which music can give them. Mr. Barkworth will be glad to receive subscriptions at 13-14, Princes Gate. Sir Hubert Parry is the president of the Committee, and many other distinguished musicians are vice-presidents.

In this connection, it is due that mention should be made of the similar work being done under the auspices of Messrs. Broadwood and Mr. Isidore de Lara.

WHY ALL CHIN-RESTS SHOULD BE ABOLISHED.

By Arthur Hartmann.

[We received this article from Mr. Hartmann, who is a well-known and able violinist, while he was at Paris. After the War broke out he went to New York, where, we believe, he is still residing.—Ed., M. T.]

In advancing this plea, I would rather try to present the most convincing logic than merely the request 'follow me.'

Of late years, the indulgence in pads and cushions has grown to such extent that at last it is seemingly necessary to invent a chin-rest which, with additional blocks, could be made to accommodate the neck of a giraffe, if need be.

Furthermore, we now see advertisements of chin-rests 'which enable the player to hold the violin in any position desired.' Desired—but not desirable. This is precisely the point under consideration—the position of the violin and whether the chin-rest is essential thereto.

Originally the violin was held on the lower right-hand curve of its body and not on its left, as to-day. Many violins of the 16th to the 19th centuries, having been much played, show the marks of beards or perspiration in the right-hand corner.

Precisely when the chin-rest was first introduced I am unable to say, though I am fairly certain that it was not prior to Ludwig Spohr's advent (1784-1859); yet it is none the less certain that the reason for it was primarily to preserve the varnish of the violin and not as a sort of 'pulley' which helped the player into the positions.

True that in the days of Corelli violin technique had not progressed beyond the third position, and a violin-chart of those days must have presented very much what an antique Atlas would show, the undiscovered parts being represented by headless men and fantastic images. When an explorer had the temerity to advance his little finger, and found it fell on a harmonic E, this note was added as belonging to the third position.

Unquestionably the first extension of the little finger from B to C (on the E string) occurred in the same way, and resulted in an abominable tradition which most violin teachers preserve to this day. 'Abominable,' for the simple reason that it has made pupils familiar with the first and third positions to the neglect of the second, which is the rightful domain of C.

In about 1716, with the advent of Senaillé and the first French sonatists, we find explorations into the fifth and even the seventh positions—and all this was executed without the aid of chin-rests!

Paganini, who is accorded the position of the world's premier violinist, never used a chin-rest, and Sarasate, a hardly less marvellous violinist, never used a pad, nor did it make any difference to him whether his violin carried a chin-rest or not. He kept one on merely to preserve the beauty of the varnish, and for this purpose a small and low 'rest' is sufficient. Moreover, the best kind to adopt is a rest which in part covers the lower portion of the tail-piece, for any pressure—even the slightest—of the chin on the string-holder helps to untune the violin.

The player who uses cushions and large chin-rests is very much like the rider who, in the trot, raises himself in the saddle by means of the reins and not directly from the knee-joints.

The violin should be held firmly (at times only) by the chin and the shoulder. Hence violinists are likely to be lop-sided, and should counteract this by ample deep breathing and considerable gymnastics.

The violin should be held rather flatly, so as to allow the player a proper survey of the instrument; furthermore, so that the bow rests on the strings and is not upheld by the player's right arm; and finally, so that at certain times the violin may lie lightly on the collar-bone so as to allow full and free vibration of all its parts. Any and all tightness or rigidity smothers the freedom and carrying power of the tone, for the violin is after all nothing but a wonderful little Temple of Acoustics.

There is yet another reason why exaggerated chin-rests and pads should be avoided, because, with the aid of these, the violin assumes an extremely slanting position which has its effect on the fingers, making them come down flatly and not with the directness and strength they would have under normal conditions.

To those who might advance the argument that for people with exceedingly long necks, pads, &c., are indispensable, I would answer with this—Do people with exceedingly long arms and hands play on violins the size of violas? Or do they have extra long bows made?

It was exactly this that gave Joachim his peculiarity of bowing—a too long arm. Thus, to preserve a straight line with the bridge and keep his right elbow from making sharp 'corners,' he was obliged, at a certain place of the bow, to go inward with his arm—a thing a number of theorists were only too ready to stamp as the 'Joachim bowing.'

Mr. Thomas Fussell writes on this question:

I find no 'convincing logic' in Mr. Hartmann's plea. I was brought up to play the violin, starting at the early age of four, and was never allowed a chin-rest until the age of fourteen, when Herr Poznanski (a Vieuxtemps pupil) thought I was 'well able to ride without a saddle,' playing as I did several big works. He then permitted me to have a Sarasate chin-rest, which really pretends to protect the edge of the violin. At the age of twenty-two, when already at Leipsic, I awoke to the fact that my violin was really spoiled for want of a chin-rest. The chin-rest may be used as a 'sort of pulley' to get out of a position, but not to get into one, and that chiefly by players who keep their left hand thumb stiff.

Paganini and Sarasate, though getting extremely beautiful tones, never excelled in quantity; and holding a violin with the chin without a chin-rest most certainly does not permit the violinist to get full tone. This can easily be proved by putting one's fingers on and off the table of a violin when the bow is being drawn across the strings, various parts affecting various strings and registers.

Violinists, if they hold the violin correctly, with or without chin-rests, need not become 'lop-sided,' as they should hold their instrument between chin and left collar-bone or chest, which gives the much to be desired 'somewhat flat position.'

In short, a pad (though I do not use one myself) is better than a cramped or 'lop-sided' position, and individuals are so differently formed that it is quite impossible to do more than give general big lines for the best way of holding a violin. Ysaye once justly remarked to me that one could 'play with the foot, so long that it sounds.'

Mr. Albert Sammons writes:

What suits one does not always suit others, but I certainly think Mr. Hartmann must be alone when he says that all chin-rests should be abolished. Certainly some chin-rests look a little elaborate, but when one takes into consideration the high, stiff collars worn nowadays, it is very important that these big chin-rests should be used. Personally my idea is that the comfort of chin-rests accounts for half of the enormous modern advance in violin technique.

In the old days there were just a few who could 'dance about the violin'; now most orchestral players can do it with comparative ease.

Of course, there are and were exceptions; for instance, Paganini, whose hand could cover easily six or seven positions at the same time, did not need a big chin-rest. Another exception was perhaps Sarasate, a man who possessed a round, short neck which enabled him to hold the violin as if in a vice with quite a small chin-rest. From my own experience I should recommend a big and comfortable chin-rest.

When I discarded my tall 2½-inch for 1½-inch collars, I noticed a great improvement in my playing of quick passages, and more still when I took to a big chin-rest that enabled me to change position without gripping with the left hand.

Without a chin-rest one is obliged to support the violin a little with the left hand, which in moving from one position to another would cause a jerk. Also it is much less tiring to have a comfortable rest than to be gripping just the bare violin. Moreover, the average violin is less deep than a player's collar, and without a rest, the chin would soon become sore from the sharp edge of the collar. I do not hold with pads under the violin, as they throw the violin into a high position, making bowing more difficult and more tiring.

OPERA AT BLACKPOOL.

(from our Manchester representative.)

The visits of the itinerant opera companies to Manchester in the full tide of the city's winter music, make it impossible to do adequate justice to the work of such a body as the Carl Rosa Company, and one welcomed its appearance at the Blackpool Opera House during Christmas and New Year weeks for the opportunity thus afforded of experiencing its work under more favourable conditions, and because of the abundant testimony afforded an outsider of the vitality of the town's interest in music. One gathered that this was the Company's fourth consecutive visit to Blackpool during the Christmas holidays, and so far from the War having an adverse effect upon the attendances, it seemed upon all the occasions when your representative was accorded an opportunity of being present that the support was far in excess of what might not unreasonably have been expected. The fortnight's season embraced the production of ten operas of widely varied character, and displayed the Company's powers to considerable advantage as well vocally, histrionically, and scenically; if one must write with reservations as to the orchestra and chorus (who suffered cruelly from climatic conditions), it is only because the Denhof and Quinlan tours have made us more exacting. It is a pleasure to record that the playing under Messrs. Eugene Goossens and Van Noorden at Blackpool was far ahead of their achievement of, say, two years ago, and with the possible exception of the 'Tannhäuser' playing, which was rather 'matinée-ish,' much of the orchestral work was thoroughly enjoyable and seldom offended ears accustomed to the highest-class playing. If memory is not at fault, the Company has during the past year experienced a heavy loss in the departure of Miss Ina Hill, but would appear to have an invaluable recruit in Miss Dora Gibson, who explored most of the possibilities of both Aïda and Elizabeth (Tannhäuser). None can deny that the Carl Rosa Company is strong on the histrionic side; all its singers may not satisfy fastidious ears, but one is never irritated by wooden, amateurish acting, and if one cannot always have the ideal blend of qualities, most opera-goers would probably excuse shortcomings in voice rather than in acting. The Company is fortunate at present in having an extremely able body of principals of level attainments, the memory recalling with some satisfaction the several performances of Messrs. Frank Clarke, Edward Davies, Arthur Winckworth, Frederick Clendon, Misses Doris Woodall, Dora Gibson, Beatrice Miranda, Dorothy Lawson-Tayler, and one must not forget the Three Genii in 'The Magic Flute.'

Particular attention would appear to have been bestowed on revivals of 'Aïda' and 'Merry Wives of Windsor,' the late Carl Rosa having undertaken the latter as long ago as 1878. With Miss Woodall and Mr. Winckworth in the cast, opera-goers were assured a merry evening. It may be recorded with much satisfaction that the performance of 'The Magic Flute' attained a higher plane of all-round excellence than any others of the operas which have come under notice. Compressed to the three-hours limit, it ran its course with the requisite lightness and grace. Wolff-Ferrari's 'Jewels of the Madonna' grips one more and more as familiarity with the score is increased. The musical symbolism is uncommonly apt to the varied situations, and the central motive of the libretto is both intelligible and in its development pursued with fine dramatic sureness of touch; the tendency towards tragic gloom is relieved by the brightness of the choral interludes and the entr'acte music. To those accustomed to the rather dingy, cramped conditions of the Manchester theatres used for opera, the bright spaciousness of the Blackpool Opera House makes an especial appeal.

'THE IMMORTAL HOUR' AT BOURNEMOUTH.

MR. RUTLAND BOUGHTON'S NEW WORK.

During the week ending January 9, four performances of Rutland Boughton's new music-drama, 'The Immortal Hour,' were given at Bournemouth. It is common knowledge that prior to the War Mr. Boughton's scheme for an Arthurian Festival Theatre at Glastonbury had made considerable headway, so much so that it was hoped to complete the preparations for a production on a large scale in August of last year. A variety of circumstances, however, thwarted the full realisation of these projects, and a less ambitious plan had to be substituted. Though disappointing to the promoters, it may be conjectured that it was to the unfulfilment of their long cherished desires that we owed the additional Bournemouth performances; for had the Glastonbury venture been carried out in its entirety there would hardly have been any occasion for performances elsewhere; so, in this sense, Glastonbury's loss has been Bournemouth's gain.

'The Immortal Hour' is an adaptation from the drama by Fiona Macleod (William Sharp), a legendary Irish story telling of the loves of Etain, a girl of the Færy Folk, and Eochaidh, the King, and of Etain's departure to the Land of Heart's Desire at the summons of Midir, prince of the Færy Folk: influencing the thoughts and deeds of these characters lurks Dalua, 'the Shadow that lies behind Life.' Whether there is any subtle mystic meaning beneath the fantasy itself it is impossible to decide, for undoubtedly these old legends can be read in many ways. It is enough, perhaps, that 'The Immortal Hour' is inherently poetical, and that Mr. Boughton's share of the work is worthy of the theme. In its mode of expression it is somewhat analogous to the Greek drama, particularly in its revelation of the thoughts and motives of the dramatis personæ rather than the actions which these emotions beget; consequently the movement is slow, but this in itself is no disadvantage if it correspond with the composer's requirements. A pleasing feature in the work is the reliance which the composer has placed in his chorus. Although he seems to have dispensed for the time being with the 'living' or 'dancing scenery' which obtains so much prominence in his Arthurian music-drama, yet he still retains the chorus as a valuable and important element in the unfolding of the story: and in this he has done well, for thereby he allies himself with those who regard choral music as the legitimate precursor of an English national school. The music as a whole can be considered the best piece of work that Mr. Boughton has yet accomplished; it is entirely appropriate, the orchestra is never permitted to over-emphasise the situation, and there are many moments of real charm and beauty. Few, surely, can agree with the cognoscenti who have expressed the opinion that it has long periods of dulness. And were it so, what composer is able to maintain an equally exalted level throughout a lengthy work? Even the greatest have nodded occasionally; and those who condemn 'The Immortal Hour' because it does not reveal a uniform inspiration are those who miss the full flavour of such fine music as accompanies the appearance of Etain in the first Act, the beautiful scene between Etain and Eochaidh in the peasant's hut, and the magnificently virile music for Midir shortly after his entrance. The music, indeed, has a fine melodic flow, and the originality and general effectiveness of the orchestration are very pronounced. The freshness of his ideas bodes well for Mr. Boughton's future as a leader in that little army which is furthering the establishment of a national musical art. We know that he has ideals; we know also that his belief in his own countrymen is strong. By gathering around him clever coadjutors imbued with the same sincerity of purpose as himself, it is within his power to erect such a temple of art at Glastonbury as will astonish the musical community. It cannot be expected that Mr. Boughton will find it possible to bear the whole brunt of the musical work at the projected Festival Theatre; nor, perhaps, would this be wise. It may be hoped, therefore, that he will win the goodwill and co-operation of those composers—such as Elgar, Vaughan-Williams, Walford Davies, Balfour Gardiner, Percy Grainger, and others—who are already helping to found the new English School. Mr. Boughton himself has perhaps done as much as any of the younger British composers to further the cause of that which has hitherto been called 'opera' but for which we must now coin a more appropriate name; surely his persistence and tenacity should lead to greater activity on the part of others, especially as the way will be to some extent prepared for them.

The cast of 'The Immortal Hour' was an unusually adequate one. Both Mr. Frederick Austin (Eochaidh) and Mr. Herbert Langley (Dalua) proved themselves towers of strength, the former sterling artist investing his rôle with all those musicianly attributes that we have learned to expect from him, and Mr. Langley's singing was full of significance and resource. Miss Marjorie Ffrançon Davies was a very charming Etain, her performance being singularly simple and tender. Mr. Arthur Jordan (Midir) made good use of a delightfully fresh-toned voice, and the minor characters were all well done. One fault, however, was rather too general to escape notice: this was a decided weakness in the diction, whereby our complete enjoyment in the performance was somewhat endangered. Mr. Charles Kennedy-Scott, who is quickly building up a reputation in the Metropolis as a choral conductor, directed the orchestra and chorus with much skill, and a large measure of the successful outcome must be credited to the first-rate orchestral playing. Both the dancing and the staging, too, were as tasteful as the enforced limitations of the Winter Gardens Pavilion would permit. Mr. Boughton was obliged to respond to the acclamations of a delighted audience, who evidently wished also to express their gratitude to Mr. Dan Godfrey—the British composers' best friend—for giving them the opportunity of witnessing such a thoroughly artistic production.

Hamilton Law.

THE BRISTOL MADRIGAL SOCIETY.

Special interest attached to the Ladies' Night of the Bristol Madrigal Society on January 14, as it was the fiftieth occasion upon which Mr. D. W. Rootham conducted these annual performances. As usual the concert was held in the Victoria Rooms, though there had been a fear that the building would not be available, as troops have been billeted there.

The programme was as follows:

'God save the King' .. .. Horsley.
'All creatures now' .. .. Benet.
'Sweet honey-sucking bees' .. .. Wilbye.
'Thine eyes so bright' .. .. Leslie.
'Lady, see on every side' .. .. .. Marenzio.
'Ode on time' (specially composed for the occasion) Stanford.
'The silver swan' .. .. Gibbons.
'The nightingale' .. .. Mendelssohn.
'As Vesta was' .. .. Weelkes.
'Matona, lovely maiden' .. .. Lassus.
'A shepherd in a glade' .. .. C. B. Rootham.
'My bonny lass' .. .. Morley.
'Sweete floweres' .. .. Walmisley.
'Camilla fair' .. .. Bateson.
'Sir Patrick Spens' .. .. Pearsall.
'In going to my lonely bed' .. .. .. Edwards.
'Lady, when I behold' .. .. Wilbye.
'La belle dame' (specially composed for the occasion) Parry.
'When flow'ry meadows' .. .. .. Palestrina.
'O sweetly sleep' .. .. Pierson.
'Song of night' .. .. Mendelssohn.
'The waits' .. .. Savile.

Sir Charles Stanford's setting of Milton's 'Ode on Time' is an exacting work of high quality, and was well appreciated by the audience. Keats's 'La Belle Dame sans Merci' was set by Sir Hubert Parry to music that is elaborate, though engaging. Sir Hubert in a letter wrote significantly, 'I dare say it is difficult, but I thought it might give a choir such as yours something to tackle.' The piece presents many beauties, and it is highly esteemed by the Society. A third contribution by a living composer was that of Dr. Cyril B. Rootham, son of the conductor, whose effort 'A shepherd in a glade' gained the Musical Times prize in 1904, and has become a favourite on the ladies' nights. It once more met with a cordial reception. During the interval Dr. Basil Harwood (the president of the Society), on behalf of a large number of subscribers, presented Mr. D. W. Rootham with a silver rose bowl and a cheque for £150, and on behalf of the Old Boys of the Society with a pair of silver candlesticks. The Lord Mayor of Bristol (Alderman J. Swaish) spoke in praise of Mr. Rootham and of the beneficent influence he had exercised upon the music of the city. Mr. Rootham, who was much affected, said in response that if he could do anything for the Society in the future nothing would give him greater pleasure. Among those present at the concert were Sir Hubert Parry, Sir Charles Villiers Stanford, Sir Edward Cooper (chairman of the Council of the Royal Academy of Music), Mr. E. Nicholls (president of the Madrigal Society), Dr. C. Harford Lloyd, and Dr. Cyril B. Rootham.

Musicians in theatrical orchestras and elsewhere, thrown out of work by the War, have at least one fresh opening—the military bands of the new corps in Kitchener's Army. Bandsmen, for instance (for all instruments), are wanted for the Second Sportsman's Battalion, Royal Fusiliers. These must enlist, and they will draw the usual Army pay, but they will also be paid for any private engagements they fulfil. All applications should be made to the Sergt.-Drummer, Second Sportsman's Battalion, Hotel Cecil, Strand, (Embankment Entrance), daily from 12 to 1 or from 2 to 4 p.m.

London Concerts.

THE ROYAL CHORAL SOCIETY.

On New Year's Day a performance of 'The Messiah' was given by this Society at the Royal Albert Hall under the direction of Sir Frederick Bridge. The singing was always of high merit, and greatly impressed a large audience. The admirable quality of the tone was particularly noticeable. Miss Esta d'Argo (replacing Miss Ruth Vincent), Madame Clara Butt, Mr. Ben Davies, and Mr. Herbert Brown gave interesting interpretations of the solo numbers, and Mr. H. L. Balfour did good service at the organ. A second performance of 'The Messiah' was given on January 16, when Miss Ruth Vincent was able to appear as soprano soloist.

QUEEN'S HALL ORCHESTRA.

The annual New Year concert took place on the afternoon of December 2, under Sir Henry Wood's direction. A familiar programme included the 'William Tell,' 'Tannhäuser,' and '1812' Overtures, the 'Peer Gynt' Suite, Järnefeldt's 'Præludium,' and Walford Davies's 'Solemn Melody.' Saint-Säens's A minor Violoncello concerto was played by Signor Enrico Mainardi.

At the Symphony Concert on January 16 it was shown that César Franck's Symphony, in spite of its austerities, has a strong hold upon the public favour. Under Sir Henry Wood's direction the Orchestra gave a performance that was full of purpose, well-studied and deep expression, and glowing colour. The audience showed thorough appreciation, and the work may at length be said to have established itself in London. In sharp contrast came Lalo's 'Symphonie Espagnole' for violin, played by Miss Marie Hall, whose reading was graceful and skilfully executed. The remainder of the programme consisted of Granville Bantock's delightful tone-poem 'The Pierrot of the minute,' which is heard too seldom, Delius's 'Dance Rhapsody,' Bach's fourth 'Brandenburg' Concerto, and a Minuet in D of Mozart.

THE LONDON TRIO.

These excellent musicians gave the first Chamber Concert of the year on January 6, at the Æolian Hall, when Arensky's Trio in F minor and Brahms's Sonata in F for pianoforte and violoncello were the principal items. M. Pécskai played Tartini's 'Devil's Trill' Sonata, and Miss Geraldine Jesse was the singer. There was a large audience.

The first New-Year's 'Music Meeting' of the Society of Women Musicians was held on January 16 at the Woman's Institute, Victoria Street, Madame Elsie Horne undertaking the arrangement of the programme. The executants were Miss Ethel Bilsland (vocalist), Miss Ethel Ullhorn-Zillhardt (violoncello), Madame Elsie Horne (pianoforte), and Miss Marjorie Hermon (accompanist). The programme included amongst other items the first movement of Rachmaninov's Sonata in G minor for violoncello and pianoforte, the 'Bell Song' (Délibes), and two new songs by Elsie Horne. The next meeting will be held at the Woman's Institute on February 20, when the programme will be arranged by Miss Jessie Grimson.

'The Messiah' was given by the Alexandra Palace Choral Society at the Northern Polytechnic on January 16. The choir responded to Mr. Allen Gill's beat with its usual expressive power and certainty of execution, and good solo singing was provided by Miss Carrie Tubb, Miss Amy Holman, Mr. Frank Webster, and Mr. Joseph Farrington.

Humperdinck's 'Hänsel und Gretel' was performed at 'Cosmopolis' on January 16, by students of the London School of Opera. Special praise is due to Miss Mabel Corran and Miss Evelyn Matthews in the title parts. The plot was previously explained in French for the benefit of the Belgian children who formed the bulk of the audience.

Suburban Concerts.

Elgar's 'King Olaf' was performed more than creditably by the People's Palace Choral and Orchestral Society on January 16 under the direction of Mr. Frank Idle. In spite of the difficulties of the music the choralists sang with notable precision and expressive power. The solo parts were taken by Miss Gertrude Blomfield, Mr. Webster Millar, and Mr. George Baker.

The Hither Green Choral and Orchestral Society gave a very good miscellaneous concert on January 21. The Choric Song from 'The Lotus Eaters' (C. Hubert H. Parry) was the chief work. In this and a song by Mr. Montague Phillips Miss Marion Boughton distinguished herself. Mr. Frederick Ranalow, Miss Maxted (harp), Miss Italia M. Caraco (violin), were other attractions. Mr. Ernest Dumayne conducted capably. This is his first season with the Society.

Music in the Provinces.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

BIRMINGHAM.

Before the close of the year 1914, two concerts were given, the one by the Midland Institute School of Music orchestra on December 14, and the other at the Town Hall on Boxing Night by the Birmingham Festival Choral Society. The Concert at the Midland Institute was conducted by Prof. Granville Bantock, and the chief interest centred in the performance of two student compositions, which showed undoubted ability and musicianship, the more noteworthy being 'Variations on the old English melody "Sumer is icumen in,"' by H. Graham Godfrey, who conducted. The other composition was a Romance for pianoforte and orchestra by William J. Fenney, founded on 'The Bell' by Hans Andersen, chiefly characterized by its idyllic and strongly imaginative charm. Mr. Clarence Raybould, a former student of the School, contributed a 'Lullaby,' well sung by Miss Mary Foster. The programme also contained a Suite for orchestra, 'In the olden style,' by Alfred T. Warwick, and Hamish MacCunn's Overture 'Land of the mountain and the flood,' the interesting concert concluding with a vivid exposition of Havergal Brian's brilliant 'Festal Dance,' with Mr. Arthur Cooke as pianist.

The Festival Choral Society's Concert on Boxing Night consisted of the annual performance of 'The Messiah,' given under Dr. Sinclair's conductorship before a crowded assembly, which as usual applauded every number as if a miscellaneous concert were proceeding. The choir sang with its customary sonority of tone and unfailing precision. The excellent array of principals included Miss Carrie Tubb, Miss Phyllis Lett, Mr. Frank J. Webster, Mr. Herbert Brown, and Mr. C. W. Perkins (organ).

In aid of the Belgian Refugees, the Birmingham Burns Club gave a concert in the Town Hall on January 9, under the presidency of Dr. A. R. Oliver. The already lengthy programme, which was nearly doubled by encores, was provided by Mr. Hugh McNeilly's concert party of Scottish artists, which included Miss Violet Thomson, Miss Isabel Wilkie, Mr. W. A. Ferguson, and Mr. Hugh McNeilly (vocalists), Miss Nancy Lee (violin), and Mr. Forbes Forsyth (accompanist). The vocalists displayed excellent voices of considerable tone-power, and the violinist proved herself to be a performer of high artistic attainments. The organist was Mr. C. W. Perkins.

Owing to the War, the Midland Institute Conversazione, which generally takes place in the second week of January, has been abandoned for this year, in consequence of which the Birmingham Amateur Opera Society cannot produce its customary operatic work, which constitutes the musical attraction of the Conversazione.

Under the auspices of the Birmingham Chamber Concerts Society, and under the direction of Mr. Gerald Forty, a high-class concert was given at the Royal Society of Artists' Gallery on January 19, the executive again being the Catterall Quartet, assisted by Miss Lilias Dunlop (viola). The programme included String quintets by Mozart and Brahms, Hugo Wolf's 'Italian Serenade,' and a String quartet by Balfour Gardiner.

BOURNEMOUTH.

Now that we have completed the first half of the winter season it is possible to form some opinion of the effect that the War has had upon music and musical undertakings. We shall not attempt here to summarise the conclusions at which most of those who are connected with music in some sphere or other have arrived, but we can deduce from those opinions and from experience in general that Bournemouth may be accounted fortunate in that she has been able to 'carry on' with less inconvenience than most of our big towns have suffered. Of course, concert performances only tell half the tale, but merely to reckon up the Winter Gardens activities will bring the conviction that matters might easily be worse. In spite of the War and the weather, the Symphony and other concerts continue their onward march, much to the delight of those who find in music a sure solace in these times of anxiety and peril. At the first-named there have been several performances of outstanding excellence, and many attractive works, new and old, have been played. Of these we may cite the following as of special interest and importance: 'Benvenuto Cellini' Overture (Berlioz), Symphony in F (Brahms), Concert Valse by Glazounov (first performance here), Tchaikovsky's fifth Symphony, 'Rosamunde' Overture (Schubert), Rimsky-Korsakov's Symphony No. 1 (first Bournemouth performance), Tarantella (Chopin-Glazounov), two Flemish Dances (Blockx), Dvorák's 'New World' Symphony, and Dukas's 'Polyeucte' Overture (first performance at these concerts), and 'L'Apprenti Sorcier' Scherzo. Three other first performances here were those of Arnold Trowell's new Violoncello concerto—a very pleasing and melodious work, in which the solo part was played splendidly by Mr. Trowell himself—Frank Tapp's Symphony, 'The Tempest,' and Dr. Charles Maclean's Character Piece, 'The First Ball'—each of these latter being conducted by the composer.

No less instructive and quite as enjoyable have been the Monday 'Pops,' of which we give the principal points of interest: December 14, Russian Nationalist Composers (Overture on Three Themes by Balakirev; Ballet music, 'Prince Igor,' by Borodine; Miniature Suite by Cui; Fantasia, 'Une nuit sur le Mont Chauve,' by Moussorgsky; Suite, 'Scheherazade,' by Rimsky-Korsakov). December 21: 'Christmastide' programme ('The cricket on the hearth' Overture, by A. C. Mackenzie; the Bach-Gounod 'Ave Maria'; 'Winter,' from 'The Seasons,' by Edward German; Meditation, 'Lux Christi,' by Elgar; Rêverie, 'The voice of the bells,' by Luigini). December 28, French Composers (Marche Hongroise, Ballet des Sylphes, Minuet des Follets, from 'Faust,' by Berlioz; Suite No. 1, 'L'Arlésienne,' by Bizet). January 4, 'Wagner' programme (Flower Maidens' Chorus, and Good Friday Music from 'Parsifal'; Wotan's Farewell and Fire Music, 'The Valkyrie'; Siegmund's Love Song; 'Forest Murmurs' from 'Siegfried'; 'The Flying Dutchman' Overture). January 11, 'Fairy Tales' programme (Cherubini's 'Ali Baba' Overture; Overture, 'Hansel and Gretel,' and Dream Pantomime from the same opera, by Humperdinck; Ballet, 'The Sleeping Beauty,' by Tchaikovsky).

Madame Alys Bateman, Mr. Percy Frostick, and Mr. Eduard Parlovitz were heard to moderate advantage in a concert of Russian music on December 19, but this has been the only event of this nature. On January 5 the Municipal Choir and Orchestra put the powers of attraction of Handel's 'Messiah' again to the proof, and with the happiest results. Mr. Dan Godfrey's direction of the united forces was an inspiration to all concerned. The soloists were Miss Sybil Vane, Miss Alice Lakin, Mr. John Booth, and Mr. Robert Radford.

An account of the Bournemouth production of 'The Immortal Hour' (Rutland Boughton)—perhaps the chief event of last month—appears elsewhere in this issue (p. 107).

DEVON AND CORNWALL.

PLYMOUTH.

Concerts for War Funds or for the entertainment of the troops continue to occupy solely the attention of performers and the public. The provision for the latter purpose is systematic and thorough. The Y.M.C.A. have organized a system whereby with the co-operation of musicians of all grades, professional and amateur, entertainments are regularly provided free for the troops in hutments, tents and halls, in barracks and in camps. That these concerts are appreciated a first visit alone is sufficient to convince. In most cases in the outlying forts the men are recruits of Kitchener's Army and are living under the roughest conditions, yet their chivalry, courtesy, and gratitude to the artists would serve as model for a picked audience. The sight of the men standing or sitting packed close in rapt attention has pathos as well as humour, and stirs the deepest feelings of the heart. The music which best pleases Tommy and Jack is that of the sweetly sentimental and the stirringly patriotic and martial kinds. Either of these he quickly learns, and he does not wait for an invitation to join in the singing. In quite a large number of cases genuine talent and gift for playing or singing have been discovered, and this entertainment of music in time of war is not without features which may give it lasting importance. Even the musicians who in other conditions find rag-time and the popular songs articles of abhorrence may be discovered cordially helping along the concert in the spirit of the moment.

In aid of the Queen's 'Work for Women' Fund, Dr. Weekes's Orchestral Society gave a concert on December 16, 1914, at which several works were represented by one movement—a procedure to be condemned on artistic grounds. The Symphony in C minor of Gade (one movement) was the most important work of the band; the last movement of a Sonata for pianoforte and violoncello by Rubinstein, and pieces by Reinecke, Beethoven, Bizet, and Mendelssohn, were given. The string-players of the Extempore Chamber Music Club, who are also members of the orchestra, played the slow movement from Tchaikovsky's Quartet in D. Dr. Weekes and Mr. Walter Weekes conducted, and the vocalists were Miss Tresise and Mr. Robert Chignell.

The War has interrupted the formal meetings of the Extempore Chamber Music Club, but the playing members have continued to meet privately on Sundays, and much good work has been accomplished in an enhanced ensemble and chamber music technique, and acquaintance with works new and old.

The annual performances of 'The Messiah' by the Guildhall Choir, conducted by the borough organist, on January 2, had the assistance of a good string orchestra and of the Misses Mary Leighton and Winifred Lewis, and Messrs. Sydney Coltham and Joseph Farrington as principal vocalists.

OTHER DEVONSHIRE TOWNS.

The arrangements announced for the early spring by the management of the Torquay Pavilion show no diminution of interest. A special Christmas programme given by the orchestra, conducted by Mr. Basil Cameron, included a Shakesperian concert. The violinist, Melsa, the Russian prima donna, Madame Kontratov, and the boy pianist, Solomon, have performed. Other characteristic programmes have been Russian, Sullivan, and a soldiers' concert.

Miss Marian Pearson, a lady who has resided in Egypt, obtained some very interesting Egyptian and Arabic music for incidental use in a play of her own authorship, 'Broken barriers,' of which the scene is laid in Egypt, and which was played at Babbacombe on January 6. The Arabic music was by Mansour Awad, Sami A. Chawat, and M. Abdel Messih (Cairo). Oriental songs from other sources were introduced, and the musical setting of the scenes indicated the distinctive touch and tact of the artist. The author herself played the pianoforte and directed the performance.

Miss E. Knight Bruce (violin) and Mr. H. G. Ley (pianoforte) devoted the proceeds of their annual chamber concert at Exeter, on January 8, to patriotic purposes. They secured the assistance of Mr. O. Borsdorf, jun. (horn), and the Horn trio of Brahms and a Sonata for pianoforte and horn by Beethoven (Op. 17) were played. Among other pieces, Miss Beatrice Betts sang some songs composed by Mr. Ley.

CORNWALL.

On Boxing Day, St. Ives Choral Society, conducted by Mr. E. White, sang 'The Rose Maiden.' At Camborne, on January 1, a choir of nearly 500 voices sang anthems and choruses under the direction of Mr. H. V. Pearce. Carol singing is usually a prominent feature of Camborne life during the Christmas season, and though the parties were fewer in number in the past season than formerly, the custom was well maintained. A Christmas concert was given by the Wesleyan Centenary choir, conducted by Mr. F. E. Luke.

DUBLIN.

The Sunday Orchestral Concerts re-commenced after the Christmas vacation on January 10. Dr. Esposito played Beethoven's 'Waldstein' sonata, Op. 53. Miss Fanny Vincent (soprano) was the vocalist, and the orchestral items included three entr'actes from Schubert's 'Rosamunde,' Wagner's 'Waldweben,' and Smetana's 'Bartered Bride' Overture. On January 17, Beethoven's second Symphony was the chief orchestral piece, and the strings of the band also played Percy Grainger's 'Molly on the shore.' Mr. P. J. Griffith was the solo violinist, and Mr. Irvine Lynch (bass) the vocalist.

The chamber music recitals of the Royal Dublin Society were resumed on January 11, when Dr. Esposito, Signor Simonetti, and Mr. Clyde Twelvetrees played Beethoven's Trio in E flat, Op. 70, No. 2, and Brahms's Horn trio, Op. 40. Much interest was taken in the first performance of Dr. Esposito's new Sonata for violin and pianoforte in A, Op. 67, which was beautifully played by Signor Simonetti and the composer, and cordially received. The War prevented the Pianoforte recital arranged for January 18 by Mr. Harold Bauer from taking place.

On January 9 a concert was given in the Theatre Royal for a fund to provide comforts for the 7th Battalion Royal Dublin Fusiliers when it goes to the Front. A huge audience, headed by the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland and the Marchioness of Aberdeen, filled every seat in the theatre, and the net result was a profit of £203. Mr. John Coates, Madame Borel, Miss Jean Nolan, Mr. Percy Whitehead, and the Carlton Quartet (Miss Lilian Whittaker, Miss Edith Mortier, Messrs. W. Lewin, and Mr. T. W. Hall) were the vocalists. Signor Simonetti, Mr. Clyde Twelvetrees, and Dr. Esposito (who played Mr. John Coates's accompaniments) were the instrumental soloists, and Mr. C. W. Wilson the accompanist. The programme included Miss Alice M. Finny's dramatic sketch 'The Call,' a sketch by Mr. Percy French and Miss Florence Marks, and orchestral items contributed by the theatre orchestra under the conductorship of Mr. John Moody.

On January 12, in the Unitarian Church, Mons J. Stuyck, late professor and organist at Notre Dame College, Antwerp, and now a refugee at Dublin, gave an interesting organ recital on the organ built in 1911 by J. W. Walker & Sons, of London.

EDINBURGH.

The features of recent concerts of Messrs. Paterson's Orchestral series have been as follows: On December 21, Miss May Harrison was solo violinist in Brahms's Concerto; on December 28, Miss Rosina Buckman, Mr. Frank Mullings, and Mr. Robert Radford were vocalists at a Wagner concert; on January 4, Mr. Alfred Hollins was solo organist in Guilmant's Symphony in D minor, and Mr. Inches took the place of Emil Mlynarski as conductor. Bronislav Huberman gave an impressive performance of Beethoven's Violin concerto. On January 18, Sapellnikov entranced the audience by his interpretation of Schumann's A minor Pianoforte concerto. At the same concert, Brahms's C minor Symphony received an inspired performance under the baton of Mlynarski.

On December 26, Mr. Moonie's Choir gave its annual performance of 'The Messiah,' ending with the Hallelujah Chorus. A portion of Wagner's 'Parsifal' was added to complete the programme. On January 1, the Royal Choral Union gave an afternoon performance of 'The Messiah,' and a Scotch Concert in the evening. On the same evening, Mr. Moonie's Choir gave a similar concert in the Music Hall. But for these concerts musical enterprise would be at a standstill.

GLASGOW.

On December 20 the Bach Choir, under Mr. J. M. Diack, gave its annual performance of the 'Christmas Oratorio' in St. Mary's Cathedral, and was most skilfully accompanied by Mr. G. T. Pattman, the Cathedral organist.

At the seventh Classical Concert on December 22 the Misses May and Beatrice Harrison made a successful first appearance here as soloists in Brahms's Concerto in A minor for violin and violoncello with orchestra (Op. 102). On Christmas Eve the Scottish Orchestra gave a patriotic concert in aid of the National War Fund. In addition to some other choral numbers, the Choral Union sang the National Anthems of Britain, France, Russia, Belgium, Servia, and Japan, and the orchestral programme ranged from Elgar's 'Pomp and Circumstance' to 'Tipperary.' The appearance of Mr. Hutton Malcolm, a local musician, who at very short notice took Mr. Robert Burnett's place and programme as solo vocalist, is worthy of special mention, as is also his dramatic performance of 'The Dowie Dens of Yarrow,' a 'prize' ballad, the composition of T. S. Drummond, another highly accomplished local musician.

A Wagner programme was given at the eighth Classical Concert on December 29, the selection including the first Act of 'Die Walküre' (Miss Rosina Buckman and Messrs. F. Mullings and R. Radford), the love duet from the third Act of 'Lohengrin' (Miss Buckman and Mr. Mullings), and Hans Sachs's Monologue from 'Die Meistersinger.' The customary New Year's Day performance of 'The Messiah' was given by the Choral Union under Mr. Henri Verbrugghen, the work being repeated before a popular audience on January 14. The Y.M.C.A. Choral Institute's 'Messiah' concert on January 4 calls for special notice as demonstrating the results of valuable educational work done by Mr. R. L. Reid, the conductor. The choruses were sung with commendable precision and accuracy. Mr. Cole's orchestra, with Mr. B. W. Hartley as organist, gave the accompaniments.

Miss Winifred Christie was solo pianist at the tenth Classical Concert on January 5, taking part in Saint-Saëns's Pianoforte concerto in C minor, and César Franck's Symphonic variations for pianoforte and orchestra. Two novelties were included in the programme, Hamilton Harty's 'Comedy overture' and Florent Schmitt's Suite 'Reflets d'Allemagne,' the former being especially well received. The outstanding feature—indeed one of the most noteworthy events of the present concert season—was the début of Mr. Albert Sammons as solo violinist at the eleventh Classical Concert on January 12. Mr. Sammons's magnificent interpretation of Beethoven's Violin concerto made a very deep impression, and secured for the soloist an ovation seldom accorded at these concerts.

M. Sapellnikov was the chief attraction at the twelfth Classical Concert on January 19. Splendidly supported by the Scottish Orchestra, he gave a very brilliant performance of Schumann's Pianoforte concerto in A minor, as well as a group of solos which included the performer's own Gavotte in E major and Liszt's sixth Rhapsody. The symphony was Brahms's No. 1 in C minor, and Slavonic music—of which there has been no lack this season—was represented by a first performance here of a Fantasia for orchestra by Moussorgsky.

So far the Saturday Popular Orchestral Concerts have proved that we do not want for highly capable solo performers in our own ranks—this with special reference to the successful appearance of Miss Bessie Spence as solo violinist and Mr. Wilfrid Senior as solo pianist. At one of the concerts M. Mlynarski, the conductor, and Mr. Horace Fellowes, the leader of the Scottish Orchestra, played a Bach Concerto for two violins.

At the City Hall Saturday Evening Concerts the Glasgow Orpheus Choir (Mr. H. S. Roberton) gave an evening for the benefit of the Belgian Relief Fund.

LIVERPOOL.

The seventh Philharmonic Concert on January 12 was conducted by Sir Henry Wood, whose interpretation of Brahms's third Symphony revealed the qualities of expression and sincerity which the music possesses beyond its constructive interest. Rimsky-Korsakov's strenuous overture, 'Ivan the Terrible,' Ravel's 'Pavane sur une Infante défunte,' and Percy Grainger's 'Irish tune from County Derry' and 'Shepherd's Hey' completed a well-diversified scheme, the choir being heard in two part-songs by Brahms and in Dudley Buck's 'Hymn to Music.'

Unusual interest attached to this concert as the first occasion on which the famous violinist Ysäye has played in public since his adventurous escape from Belgium. As was César Franck, M. Ysäye is a native of Liège, and his home was in Brussels. What has become of his summer villa at Knocke he does not know. M. Ysäye and his family, with the exception of two sons and a son-in-law now fighting in King Albert's army, escaped to England after enduring manifold hardships by land and sea. They lost all their baggage, but Ysäye managed to save his priceless Strad, upon which he played on this occasion Viotti's Violin concerto, No. 22, in A minor, with all his old executive mastery and suavity of tone. It was evident that M. Ysäye was greatly touched by the unmistakable outburst of sympathy which greeted his appearance. His playing of Viotti's melodious if old-fashioned material was remarkable for its depth and tenderness of expression. In Beethoven's Romance in G and Saint-Saëns's 'Havanaise' M. Ysäye had further opportunities to display his exceptional qualities, technical and temperamental.

At the Rodewald Club Concert on January 11, the programme was sustained by Mr. Frederic Brandon and Mr. Vivian Burrows, who collaborated in Brahms's Sonata in A, Op. 100, for pianoforte and violin, and César Franck's Sonata for the same instruments, a familiar masterpiece of which these gifted young players gave a delightful interpretation.

The Moody-Manners Opera Company has received unmistakable signs of public appreciation and support during its season at Kelly's Theatre, which commenced on Boxing Day. It has performed a round of familiar operas, including 'Carmen,' 'Martha' (a highly-popular revival), 'The daughter of the regiment,' 'Maritana,' and 'Satanella.'

A special concert of the Akeroyd Symphony Orchestra was given in the Philharmonic Hall on Boxing Day, at which the extraordinary interpretation of the boy pianist, Solomon, in Tchaikovsky's B flat Pianoforte concerto, marked a further stage in his artistic development, especially in the virility and resolution of his playing. As usual Mr. Akeroyd had drawn up an attractive scheme. It included the 'Oberon' Overture, Massenet's 'Scènes Pittoresques,' and Luigini's 'Russian Ballet' Suite,—easily assimilated music and excellently played. It was noticeable that the orchestra was usefully augmented by lady string-players from the Societa Armonica, which has the advantage of Mr. Akeroyd's fine experience as conductor.

The concert of the Welsh Choral Union on December 19 had a melancholy interest in being the first performance given after the death of Mr. Harry Evans, whose last public appearance was as conductor of Brahms's 'Requiem' on March 28. 'The Messiah' was therefore fitly preluded by Handel's Dead March in 'Saul,' played as a tribute to Mr. Evans's memory. To those who knew and loved him the simple, solemn strains gave an added pang to the sense of irrevocable loss. It was painful to realise that we shall no more see this ardent, magnetic, masterful spirit in his accustomed place. There is no doubt he is truly mourned. A very good performance of the 'Messiah' was given, following as closely as possible the accustomed lines. The vocal principals were Miss Evans Williams, who sang extremely well; Miss Hilda Cragg-James, an excellent local contralto; Mr. John Booth, who has a tendency unduly to accentuate the dramatic possibilities of the music; and Mr. Herbert Brown, who was in fine voice. Mr. Alfred Benton was an able and discreet organist, and Mr. Akeroyd led the orchestra, which had been cut down in the brass department to one trumpet, one trombone, and two horns. As the guest-conductor of the concert,

Mr. John Watkyn, of Dowlais, filled a somewhat difficult rôle with great credit. He secured a careful and steady all-round performance, and may be commended for his general adherence to customary tempi. Mr. Watkyn will have another opportunity of conducting the splendid material of the Welsh Choral Union at its second concert on February 6.

The programme-book of this 'Messiah' concert will be widely cherished as a souvenir, for it contains an interesting memoir of the late Mr. Harry Evans, reproduced from the Musical Times, and also a reproduction of an excellent photograph taken by Mr. Llew. Wynne, secretary of the Welsh Choral Union.

Conducted by Mr. P. H. Ingram, a 'Messiah' performance was given by the Liverpool Choral Society in the Central Hall on December 26, with Madame Naomi Bell, Miss Helen Anderton, Mr. Arthur Wilkes, and Mr. Charles Leeds as vocal principals.

Among the noticeable events of the past month was the pianoforte and violin recital given in the Rushworth Hall on January 14 by Mr. Roland Brewerton and Mr. Gordon E. Stutely, who ably sustained an interesting programme which included Grieg's Sonata in F. Mr. Brewerton revealed high accomplishment as a pianist in his solos, notably in the 'Moonlight' sonata.

At the concert of the Anfield Orchestral Society on January 20, Mr. William Faulkes was the solo pianist in Chopin's F minor Concerto, and in Saint-Saëns's Septuor for strings, trumpet (Mr. Pierpoint), and pianoforte. Mr. Faulkes, as conductor of this Society, has gathered round him a goodly array of earnest amateurs led by Mr. Frank Creswell, although military service has taken toll in several departments of the orchestra. Mrs. Howard Stephens contributed songs by Mozart, Arne, and Kjerulf.

Two of the Corporation fiftieth anniversary lectures which will specially attract local musical circles are those to be given on February 4 by Mr. Arnold Dolmetsch ('Old English music and musical instruments'), and on March 9 by Sir Frederick Bridge, whose subject is 'Milton and music' ('The masque of Comus').

MANCHESTER AND DISTRICT.

After an interval of many years there was an attempt, at Christmas, to challenge the supremacy of pantomime and children's Christmas plays, Mr. Brand Lane whipping together a choir for 'The Messiah' on Christmas night, and engaging Sir Henry Wood for a popular orchestral concert on Boxing Day. Probably the arrangements were ratified prior to July 31, or Mr. Lane would hardly have chosen this year to inaugurate what may be hoped will be a permanent feature of the Christmas vacation at Manchester. At Blackpool, thronged with additional visitors (military and otherwise) as it was, the attendances at similar concerts were not up to the average, but there an important opera season followed in the same week,—and everybody is spending more cautiously in these days.

Attendances at the opening Smoking Promenade Concerts of the New Year were well up to the average, if not overflowing as on some occasions in the autumn. The Hallé Choir busied itself in selling tickets for an 'Elijah' performance on the day prior to the resumption of the Hallé subscription series (rather a daring thing, considering that this also was a choral concert), and had the gratification of handing over the sum of £234 to the Belgian Fund. Mr. Wilson conducted, with local principal soloists save Mr. Robert Radford.

Up to the time of writing there have been five baritone entries from past or present students of the Royal Manchester College of Music in connection with the Beecham-Delius challenge issued in December (vide p. 38 in the January issue). The work, of course, is Delius's 'Sea Drift,' and there will be a special concert conducted by Beecham (after the close of the customary Hallé season) on March 24, at which this work will be given.

Only two of the Hallé concerts of January can be considered in this month's notice: that of January 7, conducted by Beecham, combined in a degree—rare even in his ably-drafted programmes—those elements of variety and novelty so stimulating alike to musical enjoyment and intellectual interest. Berlioz's 'Te Deum' occupied most of the evening. The work is one of Beecham's early loves, and as the choir had sung it under his baton in London only a month before, there was an easefulness in the performance not conspicuous when the same choralists sang it under Balling two years ago. Both playing and singing had greater zest than on that occasion. Mr. John Booth was the soloist in the 'Te Deum' and in Arnold Bax's 'Fatherland'—a part which he had to prepare after the afternoon rehearsal. The glowing colour of the orchestration impressed one more than on the occasion of its initial performance at Liverpool in 1909. Delius's 'Paris' and Stravinsky's last scene from 'Petrouchka' rounded off this concert; both were new to us here. The one dazzled and the other puzzled, and the audience would have been glad to hear both over again right away. Nobody who had not heard the Hallé band for, say, three or four years would have believed it possible for such ultra-modern music to have been handled as it was. One had the feeling, although in a different way, that as in Sibelius's last Symphony here was a composer with a direct, uncouth speech cutting right down to the simple bare essentials of his story, devoid of orchestral rhetoric, and with trimmings reduced to a minimum. The violence of its colouring assaulted the senses, and yet not in a repellent manner; then came passages that struck home by their absolute naïveté and beauty. Probably these impressions would be modified or entirely altered had the ballet accompanied the music. Before the end of the season we are to have more of M. Stravinsky.

Delius's 'Paris' links up with Elgar's 'Cockaigne'; and although written before much of Strauss's later work, anticipates in various degrees some of that composer's features of style. I do not easily recall an effect quite so ravishing as the Adagio con espressione, where the muted violins with quiet intensity sing the melody which leads into the Dance section. The general buoyancy of Beecham's reading contributed materially to the enthusiastic welcome of the work.

Sir Frederic Cowen's programme on January 21 contained more music of the recognized 'tuney' type than any of recent months. The romantic character of Dvorák's 'From the New-world' Symphony, the caprice of Rimsky-Korsakov, the brilliance of the third Tchaikovsky Suite (Op. 55), and of Edward German's 'Welsh Rhapsody,' were all amply realised under his direction. Possibly the opening of the 'Oberon' Overture was unduly drawn out, but the playing as a whole had every good feature, save absolute rhythmical precision.

The Society formerly known as the Salford Male-Voice Choir has extended its borders and is now known as the Manchester Lyric Glee Society. Its conductor, Mr. David Grundy, was I believe a former member of the Manchester Orpheus Society. During recent years it has gained some success at the smaller competitive Festivals in the Manchester area, and this winter has laudably done its share in raising about £60 for Red Cross and Relief Funds.

NEWCASTLE AND DISTRICT.

The annual performance of 'The Messiah' was given in the Town Hall on December 23 by the Newcastle and Gateshead Choral Union. The vocalists were Miss Marie Houghton, Miss Cecilia Kemp, Mr. H. Brearley, and Mr. Robert Radford, with Mr. Ceres Jackson as solo trumpeter. The accompaniments were played by Mr. Preston, who handled the venerable Town Hall organ with masterly skill. Dr. Coward conducted, and brought off his usual thrilling effects. He certainly lifts a performance of the old oratorio out of the conventional rut into which so many conductors have allowed it to fall. There was a crowded audience.

On January 16 the Newcastle and District local centre of the Free Church Musicians' Union held its monthly meeting in the Connaught Hall, Y.M.C.A., Blackett Street, Newcastle, when a performance of Bach's cantata 'Thou Guide of Israel' was presented to the members by the Jesmond Wesleyan Choir, under the leadership of Mr. John Heywood. The soloists were Miss Belle Fyfe and Mr. Frank Dewhirst, and Mr. R. S. Gustard was accompanist. Explanatory remarks were given by Mr. W. G. Whittaker, who has done so much, both privately and publicly, to spread a knowledge of Bach's works in the district. The chairman for the evening was Mr. F. J. Culley.

This Supplement is part also of the February issue of THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW, and can be obtained with the REVIEW, price 1½*d.*

The Competition Festival Record

No. 79.

CHORAL TECHNIQUE.

At the meeting of the Musical Association held on January 19, Dr. W. G. McNaught read a paper on 'Choral Technique.' At the outset he referred to the difficulty of dealing with a practical subject without being able to give illustrations, for which under the circumstances it was not possible to arrange. He would attempt only a general survey of the conditions of choral technique and its relation to the still more important matter of interpretation. He was not providing a text-book. All who desired instruction should consult Dr. Henry Coward's unique work on the subject. That work was the most remarkable and exhaustive contribution to the study of choral training that had appeared in any language. After tracing briefly the state of choral music in the first half of the 19th century, he thus summarized the music of the period:

Excluding big choral works of the oratorio type, in a survey of miniature musical forms that obtained favour we find that they are distinguished by tonal and rhythmic simplicity, and a strong melodic appeal. But they had one other characteristic feature in that the idiom in which they were cast was born of an intimate experience of the human voice. Examine Webbe's 'When winds breathe soft,' or his splendid 'Thy voice, O Harmony,' and it is seen that all the effects that appeal to the eye as being good, also appeal to the ear, because all the notes are pitched precisely in the right place for the effect designed. Take that gem of purest ray serene, Horsley's 'By Celia's arbour' (A.T.T.B.), and compare its linked sweetness long drawn out with an up-to-date modern part-song by some of our young bloods, who it must be feared think in terms of the pianoforte or perhaps of the orchestra when they are writing for voices, and apparently in terms of the Zoological Gardens when they write for the orchestra.

Two important influences were the provision of cheap music by Vincent Novello and the propaganda of John Hullah, who persuaded the nation that everyone could sing if they only tried. Then came the Tonic Sol-fa movement under John Curwen, which enabled millions to understand the elements of music. An important advance was made in the 'fifties by the establishment of Mr. Henry Leslie's famous choir. A new standard of choral execution was established, and its achievements affected composition:

The Victorian part-song was born of the needs of this choir. Nearly every contemporary British musician of standing wrote part-songs for its concerts. To-day we are apt to look down upon the products of this period, and to wonder that they should have excited so much interest and have occupied the resources of the finest choir in the country. The subject of these compositions was generally about the seasons—Spring, Summer, Autumn, Winter—Violets, Swallows flying home, Love songs, and wily inducements to babies to slumber. Their apotheosis was Barnby's 'Sweet and low' or Samuel Reay's 'Dawn of Day.' Henry Smart was a fertile contributor, and Hatton was scarcely less popular. But dainty and pretty as are many of these compositions they do not achieve the dignity and breadth found in the compositions of Pearsall and the Elizabethan madrigalists that so often appeared in Leslie's programmes. The contributions of Mr. Leslie himself also deserve special mention. Some of them are still in vogue, and one or two, notably 'The Lullaby of life,' are thought worthy the attention of the best choirs.

Then out of the Welsh Eisteddfod, and to a less extent of the festivals of the French Orpheus societies, grew the competition movement in England. So far back as 1862 we hear of competition successes. A choir under Mr. Joseph Proudman was successful at the 1867 Paris Exhibition, and in 1873 and 1874 national music competitions were held at the Crystal Palace. Then came Stratford (East London), and later Miss Wakefield with her socio-musical propaganda. But these local schemes were not conceived with a view to the cultivation of technique as to spread the practice of music amongst the whole community. The lecturer went on to say:

But clearly it was out of this movement that the greater competitions grew, and later in the 19th century choral technique began to make extraordinary advances. The attraction of a performance in a special arena before rivals for fame and the possibilities of a wreath of victory stimulated the closest study and turned rehearsal rooms into scientific workshops. The fact that there were in the country a great number of amateur and professional conductors who were born choir-trainers now became manifest. At the chief competition centres such as Morecambe and Blackpool the performances of choirs reached a standard of technique and interpretation hitherto undreamt of in this country. These performances were heard by the best of our native musicians, and evidently they were soon thinking of new potentialities of choral effect, and were acquiring an ominous faith in the boundless skill of choralists to deal with technical difficulties that included the most formidable barbed-wire entanglements.

It will be worth while at this stage to inquire as to what natural faculties and acquired skill may be regarded as the tonal equipment of a first-rate choralist. I offer the following rough tabulation:

(1) A sense of absolute pitch. This is a rare gift. I doubt whether it is of much use to a choral performer.

(2) A temporary memory of absolute pitch. This is elementary and indispensable. All perception of tonal relations is dependent upon this memory. Without it an interval could not be appreciated. People who do not possess this memory are said to have 'no ear.'

(3) The memory of Intervals. That is, the relation of the 'distance' (to use the conventional word) of one pitch to another. A small percentage of singers use this method of calculation successfully, but the great majority of readers from the staff notation apply it in a vague, unsystematic way until they have memorised the music.

(4) Memory of the effect of a scale-degree in its relation to all the other scale-degrees. This is the tonic sol-fa plan. While the tonal relation of a note is clear, or even fairly clear, the singer is independent of interval observation. But he is pulled up when tonal relations become vague, as they do very frequently in modern music.

(5) An extra sense, difficult to define, which enables some singers to sing securely without their knowing how they do it.

(6) The ability to imitate or pick up quickly. All choir-trainers are familiar with the lady candidate who claims to be able to sing at sight provided she may sit next to Miss Blank!

(7) Lastly, there is memory of the music practised. This is a precious gift probably as valuable as any of the others tabulated. Some good sight-singers seem always singing at sight: they are slow to learn. At the start they are the hares, but the tortoises with retentive memories often catch up.

A good choir is a conglomerate of singers pursuing one or other of these ways and means of getting notes. So far as tonal correctness is concerned the end is attained when all the choir becomes familiar with the music.

I have alluded to the influence that the experience of fine choral technique has upon composers and its by-product of extraordinary difficulties that seem to take little or no heed of the limitations of choralists. When the exasperating tonal difficulties of some modern choral music are overcome by exhausting and depressing rehearsals that tend to destroy every vestige of pleasure on the part of the performer, what is the musical appeal of the most perfect performance? Often it is simply deadly dull. This one can assert while acknowledging that other equally exacting choral music yields the most beautiful and original effects. Only genius, which it is so easy to ape, makes such experiments tolerable.

In conclusion various points of choral technique were analysed.

Tonal and Rhythmic Attack.

First, there is tonal attack. One of the commonest faults of choralists is the habit of approaching high and even middle compass notes by a curve from below. This method of tonal attack is adopted unconsciously, and individuals who have fallen into the habit are generally incredulous as to their being in fault. Some singers who are uncertain of their notes make a circular tour round the pitch, and perhaps never arrive at all at the centre—they sing with a sort of corkscrew effect. In drilling a choir to avoid these faults, care has to be taken to avoid a jerky, semi-sforzando style that is destructive of sostenuto. If singers can sing a given pitch at all, they can by will-power strike that pitch without a curve and without undue accent.

Although vibrato production—the cinematograph voice—is not to do with attack, it may very well be considered here. Finely equipped choirs are sometimes ruined owing to some of their members adopting this vicious style. Tone so delivered refuses to blend.

The other branch of attack has to do with rhythm. There are few things more delightful in choral performance than a dainty precision of execution that comes from absolute unity of rhythmic feeling on the part of performers. The ideal admits of no maddening leaders, and, therefore, of no exasperating followers. The four or more parts must beat as one. Inexperienced conductors are apt to think that they have done their duty to attack if they secure unanimity of the start of a phrase. But every rhythmic detail of a phrase must be unified in execution. The insides of phrases are often very faultily smudged, especially when miscellaneous divisions of the pulse occur.

Phrasing.

There are several technical aspects in which the association of words with music may be studied.

First, we have to note that the musical phrase exists, and that often it is the real unit of the musical appeal. Break it up remorselessly, connect some of its fragments with those of another phrase, and the music disappears. In choral training, as in solo singing, the question is eternally arising as to how far, if at all, we are entitled to damage the music in the real or supposed interest of other objects. Clear enunciation and verbal phrasing for sense are separate objects of performance that are sometimes more or less in conflict with the abstract musical phrase. To these we have to add the physical necessity of breathing, with its constant interruption of continuity. Before I deal with these points in detail it may be well to ask you to remember that it is possible for an auditor automatically to piece together the fragments of a broken musical phrase, just as he can join the broken details of a verbal phrase and realise the import of the words. This is a saving grace. The nice question is how far we can venture to draw upon these subjective faculties, which are a special task and may easily become a burden to the auditor of vocal music.

Then as to clear enunciation. It goes without saying that this is a proper object of performance. So far as it is concerned with differentiation and unity of vowels, it is a beautiful element of choral effect for its own sake, apart even from the conveyance of verbal significance. Vowels so performed are a kaleidoscope for the ear.

But the case is different when we consider the consonants, those unmusical boundaries of so many English words, ofttimes the ugly frame of the word-picture. The problem of the consonant in singing is how to secure clear definition of initials and finals without deteriorating the vowel which is the musical appeal.

A conductor devotes special attention to these consonantal explosions, and finds that the vowel has been squeezed to death, and that the singing is often a succession of splutters. The cult of the final consonant is especially responsible for some absurd effects. Some conductors, and many solo singers, are at so much obvious pains to make the final consonant the most prominent feature of a word, that the result is an extra syllable. I remember an amateur elocutionist who aped this device of the third-rate tragedian. He was reciting Macaulay's 'Horatius.' He remarked:

> Those*r* behinde*r* criede*r* forwarde*r*
> Ande*r* those*r* in fronte*r* criede*r* backe*r*.

Often have I heard otherwise excellent choral performances defaced by this excess. The mean has to be found between duty to the consonant and duty to the vowel. But here I am concerned mainly with the result of over-attention to consonants on the musical phrase. Of course, it is destructive of the music, because it delivers the phrase in tiny instalments and draws too heavily upon that piecing faculty of the auditor I have already described.

The necessity of breathing-places has also to be considered in its dual relation to the verbal phrasing and the musical phrasing. I refrain from a discussion of physical methods of inspiration and control of breath. If I attempted such a dangerous proceeding, I should have to be strongly entrenched. I concern myself only with the choice of breathing-places. As a rule, it is worth while for the choir-trainer to fix the places. But not infrequently in sostenuto passages, it is better to leave the matter to the varied convenience of singers, because the result may be a perfect continuity to the auditor. Besides, we have to consider the personal factor. The adipose tissue of a portly contralto in smart evening dress may hinder internal expansion, and conscientious struggles may have unfortunate platform results. But the real point is whether the choice of breathing-places should be governed exclusively by a consideration of the words or of the music. The highest art is of course to keep both objectives in view. In this task we are greatly assisted by the possibility of short intakes of breath, that by practice hardly perceptibly interfere with continuity.

Relation of Verbal and Musical Phrasing.

I now come to what is the most important consideration in this matter of the relation of verbal and musical phrasing. Of course, it may be said that it is the business of the composer to fit his music to the words exactly and to leave no dubious task to his interpreters. But while some music is born of complete intimacy with the words, there are numerous instances where the flights of a composer's fancy lead him to indulge in charming musical effects that we should not care to sacrifice because of an exaggerated idea of the necessity of exact conformity of words and music. Shall we, then, say that in choral music at least we need not invariably worship verbal sense so superstitiously as to involve a deliberate sacrifice of the musical idea? After all it is the composer's affair, and if it does not work well the punishment of failure fits the crime. The choir is only the Pickford that collects from the producer and distributes to the consumer. If the manufacture has imperfections, it may be pleaded that it is not the business of the distributor to attempt to put things right. But he may be held responsible for damages en route. Again, we have to keep in mind and make use of the capacity of the auditor to piece the sense of the words together, and also, it may be added, his still more pronounced faculty of absorbing only the music and not bothering about the words. I lay down no infallible rules. In every case the expert trainer should consider the situation and decide accordingly.

Technique for its Own Sake.

I now come to the last heading of my synopsis, the exhibition of technique for its own sake, and its subordination to interpretation. In connection with the splendid performance of the finest unaccompanied choral music at the leading competition centres, no other subject has been discussed so fully and publicly, and there has been considerable difference of opinion as to actual facts—that is, as to whether this or that notable performance was simply a remarkable exhibition of technical skill or whether its success was owing to interpretative insight.

'Expression' Marks.

Now as to what are somewhat delusively called 'expression' marks. These well-known directions are concerned mainly with dynamic contrasts. They grade force from the softest pp to the loudest ff, and include sforzando, cres., dim., &c. Others direct style, as dolce, sostenuto, staccato. Examine the application of these signs and words, especially as they are employed in a great deal of recent music, and it is obvious that they are often simply and solely appeals to musical effect, altogether apart from the sense of the words. They interest the ear because they provide pleasurable contrasts, and they hypnotise attention and capture the mind of the auditor for the reception of the mood colour, the real expression of feeling, that may concurrently be exhibited. They are pure effects just as significant or as meaningless as are orchestral effects of a similar nature. We cannot justly censure their realisation on the ground that they are mere appeals to effect, inasmuch as they are asked for by the composer and are perhaps a feature of his composition. It is the real danger of their exaggeration that has to be guarded against. A sense of proportion has to be cultivated. No one can say how loud a forte or how soft a piano should be; how much the sound should be increased in a crescendo or diminished in a diminuendo. Sforzandos are often greatly overdone, and what was meant for a mild, billowy swell is made into a frenetic and strenuous noise. Nothing by way of dynamics tests the skill and control of the conductor more than his treatment of expansions. If there is no escape from this sort of technique of relative tonal force, we must at least demand that it is used with judgment and discretion. Whatever its utility as a musical appeal it falls dead short of the interpretation of mood, the manifestation of which is an elusive and mysterious ingredient that steals into the voice and plumbs depths of the soul of the listener and at times makes him hold his breath in awe.

The power to interpret a moody piece is the highest achievement of choral performance. It is as though the disembodied spirit of the composer were reincarnated in the conductor and his choir. Such are the possibilities of choral performance as it appears to-day.

Modern composers have provided an extensive repertory of this type of tone-poetry in the form of unaccompanied choral music. It is gratifying to add that British composers are as much in evidence in this department as are any foreign musicians.

The Future.

What is before us by way of evolution of new idioms applied to choral compositions one almost fears to conjecture. Choral music cannot escape the furnace in which all musical material is burning. But whatever the outcome, it will live or die just as it recognizes or fails to recognize the natural limitations of human voices and the power of average folk to conceive tonal relations.

In the discussion that followed, Dr. Cummings (who was in the chair) referred to the neglect of Bishop's choral music. Dr. Aitkin made some interesting observations on enunciation, and Dr. R. R. Terry alluded to the influence exerted on choral technique by the idiom or Elgar's 'Dream of Gerontius' and Bantock's works, and he said that modern editions of old works were too much edited by men lacking experience. Mr. Venables spoke of the discouragement to choralists arising from the difficulties of tests.

A full report of the paper and the discussion will appear in the Proceedings of the Musical Association.

Not long ago we heard from Dr. A. S. Vogt (the conductor of the famous Mendelssohn Choir at Toronto) that he had been adjudicating at Competition Festivals at Alberta and Saskatchewan. He said that everywhere he found a determination on the part of competing conductors to cultivate the fundamental principles in choral-tone technique and expressiveness in interpretation which had worked such wonders in the British Isles. Dr. Vogt's Choir had arranged for a visit to this country and the Continent this spring, but all the arrangements had necessarily to be abandoned when the War broke out.

THE NATIONAL EISTEDDFOD, ABERYSTWYTH.

August 30 to September 4, 1915.

We have before us the syllabus issued for this great event. It will be recalled that the 1914 Eisteddfod was to have been held at Bangor, but it was decided to abandon it owing to the breaking out of the War. The tests in the principal classes in the Aberystwyth syllabus are as follows:

Chief Choral, Mixed-Voice.

(Open to all comers. 120 to 180 voices.)

Prizes, £10 and £45.

'Cold winter, villain that thou art' (unaccompanied) (Debussy).
'Storm in nature,' chorus from 'The storm' (David Jenkins).
'Sanctus' from Bach's 'Mass in B minor.'
(To be sung in Latin.)

Male-Voice.

(Open to all comers. 50 to 80 voices.)

'Dance of the Gnomes' (MacDowell).
'The Druids' (Joseph Parry).
'The phantom host' (Hegar).

Second Choral, Mixed Voices.

(Open to all comers. 50 to 80 voices.)

'Blossoms, born of teeming springtime' (Dvorák).
'Autumn woodland' (D. Emlyn Evans).

Female Voices (Open).—30 to 45 voices.

'Funeral Song' (Chausson).
'The Ballad of Sir Humphrey Gilbert' (Wolstenholme).
'The nightingale's voice' (D. Emlyn Evans).

Children's Choirs (Open).—40 to 50 voices.

'She walks in beauty' (Julius Harrison).
'The Heavenly Dove' (Tom Price).

Village Choirs. (25 to 35 voices.)

'Wrong not, sweet Empress' (Hubert Parry).
'Benedictus' (Robert Bryan).

It will be observed that the tests are of a high class, and draw largely upon modern music. The songs selected for solo singers are equally good. We have not space for their titles this month.

COMING COMPETITIONS

(With Secretaries' Names).

February 23, 24, 25.—Oaklands Congregational Church, Shepherd's Bush. Solo singing all voices, and pianoforte playing; no choral classes. Mr. A. E. Bush, 129, Coldershaw Road, West Ealing, London, W. Entries close February 6.

March.—Haughton and District (Staffordshire). Eleven classes, village choirs and school choirs. Two open classes are for choirs of mixed voices, another for male voices. No solos or instrumental classes. Miss B. E. Royds, Haughton, near Stafford.

March 20.—Sheffield. Under the auspices of the Clarion Vocal Union. The syllabus has not reached us.

April 16, 17.—Belfast. The syllabus of this Festival has just been issued. Forty-three classes are provided for. They include choirs of all kinds and several for instruments. The Northern Whig, in backing up the event, says, 'Surely the music-lovers of Belfast will see that the movement, which has now been firmly established in our midst as an annual event, will not suffer on this occasion. The times are exceptional, but there is no reason why we should hang our harps upon the willows.' We trust the courage of the committee will be justified by a full response. Miss L. Murphy, B.A., Churchill, Craigavad, Belfast.

May 1.—Glasgow. Originally it was intended to enlarge the scope of this already important event. But this year it has been deemed expedient not to attempt to do more than encourage the schools, female-voice choirs, vocal quartets, and adult solo singers (six classes). The following statement as to the tests is made in the syllabus: 'The committee—although not actuated by any Chauvinistic spirit—has thought the present an appropriate time to exploit more fully than heretofore the creative resources of British musicianship. The result is an "all-British" syllabus of outstanding interest.' We hope to find space in our next issue for this patriotic list of tests. Mr. Hugh S. Roberton, 115, Renfield Street, Glasgow.

May 5, 6.—Tewkesbury. The first competition was held here in March, 1914, and was a great success. This year's scheme, which was drafted before the War, is to be persevered with as far as it is found possible. Over a thousand men in the neighbourhood have joined the Army. Eighteen classes are enumerated in the syllabus. Choirs of all kinds, solos for all voices, pianoforte and violin playing and string quartets are provided for. Mrs. Purcell Wilson, Avonbank, Tewkesbury.

May 10 to 15.—'Feis Ceoil' Irish Musical Festival, Dublin. The syllabus of this leading event ignores all reference to the effects of the War, and the programme is as elaborate as ever. Sixty-four classes, covering almost every department of musical activity, are enumerated. The selection of tests must have been a heavy task. No fewer than 114 pieces are scheduled. The syllabus is an interesting record of the event since its establishment in 1897. The budget of last year's Festival shows a turnover of £772 3*s.* 10*d.*, the loss for that year being £30 3*s.* 10*d.* Miss Edith Mortier, 37, Molesworth Street, Dublin.

May 20, 21. The sixth Cornwall Competition. To be held at Wadebridge (a new centre). This Festival has been promoted by Lady Mary Trefusis. Sixteen classes, mostly for school choirs. No adult mixed-voiced choirs on this occasion, but choirs of women's voices are provided for. Pianoforte, violin, viola, and violoncello are also included. The Lady Mary Trefusis, Porthgwidden, Devoran, Cornwall.

People's Palace, London, E. This Festival is to be held. The syllabus has not reached us.

The above are in addition to Festivals announced in recent issues of the Competition Festival Record:

Macclesfield.
Coleraine (Ireland).
Stratford (London, E.).
South-West London.
Ilkley (Wharfedale).
West Sussex (Chichester).
Hastings.
Morecambe.
London Working Girls' Federation of Girls' Clubs.
Manchester and District.

A competition of some importance, to be held at Port Elizabeth, South Africa, had been designed, but the War has forced postponement.

COLWYN BAY.—January 1.

Among the Eisteddfodau held in the Principality during the Christmas holidays, one of the most successful was that of Colwyn Bay on New Year's Day. As usual musical and non-musical events shared the attention. The adjudicator in the former was Mr. W. T. Evans, who awarded prizes as follows: Children's solo, Margaret S. Griffiths and Samuel V. Thompson (divided); pianoforte solo, Miss H. M. Collins; soprano solo, Miss G. Williams; tenor solo, Mr. W. R. Evans; baritone solo, Mr. E. Jenkin Roberts. In the junior choral class Penmachno Choir (Mr. E. Roberts) were the winners. Dr. J. Parry's 'Monks' war march' was the test in the male-voice choral competition. Trefriw (Mr. T. R. Williams) proved superior to Colwyn (Mr. Edward Davies).

MIDDLESBROUGH.—January 1.

The thirty-fourth annual Cleveland and Durham Eisteddfod was held in the Town Hall, Middlesbrough, on New Year's Day. The committee boldly decided not to suspend the meeting on account of the War, though reducing the proceedings from four meetings to two, held in the afternoon and evening. It is a pleasure to record the success of the gathering both in the dimensions of the audience and in the number of competitors. There was the usual round of events, but the special feature of this year's programme was the introduction of a String Quartet class. There was only one entry, but the competitors played so well and the audience followed the performance with such interest that on all hands the wish was expressed that the committee should persevere with the competition until it produced substantial results. The adjudicators were Mr. E. T. Davies (who came in place of the late Mr. Harry Evans), and Mr. T. J. Hoggett.

The following awards were made in the solo classes:

Boys (10 entries).—J. Birkbeck.
Girls (24 entries).—Irene Norton.
Soprano (15 entries).—Miss Phillips.
Contralto (14 entries).—Miss Dora Gledhill.
Tenor (15 entries).—Mr. Lambert Harvey.
Baritone and Bass (16 entries).—Mr. H. R. Jones.
Violin (15 entries).—Mr. A. Thompson.
Pianoforte (30 entries).—Miss Dora Ward.

A class for Vocal Trios (S.A.T.) drew eight entries, of whom the Kensington Trio proved the prizewinners.

The following were the tests, entries, and results in the choral classes:

Children's Choirs.

Test: 'Springtime birds' (Joan Trevalsa).

Marton Road School Senior Choir (Mrs. J. Birch), (one entry).

Ladies' Choirs.

Test: 'Sound sleep' (Vaughan Williams).

Middlesbrough Madrigal Society (Mr. A. Gordon Hood).
1st. Middlesbrough Co-operative (Mr. Gavin Kay).
York Ladies' Musical Union (Mr. C. F. Musgrove).

Male-Voice Choirs.

Tests: 'Viking song' (Julius Harrison).
'The sailor's return' (Percy Fletcher).

Eston and Normanby (Mr. Gavin Kay).
(Three entries, one choir sang.)

NOVELLO'S PARISH CHOIR BOOK

Benedicite, omnia opera.

61.	BENNETT, GEORGE J., in E flat	1½d.
62.	BENNETT, GEORGE J., in G	1½d.
427.	BENNETT, GEORGE J., in D	3d.
101.	BEST, W. T.	3d.
102.	BLAIR, HUGH	1½d.
425.	DE LACY, GIBBS, CHAMPNEYS, and STAINER	1½d.
205.	ELLIOTT, J. W.	2d.
374.	ELLIOTT, J. W., in G	4d.
343.	ELLIOTT, M. B., in G	1½d.
65.	EYRE, A. J. (No. 2), in F	1½d.
371.	EYRE, A. J., in E flat (with a Quadruple Chant in D, for Te Deum)	2d
328.	FOSTER, M. B., in F (Chant form)	4d.
58.	FROST, PERCY H., in D	2d.
93.	GADSBY, HENRY, in G (Chant form)	1½d.
55.	GLADSTONE, F. E. (Chant form)	3d.
67.	GLADSTONE, F. E., in G (Unison)	1½d.
428.	GODFREY, A. E., in C	3d.
423.	H. B. C.	1½d.
196.	HERVEY, F. A. J., in A flat	1½d.
103.	HUGHES, W.	1½d.
422.	ILIFFE, F. (No. 1)	1½d.
429.	LEMARE, E. H., in E flat	3d.
426.	LLOYD, C. H., in E flat	2d.
96.	MARTIN, GEORGE C., in F	4d.
98.	MARTIN, GEORGE C., in G	4d.
100.	MARTIN, GEORGE C., in E flat	4d.
210.	MATTHEWS, T. R., in E flat	1½d.
421.	MILLER, C. E. (No. 2. Chant form)	2d.
225.	PETTMAN, EDGAR (No. 1, in C; No. 2, in E flat)	2d.
232.	PETTMAN, EDGAR, in E flat	1½d.
157.	ROBERTS, J. V., in B flat	4d.
74.	SMITH, BOYTON, in A flat	1½d.
420.	SMITH, C. W. (Set to music in five parts)	6d.
301.	STAINER and BLAXLAND (Chant form)	1½d
195.	STAINER, J., in D	1½d.
424.	STAINER, WINN, and WALKER	1½d.
94.	TURLE, HAYES, and BRIDGE, in A	1½d.
199.	WEST, J. E., in C	1½d.
85.	WOOD, W. G., in D	1½d.
387.	WRIGLEY, G. F. (Quadruple Chant)	1½d.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

POPULAR HYMNS AND TUNES

(NOVELLO'S PARISH CHOIR BOOK.)

657.	*A Harvest Hymn of Praise	J. H. Maunder	2d.
298.	Abide with me! fast falls the eventide	... W. T. Best	1½d.
550.	All blessing, honour, glory, might. Arranged by J. Stainer	Mendelssohn	1d.
202.	All glory, laud, and honour (Processional, Palm Sunday) ...	A. H. Brown	1½d.
683.	At home with Christ	... J. Stainer	1d.
536.	At the Manger (Words only, ½d.; or, 2s. 6d. per 100) ...	... J. Stainer	1d.
640.	Behold the Lamb of God	... J. Stainer	1d.
508.	Children's Missionary Hymn (Words only, 3s. per 100) ...	John E. West	1d.
511.	Church Bells	... J. Tilleard	2d.
720.	Courage, brother, do not stumble	... A. Sullivan	1d.
218.	*Crossing the bar	... J. Barnby	1½d.
637.	Crossing the bar	C. H. H. Parry	1d.
380.	Dies iræ (Day of mourning)	H. G. Bonavia Hunt	3d.
209.	Dies iræ, dies illa! ("Day of Wrath! O day of mourning")	... W. T. Best	1½d.
226.	Evening Hymn Tunes, Four	Edgar Pettmann	2d.
192.	Father of life (Wedding)	... J. Turle	3d.
281.	Flower Service Hymns, Two	Lady Euan-Smith	2d
537.	For others' sakes (Temperance) (Words only, 2s. 6d. per 100)	... J. Barnby	1d.
519.	Forward be our watchword (Processional)	... S. Smith	1d
776.	Glorious things of thee are spoken	...G. C. Martin	1d
624.	God of Glory, King of nations (Processional)	... W. Parratt	1d
772.	God of our fathers known of old (Recessional)	...G. C. Martin	1d
777.	God of our fathers known of old (Recessional)	E. W. Naylor	1d.
740.	God of our fathers, unto Thee	A. M. Goodhart	1d
543.	God rest our Queen (Words only, 2s. 6d. per 100)	... B. L. Selby	1d.
512.	God the All-terrible	... J. Stainer	1d.
795.	Go forth, go forth to win the world	...G. C. Martin	1d,
539.	Great God, Who madest all (Temperance)	... H. S. Irons	1d.
598.	Hark, Hark the Organ (Processional) (Dedication of an Organ)	G. J. Bennett	1d.
782.	Hark, hark the Organ (Festival) (Ditto)	John E. West	3d.
520.	Hear, holy Father (Baptismal) ... ... H.R.H. Princess Henry of Battenberg		1d.
562.	How blest the land (Coronation)	... Luther	1d.
339.	How shall we teach our children	...G. C. Martin	1½d.
358.	*Hymn Tune, "Bishopgarth"	Arthur Sullivan	1d.
440.	Hymn Tune, "Cathedral"	A. H. Brewer	1d.
370.	Hymn Tune, "Esther"	A. H. Brewer	1d.
379.	Hymn Tune, "Gounod"	... C. Gounod	1d.
768.	Hymn Tune, "St. Ethelbert"	A. H. Brewer	1d.
252.	I love to hear the story (for Children)	... F. Clay	3d.
689.	In the faith of Christ (Processional)	.. G. C. Martin	1d.
690.	Jesu! our Lord and God (Processional)	...G. C. Martin	1d.
757.	Jesu, the very thought is sweet	... Ivor Atkins	1d.
211.	Jesus Christ is risen to-day	... W. T. Best	3d.
623.	Lead, kindly Light	... J. B. Dykes	1d.
366.	Lead, kindly Light	C. H. Purday	1d.
365.	Let all our brethren join in one (Harvest)	... J. Barnby	1d.
467.	Lie still, beloved, lie still (Words only, 2s. 6d. per 100) ...	... C. H. Lloyd	1d.
448.	Lift high the Cross (Words only, 2s. per 100)	J. L. Bennett	3d.
610.	Lift your heads, ye gates of God (Processional)	S. S. Wesley	1d.
531.	Lo! He comes with clouds descending	... J. Tilleard	2d.
193.	Lord of all being! throned afar (A Sunday Hymn)	A. M. Goodhart	1½d.
586.	Lord of Grace (Confirmation) ... ... H.R.H. Princess Henry of Battenberg		1d.
529.	Lord of Hosts, Who hast endued us (Words only, 2s. 6d per 100) ...	W. Parratt	1d.
596.	*Lord of might, our Land's defender (Coronation)	Arthur Sullivan	1d.
742 & 794.	Lord of our Fathers (Two versions)	G. C. Martin each	1d.
503.	Lord, we uplift our voice (Evening)	... C. H. Lloyd	1d.
498.	My God, and is Thy table spread	G. M. Garrett	1d
564.	Now is the Earth (Wedding Hymn) (Words only, 2s. 6d. per 100) ...	J. Stainer	1d.
514.	Now thank we all our God (Nun danket alle Gott)		1d.

*Those marked thus * may be had in Tonic Sol-fa.*

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

In many Churches it is cuſtomary to ſing "Benedicite" on thoſe mornings when the Firſt Chapter of Geneſis, or the Third Chapter of Daniel is appointed to be read. The framers of the Prayer Book of 1549 ordered it to be uſed in Lent; but it ſeems doubtful whether this was not (ſo to ſpeak) a ritual error, due only to the fact that as "Te Deum" had been, in the old uſe, omitted in Advent, between Septuageſima and Eaſter, and on all week days out of Paſchal time, the framers of the new Offices, or rather the reviſers of the old ones, thought they muſt ſubſtitute ſomething for "Te Deum" during Lent. There is no real authority for uſing "Benedicite" ſpecially in penitential ſeasons. The Roman and old Engliſh uſe was to make it a ſpecially feſtal Canticle; it was the Canticle of Sunday Lauds, "Te Deum" belonging to Sunday Matins. In the Benedictine uſe it was the Sunday Canticle. In the old uſe made by S. Cæſarius of Arles, it was ſung in Sunday Matins. In the old Spaniſh Church it was ſung at Maſs, according to a Council of Toledo in the ſeventh century; and it is ſtill part of the Roman Thankſgiving after Maſs.

There are perſons who regard this noble hymn as unfit for devotional uſe in Church. This feeling probably ariſes from accepting its words literally. * "But ſuch a groſs realiſation of the hymn miſſes its purpoſe altogether. . . . A literal interpretation given to the 'Benedicite' clothes it with inconſiſtency, ſuggeſts an Æſopian fable rather than a Chriſtian hymn, and tends to check rather than promote devotion. Let every ſhade of ſuch a meaning be baniſhed from the mind, and exchanged for another more true and elevating. It is only by the thoughts ſuggeſted to us in pondering on the wonderful perfections of animals that they can ſerve as aids to adoration; and it is in the ſame ſenſe only that dead things—ſuch as ſtars, the ſea, or the wind—can be aſſociated with living things as promoting with equal fitneſs the ſame end. If this interpretation be not realiſed, the words of the 'Benedicite' degenerate into extravagance, and are ſtripped of all their beautiful ſignificance in the minds of thoughtful men. Inveſted with the ſame indirect meaning, the names of Ananias, Azarias, and Miſael, are moſt fitly introduced among the invocations of the hymn. They have, it is true, long paſſed from the ſcene of their trials; but though no voice of praiſe may riſe from the grave, their memories remain to us as ſymbols of God's omnipotence. In thinking of them we recall the example of men who truſted in the Lord and were not forſaken, who ſtood forth ready to brave the moſt cruel death rather than deny their faith, and whom no tyrant could either terrify or hurt, because they were upheld by God's protection. Is there no aid to devotion in ſuch examples, or in the thoughts that riſe up in aſſociation with ſuch names? On the contrary, no invocation in the hymn is more profitable or ſuggeſtive. Thus, by their truſting faith when living, they continue, even though dead, to praiſe and magnify Him for ever."

* From "Benedicite, or The Song of the Three Children; being Illuſtrations of the Power, Beneficence, and Deſign manifeſted by the Creator in His Works." By G. Chaplin Child, M.D. London: John Murray, Albemarle Street.

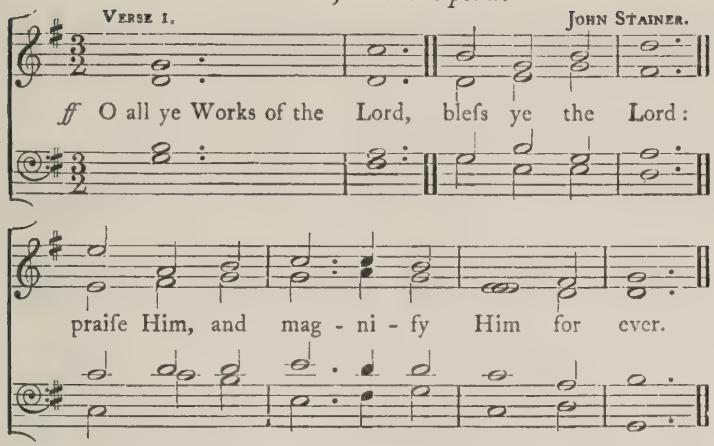
It has been ſuggeſted that "Benedicite" falls naturally into three diviſions: the firſt ſeventeen verſes (verſe 1 being introductory only) relating to the natural kingdom, in ſo far as it is, or in early days was thought to be, extra-terreſtrial; the nine ſucceeding verſes belonging to the terreſtrial creation only; the remaining verſes, verſe 27 to the end, referring to the ſpiritual kingdom—the Church. The change of conſtruction at verſes 18 and 27—"Benedicat" instead of "Benedicite"—may ſeem to favour this ſuggeſtion, and in the following arrangement an attempt has been made to illuſtrate it muſically by a change of chant at theſe verſes.

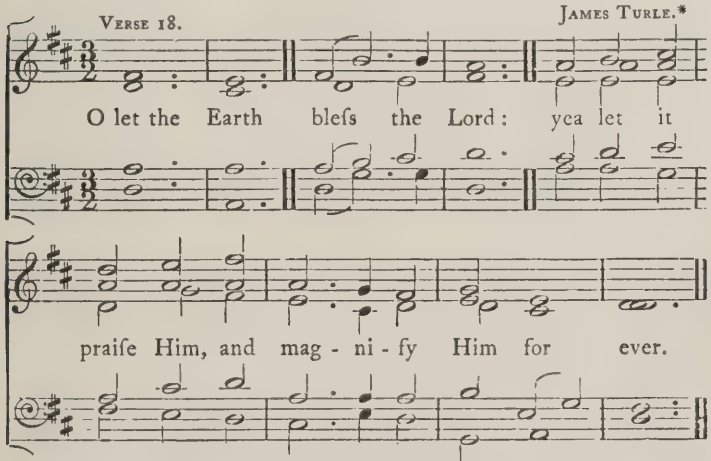
Benedicite, omnia Opera.

VERSE 1. JOHN STAINER.



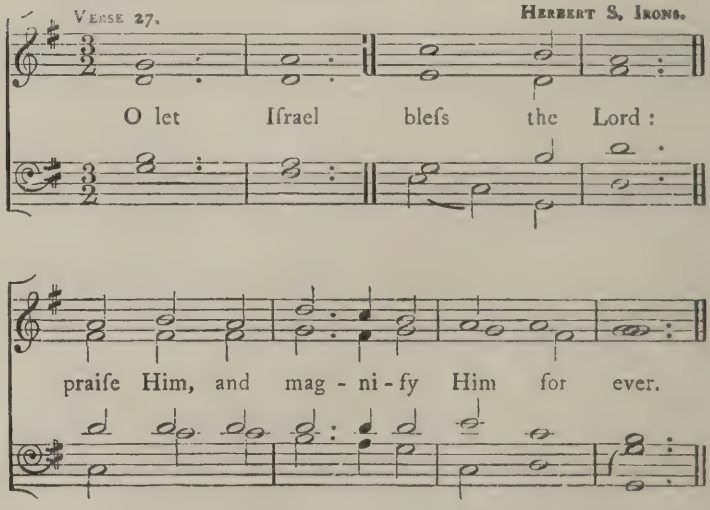
2 O ye Angels of the | Lord, | bleſs, &c.
3 O ye | Heavens,
4 O ye Waters that be above the | Firmament,
5 O all ye Powers of the | Lord,
6 O ye Sun and | Moon,
7 O ye Stars of | Heaven,
8 O ye Showers and | Dew,
9 O ye Winds of | God,
10 O ye Fire and | Heat,
11 O ye Winter and | Summer,
12 O ye Dews and | Froſts,
13 O ye Froſt and | Cold,
14 O ye Ice and | Snow,
15 O ye Nights and | Days,
16 O ye Light and | Darkneſs,
17 O ye Lightnings and | Clouds,

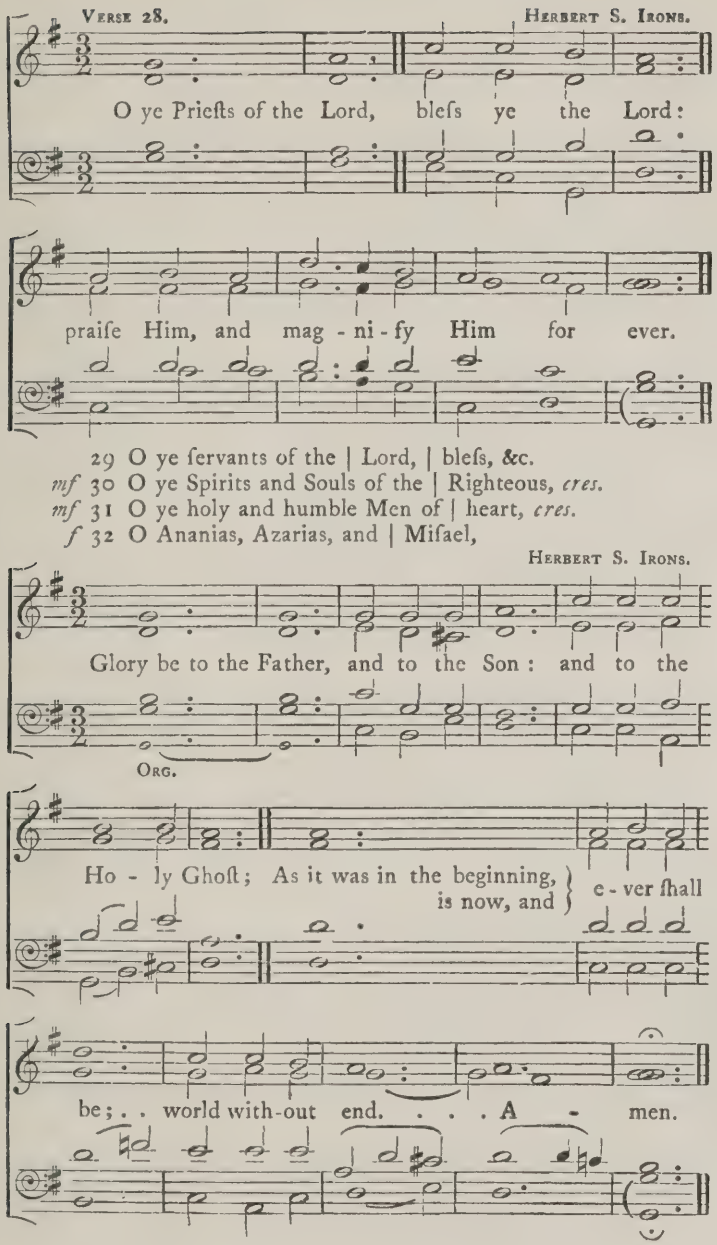
VERSE 18. JAMES TURLE.*



* By permiſſion, from "Benedicite, omnia Opera, as uſed at S. Andrew's, Wells-ſtreet, ſet to muſic by various Compoſers." Muſical Times, No. 285. London: Novello and Co., Ltd.

20 O all ye Green Things upon the | Earth, | bleſs, &c
21 O ye | Wells,
22 O ye Seas and | Floods,
23 O ye Whales, and all that move in the | Waters,
24 O all ye Fowls of the | Air,
25 O all ye Beaſts and | Cattle,
26 O ye Children of | Men,





Verse 28.
Herbert S. Irons.
O ye Prieſts of the Lord, bleſs ye the Lord:
praiſe Him, and mag - ni - fy Him for ever.
29 O ye ſervants of the | Lord, | bleſs, &c.
mf 30 O ye Spirits and Souls of the | Righteous, cres.
mf 31 O ye holy and humble Men of | heart, cres.
f 32 O Ananias, Azarias, and | Miſael,
Herbert S. Irons.
Glory be to the Father, and to the Son: and to the Org.
Ho - ly Ghoſt; As it was in the beginning, is now, and e - ver ſhall be; . . world with-out end. . . . A - men.

NOVELLO'S

VESPER HYMNS AND AMENS

VESPER HYMNS.

	KEY.	PRICE.
ANON.—Silently, softly falleth the night (on Card)	F	1d.
ASHTON, A. T. LEE.—Lord, keep us safe this night (on Card)	B flat	1d.
BEETHOVEN (Adapted from).—Lord, keep us safe this night. Two settings (on Card)	G	1d.
CRUICKSHANK, W. A. C.—Saviour, when the day is ending (on Card)	E flat	1d.
EARNSHAW, R. H.—Another sweet Sabbath is past (on Card)	G	1d.
HOLLINS, A.—The Lord bless you and keep you (on Card)	E flat	1d.
MATTHEWS, H. A.—Lord, keep us safe this night (on Card)	D	1d.
SCOTT, F.—Grant us, Thy peace O Lord (on Card)	E flat	1d.
STEANE, B.—Lord, keep us safe this night (on Card). (Sol-fa, 1½d.)	F	1d.
STORR, A.—O Light everlasting (on Card)	C	1d.
SULLIVAN, A.—Calm be our rest to-night (on Card)	A flat	1½d.
SULLIVAN, A.—Lord, keep us safe this night. (Two Settings, with Sevenfold Amen.) (Sol-fa, 1d.)	F	1d.
VINGOE, A. L.—Lord, keep us safe this night (on Card)	F	1d.

AMENS.

	KEY.	PRICE.
ELLIOTT, J. W.—Sevenfold Amen (S.A.T.B.B.) (on Card)	D	1d.
GIBBONS, ORLANDO.—Threefold Amen (S.A.A.T.B.) (on Card). (Sol-fa, 1d.) ...	D	1d.
GIBBONS, ORLANDO.—Sixfold Amen (S.A.A.T.B.) (on Card)	D	1d.
GODFREY, A. E.—Sevenfold Amen (on Card)	G	1d.
GOUNOD, CH.—{Threefold Amen / Fourfold Amen} (on Card)...	E flat / E flat	1d.
LEMARE, E. H.—Threefold Amen (on Card)	G	1d.
LEMARE, E. H.—Threefold Amen (Original Key). (See P.C.B. 435)	G flat	3d.
LEMARE, E. H.—Sixfold Amen (T.T.B.B.) (on Card)	G flat	1d.
PAGE, A.—{Sevenfold Amen, No. 1. / Sevenfold Amen, No. 2.} (on Card)	A / D	1d.
SOMERVELL, A.—Fourfold Amen (on Card)	F	1d.
STAINER, J.—Fourfold Amen (on Card)	G	1d.
STAINER, J.—{Sevenfold Amen ... ... / Dresden Amen (Arr. by J. S.)} (on Card). (Sol-fa, 1d.) ...	A / A	1d.
STAINER, J. (Arr.).—Sevenfold Amen (A.T.T.B.) (on Card)	E flat	1d.
STAINER, J. (Arr.).—Sevenfold Amen (S.S.S.) (on Card)	B flat	1d.
SULLIVAN, A. (Arr.)—Sevenfold Amen. (Sol-fa, 1d.)	F	1d.
WAGNER, R. (Arr.).—Dresden (Twofold) Amen (on Card)	A flat	1d.
WAGNER, R. (Arr.).—Dresden (Twofold) Amen (A.T.T.B.) (on Card)	E flat	1d.
WESLEY, S. S. (Arr.).—Fourfold Amen (on Card)	D	1d
WEST, JOHN E.—Threefold Amen (on Card)	G	1d.

(All the above may be sung unaccompanied).

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

YORKSHIRE.

There is under this heading very little to chronicle beyond the usual Christmas 'Messiah' performances, which, in spite of the War, have been at least as numerous as usual, and as well attended, but presenting no novel features do not require detailed criticism. At Leeds the first concert in the New Year that was of general interest has been one given by Mr. Edward Elliott, a violinist, and Mr. Lupton Whitelock, a flautist, an annual event which is always the occasion for introducing some out-of-the-way music. This time we had two pieces of chamber music in which the trumpet has a part, Saint-Saëns's Septet (Op. 15), and d'Indy's 'Suite in the ancient style' (Op. 24), both novelties to Leeds. The former is the more effective, and the composer's savoir faire is shown in his adroit treatment of the trumpet part, while the fact that he is a pianoforte virtuoso could easily be deduced from the almost excessive brilliance of the pianoforte part, which Mrs. Elliott played with delightful fluency. Mr. Mark Hemingway's highly artistic and refined trumpet playing also deserves recognition. Other interesting and pleasing pieces were Cui's five Miniature Duets for flute and violin (Op. 56) and Kronke's second Suite, 'In modern style,' for flute and pianoforte. At the Saturday Orchestral Concert on January 16 Mr. Fricker conducted Kalinnikov's G minor Symphony, and Mr. Arthur Rubinstein gave a most brilliant and artistic interpretation of the solo part in Beethoven's C minor Pianoforte concerto. Mendelssohn's 'Midsummer Night's Dream' and Elgar's 'Cockaigne' Overtures were also features of the programme.

At Bradford Mr. Midgley has been enabled, by the renewed help of some anonymous lovers of music, to resume his excellent free chamber concerts, the first of which was on January 4 and the second on January 18. At the former, Mr. Midgley (with Mr. A. E. Dunford as violinist) introduced John Ireland's powerful and most interesting Sonata in D minor, a work in serious mood, and showing not merely great technical skill but a powerful imagination. Schumann's Violin sonata in A minor, and Franck's in A, were also played. Miss Nellie Judson sang with charm of voice and style songs by MacDowell and Debussy. At the second concert we had some more native works: Mackenzie's early, but already quite masterly, Pianoforte quartet in E flat, and Frank Bridge's 'Phantasy' for Pianoforte quartet, the latter, in view of its comparative unfamiliarity, being played twice over. Messrs. Edgar Drake (violin), Thornton (viola), and Herbert Drake (violoncello), joined Mr. Midgley in the instrumental works, and Miss Maggie Lister sang songs by Grieg and Schubert

On January 15, at the Bradford Subscription Concert, the Hallé Orchestra, under Mr. Verbrugghen, was heard in Beethoven's seventh Symphony and 'Egmont' Overture, d'Indy's 'Istar' Variations, and Liszt's 'Les Préludes,' Miss Marie Hall being the soloist in three movements of Lalo's 'Symphonie Espagnole.' Mr. Verbrugghen's readings of Beethoven were distinguished by very exceptional fire and force, and the dramatic and emotional qualities of the music were brought out without a shade of exaggeration.

Country and Colonial News.

BRIEFLY SUMMARIZED.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the opinions expressed in this summary, as the notices are either prepared from local newspapers or furnished by correspondents

Correspondents are particularly requested to enclose a programme when forwarding reports of concerts.

BRIGHTON.—The prize-giving at the Brighton School of Music took place on December 19, the prizes being distributed by Mrs. Tobias Matthay. The first holder of the new Kuhe Scholarship for pianists was announced to be James Henry Smith, of Hove. A highly satisfactory report of the work of the School was read, particular reference being made to examination successes and two scholarships held at the Royal College of Music by former pupils of the School.

DOVER.—On December 19 a vocal and instrumental concert, organized by Mr. H. J. Taylor, the borough organist, was given at the Town Hall, the artists being Miss Curtois, Miss Avis Thorpe, Miss Kathleen Downs, and Mr. E. W. Barclay (vocalists), Mr. R. B. Freeman (violin), Miss May Cooper (violoncello), Miss Ethel Spain (pianoforte), and Mr. Taylor (organ). The proceeds were devoted to the assistance of Mr. Taylor's series of Camp Entertainments.

HOBART (TASMANIA).—The Orpheus Club opened its season on November 2 with a successful concert given under the direction of Mr. P. Planche-Plummer. The choir sang the chorus 'Comrades, rise,' from Gaul's 'Israel,' T. Koschat's 'The lovers,' Cooke's 'Strike the lyre,' Kreutzer's 'The chapel,' Walford Davies's 'Hymn before action,' and other pieces, and songs, duets and recitations, completed the programme.

MELBOURNE.—An excellent programme was chosen for the concert of the Philharmonic Society on November 25. Parry's 'Blest Pair of Sirens,' three Madrigals, Coleridge-Taylor's 'The lee shore,' Bantock's 'On Himalay' and 'Awake, awake,' and Elgar's 'The snow' and 'Fly, singing bird,' were given by the choir under the direction of Mr. Alberto Zelman. Enrico Bossi's Organ concerto in A minor was played by Mr. W. F. G. Steele, and the orchestra played Nicolai's Overture 'The merry wives of Windsor,' Hamish MacCunn's Overture 'The land of the mountain and the flood,' and the Introduction to Act 5 from Reinecke's 'King Manfred.'

NEVIS (B.W.I).—A concert in aid of the Belgian Relief Fund was given at St. Paul's Schoolroom on December 17. The programme consisted of orchestral, vocal, and dramatic items, and some patriotic tableaux.

NORWICH DISTRICT.—On January 13, 14, and 20, the Coltishall and Horstead Musical Society gave three performances of Bach's 'Christmas Oratorio' (parts 4, 5, and 6) at Coltishall Church, St. John's Maddermarket Church, Norwich, and Horstead Church respectively. The Rev. V. N. Gilbert conducted, Mr. G. Percival Griffiths was at the organ, and the solo vocalists were Miss Muriel Little, Miss Leonora Blofield, Mr. Francis Buckley, and Mr. Walter Ivimey.

READING.—An excellent chamber concert was given at the Town Hall on January 16 by Miss Stella Fife (violoncello), Miss Katherine Eggar (pianoforte), and Mr. D. Byndon-Ayres (vocalist). The Violoncello concerto of Saint-Saëns, a set of Variations for pianoforte by Glazounov, three Elizabethan Pastoral songs by Dr. A. H. Brewer, and 'Dance songs' by Bruneau were the chief features of an interesting programme.

WOKINGHAM.—A successful patriotic concert was given at the Drill Hall on January 11 by the Wokingham Choral Society assisted by members of the Wokingham Philharmonic Society and choirboys from All Saints' Church. Under the able direction of Mr. H. Roscoe-Eady the choir did good service in Bridge's choral ballad 'The flag of England,' which proved popular with both singers and audience. The vocalists were Miss Lilian Stiles-Allen, Mr. F. Major, and Master J. Liddiard, and solos were given by Mr. O. C. Hume (violin), and Miss M. Barry (pianoforte).

Miscellaneous.

The War Emergency Entertainments organized by Mr. Isidore de Lara are proving both useful and successful. A special matinée was given at the Haymarket Theatre on December 18, and other concerts have taken place at Claridge's and Steinway Hall. The primary object of the venture is to provide work for British artists who have suffered owing to the War.

All who are interested in the career of the late Learmont Drysdale, the Edinburgh composer, who died in 1909 at the age of forty-two, will find abundant information in the Dunedin Magazine for November, 1914 (the Edina Publishing Company, Edinburgh). A complete list of his works is included.

At the Royal Society of Arts on January 6 and 13 Mr. Plunket Greene gave two lectures for juveniles on 'How to sing a song.' He adapted for younger intelligences much of the admirable advice and teaching set out in his original course of lectures, reported in the Musical Times for December, 1910. As usual he forcibly illustrated his ideas by explaining, and giving his own interpretation of, some well-chosen songs.

Mr. Clifford Higgin, the Blackpool choral conducter, who left England recently to become organist of Brant Avenue Methodist Church, Brantford, Ontario, has been appointed conductor of the Schubert Choir, which has a membership of about 130.

The able critic of the Glasgow Herald, in a favourable criticism of a performance of Mr. Hamilton Harty's 'Comedy Overture,' says that the composer is one of the many refutations of the charge that the British public is in a conspiracy against the British musician.

M. Josef Denyn, the well-known carillonneur of Malines, has been the guest of Mr. W. W. Starmer at Tunbridge Wells, and has given carillon recitals at Bournville and Loughborough.

Report speaks well of the series of patriotic concerts in progress at the Crystal Palace under Mr. W. W. Hedgcock's direction, and at Kingsway Hall under the direction of Mr. Frank Idle.

A delightful children's play, 'The Cockyolly bird,' has had a successful short season at the Little Theatre. The author is Mr. Percy Dearmer, and the music was written by Mr. Martin Shaw.

Master Jack Beaver, a pupil of the Metropolitan Academy of Music, Forest Gate, has won the L.R.A.M. diploma (Class A, for pianoforte playing and teaching) at the age of fourteen.

High-class concerts, at which only the best classical music is to be given, are being organized in the East End of London by Mrs. Maud Mann (Miss Maud McCarthy).

The Yorkshire Post recently praised the vocalisation of Miss Lilian Stiles-Allen in the 'hornpipe air "Rejoice greatly"' ('Messiah').

Mr. H. T. Cart de Lafontaine has relinquished holy orders and will no longer use the title of 'Reverend.'

Answers to Correspondents.

CONDUCTOR.—Unless you can get a few really proficient viola, violoncello, and double-bass players, you cannot perhaps afford to dispense with pianoforte assistance, however brilliant your violinists may be. But if you can get this support, do without the pianoforte, as it spoils the ensemble tone. Two horns can be wonderfully useful for the middle of the harmony. If you can run to another wind-instrument, have a clarinet. Since you have such 'swell' solo violinists, get two of them to play a Bach concerto for two violins and string orchestra.

ELLIS.—Your memory serves you correctly. After some considerable search we have discovered (Musical Times, January, 1908, p. 32) that the first performance of Bach's B minor Mass in Scotland was given on December 16, 1907, by the Edinburgh (now Royal) Choral Union.

FIFE.—Your letter does not merit serious consideration. Any village organist or music-teacher would disabuse you of your mistaken ideas in a few minutes. Incidentally you refer to Melba, the great prima donna, as Melsa (a well-known violinist).

L. K.—The phrase you quote is from a Canon for three voices by Martini, published in Messrs. Boosey's 'Golden treasury of song,' vol. iii.

L. L.—Start at about ♩ = 96; for the second subject use rubato rather than a slower pace.

CONTENTS.

	Page
Some Reflections of an English Critic. By F. Gilbert Webb	73
Reflections refracted: A reply to 'A Native Composer.' By 'A Critic'	74
The Question of the Birmingham Festival. By Ernest Newman	77
Acting in Opera. By F. Bonavia	79
Occasional Notes	81
Large and Small Orchestras. By Nicholas Gatty	82
The Composer of the Russian National Anthem. By M. Montagu-Nathan	82
Illustrations of the History of Music Printing in the Library of Mr. Alfred H. Littleton. By Jeffrey Pulver	84
The Copyright Act, 1911	86
Church and Organ Music	88
The Compleat Organist. By Harvey Grace (continued)	88
The Organ in the Centenary Hall, Breslau. By Ernest E. Adcock (Illustrated)	90
Reviews	93
Correspondence	94
Obituary	103
The Music in War-time Committee	104
Why all Chin-rests should be Abolished. By Arthur Hartmann	105
Opera at Blackpool	106
'The Immortal Hour' at Bournemouth. By Hamilton Law	107
The Bristol Madrigal Society	108
London Concerts	108
Suburban Concerts	109
Music in the Provinces	109
Country and Colonial News	113
Miscellaneous	113
Answers to Correspondents	114
MUSIC:
'Go where glory waits thee.' Irish Melody. Arranged as a Four-part Song by JOHN E. WEST	97

TWO Extra Supplements are given with this number:

1. Benedicite, omnia Opera. Arranged to Chants by J. Stainer, J. Turle, and H. S. Irons.
2. Competition Festival Record.

THE MUSICAL TIMES.

SCALE OF TERMS FOR ADVERTISEMENTS.

	£ s. d.
Two Lines	0 3 0
Three Lines	0 3 4
For every additional Line	0 0 10
One inch (displayed)	0 10 0
Half a Column	2 0 0
A Column	4 0 0
A Page	7 10 0

Special Pages (Cover, &c.) by arrangement.

A remittance should be sent with every Advertisement.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

To ensure insertion in their proper positions, Advertisements for the next issue should reach the Office, 160, Wardour Street, London, W., not later than

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 19. (FIRST POST.)

DURING THE LAST MONTH.

Published by NOVELLO & CO., LIMITED.

A. H.—"A Song of a Boat." Song. 1s. 6d.

ARNOLD, G. B.—Russian National Hymn with Variations. For Organ. Edited by W. CARY BLISS 1s.

BALFOUR, H. L.—"Good Mister Soldier Man." Two-part or Unison Song. 2d.

BARKER, JOHN.—In Time of War ("Lord Almighty! God of Battles!"). Hymn and Tune. 1d.

BIRKBECK, W. J.—Prayer for Russian Church and Nation. (Kieff Chant.) Adapted and Translated. 1d.

BROOKE, MRS. A. AMY.—Two Songs: "Gallant Belgium" and "Now step along, you Khaki boys." 1s.

BROOKS, F.—The Church Service. A collection of Introits and Vestry Prayers, Kyries, Offertory Sentences, &c., 1s.

CASSON, J. H.—The "Dreadnought" Hymn of H.M. Royal Navy ("Nought shall we dread"). 1d.

CRAMER, J. B.—Fifty-six Selected Studies. Edited by FRANKLIN TAYLOR. (Edition Novello, No. 16.) Complete 4s. Or in Five Books (Edition Novello, Nos. 16A, 16B, 16C, 16D, 16E). 1s. each.

CRAWFORD, SIR HOMEWOOD.—"O Saviour precious Saviour." Hymn and Tune "Homewood." 1d.

CZERNY, C.—School of Velocity (Op. 299). Thirty Selected Studies. Edited and Fingered by FRANKLIN TAYLOR. (Edition Novello, No. 18.) Complete 2s. 6d. Or in Three Books (Edition Novello, Nos. 18A, 18B, 18C) 1s. each.

ELDER, C. L.—Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis in G. 4d.

FANING, EATON.—"Our Island Home." (Four-part Song.) 1st Violin, 3d.; 2nd Violin, 3d.; Viola, 3d.; Violoncello and Basso, 3d.

FRIEDLANDER, A. M.—"I lift up mine eyes" (Psalm 121) and "May God be gracious unto us" (Psalm 67). Anthems, with Hebrew and English words. 1s.

GOODEVE, MRS. ARTHUR.—"Keep those we love in safety." Hymn for use in time of war. In E flat. 1d.

HOLBROOKE, JOSEPH.—"Ponterewyn." A Drama. Arranged for Pianoforte Solo. 2s.

HOLT, G. E.—Chants, Hymn Tunes, and Kyrie Eleison. 20 cents.

IRELAND, JOHN.—Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis in F. (No. 916, Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 3d.

KING, OLIVER.—Tone Poems (Original Compositions for the Organ, No. 38. New Series.) 2s.

LATIN ORGANIST, THE.—Edited by S. GREGORY OULD. Book II. 1s. 6d.

LEMON, LAURA G.—"Where are the boys who'll fight for dear old England.?" Marching Song. 1s. 6d.

LUNN, H.—Hymns and Litanies for use during the war. Words by Rev. F. LE N. BOWER. 4d. Words only, 5s. per 100.

MACCUNN, HAMISH.—Romance in G. For Violin and Pianoforte. 2s.

MARSHALL, C. S.—"They that go down to the sea in ships." Anthem. 3d.

MARTIN, G. C.—"Darkness of Night." Vesper Hymn for time of war. Words only, 1s. 6d. per 100 net.

NORRIS-ELYE, L. C. R.—An Empire Song. For Soli and Chorus. 6d.

RAWKINS, S. A.—"The Lord is my Shepherd" (Psalm 23). For Voices and Organ. 3d.

RICHARDSON, E. W.—"Oh, happy band of pilgrims." Hymn and Tune "Pilgrims." 1d.

DURING THE LAST MONTH—(continued).

RUSSELL, LADY AGATHA.—"Father of our Country." Hymn and Tune. 3d. Words only, 1s. 6d. per 100.

SALMON, H. J.—"Brightly gleams our banner." Hymn and Tune. 1d.

SAVILE, JEREMIAH.—"Here's a health unto His Majesty." Melody arranged for Mixed Voices by S. GREGORY OULD. (No. 1312, Novello's Part-Song Book.) 2d.

SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW.—No. 272 contains the following music in both Notations:—
"From Oberon in Fairy Land." Unison Song. 16th century Tune.—Soldiers' Chorus ("Il Trovatore"). Unison Song. VERDI. Separately, 1½d.

SCHOOL SONGS.—Edited by W. G. MCNAUGHT. Published in two forms. A. Voice Parts in Staff and Tonic Sol-fa Notations, with Pianoforte Accompaniment (8vo). B. Voice Parts only, in Tonic Sol-fa Notation.
Book 196. Six Action Songs by various A. B. Composers 1s. —

SEVENTEENTH CENTURY SONGS.—Edited, and the accompaniments added by SIR FREDERICK BRIDGE. 2s. 6d.

SIMS, A. E.—Young Worshippers' Hymn. Words only, 1s. per 100.

TONIC SOL-FA PUBLICATIONS:

MAUNDER, J. H.—Communion Service in D. 6d.

TONIC SOL-FA SERIES.—Edited by W. G. MCNAUGHT:
No. 2214. An Empire Song. Four-part Song. A. C. MACKENZIE ... ... 2d.
,, 2215. "O Thou that hearest prayer." Anthem for Lent or general use. R. WALKER ROBSON ... ... 1½d.
,, 2216. "How sleep the brave." Glee for S.A.T.B. DR. COOKE ... ... 1d.
,, 2217. "Whither?" Trio for S.S.A. HAMISH MACCUNN ... ... 1½d.

VERDI, G.—"Il Trovatore." Concert Edition, arranged by EMIL KREUZ. 1st Violin, 4s.; 2nd Violin, 4s.; Viola, 3s. 6d.; Violoncello, 3s. 6d.; Basso, 3s. 6d.

WEST, JOHN E.—"Go where glory waits thee." Irish Melody, arranged as a Four-part Song. (No. 864, The Musical Times.) 1½d.

WILLIAMS, C. LEE.—A Prayer ("Lord, in our stress, hear us we pray"). 2d.

WHITE, R. T.—"The Composition of Simple Melodies." (No. 10, Novello's Elementary Music Manuals. Edited by W. G. MCNAUGHT.) 1s. 6d.

PUBLISHED FOR
THE H. W. GRAY CO., NEW YORK.

CONANT, J. W.—Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis in E flat. 15 cents (6d.).

CONVERSE, F. S.—"Chant of the River Spirits." For Men's Voices. 12 cents (4d.).

DE LAMARTER, E.—"God is our Refuge." Festival Anthem. 15 cents (6d.).

GOEPP, P. H.—"Lullaby." For Violin and Pianoforte. 2s.

HALLETT, P. S.—Benedicite, omnia Opera. In E flat. 10 cents (3d.).

WILLAN, HEALEY.—"England, my England." Chorus for S.A.T.B.

ORGANIST AND CHOIRMASTER WANTED immediately for St. Barnabas', Clapham Common. Churchman. Communicant. £60. Congregational Service. Apply, with three testimonials, Vicar, St. Barnabas' Vicarage, Lavender Gardens, Clapham Common, S.W.

THE LATIN ORGANIST

EDITED BY

SAMUEL GREGORY OULD.

BOOK I.

No.	CONTENTS.
1.	Prelude on "Veni, Creator Spiritus"	J. S. Bach
2.	Prelude on "Angelus ad Virginem"	Alfred Hollins
3.	Voluntary on "Orbis Factor" ...	S. G. Ould
4.	Eight Verses in the Church Modes (1st Set)	S. G. Ould
5.	Eight Verses in the Church Modes (2nd Set)	S. G. Ould
6.	Prelude on "Asperges me" ...	...William Sewell
7.	Prelude on "Asperges me" ...	...William Sewell
8.	Postlude on "Cum jubilo" ...	...William Sewell

BOOK II. (JUST PUBLISHED).

No.	CONTENTS.
1.	Prelude on "Tonus Peregrinus" ...	J. S. Bach
2.	Prelude on "Et in terra pax" ...	Georg Böhm
3.	Meditation on "Pange lingua"	F. E. Gladstone
4.	Solemn Fughetta on "Credo in unum Deum"	C. W. Pearce
5.	Processional Verses on "Pange lingua":—
	(a) Molto Moderato	...William Sewell
	(b) Andante piacevole ...	...William Sewell
	(c) Allegro ma non troppo ...	...William Sewell
	(d) Larghetto	...William Sewell
	(e) Pomposo e non troppo allegro	...William Sewell

Price One Shilling and Sixpence each Book, Net.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited

ORIGINAL COMPOSITIONS

FOR THE

ORGAN.

(New Series.)

No.			s.	d.
1.	Seven Chorale Preludes	C. H. H. Parry	3	6
2.	Prelude in C	W. Wolstenholme	1	6
3.	Festival Prelude on "Ein' Feste Burg"	.. W Faulkes	1	6
4.	Meditation	.. W. Faulkes	1	6
5.	Postludium	.. W. Faulkes	1	6
6.	Jour de Noces	J. Stuart Archer	1	0
7.	Cantilène	R. G Hailing	1	0
8.	Ite Missa Est .. (Edited by John E. West)	.. J. Lemmens	1	6
9.	Triumphal March (Edited by John E. West)	.. J. Lemmens	1	6
10.	Fanfare .. (Edited by John E. West)	J. Lemmens	1	0
11.	Cantabile .. (Edited by John E. West)	.. J. Lemmens	1	6
12.	Finale .. .. (Edited by John E. West)	.. J. Lemmens	1	6
13.	A Fantasy	C. Edgar Ford	1	6
14.	Intermezzo (A Marriage Souvenir)	.. W. Wolstenholme	1	6
15.	Legend	Harvey Grace	1	6
16.	Meditation	Alfred Hollins	1	0
17.	Barcarolle	A. W. Pollitt	1	0
18.	Cantique	Edward Elgar	1	6
19.	Prelude and Fugue in C (Edited by John E. West)	J. L Krebs	2	0
20.	Epilogue	W. Wolstenholme	1	6
21.	Suite Ancienne	F. W. Holloway	2	6
22.	Fantasia and Fugue	C. H. H. Parry	2	6
23.	Voluntary	W. G Alcock	1	0
24.	Impromptu	W. G. Alcock	1	0
25.	Legend	W G. Alcock	1	0
26.	Intermezzo	J. Stuart Archer	1	6
27.	Twelve Miniatures	H. M. Higgs	3	0
28.	Toccatina	W. G. Alcock	1	6
29.	Romance in A flat	H. Sandiford Turner	1	0
30.	Nocturne	Thomas F. Dunhill	1	0
31.	Festal Prelude	Thomas F. Dunhill	1	6
32.	Caprice de Concert	J. Stuart Archer	2	0
33.	Romance	H. R. Woledge	1	0
34.	Prelude in G minor	.. W. S. Vale	1	0
35.	Romanza	Alfred Hollins	1	6
36.	Festal Prelude	..Alec Rowley	2	0
37.	Romance with Variations	J. Stuart Archer	2	0
38.	Tone-Poems	.. Oliver King	2	0

(To be continued.)

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

ST. ANDREW'S, HOLBORN.—There is a VACANCY in the Choir for an ALTO VOICE. Must be communicant. Good Reader, and Soloist. Cathedral Services. Salary £20 per annum. Applications (with copies of Three Testimonials), to be sent to Mr. F. G. M. Ogbourne, Organist and Choirmaster, Ormond Chambers, 28, Great Ormond Street, Holborn, W.C.

ENGLISH LYRICS

SET TO MUSIC BY

C. HUBERT H. PARRY.

PRICE TWO SHILLINGS AND SIXPENCE EACH SET.

FIRST SET.

*1.	My true love hath my heart ...	Sir Philip Sidney
2.	Good-night	Shelley
3.	Where shall the lover rest	Scott
4.	Willow, Willow, Willow	Shakespeare

SECOND SET.

1.	O mistress mine	Shakespeare
2.	Take, O take those lips away	Shakespeare
3.	No longer mourn for me	Shakespeare
4.	Blow, blow, thou winter wind	Shakespeare
5.	When icicles hang by the wall	Shakespeare

THIRD SET.

*1.	To Lucasta, on going to the wars ...	Lovelace
2.	If thou would'st ease thine heart	Beddoes
*3.	To Althea, from prison	Lovelace
*4.	Why so pale and wan	Suckling
5.	Through the ivory gate	Julian Sturgis
*6.	Of all the torments	William Walsh

FOURTH SET.

*1.	Thine eyes still shined for me	Emerson
*2.	When lovers meet again ...	Langdon Elwyn Mitchell
*3.	When we two parted	Byron
4.	Weep you no more	Anon.
5.	There be none of Beauty's daughters ...	Byron
6.	Bright star	Keats

FIFTH SET.

*1.	A stray nymph of Dian	Julian Sturgis
*2.	Proud Maisie	Scott
*3.	Crabbed age and youth	Shakespeare
4.	Lay a garland on my hearse	Beaumont and Fletcher
5.	Love and laughter	Arthur Butler
6.	A girl to her glass	Julian Sturgis
7.	A Lullaby	E. O. Jones

SIXTH SET.

*1.	When comes my Gwen	E. O. Jones
*2.	And yet I love her till I die	Anon.
*3.	Love is a bable	Anon.
*4.	A lover's garland	Alfred P. Graves
5.	At the hour the long day ends ...	Alfred P. Graves
6.	Under the greenwood tree	Shakespeare

SEVENTH SET.

1.	On a time the amorous Silvy	Anon.
2.	Follow a shadow	Ben Jonson
3.	Ye little birds that sit and sing ...	Thomas Heywood
4.	O never say that I was false of heart ...	Shakespeare
5.	Julia	Herrick
6.	Sleep	Julian Sturgis

EIGHTH SET.

1.	Whence	Julian Sturgis
2.	Nightfall in winter	Langdon Elwyn Mitchell
3.	Marian	George Meredith
4.	Dirge in woods	George Meredith
5.	Looking backward	Julian Sturgis
6.	Grapes	Julian Sturgis

NINTH SET.

1.	Three aspects	Mary E. Coleridge
2.	A fairy town (St. Andrews) ...	Mary E. Coleridge
3.	The witches' wood	Mary E. Coleridge
4.	Whether I live	Mary E. Coleridge
5.	Armida's garden	Mary E. Coleridge
6.	The maiden	Mary E. Coleridge
7.	There	Mary E. Coleridge

The Songs marked * may be had separately, price 1s. 6d. each.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

MUSIC FOR LENT.

*THE PASSION OF OUR LORD. (According to St. Matthew.) J. S. BACH. Edited by EDWARD ELGAR and IVOR ATKINS. 2s. 6d.; paper boards, 3s. 6d. Vocal Parts, 1s. each. Tonic Sol-fa, 1s. Words only, 15s. per 100.

*THE PASSION OF OUR LORD. (According to St. Matthew.) J. S. BACH. 2s.; paper boards, 2s. 6d. Choruses only, Tonic Sol-fa, 1s. Words only, 15s. per 100.

*THE PASSION OF OUR LORD. (According to St. Matthew.) J. S. BACH. Abridged, as used at St. Paul's Cathedral. Octavo, 1s. 6d. Book of Words, with Music to the Chorales, 6d. Words only, 10s. per 100.

*THE PASSION OF OUR LORD. (According to St. John.) J. S. BACH. 2s.; paper boards, 2s. 6d.; cloth, gilt, 4s.

*THE PASSION OF CHRIST. G. F. HANDEL. 3s.; paper boards, 3s. 6d.; cloth, gilt, 5s. Abridged edition for Church use, 1s. Words only, 10s. per 100.

*THE PASSION OF OUR LORD. (The Seven Words of Our Saviour on the Cross.) J. HAYDN. 2s.; paper boards, 2s. 6d.; cloth, gilt, 4s.

THE PASSION OF OUR LORD. (The Seven Words of Our Saviour on the Cross.) CH. GOUNOD. 1s.

*THE PASSION OF OUR LORD ("Der Tod Jesu.") C. H. GRAUN. 2s.; paper boards, 2s. 6d.; cloth, gilt, 4s. Choruses only, 1s.

THE PASSION OF OUR LORD. H. SCHÜTZ. 1s.

*PASSION MUSIC (from the Oratorio "St. Peter"). By SIR JULIUS BENEDICT. 1s. 6d.

*OUT OF DARKNESS. (Psalm cxxx.) For Soli, Chorus, and Orchestra. GEORG HENSCHEL (Op. 30). 2s. 6d.

OUT OF DARKNESS (De Profundis). (Psalm cxxx.) For Soli, Chorus, and Orchestra. Composed by CH. GOUNOD. English or Latin words. 1s.

*ZION'S WAYS DO LANGUISH. Soprano Solo and Chorus, from "Gallia" (Motet). CH. GOUNOD. 1s.

MISERERE MEI, DEUS, &c., as sung at St. Paul's Cathedral, preceding Bach's Passion on Tuesday in Holy Week. Arranged by J. STAINER. 3d. Tonic Sol-fa, 3d.

MISERERE MEI, DEUS. The Music composed by J. BARNBY. 3d.

MISERERE MEI, DEUS. Set to the well-known Ancient Chant, as arranged and harmonised by VINCENT NOVELLO. Price 2d.; Ditto, Latin words, 3d.

MISERERE MEI, DEUS. (Chant Setting.) The Music composed by EDGAR PETTMAN. Price 1½d.

MISERERE MEI, DEUS. The music composed by GREGORIO ALLEGRI. As used at St. Paul's Cathedral Lenten Services. Edited by GEORGE C. MARTIN. 4d.

MISERERE MEI, DEUS. The music composed by G. P. DA PALESTRINA. Edited by W. BARCLAY SQUIRE. Latin and English words. 4d.

MISERERE MEI, DEUS, in F. The music composed by F. E. GLADSTONE. Latin words, 3d.

MISERERE MEI, DEUS, in F sharp minor. The music composed by F. E. GLADSTONE. Latin words, 6d.

MISERERE MEI, DEUS. A simple Unison Arrangement with Organ Accompaniment, 1d.

*Orchestral Parts of the works marked * can be had.*

THE BENEDICITE

SET TO MUSIC BY

THE FOLLOWING COMPOSERS.

BAIRSTOW, E. C. (on the plan of the Paragraph Psalter)	3d.
BENNETT, GEORGE J. (in E flat)	1½d.
BENNETT, GEORGE J. (in G)	1½d.
BENNETT, GEORGE J. (in D, Unison)	3d.
BEST, W. T. (in C). (Sol-fa, 1½d.)	3d.
BLAIR, HUGH (in G)	1½d.
BRIDGE, J. F., JAMES TURLE, and Dr. HAYES	1½d.
BUTTON, H. ELLIOT (in D)	1½d.
C., H. B.	1½d.
COBB, G. F. (in G)	2d.
ELLIOTT, J. W. (in G)	1½d.
ELLIOTT, J. W. (in G)	2d.
ELLIOTT, J. W. (in G)	4d.
ELLIOTT, M. B. (in G)	1½d.
ELLIOTT, R. B. (in G)	1½d.
EYRE, ALFRED J. (in E flat)	2d.
EYRE, ALFRED J. (No. 2, in F)	1½d.
FOSTER, MYLES B. (in F, Chant Form)	4d.
FROST, PERCY H. (in D)	2d.
GADSBY, HENRY (in G, Chant Form)	1½d.
GALE, C. R. (in D)	1½d.
GLADSTONE, F. E. (in C, Chant Form)	1½d.
GLADSTONE, F. E. (in G, Unison)	1½d.
GODFREY, A. E. (in C)	3d.
GODFREY, A. E. (No. 2, in G)	3d.
HERVEY, F. A. J. (in A flat, Chant Form)	1½d.
HUGHES, W. (in E flat)	1½d.
ILIFFE, FREDERICK (No. 1, in E flat, Chant Form)	1½d.
LEMARE, E. H. (in B flat)	3d.
LLOYD, C. HARFORD (in E flat, Chant Form)	2d.
LUCAS, P. T. (in A flat, shortened form)	1½d.
MACPHERSON, CHARLES (in F, rhythmic setting)	4d.
MARTIN, G. C. (No. 1, in F; No. 2, in E flat; No. 3, in G)	each 4d.
MATTHEWS, T. R. (in E flat)	1½d.
MERBECKE (arranged by GEORGE C. MARTIN)	2d.
MILLER, C. E. (second setting) (in G, Chant Form)	2d.
PETTMAN, EDGAR (No. 1, in C; No. 2, set to Double Chants)	2d.
PETTMAN, EDGAR (in E flat)	1½d.
PULLEIN, J. (in E flat)	1½d.
ROBERTS, J. VARLEY (in B flat)	4d.
SLATER, W. (in F)	1½d.
SMITH, BOYTON (in A flat)	1½d.
SMITH, CHAS. W. (in C). S.A.T.T.B., also simplified for S.A.T.B.	2d.
STAINER, J., and B. BLAXLAND (in F, Chant Form)	1½d.
STAINER, J., R. DE LACY, A. GIBBS, and F. CHAMPNEYS	1½d.
STAINER, J., W. WINN, and F. WALKER	1½d.
Ditto. (Welsh words). (Sol-fa, 1d.)	1½d.
STAINER, TURLE, and IRONS	2d.
STAINER, J. (in D, Chant Form)	1½d.
STEWART, C. HYLTON (on the plan of the Paragraph Psalter)	3d.
BARNBY, J. FOSTER, JOHN SMITH, MONTEM (two settings) TURLE, J. (two settings) WICKES, C. A. (two settings)	1½d.
TOZER, FERRIS (in G)	2d.
TOZER, FERRIS (in A). Short and simple	2d.
WEST, JOHN E. (in G)	4d.
WEST, JOHN E. (in C)	1½d.
WESTBURY, G. H. (in C)	1½d.
WILLAN, HEALEY (in D). Shortened Form	1½d.
WOOD, W. G. (in D)	1½d.
WRIGLEY, G. F. (in G, Quadruple Chant)	1½d.

THE STORY OF THE CROSS

FOR VOICES AND ORGAN

With Short Interludes, giving opportunity for Meditation.

THE WORDS BY

THE REV. E. MONRO

SET TO MUSIC BY

BUTTON, H. ELLIOT	2d.
FOSTER, MYLES B. (Sol-fa, 1½d.)	3d.
ROBERTS, J. VARLEY (Sol-fa, 1½d.)	3d.
SOMERVELL, ARTHUR (Sol-fa, 1½d.)	3d.
STAINER, J. (Sol-fa, 1½d.)	3d.

Words only, 1s. 6d. per 100.
Large Type Edition, 2s. 6d. per 100.

THE REPROACHES

SET TO MUSIC BY

DYKES, REV. J. B.	3d.
GOUNOD, CH.	2d.
PALESTRINA (together with the proper plain-chant melodies) (Edited by W. S. Vale)	4d.
WILLAN, HEALEY (Double Choir) (unaccompanied)	3d.

ANTHEMS IN THE LUTE SERIES.

121	Give sentence with me, O God	F. Lewis Thomas	3d.
38	Hear me, O Lord	W. H. Dixon	3d.
*197	Hear me when I call	A. W. Marchant	3d.
*13	Hear, O Lord	Michael Watson	3d.
193	Just as I am	Ferris Tozer	3d.
110	Like as the hart; O send out Thy Light	C. Lochnane	3d.
27	Oh most Merciful	J. F. Bridge	3d.
67b	O Lord, rebuke me not	Gaynor Simpson	1½d.
200	O Saving Victim	J. Lionel Bennett	3d.
113	Out of the deep have I called	Hamilton Clarke	3d.
145	Ponder my words, O Lord	Norman Hatfield	3d.
196	Remember not, Lord	J. M. Bentley	3d.
67a	Rend your heart	W. H. Dixon	1½d
*2	Seek ye the Lord	J. F. Bridge	3d.
*77	There is a green hill	Fred. H. Burstall	2d.
165	Turn Thee, O Lord	Norman Hatfield	3d.
206	Turn Thy face from my sins	Cuthbert Harris	3d.

Those marked thus * are also published in Tonic Sol-fa.

NOVELLO'S ANTHEMS FOR LENT.

*All ye who seek for sure relief	H. M. Higgs	3d.
All ye who weep	Ch. Gounod	3d.
And Jacob was left alone	J. Stainer	6d.
And Jesus entered into the Temple	H. W. Davies	4d.
*Art thou weary	C. H. Lloyd	6d.
*As pants the hart	Spohr	1½d.
At Thy feet in adoration	Anton Dvorák	3d.
Behold, I come quickly	I. Atkins	2d.
Behold, two blind men	J. Stainer	3d.
Be merciful unto me	E. A. Sydenham	3d.
Be not Thou far from me, O God	F. W. Hird	1½d.
Blessed are they that mourn	A. W. Batson	3d.
*Bow down Thine ear	Attwood and Beale, each	1½d.
*Bow Thine ear, O Lord	W. Byrd	3d.
*By Babylon's wave	Ch. Gounod	2d.
By the waters of Babylon	Boyce and H. Clarke, each	4d.
By the waters of Babylon	Higgs and *Coleridge-Taylor, each	3d.
By Thy glorious Death	Anton Dvorák	4d.
*Call to remembrance	R. Farrant	1½d.
Cast me not away	C. Lee Williams	2d.
Cast me not away	S. S. Wesley	3d.
*Cast thy burden upon the Lord	Mendelssohn	1½d.
*Come, and let us return (Two-part Anthem)	G. A. Macfarren	2d.
*Come, and let us return	J. Goss and W. Jackson, each	3d.
Come, let us worship	Palestrina	1½d.
*Come now, and let us reason together	R. Briant	1½d.
Come now, let us reason together	H. W. Wareing	4d.
*Come unto Him	Ch. Gounod	2d.
Come unto Him	Henry Leslie	3d.
Come unto Me	Bach, Couldrey, and Elvey, each	3d.
Come unto Me	H. Hiles	2d.
Come unto Me	M. Kingston and J. S. Smith, each	1½d.
*Come, ye sin-defiled and weary	J. Stainer	2d.
*Comfort, O Lord	W. Crotch	1½d.
Comfort the soul of Thy servant (A.T.T.B.)	John E. West	4d.
Create in me a clean heart	Percy J. Fry	3d.
Daughters of Jerusalem	G. J. Elvey	1½d.
Daughters of Jerusalem	H. J. King	3d.
Enter not into judgment	T. Attwood	1½d.
Flee from evil	W. J. Clarke	3d.
For our offences	Mendelssohn	1½d.
Forsake me not, O Lord, my God	Goss	4d.
Give ear, O Lord	C. Oberthür	1½d.
*Give ear, O Lord	T. M. Pattison	2d.
Give ear, O Shepherd of Israel	A. Whiting	3d.
Give ear unto my prayer	J. Arcadelt	1½d.
God's Peace is peace eternal	Grieg	3d.
*God so loved the world	Goss, Kingston, and Stainer, each	1½d.
*God so loved the world	Harold Moore and J. V. Roberts, ea.	3d.
Grant, we beseech Thee	J. Booth	1½d.
Grant, we beseech Thee	M. Elvey	2d.
Grant, we beseech Thee	J. V. Roberts	3d.
Have mercy upon me, O God	J. Goss	4d.
Have mercy upon me, O God	J. Barnby	2d.
Have mercy upon me	Barnby, Minshall, Pye, and Shaw, each	3d.
Have mercy upon me	J. White	1½d.
*Hear me when I call	King Hall	1½d.
Hear me when I call (A.T.T.B.)	T. Distin	2d.
*Hear my prayer	J. Kent	3d.
*Hear my prayer	*Mendelssohn and C. Stroud, each	4d.
Hear my prayer	Winter	1½d.
Hear, O Lord	J. Goss	2d.
Hear, O Thou Shepherd	J. Clarke-Whitfeld & T. A. Walmisley, ea.	4d.
Hear the voice and prayer	J. L. Hopkins	1½d.
Hear us, O Saviour	M. Hauptmann	1½d.
He in tears that soweth	F. Hiller	1½d.
Hide not Thy Face	K. J. Pye	2d.
How long wilt Thou	Oliver King	2d.
*Hymn of Peace	W. H. Callcott	1½d.
*I came not to call the righteous	C. Vincent	3d.
If any man sin	H. Hiles	1½d.
*Incline Thine ear	Himmel	1½d.
In Thee, O Lord	*S. Coleridge-Taylor and J. Weldon, each	3d.
*In Thee, O Lord	B. Tours	3d.
*Is it nothing to you? (S.A.T.B.)	M. B. Foster	3d.
*Is it nothing to you? (for S.A.)	M. B. Foster	3d.
I will arise	C. Wood	1½d.
I will cry unto God	H. J. King and C. Steggall, each	3d.
*I will look unto the Lord (Two-part Anthem)	G. A. Macfarren	2d.
*I wrestle and pray	J. C. Bach	4d.
Jesus of Nazareth (Turbarum voces)	G. Byrd	4d.
*Jesu, Blessed Word of God	Ch. Gounod	1½d.
Jesu, Lord of life and glory	G. A. Naumann	1½d.
Jesu, Saviour, I am Thine	B. Steane	1½d.
*Jesu, Word of God	Gounod, Hoyte, Mozart, and White, each	1½d.
*Jesu, Word of God Incarnate	E. Elgar	2d.
Judge me, O God	Ouseley and *Mendelssohn, each	1½d.
Lead, kindly Light	R. Dunstan	3d.
Lead, kindly Light	C. L. Naylor and *J. Stainer, each	4d.
*Lead, kindly Light	Pughe-Evans	3d.
*Lead me, Lord	S. S. Wesley	1½d.
Let my complaint (A.A.T.T.B.B.)	E. H. Thorne	3d.
*Let my prayer come up	H. Purcell	1½d.
Let the words of my mouth	H. Blair and J. Barnby, each	1½d.
Let the words of my mouth	A. D. Culley	3d.
Let us come boldly	C. H. Lloyd	1½d.
Like as the hart	T. Adams and J. H. Clarke, each	3d.
*Like as the hart	V. Novello	1½d.
Lord, for Thy tender mercies' sake	*R. Farrant, G. R. Vicars, ea.	1½d.
Lord, how are they increased	Kent	2d.
Lord, how long wilt Thou forget me	Mendelssohn	1½d.
Lord, I call upon Thee	Ouseley, West, and Culley, each	1½d.
Lord, on our offences	Mendelssohn	1½d.
Lord, teach us to number our days (A.A.T.T.B.B.)	C. H. Lloyd	3d.
Lord, Thou hast searched	A. Whiting	3d.
Lord, what is man	W. Boyce	3d.
Make me a clean heart	J. Barnby and A. W. Batson, each	3d.
Mine eyes look unto Thee, O Lord God	H. Baker	3d.
My God, I love Thee	G. J. Bennett	3d.
My God, look upon me	J. L. Hopkins	3d.
*My God, look upon me	J. Reynolds	1½d.
My soul is weary	J. C. Beckwith	4d.
O all ye that pass by	Vittoria	3d.
*O bountiful Jesu	J. Stainer	1½d.
O God, Thou hast cast us out	H. Purcell	4d.
O God, Whose nature	A. Gray and *S. S. Wesley, each	1½d.
O have mercy	H. Leslie	1½d.
*O hearken Thou	A. Sullivan	1½d.
O Jesu! Victim blest	J. B. Powell	3d.
*O Lamb of God	J. Barnby	3d.
O Lamb of God	G. E. Lake	1½d.
*O Lord, correct me	J. Coward	1½d.
O Lord, give ear	W. H. Cummings	2d.
O Lord God, Thou strength	J. Goss	1½d.
O Lord, look down	J. Battishill	3d.
*O Lord, my God	C. Malan and S. S. Wesley, each	1½d.
O Lord, my God	C. Lee Williams	2d.
O Lord, rebuke me not	H. Lahee	1½d.
O most merciful	J. W. Elliott	1½d.
O saving Victim	W. A. C. Cruickshank and Rossini, each	3d.
*O saving Victim	Ch. Gounod	4d.
*O saving Victim	J. Stainer	2d.
O saving Victim	B. Tours and *F. Kœnig, each	1½d.
*O Saviour of the world	J. Goss	1½d.
*O Saviour of the world	Harold Moore	3d.
O Saviour of the world (A.T.T.B.)	J. V. Roberts	2d.
Out of the deep	F. E. Gladstone and G. C. Martin, each	3d.
Out of the deep	Mozart	1½d.
Out of the deep	H. W. Davies and J. Naylor, each	4d.
*O ye that love the Lord	S. Coleridge-Taylor	1½d.
O ye that love the Lord	F. A. W. Docker and G. J. Elvey, each	4d.
O ye that love the Lord	J. W. Elliott	1½d.
O ye that love the Lord	H. W. Wareing	3d.
Ponder my words, O Lord	A. D. Culley	1½d.
Put me not to rebuke, O Lord	W. Croft	4d.
*Remember not, Lord	H. Purcell	1½d.
*Remember now thy Creator	C. Steggall	4d.
Remember, O Lord	T. A. Walmisley	4d.
*Rend your heart	J. B. Calkin	1½d.
Rend your heart	J. Clippingdale	3d.
Rend your heart (Turn ye even to Me)	A. E. Godfrey	3d.
Save me, O God	C. S. Jekyll	1½d.
*Seek ye the Lord	C. Bradley	1½d.
Seek ye the Lord	H. Kinsey and *J. V. Roberts, ea.	3d.
Show me Thy ways	J. V. Roberts	3d.
Spare us, Lord, most holy	E. A. Sydenham	1½d.
*Teach me, O Lord	T. Attwood and B. Rogers, each	1½d.
Teach me Thy way	Spohr and W. H. Gladstone, each	1½d.
The Lord is full of compassion	F. E. Gladstone	3d.
*The Lord is nigh	W. H. Cummings	1½d.
*The path of the just	J. V. Roberts	1½d.
*There is a green hill far away	Ch. Gounod	4d.
*There is a green hill far away	Lord H. Somerset	1½d.
The Reproaches (from the "Redemption")	Ch. Gounod	2d.
The Reproaches	Healey Willan and J. B. Dykes, ea.	3d.
*The sacrifice of God	H. W. Wareing	1½d.
The sacrifices of God	H. Blair	1½d.
*The Story of the Cross	Stainer, Somervell, Foster, & Roberts, ea.	3d.
The Story of the Cross	H. Elliot Button	2d.
Think not that they are blest alone	F. Brandeis	2d.
Thou didst turn Thy face	T. Attwood	1½d.
*Through peace to light	J. H. Roberts	3d.
Thus saith the Lord	G. M. Garrett	6d.
Try me, O God (A.T.T.B.)	A. D. Culley	2d.
Try me, O God	C. Wood	1½d.
Turbarum voces (Jesus of Nazareth)	G. Byrd	4d.
Turn Thee again, O Lord	T. Attwood	1½d.
*Turn Thy face from my sins	T. Attwood and A. Sullivan, each	1½d.
Turn Thy face from my sins	C. Steggall	4d.
Turn Thy face from my sins	C. Lee Williams	2d.
Turn ye even to Me (Rend your heart)	A. E. Godfrey	3d.
Unto Thee have I cried	G. J. Elvey	3d.
*Wash me throughly	S. S. Wesley	3d.
Watch ye and pray	G. R. Vicars	2d.
*Weary of earth	Ferris Tozer	1½d.
*Weary of earth	E. Vine Hall	3d.
Whom the Lord loveth	C. Macpherson	3d.
Why art Thou so vexed	C. Macpherson	2d.
Word of God Incarnate	Ch. Gounod	3d.
Ye who from His ways have turned	Mendelssohn	3d.

*Anthems marked thus * to be had in Tonic Sol-fa, 1d., 1½d., and 2d. each.*

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

CANTATAS FOR LENT.

(REDUCED PRICE.)

LAST NIGHT AT BETHANY

THE WORDS WRITTEN AND COMPILED BY

JOSEPH BENNETT

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

C. LEE WILLIAMS.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.
Paper boards, 2s. 6d. Tonic Sol-fa, 1s.
String Parts, 8s. 6d. ; Wind Parts, 15s. 6d. ; Full Score MS.
Words only, 7s. 6d. per 100.

(REDUCED PRICE.)

GETHSEMANE

THE WORDS WRITTEN AND COMPILED BY

JOSEPH BENNETT

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

C. LEE WILLIAMS.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.
Paper boards, 2s. 6d. String Parts, 10s. 6d. Wind Parts and Full Score, MS.
Words only, 7s. 6d. per 100.

IN THE DESERT AND IN THE GARDEN

FOR

SOPRANO, TENOR, AND BARITONE SOLI AND CHORUS

THE WORDS WRITTEN AND SELECTED BY

VIOLET CRAIGIE HALKETT

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

FERRIS TOZER.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.
Paper boards, 2s.
Tonic Sol-fa, 1s. Words only, 7s. 6d. per 100.
Parts for Strings and Timpani may be had on hire.

THE CRUCIFIXION

A MEDITATION

ON THE

SACRED PASSION OF THE HOLY REDEEMER

THE WORDS SELECTED AND WRITTEN BY

W. J. SPARROW-SIMPSON, M.A.

SET TO MUSIC BY

J. STAINER.

Vocal Score, paper cover, One Shilling and Sixpence.
Paper boards, 2s. Tonic Sol-fa, 9d.
Words only, with Hymn Tunes, 2d. ; Tonic Sol-fa, 2d.
Words, complete, 10s. per 100 ; Words of Hymns, 5s. per 100.

THE DARKEST HOUR

FOR

SOPRANO, TENOR, AND BARITONE SOLI AND CHORUS

WITH

HYMNS TO BE SUNG BY THE CONGREGATION

THE WORDS SELECTED, AND THE MUSIC COMPOSED, BY

HAROLD MOORE.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.
Paper boards, 2s. ; Tonic Sol-fa, 9d.
Words only, 7s. 6d. per 100. String Parts, 6s. 6d.
Wind Parts and Full Score, MS.

THE CROSS OF CHRIST

WORDS SELECTED FROM THE HOLY SCRIPTURES, INTERSPERSED WITH APPROPRIATE HYMNS, BY

W. MAURICE ADAMS

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

THOMAS ADAMS.

Price One Shilling.
Tonic Sol-fa Edition, 6d. Words only, 7s. 6d. per 100.

THE STORY OF CALVARY

FOR TENOR AND BASS SOLI AND CHORUS

THE WORDS SELECTED AND WRITTEN BY

ROSE DAFFORNE BETJEMANN

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

THOMAS ADAMS.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence. Paper boards, 2s. Tonic Sol-fa, 9d.
Words only, 10s. per 100.

IS IT NOTHING TO YOU?

AN EASY CANTATA

For use during the Season of Lent, and on Good Friday, specially adapted for Country Choirs

BY

E. V. HALL, M.A.

Price Eightpence.
Tonic Sol-fa, 3d. Words, with Music to the Hymns, price 2d.

VIA DOLOROSA

A DEVOTION

FOR BARITONE SOLO AND CHORUS

Suitable for the Seasons of Lent and Passiontide

THE WORDS DERIVED MAINLY FROM ANCIENT SOURCES

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

E. CUTHBERT NUNN.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence. Paper boards, 2s.
Words only, 7s. 6d. per 100.

OLIVET TO CALVARY

FOR

TENOR AND BARITONE SOLI AND CHORUS INTERSPERSED WITH HYMNS TO BE SUNG BY THE CONGREGATION

THE WORDS SELECTED AND WRITTEN BY

SHAPCOTT WENSLEY

THE MUSIC BY

J. H. MAUNDER.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.
Paper boards, 2s. Tonic Sol-fa, 9d. Words only, 10s. per 100.
String Parts, 11s. Wind Parts, 13s. 6d. Full Score, MS.

AT THE FOOT OF THE CROSS

(STABAT MATER)

FOR SOLI, CHORUS AND ORCHESTRA

COMPOSED BY

ANTON DVOŘÁK.

(Op. 58.)

THE ENGLISH ADAPTATION BY FRED. J. W. CROWE.

Price Two Shillings and Sixpence.
Tonic Sol-fa, 1s. 6d. Words only, 5s. per 100. Vocal Parts, 9d. each.
String Parts, 10s. Wind Parts, &c., 20s. Full Score (Latin words), 45s.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

Music for Lent and Easter

BY

EDWARD BUNNETT, MUS. D. CANTAB.

Te Deum in A. Four Voices	3d.
Benedicite in F	2d.
Benedictus in A. Four Voices	3d.
Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis in D	3d.
Cantate and Deus in E	3d.

REDUCED IN PRICE.

Communion Service in E	6d.
Communion Service in G. For Men's Voices ...	6d.
130th Psalm—Out of the deep	6d.
The Story of the Cross	2d.
Lead me in Thy truth (Lent)	3d.
If we believe. Easter Anthem	6d.
If we believe. Tonic Sol-fa	1½d.
The Good Shepherd	3d.

ORGAN MUSIC.

Twelve Short and Easy Pieces. 1st Set	2 0
,, ,, ,, 2nd Set	2 6
Largo in E flat	1 0
Introduction, Air with Variations, and Fugue in B flat	2 0

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

PENITENCE PARDON AND PEACE

J. H. MAUNDER.

The Musical Times, 1/1/99: "An admirable example of a commendable class of Church music. Consists of writing of that melodious and effective nature for which the composer is so widely famed."
Musical Opinion, 1/2/98: "A fine Church composition."
Musical News, 15/1/98: "We have no hesitation in cordially recommending it."
Musical Standard, 5/3/98: "Deserves considerable popularity."
Organist and Choirmaster, 15/2/98: "For the music we have nothing but praise."
Birmingham Post, 5/3/98: "The music is of a high artistic value."
Liverpool Courier, 2/8/98: "A work of great merit in every respect."
Manchester Courier, 9/3/98: "It will doubtless be used in many 'quires and places where they sing.'"
Newcastle Leader, 23/2/98: "A well-written work."
Western Morning News, 25/3/98: "A good composition. Striking and original."
Chester Chronicle, 16/4/98: "A beautiful work, very tuneful, and exceedingly effective."
Lichfield Mercury, 4/2/98: "Extremely effective, containing some really beautiful music."
Journal of the Incorporated Society of Musicians, 1/2/98: "A well-written work. We can strongly recommend it."

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.

Paper boards, 2s.; Tonic Sol-fa, 1s. Words, 2s. per 100.

Band Parts may be hired or purchased from Messrs. Goodwin & Tabb, 34, Percy Street, W.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

RECENTLY PUBLISHED.

COMMUNION SERVICE IN G FOR S.A.T.B.

By F. J. MARCHMENT.

Originally written for the St. Agnes Choir of the Church of St. John Evangelist, Upper Norwood. An Appendix containing Second Soprano and Contralto Parts provides for its use by similar Choirs.

PRICE ONE SHILLING.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

THE PASSION

A MEDITATION ON THE SUFFERINGS OF CHRIST

FOR TWO SOLO VOICES (TENOR AND BASS) AND CHORUS

TOGETHER WITH

HYMNS TO BE SUNG BY THE CHOIR AND CONGREGATION

BY

J. VARLEY ROBERTS.

Price, Paper Covers, 1s. 6d.; Paper boards, 2s.
Words, with Hymn Tunes, price 2d.; Words only, price 1d.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

SUCCESSFUL PERFORMANCES of this Devotional work have taken place at the University Church, Oxford; SS. Philip and James, Oxford; the Abbey Church, Bath; St. Mary's, Liverpool; the Parish Church, Bradford, Nuneaton, Southsea, Banbury, Chipping Norton, Kidderminster, Biggleswade, Kettering, Oldham, Tackley, Blackburn, Adderbury; St. Paul's, Weston-super-Mare, &c.

VIA CRUCIS

(THE WAY OF THE CROSS)

A SACRED CANTATA

DEPICTING THE THREE LAST SCENES OF

THE SAVIOUR'S LIFE ON EARTH.

FOR

TWO SOLO VOICES (TENOR AND BASS) AND CHORUS,
Interspersed with Hymns to be Sung by the Choir and Congregation.

THE WORDS SELECTED FROM THE HOLY SCRIPTURES AND THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

FREDERICK ILIFFE, M.A.,

Mus. Doc. Oxon.; Organist to the University of Oxford.

PRICE:

Vocal Score, 1s. 6d. net. Tonic Sol-fa Edition, 1s. net.

Words only, complete, for the use of Congregation, 1d. each, or 7s. 6d. per 100.
Words complete, with addition of Hymn Tunes, 2d. each, or 15s. per 100.

Orchestral Parts, for Strings, Two Horns, Two Trumpets, and Drums, may be hired of the Publishers.

London: WEEKES & Co., 14, Hanover Street, W.
Chicago, U.S.A.: CLAYTON F. SUMMY CO., 64, E. Van Buren St.

POPULAR EASTER ANTHEMS

COMPOSED BY EDWIN A. CLARE.

Not difficult, but very interesting and effective.

*Hallelujah! King of Kings	23rd 1000	3d.
An excellent Anthem, animated and powerful.
*He is Risen. A great favourite	35th 1000	3d.
Christ shall give thee Light	20th 1000	3d.
*Thanks be to God (with a fine Bass Solo)	24th 1000	4d.
*Why seek ye the Living among the Dead?	25th 1000	3d.
*Now is Christ Risen	16th 1000	3d.
*Hallelujah! Christ is Risen	25th 1000	3d.
*The Lord Reigneth (Festivals)	17th 1000	3d.
Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem	42nd 1000	3d.
Favourite Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis in D ..	26th 1000	4d.
Full of flowing melody. Sung at a Choral Festival.
*NEW BENEDICITE IN B FLAT (Three Chants)		2d.
Highly recommended, attractive and interesting, melodious for congregation, and arranged to produce great effect.
*Benedicite in D. Varied Quadruple Chant	8th 1000	2d.

*Those marked * are also issued in Tonic Sol-fa.*

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Ltd., 160, Wardour Street, W.
New York: THE H. W. GRAY CO., Sole Agents for the U.S.A.

TENTH THOUSAND.

BENEDICITE, OMNIA OPERA. Set to music by W. H. HOLLOWAY, L.Mus.T.C.L. Price 2d. "A varied and tuneful setting."—Manchester City News. London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited. Manchester: HIME AND ADDISON.

NEW CHANT SETTINGS of the Venite, Te Deum, and Benedictus. By C. J. Whittington. Price 2d.
London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

Specimen copy sent gratis on application to Composer, Sandhills, Betchworth, Surrey.

GILL'S EASY VOLUNTARIES.—Messiah, Elijah, Creation, St. Paul, Judas, One Shilling each. GILL'S EASY ANTHEMS, No. 1 to No. 7, Twopence each; Sol-fa, One Penny. London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

EASTER ANTHEMS.

RECENTLY PUBLISHED.

OPEN ME THE GATES OF RIGHTEOUSNESS. By MYLES B. FOSTER. Price 1½d.; Tonic Sol-fa, 1½d.

THIS IS THE DAY. By J. H. MAUNDER. Price 3d.; Tonic Sol-fa, 1½d.

*Above all praise and all majesty	Mendelssohn	1½d.
*Alleluia! now is Christ risen	T. Adams	3d.
*Alleluia! the Lord liveth	Cuthbert Harris	3d.
*All hail, dear Conqueror	T. Adams	1½d.
*All men, all things	Mendelssohn	4d.
As Christ was raised	G. A. Macfarren	2d.
*As Christ was raised	H. W. Wareing	3d.
*As it began to dawn	M. B. Foster	1½d.
As it began to dawn	C. Vincent	3d.
*As Moses lifted up the serpent	F. Gostelow	3d.
As we have borne	J. Barnby	1½d.
*At the Lamb's high feast	E. V. Hall	3d.
At the Sepulchre	H. W. Wareing	4d.
*Awake, awake, with holy rapture sing	John E. West	3d.
*Awake, thou that sleepest	J. Stainer	6d.
*Awake up, my glory	J. Barnby	1½d.
Awake up, my glory	B. Haynes	1½d.
Awake up, my glory	F. Iliffe	2d.
Awake up, my glory	M. Wise	3d.
*Be glad, O ye righteous	H. Smart	4d.
*Be glad then, ye children	Alfred Hollins	3d.
*Behold, the Angel of the Lord	B. Tours	1½d.
*Behold the Lamb—All glory to the Lamb	Spohr	1½d.
*Blessed be the God and Father	S. S. Wesley	2d.
*Blessed be Thou	Kent	4d.
Blessing and glory	Boyce	1½d.
*Blessing, glory	B. Tours	4d.
*Break forth into joy	J. Barnby	1½d.
*Break forth into joy	T. R. Prentice	6d.
*Break forth into joy	B. Steane	3d.
*Christ being raised from the dead	G. J. Elvey	1½d.
Christ being raised from the dead	S. Webbe	1½d.
Christ both died and rose	E. W. Naylor	3d.
Christ is risen — J. M. Crament and G. B. J. Aitken, ea.		3d.
*Christ is risen	G. J. Elvey	1½d.
Christ is risen	Warwick Jordan	4d.
*Christ is risen	E. H. Thorne	1½d.
*Christ is risen — J. V. Roberts and E. A. Sydenham, ea.		3d.
*Christ our Passover — J. Goss and O. King, ea.		1½d.
*Christ our Passover	E. V. Hall	3d.
Christ our Passover	G. A. Macfarren	2d.
*Christ our Passover	B. Tours	1½d.
*Christ the Lord is risen again	E. V. Hall	4d.
*Christ the Lord is risen to-day	E. V. Hall	3d.
*Christ was delivered for our offences	C. H. Lloyd	1½d.
*Come, let us join our cheerful songs	E. V. Hall	3d.
*Come with high and holy gladness	Hugh Blair	3d.
*Come, ye faithful, raise the anthem	E. V. Hall	3d.
*Come, ye faithful, raise the strain	E. V. Hall	3d.
*Come, ye Saints (S.A.T.B.)	H. Elliot Button	1½d.
*Come, ye Saints (Unison)	H. Elliot Button	3d.
*Death is swallowed up in victory	Alfred Hollins	3d.
*Far be sorrow, tears and sighing	E. V. Hall	3d.
For it became Him	Oliver King	1½d.
For us the Christ	Ch. Gounod	2d.
*From Thy love as a Father	Ch. Gounod	1½d.
Give thanks unto God	Spohr	4d.
*God hath appointed a day	B. Tours	1½d.
God, Who is rich in mercy	G. M. Garrett	1½d.
Great is the Lord	Hayes	4d.
*Hallelujah!	Handel	2d.
Hallelujah! Christ is risen	B. Steane	3d.
Hearken unto Me	M. B. Foster	1½d.
*He is risen	H. Gadsby	1½d.
*He shall swallow up death in Victory	F. R. Greenish	3d.
He that spared not His own Son	F. E. Gladstone	3d.
*He that spared not His Son	W. G. Alcock	1½d.
He will swallow up death in Victory	Wesley	1½d.
I am He that liveth	T. Adams	4d.
* am the Resurrection	Roland Rogers	4d.
I declare to you the Gospel	W. A. C. Cruickshank	4d.
If Christ be not raised	Charles Macpherson	4d.
*If we believe that Jesus died — B. Luard-Selby and J. Goss, ea.		1½d.
If we believe that Jesus died	G. A. Macfarren	2d.
*If ye then be risen with Christ	Ivor Atkins	4d.
If ye then be risen with Christ (Two-part)	M. B. Foster	3d.
*If ye then be risen with Christ	H. M. Higgs	1½d.
If ye then be risen with Christ	J. Naylor	3d.
*I heard a great voice	G. F. Cobb	3d.
*I will alway give thanks	J. B. Calkin	1½d.
*I will alway give thanks	J. Clarke-Whitfeld	3d.
I will extol Thee	C. M. Hudson	4d.
*I will go unto the Altar of God	C. Harris	3d.
I will greatly rejoice	W. A. C. Cruickshank	4d.
I will love Thee, O Lord	M. Kingston	4d.
I will magnify Thee — *J. B. Calkin and W. H. Bell, ea.		4d.
I will magnify Thee	E. M. Lee	3d.
I will magnify Thee	B. Luard-Selby	1½d.
*I will mention	A. Sullivan	6d.
I will sing of Thy power	M. Greene	4d.
*I will sing of Thy power	A. Sullivan	1½d.
*Jesus Christ is risen to-day — Alfred R. Gaul and Oliver King, ea.		4d.
*Jesus lives	Myles B. Foster	3d.
*Know ye not	Edward C. Bairstow	1½d.
Let God arise	M. Greene	6d.
Light's glittering morn	John E. West	4d.
Lord, before Thy footstool bending	Spohr	3d.
Lord Christ! when Thou hadst overcome	Haydn	1½d.
*Lord, Thy arm hath been uplifted	Spohr	2d.
Lo, the winter is past — *B. Farebrother and H. Gadsby, ea.		3d.
*Lo! the winter is past	B. Luard-Selby	1½d.
Magnify His Name	G. C. Martin	4d.
Morn's roseate hues	G. W. Chadwick	3d.
*Most glorious Lord of Life	John E. West	1½d.
My beloved spake	H. Purcell	6d.
My heart is fixed, O God	W. A. C. Cruickshank	4d.
My heart was glad	A. Carnall	4d.
Not unto us, O Lord	H. Gadsby	6d.
*Not unto us, O Lord	T. A. Walmisley	1½d.
Not unto us, O Lord	John E. West	4d.
*Now dawning glows the day of days	David Stanley Smith	1½d.
*Now is Christ risen — G. B. Allen and John E. West, ea.		1½d.
*Now late on the Sabbath Day	S. Coleridge-Taylor	3d.
*Now on the first day of the week	H. Lahee	1½d.
O clap your hands	M. Greene	4d.
*O clap your hands	J. Stainer	6d.
O clap your hands (S.S.A.)	E. H. Thorne	6d.
O clap your hands	T. T. Trimnell	3d.
*O come, let us sing	M. B. Foster	3d.
*O death, where is thy sting?	A. Herbert Brewer	1½d.
*O death, where is thy sting?	Alfred Hollins	4d.
*O give thanks	J. Goss	3d.
O give thanks	S. S. Wesley	4d.
O give thanks to the Lord	H. J. King	3d.
*O give thanks unto the Lord	W. Wolstenholme	1½d.
*O sing unto the Lord	J. Varley Roberts	3d.
*O voice of the Beloved	Henry John King	3d.
*On the first day of the week	E. M. Lott	1½d.
*Open to me the gates	F. Adlam	4d.
*Praise His awful Name	Spohr	2d.
Praise Jehovah	Mendelssohn	4d.
Praise the Lord, ye servants	B. Steane	3d.
*Rejoice in the Lord — *J. B. Calkin and G. J. Elvey, ea.		1½d.
Rejoice in the Lord	G. C. Martin	6d.
Rejoice, O ye people	Mendelssohn	1½d.
*Sing praises unto the Lord	W. A. C. Cruickshank	1½d.
*Sing praises unto the Lord	Ch. Gounod	6d.
Sing to the Lord	Mendelssohn	8d.
*Sing ye to the Lord — E. C. Bairstow and C. Harford Lloyd, ea.		3d.
*Ten thousand times ten thousand	E. Vine Hall	3d.
Ten thousand times ten thousand	Ferris Tozer	4d.
Thanks be to God — J. W. Gritton and Oliver King, ea.		3d.
*The Day of Resurrection	E. Vine Hall	3d.
*The end of the Sabbath	A. Carnall	1½d.
*The first day of the week	B. Steane	3d.
*The Lord hath brought us	E. H. Thorne	1½d.
*The Lord hath done great things	H. Smart	4d.
*The Lord is King	J. Pittman	1½d.
*The Lord is King	T. T. Trimnell	4d.
The Lord is my strength	S. Coleridge-Taylor	3d.
*The Lord is my strength — W. H. Monk and V. Novello, ea.		1½d.
*The Lord is my strength	H. Smart	1½d.
*The Lord is risen	G. M. Garrett	4d.
*The Lord is risen again	B. Luard-Selby	3d.
*The Lord liveth	A. W. Marchant	3d.
*The Lord omnipotent reigneth	Thomas Adams	3d.
The promise which was made	Ed. C. Bairstow	4d.
*The strain upraise	A. Sullivan	1½d.
*The strife is o'er, the battle done	B. Luard-Selby	1½d.
*The strife is o'er	B. Steane	1½d.
*They have taken away my Lord	J. Stainer	1½d.
*This is the day — S. C. Cooke and Basil Harwood, ea.		3d.
*This is the day — E. H. Lemare and E. V. Hall, ea.		4d.
This is the day	G. A. Macfarren	2d.
This is the day	A. W. Marchant	3d.
*This is the day	J. Sewell	2d.
This is the day — *J. H. Maunder and J. Turle, ea.		3d.
'Tis the spring of souls to-day (Cantata)	E. H. Lemare	1s.
*Unto the Paschal Victim bring	John E. West	1½d.
*Upon the first day of the week	Myles B. Foster	1½d.
When Christ, who is our life, shall appear	J. V. Roberts	2d.
When my soul fainted within me	J. F. Bridge	1½d.
*When the Sabbath was past	M. B. Foster	1½d.
*Who is like unto Thee?	A. Sullivan	6d.
*Who shall roll us away the stone?	G. W. Torrance	1½d.
*Why rage fiercely the heathen?	Mendelssohn	6d.
*Why seek ye the living? — A. Hollins and A. Alexander, ea.		3d.
Why seek ye the living? (Two-part)	M. B. Foster	3d.
*Why seek ye the living?	E. J. Hopkins	1½d.
Why seek ye the living?	F. Peel	4d.
Worthy the Lamb—Hallelujah!	Crotch	3d.
*Worthy is the Lamb	J. F. Barnett	1½d.
*Worthy is the Lamb	Handel	2d.
Worthy is the Lamb	E. H. Thorne	3d.

*Anthems marked thus * to be had in Tonic Sol-fa, 1d., 1½d., and 2d. each.*

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

OVER SIX MILLION COPIES OF CALEB SIMPER'S
Compositions in Church Music now sold.
WORLD-WIDE POPULARITY. FAVOURITES EVERYWHERE.
Free Specimens of the first three Anthems to Organists from Caleb Simper, "Kilbirnie," Barnstaple.

NEW EASTER ANTHEMS, Etc.

COMPOSED BY CALEB SIMPER.

*WORTHY IS THE LAMB .. .. New 4d.
Powerful, vigorous and interesting Choruses, and a beautiful and expressive Soprano or Tenor Solo.
*And the Third Day rise again .. ..18th Edition 3d.
Bright, jubilant and most impressive.
NOW IS CHRIST RISEN. (Norman Stewart.) New 6th 1000 2d.
*I will praise the Name of God. New last year .. 10th 1000 4d.
One of the most fascinating and attractive anthems.
*Arise from the Dead. A great favourite .. .. 11th 1000 3d.
*Awake up, my Glory. Very popular .. .. ..33rd Edition 4d.
*Now is come Salvation .. .. 10th 1000 3d.
*He is not here, but is risen .. .. 13th 1000 3d.
*Christ being raised .. .. 15th 1000 4d.
*Let us keep the Feast .. .. 11th 1000 4d.
*We will rejoice .. .. 19th 1000 3d.
*The Lord is risen indeed .. .. 14th 1000 4d.
*He hath done wonders .. .. 18th 1000 3d.
Easy Holy Communion Service in A flat .. .. 11th Edition 4d.
Very devotional, melodious and complete.
Benedicite in G, together with other Canticles and Kyries. No. 6, Kilbirnie Edition .. .. 10th 1000 2d.
Benedicite in E flat. An effective shortened setting. No. 11. Kilbirnie Edition. Verses for Boys only and Men only. 7th 1000 2d.
*Benedicite, No. 8. Three shortened settings, complete. 8th 1000 2d.
Benedicite in C. Varied Chant setting .. .. 3rd 1000 2d.
Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis in G (Novello & Co., Ltd.) 4d.
By ROLAND C. SIMPER, F.R.C.O., L.R.A.M. A very effective setting with most effective modulations.
*The Story of the Crucifixion .. .. 4th 1000 6d.
Words separately, 7s. per 100. Written by the Rev. THOMAS BLACKBURN, B.A., Rector of Woodville, Adelaide, South Australia. For Holy Week and Good Friday. Can be sung by any average choir. Time, about 20 minutes. Solos for Soprano, Tenor, and Bass, with Quartets and Choruses. Already much appreciated. "I like the music well." "It just meets our need." "Much admired by my parishioners." "Most beautiful," &c.
NEW VOLUNTARY BOOKS. Nos. 9 and 10. 1s. 6d. each. Written on Two Staves. Over 200 Editions of this useful and wonderfully popular series now sold. Also issued in Two Gilt-Lettered Cloth Volumes (85 Voluntaries in each), 5s. each Volume.
*NEW NO. 22 ANNIVERSARY SELECTION. Complete, 2d. Words only, 3s. 6d. per 100. Quantities on liberal terms. A charming set of Eight Children's Festival Hymns and Tunes. Three of the Hymns specially written by Caleb Simper.
*NEW WAR HYMN, O LORD OF HOSTS .. .. 1d.
For Intercession Services and ordinary use. The refrain is, "Thou who makest wars to cease, Grant us soon a lasting peace." Words only, 1s. 6d. per 100.
Those marked * are also issued in Tonic Sol-fa.
London: WEEKES & Co., 14, Hanover Street, Regent Street, W.
Canada: ANGLO-CANADIAN M.P.A. Ltd., 144, Victoria St., Toronto.
Chicago, U.S.A.: CLAYTON F. SUMMY Co., 62-66, E. Van Buren Street.

JUST PUBLISHED.
NO. 9, NOVELLO'S ELEMENTARY MUSIC MANUALS.

SCHOOL CHOIR TRAINING

A PRACTICAL COURSE OF LESSONS ON
VOICE-PRODUCTION,
FOR THE GUIDANCE OF TEACHERS OF CLASS-SINGING
BY MARGARET NICHOLLS.

PRICE TWO SHILLINGS.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

INVALUABLE FOR EXAMINATIONS.

WEBSTER'S
GROUNDWORK OF MUSIC

BOOKS I. AND II., ONE SHILLING EACH. KEYS, 1s. 6d. EACH.

"The examination questions are searching and well chosen."—
The Musical Standard.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

SONG OF HEROES. S.A.T.B. Composed and dedicated to heroic Belgium by H. Butterworth. 3d. each; 2s. per Dozen post free. 6, Gainsboro' Avenue, Oldham.

NOVELLO'S
Sunday School Anniversary Music

ANTHEMS.

Thine for ever .. .. H. ELLIOT BUTTON
I love to hear the story .. .. MYLES B. FOSTER
Lord, Thy children guide and keep .. .. .. J. H. MAUNDER
Hosanna we sing .. .. JOHN E. WEST

Price Threepence each.
Tonic Sol-fa, price 1½d. each.

HYMNS AND TUNES.

SET I.

No.
1.	Come, children, on and forward	GEORGE C. MARTIN
2.	For the freshness of the morning	Lady EUAN-SMITH
3.	I love to hear the story	FREDERIC CLAY
4.	Come, O come! in pious lays	J. STAINER
5.	Thine for ever! God of Love	W. C. HARVEY
6.	Jesu, Whom Thy children love	H. ELLIOT BUTTON
7.	Sweetly o'er the meadows fair	F. A. CHALLINOR
8.	Would you gain the best in life	C. J. MAY
9.	On our way rejoicing	WALTER B. GILBERT
10.	Now the daylight goes away	J. ADCOCK

SET II.

1.	Again the morn of gladness	J. STAINER
2.	The Angels' Song	ALBERTO RANDEGGER
3.	Forward, Christian children	ALFRED MOFFAT
4.	The Golden Shore	J. STAINER
5.	Saviour, blessèd Saviour	JOHN E. WEST
6.	Enter with thanksgiving	F. H. COWEN
7.	Man shall not live by bread alone ..	J. VARLEY ROBERTS
8.	Stars, that on your wondrous way	J. STAINER
9.	The day is past and over	JOSEPH BARNBY
10.	God will take care of you	FRANCES R. HAVERGAL

SET III.

1.	We march, we march, to victory	JOSEPH BARNBY
2.	Hark! hark! the organ loudly peals ..	GEORGE J. BENNETT
3.	O what can little hands do?	H. ELLIOT BUTTON
4.	While the sun is shining	T. ADAMS
5.	I love to hear the story	H. J. GAUNTLETT
6.	The roseate hues of early dawn	A. SULLIVAN
7.	Lord, Thy children guide and keep	A. S. COOPER
8.	In our work and in our play	F. WESTLAKE
9.	The Beautiful Land	J. STAINER
10.	Gentle Jesus, meek and mild	J. STAINER

Both Notations, price Fourpence per Set.
Words only, 5s. per 100.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

RAINBOW

OUR MUSIC READING LADDER FOR BEGINNERS

BY ERICA LOSH.

A first step towards rapid Reading. An original and simple colour scheme that will appeal to children.

Price Three Shillings and Sixpence.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

WILL BE PUBLISHED FEBRUARY 3.

FOUR SONGS

Set to Music by MABEL NIGHTINGALE WOODWARD.

Set I. The Sleepy Song. Birds.
Set II. The Night has a thousand eyes. The Blackbird.

PRICE TWOPENCE EACH SET.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

DIAGRAM HARMONY, an Explicit Synopsis of all Scales, Chords, and Relationships of Music, defined by the Twelve Semitones. By Panton Hook. Price 2d. Novello & Co., Ltd., 160, Wardour Street, W.

WILL BE READY SHORTLY.

POCKET SING-SONG BOOK
FOR SOLDIERS AND SAILORS, SCHOOLS AND HOMES.

Old Notation and Tonic Sol-fa Combined.

PRICE ONE SHILLING.

NATIONAL HYMNS.

God Save the King.
The Russian National Hymn.
The Japanese National Anthem.
The Belgian National Song.
The Marseillaise.
The Serbian National Anthem.

MARCHING SONGS.

John Peel.
The Loud Tattoo (The Soldier's Life).
March of the Men of Harlech.
Wi' a Hundred Pipers.
A Soldier's Life.
The Coasts of High Barbary.
Dashing away with the Smoothing Iron.
Heave away, my Johnny.
The Greenland Fishery.
Nuts in May.
The Girl I left behind me.
The British Grenadiers.
Admiral Benbow.
The Mermaid.
The Flight of the Earls.
Widdicombe Fair.
The Red, White, and Blue (Britannia, the Pride of the Ocean).
Let the Hills resound.

NATIONAL AND FOLK-SONGS.

Auld Lang Syne.
Begone! dull care.
Heart of Oak.
Blow, blow, thou Winter Wind.
Neptune and Britannia.
O No, John!
The Meeting of the Waters.
The Lass of Richmond Hill.
The Maple Leaf for ever.
Here's a Health unto His Majesty.
A Man's a Man for a' that.
The Golden Vanity.
Let Erin remember.
The Harp that once through Tara's Halls.
Home, Sweet Home.
Long, long ago.
The Bells of Aberdovey.
The Flowers o' the Forest.
Rule, Britannia.
Good-Morrow, Gossip Joan.
All through the Night.
Land of my Fathers.
Scots wha' ha'e.

HYMNS.

Onward, Christian Soldiers.
Rock of Ages.
Abide with me.
Now thank we all our God.
Sun of my soul.
All People that on earth do dwell.
Through the Night of Doubt and Sorrow.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

NAVAL AND MILITARY MUSICAL UNION SONG BOOK

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.

CONTENTS.

No.
1.	A Vintage Song	Mendelssohn
2.	Drink to me only with thine eyes	(Arr. by) H. Elliot Button
3.	Far down the green valley	C. H. Döring
4.	Gipsy Song	Mendelssohn
5.	Maiden fair, O deign to tell	Haydn
6.	Men of Harlech	(Arr. by) J. Tilleard
7.	O who will o'er the downs	R. L. de Pearsall
8.	Once more with joy (Pilgrims' Chorus, Tannhäuser)	Wagner
9.	Serenade	Mendelssohn
10.	Soldiers' Chorus (Faust)	Gounod
11.	Sweet and low	J. Barnby
12.	The Comrades' Song of Hope	Adolphe Adam
13.	The Dear Little Shamrock	(Arr. by) H. Elliot Button
14.	The Frog (humorous)	Ernest Newton
15.	The Long Day Closes	Arthur Sullivan
16.	The Three Chafers (humorous)	H. Trühn
17.	The Three Huntsmen (humorous)	C. Kreutzer
18.	The wintry winds are blowing	J. Müller
19.	Thuringian Volkslied	Franz Abt
20.	What care I how fair she be	Jacques Blumenthal

TWENTY-ONE SONGS

By CHARLES DIBDIN.

Edited and with Pianoforte Accompaniment by

W. A. BARRETT.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.

In every fertile Valley.
The Sailor's Epitaph, or Tom Bowling.
Ben Backstay.
Then farewell, my trim-built wherry.
Jolly Dick, the Lamplighter.
I lock'd up all my treasure.
Blow high, blow low.
While the lads of the village.
True courage.
Poor Jack.
Tom Tough.
The Token.
The Anchorsmiths.
The Greenwich Pensioner.
All's one to Jack.
The jolly young Waterman.
Lovely Nan.
The sailor's Journal.
The tar for all weathers.
'Tis said we venturous die-hards.
The lass that loves a sailor.

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

SONGS FOR SAILORS.

Written by W. C. BENNETT.

Music by J. L. HATTON.

Price Two Shillings and Sixpence.

Trafalgar.
Would you be a sailor's wife
A fisher-wife's song.
Nay, never cry, lass.
A kiss to take to sea.
Homeward bound.
The Nile.
The apparition.
The Dutchman's broom.
Take me, lass, for life.
The fine old English admiral.
Ring, happy bells.
The forsaken.
The sailor's dream.
To sea.
Rooke in the Bay of La Hogue.
A thousand leagues away.
Strike, and strike hard.
Were I that gull.
Hawke in Quiberon Bay.
Saturday night at sea.
Duncan at Camperdown.
Rum.
Rodney and De Grasse.
From Sea.
A wife's song.
The winds, inconstant ever.
Old Benbow.
There 's nothing like a smoke.
The sea-boy's dream.
A song of the sea.
The wife for a British sailor.
We roam and rule the sea.
The homeward watch.
Off to sea.
A mother's song.
Here we sit by our Christmas fire.
A Christmas song.
Outward Bound.
Herrings are in the bay.

London: Novello and Company, Limited

NOVELLO'S VOCAL ALBUMS.

ARNE, THOMAS A.—TWENTY SONGS (1710-1778). Edited, and with Pianoforte Accompaniment, by W. A. BARRETT. Price 1s. 6d.

BACH, J. S.—TWENTY SACRED SONGS. Selected from the Schemell Collection, and arranged for Voice and Pianoforte Accompaniment by ROBERT FRANZ. The English Version by the Rev. J. TROUTBECK. Price 1s. 6d.

BEETHOVEN.—TWENTY-SIX SONGS. Vol. I. English and German words. The English Version by the Rev. J. TROUTBECK. Price 1s. 6d.

BEETHOVEN.—SEVENTEEN SONGS. Vol. II. English and German words. The English Version by the Rev. J. TROUTBECK. Price 1s. 6d.

BEETHOVEN.—TWENTY-TWO SONGS. Vol. III. English and German words. The English Version by the Rev. J. TROUTBECK. Price 1s. 6d.

BENNETT, W. STERNDALE. — TWELVE SONGS, English and German words. Price 1s. ; cloth, gilt, 2s. 6d.

BISHOP, H. R.—TWENTY SONGS (1786-1855). Edited by W. A. BARRETT. Price 1s. 6d.

BRAHMS, J.—SIX SONGS (Op. 3). For Soprano or Tenor. English and German words. The English Version by W. G. ROTHERY. Price 2s.

BRAHMS, J.—SIX SONGS (Op. 6). For Soprano or Tenor. Edited by ALBERTO RANDEGGER. English and German words. English words by FELIX MANSFIELD. Price 2s.

BRAHMS, J.—EIGHT SONGS (Op. 14). For High Voice. English and German words. The English Version by W. G. ROTHERY. Book I. (Nos. 1—4). Book II. (Nos. 5—8). Price 2s. each book.

BRAHMS, J.—FIVE SONGS. (Op. 19). For High Voice. English and German words. English words by W. G. ROTHERY. Price 2s.

BRAHMS, J.—FOUR SONGS (Op. 32. Book I.). No. 1 for High Voice; Nos. 2, 3, and 4 for Low Voice. English and German words. English words by W. G. ROTHERY. Price 2s.

BRAHMS, J.—FIVE SONGS (Op. 32. Book II). For High Voice. English and German words. English words by W. G. ROTHERY. Price 2s.

BRAHMS, J.—FOUR SONGS (Op. 46). For Soprano or Tenor. English and German words. The English words by W. G. ROTHERY. Price 2s.

BRAHMS, J.—FIVE SONGS (Op. 47). For Soprano or Tenor. English and German words. The English words by W. G. ROTHERY. Price 2s.

BRAHMS, J.—SEVEN SONGS (Op. 48). For Soprano or Tenor. English and German words. The English words by W. G. ROTHERY. Price 2s.

BRAHMS, J.—TWENTY-TWO SONGS. English words by F. HUEFFER. Price 1s. 6d.

BRAHMS, J.—SELECTED SONGS. English, French, and German words. Eight Volumes for High Voice and Eight Volumes for Low Voice, each 3s.

DIBDIN, CHARLES.—TWENTY-ONE SONGS (1745-1814). Edited, and with Pianoforte Accompaniment, by W. A. BARRETT Price 1s. 6d.

DVOŘÁK, A.—SIXTEEN SONGS. English and German words. English version by the Rev. J. TROUTBECK. Price 2s. 6d.

DVOŘÁK, A.—EIGHT LOVE SONGS (Acht Liebes Lieder). (Op. 83.) With English, German, and Bohemian words. Price 3s.

FRANZ, ROBERT.—THIRTY SONGS. With English words by F. HUEFFER. Price 1s. 6d.

FRANZ, ROBERT.—FOURTEEN SONGS (Vierzehn Lieder). English and German words. Set to poems of ROBERT BURNS. Edited and adapted by NATALIA MACFARREN. Price 2s. 6d.

HOOK, JAMES.—TWENTY SONGS (1746-1827). Edited, and with Pianoforte Accompaniment, by W. A. BARRETT. Price 1s. 6d.

LISZT, FRANZ.—TWENTY SONGS. Selected, and the words translated, by F. HUEFFER. Price 1s. 6d.

LODER, EDWARD JAMES.—TWENTY-ONE SONGS (1813-1865). Edited by W. A. BARRETT. Price 2s.

MOZART, W. A.—NINETEEN SONGS. English and German words. The English version by the Rev. J. TROUTBECK, D.D. Price 1s. 6d.

MOZART, W. A.—SONGS FROM THE OPERAS. With Marks of Expression and Phrasing by ALBERTO RANDEGGER. English and Italian words. LE NOZZE DI FIGARO, 4 Books; DON GIOVANNI, 4 Books. Price, each, 2s.

SCHUBERT, FRANZ.—Volume I. TWENTY SONGS. For Mezzo-Soprano Voice. Selected, edited, and translated by NATALIA MACFARREN. Price 1s. 6d.

SCHUBERT, FRANZ.—Volume II. TWENTY SONGS. For a Contralto Voice. Selected, edited, and translated by NATALIA MACFARREN. Price 1s. 6d.

SCHUBERT, FRANZ.—Volume III. TWENTY SONGS. For Soprano or Tenor. Selected, edited, and translated by NATALIA MACFARREN. Price 1s. 6d.

SCHUBERT, FRANZ. — Volume IV. SWAN SONGS (Schwanengesang). Fourteen Songs. German and English words. The English version by the Rev. J. TROUTBECK. Edited, with Marks for Phrasing, Expression, and Breathing, by ALBERTO RANDEGGER. Price 1s. 6d.

SCHUBERT, FRANZ.—Volume V. "THE FAIR MAID OF THE MILL" (Die Schöne Müllerin). German and English words. Twenty Songs. The English version by the Rev. J. TROUTBECK. Edited, with Marks for Phrasing, Expression, and Breathing, by ALBERTO RANDEGGER. Price 1s. 6d.

SCHUBERT, FRANZ.—Volume VI. "THE WINTER JOURNEY" (Winterreise). German and English words. Twenty-four Songs. The English Version by the Rev. J. TROUTBECK. Price 1s. 6d.

SCHUMANN, R.—SONGS. English and German words. Edited, and in part translated, by NATALIA MACFARREN. Folio, cloth, price 10s. 6d.

SCHUMANN, R.—MYRTLES. English and German words. Op. 25. A circle of Songs. Edited and translated by NATALIA MACFARREN. Price 1s. 6d.

SCHUMANN, R.—THIRTY SONGS. English and German words. Price 2s. 6d. ; cloth, 4s. 6d.

SCHUMANN, R.— WOMAN'S LOVE AND LIFE (Frauenliebe). English and German words, Op. 42. Edited and translated by NATALIA MACFARREN. Price 1s.

SCHUMANN, R.—LIEDERKREIS (Op. 39). TWELVE SONGS. English and German words. Edited and translated from the German of J. VON EICHENDORF by NATALIA MACFARREN. Price 1s.

SCHUMANN, R.—TWELVE SONGS (Op. 35). English and German words. Edited and translated by LADY MACFARREN. Price 1s.

SCHUMANN, R.—A POET'S LOVE (Dichterliebe). Op. 48. A Cycle of Songs. English and German words. Edited and translated by NATALIA MACFARREN. Price 1s. 6d.

TSCHAIKOWSKY, P.—TWENTY-FOUR SONGS. Selected and translated into English by Lady MACFARREN. Price 2s. 6d.

WAGNER, RICHARD.—FIVE SONGS. For Soprano or Tenor. English and German words. The English translations by FELIX MANSFIELD. Edited by ALBERTO RANDEGGER. Price 2s.

NOVELLO'S
PIANOFORTE ALBUMS.

EDITED BY BERTHOLD TOURS.

In Numbers, each One Shilling; or, Cloth Volumes, each Four Shillings.

No. 1.—BACH. Twenty Pieces from Petits Préludes, Suites Anglaises. Partita Nos. 1 to 3, &c.
No. 2.—BACH. Twenty Pieces from Suites Anglaises, Suites Françaises. Partita Nos. 4 and 5, &c.
No. 3.—BACH. Twenty Pieces from Petits Préludes, Concertos, Suites Anglaises, &c.
Nos. 1, 2, and 3, in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

No. 4.—HANDEL. Twenty-four Pieces from Suites 1 to 7, Sonatas, "Harmonious Blacksmith," &c.
No. 5.—HANDEL. Twenty-four Pieces from Suites 8 to 12, Gavottes, &c.
No. 6.—HANDEL. Twenty-four Pieces from Suites 13 to 16, Water Music, &c.
Nos. 4, 5, and 6, in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

No. 7.—MARCHES. Fifteen Pieces, including Mendelssohn's Hero's March, Rakoczy March, Bridal March "Lohengrin," &c.
No. 8.—MARCHES. Fifteen Pieces, including Meyerbeer's Coronation March, Cornelius March, Pilgrims' March, &c.
No. 9.—MARCHES. Fifteen Pieces, including Mendelssohn's Wedding March, March "Tannhäuser," &c.
Nos. 7, 8, and 9, in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

No. 10.—GAVOTTES, MINUETS, ETC. Sixteen Pieces, including Rameau's Gavotte, Zimmermann's Gavotte, Calkin's Minuet, Silas's Bourrée, &c.
No. 11.—GAVOTTES, MINUETS, ETC. Sixteen Pieces, including Gluck's Gavotte, W. Macfarren's Bourrée, Bach's Bourrée, &c.
No. 12.—GAVOTTES, MINUETS, ETC. Sixteen Pieces, including W. Macfarren's 2nd Gavotte, Sir J. Benedict's Gavotte, Mozart's Minuet, &c.
Nos. 10, 11, and 12, in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

No. 13.—WOLLENHAUPT, J. Ten Pieces, including Marche Hongroise, Scherzo Brillant, &c.
No. 14.—WOLLENHAUPT, J. Ten Pieces, including "La Gazelle," "Mazeppa Galop," &c.
No. 15.—WOLLENHAUPT, J. Ten Pieces, including "Les Clochettes," "Feu Follet," &c.
Nos. 13, 14, and 15, in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

No. 16.—SCHWEIZER, OTTO. Eight Scottish Airs (arranged for four hands).

No. 17.—SPINDLER, FRITZ. Nine Pieces, including "Murmuring Rivulet," The Pilgrims' Chorus ("Tannhäuser"), &c.
No. 18.—SPINDLER, FRITZ. Nine Pieces, including "L'Oisillon," "Le Carillon," "The Evening Star" ("Tannhäuser"), &c.
No. 19.—SPINDLER, FRITZ. Ten Pieces, including "Jeu des Ondes," Valse Mélodieuse, Spinning Song ("Flying Dutchman"), &c.
Nos. 17, 18, and 19, in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

No. 20.—GOETZ, HERMANN. Five Compositions.
No. 21.—GOETZ, HERMANN. Four Compositions.
No. 22.—GOETZ, HERMANN. Six Compositions.
Nos. 20, 21, and 22, in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

No. 23.—RHEINBERGER JOSEF. Seven Compositions.
No. 24.—RHEINBERGER, JOSEF. Eleven Compositions.
No. 25.—RHEINBERGER JOSEF. Seven Compositions.
Nos. 23, 24, and 25, in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

No. 26.—TOURS, BERTHOLD. Juvenile Album. Eight Characteristic Pieces (Duets), 2s.

Nos. 27 and 28.—MOSCHELES, J. "Domestic Life." Twelve Characteristic Duets, Two Books, each 2s.
The Two Books, in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

No. 29.—KJERULF, HALFDAN. Nine Pieces. Op. 4, Nos. 1 to 3; Op. 12, Nos. 1 to 6.
No. 30.—KJERULF, HALFDAN. Ten Pieces. Op. 24, Nos. 1 to 4; Op. 27, Nos. 1 and 2; Op. 28, Nos. 1 to 4.
No. 31.—KJERULF, HALFDAN. Op. 28, Nos. 5 and 6; Op. 29; and Twenty Songs arranged for the Pianoforte by the Composer.
Nos. 29, 30, and 31, in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

Nos. 32, 33, and 34. The National Dance Music of Scotland. Arranged for the Pianoforte by Alexander Mackenzie; with additions by his son, Dr. A. C. Mackenzie.
Nos. 32, 33, and 34, in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

No. 35.—MACKENZIE, DR. A. C. Eight Pieces. Op. 13, Nos. 1 to 5; Op 15, Nos. 1 to 3.
No. 36.—MACKENZIE, DR. A. C. Nine Pieces. Op. 20, Nos. 1 to 6; Op 23. Nos. 1 to 3.
No. 37.—MACKENZIE Dr. A C. Six Songs. Transcribed for the Pianoforte by Giuseppe Buonamici.
Nos. 35, 36, and 37, in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

No. 38.—ALTSCHUL, RUDOLF. Fifty Hungarian National Songs.

No. 41.—LIADOFF, ANATOLE. Twenty-one Pieces. Op. 2, Nos. 1 to 14; Op. 3, Nos. 1, 3, 4, and 6; Op. 6; Op 15, Nos. 1 and 2.
No. 42.—LIADOFF, ANATOLE. Seven Pieces. Op. 4, Nos. 1 to 4; Op. 7. Nos. 1 and 2; Op. 11.
No. 43.—LIADOFF, ANATOLE. Ten Pieces. Op. 8; Op. 9, Nos. 1 and 2; Op. 10, Nos. 1, 2, and 3; Op. 13, Nos. 1 to 4.
Nos. 41, 42, and 43, in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

No. 44.—CUI, CÉSAR. Thirteen Pieces. Op. 20, Nos. 1 to 12; Op. 21, No. 3.
No. 45.—CUI, CÉSAR. Eleven Pieces. Op. 21, No. 4; Op. 22, Nos. 1, 2, and 3; Op. 31, No. 2; Op. 39, Nos. 1 to 6.
No. 46.—CUI, CÉSAR. Seven Pieces. Op. 22, No. 4; Op. 29, No. 1; Op. 30, No. 1; Op. 35, Nos. 1 and 2; Op. 40, Nos. 2 and 4.
Nos. 44, 45, and 46 in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

No. 47.—SCHUBERT, FRANZ. Four Impromptus. Op. 90.
No. 48.—SCHUBERT, FRANZ. Four Impromptus. Op. 142.
No. 49.—SCHUBERT, FRANZ. Moments Musicals (Op. 94), and Adagio and Rondo (Op. 145).
Nos. 47, 48, and 49, in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

No. 50.—SCHUBERT, FRANZ. Three Sets of Variations, Andante, and Klavierstück.
No. 51.—SCHUBERT, FRANZ. Adagio, Allegretto, and March in E major, &c.
No. 52.—SCHUBERT, FRANZ. Five Klavierstücke and Two Scherzi.
Nos. 50, 51, and 52, in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

No. 53.—HOFMANN, H. "The Trumpeter of Säkkingen" (Op. 52) and Two Valses Caprices (Op. 2).
No. 54.—HOFMANN, H. "Italian Love Tale" (Op. 19) and Fiv other Pieces.
No. 55.—HOFMANN, H. Fourteen Pieces.
Nos. 53, 54, and 55, in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

SHORT PRELUDES
FOR THE
ORGAN

These Short Preludes are intended for use chiefly as Introductory Voluntaries to Divine Service, more especially in those churches where the time allowed for such is, of necessity, somewhat limited.

No.
	BOOK I.
1.	Andante Grazioso	Thomas Adams
2.	Andante	W. G. Alcock
3.	Largamente	George J. Bennett
4.	Andante Religioso	Myles B. Foster
5.	Andantino	Alfred Hollins
6.	Adagio Cantabile	Alfred Hollins
7.	Larghetto	Charles J. May
8.	Andante con Moto	John E. West
9.	Andantino quasi Allegretto	John E. West
10.	Andante	W. Wolstenholme
	BOOK II.
1.	Andante con Moto	Thomas Adams
2.	Con Moto	W. G. Alcock
3.	Moderato	H. A. Chambers
4.	Marziale, poco Lento	Myles B. Foster
5.	Moderato	Alfred Hollins
6.	Andantino	Alfred Hollins
7.	Adagio	Charles J. May
8.	"Hymnus"—Andante e Sostenuto	John E. West
9.	Andante Serioso	John E. West
10.	Adagio	W. Wolstenholme
	BOOK III.
1.	Moderato e Legato	Thomas Adams
2.	Moderato	W. G. Alcock
3.	Andante con Moto	George J. Bennett
4.	Andante	H. A. Chambers
5.	Grazioso molto Espressivo	Myles B. Foster
6.	"Song without Words"—Con Moto	Alfred Hollins
7.	Andante	Alfred Hollins
8.	Andante Dolente	John E. West
9.	Andante Pastorale	John E. West
10.	Adagio	W. Wolstenholme
	(Just Published.) BOOK IV.
1.	"Elevation"—Andante e Legato	Thomas Adams
2.	Andante Religioso	Myles B. Foster
3.	"Simplicity"—Andante	Barry M. Gilholy
4.	Largamente	R. G. Hailing
5.	"Dialogue"—Andante Grazioso	Charles H. Lloyd
6.	Andantino	Arthur W. Marchant
7.	Con Moto Moderato	William Sewell
8.	Andante Amabile	William Sewell
9.	Andante	Clement M. Spurling
10.	Andante Sostenuto	F. Cunningham Woods
	BOOK V.
1.	"Invocation"—Andante Grazioso	Thomas Adams
2.	Andante con Moto	Percy E. Fletcher
3.	Poco Adagio	Myles B. Foster
4.	Andante Espressivo	Ignace Gibsone
5.	Adagio	Alfred Hollins
6.	Poco Lento	Charles H. Lloyd
7.	Andante Dolente	Arthur W. Marchant
8.	Andantino con Tenerezza	William Sewell
9.	Andante con Moto	Clement M. Spurling
0.	Adagio Molto	F. Cunningham Woods
	BOOK VI.
1.	Dolente	Edmund T. Chipp
2.	Andante Sostenuto	Myles B. Foster
3.	Andantino	R. G. Hailing
4.	Con Moto	Alfred Hollins
5.	"Communion"—Cantabile	J. Lemmens
6.	Andante Religioso	Arthur W. Marchant
7.	Lento	Charles J. May
8.	Larghetto	Albert Robins
9.	Adagio e Mesto	William Sewell
10.	Andante Affetuoso	William Sewell

Price One Shilling Each Book.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

FANTASIA
ON
TWO ENGLISH MELODIES
HOME, SWEET HOME," AND "RULE, BRITANNIA")
FOR THE ORGAN.
COMPOSED BY
ALEX. GUILMANT.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY Limited.

HAWKES & SON'S
ORCHESTRAL PUBLICATIONS.

PETITE SUITE DE CONCERT. By S. COLERIDGE-TAYLOR.

	Orchestral Parts.	Score.
I.—La Caprice de Nanette II.—Demande et Réponse III.—Un Sonnet d'Amour IV.—La Tarantelle frétillante	s. d. 10 0	s. d. —
LIFE MOODS. SYMPHONIC VARIATIONS. By ARTHUR HERVEY.	12 0	2 6
SHEPHERD FENNEL'S DANCE. By H. BALFOUR GARDINER.	7 6	2 6
THE CROWN OF INDIA.—SUITE. By EDWARD ELGAR. I.—Dance of the Nautch Girls II.—Minuet III.—The Warriors' Dance IV.—Interlude V.—March of the Mogul Emperors	10 0	2 6
BAMBOULA. RHAPSODIC DANCE. By S. COLERIDGE-TAYLOR.	7 6	2 6

Orchestral Scores at Reduced Prices for Students at 2s. 6d. each — All the above works

COMPOSITIONS FOR VIOLIN. By ALBERT SAMMONS.
With Pianoforte Accompaniment.

SERENADE DE PRINTEMPS	1 6
AUBADE	1 6
BAGATELLE	1 6
BERCEUSE	1 6
FANTASIA ON IRISH AIRS	2 0
CADENZAS TO THE BEETHOVEN CONCERTO	2 0

Superior Edition of the Best and most Popular VIOLIN SOLOS by the great Masters. Edited by ALBERT SAMMONS.

Andante and Scherzo Capriccioso	Ferdinand David	2 0
Ballade and Polonaise	Henri Vieuxtemps	1 6
Elegie	H. W. Ernst	1 0
Romance in F	L. van Beethoven	1 0
Traumerei	Robert Schumann	1 0
Meditation (on Bach's 1st Prelude)	Charles Gounod	1 0
Légende	Henri Wieniawski	1 0
Barcarolle	L. Spohr	1 0
Scène de Ballet	Charles de Beriot	1 6
Kuyawiak	Henri Wieniawski	1 0
Nocturne in E flat	F. Chopin	2 0

HAWKES & SON, DENMAN STREET, PICCADILLY CIRCUS, LONDON.

PHANTASY
ON THE
NATIONAL ANTHEMS
OF THE ALLIES
FOR THE ORGAN.
BY
DR. CHAS. W. PEARCE.
Two Shillings net.

Played by

H. C. TONKING (at the Albert Hall, London)
T. HAIGH
ALLAN H. BROWN
C. E. BLYTON DOBSON
FREDERIC FERTEL
HERBERT F. ELLINGFORD at St. George's Hall, Liverpool)
HAROLD M. DAWBER
HERBERT LANE
LOUIS H. TORR
P. J. MANSFIELD and others.

G. SCHIRMER LTD.,
18, BERNERS STREET, LONDON, W.

TEN
SEVENTEENTH-CENTURY SONGS
OF THE
SHAKESPERIAN AND RESTORATION PERIODS.
SELECTED, EDITED, AND THE ACCOMPANIMENTS ADDED BY SIR FREDERICK BRIDGE,
C.V.O.

Price Two Shillings and Sixpence.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

EDITION NOVELLO.

	s.	d.
BEETHOVEN—Sonatas and Sonatinas, edited and fingered (English fingering) by Agnes Zimmermann, cloth, gilt edges	16	0
Ditto, in 2 Vols., paper ... ... each	5	0
Six Sonatinas	1	6
Sonatas and Sonatinas, 8vo	5	0
Ditto, ditto, cloth, gilt edges	7	6
Ditto, ditto, roan	9	0
Ditto, in 2 Vols., paper ... ... each	2	6
Six Sonatinas, 8vo	1	0
CLEMENTI—Gradus ad Parnassum. 24 Select Studies. (Franklin Taylor)	3	0
Or, in 4 Books ... ... each	1	0
CRAMER—56 Select Studies. (Franklin Taylor) ...	4	0
Or, in 5 Books ... ... each	1	0
CZERNY—30 Select Studies from Op. 299. School of Velocity. (Franklin Taylor)	2	6
Or, in 3 Books ... ... each	1	0
19 Select Studies from Op. 636. Preparatory School of Velocity. (Franklin Taylor)	1	6
ROBERT SCHUMANN—Complete Works for the Pianoforte, edited and fingered by Agnes Zimmermann. (Continental fingering) :—
OPUS.
1 Variations on the name "Abegg"	1	0
2 Papillons	1	0
3 Studies on Paganini's Caprices, with Preface ...	1	6
4 Intermezzi	1	6
5 Impromptus on a Theme by Clara Wieck, with Appendix to the Second Edition of the same	1	6
6 Die Davidsbündler, with Preface	1	6
7 Toccata in C	1	0
8 Allegro in B minor	1	0
9 Carnival. Scènes Mignonnes sur Quatre-Notes	1	6
10 Six Concert Studies on Caprices by Paganini ...	1	6
11 Grand Sonata in F sharp minor	1	6
12 Phantasiestücke	1	6
13 Studies in the Form of Variations (Symphonic Etudes)	2	0
14 Third Grand Sonata (Concerto without Orchestra) in F minor	2	0
15 Scenes of Childhood	1	0
16 Kreisleriana	1	6
17 Phantasie in C major	1	6
18 Arabesque in C major	1	0
19 Flower Piece in D flat major	1	0
20 Humoresque in B flat major	1	6
21 Novelettes	2	6
22 Second Sonata in G minor	1	6
23 Night Pieces	1	0
26 Carnival Freak from Vienna	1	6
28 Three Romances	1	0
32 Scherzo, Gigue, Romance, and Fughetta ...	1	0
56 Six Studies for the Pedal Pianoforte	1	6
58 Four Sketches for the Pedal Pianoforte	1	0
68 Forty-three Pianoforte Pieces for the Young— Part I., Nos. 1 to 18...	1	0
Part II., Nos. 19 to 43...	1	6
72 Four Fugues	1	0
76 Four Marches	1	6
82 Forest Scenes	1	6
99 Leaves of many colours. Fourteen Pieces ...	2	0
111 Three Phantasiestücke	1	0
118 Three Pianoforte Sonatas for the Young ...	1	0
124 Album Leaves (20 Pieces)...	1	6
126 Seven Pieces in Fughetta Form	1	0
133 Songs of the Dawn	1	0
Complete Works in Three Volumes, cloth— Vol. 1, Op. 1 to Op. 12	16	0
,, 2, Op. 13 to Op. 23	16	0
,, 3, Op. 26 to Op. 133	16	0
In Three Volumes, 8vo, paper covers, each volume	5	0
,, ,, ,, cloth ,, ,,	7	6

Novello's selected List of Classical and Romantic Music for Pianoforte Solo will be sent gratis and post-free on application.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

PETERS EDITIONS

IN BOUND VOLUMES.

		s.	d.
	PIANOFORTE SOLOS.
279ca, b	BACH, J. S.—48 Preludes and Fugues (Ruthardt) ..	7	6
200, 201	—— Short Preludes and Fugues and Inventions in 2 and 3 parts	5	0
202-204	—— French and English Suites	6	6
296b	BEETHOVEN.—32 Sonatas. Vol. II.	6	6
1801b, c	—— The same, in 3 Vols. Sup. Ed. .. .. each	6	6
297	—— Pieces (Rondos, &c.)	4	6
144	—— Concertos and Fantasia, Op. 80	6	6
196a, b	—— Symphonies, complete in 2 Vols. .. .. each	5	0
1824a, b	—— Album, in 1 Vol...	5	0
1250	BENDEL, F.—Op. 139. Au lac de Genève	5	3
	CHOPIN, F.—Pianoforte Works, in 3 Vols. .. each	7	0
1900a	Vol. I. 14 Waltzes; 51 Mazurkas; 10 Polonaises; 19 Nocturnes.
1900b	Vol. II. Ballades; Impromptus; Scherzos; Fantasia; Studies; Preludes; Rondos.
1900c	Vol. III. Sonatas; Berceuse; Barcarolle; Bolero, &c.; Concertos; Concert-Pieces.
1926	—— Album. (32 Select Compositions)	4	6
1903	—— Polonaises	3	9
1904	—— Nocturnes	3	9
1906	—— Scherzos and Fantasia	3	9
1909	—— Sonatas	3	9
3013	CLEMENTI.—Tausig. Gradus	4	6
491	FIELD.—18 Nocturnes	3	6
197	HAYDN.—12 Symphonies	6	6
1148	JENSEN.—Op. 17. Wanderbilder	6	3
715a, b	KUHLAU.—19 Sonatinas	5	0
1187	LISZT.—Hungarian Fantasia	5	6
1704b	MENDELSSOHN.—Works: Vol. II. (Op. 5, 7, 14, 16, 33, 72)	5	6
273	MOZART.—Variations	5	6
198	—— 6 Symphonies	4	6
1189	RUBINSTEIN.—Album	6	6
	SCHUMANN.—Complete Works, in 5 Vols. .. each	6	6
2300a	Vol. I. (Op. 68, 15, 124, 99, 18, 19, 82, 28).
2300b	Vol. II. (Op. 6, 9, 21, 12, 16).
2300d	Vol. IV. (Op. 32, 72, 23, 111, 76, 126, &c.).
2300e	Vol. V. (Op. 11, 22, 14, 54, 92, 134, and Op. posth.)
2864a, b	SINDING.—Op. 31. 6 Pieces (in 1 Vol.)	7	6
2687a, b	—— Op. 34. 6 Pieces (in 1 Vol.)	7	6
489	WEBER.—Complete Works	6	0
717a, b	—— Sonatas, Pieces, &c. Concertstück	7	0
1826	—— Album	3	6
	GRIEG.—Album. Vol. I. .. .. cloth	6	6
	Poetic Tone-Pictures. Album Leaves. Lyric Pieces (Book IV.).
	—— Album. Vol. II. .. .. cloth	6	6
	Humoresken. Lyric Pieces (Book III.). Holberg Suite.
	—— Album. Vol. IV. .. .. cloth	6	6
	Two Melodies. Northern Dances and Popular Songs. Sketches of Norwegian Life.
	—— Peer Gynt Suites, Nos. I. and II. .. .. cloth	5	6
	PIANOFORTE DUETS.
	GRIEG.—Holberg Suite. Norwegian Dances	6	6
2591a	HANDEL.—12 Organ Concertos. Vol. I.	6	6
186a, b	HAYDN.—12 Symphonies, in 1 Vol.	8	0
2125	MOSZKOWSKI.—Spanish Dances	6	6
12	MOZART.—Original Compositions	5	0
187b	—— 12 Symphonies. Vol. II. (7—12)	6	6
2347	SCHUMANN.—Original Compositions	5	0
2348	—— 4 Symphonies	6	6
136	BEETHOVEN.—11 Overtures	4	6
141	BELLINI—ROSSINI.—9 Overtures	3	6
	VIOLIN AND PIANOFORTE.
13a	BEETHOVEN.—10 Sonatas	10	0
14	MOZART.—Sonatas	10	0
156a, b	SCHUBERT.—Sonatinas and Duets	9	0
191	WEBER.—6 Sonatas	4	0
	TRIOS (PIANOFORTE, VIOLIN, AND 'CELLO).
1740	MENDELSSOHN.—Trios	10	0
2377	SCHUMANN.—Trios (Op. 63, 80, 110)	12	6
	QUARTETS (PIANOFORTE, VIOLIN, VIOLA, AND 'CELLO).
1741	MENDELSSOHN. Quartets	14	0
	SONGS (ENGLISH AND GERMAN WORDS).
1112a	FRANZ.—Album. Vol. I.; Vol. III. (No. 1426b) each	6	0
1427	—— ,, Vol. IV.	6	0
	SONGS (GERMAN WORDS).
	LIEDERKRANZ.—High, Medium, and Low .. 9ach (Nos. 2071a, 2071b, and 2071c).	6	6
395a	LIEDERSCHATZ.—Vol. I.	6	0
1774a	MENDELSSOHN.—Songs, High	6	0
20b	SCHUBERT.—Album I. Medium	6	0
20c	—— ,, ,, Low	6	0
178a	—— ,, II. High	6	0
178b	—— ,, ,, Medium	6	0
178c	—— ,, ,, Low	6	0
790a	—— ,, III. High	6	6
790b	—— ,, ,, Medium	6	6
790c	—— ,, ,, Low	6	6
2383b	SCHUMANN.—Lieder Vol. I. Medium	4	0
2383c	—— ,, ,, Low	4	0
3120	BERLIOZ—STRAUSS.—Instrumentation (2 Vols.) ..	38	0

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

(EDITION NOVELLO, No. 16.)

CRAMER.

FIFTY-SIX SELECT STUDIES

EDITED BY

FRANKLIN TAYLOR.

In One Volume, Price 4s. Or in Four Books, Price 1s. each.

(EDITION NOVELLO, No. 17.)

CLEMENTI.

GRADUS AD PARNASSUM

TWENTY-FOUR SELECTED STUDIES

EDITED AND FINGERED BY

FRANKLIN TAYLOR.

In One Volume, Price 3s. Or in Four Books, Price 1s. each.

(EDITION NOVELLO, No. 18.)

CZERNY.

SCHOOL OF VELOCITY

THIRTY SELECTED STUDIES

EDITED BY

FRANKLIN TAYLOR.

In One Volume, Price 2s. 6d. Or in Three Books, Price 1s. each.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

JUST PUBLISHED.

No. 86, NOVELLO'S MUSIC PRIMERS.

A PRACTICAL GUIDE TO THE THEORY OF MUSIC

CONTAINING

NUMEROUS TEST-QUESTIONS WITH ANSWERS.

BY

JULIA A. O'NEILL

Composer of "EXERCISES FOR THE WEAKER FINGERS" (Progressive Studies, Edited by FRANKLIN TAYLOR, Book 53) and of "MELODIOUS TECHNIQUE."

Price One Shilling. Paper Boards, 1s. 6d.

THE TIMES.

It is in its clear statement of facts, both in writing and by the use of simple diagrams, that Miss Julia O'Neill's book excels.

THE MORNING POST.

Her manner of putting down the facts is concise and clear. An immense amount of ground is covered in logical sequence, and the book is one of the most helpful publications as yet made. It is satisfactory to note that ear-cultivation is touched upon.

MUSICAL OPINION.

It is really surprising the amount of useful matter that Julia A. O'Neill has managed to compress within the covers of her primer, "A Practical Guide to the Theory of Music." Teachers who wish to keep abreast of the times in an educational sense will find this well-written guide calculated to help them to a knowledge of the latest and most accepted method of elementary theoretical instruction. We are pleased to note that the all-important subject of ear-culture has not been neglected in the present primer.

THE LADY.

Is a thoroughly praiseworthy attempt to present the cardinal facts of musical theory in a plain and straightforward manner to the beginner. Wholly admirable is the way the gradual formation of our present-day clefs is explained.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

A VALUABLE BOOK FOR TEACHERS AND STUDENTS.

TECHNIQUE AND EXPRESSION IN PIANOFORTE PLAYING

BY

FRANKLIN TAYLOR.

EXTRACT FROM PREFACE.

In the course of my experience as a teacher of the pianoforte, an experience extending over many years, certain ideas have from time to time suggested themselves to me which have proved useful—to myself, as enabling me to express more clearly that which I desired my pupils to understand, and to my pupils, as tending to facilitate their comprehension of the various difficulties they have had to encounter, at the same time leading them to perceive the most practical means of overcoming them, and thus accelerating their general rate of progress.

These suggestions relate to both the mechanical and intellectual sides of the study of pianoforte playing, or briefly, to Technique and Expression, the chief matters implied by the first of these terms being the production of various qualities of tone, the choice of suitable fingering, and the best methods of attacking certain difficulties; while the second, which may perhaps be more aptly designated the means of expression, includes rhythm, phrasing, variety, and gradation of tone, the use of the pedals, et cætera.

WITH NUMEROUS MUSICAL EXAMPLES FROM THE WORKS OF THE GREAT MASTERS.

PRICE, CLOTH, GILT, FIVE SHILLINGS NET.

Published as a net Book.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

London:—Printed by NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited, at Novello Works, Soho, and published at 160, Wardour Street, Soho, W. Sold also by SIMPKIN, MARSHALL, HAMILTON, KENT AND CO., Ltd., Paternoster Row, E.C.—Monday, February 1, 1915.

Frederick Delius

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

FOUNDED IN 1844.

PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH.

No. 865.—Vol. 56.
Registered at the General Post Office for Canadian Postage.

MARCH 1, 1915.

Price 3*d.*; Postage 1½*d.*
Annual Subscription, Post-free, 4*s.*

ROYAL CHORAL SOCIETY.

ROYAL ALBERT HALL.

Patron: HIS MAJESTY THE KING.
Conductor: SIR FREDERICK BRIDGE, C.V.O.

SATURDAY AFTERNOON, MARCH 20, AT 3.

"THE GOLDEN LEGEND"

(SULLIVAN),

FOLLOWED BY

"THE FLAG OF ENGLAND" - BRIDGE,

and a selection of Songs of the Sea.

INCLUDING

"SONG OF THE GREY SEAS"

BY PERCY E. FLETCHER.

Specially composed for the Royal Choral Society.
(First time of performance.)

MISS CARRIE TUBB.
MISS PHYLLIS LETT.
MR. IVOR WALTERS.
MR. CHARLES TREE.

GOOD FRIDAY AFTERNOON, APRIL 2, AT 3.

"MESSIAH" - - - HANDEL.

MISS RUTH VINCENT.
MADAME KIRKBY LUNN.
MR. JOHN COATES.
MR. HARRY DEARTH.

FULL BAND AND CHORUS.

Organist: MR. H. L. BALFOUR.

Prices: Stalls, 7s. 6d.; Arena, 6s.; Balcony, 4s. and 2s. 6d.; Gallery (Promenade), 1s.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC,

YORK GATE, MARYLEBONE ROAD, LONDON, N.W.

Instituted 1822. Incorporated by Royal Charter, 1830.
Patron: HIS MAJESTY THE KING.
President: H.R.H. THE DUKE OF CONNAUGHT, K.G.
Principal: Sir A. C. MACKENZIE, Mus. Doc., LL.D., F.R.A.M.

MIDSUMMER TERM BEGINS MONDAY, MAY 3.
ENTRANCE EXAMINATION, FRIDAY, APRIL 30, at 2.
Chamber Concert, Wednesday, March 24, at 3.
Fortnightly Concerts, Saturdays, March 13 and 27, at 8.
Full particulars on application to—
W. E. RENAUT, Assistant Secretary.

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC,

PRINCE CONSORT ROAD, SOUTH KENSINGTON, S.W.
(Incorporated by Royal Charter, 1883.)

Telegrams—"Initiative, Southkens, London." Telephone—"1160, Western."

Patron: HIS MAJESTY THE KING.
President: H.R.H. THE PRINCE CHRISTIAN, K.G.

Director:
Sir C. HUBERT H. PARRY, Bart., C.V.O., D.C.L., M.A., Mus. Doc.
Hon. Secretary: CHARLES MORLEY, Esq.

The MIDSUMMER TERM will commence on Monday, May 3. Entrance Examination, Thursday, April 29.

Syllabus and Official Entry Forms may be obtained from
CLAUDE AVELING, Registrar.

THE ASSOCIATED BOARD

OF THE R.A.M. AND R.C.M.
FOR LOCAL EXAMINATIONS IN MUSIC.

Patron: HIS MAJESTY THE KING.

LOCAL CENTRE EXAMINATIONS (SYLLABUS A).
Examinations in Theory held in March and November at all Centres. In Practical Subjects in March-April at all Centres, and in the London district and certain Provincial Centres in November-December also. Entries for the November-December Examinations close Wednesday, October 13, 1915.

SCHOOL EXAMINATIONS (SYLLABUS B).
Held throughout the British Isles three times a year, viz., June-July, October-November, and March-April. Entries for the June-July Examinations close Wednesday, May 12 (Irish Entries, May 5), 1915.
Theory papers set in Examinations of past years (Local Centre or School) can be obtained on application. Price 3d. per set, per year, post-free.
The Board offers annually SIX EXHIBITIONS tenable at the R.A.M. or R.C.M., for Two or Three Years.
Syllabuses A and B, Syllabus in Ear-Training and Sight-Singing, Entry Forms, and any further information, may be obtained post-free from—
JAMES MUIR, Secretary,
Telegrams: "Associa, London." 15, Bedford Square, London, W.C.

THE GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

JOHN CARPENTER ST., VICTORIA EMBANKMENT, E.C.
Established by the Corporation of London.
PRINCIPAL .. .. .. LANDON RONALD.

COMPLETE MUSICAL EDUCATION at an inclusive fee.
PRIVATE LESSONS are given in all musical subjects and STAGE TRAINING in Elocution, Gesture, Stage Dancing, Fencing, and OPERA.
WEEKLY ORCHESTRAL PRACTICES ARE CONDUCTED BY THE PRINCIPAL. Prospectus and Syllabus of Local Centre and Local Schools Examinations (open to general public) free.
H. SAXE WYNDHAM, Secretary. Tel. Holborn 1943.

ROYAL MANCHESTER COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

Patroness: HER MAJESTY QUEEN ALEXANDRA.
President: Sir W. H. HOULDSWORTH, Bart., LL.D.
Principal: Dr. ADOLPH BRODSKY.

The COLLEGE YEAR opened on Tuesday, September 29.
Special Houses of Residence recommended for Students.
Students are required to enter upon a complete course of Musical instruction, and are not admitted for a shorter period than one year.
Fee for the year, £30, payable in instalments of £10 at the beginning of each term. Special Fee for Wind Instrument Course, £15.
Systematic Course for the Training of Teachers included in the curriculum.
The Prospectus, with Scholarship information, Diploma Regulations, and Entry Forms, on application.
Opera Class—MISS MARIE BREMA.
STANLEY WITHERS, Registrar.

BIRMINGHAM & MIDLAND INSTITUTE.

SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

Visitor .. .. Sir EDWARD ELGAR, O.M., Mus. Doc., LL.D.
Director .. .. GRANVILLE BANTOCK, M.A.
Visiting Examiner .. W. G. MCNAUGHT, Mus. Doc.

SESSION 1914-1915.

The Session consists of AUTUMN TERM (September 21 to December 19); WINTER TERM (January 18 to March 27); SUMMER TERM (April 12 to June 26).
Instruction in all branches of Music, Students' Choir and Orchestra, Chamber Music, Students' Rehearsals, and Concerts.
Prospectus and further information may be obtained from—
H. M. FRANCIS, Secretary.

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF ORGANISTS.

Examination Regulations, List of College Publications, Lectures, &c., may be had on application.
H. A. HARDING, Hon. Sec.
Kensington Gore, S.W.

LONDON COLLEGE OF MUSIC,

GREAT MARLBOROUGH STREET, LONDON, W.

FOR MUSICAL EDUCATION AND EXAMINATIONS.

PATRON—HIS GRACE THE DUKE OF LEEDS. PRINCIPAL—DR. F. J. KARN, MUS. BAC. CANTAB.

DIRECTOR OF EXAMINATIONS—G. AUGUSTUS HOLMES, ESQ.

HIGHER EXAMINATIONS, 1914.

The following is a List of SUCCESSFUL CANDIDATES at the DIPLOMA EXAMINATIONS held in London and at the Provincial and Colonial Centres for the half-year to December, 1914 :—

DIPLOMAS IN PRACTICAL MUSIC.

LICENTIATES (L.L.C.M.).

PIANOFORTE PLAYING.—Rupert E. Askew, Edith Butler, Emily N. Brown, Evangeline L. Brind, Edwin B. Bourne, Gladys E. B. Birch, Ruth Barr, Eleanor D. Bartier, Masey Bennett, Zara Cogan, Erin Carroll, Dorothy Chapman, Ida Cody, Dorothy J. Cuthbert, Amy C. Chadwick, Florence Crowl, Iris P. Dutton, †Dorothy O. Dibb, Julia J. Davenport, Eileen Davies, Thomas Evans, Nellie Eurell, Marjorie Edwards, Pearl Feinstein, Millicent Fraser, Nancy H. Fenwick, †Jack Green, Annie Greenwood, Kathleen Guest, Eileen Grimes, Bertha Gett, Queenie Graham, Susannah Hazledine, David A. Harry, Esther D. Hudson, Alice Hadfield, Virginia Hovanessian, Elizabeth H. Horton, Ethel Hardwicke, Vida M. Hancock, Lily Harwin, Alma Hocking, Alice Helm, Agnes Hines, Olive G. L. Jones, Thelma G. Johnstone, †John B. Knowles, Alma Kendall, Myra J. King, W. R. Knox, Arthur F. Linfield, Gladys M. Lancaster, Lalla Lewis, Eileen Leiper, Nellie Lee, L. Molineux, Nellie Martin, Ethel Mower, Maud D. F. Martin, Florence A. G. McEachern, Margaret Murray, Adeline Mutton, Alice McNamara, Kathleen Meredith, Margaret Mitchell, Florence C. Pincham, Christina Parsons, Eva M. Purday, Bertha Ratcliffe, Laura Ryder, Ruby Roberts, Lilian Searle, Martha M. A. Scott, Lily Spencer, Dorothy M. Shaw, Ivy E. D. Shordon, Rosina Smith, John H. Thom, Gwenfron Thomas, Eileen L. Tanner, Leonie Tomkinson, Dorothy O. Toomey, Dorothy Thomson, Clara J. Vines, N. J. Watson, Lilian D. Whitmore, Margaret M. Wilson, Muriel I. Wain, Gladys M. T. Warburton, Florence Wyatt, Gwladys Williams, Ivy Watson, Gladys Williams, Pearl Wilson.

ORGAN PLAYING.—Robert M. N. Johnson.

VIOLIN PLAYING.—Jan Child, Doreen Humphrey, Charles Henry, William Swan.

SINGING.—Enid D. Hunt, Phœbe H. Myers, William H. Stones, James Ure.

ELOCUTION.—Grace D. Biggins, Elsie M. Filcock.

† Silver Medalists.

ASSOCIATES (A.L.C.M.).

PIANOFORTE PLAYING.—Lily V. Aitken, Kathleen E. Aldgate, Millicent Armitage, Esther Ashworth, Harold Adshead, Dorothy Allsep, Wilton Auckett, Beatrice L. Austin, Alice L. Aitken, Nina S. Browne, Hilda M. Brown, Mary E. Benkins, John H. Beddoe, Louie Brayshaw, Hettie Ball, Florence M. Bushell, Gladys E. Baldwin, Florence E. Bird, Ivy M. Bilner, George B. Beattie, Evelyn Buckley, Leah Binnion, Constance Baker, Elsie Bannister, Nellie Booth, Nellie Bates, Dorothy C. Bridges, Lottie Bowen, Gladys Bridge, John Booth, Ella Barry, May Berry, Elma Barrett, Lottie Bailey, May Boland, Eileen I. Brady, Linda Backstrom, May Bent, Mamie Bonwick, Edith B. Brownfield, Elsie Barrett, Jean Burns, Irene E. G. M. Barker, Edwina J. Boyle, Dorothy M. Bertram, Margareta A. Bancroft, Mary A. Briggs, Violet M. Bond, Ella Brien, Gladys A. Bunn, Lorrie Barnden, M. Barnes, Stephanie C. Colombier, Jemima Campbell, Daisy Clien, Dorothy E. Coleman, Irene Conway, Beatrice J. Calvert, Mary Collinge, Hannah G. Cropper, Albert Carr, Richard V. Clarke, Violet M. Colwill, Ida Clayton, Hettie Castles, Lily A. Cooper, Florence M. Coldwell, Elma H. G. Collins, Elizabeth Carey, Mabel Campbell, Ethel Cobb, Nellie Carpenter, Mary Cullen, Alva M. Colless, Mabel Cullen, Waverley A. B. Cuthbert, Essie Castles, Thelma I. Croxon, Elsie Colley, Edna Cotter, Olive Carden, Dorothy Cox, Ethel L. Chadwick, Alice C. M. Cole, Bessie Carter, Lillian Campton, Lala Cavenagh, Dorothy Cook, Mary T. Davies, Emily P. Dyer, Ellen B. Durston, Ceridwen Davies, Esther D. Deacon, Dorothy E. Dines, Elizabeth F. Davis, Gethin B. Davies, Hilda B. Dewes, Vera Delugar, Iris I. Dymock, Ettie Dahms, Enid Dewhurst, Madeline I. Dreyer, Veronica G. Daily, Queenie Dawsey, Lettie B. Evans, *Dorothy M. Elliot, Erna Entwisle, Alice M. Evans, May Evans, Mary Everitt, Edith Eidler, Nellie Ellis, Myrtle E. Esler, Sarah L. Forrester, †Maud E. Field, Harry M. Firth, Bernard Fowles, Emanuel K. Forster, Evelyn Furley, Gladys A. Flew, Alice E. Franklin, Beatrice M. Field, Gladys Frater, Vena Fraser, Mary F. F. Falconer, Gwen Fewings, Nita Fergie, Agnes Fox, Inez I. Ford, Jessie M. Griffin, Frances H. Gordon, Ethel F. Greaves, Josephine D. Griffiths, Margaret Grady, Nettie Garside, Thomas Glendinning, Clarissa F. Gibson, May Griffiths, Marie Geary, Clare Grenenger, Lucy Grant, Ethel Gray, Josephine A. Gavin, Hope Graham, Maud Gilbert, Dorothy Grenenger, Ada George, Hyacinth M. Garling, Arthur Green, Cecilia Goldberg, James H. Hough, Irene V. Hastings, Florence M. Hoskins, Reginald Harris, Ada L. Hadwen, Roberta M. Hutchison, Edith L. Hayes, Kathleen I. Horn-Heap, Charles Hancock, Annie Henshall, Lilian S. Harrold, Muriel A. Hinton, Miriam J. Harris, Esther Harris, Jessie Hamilton, Phyllis Horne, Lillie Hinds, Ivy P. Hayden, Addie Hart, Doris Hayward, Amy H. Hawke, Amber Holmes, Ina Harrison, Lillian Hellyer, Eva A. Howat, Gertrude Humphries, Elsie Hopping, Vera Holland, Ethel H. Hill, Catherine H. Hutchison, Olive E. Holder, Gertrude Hickey, Vera Howden, Madeline Holmes, Ina Hart, Andrea Hansen, M. A. Hakendorf, Josephine J. Imrie, Ruby Insall, Emmie James, Lizzie Jones, Lilian Jenkins, Eiddwen Jones, William C. Jenkins, Myfanwy John, Eva Johnston, Gladys James, Lucy E. Jones, Emily James, Evelyn Johnstone, Doris M. Jones, Eva M. E. Jones, Hilda D. Kaiser, Gertrud L. Kurtz, Rosalie Kennedy, Nellie Kiely, Stella Kerrigan, Amelia E. Kelly, Ellen M. Kenevan, D. C. Knox, W. R. Knox, Minnie E. Limbrick, Bronwen Lewis, Dora E. Lloyd, Eileen M. Leonard, Miriam Levien, Elsie Lambert, Sylvia Leaver, Myrtle Leape, Valda L. Le Cavalier, Dorothy M. Lewis, Nita Levy, Evelyn Lucas, Elvera J. Lansell, Harold Merrett, Kathleen MacNamara, Gertrude Marshall, Clara A. McDonough, Maggie McGowan, May Meaken, Janie C. Marshall, Ada March, John W. Marlow, Helena J. McEmery, Eileen Muckle, Heather Maisey, Olive McManus, Olive M. McKenzie, Hazel Morris, Muriel McLennan, Marjorie S. H. McDonald, Queenie McGuire, Clarice E. Maynard, Lucy I. Maynard, Millie Manny, Estelle M. Moore, Eileen McDonough, Margaret M. Moriarty, Jessie I. McLennan, P. P. McGrath, Kathleen McNeice, Margaret M. Moran, Lucy M. Mulcahy, Olive M. McLernon, Lavera M'Clure, Edna McDonald, R. F. McBeath, William Nicholson, Doris L. Neep, Lily Needes, Annette Noall, Emily M. Nation, Millie Napier, Margaret A. Nicholson, Edina J. O'Riordan, Nora Oliver, Arabella E. Odendaal, Joseph O'Keefe, Alice Odgers, Monica O'Connor, Laura O'Donnell, Emma R. Oates, Alberta Oakman, Ethel A. Pritchett, Mona F. E. Priestley, Florence Parsons, Laura Potter, Mary W. Preece, Laura Parker, Elsie Parker, Sydney W. Parsons, Madeleine M. Porter, Alice M. Payne, Mary B. Packer, Eileen Pilgrim, Eileen E. Pollett, Marjorie M. Pennington, Dorothy M. Peters, Lily Plumridge, Elleanor M. Pitts, Julia R. van Quickelberge, Mary Reavey, Gladys L. Ryan-Smith, Hilda Richardson, Winifred Reeves, Winifred Reypert, Nellie Ritchie, Linda I. L. Robertson, Leila Rinaldi, Ronald Reeds, Ada M. Roach, Maggie Robertson, Gladys M. Rogan, Nettie J. Rice, Ida M. Rohan, Gladys Ricketts, Doris Robbins, Alice A. Robins, Vera Reynolds, Hilma I. Richards, Christina C. D. Sellar, Eileen Smyth, Ethel Sayers, Rosamund M. Sadler, May Stevenson, Julia Sanders, Herbert Slater, Violet Slater, Douglas Smith, Jane A. Smith, Alice Smiles, Edith H. Stephenson, Kathleen W. Sisson, May Saxton, Ethel M. Stamp, Hilda M. Shaw, Janie Stodel, Doris E. Saunders, Edna V. Smith, Myrtle A. Skewes, Myrtle A. Stephens, Olive M. Spencer, Alfreda M. Schmidt, Cecil A. Shaw, Hazel Sparling, Monica Starkie, Hilda J. Sharp, Lexie Stahle, Eleanor Turner, Evelyn S. Tucker, Jane D. Tarbert, James E. Troughton, Emily Tipton, Gladys R. Thomas, Cyril Thomas, Gertrude B. Thomas, Amy I. Tinfoo, Dorothea M. Thorn, Annie Tuite, Florence C. Tilley, Lucy M. Timms, Alma P. Turner, Stella Taylor, Gertrude Toohey, Edith H. E. Thomas, Eva Theissen, Essie A. R. Thomas, Mary L. Vaughan, Ena Vote, Inez Vinnard, Margery P. Williams, Flora G. D. Watkins, Alice White, Agnes M. Whelan, Sybil F. V. Webster, Mary L. Winterson, Florence F. Williams, Elizabeth M. Williams, Beryl J. Watson, Hilda M. Wardle, Catherine J. A. Walker, Doris C. Whittle, Hilda Wearing, Victoria M. Wright, Florence M. Welch, Maudie Williams, Annie Wheeler, Mary E. Williams, Maggie Williams, Edna Winten, Edith Webb, Doris Watt, Clara White, Phœbe Wilson, Ethel M. Wright, Susie Walker, Vera M. Williams, Edie Wilson, Flora Watts, Ella White, Ruby Wall, Edward White, Thelma Whatman, Amy L. White, Stella Wallace, Ivy E. Yelland.

VIOLIN PLAYING.—Lillias M. Blackwell, Eileen Connor, Beatrice Fitzpatrick, Norman Gibbons, Clive P. Green, Leonard Humphries, May M. Higgins, Albert Jones, Carrie Lilamund, Elsie McGillivray, Mollie McFadyean, Florence W. O'Brien, Evelyn Ross, Maud Stranger, Honor H. Stevens, Dorothy Thomson, Clara White, Katie White.

SINGING.—Vida A. Airey, Elsie Carlin, Janet A. Farmer, Eileen Furlong, Maude Gane, Doreen Harley, Elva W. Harris, Katherine M. Horsey, Mary E. Lennon, Maud A. Machin, Veronica Pound, Robert W. Plant, Hilda Pritchard, Elsie E. Skinner, Beatrice Taylor-Browne, Evelyn Wotton, Emily M. Webb, Lillian V. Wenban, Isabel M. Wallace, A. H. Watts.

* Gold Medalist. † Silver Medalist.

LONDON COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

DIPLOMAS IN PRACTICAL MUSIC—Continued.

ASSOCIATES (A.L.C.M.)—Continued.

Organ Playing.—Robert H. Roberts, Harold Taylor.

Cornet Playing.—Edward P. Code.

Elocution.—Bertha Armstrong, Harriet Bishopbrigg, Elsie H. Baker, Mary Carpenter, Ivy Gayford, Nellie Harrison, Harriet L. Lee, Queenie Marshall, Annie Meller, F. Isabel Marks, Reay Mackay, Elizabeth A. Tulip.

TEACHERS' DIPLOMA.

Pianoforte Playing.—May Blee, Frances F. Clarke, Chloe Curtis, Irene M. Denmark, Muriel E. Johnston, Edith M. Newcomb, Caroline A. B. Paterson.

DIPLOMAS IN THEORETICAL MUSIC.

FELLOWSHIP (F.L.C.M.).

Thomas Emberton.

LICENTIATES IN MUSIC (L.Mus.L.C.M.).

William A. Payne, Lily Perfect.

ASSOCIATES IN MUSIC (A.Mus.L.C.M.).

Esther L. Berry, Grace M. Harrison, John H. Jackson, J. Winifred E. Martin, Kathleen M. Sewell, Janie Stodel, Sydney M. Weaver.

The examiners were: Horton Allison, Esq., Mus. Doc. Dublin, Mus. Bac. Cantab., F.R.A.M.; Alfred W. Abdey, Esq., Mus. Doc. Oxon., F.R.C.O.; Edward R. G. Andrews, Esq.; Percy S. Bright, Esq., Mus. Bac. Lond., F.R.C.O.; S. Bath, Esq., Mus. Doc. Dublin, Mus. Bac. Oxon., F.R.C.O.; H. Cooper, Esq.; J. Withers Carter, Esq., F.R.C.O.; Chas. T. Corke, Esq., Mus. Bac. Cantab., A.R.A.M.; Frank Ellerton, Esq., Mus. Bac. Oxon., F.R.C.O.; Evan P. Evans, Esq.; Leonard N. Fowles, Esq., Mus. Doc. Oxon.; Cuthbert Harris, Esq., Mus. Doc. Dunelm., F.R.C.O; H. F. Henniker, Esq., Mus. Doc. Cantuar., A.R.A.M.; Arthur S. Holloway, Esq., Mus. Doc. Oxon.; G. Augustus Holmes, Esq., Director of Examinations; Ludwig Hopf, Esq.; Charles E. Jolley, Esq., Mus. Doc. Oxon.; Aug. W. Junker, Esq.; F. J. Karn, Esq., Mus. Doc. T.U.T., Mus. Bac. Cantab.; Geo. F. King, Esq.; M. Kingston, Esq., Mus. Bac. Cantab.; D. J. Montague, Esq.; Graham Price, Esq.; G. D. Rawle, Esq., Mus. Bac. Lond.; Roland Rogers, Esq., Mus. Doc. Oxon.; J. Howlett Ross, Esq.; G. Gilbert Stocks, Esq., Mus. Doc. Oxon., F.R.C.O.; E. P. Salvage, Esq.,; Reginald J. Shanks, Esq.; W. H. Shinn, Esq.; W. E. Thomas, Esq., Mus. Doc. Oxon.; C. Reginald Toms, Esq.; John Thornton, Esq.; James Ure, Esq.; Harold E. Watts, Esq., Mus. Doc. Oxon.

There were 876 Candidates for Diplomas, of which number 571 passed, 294 failed, and 11 were absent.

The HIGHER EXAMINATIONS for the DIPLOMAS of ASSOCIATE (A.L.C.M.), and LICENTIATE (L.L.C.M.), are held in London and at certain Provincial, Foreign, and Colonial centres in APRIL, JUNE, JULY, and DECEMBER; and for the DIPLOMAS of ASSOCIATE IN MUSIC (A.Mus.L.C.M.), LICENTIATE IN MUSIC (L.Mus.L.C.M.), the TEACHERS' DIPLOMA (L.C.M.), and FELLOWSHIP (F.L.C.M.) in JUNE, JULY, and DECEMBER.

The NEXT LOCAL EXAMINATION in all branches of practical and theoretical music will be held in London and at over 400 Local centres in APRIL. The last day of entry is March 15.

REPRESENTATIVES are required to form LOCAL CENTRES in vacant districts in Great Britain and all other parts of the world. Ladies or gentlemen willing to undertake the duties should apply to the Secretary for particulars. SCHOOL CENTRES may also be arranged.

GOLD, SILVER, and BRONZE MEDALS and BOOK PRIZES are awarded at the Examinations in accordance with the printed regulations. The awards in Medals for 1915 have been considerably extended, and full details will be found in the Syllabus.

The TEACHING DEPARTMENT of the College provides COMPLETE MUSICAL EDUCATION for Students, Amateur or Professional. PRIVATE LESSONS are given in Pianoforte, Singing, Violin, Harp, Organ, Harmony, Counterpoint, and Musical Composition (including Fugue, Orchestration, and Musical History), Mandoline, Guitar, and Elocution; also in Violoncello, Flute, Clarinet, and all other orchestral instruments. LESSONS MAY COMMENCE FROM ANY DATE.

There are CLASSES in Pianoforte, Singing, Violin, Elocution, Harmony, Counterpoint, Ear Training, Sight Singing, &c.; also SPECIAL COURSE of TRAINING for Teachers of Music, and PROFESSIONAL COURSE for Pianists, Violinists, and Vocalists. Fine THREE-MANUAL ORGAN (38 stops) in the College Concert Hall, available for lessons and practice.

The College is open from 9.30 a.m. to 9.30 p.m. The staff consists of over 90 professors.

There is a CHOIR (S.A.T.B.), FULL ORCHESTRA, OPERA TRAINING CLASS, STRING QUARTET CLASS, DRAMATIC CLASS, and CONDUCTOR'S CLASS.

The 206th Students' Concert took place in the Concert Hall of the College on February 8.

The Opera Class have in rehearsal "The Gondoliers," by Gilbert and Sullivan.

Full particulars of both Education and Examination Departments of the College, together with Syllabus and Forms of Entry, can be obtained on application to T. WEEKES HOLMES, Secretary.

Telephones: 3870 Central and 3948 Gerrard. Telegrams: "Supertonic, Reg, London."

MANCHESTER SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

Patron: Sir W. H. Houldsworth, Bart.

Principal: Albert J. Cross, A.R.A.M. Sixty Professors.
New Violin Professor: Mr. John Dunn.

All Branches of Music taught. Private or Class Tuition.

Full and String Orchestras, Operas, Lectures, Recitals, Chamber and Orchestral Concerts. Prospectus from The Secretary, Albert Square.

The Opera Class will give Auber's "Fra Diavolo" in April.

The Correspondence School of Music,

37, INDERWICK ROAD, STROUD GREEN, LONDON, N.

Graduated Postal Lessons in Harmony, Counterpoint, and all branches of Musical Theory. Pupils prepared for Mus. Doc., Mus. Bac., L.R.A.M., F.R.C.O., A.R.C.M., and any other examination.

Large Staff of Experienced Tutors.

Terms very moderate—from One Guinea per quarter.

Prospectus post-free from The Secretary.

UNIVERSITY OF DURHAM.

Examinations for degrees in Music are held as follows:—Matriculation, April and October; First Mus. B., March and September; Final Mus. B., and Mus. D., September only.

For particulars, apply Secretary of Examinations, University Office, Durham. Copies of former Examination Papers, 1s. per set.

INCORPORATED GUILD OF CHURCH MUSICIANS.

Founded 1888.

Incorporated pursuant to Act of Parliament XXX. and XXXI. Victoria, Cap. cxxxi., § 23.

President: The Very Rev. The Dean of Bristol, D.D.

ASSOCIATE (A.I.G.C.M.), LICENTIATE (L.I.G.C.M.), FELLOWSHIP (F.I.G.C.M.) EXAMINATIONS in London and at approved Provincial Centres in July and December.

COMPETITIONS FOR 1915.

Silver Medal for the best Setting of the Nicene Creed to Easy Ecclesiastical phrases, not necessarily Gregorian Tones.

Silver Medal for the best Magnificat, set to one of the Festal Gregorian Tones, with varied Bourdons to Verses 3, 4, and Gloria Patri.

Bronze Medal for the best simple Andante for the Organ (Pedal obbligato).

Bronze Medal for the best Kyrie.

April 28, 1915, Annual Service.

May 27, 1915, Lecture: "Some Æstheticisms of Ecclesiastical Etiquette," by Dr. T. Westlake Morgan.

REGISTER OF ORGAN VACANCIES.

Organists (Members) have the free use of the Register of Vacant Appointments.

Calendar (gratis) and further information of Dr. LEWIS, Warden, 18, Berners Street, London, W.

VICTORIA COLLEGE OF MUSIC, LONDON.

(Under the direction of the Victoria College Corporation, Ltd.)

INCORPORATED 1891.

18, Berners Street, Oxford Street, London, W.

President: The Most Hon. The Marquis of Anglesey.

Board of Examination:

Principal: J. H. Lewis, D.C.L., F.E.I.S., Mus. Doc.

Chairman: J. M. Bentley, Mus. Doc. Cantab., Hon. F.R.A.M.

Hon. Director of Studies: Churchill Sibley, Mus. Doc., F.I.G.C.M.

Robert Fox Frew, Mus. Doc. Dunelm.

Rev. Noel Bonavia-Hunt, M.A. Oxon.

Secretary: H. Portman Lewis.

Metropolitan Examinations in all subjects, including the Diplomas of A.V.C.M., L.V.C.M., F.V.C.M., also for the Teachers' Professional Diploma in the Art of Teaching, April, July, and December.

Local Theoretical Examinations, July and December.

Practical Examinations are now being held at the various Centres.

Gold, Silver, and Bronze Medals are offered for Competition.

Local Secretaries required for towns not represented.

Dr. Churchill Sibley gives personal lectures at the College.

All communications to be addressed as usual to The Secretary, Registered Office, 11, Burleigh Street, Strand, W.C.

NATIONAL CONSERVATOIRE

Inst., 1895. OF MUSIC, Ltd. Incor., 1900.

London: 149, Oxford Street, W.; Liverpool: 44, Princes Road.

Warden: Professor Alexander Phipps, Mus. Bac.

LOCAL MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS (all Towns), April.

DIPLOMAS, ASSOCIATE, LICENTIATE, and FELLOW.

Thorough training all Subjects, for professional and amateur students.

GLASGOW CHORAL (COMPETITION) FESTIVAL

SATURDAY, MAY 1, 1915.

Classes:

Children's Choirs. | Quartets.
Female-Voice Choirs. | Vocal Solos.

Adjudicator: Dr. W. G. McNaught.

Syllabus on application (enclosing stamp) to Hon. Secretaries Glasgow Choral Festival, 115, Renfield Street, Glasgow.

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE OF WALES, ABERYSTWYTH.

(One of the Constituent Colleges of the University of Wales.)

MUSIC SCHOOL.

DEPARTMENT OF INSTRUMENTAL MUSIC.

This Department is now open to all Students of Music. There is no Entrance Examination, and Students may specialise in one subject.

SPECIAL STAFF:—

M. GASTON LE FEUVE .. .. .. Violin.
Formerly Professor at the Schola Cantorum, Paris.

M. HENRI DELANGE .. .. Violin.
Premier Prix du Conservatoire de Bruxelles.

M. CAMILLE DELOBELLE .. .. Violoncello.
Lauréat du Conservatoire de Paris.

M. CHARLES TURBOUR .. .. .. Viola.
Elève de MM. Schwartz et Laforge, Professeurs au Conservatoire de Paris.

Madame L. ANDRE BARBIER Singing and Pianoforte.
Elève de M. Archainbaud, Professeur au Conservatoire de Paris, and Organizer of Classical Concerts in Manchester and Wales.

Classes are held in: Violin, Violoncello, Viola, Chamber and Orchestral Music, Theory of Instrumental Music, Singing, Voice-Training, and Pianoforte.

Special attention is paid to the study and interpretation of Chamber Music, under the direction of the Le Feuve Quartette, and to the Part-Singing Classes for the training of Choirmasters, under the direction of Madame Barbier.

	£	s.	d.
Fee for the Full Course for the Session	12	0	0
Fee for a Single Course for a Term	2	2	0
Registration Fee for the Session	1	0	0
Registration Fee for a Term	0	10	0

Students taking the Full Course may also attend Arts Classes in the College without further charge.

All further particulars may be obtained from the Registrar at the College.

MR. W. H. BREARE

VOCAL ADVISER and TEACHER OF SINGING TO STUDENTS AND THE PROFESSION.

Author of "Vocalism," "Elocution: Its First Principles," "Vocal Faults and their Remedies."

In the Press, and shortly to be Published: "Vocal Technique: How it feels to Sing."

"The most complete guide to singing in English."—"Lancelot," in the Referee.

"One of the sanest of sane expositions."—Musical Courier, N.Y.

"One step nearer to the ideal."—Referee ("Lancelot").

"Is a reliable expert in all branches."—Gentlewoman.

"A magnificent guide to both teachers and students."—Eastern Morning News.

"Do not hesitate to commend."—Glasgow Herald.

"Well up and enthusiastic in his subject, which he handles in a masterly manner. His technical knowledge is minute, wide and accurate: what he has to say is well worthy of consideration by public singers and music teachers."—Aberdeen Free Press.

"Has had exceptional opportunities of studying his subject. . . . Common-sense in all he utters."—Leeds Mercury.

"Is an acknowledged authority. . . ."—Western Morning News.

"I have not the slightest fear of contradiction when I say that no one knows more about the voice and vocal production than Mr. W. H. Breare."—"Counterpoint," in the Newcastle Journal.

Further Press Opinions on application.

Address: "Herald" Buildings, Harrogate, or 139, New Bond Street, W.

PIANO PEDALS with Octave Coupler

This wonderful invention supersedes all Piano Pedals, and is a Master Patent.

The Cathedral, Manchester,
Nov. 8, 1910.

Dear Mr. Malkin,

I think your Patent Pedal Attachment, which you have fitted to my Steinway, is simply splendid. I find the action absolutely silent and its touch beautiful.—Yours truly,

R. H. P. COLEMAN, F.R.C.O., Sub-Organist.

Terms:—Cash, or instalments of 8s. per month.

Write for Lists, Prices, and Clients' Opinions, and References to

THE MALKIN PATENT PEDAL CO., Ltd.,
Works—Hanley, Staffs. NEWCASTLE-UNDER-LYME.

TO PERFECT TECHNIQUE

If you find it impossible to overcome any difficulty in pianoforte technique—remember that it will cost you nothing to consult me (by letter), and that it will put you under no obligation to adopt my methods. The success of 6,000 pupils has proved that

"From Brain to Keyboard"

MACDONALD SMITH'S SYSTEM OF PIANOFORTE TOUCH AND TECHNIQUE

gives permanent mastery over all difficulties of Technique

Pianist's Cramp, Stiffness, Wooden Touch, Lack of Power and Independence, Thumping, Nervousness, Inability to read at sight, to play arpeggios, trills and long skips, Faulty Inflection and Accentuation, are all overcome with amazing rapidity by the eight minutes twice daily application of this System. In fact there is not a single technical requirement of the pianist or organist, from beginner to the most advanced, which is not successfully met by this System. And the results are permanent and not materially affected by neglect of the instrument. The necessity for perpetual keyboard "practice" is totally abolished—a point of the highest value to the busy pianist.

Write for my FREE BOOK to-day

I shall be pleased to send you post free "Light on Pianoforte Playing," which explains my System and its principles. If you will detail any special difficulties you have, I will explain how they can be permanently overcome by my "From Brain to Keyboard" System. My System has been used and cordially endorsed by Sir Frederick Bridge and other leading musicians, and it is therefore well worth your while at least to study carefully the possibilities it holds for you. It is taught by post, does not interfere with your present arrangements, and is indisputably the cheapest, quickest, and most certain way to the complete and permanent mastery of technique. Write to-day to

M. MACDONALD SMITH,
19, BLOOMSBURY SQUARE, LONDON, W.C.
(Personal Interviews by Appointment only.)

Playing Music at Sight as Easily as Reading a Book

To play music at sight should to all pianists be as easy as reading a book. By ordinary methods, the ability to do so is only acquired as the result of years of practising for many hours daily. My System of Pianoforte Sight-Playing will enable a pianist to attain much greater proficiency in three months of about a quarter-of-an-hour's daily practice.

Hundreds of students have taken my Course of Correspondence Lessons with remarkable success.

E. B., Spark Hill, Birmingham, writes on February 16, 1915: "I am very fascinated with the Course, and I am very anxious to get on as quickly as possible. I feel so far that I have wonderfully improved, and I am very glad I became a student."

A full explanation of the System is given in my Booklet, sent free on application.

The inventor of this System is a Frenchman domiciled in England.

L. M. EHREMAYER, 27, CHANCERY LANE, W.C.

THE EHREMAYER SYSTEM OF PIANOFORTE SIGHT-PLAYING.

PROFESSIONAL NOTICES.

MR. SAMUEL MASTERS
(TENOR).
Address—164, Bank Buildings, Ewell Road, Surbiton.

MR.
CHARLESWORTH GEORGE
(BASS-BARITONE).
Pupil of H. Chilver-Wilson, Esq. (London) and Prof. Vincenzo Sabatini (Milan).

I have much pleasure in stating that Mr. Charlesworth George took the part of Samuel in the Oratorio of "King Saul," and that he sang it with admirable intelligence, spirit and dramatic insight.—C. HUBERT H. PARRY.

Morning Post.—A baritone voice of considerable resonance and useful quality.

Standard.—A bass-baritone of a fine, resonant quality throughout.

Yorkshire Observer.—An exceptionally good voice of considerable range and ringing qualities.

49, Avondale Road, Shipley, Yorks.

MISS ETHEL VISICK
RECEIVES PUPILS FOR PIANOFORTE TUITION
AT HER STUDIO, 4, COLEHERNE TERRACE, S.W.

STAINER'S CRUCIFIXION.—Bertram Hacker (Tenor), and George McFaden (Baritone). Vacant dates, apply B. Hacker, 10, Stuart Road, Thornton Heath.

CRUCIFIXION, OLIVET TO CALVARY, REDEMPTION. TENOR SOLOIST (West-End Church) can ACCEPT ENGAGEMENTS for the above works. For terms, &c., apply to D. E., c/o Novello & Co., Ltd., 160, Wardour Street, W.

THE LONDON COLLEGE FOR CHORISTERS.
DIRECTOR: MR. JAMES BATES.

SOLO BOYS for Oratorios, Festival Services, Concerts; also LEADING BOYS for Church Choirs can be supplied for occasional or permanent engagements. Address, E. B. GOLDING, Secretary, 6, Blomfield Crescent, Hyde Park, W.

Telegrams: "Musicomane, Phone, London." Telephone: 5990 Paddington.

MUSICAL REVISER TO MESSRS. NOVELLO FOR THIRTY YEARS.
COMPOSERS' MSS.
REVISED and PREPARED FOR PRINTING; ADVICE GIVEN as to most suitable publishers for various styles of composition.
H. ELLIOT BUTTON, "Harewood," Ardwick Road, Hampstead, N.W.
Reference to the following composers kindly permitted:—
Sir C. HUBERT H. PARRY, Bt., C.V.O., Sir EDWARD ELGAR, O.M., Sir FREDERICK BRIDGE, C.V.O., Dr. WALFORD DAVIES.

DR. A. EAGLEFIELD HULL
MUS. DOC. OXON., F.R.C.O.
Author of "Modern Harmony: Its Explanation and Application" (Augener), and "Organ Playing: Its Technique and Expression."
Address:
MELBOURNE HOUSE, HUDDERSFIELD.

DR. ALLISON instructed by Post Candidates who OBTAINED DEGREES OF MUS.D. and MUS.B. at Oxford, Cambridge, Dublin, London, and Durham Universities, Diplomas of F.L.C.M., L.Mus.L.C.M., A.R.C.M., F.R.C.O., and L.R.A.M. Gold Medals, Silver Medals, Scholarships, Prizes, "Honours," and Pass Certificates (of the Colleges of Music) to the number of eight hundred and seventy. Dr. Allison is quite willing to teach those who neither require nor desire to pass examinations. Harmony, Counterpoint, Orchestration, and Analysis of Composition by Post, to correspondents anywhere. Personal instruction in Theory, Singing, Organ, and Pianoforte. Cambridge House, 68, Nelson St., Manchester.

REVISION OF MUSICAL COMPOSITIONS. Dr. Horton Allison, Mus.D., 68, Nelson Street, Manchester.

DR. CUTHBERT HARRIS, Mus. Doc. Dunelm., F.R.C.O. SPECIALIST IN CORRESPONDENCE TUITION. 340 Successes in Mus. D., Mus. B., F.R.C.O., and A.R.C.O. MSS. revised and arranged for publication. 48, Braxted Park, Streatham, S.W. Telephone: Streatham 487.

MISS H. HEALE COACHES for all EXAMINATIONS in MUSIC (at private residence or at West-End studio), in Pianoforte, Harmony, Counterpoint, Fugue, Form, Orchestration, "Teaching," Modulation, Transposition, &c. For Terms, &c., apply Dunraven House, 41, Albert Bridge Road, S.W.

L.R.A.M. (PAPER WORK).

MR. E. H. BIBBY (Mus. Bac., L.R.A.M., A.R.C.M.) has SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE COURSES for the Form and Teaching" and "Rudiments and Harmony" papers set the L.R.A.M. Exams.

L.R.A.M. EXAMS., 1910-14.—68 Correspondence Pupils successful. (September and Christmas, 1914: 17 Successes out of 21 Entries.)

A.R.C.M. (PAPER WORK).

MR. BIBBY has now also CORRESPONDENCE COURSES for the Paper Work portions of the A.R.C.M. Exams.

A.R.C.M., April, 1914: 9 Correspondence Successes. No Failures.

MR. BIBBY also gives Postal Lessons in RUDIMENTS, HARMONY, FORM, &c., quite apart from the above-mentioned Special Examination Courses.

Address, c/o Forsyth Bros., Deansgate, Manchester.

DR. ARTHUR S. HOLLOWAY, Mus. D. Oxon., 13, Roseleigh Avenue, Highbury, N., continues to PREPARE CANDIDATES for the various Theoretical Examinations. Music of any description revised or arranged. LESSONS in COMPOSITION, by post if desired.

DR. FREDERICK J. KARN (Mus. Bac. Cantab.; Mus. Doc. Toronto), gives Lessons by post, in Harmony, Counterpoint, Fugue, Form and Analysis, Acoustics, Orchestration, &c. Individual instruction. Also Personal Lessons. MSS. corrected for publication. Analyses of Classical Works for Examinations. Terms moderate and inclusive. Candidates prepared by Dr. Karn have obtained the degrees of Mus. Bac. or Mus. Doc. at Durham, Oxford, Dublin, Cambridge, London, and the University of Wales. Also F.R.C.O., A.R.C.O., L.R.A.M. (Composition, Pianoforte, Organ, Bandmastership, and Conducting), A.R.C.M. (Composition, Theory of Music, and Pianoforte Teaching), L. Mus. and A. Mus., L.C.M. Associated Board, &c. Dr. Karn continues to coach for all Musical Examinations. 106, Haverstock Hill, London, N.W.

ST. BOTOLPH'S CHURCH, Aldgate.—ORGAN LESSONS GIVEN upon the fine 3-manual instrument. Pupils allowed to practise. Address Frederic Lacey, Organist.

DR. LEWIS, Mus. Doc., F.E.I.S., Warden, Incorporated Guild of Church Musicians, gives LESSONS, Personally or by Post, in HARMONY and COUNTERPOINT. 18, Berners Street, Oxford Street, W.

DR. LEWIS' TEXT-BOOKS:

Harmony. (2 vols.) 5s. each, net.
Counterpoint. 5s. net.
Double Counterpoint and Canon. 5s. net.
Fugue. 1s. 6d. net.
Elements of Music. 2s. 6d. net.
Development of Anglican Church Music. 2s. net.
Pronouncing Vocabulary of Musical Terms. 6d. net.
Dictionary of Musical Terms. 6d. net.
Material of Melody. 3d. net.

The above, complete, will be forwarded (carriage paid) for 15s.

MISS F. HELENA MARKS PREPARES for L.R.A.M. and other Examinations. Pianoforte, Harmony, "Form and Teaching," &c. Lessons (oral or by correspondence). Pupils received and visited for the Pianoforte. Many recent successes, L.R.A.M., &c. Pianoforte Classes, 10, Matheson Rd., West Kensington.

DR. H. H. L. MIDDLETON, Mus. Doc. (Dubl.), F.R.C.O., L.R.A.M., A.R.C.M., makes a SPECIALITY of COACHING FOR DEGREES. L.R.A.M., 1897-1914, ONE HUNDRED AND THIRTY-EIGHT SUCCESSES; A.R.C.M., 1897-1914, THREE HUNDRED AND FIFTY-SIX SUCCESSES. Equally good results in R.C.O. and other Examinations.

Address, Thornleigh, 6, Elm Park Road, Finchley, N.

MR. C. W. PERKINS, Organist of the Town Hall and the University, Birmingham, gives ORGAN LESSONS in London. Address, Town Hall, Birmingham.

PERCY WOOD, Mus. Bac. Oxon., F.R.C.O., Specialist in Correspondence Tuition for F.R.C.O., A.R.C.O. RECENT SUCCESSES: 227 Correspondence Pupils have passed F.R.C.O. or A.R.C.O. SINCE 1909, as follows:

81 F.R.C.O. (Paper Work).	146 A.R.C.O. (Paper Work).
6 F.R.C.O., Jan., 1914.	11 A.R.C.O., Jan., 1914.
6 F.R.C.O., July, 1914.	12 A.R.C.O., July, 1914.
4 F.R.C.O., Jan., 1915.	5 A.R.C.O., Jan., 1915.

38, Warwick Road, Cliftonville, Margate.

MISS MARGARET YOUNG, L.R.A.M., A.R.C.M. (Pianoforte Teacher), A.T.C.L. (Pianoforte and Vocal Teacher), Correspondence Lessons, Theory, Harmony, Form, Art of Teaching. Successes at R.A.M. and T.C.L. Metropolitan Examinations. Compiler, Musical Terms (English first), Novello, 4d. Bawburgh Vicarage, Norwich.

STUDENT TEACHER. — Young Gentleman WANTED in School of Music in London. Board-residence and small salary. Premium required. State qualifications, &c., to W. F., c/o Novello & Co., Ltd., 160, Wardour Street, W.

CHRIST CHURCH CATHEDRAL, OXFORD.

BASS required. Candidates must be communicants of the Church of England, and under 30 years of age. Salary to commence at £80 a year. Applications, with testimonials as to character, and musical ability, to be forwarded to H. G. Ley, Esq., Christ Church, Oxford, on or before March 15.

LADY ORGANIST-CHOIRMASTER.—Church-worker holding appointment desires change (satisfactory reasons). Ten years' experience. Recitalist; good trainer. Excellent testimonials. W. L., c/o Novello & Co., 160, Wardour Street, London, W.

YOUNG LADY desires POSITION as ORGANIST in a Village Church. Good Singer, and able to train choir. Address, Miss Hadlow, Great Shefford, Lambourn, Berks.

WANTED, POST AS MUSIC TEACHER in School (South of England preferred). Subjects—Singing (principal study), Pianoforte, Harmony. Trained in the Art of Teaching at the Royal Manchester College of Music. Miss Susan Brimelow, Associate of the Royal Manchester College of Music, Carlyle House, Bolton.

WANTED, at once, a steady Young Man as SECOND TUNER. Knowledge of Players desirable. For first-class South Coast business. Reply with references and all particulars and photo to T. Z., c/o Novello & Co., Ltd., 160, Wardour Street, W.

ORGANS (New and Second-hand) for SALE. Various prices. Instruments built for Church or Chamber from £50, on up-to-date principles, at Bedwell & Sons, Cambridge Organ Works, Cambridge.

CHURCH ORGANS FOR SALE (Immediately). Prior to alterations and extension of Factory. Two Manuals, modern compass, pneumatics and latest improvements. Guaranteed. 12 and 22 Stops. W. E. Richardson & Sons, Organ Works, Cornbrook Street, Brooks Bar, Manchester.

THE POSITIVE ORGAN.—A real PIPE ORGAN (all British), giving the effects of two manuals and pedals on its single keyboard. Prices from £77. Over 900 supplied. Estimates given for Repairs, Rebuilds, Two- and Three-Manual Organs, &c.

Positive Organ Co. Ltd., 44, Mornington Crescent (opposite Tube Station), London, N.W.

ORGAN PRACTICE.—Three-manual Pipe Organ for Practice—good condition; complete set of Couplers; blown by hydraulic engine. 1s. per hour. Hamilton Evans & Co., 54, London Road, Forest Hill, S.E. (one minute from station). Telephone: 693 Sydenham.

CRAMER PIANOS, SECOND-HAND, WANTED.—Please send particulars and prices to W. Saville & Co., Pianoforte Warehouse, Bruce Grove, Tottenham.

DIAGRAM HARMONY, an Explicit Synopsis of all Scales, Chords, and Relationships of Music, defined by the Twelve Semitones. By Panton Hook. Price 2d. Novello & Co., Ltd., 160, Wardour Street, W.

THE MAGNIFICAT AND NUNC DIMITTIS, set to music in the key of B flat. (Composed for the Festival of the London Church Choir Association in St. Paul's Cathedral, 1914.) By W. G. Alcock, Mus.D. Price 4d. Novello & Co., Ltd.

PEDAL BASSES added to Thirty-six A. & M. Tunes. By H. G. Williams, Hon. Assistant-Organist, St. Margaret's, Lee. Price 9d. London: Novello & Company, Ltd.

PIANO PEDALS.

EVERY ORGANIST

should investigate the importance and special advantages

of

NORMAN & BEARD'S

PNEUMATIC PEDAL ATTACHMENT FOR THE PIANO.

Correct relative position of Keys and Pedals guaranteed.
Gives a perfect touch and repetition.
Does not injure the most delicate Piano, all parts of the Pianoforte action being left perfectly free.
Pedals can be instantly removed.
Does not alter the Piano touch.
Every Attachment made specially in our own Factory.

NORMAN & BEARD, Ltd., 61 Berners St., London, W.
Telegrams: "Vibrating, London." Telephone: Gerrard 9145.

COMPOSITIONS
BY WILLEM COENEN.

	s.	d.
Peace, perfect Peace (Hymns A. & M., 537). Trs. for the Organ	2	0
Peace, perfect Peace (Hymns A. & M., 537). Arr. for the Pianoforte	2	0
And now, O Father (Hymns A. & M., 322). Trs. for the Organ	2	0
And now, O Father (Hymns A. & M., 322). Arr. for the Pianoforte	2	0

SACRED SONG.

Father, forgive them 2 0

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

Just Published.

IN THE GARDEN.
Words by ROBERT BUCHANAN.
Set to Music for Soprano and Tenor Solo, Female Chorus and Orchestra
By WILLIAM H. SPEER
(Op. 18).
Vocal Score, One Shilling and Sixpence.
CARY & Co., 13 & 15, MORTIMER STREET, W.

ORIGINAL TUNES
FOR CATHOLIC HYMNS
BY
FRANCIS EDWARD GLADSTONE.
No. I.—FIVE HYMNS FOR PASSIONTIDE.
Price Sixpence.

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

TO COMPOSERS.

Messrs.

KEITH PROWSE & CO., Ltd.,
MUSIC PUBLISHERS,

Give serious consideration to any Manuscripts sent in for selection, also estimates free for publication of Authors' works; Authors' copies kept on sale at our many Music Branches, on a royalty basis.

PUBLISHING DEPÔT:
42, Poland Street, London, W.

THE OLD FIRM.

P. CONACHER & CO., LTD.,
Organ Builders,
SPRINGWOOD WORKS,
HUDDERSFIELD.
TWO GOLD MEDALS.

SOLEMN MELODY
COMPOSED BY
H. WALFORD DAVIES.
FULL ORCHESTRA.

	s.	d.
Full Score	3	0
String Parts	1	3
Wind Parts	3	9
STRINGS AND ORGAN.
Score	2	0
String Parts	1	3
Organ	0	6
Pianoforte Solo	1	6
Organ Solo	1	6
Violin and Pianoforte	1	6
Violoncello and Pianoforte	1	6

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

TRINITY COLLEGE OF MUSIC.
(Instituted 1872.)

Chairman of Board:
Sir FREDERICK BRIDGE, C.V.O., M.A., Mus.D.
Director of Studies: G. E. BAMBRIDGE, F.T.C.L., F.R.A.M.
Director of Examinations: C. W. PEARCE, Mus.D.

The following CANDIDATES were SUCCESSFUL at the HIGHER EXAMINATIONS held at the College in January last:

LICENTIATES (L.T.C.L.).

PIANOFORTE.—Evangeline G. Allen, Gladys A. Bagg, John Carlton, Doris M. Colman, Lilian Goodfellow, Evelyn Graham, Ernest Hamblet, Frances Hubbard, Cecilia Hulme, Lilian A. N. Jellicoe, Lucy E. Jowett, Elsie R. Lancaster, Nellie Miles, Eva K. Norman, Doris E. Oates, Gertrude Parker, Doris Pickup, Donald I. Priestley, Kathleen Savory, Marjorie G. Slocombe, Ethel Sutton, Winifred N. Swinford-Harrison, Stella M. E. Trood, Gladys E. Winslade.

ORGAN.—Norman Crompton, Samuel Hart, Harold W. Taylor, John K. Zorian.

SINGING.—Mary S. Thomas, Rev. Charles A. Mercer, M.A.

ASSOCIATES (A.T.C.L.).

THEORY and PRACTICE of COMPOSITION.—Charles H. Adams, Eric W. E. Booth, John H. Davis, Winifred Elliott, Thomas Entwistle, Dagmar A. Heath, Maud E. Ingram.

PIANOFORTE.—Irene Akeroyd, Muriel M. Anderson, Theresa M. Babbage, Elsie Ball, Edna M. Barnett, Sidney G. Bett, Winifred A. L. Boddy, Ada M. Bolwell, Elsie Brierley, Margaret D. Briggs, Emma L. Broome, Edgar W. Brownlow, Daisy Bushell, Arthur H. Clough, Hilda E. E. Cluse, Agnes E. Croxon, Blanche M. Cutler, Marie E. Dawkins, James Edmondson, Florence E. Elliott, Dora G. Feltham, Edith M. Gosling, Theodora K. Griffiths, Kathleen E. Harding, James H. Haworth, Vera Victoria Hopthrow, Lily Hulse, Florence Humphreys, Ernest Hutchinson, Gladys B. Jones, Marie M. Kohnlein, Beryl E. Lawrence, Lucy A. Lawrence, Elizabeth Lea, Winifred D. Lumsden, Dorothea L. Lyster, John A. Mallinson, Samuel A. Mealey, Hilda M. Miles, Minnie K. Mitchell, Dorothy Moody, Gwendoline E. Morris, Una P. Nunn, Lillie Ogden, Lucy I. Pearce, Phyllis M. Pearce, George H. Pexton, Gladys E. Pitter, Julia O. Pound, Daisy E. Powley, Myfanwy B. Pritchard, Lorna F. Rose, Dora Smith, Ruth H. Stringer, John C. Turner, Arthur Vyce, Clara Whitworth, Arthur E. Wilson, Gladys Woodhead, Edith E. Yeatman.

ORGAN.—Sydney W. Davies, Margaret C. Dymond, Arthur E. Green, James S. King, Walter Pickford, Arthur E. Wilson.

SINGING.—Annie Lawton.

VIOLIN.—Doris Kay, Mary G. Mawson.

CERTIFICATES.

PIANOFORTE.—Robert Ainsworth, Dorothy M. Banwell, Benjamin S. Barker, Violet Bulman, Olive Dando, Frances A. Harvey, Lilian E. Hodder, Mary E. Jackson, Richard B. Johnson (Honours), Richard Lord, Gwendoline Moss-Flower, Annie Puddefoot, Tom C. G. Rees, Dorothy M. Richards, Fanny Smith (Honours), Elsie Thompson (Honours), Eliza M. Waller, Sarah A. Welton, Anne W. Williams.

ORGAN.—Hannah Herrington.

SINGING.—Elsie Stansfield.

The following SUCCESSFUL CANDIDATES were examined in India and the Dominions in 1914:

LICENTIATES (L.T.C.L.).

THEORY and PRACTICE of COMPOSITION.—Angelita P. Davis, Mus. B., Alexander F. Mackinnon.

PIANOFORTE.—Marion O. I. Ainslie, Doris B. Andrews, Vera Appleton, Ida F. Austin, Bertha M. Baker, Mary M. Balfour, Clarice Bell, Frank F. Bennett, Ellen S. Christie, Linda G. Clement, Ellen G. Cody, Gladys E Connell, Ellen M. Cullen, Annette G. Cunliffe, Ruby K. Curran, Catherine M. Dalton, Elsie Dath, Nellie Davies, Vera S. M. D'Cruz, Constance Dennehey, Maude M. E. Docking, Kate A. Donaldson, Liliane Dudrésil-Elie, J. Adèle Ebsworth, Linda Gale, Clytie Galt, Dorothy A. C. Goldfinch, Ethel M. Hastings-Sheridan, Margaret Heenan, Rachel Hersch, Ruby F. Hopkins, Annie Horn, Emmie A. Leech, Margaret M. Loader, Annie C. Martin, Doris G. Milligan, Edith D. Morgan, Edna Nunn, Sheila K. O'Donovan, Muriel Perry, Elaine Petropulos, Ruby Quinn, Vera Rankin, Winnifred A. Rist, I. Muriel Robinson, Jeanette D. Saunders, May Scott, Amy B. Schulte, Ethel E. Scrooby, May E. Tucker, Margaret J. Watson, Dora Weymouth, Alethea Wright.

ORGAN.—Amy McHattie.

VIOLIN.—Philip A. Poole.

SINGING.—Albert F. Fishlock, Blanche E. M. Lacy, William Llewellyn.

ASSOCIATES (A.T.C.L.).

THEORY and PRACTICE of COMPOSITION.—Arthur C. Breillat, Ethel Sharp.

PIANOFORTE.—Sophie Abrahams, Walter V. Allen, Bernice R. Baker, Constance H. Bardsley, Margaret M Barrett, Minnie R. Barrie, Gladys M. Billingham, Clara Bischoff, Violet M. Bond, Gladys E. Bosanquet, Alice D. Brown, Brenda Bullen, Emmie E. M. Burrough, Annie Chick, Marjorie M. Chick, Florence M. Cobbledick, Nina Connell, Hilda M. Corbett, Eileen Corby, Florence H. Crocker, Vera M Chubb, Jessie Dallas, May Dalton, Eleanor Deane, Ida Deeble, Sydney G. Duke, Mary Fennell, Honoria Fitzgibbon, Hettie Friedlander, Sophie Frommknecht, Gladys M. Fulcher, Evelyn Gray, Doris E. Green, Florence Greyling, Amanda J. Habler, Laura I. Hanke, Gwendoline Haylock, Nora G. Haylock, Emily M. Harrison, Edward Hirst, Phyllis G. Hollow, Rawera D. Hunt, Anna D. Jensen,

(Continued on page 136.)

TRINITY COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

(Continued from page 135.)

ASSOCIATES—Continued.

Mabel Johnson, Mary A. Johnson, Henrietta G. Jones, Marjorie K. Kelly, Doris M. Kemp, Jessie G. Kerr, Mary J. Kotlowski, Kate Levasseur, Esme D. Macfadyen, Mary F. McKeefry, Ethel M. Martin, Doris Moor, Muriel Northcroft, Mary O'Connor, Vivie Penrose, Dorothy M. Peters, Marie Petrie, Gladys A. Powell, Ivy Purcell-Galvin, Hermine Rawstorne, Elsie McI. Reid, Gertrude B. Riera, Annie Robinson, Beryl E. Robinson, Florence E. Roper, Annie Ross, Louisa Rundle, Dulcie M. St. Romaine, Mildred M. Shirley, Rose G. Telfer, Constance G. Tiernan, Lucinda M. Townson, Ena E. Trevaskes, Ida A. M. Ward, Loveinia L. Watkins, Irene M. Watts, Hazel A. Wilson, Winifred B. Wüd.

ORGAN.—John K. Pescod.

SINGING.—Vera I. Graham, Mary O'Connor, Una M. Sullivan.

VIOLIN.—A. Stuart Dale, Harold J. M. Riddle.

CERTIFICATES.

PIANOFORTE.—Mabel Adams (Honours), Muriel I. Akehurst, Jeannie M. Baillie (Honours), Lizzie V. Benjamin, Cecilia Bhore, Katie Colvin, Frieda Daniel, Ivy H. Dowsett, Hannah G. Dromgool, Winifred G. Dunne (Honours), Gertrude Gardner, Ethel M. Goodwin, Louie Gray (Honours), Ruth J. Henry, Elsie I. Hohenhouse, M. Eileen V. Hornsey (Honours), Mildred J. Lunt, Grace E. Lynch, Alice V. Maloney, Annie McLeod, Grace Miller, Alice S. H. Murray, Ida M. Owen, Florence M. Pankow, Dorothy Petheram, Ida Richardson, Pauline Robinson, Minnie F. Sacks (Honours), Stella V. Salathiel, Annie Shaw, Agnes H. E. Shearsby, Annie M. Squire (Honours), Winifred M. Steere (Honours), Ivy O. Sutton, Alice Thies, Olive Warburton, Daisy Willock, Ella M. Wolhuter.

ORGAN.—Lucy M. Parry.

VIOLIN.—Bapai P. N. Kapadia, Muriel R. Nahrung.

SINGING.—Gladys S. Hannam.

EXAMINERS.—G. E. Bambridge, W. S. Bambridge, Mus. B., Henry R. Bird, E. Gordon Cleather, Sir Frederic H. Cowen, W. Creser, Mus. D., E. d'Evry, H. A. Harding, Mus. D., E. F. Horner, Mus. D., E. Burritt Lane, Mus. B., J. Mewburn Levien, C. Egerton Lowe, C. Macpherson, A. Mistowski, Mus. B., S. Myerscough, Mus. B., C. W. Pearce, Mus. D., L. Pecskai, W. Sachse, H. Saint-George, C. Schilsky.

SHELLEY FISHER, Secretary.

Mandeville Place, Manchester Square, London, W.

NOVELLO'S EDITIONS
OF THE
FAVOURITE OPERAS
ADAPTED FOR CONCERT USE.

1. FAUST.
Price 1s. Tonic Sol-fa, 9d.

2. IL TROVATORE.
Price 1s. 6d. Tonic Sol-fa, 1s.

3. TANNHÄUSER.
Price 1s. 6d.

4. MARITANA.
Price 1s. 6d.

5. THE BOHEMIAN GIRL.
Price 1s. 6d.

6. THE DAUGHTER OF THE REGIMENT.
Price 1s. 6d.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

JUST PUBLISHED.

THE BARLESS PSALTER CHANTS
EDITED BY
WALTER MARSHALL, M.A.
AND
SEYMOUR PILE, M.A., F.R.C.O.

Price One Shilling net.
Cloth, 1s. 6d. net.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

BROADWOOD
PIANOS

BOSWORTH'S
PORTRAIT CLASSICS
CONSTITUTE A RECORD IN CHEAP, CORRECT, HIGH-CLASS ENGLISH PRODUCTIONS.

BEETHOVEN
SONATAS
560 pages. Price 5s. net.

CHOPIN
WALTZES
80 pages. Price 1s. net.

MENDELSSOHN
SONGS WITHOUT WORDS
131 pages. Price 1s. 8d. net.

Having again been thoroughly revised, we may safely claim these to be the finest editions on the market.

BOSWORTH & CO.,
8, HEDDON STREET, REGENT STREET, LONDON, W.
Publishers of the Four Great British Piano Methods:
"BERINGER'S TUTOR," "GRAHAM MOORE'S FIRST PRINCIPLES," "WARD'S PROGRESSIVE," AND "WICKIN'S RAPID TUTOR."
Price 2s. 6d. each.

JUST PUBLISHED.

HANDBOOKS FOR MUSICIANS.
EDITED BY ERNEST NEWMAN.

The Sources of Keyboard Music in England
BY
CHARLES VAN DEN BORREN,
Professor of the Université Nouvelle of Brussels.
TRANSLATED FROM THE FRENCH BY
JAMES E. MATTHEW.

Published as a Net Book.
Price Seven Shillings Net.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

The Musical Times
AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.
MARCH 1, 1915.

FREDERICK DELIUS.

Frederick Delius is a composer whose works are being gradually assimilated in this country. The process has been, and probably will be for some time, slow, for the appeal of his music is not to the popular ear. His idiom is unconventional and subtle, and his expression of himself inclined to be moody and introspective. You have to learn to twist yourself into his moods, and to adopt his peculiar standpoint before you can listen sympathetically. Some there are whose powers of appreciation are not sufficiently plastic, and so they rebel. But all who are happily more receptive and can claim familiarity with Delius's music predict that it has a future of much importance. Mr. Beecham has been one of the most persistent apostles of the composer, and has certainly done more than anyone else to make the musical public feel that Delius is a musical force to be reckoned with.

Delius was born at Bradford (Yorkshire) in 1863. His father settled in England in 1842, and became naturalized, and his mother was a German. Delius remained in Yorkshire until 1883. During this period he devoted as much time to musical study as the preparation for a business career permitted, and amongst his musical accomplishments he became a fair violinist. Wishing to escape the sordid commercial environment that threatened to kill the artist within him, he had a bad quarter-of-an-hour with his father, and looking around for a new start he was attracted by the singular idea of emigrating to Florida in order to establish himself as an orange planter. Oranges after they are planted take care of themselves to a large extent, and so there was the prospect of much leisure in which to pursue musical study and composition, although there was practically no music to be heard. Hundreds of sheets of music were covered with notes, but the young composer was wise enough to destroy these early efforts. His self-criticism has always been severe. After a few years in these surroundings his soul yearned for contact with music and musicians, and abandoning his oranges he entered the Leipsic Conservatoire. Here he met Grieg, and he studied under Jadassohn and Reinecke, but considered that he learnt little or nothing that was of value to him; yet on the other hand he heard a great deal of music. Practically he is a self-taught composer.

Since 1888 Delius has resided in France, either at Paris or in the small village Grez-sur-Marne. On the Continent his music is frequently performed. It is noteworthy that he has had to have the English words to which he has set music translated into German in order to get a hearing.

It is gratifying to hear from Delius that he is convinced that there is more creative talent in England than there is in Germany. He believes that the turning-point of music in this country is approaching. Although resident in France, he seldom hears any French music. He prefers to stay at home, and quietly develop his own musical inspirations. He tells us that he composes slowly, and does not allow any compositions to go out into the world until he is satisfied that they fully express his conception. Every chord written is meant. He has no theory of chord treatment, but just writes what fits his feeling.

Delius does not conduct. Very wisely he is content to leave this business to the experts. In discussing choral and orchestral balance, he agrees with us that the matter calls for more scientific treatment than it obtains at present, when all the members of a huge festival choir are allowed to sing throughout a work. If fifty voices sang here, 200 there, and 400 elsewhere, there would be many possibilities of tonal effect not at present realised.

At present he is residing near London, having been driven from France, and he will probably remain in this country until the conclusion of the War. It seems that during this unhappy period he, in common with many other composers who are not alien enemies, will enjoy the consolation of finding their music much more frequently performed here than otherwise it might have been.

Below we give an appreciation of Delius's compositions contributed by Mr. Philip Heseltine, who is an enthusiastic admirer of the composer.

Some Notes on Delius and His Music.

BY PHILIP HESELTINE.

Delius's position in the musical world of to-day is one of curious isolation; he has ever held aloof from the great public, and it is scarcely surprising that he is regarded with a certain bewilderment, as a mysterious, enigmatic, albeit, —as many are certainly beginning to realise,—a very arresting, figure. The details of his life are shrouded in a certain amount of obscurity, which the programme-annotators, with their inevitable catalogue of the places where he has resided, and nothing more, have not conspicuously helped to clear away. The somewhat elusive problem of his nationality has given needless trouble to many, and recently the superstition that he is really a German was made use of in a particularly disgraceful manner by intriguing parties, in order to defer a certain public recognition of his genius that has long been overdue. From the purely musical point of view, however, nationality is not a factor that counts for anything in the case of Delius. Indeed, he himself never vaunts his English origin, preferring to be considered a pure cosmopolitan, 'a good European' as Nietzsche would have called him. Nevertheless, vagueness of nationality is a source of great mystification to many; and, from the point of view of the public, there are many other puzzling things about the composer in question. He is fifty years old, says the public, yet he holds no official position in the musical life of the country; he does not teach in any of the academies, he is not even an honorary professor or doctor of music. He never gives concerts or makes propaganda for his music; he never conducts an orchestra, or plays an instrument in public (even Berlioz played the tambourine!).

A composer who cares for none of these things is indeed a strange phenomenon. The explanation, however, is not very far to seek, and incidentally it strikes the key-note of Delius's personality and of his whole art. Delius is one of those very rare persons who, possessing a remarkable individuality, are permitted by the circumstances of their lives to develop it and to exploit it to the fullest extent, unfettered by any external considerations. And further, he is one of the still smaller number who have taken the fullest advantage of this concession of fate, and have lived long enough to nurse their genius to complete maturity. He is emphatically not one of those who believe the artist to be the 'servant of the public.' Preposterous and degrading as such a conception of art undoubtedly is, one is bound to face the sad truth that in music, as in the other arts, there are few who have not, for one reason or another, produced work which a servile attitude towards the grosser public can alone explain. In fact, Delius is the almost unique example of a composer who did not rush into print at an early age with an unworthy work, and who has never degraded his name by attaching it to a 'pot-boiler.' His first printed work was a set of five delightful, if slightly Grieg-like, little songs which Augener published in 1890. These were followed three years later by the far more individual Shelley Songs and the Seven songs from the Norwegian—amongst them being 'Abendstimmung,' one of the most perfect lyrics in existence. After this date, nothing was published till, fifteen years later, some of the large choral works began to appear, from the firm of Harmonie, Berlin.

One of the most striking features of Delius's music—even in the early and more or less immature works—is the almost complete absence of any other composer's influence. Even in the Shelley Songs and the 'Legend' for violin and orchestra there are foreshadowings of the intensely personal style of the later works, whilst in the second music-drama, 'The magic fountain,' we find the composer experimenting with motifs and progressions that are actually the germs from which many passages in the most mature compositions have sprung. This work is remarkable in that the libretto—written in rhymed verse by the composer himself—shows markedly the influence of 'Tristan,' whereas the music is conceived on wholly non-Wagnerian lines. The drama is saturated with the romantic spirit, dealing as it does with the quest of the fountain of eternal youth, and the inevitable bungling on the part of the hero at the last moment, which leads to death and disaster and a second 'Liebestod.'

The work was accepted for performance by Edouard Lassen, at Weimar, in 1894. A pianoforte score was made by Florent Schmitt, and much of the material was prepared; but the composer became dissatisfied with the work at the last moment, and withdrew it. The next work of importance was 'Koanga,' the picturesque and entirely original negro opera, founded on G. W. Cable's novel, 'The Grandissimes,' but the high-water mark of the early period was undoubtedly reached in the Pianoforte concerto, which dates from 1897. This is the most romantic—in the best sense of that much-abused word—of all the composer's works. It records no introspective subtleties, and reveals little of the reflective aloofness of the later works; it is just the direct and passionate expression of one who looks out on life as upon a wondrous spring morning, with all its presage of growth and strength and joy. There is no hint of tragedy, no trace of the possibility of failure. It is a song of triumph for something accomplished, for the fulfilment of a desire, the realisation of a dream. Its mood is one that Schumann was constantly striving after, but which the gloom of ill-health, combined with that vein of typically German seriousness of which he could never rid himself, prevented him from wholly attaining.

It is one of those works in which one feels the artist's tremendous sense of power, at the first realisation of his maturity: it could only have been written by one who has mastered life and made it his servant.

The two orchestral poems, 'Life's Dance' and 'Paris,' mark a period of transition in the composer's style and orchestral colour-scheme. There is a curious similarity in the design and conception of the two works. They are both full of an amazing vitality and exuberance, and the texture of both is more diffuse and complex than that of any of the later works. Through 'Life's Dance' there runs a sinister undercurrent of impending fatality; there is a feverish restlessness in the music which rises, at moments, to a white-heat of intensity. Indeed, there is one passage of a penetration and subtlety that even Delius himself has never excelled. It occurs when the headlong course of the dance is suddenly interrupted by an absolutely uncanny phrase for wood-wind and muted brass, which is twice re-echoed before the music dies away into silence; immediately following it is the most passionate utterance in the whole work. Its significance in the context is clear enough to anyone. It is one of the most vital moments in the whole of music, suggesting as it does one of those flashes of insight which leave one overawed and dazed—changed in the twinkling of an eye. It is as though the shadow of another world passed over one.

'Paris' is termed by the composer 'A Night-Piece.' The opening pages depict the awakening of the city at nightfall, and the close reflects the mood of those who return home from scenes of revelry in the pale morning twilight, to be lulled to sleep by the sounds of the wakening streets. This is the rough, subjective programme which determines its form; but the work must not be regarded as literal programme music.

Distinctions between subjective and objective are prone to be a little confusing when applied to music, seeing that all music—even the most admittedly pictorial and reproductive, is in the strict sense, necessarily subjective. But apart from the little call of the goatherd's pan-pipes, there is no portrayal of external things in this record of Paris; realism has no part in the work. The more superficial, materialistic aspect of la vie Parisienne has been adequately treated by Offenbach and Charpentier. For Delius, Paris is not merely a city of France, whose collective life is something to be studied objectively, from a place apart, much as an entomologist studies an ants' nest; it is rather a corner of his own soul. All the riotous gaiety and all the wonder and passion of these Parisian nights have been felt by the composer even more intensely than by the throng that surrounds him. In him alone are all these impressions stamped vividly and definitely enough to become articulate. The artist who would interpret the atmosphere, the spirit of any place or people, must necessarily attune himself to such a pitch of sensitiveness to his surroundings that these become an integral part of himself no less than he a part of them. Thus it is not in mere externals that the artist seeks his inspiration, but rather within himself, where all these fleeting things are reflected, and their essential qualities transmuted by his genius into the material of lasting beauty.

In this work we have an image of the night-moods of the city, together with much that is of a more purely personal nature, which—clear as are its broad outlines—each listener will interpret in terms of himself, even as the composer has given voice to the moods of a multitude in terms of his own moods. This subjective symbolization is indeed the most important element in the whole of Delius's music. It is even more pronounced in the succeeding work—the music-drama 'A Village Romeo and Juliet,' based upon Gottfried Keller's story of that name.

This is in many respects the most beautiful thing Delius has done; it shows an enormous advance in style upon all the previous works. Harmonically it is more concentrated, and a greater freedom and expressiveness is obtained by simpler and more direct means than heretofore. The significance of the work as a whole, however, was generally misunderstood when it was produced in London by Mr. Beecham in 1910.

The outline of the story is very simple. The love of a boy and a girl is marred by the quarrel of their respective fathers over a piece of land which separates their two properties, and which belongs by right to a bastard vagabond, the Black Fiddler, who cares nought for it. Fate dogs the footsteps of the two lovers in one way and another, till finally they resolve that life is impossible for them, and decide to end it together upon a note of ecstasy. It is an idyllic little story, with a flavour of remoteness, of unreality about it. Regarded literally as a series of incidents, there is nothing in it. Hence the almost universal condemnation of the work by the London critics as 'undramatic.' There could be no more mistaken attitude towards this work than that which seeks to estimate its value by comparison with former standards of so-called 'opera.' Delius's aim was to produce an entirely new kind of music-drama: and in the task he set himself he has been entirely successful.

'A Village Romeo and Juliet' is a series of pictures (it is divided into 'pictures' and not 'acts' in the score) of delicate psychological studies of the life of the unhappy lovers. Each scene is a glimpse taken, as it were, directly from the continuity of their existence. There is no quickening of the action for dramatic purposes, no rearrangement of circumstances for the sake of a situation. It is only natural that the figures in the play should seem shadowy, and the whole action somewhat inconsistent and dream-like. It is not the figures that matter, but the emotions they portray to us: it is not their lives that are of the greatest significance, but ours. For in their little commonplace tragedy the whole gamut of the fundamental human emotions and passions is sounded. It may be that no two lovers have ever lived through the experiences of Sali and Vrenchen continuously; but there are very few who are not moved by some throbbing pang of intimate memory, at one point or another in the drama. The detail of the plot is unessential: the symbolism of the action is everything. What infinite suggestiveness there is in the mysterious figure of the Black Fiddler, who, bearing no one any ill-will, is the passive cause of so much disaster which he himself is powerless to avert! What a depth of understanding and sympathy is displayed in the portrayal of the ill-starred couple's relations with the different types of their fellow-beings—with their parents, with the Fiddler's little band of vagabonds, and with the mixed crowd of strangers at the Fair, which typifies the harsh, unfeeling multitude of the outside world.

The final entr'acte, 'The walk to the Paradise-Garden,' is an epitome of the whole dramatic situation: but it is something far greater besides, something far more universal. In it, the quintessence of all the tragic beauty of mortality, all the pathos of chance and change and destiny seems to be concentrated and poured forth in music of overwhelming, almost intolerable poignancy. Delius is always at his greatest when he is dealing with retrospects, and epitomizing the past—as witness the 'Songs of Sunset' and the close of 'Sea-Drift.' He has the reflective temperament which transfigures all its memories and creates of them works of far deeper and more universal emotional import than the circumstances which aroused them.

From the point of view of musical psychology, this work is only equalled by the very finest of the Wagnerian dramas. How long, one wonders, will its truly amazing qualities remain unrecognized?

The next dramatic work, 'Margot la Rouge,' needs little comment, inasmuch as it has never been published or performed. A pianoforte score, by Ravel, has been lithographed but not given out. It is a swift one-act melodrama which deals with the attempted rescue of a girl from a Paris brothel by her former lover. This causes some trouble, as might be expected, and the curtain descends upon a pile of corpses. There could be no accusing this work of being 'undramatic'! It is, however, of little importance compared with the succession of large choral works which followed it.

'Appalachia' and 'Sea-Drift,' which date from 1902-3, are both fairly familiar in this country. The former is the outcome of Delius's sojourn in Florida, and takes the form of a set of variations upon an old nigger folk-song, which, curiously enough, bears a marked resemblance to the theme of the quartet in the last Act of 'Rigoletto.' It was sung to the composer by one of the negroes on his orange plantation; there were only two of them, but both appear to have been remarkably gifted. The one in question possessed, in addition to his extensive répertoire of folk-songs, the gift of second sight, developed to a very high pitch, while the other could accomplish the astounding feat of whistling in thirds!

'Appalachia' is the first example of the peculiar style of musical landscape painting that is so entirely Delius's own. It is a little difficult to say precisely what that quality is, in his tone-painting, that enables him to suggest with such extraordinary vividness the feeling and the atmosphere of the landscape he is portraying, together with the emotions aroused by contemplation of the landscape. His methods make interesting comparison with the modern emotional landscape painting—in the literal sense of the word, for in both cases the results aimed at are broadly the same, though they are approached by different paths. Thus the painter has to reproduce upon the canvas a semblance of the external features of the landscape in such a way that those who regard it sympathetically will instinctively feel the emotion and atmosphere of which those external features are but symbols. The musician, on the other hand, has to do without the graphic definiteness which gives the painter a basis to start upon; his music must suggest at once the inner and the outer aspects of the picture. The extreme difficulty of achieving this will be at once apparent. Composers of nearly every period have attempted it, but few have met with any success. Either their music has been too personal and subjective to justify any one title being affixed to it rather than any other, or else, as Debussy has so often done, they provide a tone-picture which is astonishingly vivid and suggestive, but emotionally barren. Delius has a searching eye which penetrates into the very soul of things, and which nothing, however subtle or however deep, can elude. Perhaps the explanation of his strange magic is to be found in a kind of animism; for there is nothing his nature-studies suggest so much as the fusion of the soul of things contemplated with perceptive and reflective human soul.

It is worthy of note that 'Appalachia' was not written until many years after the composer had ceased to reside in Florida. The value of a long period of reminiscence, with all the inscrutable sub-conscious processes of mind it involves, cannot be too strongly insisted upon when one is dealing with the influence of external things upon creative work. 'Sea-Drift,' and 'Songs from Sunset' (a cycle of poems by Ernest Dowson) belong to a very different mood. They both sing of passion frustated, and are instinct with all the strength and sorrowful beauty that resignation alone can bring. One would scarcely think it necessary to add that Whitman's poem—one of the loveliest he ever wrote—must not be interpreted quite literally, but for the fact that Delius has actually been praised by at least one misguided admirer for the amazing objectivity of mind which enables him to probe the mysteries of avian psychology and express the joys and sorrows of two birds with such exquisite delicacy!

The 'Mass of Life' and the recently completed and still unpublished 'Requiem,' although separated by an interval of ten years, may be taken together as the expression of the composer's more philosophical side. In them are summed up all his views upon the great problems of Life and Death. Delius's outlook is characteristically frank and fearless; he accepts with both hands all that Life has to offer, and is not afraid to look Death and annihilation calmly in the face. The 'Mass of Life' is a triumphant yea-saying to Life in all its manifestations. The 'Requiem' faces the prospect of eternal darkness with the quiet dignity and assurance that one finds in certain of the Old Testament writers, but seldom elsewhere. He who has drained Life's cup to the dregs, and has no wastage of days to regret, can afford to contemplate Death with equanimity. There is no negation, no hint of wastage about Delius; he is at least positive, if nothing else. Indeed, he might well adopt for his motto the superb lines of William Blake:

> Abstinence sows sand all over
> The ruddy limbs and flaming hair,
> But desire gratified
> Plants fruits of life and beauty there.

As regards the general characteristics of Delius's work, he is pre-eminently a harmonist. That is to say, his harmonic effects are obtained vertically, and not, as in the case of Strauss and Schönberg, and the later Sibelius, horizontally, by the interweaving of several contrapuntal threads. He does not, however, limit himself to any fixed scale or system, like Debussy and Scriabin; consequently he avoids monotony and mannerism alike, and gains considerably in freedom and range of expression. One cannot pin Delius down to a fixed harmonic scheme, although his harmonic idiom is quite unmistakably his own. The most one can say is that there is a certain harmonic aroma, as it were, which one can always recognize as emanating either from Delius himself or from one of his numerous English imitators—there is scarcely a single composer in this country who has escaped his influence. The richness of the texture of such works as 'On hearing the first cuckoo in Spring' has never been equalled by non-contrapuntal means. But there is no surfeit of richness; in fact, a very curious and interesting habit of Delius is the way in which, at a great climax, he suddenly thins out his harmony to the barest outline and obtains an effect of great massiveness by very full scoring of a mere harmonic skeleton. This is particularly noticeable towards the end of 'Life's Dance,' the Pianoforte concerto, 'Brigg Fair,' and several other works.

When the principle of vertical harmonic writing is applied to the chorus, the effect is still more novel and remarkable. The finest examples of this are to be found in the wonderful part-song 'On Craig Ddu,' and in the wordless a cappella section in 'The Song of the High Hills,' which is probably one of the most difficult pieces of choral writing in existence.

In his treatment of voices—solo or chorus—with orchestra the composer's chief aim is to blend the tone-colour of voices and instruments in such a manner as to secure the greatest possible unity of effect. In 'The Song of the High Hills' this principle is undoubtedly carried to a stage far beyond anything hitherto attempted, and the first performance of the work, in May next, should prove of the highest interest to all who are concerned with the development of choral technique.

The 'Songs of Sunset' contain the most characteristic examples of Delius's writing for solo voices with orchestra. The voice is used simply as an orchestral instrument—with, of course, the same regard for its peculiarities and limitations as is accorded to the other instruments. It is not given undue prominence, but is merely a contributory factor to the general atmosphere of the music. It is a significant fact that Delius is one of the few composers whose rough, preliminary sketches are always made in full score—that is to say, he thinks in terms of his medium and tone-colour. As Mr. Ernest Newman has happily phrased it: 'The melody, harmony, and orchestration are one and indivisible. The ideas are not merely orchestrated; the orchestration, that is, is not merely the clothing of the ideas, but part of their very tissue.'

It is rather difficult, therefore, to see exactly what Mr. Clutsam means when he quotes a passage from 'Appalachia,' in the Musical Times, in pianoforte score, with no indications of the very subtle and telling way in which it is orchestrated, and proceeds to point out that it 'reveals the fact that Delius has the weakest technical ability of any strong composer living.' In the first case, what constitutes technical ability in these days? It certainly does not consist merely in the avoidance of consecutive fifths, and in correct behaviour in accordance with the laws laid down by theorists. If a composer succeeds in saying exactly what he wants to say, in the way he wants to say it, he has, one would presume, complete mastery over the technique of musical expression. And in the case of Delius, one never feels that his effect misses fire. One may totally and absolutely fail to understand him—like the gentleman whom Paris reminded of 'the gay city depicted by a Scotch elder'; but that is another matter altogether. The great fact that must be realised is that every really individual composer must necessarily create his own new technique for the expression of his own new ideas. Any one composer's technique judged by the standard of any other's, is equally 'wrong'—or, as one might more truthfully say, 'different.'

Delius is probably the most interesting composer born in this country since Henry Purcell. His position in the musical world to-day can only be determined by individual taste and opinion. He is not a composer whose works achieve an instantaneous success and widespread popularity; but this is the best possible sign for the future. His reputation is growing, slowly but surely, with that section of the musical public who estimate sincerity and intensity of feeling in music more highly than sensationalism, and the evanescent qualities of the 'popular' composer. There is an elusiveness about much of his music which perhaps renders it, for those unaccustomed to his idiom, more difficult to grasp at a first hearing than work of a far greater technical complexity. There can be no superficial view of Delius's music: either one feels it in the very depths of one's being, or not at all. This may be a part of the reason why one so seldom hears a really first-rate performance of Delius's work, save under Mr. Beecham, to whose untiring enthusiasm in the cause of his great compatriot we in this country owe an immense debt of gratitude. How Delius came to be completely and entirely neglected here for eight years after his first epoch-making concert in 1899 is inexplicable. But there are many indications at the present day that he is coming to his own, in his native land, as he has already done in Germany. And I am sure that I am not alone in my sincere conviction that there is no composer in Europe to-day of greater significance than Frederick Delius, nor any other whose work seems more likely to outlast that of his contemporaries.

LIST OF COMPOSITIONS.

Five Songs, 1888.
Seven Songs, 1889.
Three Songs by Shelley, 1890.
'Irmelin,' 1890. Lyric-Drama in three Acts.
Légende, 1892. Violin solo and orchestra.
'Over the Hills and Far Away,' 1893. Fantasia-Overture.
'The Magic Fountain,' 1894. Lyric-Drama in three Acts.
A Pianoforte concerto in C minor, 1897.
'Koanga,' 1896-1897. Lyric-Drama. Prologue, 3 Acts and an Epilogue.
Incidental music to a political play, 'Folkeraadet,' by Gunnar Heiberg.
Five Songs from the Danish, 1897.
Two Symphonic poems: 'Life's Dance' (1898), and 'Paris: the Song of a Great City' (1899-1900), produced by Dr. Haym at Elberfeld in the latter year—first performance in London under Mr. Thomas Beecham, 1908.
Two operas: 'A Village Romeo and Juliet.' Music-Drama after Gottfried Keller's novel of the same name, 1900-01, and 'Margot la Rouge,' Opera in one Act, spring, 1902. The first produced at the Berlin Komische Oper in 1907, in a German translation, and given in English at Covent Garden, February 22, 1910. The second has not yet been performed.

'Appalachia,' 1903. Tone-poem for orchestra and final chorus. Produced at the Lower Rhine Festival in 1905; first performed in London, 1907.
'Sea-Drift,' 1904. For baritone solo, chorus and orchestra. Produced at Tonkünstlerfest at Essen in 1906; first performed in England at the Sheffield Festival of 1908.
Part-songs: 'Midsummer song' / 'On Craig Ddu' } mixed voices.
'Wanderer's song' (male voices).
'A Mass of Life,' 1905. After Nietzsche's 'Thus spake Zarathustra.' For soli, chorus and orchestra. First given in its entirety in London under Beecham in 1909.
'Songs of sunset,' 1906. For baritone solo, soprano solo, chorus and orchestra. Words by Ernest Dowson.
'Brigg Fair,' 1907. English Rhapsody for full orchestra. First performed in London, 1908.
'In a summer garden,' 1908. Tone-poem for full orchestra.
A Dance Rhapsody for full orchestra, 1909.
Three Verlaine Songs, 1893-1910.
'Fennimore and Gerda,' 1910, 1911, 1912. Lyric-Drama taken from J. P. Jacobsen's novel, 'Niels Lyhne.'
'The Song of the High Hills,' 1911-12. For orchestra and chorus.
'An Arabesk,' 1912. For baritone solo, chorus and orchestra.
Two Tone-poems for small orchestra, 1912-13:
'On hearing the first cuckoo in Spring.'
'Summer-night on the River.'
North-Country Sketches, 1913-14.
Songs:
'Chanson d'Automne' (Paul Verlaine).
'The Nightingale has a lyre of gold' (Henley).
'Black Roses' (from the Swedish of Josefson).
'I Brasil' (Fiona McLleod).
'Spring' (J. P. Jacobsen).
'Requiem,' 1914. For solo voices, choir, and orchestra. (Not yet published.)
Sonata for violin and pianoforte, 1905. Revised, 1915.

THE PUBLIC, THE CRITIC, AND THE NATIVE COMPOSER.

By Ernest Newman.

Although 'A Native Composer' must be feeling rather sore after the belabouring he has had from Mr. Gilbert Webb and 'A Critic,' I cannot resist the impulse to launch just one more thwack at his pate. He bewails the sad lot of himself and his kind. It seems that nobody loves them; and 'A Native Composer' has tried to discover the reason for this lack of affection. Three sorts of people, it seems, are at fault—the public, the critics, and the publishers; which is very much as if a convict should tell us that he was really an excellent fellow and most unjustly convicted, everybody being on his side during the trial except the judge, the police, the jury, the counsel for the prosecution, and the spectators in the court. 'A Native Composer' paints a pathetic picture of hundreds of Englishmen putting endless notes upon unresisting paper, and every now and then asking themselves sadly whether, after all, it is worth while. I am not in the least unsympathetic to these worthy people, but there is an aspect of the question that naturally they could not be expected to see, yet that needs to be exposed in a high light, for it explains why things are just as they are with the Native Composer. With his complaint against the publishers I have nothing to do. As a matter of fact I think too much music is published; there is certainly more bad music published than good in any country. But as regards the public and the critics the case is clear. The public is an utterly insoluble problem. The more I have to do with it, the less I flatter myself that I understand it. I used to think I could explain why it showed a liking for this composer and not for that, why it preferred one kind of music to another, and so on. I have given up these futile speculations; now I simply accept the facts. But this much is certain, that the public makes no more mistakes with regard to foreign music than it does with regard to English. Native composers complain that we English are too ready to listen to anything that comes from abroad, and too little inclined to listen to music by an Englishman. It is one of the things that everyone says, because it is so easy to say it; but I doubt whether there is much truth in it. A concert of works by unknown English composers would only attract, as the Irishman might say, an empty hall; but a concert of works by unknown German or French composers would not draw any larger audience. It makes one sad to see Queen's Hall only one-third full when Mr. Ronald gives a concert devoted to Elgar's music; but I can remember the time when it was hard to get an audience for Richard Strauss in London. Almost every foreign composer now popular in England has had to wait a longer or shorter time before the public took him to its heart. The reason for the ultimate success of these people is probably that behind them was the general public opinion of the world, which sooner or later makes its impression on the British public. Our native composers suffer from the lack of this motive force at their backs. It is not that the British public pays undue deference to Continental opinion merely because it is Continental; but that it has an intuition—and a perfectly sound one—that a person cannot become a world-figure in music without there being something in him; and that something the British public is willing, as a rule, to sample, without at all committing itself in advance to liking it. This explains why a certain number of people in England will go to hear a new work by Strauss or Debussy or Puccini or Stravinsky or Scriabin, while very few of them will go to hear a new work by John Brown or William Robinson. But for the undistinguished crowd of foreign composers the British public really displays no more enthusiasm than for the undistinguished crowd of English composers. 'It cannot be denied,' says 'A Native Composer,' 'that the very sound of "New Symphony by Johannes Schmidt" would have fallen pleasingly and appealingly on the ears of the average English concert-goer, and would have been a "draw," while if it had been written by John Smith, it could hardly have been considered a business proposition.' I venture to deny this point-blank; and every conductor and concert promoter in the country will agree with me. I do not say that a New Symphony by John Smith would 'draw,' but I am positive that a New Symphony by Johannes Schmidt would not. If 'A Native Composer' thinks I am wrong, I invite him to back his fancy, so to speak. Let him induce, say,

Mr. Percy Harrison to put down a new symphony by—I will not say an unknown Johannes Schmidt, but a well-known Schmidt such as Sibelius or Max Reger, or an unknown or almost unknown symphony by a known Schmidt, such as one of Bruckner's or one of Mahler's, or the fourth of Brahms—for his next orchestral concert, on the condition that 'A Native Composer' will compensate him for any loss he may incur. If Mr. Harrison were to take 'A Native Composer' seriously, I do not think the latter would have much money left for his summer holiday this year.

No, the public is shy not merely of unfamiliar British music but of all unfamiliar music. This shyness we can at any rate understand. The average man goes to a concert to enjoy himself. He is not at all certain of enjoying himself when he learns that a quarter or a third of the whole concert is to be given up to music by someone whose name conveys nothing to him. Can it be wondered at that he saves his half-crown or half-guinea for a concert of familiar things, on which, he feels, his money is less likely to be thrown away? The caution he exercises is simply a form of the caution shown by every prospective purchaser of an untried article. The plain man does not buy a picture without having seen it; he does not buy a book without having read a favourable review of it, or having heard it well spoken of by someone in whose judgment he has faith. It is true he is not asked to buy the new symphony; but he is asked to pay as much for listening to it as would buy a book outright, and his caution is as intelligible in the one case as in the other. I am not suggesting that the public should always act like this. On the contrary, I should prefer it to show a little curiosity with regard to new things, and a willingness to risk a little cash and comfort for a fresh experience; but so far as this caution operates against new English music it operates also against new foreign music. Native composers, quâ native composers, have no special complaint against the British public on this score.

Against the critic I do not see that the composers have any complaint at all. The critic's authority over the public is always over-estimated, both by composers and by performers. I am in thorough agreement with the critic who writes on this subject in the February number of the Musical Times. We critics spend one half of our time in telling the public that certain musical works are commonplace and not worth hearing—without thereby dissuading a single member of the public from going to hear those works if he wants to,—and the other half of our time in telling the public that certain works are very good and that it is desirable that it should take them to its heart—without thereby inducing a single member of the public to go to hear one of those works if he is not otherwise inclined to do so. And as for the common charge against critics that they 'slate' new works, I can only say, after a pretty long experience of the business, that nine criticisms out of ten, both of compositions and of performances, are too favourable. The truth is that far too much space is given in the Press to the doings of the ordinary run of musicians. That the experienced critic does not become wildly enthusiastic over a new work by John Smith is easily intelligible; how can he be expected to feel wild enthusiasm except for something quite out of the common? There is an enormous quantity of great music in existence by now, and the critic carries most of it in his head; any new work he hears has of necessity to bear comparison with the music he already knows. How can it stand that comparison unless it itself is great, and how much of the new music that is produced in any country in a given year deserves that title? The vast bulk of the new music we hear is bound, in the nature of things, to be merely derivative; and the first thing that strikes the old hand in connection with it is its lack of originality. And if it is so unoriginal, why in the name of commonsense should it be noticed at all in the papers? Let me speak a plain word to the native composer, young or old. He exaggerates his gifts and overestimates his importance in the universal scheme. Tens of thousands of people nowadays can write quite good music; to do so really indicates no more ability than is shown every day by the surgeon, the journalist, the railway manager, the naval officer, or people in hundreds of other walks of life. None of these people is so vain as to suppose he has an indefeasible right to have his doings commended in the papers. Why should the man who can string a few notes together imagine that he has such a right? The bulk of the new music I hear and see, whatever be the country of its origin, suggests no more than average human ability. Go to your club some afternoon, and run through the best of the daily and weekly and monthly journals, and in a couple of hours, I venture to say, you will come across at least fifty articles to the making of which has gone more fundamental brain-power than can be found in a similar number of new musical compositions. But for the journalist the writing of a good article is simply part of the day's work. He has not the vanity to cut his article out and send it to most of the papers in the kingdom and ask them to print their opinion upon it. Why should the minor composer—and of course the great majority of composers are bound to be minor—expect the Press to worry about him? He may think it cruel of me to speak of him in this way; but the truth must be told sometimes, and this is one of the cases in which we have to be cruel to be unkind. I have an idea that before many years are out the newspapers will have given up the notion that it is their duty to bestow valuable space on every Tom, Dick or Harry who can put together a piece of unoriginal music and get it published or performed. The musical critic will, I hope, tend to become less and less of a reporter and more and more of a critic. It will not be his business to tell the public everything that has happened at this or that concert: if the public were really interested in those happenings it would go to the concert on its own account. Newspapers in the future will keep a critic not for the sake of the composers and the performers but for the sake of the critic; that is to say, it will be his business to interest the public in nis own views of music as an art. He will choose his own subject, and choose it where he will; he will go to many a concert and preserve a stony silence about everything he heard there, for the simple reason that none of it was sufficiently out of the ordinary even to be worth mentioning; and he will take his theme from some happening that to the composers and performers engaged in the concert may seem a matter of little importance. He will, in a word, put the crowd of ordinary performers and composers in their proper places. If they are really big people, he will talk about them and what they have done; if they are only ordinary people,—and nine-tenths of them are no more than that—he will as little dream of discussing them, or even mentioning them, as he would of writing half-a-column upon the restaurant cook who was answerable for his dinner. And so my last word to 'A Native Composer' is this: the mere fact that you are a composer, even a native composer, does not entitle you to any more consideration in the Press than other honest and reasonably capable workers get; if you wish to be taken very seriously you must show that you are big enough to be worth taking seriously in a world that is crammed almost to overflowing with ability of a really high average. You yourself unconsciously give your own case away. You appeal for 'treatment as sportsman-like and fair to the aspiring champion of Queen's Hall or Covent Garden Opera as that received by the idols of the National Sporting Club or the Crystal Palace on Cup-tie Day.' But the people we go to see at the National Sporting Club or the Crystal Palace are performers who have proved their possession of exceptional ability. It is right that Carpentier should have his column in the papers: Carpentiers are scarce. But minor boxers are plentiful—almost as plentiful, shall I say, as minor composers—and no newspaper would think of conferring publicity on every local bruiser who can put on a pair of boxing gloves. I myself can grow enthusiastic over Carpentier, because I know that if I were to train till doomsday I should never be as great a pugilist as he; but I cannot grow enthusiastic over the friends I spar with every day, and whose abilities I know to be just about what my own are. I can grow enthusiastic over a great composer, but not over a man who, I instinctively feel, has no more real originality in him as a composer than I have. 'A Native Composer' may say I am blasé: all critics are supposed to become blasé after a few years of their strenuous life. I find myself, however, more keenly sensitive to great music than I was twenty years ago; and if this is to be blasé, if this is the result of years of daily immersion in music, then I can only pray the gods to give me long life, and let each day of that life be filled full with music. But it must be great music. All that 'A Native Composer' has to do, then, if he wishes to be treated deferentially by the critics, is to be a great man. I am sure that will be easy to him.

TEACHERS AND TEXT-BOOKS.

By G. H. Clutsam.

Mr. Corder as teacher and Mr. Newman as critic have certainly provided entertaining matter in the last two numbers of the Musical Times, but the controversy can hardly be described as seriously argumentative. The one modestly eulogises his own particular functions as the producer and protector of the sound musician, and the other simply anathematises the whole process of pedagogical parturition. As we are living in an epoch of universal belligerency, with an invisible and fateful Samson tumbling the walls of a thousand-and-one ideals, conventions, sentiments, doctrines, and other fool's paradises about our astonished heads, a destructive policy in discussing such contentious subjects as music-teaching and music text-books seems for the moment the only thoroughly sound and significant means of dealing effectively with their inherent incapacities. It is true that as far as Mr. Newman is concerned, he is content to belabour the text-books with the effective but obvious bludgeon afforded by a reference to consecutive fifths, a detail in rules that was dodged in innumerable instances by the older masters, and is entirely dishonoured by the modern; but the point is only the most delicate of caramboles in a system which persistently buffets, batters, and baffles the infatuated coterie that endeavours to sustain its complete efficiency.

All attempts to reason that modern music is the outcome of the old theories are manifest and flagrant subterfuges. It is nothing of the sort. It is based on other considerations altogether, and the very attempt to bring the opposing material into line, is at the outset bewildering to the innate commonsense of the modern music-student. Any composer who has marked the development of musical art with a white stone has done so independently and in spite of his text-book or teacher, and the nearer we approach to our own time the less reason is there to treat with the smallest reverence or respect the old washed-out principles that have obtained universal recognition since Rousseau fiddled about with his system of chord inversions nearly two hundred years ago.

The present-day teacher, who, as Mr. Corder suggests, is generally a composer with only failure to his credit, spends the best part of his plodding autumnal lifetime in pleading to the young and ambitious student principles and rules that have generally been the cause of his own downfall. If he buried himself instead of his head in the sand when confronted with the necessity of considering modern tendencies, the mass of entirely discredited knowledge that gives his person a dubious authority would no longer disturb the peace of the intelligent pupil.

This remark, of course, is not intended to be abusive or personal. The teacher, after all, is only the embodied text-book with the cover off, and moth-eaten in the pages that might possess a little value. If the most generous view of the most complete text-book be taken, the chances of anybody, after laboriously assimilating all its precepts, writing even a respectable waltz-tune would be as remote as Tipperary from the Punjab. The budding student—the one with a real instinct for music and reasonable ambitions—in the most desultory association with his art outside the pedagogic régime, has his musical sense set agog and vibrating with impressions that appear to him alive with potentialities no book or teacher attempts to approximate. The weary progress through a series of musical calamities based on the superfluous theory of inversions, the illicit passion for figured basses, the searching for roots to any structure of notes that may constitute the dignity of a chord generally with some idea of excusing it or forgiving it, and the orgiastic indulgence in contrapuntal and fugal exercises that would sap the vitality of any healthy musical enthusiasm if it were not for the promise of great ultimate accomplishment alluringly held out by the teacher, seem to be unquestionably no longer essentials of a musical education. Possibly these things were necessary when a practical method of forcing the all-important considerations of part-writing or harmony on the ear was not comfortably available. But surely the presence of the pianoforte for one thing, with its easy comprehension of all sorts and conditions of music, in thousands of homes, should have long since put an entirely different complexion on all teaching. The pianola, also, with its mechanical revelation of a myriad musical secrets, is likely to prove still more significant in easing up the educatory methods of the future. Already, by these adventitious aids, innumerable composers of sorts have sprung up like mushrooms in the last decade or so, and the pianoforte, which of course assists actual creation better than the pianola, has placed them in a position that serious study on the old lines would scarcely allow them to obtain. This ubiquitous instrument, moreover, has brought composition, such as it is, to the threshold of any reasonable aspiration, and if a certain dignity disallows the composer to delegate the duties to an outsider, a little practice will soon permit the transference of the musical thought, whatever it may be, to the permanence of paper. After the production of a succession of pleasant sounds that fit according to the composer's light, the need of understanding their breed, family, social connections, or general import seems somewhat superfluous. Further, what is being composed under these conditions, with an enviable security of technique, has generally a considerable and indubitable authority behind it—a question of reflection and subconscious imitation, however, that need not be considered here.

The only reason for introducing this type of composer into the subject is to call attention to a point that cannot be overlooked in dealing with the modern trend of music, although the text-books studiously avoid it. Acoustical justifications of harmony, as we generally understand it, have fallen before the practical assault of temperamental tuning in keyed instruments, the pianoforte being the all-important member of the family. Students are still implored to consider, at least in their early efforts at composition, the æsthetic authority of a pure scale that for all practical purposes lost its significance a century ago, and is now as dead as the dodo. For instruments that are capable of appreciating a just intonation, i.e., those of the string family or the trombone, a sense of the value of a G sharp, say, as against that of an A flat is not so much dependent on the player's ear as it is on the note's resolution and the composer's notation. For instance, some theorists, following the arguments of the early Victorian Dr. Day, will not admit the triad with augmented fifth :

but insist on explaining it away as a minor thirteenth with a resolution that would make any respectable player seriously question their authority :

Modern composers, of course, have very definite ideas of the chord, without for a moment considering its root-basis. But what text-book extant is helpful to the student in dealing with this primitive expression of the most significant of all chord-structures in the modern harmonic system ?

But this little side of what is altogether a reasonably complex question is not nearly so alarming in the consideration of the text-book as are the workings of the theoretical mind in dealing with elementary musical matters. The entire system supports itself on mediæval refuse, and it does not seem to have occurred to anybody that until all the débris is swept irreverently away, any sort of an approach between theory and practice is completely impossible.

The cause of all the trouble is a very simple one. The teaching of harmony from a polyphonic basis is as unnatural as it is abortive. The machinery is not only clogged, but absolutely refuses to work. There is scarcely a rule in strict Simple or Double Counterpoint that is not entirely the healthier for the breaking. The latitude permitted in the free styles is an insult to the student who has been cajoled into frittering away a lot of valuable time in appreciating the utter futility of the others.

There was a time in the palmy days of polyphony when mechanical devices were invented for the sake of insinuating a little variety into a musical system that threatened to come to a full stop at the beginning of its emotional career. They still exist. Take the matter of inversions in Double Counterpoint. The theorists were driven to a calculating table that showed at a glance the relative position of parts when they were inverted. Further, as each type of inversion (there are fourteen different species of Double Counterpoint, all beautifully irrelevant to modern composition) provides its own peculiar difficulties, it was found necessary to construct a table for all of them. Another device, that of imitation, was considered a wonderful adjunct to musical expression, and when the main theme (generally fashioned on an anæmic canto fermo of a few notes) was exactly imitated in one or many parts, it was dignified by the name of a canon.

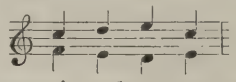
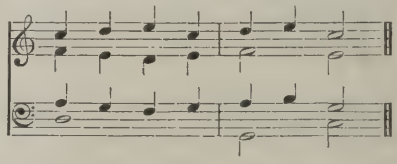
Then there were imitations by inversion, augmentation, and by contrary motion; also, but not so frequently, as the construction involved a lot of labour, that very curious arrangement per recte et retro, in which the theme stated was read backwards in the imitation. There was also another device in which the singer or player of the imitating part received a cordial invitation to carry out the composer's design by standing on his head. The spirit of all these terrible things is still rampant in current text-books. A very distinguished English theorist of the Victorian era and a professor of music at Oxford University, Sir Frederick A. Gore Ouseley, insisted that 'every student of music must make himself familiar with these contrapuntal resources if he would fain scale the loftiest heights and make himself distinguished as a composer of high-class music.' Again, in a work on musical composition published only a few years ago we find the following statements accented in black type, as a first principle: 'Study counterpoint first, and through counterpoint master harmony,' and as a second principle, 'the study of counterpoint, if it is to be of real value, must be strict.' As a matter of fact, all that modal counterpoint can teach the inquiring student of harmony is a succession of puerilities that can be acquired more effectually by other and explicitly simple means. On the other hand, all that is valuable for practical purposes in counterpoint is unambiguously held in the contents of a few innocent harmonic progressions. Even if the idea prevailed centuries ago, why, in the name of all that is sensible, should it still be considered necessary that the first bowing acquaintance of the novice with his art should be in terms of the voice, as represented by the village choir, in four uncertain parts, and over all the flavour of a dubious ecclesiolatry? Is the student ever permitted to evolve a tune? Not if the teacher can help it! But he is allowed to build one. Dr. Prout tells him that 'the rules for melodic expression are few and simple. A good melody is one that flows naturally and easily; it is therefore best either to proceed by step of a second (called "conjunct motion")—that is, to the next note above or below; or by leap ("disjunct motion") of a consonant interval.' He also instructs him that 'it is seldom good to introduce a leap of a seventh in the melody with one intermediate note, unless all three notes form part of the same chord, the leaps be upwards, and the last note fall one degree.' This is tune-making with a vengeance, and there are scores of similar permissions and restrictions! In the illustrative examples the following is considered bad!:

What must an intelligent student think of this type of instruction? An amusing illustration of Mr. Newman's recent animadversions on the rules concerning consecutive fifths is to be found in the following example from the same author, the first two bars marked as 'Very Bad,' and the final cadence 'Not Bad':

The two examples are not intended to join up, but happen to do so very satisfactorily. Personally, I should consider the complete passage pleasant and refreshing—there is not the slightest prevarication about it. Here is another presumed 'Very Bad' passage from a contrapuntal standpoint:



but if you presume it under some such conditions as the following:



the effect is scarcely to be questioned.

(To be continued.)

Occasional Notes.

As to Encores and Knitting.

Those of us who chafe at the encoring of ballads and other musical 'small deer' may rejoice that so far our orchestral conductors are content to acknowledge the hearty reception of a long work by merely bowing. At a recent New York Philharmonic concert, Dukas's 'L'Apprenti Sorcier' being enthusiastically received, the conductor repeated the work. Dukas's Scherzo has wit, but certainly not brevity, and we may imagine the mingled feelings of many of the applauders, especially as Debussy's 'L'Aprés-midi d'un faune,' down for hearing earlier in the programme, had been omitted—presumably to shorten the concert! This same concert provided yet another unusual feature, in the prohibition of knitting during the performance. We have not so far found ourselves annoyed at Queen's Hall by the efforts of the ladies in this way, but it appears that in America the deftly-moving hands and clicking needles have been so much in evidence as to distract. Hence a printed slip in the programmes calling on the knitters to cease from troubling.

A Festival of British Music.

The forthcoming Festival of British Music, in May, at Queen's Hall promises to be of great interest. It is quite in keeping with our attitude in the matter that the idea should have originated with a foreigner,—M. Mlynarski. In his hands, with the aid of Mr. Thomas Beecham, the artistic side of the venture is safe. It now remains for the public to do the rest. It is stated that three concerts are to be given, and that the programmes will be made from the best works which have been produced during the past ten years. But why this self-denial? One charming work occurs to us as being worthy of hearing, even—or especially—in these stormy days: Bennett's 'Naiades' Overture. While it must be confessed that much of this composer's music has stood the test of time but ill, this delicately beautiful work is surely one that has still plenty of life in it. It is difficult to imagine anyone being kept away from the Festival by the prospect of its performance; it is certain that many would gladly renew acquaintance with music that has had all too few performances of late years.

Emergency Concerts and Bands.

The activities in London alone of the various organizations formed for keeping music going and employing its wonderfully-varied utilities are too numerous for us to record in detail. The doings of the Committee of Music in War-time, the persistent efforts of Mr. Isidore de Lara, especially in the interests of British composers, Messrs. Broadwood's camp concerts, and many other similar schemes, all deserve the support of the public. A meeting was held at the Mansion House on January 27 for the purpose of promoting the formation of bands to be utilised as a recruiting agency. Mr. Rudyard Kipling was the chief speaker, and he made a strong speech from which we extract the following striking passages:

A band—not necessarily a full band, but a band of a few brasses and wood-wind—is immensely valuable in districts where troops are billeted. It revives memories; it quickens associations; it opens and unites the hearts of men more surely than any other appeal. In that respect it assists recruiting perhaps more than any other agency. The tunes that it employs and the words that go with them may seem very far removed from heroism or devotion; but the magic and the compelling power are there to make men's souls realise certain truths which their minds might doubt.

More than that. No one—not even the adjutant—can say for certain where the soul of a battalion lives; but the expression of that soul is most often found in the Band. It stands to reason that a body of 1,200 men whose lives are pledged to each other's keeping must have some common means of expressing their thoughts and moods to themselves and to their world. The Band can feel the mood and interpret the thought.

A wise and sympathetic bandmaster—and most that I have known have been that—can lift a battalion out of depression, cheer its sickness, and steady and recall it to itself in times of almost unendurable strain. You will remember a beautiful poem by Sir Henry Newbolt describing how a squadron of 'weary big dragoons' were led on to renewed effort by the strains of a penny whistle and a child's drum taken from a toyshop in a wrecked French town. And I remember in a cholera camp in India, where the men were suffering very badly, the Band of the 10th Lincolns started a regimental sing-song one night with that queer, defiant tune, 'The Lincolnshire Poacher.' You know the words. It was merely their regimental march, which the men had heard a thousand times. There was nothing in it except—except all England—all the East Coast—all the fun and daring and horseplay of young men bucketing about the big pastures by moonlight. But, as it was given, very softly, at that bad time in that terrible camp of death, it was the one thing in the world which could have restored—as it did—shaken men to pride, humour, and self-control.

We are a tongue-tied breed at the best. The band can declare on our behalf, without shame or shyness, something of what we feel, and so help us to reach a hand towards the men who have risen up to save us.

At a recent meeting of the Board of Directors of Novello & Co., Ltd., Mr. Augustus Littleton was elected to succeed the late Alfred Henry Littleton as Chairman of the Board. Mr. Augustus Littleton has been connected with the House of Novello for forty-four years, and has served as Deputy-Chairman since the incorporation of the Company in 1898. Mr. Henry William Brooke, one of the original Directors of the Company, was at the same meeting elected to the office of Deputy-Chairman.

THE NEW ARMY AND ITS MUSICAL NEEDS.

It is delightful to study the 'Kitcheners' in training. That grizzled old warrior of a drill-sergeant will tell you why, and in one word—they are 'keen.' They have taken on a contract and are intent on fulfilling it. Watch them closely at their work, and you will soon be convinced of their grim determination. There's a 'do or die' look about them. They get on, but would get on even better with the aid of some extraneous heart lifting influence.

In training centres where the 'Kitcheners' have the advantage of observing and associating with the professional 'Tommy,' they soon acquire his cheery idiosyncrasies; that singular psychology which Rudyard Kipling delights to extol, and which, it may be added in parenthesis, so very few laymen are able to understand. No laboured reasoning can arrive at it, for the less cheerful the conditions the more cheery the Tommy. The same spirit animates the Sailor. 'It's a long way, this, to Tipperary' said a 'Hogue' bluejacket, swimming for his life on a hundred to one chance.

In the matter of training the New Armies the problem is to make the best possible soldier in the shortest possible time. The work begins with squad drill and gymnastics. This occupies a few weeks, and then the squad is turned over to the Company. The soldier now emerges from his chrysalis stage: he is permitted to realise that he has a soul of his own, esprit de corps becomes comprehensible, and the glory of the soldier's life begins to dawn. Incidentally it may be added, the 'chum' now emerges. There is no accounting for the attractive force which brings and keeps 'chums' together; they 'jus' growed,' like Topsy—but the fact remains, and their devoted constancy is 'lovely and pleasant' as that of Saul and Jonathan.

A full company numbers some 250 men. A platoon is a quarter of a company, and it is in platoon formation that by far the greater part of the training takes place, because of the individual brains now to be cultivated equally with the bones, sinews, and circulatory organs. Then there are hygienic and other lectures, musketry instruction, and bayonet-fighting classes to be attended. Fairly strenuous going, and about eight hours of it daily; but the company captain, like a wise schoolmaster, maps out the daily itinerary so as to avoid monotony, and makes one subject digest another. All the while the back must be trained to the burden. This is not by any means a mere figure of speech, since the plain equipment starts at 56 lbs., and by the time everything is added the burden is increased to 90 lbs. The four platoons of a company may each have a different daily task, whether a lesson in patrolling, convoying, scouting, intrenching, judging distances, or the hundred other qualifications for active service. And all the while there is marching and marching longer and longer distances, and the load gets heavier and heavier.

As before mentioned, the professional Tommy is a confirmed and incorrigible humorist, but his helpful society is still a long way off; and, anyhow, animal spirits flow all the more freely for some incentive, like small-talk at a society matinée. The fact of the 'Kitchener' trying to make cheerful noises on the march for himself, is the most undeniable indication of a musical need.

At the Lord Mayor's recruiting-band meeting at the Guildhall, Rudyard Kipling spoke eloquently, and everyone felt a thrill on hearing his story of the magical effect of the regimental march—an old county tune—on the cholera-stricken 'Lincolns.' Miss Lena Ashwell pleaded for less abject materialism, and that the Arts—but music especially—might be given the chance of helping at the fountain-head of all effort—the emotions. We all sing the 'man behind the gun,' but what is it that is behind the man? Other speakers followed, and the wealth of British folk-music—old songs, old dances, old march-tunes—and the crying need of instrumental music for the new Armies was amply demonstrated. Its quality, and its administration, however, were left somewhat in doubt.

Have bands, and plenty of them, by all means,—if you can get them: a good band at the disposal of every depot commanding officer, for occasional military duty, but chiefly to enliven the leisure hours and afford some compensation for the sacrifice of the volunteers' ordinary evening amusements. But the first and most urgent need is for cheering influences on the march during the months and months of actual training, music which is simple and straightforward, that needs no strained effort to grasp and assimilate,—plain 'melody and rhythm,' as Kipling put it. Music in fact, which is best expressed through the time-honoured medium of the drum and fife.

A drum and fife, and a bagpiper, at the disposal of every company captain would work wonders.

As to recruiting, it is to be questioned whether the bunkum of a more or less theatrical 'recruiting march' would attract intelligent men nearly so much as seeing a platoon, like a happy family, swinging along its daily task to the pulsating beat of the drum, the merry chirrup of the fife—spontaneous, like the song of a lark—or the compelling and forceful skirl of the bagpipe. The very soul of true soldiering finds expression therein; and if there is any man who has not yet come under its influence, let him try a march amongst good comrades to the tune of 'Green Sleeves,' 'Joan's Placket,' 'Rory O'More,' 'Rosin the Beau,' 'The Buff Coat,' 'Larry O'Gaff,' 'Johnnie Cope,' or an old English Hornpipe, or Irish Jig or Scots Reel in its own particular idiom, the fife or bagpipe. Love of country, pride of race, historic glory and all things that make for Patriotism speak under these circumstances more clearly than under the influence of the most inspired orator. There can be no doubt about it, for the case has been proved times out of number during similar crises in the past.

Warfare is a primitive thing. Its essentials are the same as ever, and the 'Kitcheners' of to-day are as the warriors who responded to the call in bygone ages: who drilled, and marched to the fife and drum, and finally assembled and encamped under the same old oaks in the same old 'New Forest'; whose tramping footsteps echoed under the same old Bar-gate at Southampton on the way to the wars; who fought and conquered on the self-same battle-fields at Agincourt and Cressy, Blenheim and Waterloo; whose spirit is with us, and whose souls 'still go marching on,' if we believe what is most worth believing.

G. M.

AT A SOLEMN MUSIC.

GLOUCESTER CATHEDRAL.

What fitter place for such a celebration than the splendid old Norman nave of Gloucester Cathedral? When Dr. Montagu Butler, then Dean of Gloucester, now Master of Trinity, took counsel with his Cathedral organist in October, 1886, as to the possibility of holding recitals of sacred music during the winter months, they could hardly have contemplated or foreseen that the movement would have extended with amazing popularity to the year 1915. But it is so, and lately the 250th recital has been celebrated, and marked with due appreciation by the citizens of Gloucester, who assembled in many thousands, headed by the Mayor and Corporation, Col. the Hon. A. B. Bathurst, M.P., Col. Sandeman, and many officers and men of the different Battalions now quartered at Gloucester, to listen for one short hour to the strains of Handel, Beethoven, Mendelssohn, Bach, and Haydn, rendered by a large voluntary choir of ladies and gentlemen and the Cathedral choristers. Organ solos by more modern composers, played by Dr. Brewer, were also listened to with great attention by the huge gathering. The solo-singing of Mr. John Coates came as a grateful surprise to the congregation, who much appreciated the sacred songs of Handel and Mendelssohn that Mr. Coates had selected. The programmes of sacred music at these recitals carry out Dr. Butler's advice in 1886: 'Pray always include music by the Great Masters, give dates of birth and death of each, and reiterate, reiterate, reiterate, for the people we want here are those who from various circumstances cannot often hear really high-class music.'

It is pleasant to assure the Master of Trinity, if these lines should meet his eye, that his advice has proved sound and practical, and is being loyally carried out by the present Dean, Dr. Spence-Jones, and his organist, Dr. Brewer. 'Recital-night' has now for nearly thirty years become a well-loved institution in the old city of Gloucester. Certainly the authorities do this thing right well, for some three thousand programmes with the words of each vocal number enabled all present to follow and appreciate every sentiment that was sung by soloist or choir.

On the present occasion the very sad events of the War were brought home to each one present at the solemn moment when all rose to listen to the strains of 'The Last Post,' played by six young buglers placed in the far-away Lady Chapel. The almost painful silence that followed told its own tale, and eyes grew dim and hearts beat quickly as the solemn strains died slowly away, reverberating through clerestory and cloister,—a fine tribute to those lost to us on land and sea.

Gloucester may well be proud of its grand old Cathedral, and of the many splendid services of sacred song that are privileged to take place there.

C. L. W.

THE 'STAR-SPANGLED BANNER': AN EXHAUSTIVE OFFICIAL INQUIRY.*

The writer who essays the apparently innocent task of conscientiously writing the history of a national song or tune, generally finds himself in the position of an unfortunate soldier fast amid a barbed wire entanglement and subjected to a hail of bullets from the enemy's firing line.

This simile may have forced itself into the mind of Mr. O. G. Sonneck after the publication of his original report, issued in 1909. This exhaustive monograph was compiled at the request of the head librarian of the Library of Congress, with intent that all information obtainable regarding America's chief national songs should be given to the world under official auspices. 'The Star-spangled Banner,' 'Yankee Doodle,' 'Hail, Columbia!' and 'America,' were therefore dealt with down to the most insignificant detail, the whole forming a monument of patient research; every wild statement is traced to its source and duly knocked on the head. It is unfortunate for the historian that all popular songs and melodies have been subjected to the writings of irresponsible persons who, without giving any authority, have rushed into print with startling assertions regarding them.

*'"The Star-spangled Banner." Revised and enlarged from the Report on the above and other airs, issued in 1909. By Oscar George Theodore Sonneck. Washington, 1914.'

These (generally) romantic stories are repeated over and over again, and it becomes the historian's business to trace them to their fountain head and to disprove them. Again, to give a homely parallel, it is quite easy to assert, on the basis of infantile tradition, that the moon is a huge green cheese, or that it is inhabited by a solitary Sabbath breaker, guilty of gathering sticks on a Sunday; but it is a complicated and laborious task for even the skilled astronomer scientifically to prove the untruth of these myths.

Such, however, has been Mr. Sonneck's task. He has had to collect all the irresponsible fables regarding the two airs, 'Yankee Doodle' and 'The Star-spangled Banner,' and patiently to sift the few grains of corn from a great quantity of chaff; also in the case of the last-named air and song, with which the present Report only is concerned, to combat new theories that have sprung up since the first Report of 1909.

Put in the fewest words, the sum of Mr. Sonneck's contention is that the words of 'The Star-spangled Banner' were written by Francis Scott Key, a Baltimore lawyer, on or about September 13 or 14, 1814, under these circumstances:

A medical friend of Key's had been arrested upon certain charges as an enemy during England's war with America. This gentleman, Dr. Beanes, had been conveyed to a ship then forming part of the British Fleet lying off the mouth of the Potomac. Under a flag of truce, Scott Key sailed out to the English ships and made a successful endeavour to obtain the release of his friend. They were informed, however, that they would not be allowed to return to land for some little while, as the Fleet was about to bombard Fort McHenry.

From the deck of their vessel Scott Key and his friend watched the flag floating over the fort; but the growing darkness prevented them from seeing if the flag still held position, and they waited anxiously for morning.

During the evening Key had strung together part of his song:

> 'O! say can you see by the dawn's early light
> What so proudly we hailed at the twilight's last gleaming?' &c.

The song was finished during their return, and was printed on a broadsheet, and in the Baltimore Patriot of September 20; also, next day, in another Baltimore paper.

In broadsheet form and in the newspapers the song is headed—'Tune, "Anacreon in Heaven."' The metre of 'To Anacreon in Heaven' is peculiar to itself and to the many songs which were written to the air. The melody had long been popular in America, and formed the vehicle for several songs of a patriotic character. Therefore, in spite of an assertion that Scott Key did not know one tune from another, it is quite obvious that he knew, at least, the 'Anacreon' song, as the metre of his verse distinctly shows its association.

In regard to the tune, about which English readers will be interested, it belongs to a song of which the first two lines run:

> 'To Anacreon in Heaven, where he sat in full glee,
> A few sons of harmony sent a petition.'
> &c.

This song was regularly sung at all meetings of a convivial harmonic club, called 'The Anacreontic Society,' that held its meetings at a tavern on Ludgate Hill kept by one Rowley; later, the Society transferred itself to the 'Crown and Anchor' in the Strand. The first half of Mr. Sonneck's Report is to establish the fact of the authorship of the tune which, according to his belief from the evidence available, was by John Stafford Smith, 1750-1836. The contention is not new, for it had long been settled thus in most impartial minds that had gone into the matter. Nevertheless some attacks had been made upon this conclusion, and it became Mr. Sonneck's task to re-establish the original belief. We think he has successfully done this, and that he has faced all adverse points that have been raised.

To review the evidence as put forth by Mr. Sonneck: in order to refute an American claim for the song, a claim which Mr. Sonneck refers to as 'one of the most grotesquely absurd articles in musical literature,' it was pointed out by 'X' in the Musical Times of August, 1896, pp. 516-519, that the song 'To Anacreon in Heaven' first appears in print (without music) in a London song book the Vocal Magazine, the edition of 1778, under the heading:

'Anacreontic Society—written by Ralph Tomlinson, Esq.'

In this version one line runs:

> 'A fig for Parnassus, to Rowley's we'll fly.'

And another line:

> 'To the hill of old Lud will incontinent flee.'

These lines allude to the fact that the Society held its meetings at a tavern kept by 'one Rowley,' as mentioned above. Afterwards it removed to larger premises at the 'Crown and Anchor' in the Strand. The earliest known copy of the song fitted to its music appears on a music sheet issued by Longman and Broderip, at the assumed date 1780. In this sheet, and in all other copies of the song after the Vocal Magazine, the lines relating to 'Rowley' and the 'hill of old Lud' are omitted and classic generalities substituted.

As to the composer of the glorious tune, the Musical Times article, with which Mr. Sonneck agrees, points to John Stafford Smith, who published a version of the song in glee form in his 'Fifth Book of Canzonets, Catches, Canons, and Glees' which, it has since been ascertained, was entered at Stationers' Hall in 1799. In this work it is called 'The Anacreontick Song, Harmonised by the Author.' On the title-page of the volume an important statement is made as follows: 'By John Stafford Smith, Gent of His Majesty's Chapels Royal, author of the Favorite Glees—Blest pair of Syrens, Hark the Hollow Woods, &c., the Anacreontic and other popular songs.' In these words, and in 'harmonised by the author' attached to the glee form, lies the evidence for claiming Stafford Smith as composer of the air.

So far all would seem to be plain sailing. But two gentlemen arise who dispute the British birth of both the words and melody of 'To Anacreon in Heaven.' One is Mr. John Henry Blake, who is referred to as 'a wealthy Irish American,' and the other Dr. Grattan Flood, who, it may be remembered, in his 'History of Irish Music' claimed 'God save the King' as an 'adaptation of an Irish Folk-song.' Dr. Grattan Flood having satisfied himself (even if this opinion is not concurred in by others who have studied the question) that '"Yankee Doodle" is of Irish origin,' mentions in an article in Church Music, September, 1909, that '"The Star-spangled Banner" had its provenance in England.'

He goes on to say, in the same article, in allusion to 'Anacreon in Heaven': 'As to the melody, it was composed by John Stafford Smith, a pupil of Dr. Boyce, in 1771,' and 'there is no doubt as to the fact that Ralph Tomlinson wrote the song in the winter of 1770.' Further, that 'the words and music of "To Anacreon" were published by Longman and Broderip in 1779-80, and were reprinted by Anne Lee, of Dublin (? 1780) in 1781.' The above shows Dr. Flood as in full agreement with Mr. Sonneck.

But this certainty as to detail, and much more which we have not space to quote, sounds rather strange when we read Dr. Flood's later communication to another magazine, Ave Maria, July 6, 1912, under the title, 'The Irish origin of "The Star-spangled Banner."' In this he demolishes all the conclusions he had arrived at in 1909, and asserts that Tomlinson did not write the song of 'To Anacreon in Heaven,' and that Stafford Smith did not compose the music, but that the tune 'is Irish, and most probably the work of Turlough O'Carolan.'

Dr. Flood, in his first article, in Church Music, dwelt on the fact that 'internal evidence clearly points to the influence of Boyce, under whom he [J. Stafford Smith] was then studying.' Dr. Flood, however, in 1912, completely changes his views, and says: 'Having thus eliminated the English claim to the tune, I have no hesitation in claiming the tune as of Irish origin. Furthermore, it has all the characteristics of a composition by the famous O'Carolan, as can easily be tested by a comparison of "Anacreon" with O'Carolan's "Bumpers Squire Jones."' Dr. Flood's conclusions did not pass unchallenged, for the Rev. Father H. T. Henry contested them in an article contributed to the 'Records of the American Catholic Historical Society,' December, 1913.

Mr. Sonneck in his Report says:

'Father Henry sought to show—and few, if any, of his readers will deny his success—that (to quote his words):

'1. The article in the Ave Maria is misleading both in its assertions and in its omissions;

'2. "Anacreon" has hardly any characteristic resemblance to "Bumper";

'3. The words were most probably composed by Tomlinson, the tune by Smith;

'4. Mr. Sonneck's singularly careful Report to Congress is completely misrepresented in Dr. Flood's article;

'5. There is no evidence, or even what purports to be such, that the tune is Irish in origin, or that the words "emanated from Ireland about the year 1765." In brief, there is no real basis for Dr. Flood's claim.'

In this summing-up of Father Henry's Mr. Sonneck heartily agrees.

The Report next deals with a pamphlet in folio issued by Mr. John Henry Blake, New York, 1912. Mr. Sonneck says of this:

'It is safe to say that Mr. Grattan Flood would never have written his article of 1912 without the stimulating perusal of one of the most curious pamphlets that ever came to my notice during a somewhat extensive association with books on music. The complete pamphlet bears the title:

> American National Anthem 'The Star-Spangled Banner,' made singable for the voices of the people. History of the origin of the words and music, written for the information and use of the American people.

Mr. Sonneck characterizes this pamphlet as a composite affair, sections of the history being written at different times, and points out—'this disjointed method makes it difficult to report the pamphlet briefly, or cope with the discoveries, theories, idiosyncrasies, and contradictions therein contained.'

Mr. Blake's real discovery is that Stafford Smith's 'Fifth Book of Canzonets,' in which the song 'To Anacreon in Heaven' was adapted as a glee, was copyrighted in 1799: a fact of interest, but which has not the slightest bearing on the question at issue. Mr. Blake lays much stress upon the fact that Stafford Smith did not claim its composition before 1799, or copyright it on first publication. He appears to be quite in ignorance of the little real value copyright in song and music had at that period, or that an enormous number of songs and music never were entered for copyright.

The accidental fact that the Lee family, who issued a Dublin copy of the song, also published a number of French songs, sets Mr. Blake off on another tack—that the tune is perhaps French and of enormous antiquity. He says:

'In our humble opinion the music has come down through the ages, probably through the Troubadours, for it has always been a song for men, and no one but an opera singer of the premier étoile quality can negotiate it. Even English or Irish voices of to-day cannot do it justice. It may have been composed by Richard Cœur de Lion, who as a Troubadour could compose a good song, and as a Crusader could swing a mighty battle-axe in the cause of Christianity. Perhaps it was the very song that led to his release . . . It requires voices produced only in that climate where the sunlit valleys of Southern France and the plains of Northern Italy meet to sing it with justice and animation'—and so forth.

This extract will show the precise value of Mr. Blake's qualifications for dealing with points of musical antiquarianism; and as the rest of his pamphlet has much of this sort of thing embodied in it, we can appreciate Mr. Sonneck's task in combating Mr. Blake's rather nebulous views.

We have not space to deal with the many absurd statements that, in the course of his inquiry, Mr. Sonneck had to search out and logically refute. As one closes the book one cannot but feel lively sympathy for the author of the Report, that his path towards the elucidation of the truth was strewn with such thorns.

The reproductions of early music sheets and manuscript copies of words are of special value.

By a notice within the book it appears that the Report is on sale by the 'Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C., price 85 cents'; and from this source, we believe, the earlier Report dealing with the air 'Yankee Doodle' may also be obtained, the price of this being marked the same.

Frank Kidson.

The Independent Music Club will give a concert at 7.30 p.m. on March 2, at the Kingsway Hall, in aid of the Fund for Erecting Drying Shelters for Soldiers. Artists from the Allied Nations are assisting, and a selection of Indian music will be performed. Sir Owen Seaman will recite, and the Band of the Duke of Cambridge's Hussars will assist.

On January 30, Mr. Tobias Matthay lectured on 'The teaching of the fundamentals of pianoforte technique,' to the Liverpool Branch of the Music Teachers' Association.

The Classical Concert Society announce an interesting series of concerts to take place at 3.30 p.m. on March 10, 17, and 24.

Church and Organ Music.

THE COMPLEAT ORGANIST.

By Harvey Grace.

(Continued from February number, page 90.)

XII.—OF HIS INSTRUMENT (continued).

Musicus. Organicus.

'The organ carries to our ear
The accents of another sphere.'

Matthew Arnold.

Organicus.—Well, 'tis a formidable indictment—on paper, at all events. I fancy, however, that when counsel for the defence comes to deal with the various points, the organ will be found less black than it is painted. I put on one side its ugly appearance. 'Handsome is that handsome does,' applies no less to instruments than to persons. Some of us decorate the street we tread; others are mere blots on the landscape, and often the biggest blots have been the ablest of men. You yourself—but I must get on. You condemn the organ as 'a monstrous collection of devices and effects, many of which will not bear inquiring into.' Is there any need to inquire into them? The question is,—Do they justify themselves by their effect? I might apply your argumentative methods to several departments of the orchestra. On paper, what can be more inartistic than smiting a huge hollow cylinder with skin stretched across its two ends; or beating a smaller one with strings stretched across one end to increase the din by their rattling against the skin; or clashing together discs of brass, the hideous vibrations being silenced only by the player clasping the deadly weapons close to his manly breast; or thumbing a small arrangement of wood and skin with little brass discs rattling; or tapping a piece of bent iron with a bloated skewer; or lustily beating a huge tea-tray of substantial build?

None of these alleged musical instruments are capable of sounding a given note, yet they are allowed to intrude themselves into the harmony played by the strings and wind. In theory, it seems absurd. Yet we know that the bass drum, the side drum, the cymbals, the tambourine, the triangle, and the gong, are very valuable members of the orchestra, and, used with discretion, give us many delightful moments. They are the condiments of the orchestral feast. So with the vox humana, voix celeste, and mixtures of the organ. The names of the first two are of course absurd, but I deny that their effect is inartistic. Your objection to the voix celeste, as being produced by a couple of stops not in tune with one another, and your suggestion that we should try the effect with two boys' voices, are based on a misapprehension. Two boys singing out of tune sound merely like what they are—two boys singing out of tune. On the other hand, a couple of good gambas, one tuned slightly sharp or flat, do not sound like two stops out of tune; the result is a colour richer than either stop alone, or than both exactly in tune, plus an undulating effect of real beauty. I am sure that when some ingenious person produces an orchestral instrument that will sound like the much-abused voix celeste, composers and audiences will rise up and call him blessed. The tone is warmer than the acid oboe, and more expressive than the desolate corno-Inglese.

Then as to our mixtures. If, as a result of their use, we heard harmonics squeaking above everything else, the effect would be excruciating. But we don't. The presence of mixtures in a well-balanced scheme may be likened to the nasal resonance of a good singer, or to the flavour of garlic in soup. When the singer reminds you that he has a nose, or the garlic ceases to be an exciting suspicion and becomes a terrible certainty, both singer and cook have overdone things. As to the confused effect of rapid passages played on the full organ, I agree with you to some extent. But so much depends upon the acoustic properties of the building, that it is not fair to generalise. I have heard brilliant passage-work clearly in some churches, while in others the effect produced by the same player, music, and registration was mere chaos. Your contention that because orchestral composers do not employ the brass in rapid passages therefore organists should not use the louder reeds for quick work, is not sound. Brass-players are not usually asked to play very rapid notes for the best of reasons—such passages would be enormously difficult, and the effect would not be worth the trouble. The loud 8-ft. reeds of an organ, however, if good, can speak much more rapidly than the higher brass of the orchestra, and may therefore be effectively employed in passages where the latter would merely be spluttering. At the same time, the reeds are so rich in upper partials, that I agree with you that their use in complex music, where the movement is very quick, sometimes tends to confusion. As to our absurd stop-names, I am with you entirely. But much the same thing exists in every department of musical terminology. What would you say if I suggested that we should call our shortest note 'long'?

Musicus.—I shouldn't say anything. I should look round anxiously for your keeper.

Organicus.—But you have been calling our longest note 'breve' all your life, and never turned a hair! Your cor anglais is not a horn, and is not of English origin. Hence its name, I suppose. I could improvise a list of absurdities fully as long as your catalogue of organ stops, but I refrain. As to the deficiency of our instrument in the matter of accent, we must plead guilty. I may point out, however, that there are plenty of organists who by their phrasing and variety of touch are able to make the defect practically unnoticeable by any but the keenest ears. In acquiring this ability, they learn subtleties in phrasing that many performers on other instruments—especially the voice—never get within measurable distance of. The overcoming of the drawback leads to a special excellence. I cannot agree with you about the ineffectiveness of the swell-box. If you asked a hundred average musicians to describe the effect of opening the box, ninety-nine would say that it was an increase of power. I make you a present of the hundredth, a highly superior person who would probably insist that the effect was merely that of sound approaching nearer. So far from admitting the futility of the device, I go further and say that the effect of a fine swell with the box 'closed' is so good that I am sure that if orchestral conductors could suddenly enclose their orchestra for the obtaining of remote effects they would jump at the chance. As to a crescendo by means of stops being a series of 'chunks of sound,' much depends upon the particular organ and player. An up-to-date instrument with a skilful man at the console can grade an increase in a way that would stagger the old school of players, who prepared their registration at the beginning of a work, and left it at that, contenting themselves with occasional changes of manual. But after all, doesn't your orchestra come on 'in chunks'? Even in a very gradual crescendo one can hear the different families enter. Of course the crescendo of a single instrument such as the violin or trombone can never be rivalled by the most effective swell box in the world. Then you poured ridicule on our tremulant. For the life of me, I can see nothing more inartistic in agitating the wind in the swell box than in shaking a finger on a string as violinists and 'cellists do. The vibrato of a good singer—I don't mean the miserable wobble of a bad one—is the result of pretty much the same operation, only it is not visible. Surely it's all one whether the vibrato is caused by a fan, a trembling finger on a string, or by a singer's rapid diminishing and reinforcing a note. If the effect is good,—as it is in all three cases, used judiciously,—we need not concern ourselves with the cause.

Musicus.—I——

Organicus.—Bide a wee! You've had your innings, and retired with a decent score to your credit. I'm at the wicket now, trying to make a few. Passing by your absurd comparison of the organ with a choral society, let me say a few words about the modern composer's alleged neglect of the organ. First, as to the clever young man who won't write for it because organs vary so much. There is really very little in this objection. Organs vary no more than do performers. If your young man were logical he would go on to say, 'If I compose a work for the London Symphony or Queen's Hall orchestras I know what I am writing for, since they are all first-rate players and always under the control of first-rate conductors. Similarly if I write pianoforte or violin music for any of our leading players, I shall be sure of my music making the effect I intend. But inasmuch as many inferior orchestras, conductors, and players abound, I prefer not to run the risk of my work being murdered, so I don't compose. There is all the difference in the world between the pianoforte-playing of an eminent virtuoso and that of the half-baked amateur who is sublimely unconscious of his ignorance of the very elements of touch. You might as well call a mastodon and a microbe by the same name, and try to harness them to the same cart. So now you know why I have such a long list of unwritten works to my credit.'

Musicus.—That is——

Organicus.—Off the pitch, please! Moreover, this modern anxiety about the exactness of the medium is a sign of weakness. Instrumental music that loses all its effectiveness when transcribed is very often deficient in idea. Practically all the best orchestral music can be played as pianoforte duet with good results. The more vital the music, and the stronger in idea and development, the better it comes through the ordeal. But orchestral music depending for its effect upon cunning manipulation of colour, the simultaneous employment of various planes of harmony, and other devices possible only with a big orchestra, is surely on a somewhat lower scale. To compose work of the former kind an inspired musician is necessary, whereas the latter might be written by anyone with a thorough understanding of the possibilities of the various instruments, plus a feeling for colour and skill in mixing it: just as a picture can be painted only by a completely equipped artist, while pleasing chiaroscuro and kaleidoscopic effects may be arranged by one ignorant of the elements of drawing. But is the organ so neglected by modern composers? I wonder if you are aware of the extraordinarily fine organ music produced of late years in France, to mention one country alone. In this connection I recall some remarks by one of the ablest of our critics, which his name is Clutsam. Writing in the Observer of January 10, he waxes enthusiastic over Louis Vierne's '24 pièces en style libre' for organ or harmonium. He describes the composer's name as 'entirely unfamiliar,' and goes on to say that 'unfortunately he has confined his splendid ability to creation for the organ.' Why 'unfortunately,' if among the results are three Symphonies which, as Mr. Clutsam says, 'are quite masterpieces of their sort'? Louis Vierne may be a new composer to people interested chiefly in opera or orchestral works, but his music has long been familiar to many organists both in England and America. These 'Twenty-four pieces,' for example, with which Mr. Clutsam is so delighted, were played by some-of us despised organists about a year ago, within a few weeks of their first appearance. Mr. Clutsam appears to think that Vierne is doomed to obscurity because he does not compose for the stage. Hence, I suppose, the 'unfortunately.' But opera is only one department of music. Organ players and lovers of organ music are numbered by tens of thousands. Many of them are indifferent to opera, just as many opera devotees are indifferent to organ music. It is a mistake to suppose that a composer of organ music alone is necessarily condemned to neglect.

César Franck is a striking case of a neglected genius being largely saved from oblivion by his organ music. It appears that nothing less than a European war was necessary to bring home to English orchestral conductors the greatness of his Symphony. We organists laugh when we see it announced with extra large type, as if it were a new work, while critics speak of its worthiness of inclusion in the list of popular symphonies. It was composed about thirty years ago, and until this season its English performances have averaged perhaps one in three or four years. Meanwhile, Franck's name has for long past been honoured by English organists in a practical way,—they have played his music. Bless you, they didn't need Armageddon to draw their attention to the great Belgian; the beauties of the 'Three chorals,' the 'Six pieces,' and the 'Pièce héroïque' will be appreciated by them and their hearers for a long time yet. On the other hand, I can see in my mind's eye the Symphony going back on the shelf again shortly, and the symphonic répertoire of our orchestras once more reduced to the more popular ones of Beethoven and the 'Pathétique' of Tchaikovsky. How often do we hear the two Symphonies of Elgar in these days? Yet I will undertake to say that if Sir Edward would write some organ music of equal excellence, it would receive hundreds of recital performances not for one year only but for many years, and his work as an instrumental writer would be brought home to thousands of people who at present know him only as the composer of 'Land of Hope and Glory' and 'Salut d'Amour.'

No, Sir. Organ music, if you are a Widor, a Rheinberger, a Guilmant, or even a Salomé or Dubois, means not only reputation, but hard cash as well. Some of our young composers, who at present write orchestral music and get perhaps one performance, some honour and glory, and nothing more solid, may do worse than express themselves viâ the organ. You alluded, in passing, to the excellence of the violin and the pianoforte. I have no wish to disparage those delightful instruments. I will content myself with pointing out that like the organ they have the defects of their qualities. The violin is ideal for playing a melody, but it cannot manage its own accompaniment, and when it essays to give us three- or four-part harmony the effect is painful. It always reminds me of what Dr. Johnson said of a dog's dancing on its hind legs: 'Sir, it is not done well, but you are surprised to find it done at all.' Where, too, is your crescendo on the pianoforte? You may make a note louder than the preceding one, but you cannot increase a sustained note; indeed, you cannot sustain a note at all. From the moment the hammer has struck the wire, a diminuendo sets in. I grant that this very defect has been turned to good account by modern composers in their use of vanishing harmonies, but it is a defect none the less.

Musicus.—But you——

Organicus—Damp the sound! While it is true that misguided players sometimes attempt too much in the way of transcriptions, there are some well-known passages in orchestral and other instrumental music that actually sound better on the organ than in their original form. I have heard the Prelude to 'Lohengrin' played so often that I can cheerfully look forward to never hearing it again. But I have never yet heard those opening delicate high violin passages without an uncomfortable feeling that they were not so ethereal as the composer intended them to be, or even beyond reproach as regards intonation. A very soft organ stop can give the passages with more certainty and delicacy, and with no trouble to the performer. My first acquaintance with the slow movement of Debussy's Quartet in G minor was made through an organ transcription. It charmed me at once, and I made haste to hear it played by strings. It still charmed me, but I came to the conclusion that the greater part of it was equally effective on the organ, and the exquisite ending very much more so. The same may be said of much pianoforte music, where the idiom is not too distinctively pianistic. There must surely be some points about an instrument with such capabilities. Moreover, your big choral and orchestral effects need the co-operation of great numbers, with proportionate cost. Your organ once built, a skilful pair of hands and feet can work wonders. The fixed tone you spoke of with contempt has really a beauty of its own. No other instrument can produce a long note without a suspicion of crescendo or diminuendo,—not because they don't want to, but merely because the control of breath or bow is too difficult. If you doubt this, ask a good singer to sustain a note to the capacity of the breath without the slightest change of force. Yet there are moments in music when a dead level of sound has its point. Only the organ can sustain a note as unyielding and remorseless as Fate.

As for the public appreciation of the 'kist o' whistles,' I will only ask you, when next you are at Queen's Hall, to notice what happens when the organ enters, say, in the Prelude to 'The Wreckers,' or the 'Cockaigne' Overture. You will see nine-tenths of the audience turn their eyes towards the console with their faces expressing obvious pleasure. Either your estimate of our instrument as a 'monstrosity' is wrong, or the audience are barbarians. I grant you that some of this appeal may be due to the association of the organ with religious observance. But this very association proves the great and dignified qualities of the instrument. Thanks to the skill of modern builders, it can caper and give us marvellous effects of lightness, but it is still at its best in the utterance of big and abstract ideas. To the genuine organ-lover, this aloofness will always be its greatest charm. No instrument has in its répertoire so much music that is as a sanctuary for harassed nerves. Only an organist can fully realise (though he cannot make plain to other musicians) what it means to him, at the end of a worrying round of lessons and boiling the pot, to get to his organ, especially on a week-day evening, with the church to himself. Who can understand 'Abt Vogler' so fully as he? At such a time the 'Prière' of César Franck, or one of his Chorals, or a couple of soft stops and the 'Little Organ Book' of old Sebastian . . . .

(To be continued.)

The following is a list of the music used at the services of Metropolitan Cathedrals and twenty-eight of the principal Churches on one Sunday in February:

Te Deum and Benedictus.

Harwood in A flat.	Cobb in G.
Bridge in A.	Williams in A.
Alcock in B flat.	Hopkins in G.
Garrett in E flat.	Prout in F.
Garrett in F.	Steggall in A.
Smart in F.	Walford Davies.
Wesley in F.	Boyce in C.
J. Barnby in E.	Stainer in E flat.

Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis.

Aldrich in G. (2)	Gadsby in C.
Haynes in G.	Harwood in A.
Noble in B minor.	Walford Davies.
Alcock in B flat.	Arnold in A.
Smart in F.	Bennett in E flat.
Aldrich in C.	Walmisley in D major.
Battison Haynes in G.	Walmisley in D minor.
Varley Roberts in G.

Anthems.

'O come, every one that thirsteth.' Mendelssohn.
'Ho! every one that thirsteth.' Martin.
'Bow thine ear.' Dowland.
'Henceforth, when ye hear.' Mendelssohn.
'Thou wilt keep him.' Wesley.
'If ye walk in My statutes.' Clippingdale.
'When to the Temple Mary went.' Eccard.
'Lord, what love have I unto Thy law.' Kent.
'O where shall wisdom be found?' Boyce.
'Justorum animae.' Byrde.
'Lord, for Thy tender mercies' sake.' Farrant.
'Jesu, Word of God Incarnate.' Elgar.
'Lord, Thou alone art God.' Mendelssohn.
'Since by man.' Handel.
'Wherewithal shall a young man.' Elvey.
'Light of the world.' Elgar.
'Ave Verum.' Mozart.
'Incline Thine ear.' Himmel.
'Whoso dwelleth.' Martin.
'Blessing, glory.' Bach.
'Thy word is a lantern.' Purcell.
'Lead me, Lord.' Wesley.
'Where Thou reignest.' Schubert.
'Hear my prayer.' Mendelssohn.
'I saw the Lord.' Stainer.
'Rejoice in the Lord.' Toop.
'As the hart pants.' Mendelssohn.
'I will love Thee, O Lord.' Clark.
'Bread of the world.' Walford Davies.
'The Wilderness.' Wesley.
'As pants the hart.' Spohr.
'Rejoice in the Lord alway.' Purcell.
'Teach me, O Lord.' Attwood.
'The heavens declare.' Webbe.
'In splendour bright.' } Haydn.
'The heavens are telling.' }
'Lead, kindly Light.' Stainer.
'Send out Thy light.' Gounod.

Holy Communion.

Barnby in E.	Tours in F.
Schubert in G.	Merbecke.
Hummel in D.	Hall in E flat.
Martin in C.

The annual musical Festival was held at the Congregational Church, Hucknall Torkard, on January 17, when Nos. 1, 4, 5, and 7 of Brahms's 'Requiem' were sung by an augmented choir. The orchestra played Tchaikovsky's 'Symphony Pathetique,' Gounod's 'Marche Solennelle,' Elgar's Imperial March, the Notturno from Mendelssohn's 'Midsummer Night's Dream,' and Walford Davies's 'Solemn Melody for organ and strings.' Mr. John Munks (organist and choirmaster) was the conductor, and Mr. C. E. Blyton Dobson (Nottingham) was the organist.

Federation of Master Organ-Builders of the United Kingdom.

The first annual general meeting of this Society was held at the Royal Station Hotel, York, on January 21, the president, Dr. A. G. Hill, in the chair. The balance-sheet for the year was adopted, and the officers for 1915 elected.

Mr Arthur Harrison (Messrs. Harrison & Harrison), chairman of the executive board, gave an interesting account of the work of the Federation during 1914, the year of its inception. He pointed out that the crisis through which the organ-building trade was now passing was by far the most serious in its history, and showed that the Federation—by the issue of circular letters to the Press and leading clergy, as well as by other means—had been able to lessen the blow dealt by the War. He welcomed the spirit of friendliness among themselves, and said that though they must always be competitors, there was a common ground where their interests met on which it was hoped to build up an organization that would prove to be of lasting benefit to their industry. There could be no more hopeful augury than the position attained by the Federation in the first year of its existence, despite the terrible handicap of the War.

The new organ at St. John's Parish Church, Blackpool, was dedicated and opened on February 3, when Mr. Herbert F. Ellingford gave a recital. The instrument is a fine specimen of the work of Messrs. Willis & Sons, and was heard to advantage in a programme that included Bonnet's 'Variations de Concert,' Mendelssohn's first Sonata, a Bach Trio, and the player's own Recessional March.

A choir Festival took place at Mansfield Road Wesleyan Church, Nottingham, on January 24, when a lengthy selection from 'Messiah' was performed, under the direction of Mr. Herbert Richards, with Mr. C. E. Blyton Dobson at the organ. The soloists were Miss Dorothy H. Wilson, Miss M. Roebuck, Miss Franklin Pearson, and Mr. Albert Barrass.

The Bradford and District Association of Organists and Choirmasters met on January 30, when the series of recommendations contained in the recently-published 'Report on church choirs' in the Diocese of Wakefield was discussed. The day's proceedings included an organ recital in the Eastbrook Hall by Mr. W. Wolstenholme.

Rossini's 'Stabat Mater' was sung at Faversham Parish Church on January 28 by the local Institute Philharmonic Society. Mr. W. J. Keech conducted, and also played Boellmann's 'Suite Gothique.' £20 was collected in aid of the Mount Hospital for Sick and Wounded Soldiers.

Handel's 'Judas Maccabæus' was performed at the Tabernacle Chapel, Llanelly, on February 2, with orchestral accompaniment. The soloists were Madame Jennie Ellis, Miss Louise Llewellyn, Mr. David Thomas, and Mr. George Llewellyn. Mr. C. Meudwy Davies conducted.

On Thursday, February 4, at a meeting of the churchwardens and congregation at Market Square Church, Merthyr Tydfil, Mr. W. Lewis was presented with a valuable gold watch and chain on his resignation, after forty-one years' service, of the position of organist and choirmaster.

A performance of 'Messiah' was given in St. James's Church, Morpeth, by the Morpeth Patriotic Chorus, on January 27. Mr. J. Wyatt conducted. The proceeds (about £18) were given to the Belgian Relief Fund.

Bach's 'Passion according to St. John' was given impressively at St. Anne's, Soho, on February 19.

ORGAN RECITALS.

Mr. W. Wolstenholme, at Bradford—Prelude, Fugue, and Variation, César Franck.

Mr. Allan Brown, Upper Tooting Wesleyan Church—Phantasy on the National Anthems of the Allies, Pearce; Royal Albert Hall—Grand Cortège, Lemare.

Mr. T. Halsall, Christ Church, Southport—Song of Triumph, John E. West.

Mr. Harvey Grace, St. Mary Magdalene's, Munster Square—Introduction and Fugue in F, Rheinberger.

Mr. Herbert Hodge, St. Magnus-the-Martyr—Sonata in F minor, Rheinberger; St. Nicholas Cole Abbey—Chorale Sonata in E minor, Merkel.

Mr. C. E. Blyton Dobson, Central Mission, Halifax Place, Nottingham—Concert Overture in G, Lyon.

Mr. F. J. Buckle, St. Paul's, Herne Hill—Lament, Harvey Grace.

Mr. C. E. Blyton Dobson, Central Mission, Halifax Place, Nottingham—Offertoire in D minor, Higgs.

Mr. J. A. Meale, Wesley Church, Salisbury—Concerto No. 12, Corelli; Wesleyan Central Hall, Westminster—Fantasia in F, Best.

Mr. Paul Rochard, Hinckley Parish Church—Vision, Rheinberger.

Mr. Matthew Kingston, East Cliff Congregational Church, Bournemouth—Symphony in D minor, Guilmant.

Mr. Albert Orton, Walton Parish Church, Liverpool—Choral in A, No. 3, César Franck; Intermezzo and Scherzoso, Rheinberger.

Mr. Herbert Ellingford, Royal Albert Hall—Dithyramb, Harwood.

Mr. T. D. Huxley, St. Mark's Church, Saltney—Fantasia and Fugue in G minor, Bach.

Mr. Edmund W. Goldsmith, St. Mary's, Wellingborough—Rhapsodie on Breton Folk-Songs, Saint-Saëns.

Mr. F. Heddon Bond, St. Mary's, Wellingborough—Sonata No. 2, in D major, Guilmant.

Mr. C. J. Wood, St. Mary's, Wellingborough—'Ein' feste Burg ist unser Gott,' Karg-Elert.

Mr. H. S. V. Shapley, St. Margaret's, Bethersden—Toccata, Driffell.

Mr. William H. Dawes, Æolian Hall—Pastorale, MacDowell.

Mr. H. L. Balfour, St. Matthew's, Ealing Common—Prelude and Fugue No. 1, in C minor, Mendelssohn.

Mr. F. C. Welling, St. Michael's, South Bromley, E.—Legend, Harvey Grace.

APPOINTMENTS.

Mr. F. J. Attfield, organist and choirmaster, St. Barnabas', Peterborough.

Mr. W. J. C. Hewison, organist and choirmaster, Christ Church, Rotherhithe.

Mr. George A. Russell, organist and choirmaster, Congregational Church, Sutton Coldfield.

Reviews.

Magnificat and Nunc dimittis, in F. By John Ireland. (Novello's Parish Choir Book, No. 916.)

Grant, O Lord. By Josiah Booth.

Lighten our Darkness. By Josiah Booth. (Novello's Short Anthems, Nos. 223 and 224.)

[Novello & Co., Ltd.]

Although Mr. Ireland's music makes no great demand upon organist or singers, it is full of interest, being melodious and well laid out for voices. The harmony generally is bold and diatonic, and the work as a result is strong, and free from the secular and 'part-song' flavour that so often disfigures settings of the Canticles.

Mr. Booth's anthems are brief settings of the collect for the fifth Sunday after Trinity (a prayer for Peace) and the familiar third collect at Evensong. Both avoid repetition of words, and, sung unaccompanied, would be a welcome change from the so-called 'vesper' with which evening services often conclude. The music is simple and devotional.

Minuet Nuptiale. By Edwin H. Lemare.
Romance with Variations. By J. Stuart Archer.
Tone-Poems. By Oliver King. (Original Compositions for the Organ (New Series), Nos. 36 37, and 38.)
Scherzo-Fugue. By Edwin H. Lemare. (Recital Series of Original Compositions for the Organ, No. 47.)

[Novello & Co., Ltd.]

Short, but very dainty and telling, Mr. Lemare's 'Minuet' should rank amongst his most popular works. Especially pleasing is the treatment of the theme on pages 4 and 5, where a delicate staccato counter-melody is added. The 'Minuet' is easy.

Mr. Stuart Archer's 'Romance' is a melody with a really romantic flavour about it, and his Variations are interesting movements evolved from it, not mere superficial decorations. There is plenty of contrast between the various treatments, and the work would make a successful item in a recital. It is only moderately difficult. The section in 5/4 time shows the composer's skill in the management of a rhythmical scheme off the beaten track.

The 'Tone-poems' of Mr. Oliver King are entitled respectively 'Horizon bleu (Aubade),' 'Ranz des vaches (Pastoral),' 'The crimson sunset,' and 'Evening Hymn.' Of the four, perhaps the first and second are the most successful, but all are distinguished alike by a melodiousness which, while simple, is never obvious. All are fairly easy.

The subject of Mr. Lemare's 'Scherzo-Fugue' is à la gigue, a springing text from which is evolved a most attractive discourse. The whole work shows that the fugue form, handled freely, can produce music with an appeal for other than scholastic ears. Mr. Lemare has written in genuine organ style, with results as grateful for the player as for the hearer. Decidedly a most successful recital work.

Romance in G. For violin and pianoforte. By Hamish MacCunn.

[Novello & Co., Ltd.]

Of the making of Romances there is no end; and what other appellation, one may ask, admits from a musical standpoint of so many possibilities of treatment? Mr. Hamish MacCunn's Romance in G for violin and pianoforte leans towards the lyrical side of the romantic, rather than to the epic. It flows along gracefully for the solo instrument, has an interesting episode on the G string in the relative minor, and presents no special difficulty from a technical point of view—but it requires really artistic interpretation to do it justice.

The rhythmic phrasing is well varied; ingenuity is shown in the avoidance, in the first subject, of the formal four-bar phrase ending with an orthodox cadence. The result is that the musical interest, enhanced by the skilful harmonic accompaniment, never flags. Violinists will do well to consider this Romance as an effective little programme-item, coming somewhat under the same class as those successful solos 'Chanson de Matin' and 'Chanson de Nuit' by Elgar, and 'Auf Wiedersehen' by Herbert Brewer.

Phantasy on the National Anthems of the Allies. For organ. By C. W. Pearce.

[G. Schirmer, Ltd.]

Dr. Pearce has made ingenious and effective use of the various airs. 'Rule, Britannia' is skilfully combined, first with the Russian Hymn, and later with 'God save the King.'

BOOKS RECEIVED.

Musicians of To-Day. By Romain Rolland. Translated by Mary Blaiklock, with Introduction by Claude Landi. Pp. 324 + xii. Price 2*s.* 6*d.* net. (London: Kegan Paul, Trench, Trübner & Co., Ltd.)

Germany in the 19th Century. Second Series. Contains, inter alia, 'The History of Music.' By F. Bonavia. Price 3*s.* 6*d.* net. (London: Longmans, Green & Co.)

Rain before Seven. A novel on musical topics. By Eric Leadbitter. Pp. 373. Price 6*s.* (London: George Allen & Unwin.)

The Musical Quarterly. A new American publication. Edited by O. G. Sonneck. Pp. 148. Price 75 cents. Contains 10 articles by various American and English writers. (We reserve a fuller notice.—ED., M. T.)

The Musical Directory, Annual, and Almanack for 1915. Sixty-third annual issue. Pp. 448. (Rudall, Carte & Co., Ltd.) This is the most useful year-book for musicians that is issued. It contains classified lists of performers all over the country. It is an indispensable handbook for all connected with musical doings.

Correspondence.

'THE ARTIST AND THE PEOPLE.'

SIR,—Only recently, I read for the first time a number of your magazine, dated October, 1914, and in it an article called 'The Artist and the People.'

It is difficult to find a short passage in it which conveys the whole spirit of the article, but I quote a sentence which seems to me to express it—it is, anyway, deplorable enough: 'In face of the supreme realities of life, art—even to artists and lovers of art—becomes strangely small and unreal.' If by the 'realities' the writer meant overwhelming personal sorrow, or a knock on the head, or starvation, his words might have a semblance of truth, for these immediate personal things fill for a time the personal horizon to the exclusion of everything else. But he does not mean by the 'realities' one of these overwhelming personal sensations, because he is calmly discussing art and its place, or rather lack of place, in war-time.

Art is an essential part in the life of the nation. It has more power than any other language in speaking to a mass of people of different views and different societies. Now when the life of the nation is stirred there is more need, not less, for art,—and the artist, stirred too in sympathy with the crowd, wishes to speak in his own language as he has never spoken before. Will he say, 'Listen to great music, see great pictures, hear great words'; or will he say, 'You men who are singing vulgar music-hall tunes, you have always sung them, and I have always regretted that they must be, but now when so many of you are "Tommies" and fighting I am going to keep from you all the wonderful things I might tell you, because—well, because what? Because you are only "Tommy," and your spiritual, intellectual, and emotional life doesn't matter?' (I wonder how much 'Tommy' himself would like that point of view), or because 'I am an artist and therefore a "solitary" soul.'* If he says this last he will be labouring under a delusion, and he will be an odd kind of artist into the bargain. All souls are solitary, he no more than another—moreover the artist can get into touch with the rest of mankind as no other being can. It is his wish to get into touch; the artist who is content to keep his work to himself is as odd as the orator who is content to speak always to an empty room.

Not for a moment do I mean that the strong young artist is to sit at home. He must go to the trenches or prepare to go. His art won't suffer. It is said of Michael Angelo that he 'worked with his sword in one hand and his chisel in the other'—it is actually true that he worked with them turn and turn about when he was doing some of his greatest work—and though in modern warfare the artist cannot work like that, yet his spirit can remain the same. There is nothing in the possession of a sword which need make him a deserter from the artist ranks. To mention a detail, the artist's note-book does not come back empty even from this War.

It is easy to talk glibly of 'fiddling while Rome is burning,' and when the phrase is hurled at us we are inclined to think we must be doing something heartless. Certainly it would be hateful to fiddle callously while the city burned, especially if one had caused the fire, but I cannot see that it applies to music in war-time. Let me give an opposite case: 'The ship's band played as the ship went down.' Do we look upon the bandsmen as heartless, or as brave men doing all that they could? Playing while the ship goes down does not apply either, but it serves to contradict the 'fiddling' idea.

* 'The true artist's pleasure is a solitary thing' (vide 'The Artist and the People').

The writer of your article says in effect that it requires a certain ease of life to feel that art is real. One might refer to Michael Angelo again, but he is not a solitary example. Look at the history of the greatest art periods—were they times of ease? I think not. I think we shall find that art has lived alongside of war and great upheavals.

As to the artist feeling at times that his work is not worth while: believe me, that is a feeling he shares with all mankind—it comes generally from overwork, or lack of appreciation. The importance of the 'critical appraisement of music' depends, I think, on how the critic regards his work—as a means of showing his own sharp wits and powers of satire, or as the important, responsible work of helping to sift the good from the bad. It is, I fear, more often the artist and the critic who live in 'different worlds' than the artist and the people.

As a nation we have no doubt been apathetic about art, and we have allowed a bad substitute for art to creep in and get a great hold on many. We are told very frequently just now that as a nation we have been apathetic about many things, and that the War has waked us wonderfully from that apathy. Well, the time of the awakening of a nation is no time for an artist to throw away his birthright.

Yours faithfully,

Northcroft, Uxbridge. S. Fountain.

MR. NEWMAN ON FORM AND COMPOSITION.

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

Sir,—The recent discussions on freak-music in the Musical Times seem rather futile, if I may venture to say so. In your November number Mr. Newman naively confesses that he has studied many books on harmony, but could never understand one of them. This one can easily believe, but why need he take so much of your February number to labour the point? It is nothing to make a song about. Grammatical rules, I take it, are convenient generalisations, nothing more. If Mr. Newman or Dr. Eaglefield Hull can dig out a few score or a few hundred exceptions to the millions of harmonic progressions which conform with what our ears tell us is right, should we therefore scoff at a sound generalisation? Is not bad grammar bad grammar when Shakespeare writes it?—or even when Mr. Newman writes it? But nothing this latter gentleman can say will alter the fact—known to all musicians—that consecutive fifths, sevenths, ninths, and fourths are possible so long as you don't hear them, but ugly when you do. Let it go at that.—Yours truly, Teacher.

MR. NEWMAN ON CONSECUTIVE FIFTHS.

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

Sir,—I feel constrained to say how much I appreciate Mr. Ernest Newman's comments upon the above-named 'vexed question.' Many teachers will, I am persuaded, echo this appreciation.

I remember that the Church Times musical critic, in reviewing one of my works, described two chords in a certain passage as 'hideous consecutive fifths.' I demurred to this. They were not 'hideous,' but harmonious: I wrote them intentionally, and I stick to them now. Of the two chords in question, the first was an inversion of the dominant ninth, and the second a common chord; the first was a short note, and the second a longer note, and neither of them were 'outside' parts.

I felt that I was right and the Church Times critic was wrong, but I did not quite know how to say so. Mr. Newman has now shown me how. I suppose it would be too much to expect that the Church Times critic will offer a word of retractation?

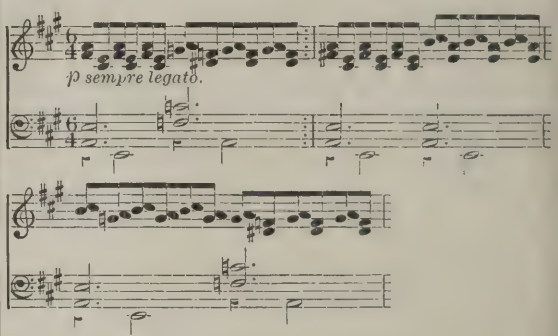
Anyway, as Birmingham is my native town, it seems to me quite appropriate that 'absolution' for these fifths should come from the musical critic of a leading Birmingham journal.—Yours, &c.,

Matthew Kingston.

Shortlands, Kent,
February 2, 1915.

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

Sir,—It would be an impossible task, even for Mr. Newman, to frame any rules for guidance in matters musical that should be absolutely 'fool proof,' and he has no difficulty in demonstrating, by 'madly thrusting his right foot into his left-hand shoe,' that the rule I quoted produces a misfit every time. May I give, as a single example, one of the illustrations he brings forward?:



In this extract from Borodin Mr. Newman says it is upon the fifths that the charm of the passage depends. I am afraid he will not find many people to agree with him. Play the fifths alone and they are far from attractive. On the other hand, the position of the chords may be rearranged so as to remove the fifths entirely, without robbing the passage of its character. In my opinion the effect is due chiefly to the smooth and graceful way in which the harmony slides from A major to the remote key of B flat and back again, and partly also to the delicate embroidery of the non-harmonic notes with which the passage is adorned. Such an example as this is expressly provided for in the rule which I quoted, the interesting progression as a whole making the fifths invariably tolerable, and in this case positively pleasing.

And so on with the other examples in spite of Mr. Newman's most entertaining demonstrations to the contrary, the rule fits each case excellently, if only it is tried on properly.

Mr. Newman's own rule, 'Consecutive fifths are right when the composer meant them and wrong when he did'nt,' is obviously not meant to be taken seriously, for in nine cases out of ten the composer is not thinking about consecutives at all. They turn up as a kind of harmonic by-product along with other things of much greater importance. It is in just such cases as this that the usefulness of the rule I quoted becomes evident.

Mr. Newman quotes Dr. Prout, and proceeds to attack teachers of harmony on the ground of his quotation. I have not attempted to defend Dr. Prout's methods. If Mr. Newman was brought up on a diet of chords of the thirteenth and their inversions, he has my sympathy. My object in returning to his illustrations has been to remind him again that there are teachers at work whose methods are in sharp contrast to those he so unsparingly condemns.—I am, &c.,

E. O. Turner.

Moseley, Birmingham,
February 13, 1915.

MUSIC AND NATIONALISM.

Mr. Ernest Newman writes: Mr. Toye asks me whether the article of Mr. Calvocoressi from which I quoted was written before or after 'Le Sacre du Printemps' and 'Le Rossignol.' The article appeared in the Musical Times of August, 1911, and therefore before these two works of Stravinsky had been given to the world. But if Mr. Toye wishes to suggest that Mr. Calvocoressi, like himself, no longer regards Stravinsky as 'Russian,' I may say that no countenance for the suggestion is to be had from Mr. Calvocoressi's article on 'Modern Russian Music' in the Music Student for November, 1913—in which 'Le Sacre du Printemps' is discussed, and in which Stravinsky is still called 'the greatest of the living Russians'; nor in the appreciative article on 'Le Rossignol' in the Musical Times for June, 1914, in which there is not a hint that Mr. Calvocoressi looks upon Stravinsky as a Russian who has somehow ceased to be 'Russian.'

Perhaps Mr. Toye will be kind enough to develop his thesis for us. Is it that the leopard after all can change his spots?

A TEACHERS' LIBRARY.

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

SIR,—At the head of the first article in the February issue of the Musical Times you permit yourself the following reflection: 'For our part we think that on the whole critics deal very sympathetically with British music, and they are as glad as are the public and the publishers when the man arrives.'

The latter clause of this sentence contains the germ of all the national musical sins committed against the British composer for generations. 'When the man arrives,' 'when the man arrives,' 'when the man arrives,' 'when the man arrives.' Put the accent on every word in turn, just as you please—it means the same; only each variation brings into relief that prevalent attitude of waiting for a finished thing.

While the leading educational authorities—such, for instance, as the Associated Board of the Royal Academy and Royal College of Music, continue to select foreign music for their examinations, it is obvious that British composers will have a vast channel for their activities cut off. The educational branches of music naturally absorb the higher types of musical composition, and the instruction in taste that a child receives from, say, the Associated Board in the selection of his music becomes a permanent thing in after life. Foreign publishers also take shrewd care to follow up every commercial advantage of their happy position—the position in trade given to them by the Associated Board, &c. Those advantages are considerable in many ways undreamt of by the Associated Board, but they are of such importance that publishers are debarred from giving opportunities to British composers, which they otherwise would do, if the market had anything like a British atmosphere about it.

The conclusion is this—if you gag the composers of Britain, you cannot expect them to sing to you, much less sing masterpieces to you.

When the War burst upon us, countless teachers begged and prayed their friends to tell them of any good British pianoforte music that they knew, and to-day teachers generally are eager to find every possible example of it. Before the War teachers were following tradition and foreign publishers were busy. But markets change, seeds take root, and lessons are learned in many unexpected ways. Among the difficulties of pianoforte teachers must be added that of 'finding' good music, and I am of opinion that a central room in London where they could see every creditable instance of pianoforte composition by British composers would be a boon. It would have to be managed in such a way that all publishers would be eager to send specimens of their publications.—Yours, &c.

ERNEST AUSTIN.

February 8, 1915.

OBITUARY DATES OF MEMBERS OF THE HILL FAMILY.

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

DEAR SIR,—I wonder if amongst the readers of your journal there is anyone who can give me the following information, viz., the exact dates of the deaths of the three undermentioned members of my family:

(1) Henry Hill, a musician, who, with Teobaldo Monzani, carried on a music publishing business under their joint names during the early part of the last century.

(2) Henry Hill, son of the above, also a musician, who continued to carry on the business founded by his father.

(3) Frederick Hill, a well-known flute player, and a brother of the last-named Henry Hill.

Henry Hill, jun., died in 1841 and Frederick in 1852, but I should like to know in what month.

I should be greatly obliged if you would insert the above query in your journal. Thanking you in anticipation.—Believe me, Yours faithfully,

ARTHUR F. HILL.

GOLDMARK'S 'THE QUEEN OF SHEBA.'

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

DEAR SIR,—In your obituary notice of Carl Goldmark, in the February issue of the Musical Times, you state, with reference to his opera 'Die Königin von Saba,' that 'being based upon a Biblical story, it has not yet been staged in England.'

May I remind you that an English version of this opera, under the title of 'The Queen of Sheba,' was produced in this country by the Carl Rosa Opera Company at the Theatre Royal, Manchester, on April 12, 1910, with the following cast: King Solomon, Charles Victor; Assad, Walter Wheatley; High Priest, Alexander Richard; Baal-Hannan, Hebden Foster; Salamith, Beatrice Miranda; Astaroth, Annie Van Dyck; the Queen of Sheba, Doris Woodall?

It was also given at the Kennington Theatre, London, by the same Company on August 29 of that year, the only alteration of the cast being the substitution of Mr. George M. Reid for Mr. Hebden Foster as 'Baal-Hannan.'—Yours very sincerely,

EDWIN G. CLARK.

Higher Broughton, Manchester.

[We thank our correspondent for drawing attention to our misstatement. Both performances were duly recorded in the Musical Times, 1910.—ED., M.T.]

Obituary.

We regret to record the following deaths:

C. BONNELL, at Oxford, on February 14. A very remarkable singer of the old Cathedral school, he was born at Lichfield in 1845, and was for seven years a chorister in that Cathedral, and for two years a deputy vicar-choral until his appointment to Christ Church, Oxford, by Dr. Corfe, in December, 1865. At the close of 1915 he would have celebrated the jubilee of his association with the Cathedral Choir. He served under three Deans (Dean Liddell, Dean Paget, and Dean Strong), and four organists (Dr. Corfe, Dr. Harford Lloyd, Dr. Basil Harwood, and the present organist, Mr. H. G. Ley) at Christ Church. A man of retiring disposition, with a strong sense of duty, he was deeply respected by all who came in contact with him, and his interpretations of the solos of Handel, Boyce, Greene, Purcell, and S. S. Wesley can never be forgotten by those who heard him. It is interesting to note that his connection with Cathedral music, as a chorister and deputy vicar-choral at Lichfield, and a lay-clerk at Christ Church, covers a period of fifty-nine years.

MISS FANNY CROSBY (Mrs. F. Van Alstyne), at Bridgeport, Conn. (U.S. America), on February 12, aged ninety-two. Born at New York on March 24, 1823, she lost her sight when only six weeks old and remained blind for life. In 1858 she married Alexander Van Alstyne, a famous blind musician. As early as 1831 she published her first poem, and in 1864 was issued her first hymn, 'We are going, we are going.' Between the years 1853 and 1858 she wrote twenty songs, which were set to music by Dr. George F. Root, the well-known composer of 'Tramp, tramp, tramp, the boys are marching.' Between 1853 and 1903 Miss Crosby wrote over 5,000 songs and hymns, of which 'Safe in the arms of Jesus,' 'Onward, upward, Christian soldier,' and 'When the dewy light was fading,' are well-known.

FREDERICK J. BURKE, a prominent figure in the musical life of Wexford for thirty-two years, on February 2, after a brief illness. He was a pupil of Dr. Grattan Flood, and conductor of several musical Societies. His last public appearance was as conductor of the Wexford choir at the Co. Wexford Festival of June, 1914.

ERNST SCHIEVER, in Hanover, aged seventy-one. A pupil of Joachim, with whom he was associated as second violin in the Joachim Quartet, and permanent leader of the Richter Orchestra, he resided in Liverpool for thirty years, where the concerts of the Schiever Quartet did much to encourage a taste for classical chamber music.

Emile Waldteufel, at Paris, recently. Although this popular composer of dance music was born at Strasburg (December 9, 1837), he was a Parisian practically all through his artistic life. He was a pupil of the Paris Conservatoire, and composed many hundreds of waltzes and other light pieces.

George Brady, bandmaster of the famous Cork Barrack Street Band, on February 6. He was an all-round musician, and his band obtained first prize at the Dublin Exhibition of 1882 and at the Cork Exhibition of 1883.

James William Elliott, organist and composer, on February 5, at 18, Alma Square, London. He was born at Warwick, on February 13, 1833, and was a chorister in Leamington Parish Church, 1846-48. He studied under G. A. Macfarren, and held the following organist appointments: Leamington Chapel, 1847-52; private organist to the Earl of Wilton, Heaton Hall, 1859-60; Parish Church, Banbury, 1860-62; St. Mary, Boltons, London, 1862-64; All Saints', St. John's Wood, 1864-74; and from 1874-1909 he was organist and choirmaster at St. Mark's, Hamilton Terrace, London. He composed two operettas: 'Romance and Reality,' produced at Charing Cross Theatre, with F. Maccabe in the principal part; and 'Dan'l's Delight,' German Reed, Easter, 1893. Other works are: 'National Nursery Rhymes' (Novello, 1870), a collection that has become a classic in juvenile musical literature (it has had a great vogue, and is still in popular demand); 'The Harmonium Treasury,' two vols. (arrangements); Six original pieces for harmonium; 'The Choral Service Book,' 1892; 'Hymn tunes, with varied harmonies' (Phillips & Page), 1895; Anthems, services, part-songs; song, 'Hybrias, the Cretan' (the words of which are a translation from the Greek by Thomas Campbell), generally considered one of the finest bass songs ever written. (Most of the foregoing details are taken from 'British Musical Biography,' by James D. Brown and Stephen S. Stratton.) His best-known hymn tunes are: 'Day of Rest,' 'Church Triumphant,' 'Cross and Crown,' 'Eucharistica.'

Bernhard Stavenhagen, pianist and conductor, at Geneva, in January, 1915. He was born November 24, 1862, at Greiz (Reuss). For some years he was a pupil of Liszt, to whom he was greatly attached. He came with Liszt to England in 1886, when he and the great pianist were the guests of the late Mr. Henry Littleton at Sydenham. Until 1885 he lived chiefly at Berlin, and then he settled at Weimar, where in 1890 he became Court pianist to the Grand Duke, and in 1895 Capellmeister. In 1901 he was elected director of the Munich Royal Academy of Music. This post he resigned in 1904, and returned to Weimar. In 1890 Stavenhagen married the singer, Agnes Denis.

Ernst von Lengyel von Bagota, whose death we recorded briefly in our February issue. He died recently (the exact date has, so far as we know, not transpired) of consumption in a Berlin hospital. He was born at Vienna on August 28, 1893. He showed singular precocity at the pianoforte, publicly playing at Budapest at the age of five. He first played in London on November 4, 1907, at a London Symphony Concert.

Chevalier Ernest de Munck, once a well-known violoncellist, born at Brussels in 1840. For some time he was Professor at the Guildhall School of Music, and the Royal Academy of Music. He married Carlotta Patti, the sister of Madame Patti.

Charles Karlyle, in his sixty-third year. Formerly an operatic singer, he settled in London as a teacher of singing, and was for many years known and respected as one of the ablest of our musical critics.

Franklin Haworth, in the seventieth year of his age. He was for forty-six years organist of St. Peter's R.C. Chapel, Seel Street, Liverpool.

Alfred d'Ambrosio, on December 29, 1914, at Nice. Born at Naples, June 13, 1871. Violinist and composer.

At the moment of going to press, we learn with much regret that Mr. P. Sarpy, the general-manager and secretary of the Copyright Protection Society (Mechanical Rights), Ltd., died on February 18, suddenly.

THE LATE MR. F. W. RENAUT.

The Royal Academy of Music has suffered a severe loss in the death of its able Secretary, Mr. Frederick William Renaut, who passed away on February 1. He was born in 1850, and, though largely a self-educated man, had attained to a high level of varied general knowledge, which, united to a manner of great urbanity, was always at the service of his countless friends. From October, 1891, until a few weeks ago he was for the Academy the man at the helm,—steady, sagacious, untiring, and devoted, the friend of all and the enemy of none. If professors or students ever needed personal advice they instinctively turned to him and never failed to obtain it. The same methodical business capacity which made smooth the passage from the warren in Tenterden Street to the stately building at York Gate, a passage bristling with rocks—was gladly placed at the disposal of the students when inexperience threatened to bring their Musical Union to grief. Such men as he are the stage-managers of real life. The public and the Press see their work, yet never realise it: even those they have most benefited do not always appreciate their value till the aching void reveals the magnitude of the loss. There was a memorial service in Marylebone Church on Friday morning, February 5, largely attended. A portrait was given in our issue of September, 1911, p. 575.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

Abundant evidence of the excellent educational work being done at this institution was forthcoming at the Students' Chamber Concert on February 18. The instrumental items included two movements from César Franck's Pianoforte quintet, Saint-Saëns's Introduction and Rondo Capriccioso for violin, a movement from Rachmaninov's Elegiac Trio, and the Scherzo from a Pianoforte quartet by A. C. Mackenzie. Songs by Roger Quilter and Debussy completed the programme.

The 206th Students' Concert of the London College of Music took place in the Concert Hall of the College on February 8. The programme included compositions by Chopin, Haydn, Schumann, Beethoven, Wagner, Ambroise Thomas, Benedict, Goring Thomas, Elgar, and Cowen.

Mr. Thomas Dunhill announces a series of three Chamber Concerts, to be held at the Steinway Hall on the evenings of March 2, 9, 16. The programmes should tempt good audiences. The second concert is to be devoted entirely to the works of the members of the Society of Women Musicians.

'BRITANNIA, THE PRIDE OF THE OCEAN': ORIGIN OF THE SONG AND TUNE.

By W. H. Grattan Flood.

Surely at the present juncture the activity of the British Navy in keeping the seas clear must accentuate the proud title for England of 'Britannia, the pride of the ocean'! It is a matter for genuine satisfaction that in the sad welter of war in which almost all Europe is involved, after six months of the fiercest fighting in the history of the world the ships of Britannia should continue to keep open the sea routes and thus enable the business of Great Britain and Ireland to go on as usual. This supremacy of the sea suggests an inquiry into the origin of the song and tune of 'Britannia, the pride of the ocean,' also known under the title of 'The red, white, and blue.'

As to the origin of 'Britannia, the pride of the ocean,' Mr. L. C. Elson, in his interesting book on 'The national music of America' (1900), devotes five pages to a discussion of this song under its Americanised title of 'Columbia, the gem of the ocean,' or 'The red, white, and blue'; but the net result of his investigation is that the tune is 'possibly an English one.'

Before proceeding to examine the American claim for the tune, it may be well to give the Irish account of its provenance. In the year 1842 a brilliant Irish journalist, Stephen Joseph Meany, wrote the words of the song 'Britannia, the pride of the ocean,' and he sent it to a friend in London who showed it to Thomas E. Williams, as a result of which Williams composed the tune now associated with the words. The composer (whose death took place in London in 1854) had previously been responsible for the still popular duet 'Larboard Watch,' and his name is associated with much ephemeral music of all sorts, including 'Lord Ullin's daughter,' 'Army and Navy,' 'Not a drum was heard,' 'Old England for ever shall weather the storm,' &c. Meany, the author of the words, subsequently became a Fenian, and was sentenced to fifteen years' imprisonment, dying in 1890.

In the autumn of the year 1842 the song had quite a vogue, especially among the 'Tars,' and it is not surprising that it was soon heard in America. It was heard at Dublin by an elderly relative of mine—then a boy of twelve—in the winter of the same year, and he told me that he vividly remembered the unction with which the last line of the song was given, 'Three cheers for the red, white, and blue.' The vogue of the song continued for thirty years; and, in fact, only disappeared in recent times.

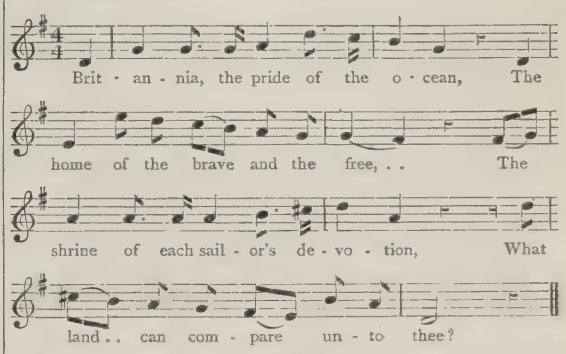
The American claim was only made in 1876, and an individual called Thomas à Becket, in a long letter to Rear-Admiral Preble, explicitly stated that it was he who wrote and composed 'Columbia, the gem of the ocean.' From an examination of his letter, quoted in Preble's 'History of the flag,' it is evident that à Becket merely adapted the English tune to slightly different words—substituting 'Columbia' for 'Britannia.' It would appear that a singer named Shaw, who doubtless had got a copy of 'Britannia, the pride of the ocean,' called on à Becket in October, 1843, at Philadelphia, and asked him to set a song for his benefit at the Chestnut Avenue Theatre. Shaw produced a copy of the song, and à Becket tinkered Meany's words to suit American requirements, adding a third verse. This plagiarism was duly published as '"Columbia, the gem of the ocean," written, composed, and sung by David T. Shaw, and arranged by T. à Becket, Esq.'

The Rev. Elias Nason, in his well-known book 'Our National Song,' published in 1869, honestly admits that the American song 'Columbia, the gem of the ocean' was 'set to the English tune of "The red, white, and blue."' Rear-Admiral Preble properly points out that 'The red, white, and blue' could not be applied with any truth to the American flag, inasmuch as the ranking order of the colours is blue, red, and white, whereas the British flag is properly red, white, and blue. And even Mr. Elson sadly acknowledges that the 'gem of the ocean' is 'a very odd metaphor to apply to a continent over three thousand miles broad, and bounded by land on two of its sides,' whereas it is evident that it is 'a very apt appellation to bestow upon an island kingdom such as Great Britain.'

From all this it is evident that the American song and tune of 'Columbia, the gem of the ocean' are merely a slightly varied version of 'Britannia, the pride of the ocean.' In this connection it is of interest to note that as far back as 1794 Robert Treat Paine had transformed the words of 'Rule, Britannia' to an American song called 'Rise, Columbia'—a version which is strangely described by Mr. Elson as 'the earliest of the patriotic plagiarisms,' forgetful of the fact that in 1768 the famous 'Liberty Song' was adapted to the English tune 'Heart of Oak,' the chorus of which is as follows:

'In freedom we're born, and in freedom we'll live;
Our purses are ready;
Steady, friends, steady!
Not as slaves, but as freemen, our money we'll give.'

We may, then, safely conclude that the origin of the song goes back to 1842, when it was written by Stephen J. Meany and set to music by Thomas E. Williams. A year or two later it was transformed—but so transparently as scarcely to deceive—into 'Columbia, the gem of the ocean.' This latter version was confined to America, but the original continued popular for almost half-a-century. Here are the first eight bars of the old song, and it will readily be seen that the composer was influenced in no small degree by 'La Marseillaise':



Brit - an - nia, the pride of the o - cean, The home of the brave and the free, . . The shrine of each sail - or's de - vo - tion, What land . . can com - pare un - to thee?

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF ORGANISTS: DIPLOMA DISTRIBUTION.

On January 23, Sir Alexander C. Mackenzie, President of the College, presented the diplomas to the recently elected Fellows and Associates. Sir Frederick Bridge, Dr. Alan Gray, Dr. Greenish, Dr. Horner, Dr. Eaglefield Hull, Dr. C. Harford Lloyd, Dr. Stanley Marchant, Dr. H. W. Richards, Dr. Shinn, Dr. Sinclair, Dr. Sweeting, Dr. H. A. Harding (hon. sec.), and Dr. Charles Maclean were among those present.

In the course of an interesting speech Sir Alexander remarked upon the evidence afforded by some of the papers that the candidates did not appear inwardly to hear what they wrote. Once the crutches, the figured basses, were withdrawn, what appalling revelations were sometimes made! The harmonies, even when not positively unmusical, became clumsy and unmeaning. An inner appreciation of modulation, even of the commonest sort, was very often absent. Counterpoint, fugue, and all else could therefore only be a purely mechanical process, with results, correct enough maybe, but certainly very dull. It needed no very sharp-eyed examiner to pick out, in an instant, by the unmusicality of the exercises, anyone who had been working under those conditions of mental deafness. He confessed to being quite unable to realise what it meant to lack the faculty of hearing music through the eye. He could as readily imagine a colour-blind painter, and he was sure that this faculty could be acquired to a great extent; and still more was he convinced that it was the one imperatively necessary qualification to musicianship—which, though assuredly not for want of preaching, was, if not entirely neglected, at least not yet sufficiently appreciated. Many times had he left an examination in a state of depression, and with the feeling that all the attempts to improve musical education were being made in vain unless this received universal attention. As to some recent 'frightful' examples of modern music, he would say that to whatever country one might trace its original source, whatever the causes of its appearance might be—it really did not matter—it must be admitted that an evil genius had been at work, slowly and gradually befouling the æsthetic and moral principles of art for many years past with unchecked success. Of late a point had been reached when 'e'en the boldest held his nose.' What the climax might have been they were now, he hoped, saved from considering. Keeping to the art which more nearly concerned them, they had seen in most lands ballets, plays, and operas with subjects of broadest suggestion—when not actual filth—on the boards; and heard hideous sounds in the orchestra, which no explanation or compromise could bring within the borders of art. Could all this corrupt stuff be sanely considered as a desirable product of any known sort of education or culture? Could it be accepted, in any sense, as progress, except in the downward direction? Yet this fester had been allowed to spread itself, more or less, over every branch of art, and its effects had been varied and far-reaching. A few laggards, slower-minded, or less receptive, authors and musicians, who were happily a long, long way behind in that particular sort of invention, had occasionally ventured to make mild protests. Perhaps it needed a universal catastrophe to bring this about, but if one dangerous and insidious influence was to be exterminated by the War, then let it be that one first. Whatever country they might hail from, they would be bold men who would venture to revive it, or try to lead further on that muddy road. We must all take care to prevent that. There was just now much unnecessary, and confusing rather than enlightening, speculation in the air about the future of British music, and the new era it might be entering upon. They could not pretend to be soothsayers or seers, but they were certain that its atmosphere would at least be a clean one, and liberated from the unwholesome ideas which in other quarters had prevailed for much too long a time.

For the Fellowship 100 candidates were examined, of whom 17 passed. The Lafontaine Prize was awarded to Mr. Dupère. For the Associateship there were 168 candidates, and 35 passed. The Lafontaine Prize was awarded to Mr. Tatam, and the F. J. Sawyer Prize to Mr. Harwood.

Dr. Harding spoke of the paper-work and the organ-playing, and Dr. Shinn remarked on the Counterpoint answers, with special reference to the use of the major sixth in the minor scale. He disagreed with a book that had been read by candidates in which students were told that the major sixth can be used just as they use the minor sixth. Dr. Richards also spoke on the organ work, and remarked that very few candidates obtained pass marks for accompanying at sight.

Sir Frederick Bridge paid a warm tribute to the work of the late Mr. Richard Davidge Limpus, a tablet to whose memory had been recently placed in the hall of the College.

A vote of thanks to Sir Alexander Mackenzie was proposed by Dr. Harford Lloyd and seconded by Dr. Sinclair.

INTERNATIONAL MUSICAL SOCIETY.

The following communications have been sent to us for publication in our columns. It will be seen that both the Directory situated in France and England, and the English Section of the International Musical Society, wholly decline to admit the validity of the Notification issued by the Leipsic publishers to the effect that the Society is at an end. The Section of the United States of America has expressed itself with equal emphasis in the same direction. These three countries together furnish not far from half of the total number of members. Two-thirds of the members lie outside Germany altogether; and we are informed that even in Germany, Prof. Hugo Riemann, representing the Section Saxony-Thuringia, has declined to admit the dissolution of his Section. In the case of members in this country, subscriptions are suspended as from October 1, 1914, and until a valid quid pro quo in the way of publications can be offered; but such members are invited to retain their membership, if only as a protest against the extraordinary procedure adopted at Leipsic.

(Translation.)

Leipsic, September 30, 1914.

From Messrs. Breitkopf & Härtel to the German Members of the International Musical Society.

The undersigned business-headquarters of the International Musical Society, which has conducted the labours of this Society as a nobile officium to the end of the now expired year, resigns with the present date the administration entrusted to it; it will, that is to say, conscientiously conclude the duties arising out of the Society's existence so far, but regards the Society as now actually dissolved.

From the end of this business-year the Society's organization is devoid of representation, either in Germany, its birthland and habitat, or in any other country. Inasmuch as for the Society-offices, whose incumbents under Statute 3 are elected for a maximum of two years, new elections have not taken place at the proper time, there exists neither a Governing Body, consisting of the heads of Sections, nor a Directory (Vorstand) representing the Governing Body. The only President elected according to rule, Geheimrath Dr. Hermann Kretzschmar of Berlin, has on patriotic grounds declined to avail himself of the election. The Treasurer, Geheimrath Dr. Oscar von Hase, has already in the Paris General Meeting expressed his distinct wish to be relieved of his office; for the office of treasurer no new election has taken place.

Again, the house of Breitkopf & Härtel, whose third quinquennium of contract expires to-day, has, in opposition to the wish expressed at the Paris Governing Body meeting that the house should continue under contract for at least one more year, declined to continue the publications (which by Statute 2 are one of the means of carrying out the Society's aims) in the guise of publications of the International Musical Society; though it has duly completed the publications, and will produce an index for the past year. The firm has already at the last Paris Congress intimated through its representative that it will make neither the Society as such nor its members individually responsible for the considerable working-losses incurred. It suffices to the firm to have worked to the best of its ability for fifteen years for abiding endeavours towards the organization of international management in musical science.

Now that in this domain also, contrary to the German people's patiently-proved desire for peace, the world-Kultur must give way to world-war, the representatives of our house join in the patriotic movement for withdrawal from an international fellowship which has become impossible. Gladly would we have seen the statutory outward forms for dissolving the Society carried out. As however the component parts of the Society have ceased to exist, and an international fellowship is in effect at an end, we hereby intimate to those members who for themselves or for their Sections or Local Branches declare expressly their retirement from the Society the full completion and confirmation of such retirement; and we intimate to the general body of members the dissolution of the International Musical Society.

We are convinced that important literary essays, which, owing to their general importance, have been taken into the columns of the International Musical Society, but have had their origin in the stimulus and energy of the National Sections, will still be courageously produced without a world-union. In the various German Kultur-places, where in spite of the world-war Art and Science still calmly flourish, may Music-Research joyfully persist, so that after the successful conduct of the present world-war the national motive-force of Germany, already up till now the protagonist, may bring to maturity a further golden season of musical knowledge.

Breitkopf und Härtel.

Geschäftsstelle der Internationalen Musikgesellschaft.

Resolution of the 'English Committee,' dated February 11, 1915 (No. 2).—(1.) The Committee have had brought to their notice a public Notification signed 'Breitkopf & Härtel, Geschäftsstelle der Internationalen Musikgesellschaft,' under date September 30, 1914, copy of which was received in this country on January 10, 1915. They have examined the various statements contained in it, and think it better in the interests of the Society at large to enter a reply to the statements.

(2.) Though addressed 'an die deutschen Mitglieder der Internationalen Musikgesellschaft,' the Notification purports to dispose of the destinies of the whole Society. On May 31, 1914, there were 328 German members in the Society, and 642 others; therefore the interests of these 642 (nearly two-thirds of the Society) are treated as nil.

(Continued on p. 165.)

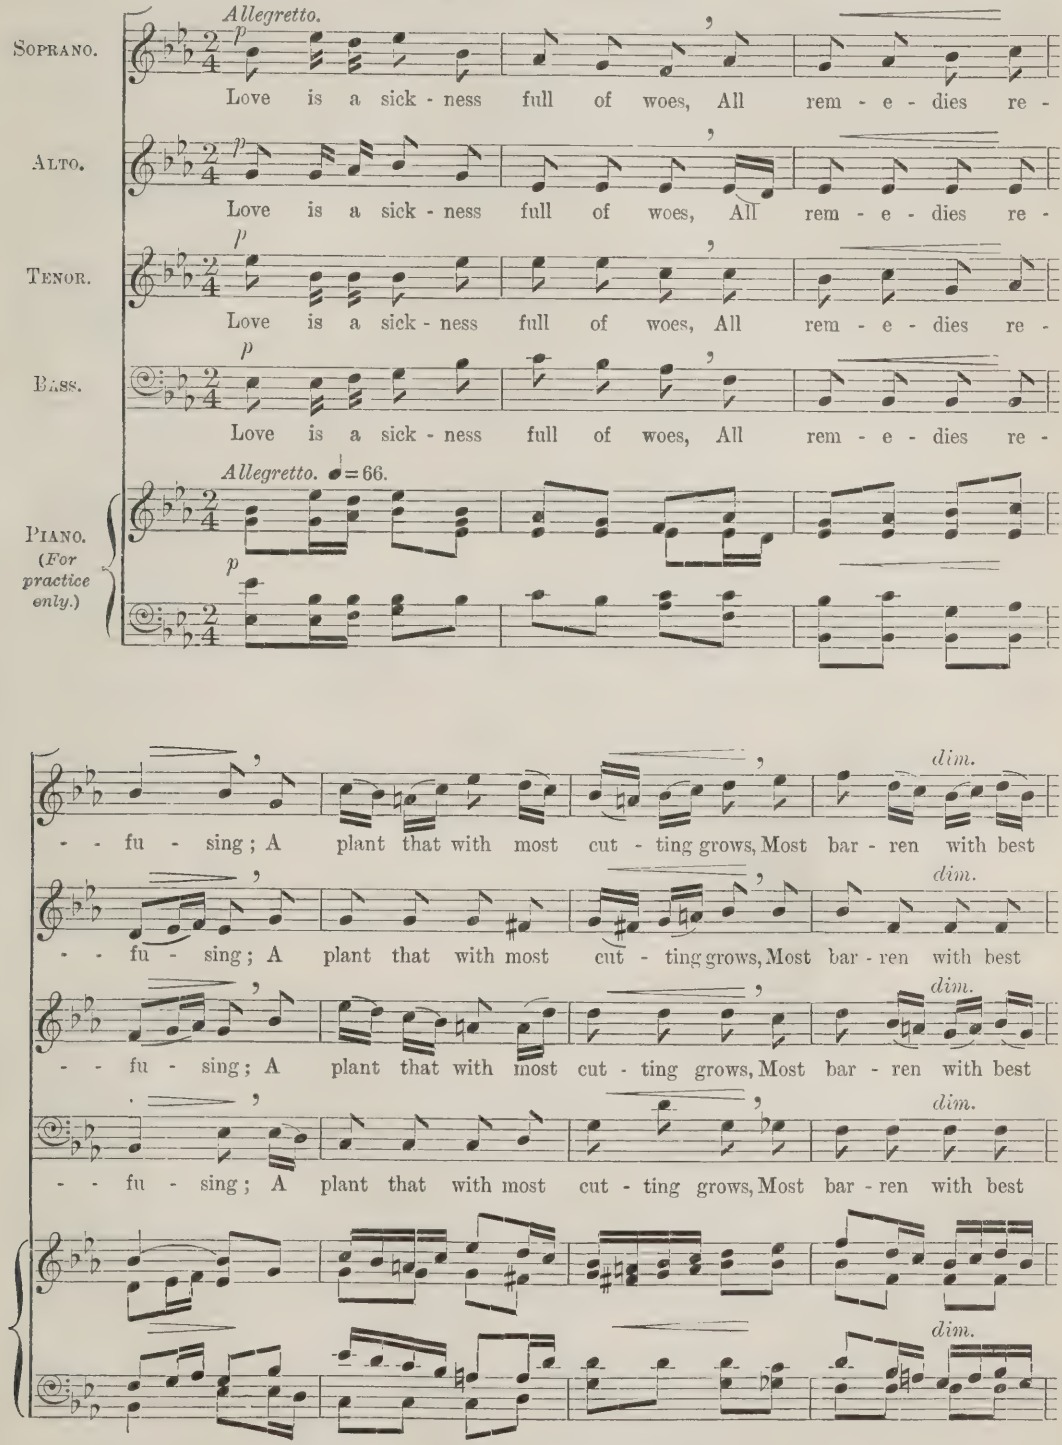
A character of Love.

PART-SONG FOR FOUR VOICES.

Words by Samuel Danyell (1562—1619). Composed by H. M. Higgs.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited; New York: THE H. W. GRAY CO., Sole Agents for the U.S.A.



Allegretto.
Soprano.
Love is a sick - ness full of woes, All rem - e - dies re -
Alto.
Love is a sick - ness full of woes, All rem - e - dies re -
Tenor.
Love is a sick - ness full of woes, All rem - e - dies re -
Bass.
Love is a sick - ness full of woes, All rem - e - dies re -
Allegretto. ♩= 66.
Piano. (For practice only.)
- - fu - sing; A plant that with most cut - ting grows, Most bar - ren with best dim.

Copyright, 1915, by Novello and Company, Limited.

Meno mosso. dim.
u - sing. Why so? . . . . If we en - joy it, soon it dies; If u - sing. Why so? If we en - joy it, soon it dies; If u - sing. Why so? . . . . If we en - joy it, soon it dies; If u - sing. Why so? If we en - joy it, soon it dies; If Meno mosso.
Tempo 1mo.
not en - joy'd, it sigh - ing cries, Hey ho, ... hey ho, ... hey
not en - joy'd, it sigh - ing cries, Hey ho, ... hey ho, . . .
not en - joy'd, it sigh - ing cries, Hey ho, ... hey ho, . . .
not en - joy'd, it sigh - ing cries, Hey ho, hey ho, hey
Tempo 1mo.
cres.
Allargando.
ho, ... hey ho! . . . . If not en - joy'd, it sigh - ing cries, Hey
. . . hey ho, ... hey ho! If not en - joy'd, it . . sigh - ing cries, Hey
. . . hey ho, ... hey ho! If not en - joy'd, it sigh - ing cries, Hey ho, hey ho! If not en - joy'd, it sigh - ing cries, Hey
cres.
Allargando.

f ho, hey ho!
f e marcato.
Love is a tor - ment of the mind, A
rit.
tem - pest ev - er - last - ing; A heav'n has made it . . of . . a . . kind, Not tem - pest ev - er - last - ing; A heav'n has made it of . . a . . kind, Not tem - pest ev - er - last - ing; A heav'n has made it . . of a kind, Not tem - pest ev - er - last - ing; A heav'n has made it of a kind, Not mf well— nor full, nor fast - ing. Why so? . . . If well— nor full, nor fast - ing. Why so? If well— nor full, nor fast - ing. Why so? . . . If well— nor full, nor fast - ing. Why so? If . .

Meno mosso.
dim.
we en - joy it, . . soon it . . dies, If not en - joy'd, it sigh - ing cries, Hey
we en - joy it, soon it dies, If not en - joy'd, it sigh - ing cries,
we en - joy it, soon it . . dies, If . . not en - joy'd, it sigh - ing cries,
we en - joy it, soon it dies, If not en - joy'd, it sigh - ing cries, Hey
Meno mosso.
dim.
Tempo 1mo.
ho, ... hey ho, ... hey ho, ... hey ho! . . . . If . .
Hey ho, ... hey ho, ... hey ho, ... hey ho! If Hey ho, ... hey ho, ... hey ho, ... hey ho! If ho, hey ho, hey ho, hey ho! If Tempo 1mo.
cres.
Allargando.
f
rit.
not en - joy'd, it sigh - ing cries, Hey ho, hey ho!
cres.
f
rit.
not en - joy'd, it . . sigh - ing cries, Hey ho, hey ho! . . .
cres.
f
rit.
not en - joy'd, it sigh - ing cries, Hey ho, . . hey . . ho! . . .
cres.
f
rit.
not en - joy'd, it sigh - ing cries, Hey ho, hey ho!
f
cres.
Allargando.
rit.

Also published in Novello's Tonic Sol-fa Series, No. 2224, price 1½d.

(Continued from p. 160.)

(3.) The Committee feel that they would not be doing their duty if they did not entirely challenge the status of the issuers of this document. The firm in question, however eminent, have no real status in the Society beyond being the contractors for issuing the publications, and even that contract is not recognized in the Statutes. The 'Geschäftsstelle' is merely their office for carrying out the said contract, and the 'Verwaltung' quoted does not extend beyond the operations of the said contract.

(4.) It is evident on the face of it, that a firm so situated have no power to notify to the general body (Allgemeinheit) of members the extinction (Erlöschung) or dissolution (Zusammenbruch) of the Society. Nor again to decide whether this or that part of the Society's organization has disappeared. Nevertheless, as the Notification brings forward technical arguments on these various heads, it seems better, as above said, to meet them with answers equally detailed.

(a) The Directory (Präsidiums-Vorstand).—The Notification states that Geheimrath Dr. Hermann Kretzschmar was the sole person elected President according to rule, and that he had on patriotic grounds declined the appointment, and proceeds to deduce from that fact and from the application of the two-year limit of Statute 3 to the other cases, that no Vorstand any longer exists, and that the Society is destitute of central officers. The report of the delegate from this country to the Paris Congress puts the matter in question on a very different footing. So far from the appointment above-mentioned being the only one made according to rule, the transaction was in fact abnormal. In 1908, 1910 and 1912 the elections for the three offices of the Vorstand were conducted in conformity with the principle and date-indication of Bye-law 1 towards the end of September, and by obtaining the written vote of each President of a National Section, who in this case cannot vote by proxy (see Bye-law 7). Contrary to these precedents, the Treasurer of the Society, at a Governing Body meeting on June 3, 1914, four months before the due date, without the knowledge of his two colleagues on the Vorstand, without any previous notice to the members of the Governing Body many of whom were present there by proxy only, and without the transaction being on any Agenda, introduced the question of this appointment for immediate decision. Whether it was regularly or irregularly conducted, however, the appointment or nomination was not to take effect until October 1, 1914, and according to the evidence before this Committee, Prof. Kretzschmar seceded from the Society five or six weeks before that date; consequently it is evident that the whole transaction lapsed. The existing President and his two colleagues found themselves then in the position of awaiting the usual September elections. But the War, which involved so many countries, made these impossible. And as leges silent inter arma, the Vorstand officers remained in occupation of their respective offices. By the present notification Geheimrath Dr. Oscar von Hase has seceded from the Society. There remain Dr. Ecorcheville, of Paris, and Dr. Maclean, of London; the 'English Committee' recognize these as the President and Secretary of the Society until such time as an election is possible, and look to them to do their duty in maintaining the constitution of the Society meanwhile.

(b) The Governing Body (Präsidium) and the National Sections.—The Notification states that the Society has ceased to have any representation by Sections, whether within Germany or outside of it; using again the argument of the two-year limit. According to information received by this Committee, that is not completely true even within Germany itself. Outside Germany it is palpably untrue. Here are four examples. The Section of Belgium put itself in order by specific election of officers in November, 1912, and apart from the War had at the date of the Leipsic Notification still a month to run according to the two-year clause. The United States Section acted similarly on January 1, 1913, and so had three months to run; and has probably complied with the rule in detail on January 1, 1915; the Section of Northern France (Paris) on January 29, 1914, with fifteen months to run, and the Section of Great Britain and Ireland on March 19, 1914, with eighteen months to run. It is true that, while complying with the two-year clause, many Sections have failed to comply with the precise date (September 30) specified by Bye-law 1. But Bye-laws have not the force of law, and, owing to the variation of local circumstances and the self-governing powers specially given by Statute 3, the September 30 date of Bye-law 1 has in the case of Sections been as often neglected as followed. The Sections are the backbone of the International organization, and it is not likely that any Sectional Vorstand will allow itself to be dispossessed on the ground of a trifle such as that, especially in the present crisis. This Committee will certainly not do so.

(c) The Publications.—The Notification states that, as the contract with Messrs. Breitkopf & Härtel is over, the publications of the Society have ceased. This Committee have no desire to say anything discourteous, but must point out that there are other means of publication, which could if necessary be employed.

(d) The whole Society.—The Notification states that the firm would gladly have carried out all the forms necessary for the dissolution of the Society, but as all its component parts have ceased to exist they cannot do so, and can only hereby declare the Society to be at an end. As above said, the firm have no power to make any such pronouncement; the component parts do continue to exist, and an apology like the one given cannot set aside the imperative conditions of Statute 11, a Statute evidently designed to meet large and crucial occasions like the present.

(5.) The English Committee have regarded it as their bounden duty to employ the information at their disposal in defence of the Society and its constituent parts, and therefore to record these remarks; they desire however simultaneously to express their high appreciation of the signal and beneficial activities in the interests of the Society which have been shown in the past by Messrs. Breitkopf & Härtel.

ROYAL PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.

QUEEN'S HALL.

This national institution pursues its course with fine optimism, and is rewarded with much greater success than was anticipated. On January 26 Mr. Beecham conducted. Probably to many of the audience the most absorbing piece was Delius's Tone-poem 'Paris.' Although it is difficult to realise where the Paris we know comes in, there can be no question as to the abstract beauty of the music. Borodin's Symphony in B minor, Ethel Smyth's Overture to 'The Wreckers,' and Liszt's second Pianoforte concerto in A, played by M. Sapellnikov with great brilliancy, were the other items.

On February 11 Mr. William Wallace's somewhat austere Symphonic poem 'Wallace' (a tribute to his famous namesake) opened the concert. Debussy's Nocturne, (Nuages, Fêtes, Sirènes) were features. The female-voice parts of the third one were sung by a small choir not very perfectly. Madame Edvina sang Charpentier's 'Depuis le jour,' from 'Louise.' Miss Isolde Menges (who by the way is not a German) played very impressively Bach's second Violin concerto in E minor. But to many who stayed the concert out the electrifying interpretation of the 'Symphonie Fantastique' (Berlioz) will be a permanent memory. Mr. Beecham, who conducted, surpassed himself in this number.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

On February 12 a concert of chamber music was given by the students. The programme included the Brahms Quartet in G minor, Op. 25, and Dvorák's Quartet in E flat, Op. 51.

At the concert given on February 16 the students boldly attacked Verdi's 'Requiem.' The choir was not well balanced, nevertheless the work was fairly well presented. Mr. A. L. Benjamin was the soloist in a performance of Franck's Symphonic Variations. Sir Charles Stanford conducted.

THE ROYAL INSTITUTION.

Lecture to Untrained Listeners.

Dr. H. Walford Davies dealt daringly with this subject on February 6, before a good audience. His appeal was a psychological one, and not dependent upon conventional technical analysis. If all his hearers did not follow his rapid unfolding, they obviously enjoyed the apt illustrations he played on the pianoforte. We are glad to give our readers nearly a verbatim report.

I.—Preliminaries.

There are many delightfully receptive listeners to music who say: 'I love it, but I do not understand it.' One may venture to doubt their own verdict. Can a thing that is quite uncomprehended be a thing loved? Probably behind the untrained listeners' love of music there must always be at least a partial comprehension of it, though unknown or unclear to themselves. Bergson, that master of homely simile, has somewhere compared the failure of the mind quite to grasp a subject with the failure of a piece of string quite to contain a parcel; and he suggests that often it is but a small addition, a little reach forward of the mind in the one case, or a fragment more string in the other, which is needed to bring the whole capacity into efficient use. Many lovers of music may find that only a slight receptive effort is needed, to give them complete grasp of the joys of listening; others, who now frankly run away from music taken by itself, would possibly love it if they understood enough to make it worth the pains of sitting out a concert or of taking off their coat to a pianola. To such listeners this lecture is addressed.

It may be helpful to approach the subject at a tangent. There must be many people ready to admit that they do not comprehend or adequately appreciate artistic wall-papers. It is possible to grow quite old, and still to like nursery wall-papers best, because of the pictures on them. Is this a sign of weakness? One can imagine the expert designer's reply that it is certainly a little childish to crave for Noah's Arks or Nursery Rhymes or Bad Books of Beasts on one's walls when designs of exquisite curves, subtle colouring, and delicate linear rhythm are available. But the blunt retort of the ignoramus is, that the one means something to him, however trifling, the other means practically nothing.

Now the ordinary listener to music who likes a song with a picture or a story suggested in the words, but who sees nothing enjoyable in the mere curve of a melody, is surely like the man or child who can enjoy the nursery wall-paper, but can see nothing in the most graceful pattern or the most convincing designs. Clearly their case is the same.

An attempt may here be made to supply a musical counterpart to the two kinds of wall paper (a):

to be repeated as the pattern of a paper is repeated. To this one may add a dado (b), and possibly a frieze (c):

Played with softness and uniform sameness the whole might form a harmless background to all sounds of conversation and the like in any 'E flat major' room. For a nursery wall-paper, the same figure might be used to indicate, let us say, a galloping St. George (d):

In the dado might reside an old dragon depicted in dissonant low sounds (e):

at whom St. George thrusts a spear (f):

From these trifling examples it is possible to get a clear glimpse of two matters of high importance to a listener:

(1.) Music moves. It is movement, and only movement, and that in a unique sense. It moves in time. The mind, and even the eye, may rest at leisure upon whatever object it chooses; but the ear must hear what there is to hear, moment by moment, and connect by memory the sounds of the present with the sound of the past moment, and by anticipation connect both with sounds that may come. This gives urgency to the listener's task. It also makes it impossible to make a real wall-paper in music, for it gives the interest of life itself to any musical inspiration. Anything or nothing may happen, and that in itself is always interesting. Music is nothing more nor less than a record in sound of varied and ordered energies.

(2.) Music, though differing in its nature, is one with wall-papers and with all other arts in its aim. It and they exist for joy or pastime. It is possible to see at once that the wall-papers and the music are gratuitous—not necessitous. They are there for choice, consequently for joy of some sort, at least for someone's joy, for no one chooses that which is grievous. Now, all that we do or contemplate for love is necessarily a record of human taste. Art is foremost among the gratuities of life. To take a homely example: we have to use a curtain-pole; that is a necessity. We choose to round it off with an ornate scroll; that is a gratuity. Art must record taste,—good or bad taste. We may see how this works further: the curve of a lovely tree-branch appeals to a man's taste. By nature he is pleased. He dwells upon the pleasure, and then again for pleasure he begins to reproduce it, let us say, in some decorative tapestry. This constructive pleasure of his is called Art. It is here that a most important distinction must be made. Superficially, it would seem that in nature there is natural joy, and in art there is an attempt to imitate or reproduce that which was joyous. It is true that the joys of art are usually two-fold. But it should not be inferred that imitation is an essential part of the artistic bargain. It is constantly incidental to it, and there is of course a persistent tendency to repeat a joy. 'That was good, let's have it again,' says a human instinct which will not be satisfied till it has found something better to take the place of the first joy. The most serviceable form of imitation or reproduction in art is one which has an added joy all its own, and may be called translation or transference of the joys experienced in one way into another medium or surrounding, when the enjoyment seems reinforced from both points of view. If the trifling wall-paper illustrations just given be recollected, it will be found that whatever slight pleasure they gave is traceable to two distinct interests: one a purely musical one—in which energy and grace, or energy and climax expressed in tone, interest the hearer momentarily; the other due entirely to the fact that another kind of pleasure is recalled and revived and translated, and thus at the very moment that a new pleasure comes in sight the known pleasure is actively recollected. A new version of it is adding its quota of piquancy and interest. This is the unique double-enjoyment of music-drama in the rare moments when the different impressions are not quarrelling with each other for possession of our attention. It is most clear that however constantly the imitations or translations of one experienced pleasure into terms of another may appear and may please us, there is a primary fundamental joy and cause of joy behind all our artistic doings which is more important to us, and the pleasure we find in receiving our joys in double harness is an added pleasure,—almost always, as we may see later, a helpful and politic one, but truly not an integral part of the bargain. We shall do well to keep our receptive faculties open to these two distinct joys that certainly await us in music—the fundamental, which is behind it all, and the incidental, which is frequently present by reason of its entrancing power of suggesting in terms of sound our varied other delights in actual life. It may be said that music gives illumination in two ways. It is at once a window that admits light and a mirror that reflects it.

II.—THE ENERGY OF ART.

Keeping these two factors distinct, more light may be shed on the ideal listener's rôle if the subject be examined yet a little deeper. We are often vaguely aware of surpassing relations and analogies, profounder than we can probe, in things apparently unlike. We find like happiness (like both in degree and kind) in such different things as a sunset, a slow movement, a smile, and the sound of the human voice.

I have heard a friend say: 'These violas remind me of so-and-so's company'; and the simile made good sense to those who saw the flowers and knew the lady referred to. Now where our understanding in one region is clouded or incomplete, it is wise to cultivate these analogies in a known region, even though we have rather to grope for them at first.

[Several examples of musical analogies were here given.]

When once the imagination responds to the call of music there is no end to the added pleasures—which may be called the pleasures of artistic transference or translation. But the very width and variety of the analogies suggest the thought that perhaps behind the things we love there is some happy innate element held in common by them all, which could explain not only our joy in the music but in the thing recalled by the music. Now it would instantaneously throw a flood of light upon all our pleasures if it could be proved that they are really traceable to one great principle, to some momentous interest that lies behind the music, the scene, the friend we admire. It is suggested that we should at least take it as a working hypothesis that this is so, and that the bare name for the great factor common to all that we do or contemplate for choice is vital energy; and that a fuller name is enthusiasm, which may be described as energy with love behind it, or in other words creative energy. This is distinct from mechanical energy, which concerns artisans rather than artists, in which there is no freedom and therefore neither art nor interest. Let it be noted that the listener or spectator, though fulfilling a less arduous part, is none the less involved by sympathy in the creative energy which he only contemplates. A ready confirmation of the hypothesis is to be found in what is called the springing curve in the designer's art. A semicircle is not only uninteresting, but is wrong, being referable to a mechanical circle that ends in itself, whereas a free or springing curve is right.

Similarly in music, such a melodic curve as the following [A five-finger exercise] is deadening to a degree, whereas all the loveliest and most notable melodies show a springing curve.

[Examples from Mendelssohn, Brahms, and Chopin, were played.]

For a further example in nature, do we not experience great delight in the little free-will kick or jump of lambs in the fields? This is almost unique among the manifestations of vital energy plus freedom which delight us in the spring. It is unaccountable, humorous, irresistible.

[Further examples were given.]

Examples other than musical must not be multiplied here, but our human interest, our positive increase of joy in presence of every demonstration of a vital energy that is free and loves to be free, seems to be so boundless and so constant as to give support to the hypothesis that it is at the back of all joys, certainly of all that provoke artistic activity.

If this be so, music is in an enviable position, being nothing but energy, the very type in sound of our vital experiences and relationships, since it is an incorruptible record of vitality from first to last freely chosen. In its two-fold significance, in both its innate and associated meanings, it deals in infinite variety with the free-will energies that form man's perennial source of interest.

III.—MUSICAL MEANINGS.

It is very interesting to notice how inextricably bound with each other the associated and innate meanings of a piece of music may become. In a slow march, for example, the innate significance is simply one of restrained concerted movement. By association the movement becomes the tread of feet, and nearly always that of a funeral or other solemn procession.

Associated meanings have limitations, are inconstant, and some day end. Innate meanings are limitless, constant, and unending. Associated meanings are necessarily dependent upon personal surroundings and personal history. They must vary with each company of listeners. Everyone knows how associated memories may hamper or glorify any well-known tune, and the thing recalled often immeasurably outweighs the tune that recalled it. Associated meanings are narrow, and it would be unfruitful to devote study here to that which is determined by every listener variously and for him- or herself. But innate meanings are great, and are important to us all. It is helpful to every one alike to devote attention to them. Any addition to our receptive power as to these will greatly increase our scope not only musically but vitally and for good. Now that which we call classical is that which has expressed something common to all in a convincing way. Music's innate meanings cannot better be discerned than in the simple classics, such as some Mozart movements, which are simple, complete, unencumbered by any association either of words or programme.

A word must here be said as to the triple compact between composer, performer, and listener. Undoubtedly these three persons are ideally one. It is well recognized that Shakespeare and his reader are as one and the same person. Everyone sympathises with the boy who said 'I could have easily written Shakespeare if I had known how.' And the best composer in like manner seems to say to us not 'listen to me' but 'listen with me to this lovely strain.' The very large ego of the long-maned lion at the pianoforte is as foreign to the spirit of music as the false audience he encourages. Similarly the listener must cultivate a state of selflessness and impersonal alertness. The composer's task of getting one particular sum of human energies right is the listener's task too; and the tense silence or the burst of applause which sometimes follows the performance of a classic confirms this, and says in effect: 'It has come right, the answer to the sum is found.' Audiences can probably have little notion what a measureless contribution they make to the success of music, and to the encouragement in the musicians of all that is most capable of giving them joy, by their will to listen with alert and intelligent expectancy—to listen as it were dynamically, as themselves partners in the transaction, which of course they are.

IV.—RECEPTION AND RESPONSE.

Now for purposes of our analysis the act of listening may be divided into: (1) Reception, (2) Response.

The first impact of reception is obviously physical. The sound should be physically welcome,—pleasurable, but not too pleasurable. If the actual experience of sound is painful, there is distraction, or a barrier is erected. If on the other hand the actual sound is engrossingly pleasing, there is equally a barrier, and the means will supplant the end. A listener possesses the faculty of adapting his ear to hear so much as is congenial in the sounds around him, and this faculty works both ways. If the sound is weak in its appeal, the listener will do well to give it the fullest possible significance. He will go out to meet it and make much of it. If the onslaught of sound is aggressive and clamorous he will cultivate the power of refusing all that he does not want, and steel himself against it. Disparity between the receptive power and the thing offered is obviously the frequent cause of failure in music, and the sympathetic adaptability of the ear does much to remove it. The real business of the ear, the moment it has received and as it were filtered the sound, is to pass it on to the inward being that responds. Music ought to move the heart, said Bach; also it should obviously receive a certain mental sanction, if we are to be thoroughly appreciative and enter fully into it. We must be involved ear, heart, and mind before we can be said to respond. And then we respond with the Imagination.

To that which interests us and to that alone our being responds. Interest will only be awakened when we can see some significance in the object of interest. Seeing none, our interest and therefore our response is purely a theoretic affair. Hence we must at all times and at all costs attach significance to the sounds we hear. If innate significance should fail, or not be clear, let associated significance be sought and given to every note, and the reward will be unfailing.

[Here the lecturer began illustrations, first of notes, then of phrases largely taken from Mozart, which cannot be reproduced.]

Strike any note on the pianoforte; by comparison, let us say, with a knock on wood, it is pleasing to our ear. We pass it on gratefully 'to the being that responds,' which would probably reply under present circumstances, that while it appreciated euphony as typical of a state of peace, there was not very much in the gift and it would await further events. But if there are no further events, there is still imaginative value, even in a single note. Let there be silence; then let this single orderly sound emerge and die into silence, and in every hearer the maximum appreciation is possible. There is no better starting point for music than silence, and no better earnest of the skill to find its deepest meaning than an adequate valuation of a single note. Now, five things may happen after this note has sounded: (a) It may be repeated; (b) move upwards by leap; (c) move downwards by leap; (d) move upwards by step; (e) move downwards by step. If it is repeated we shall have the elements of a rhythm; if the rhythm be rapid there will be more vigour in its effect than if it be slow. Vigour may also be increased or lessened according to the loudness or softness with which it is sounded. So vitality may be depicted in two different ways simultaneously, and may be varied in such a way as to balance the addition of rapidity by a subtraction of tone. And all this may go on with the added significance of rise and fall in the four other possibilities of procedure named above.

In the Sonata by Mozart (in B flat), here used to illustrate, we strike the first note. It is not repeated, but falls by leap. Now without going into technicalities, let it be noticed that a fall has an effect upon the listener quite different from a rise. The one may be identified with graceful yielding, or resignation, the other with aspiration, or ardour. This is no arbitrary meaning attached to it by musicians or by long usage, but obviously an innate meaning that can be traced in every natural sound.

A movement by step has the effect of a journey from point to point. A movement by leap leaves us as a rule in possession of the first point, and simply correlates two or more points in one scheme. It may sometimes happen that a step can convey the effect of a leap. This gives its character to the arpeggio of the dominant seventh or added sixth, and in modern times has caused the confusion between a scale and chord in the whole-tone series. Moving from note to note in one chord (arpeggio) is like the recognition and enjoyment of inward relationships among diverse things. They are 'brethren dwelling together in unity.' Moving from note to note, step by step, is like the recognition and enjoyment of diversity of character in things that seem to lie near each other. Brahms had a leaning to arpeggio melodies of the first kind; Beethoven to the second. Good listeners love both. Music's infinite variety is not derived merely from the rhythmic or dynamic possibilities which I have barely indicated, nor only from melodic varieties which are truly endless. There is the harmonic element still to be noted, and it is perhaps the most endless of all. It is unnecessary, in the case of enjoying Mozart, to ask the listener to do more than note one harmonic progression, the familiar dominant and tonic known as a perfect cadence. Here two chords are correlated which have the note F in common to link them both aurally and mentally, and the rest of their notes are different. They have thus the maximum of diversity consistent with a strong thread of unity. The history of this progression is intensely interesting. It is truly a classic progression, for it has received the sanction of every kind of listener from the most inspired and learned to the unlettered banjo-player or blower of mouth-organs.

We may see then that the listener's equipment should be such as will enable him to detect the difference between a note and a noise; between a melody that rises and one that falls; between a slow rhythm and a rapid one; between an arpeggio and a scale: and, lastly, that he must perceive that there is sound sense and a satisfying completeness in the harmonic progression known as a perfect cadence. He can then be receptive, and ready for great experiences.

Further, as to the response itself. This is only complete when it involves active participation. After an initial effort or two this is easy, and can become habitual. To appreciate the melodic progress—and into this Mozart pours his happiness, his appeal to us, his inspiration—it is only necessary to identify ourselves as completely as we can with its movement. If it fall in graceful curves, the listener must experience the curves and their grace as if these were part of his very life and for the moment controlled his destiny.

Speaking generally, it would seem that creative energy shows three unfailing characteristics: Strength, Grace, and Humour, and every variety of shade of these in combination. They are familiar characteristics to us all, and when this complete trinity of qualities is present in any one work it gives the listener great confidence. More often one is preponderant and gives the tone. It cannot be very difficult to any listener judging instantly from the amount of sound, from its swiftness or slowness, and from the nature of the melodic rise and fall—i.e., whether it is in accord or conjunct, whether by step or gently undulating, and so forth—it cannot be very hard to determine general tone. At the first glance of the ear it is possible to tell that Mozart's music has for its prevailing characteristics a delicate grace and an abundant vitality. Flowers of many colours have delicate grace. In the early summer they have abounding vitality. If in need of a simile we may imagine the month of May in Mozart. Again, his subject suggests nothing so much as a lovable group of children, and his graceful little quips of vitality and unexpected sallies of semiquavers are pleasing for precisely the same reason as the dainty movement, the joyous step, the play of features in a child—never still, always interesting to watch. When the prevailing tone is clear to us, and especially if we have found a happy analogy in some past experience, we shall be well disposed to appreciate infinite variety in detail. In a finely balanced sonata there can be no bewilderment in variety, for the tone remains as constant and unified as the man's mind who conceived it; and there can be no monotony, because creative energy is never mechanical, and therefore is infinitely but comfortably varied.

[Two whole movements were here played.]

V.—CONCLUSION.

To conclude, it may be said that the listener—and certainly the so-called untrained listener—must know himself to be no less than the composer's chosen companion. Beethoven pre-eminently wrote for men, not for musicians. Composer and listener are ideally on a level—sometimes indeed the listener may be on a higher level. The ideal listener is: (1) Sympathetic in reception; (2) Dynamic in response.

He can receive with his ear and find sensuous gratification of no mean order; he can receive with his heart, as Bach said, 'and be moved with sweet emotion'; he can receive with his mind and be edified; but he can only fully respond with the imagination. His response must be creative too. The creative cry is in every listener. The composer only touches the spring (as it were), doubtless in the devout hope that his fellows, his peers, the alert listeners, will find the joy of wholesome response.

The deeper we look the more confident we can be that creative joy is really the common property of all men. The associated significances of music are so diverse and numberless that it is hopeless to try to classify, much less to communicate them. But the innate significances are common property before we can speak of them. Indeed, to speak of them adequately is out of the question, for it is certain that they can touch us all deeper than any words can tell. They are clearly superhuman. No one is so foolish as to suppose that the great euphonies of the octave and fifths are dependent upon the human powers to grasp them, just as no one can imagine that a rose would cease to yield fragrance should there chance to be no human nose near enough to sniff at it. And no one in his senses can be so anthropomorphic as to imagine that the secrets of creation are not present in the chord of C major, whether human ears are perceiving or not. Handel exclaimed of his 'Hallelujah Chorus,' 'I did see the heavens opened and the great God Himself!' Though to some it may still be but a noisy chorus, many thousand humble listeners have probably responded with the same lift of the imagination. It is clearly good counsel to give ourselves as listeners, that we should look with our ears into the most perspicuous and beautiful music for the link between the homely familiar things and the remote unfamiliar mysteries dimly perceived on our mental horizon; we should seek in a slow movement both the passing human things which delight us in daily life and the surpassing and transcendent things which we call divine.

A second lecture, dealing with 'Emergency music,' given on February 13, will be reported in our next issue.

London Concerts.

ROYAL CHORAL SOCIETY.

Apparently the policy of this Society in giving its concerts on Saturday afternoons is a popular one. A huge audience was present on February 6, when Coleridge-Taylor's 'Hiawatha' was performed. The solos were in the safe hands of Miss Agnes Nicholls, Mr. John Coates, and Mr. Thorpe Bates. The choir, directed by Sir Frederick Bridge, was in good form, and sang with evident enjoyment.

QUEEN'S HALL ORCHESTRA.

On January 30 a bold programme, including two of Beethoven's Symphonies (C minor and A major), the Double Concerto for violin and violoncello by Brahms (in which M. Maurice Sons and Mlle. Guilhermina Suggia were the admirable exponents) and the 'Leonora' Overture No. 3, drew an immense audience.

A programme of exceptional interest was performed on February 13, when Sir Henry Wood made a welcome reappearance after his illness. Old and new music alternated, Bach's virile third 'Brandenburg' Concerto being followed by Dukas's 'L'Apprenti Sorcier,' and Haydn's Symphony in C ('Le Midi'). M. de Greef gave a delicate performance of Mozart's Pianoforte concerto in D minor, and the remainder of the programme consisted of Debussy's 'L'Après-midi d'un Faune' and Elgar's jolly 'Cockaigne' Overture. There was a large audience.

LONDON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA.

On January 25 the programme included 'Der Freischütz' Overture, Haydn's animated Symphony in G, Stojovsky's welcome Suite in E flat, and Brahms's second Symphony. M. Mlynarski lived up to his reputation as an able conductor.

On February 8 Mr. Beecham conducted Bizet's 'Patrie' Overture, Delius's Pianoforte concerto in C minor—one of the most obviously beautiful of this composer's works, played finely by M. Benno Moiseivitsch — Franck's deeply interesting Symphony in D minor, and Tchaikovsky's Overture 'Francesca da Rimini' (very brilliantly performed), which with Mozart's charming Divertimento in B flat for two horns and strings, were the attractions of a fine concert.

LONDON CHORAL SOCIETY.

It was good to see a large audience at Queen's Hall on February 10, when this Society performed 'Elijah.' Its pluck and energy in continuing operations in spite of the War are to be commended. That Mendelssohn's familiar work was given a thoroughly good performance goes without saying. The soloists were Miss Esta D'Argo, Miss Gladys Palmer, Mr. Hughes Macklin, and Mr. Robert Radford. Mr. C. H. Kempling was at the organ, and Mr. Arthur Fagge conducted.

The Great Western Railway Musical Society (choral and orchestral) gave a concert on February 17, at Paddington. The programme included a selection from Parry's 'War and Peace,' and the Epilogue from Elgar's 'The Banner of St. George.' Both were well sung by the capable choir, under Mr. H. A. Hughes's direction. The soloists were Miss Gladys Moger, Miss Marjorie Lockey, Mr. Henry Turnpenney, and Mr. Robert Pitt. Mr. Reginald Hughes accompanied.

The Central London Choral and Orchestral Society gave a successful concert at the Queen's Hall on January 28, when the principal works were Elgar's 'The Banner of St. George,' German's 'Nell Gwynne' Dances, and Sullivan's incidental music to 'Henry VIII.' The soloists were Miss Carrie Tubb, Miss Ella Willmott, Mr. Philip Ritte, and Mr. Ernest Bertram. Mr. David J. Thomas conducted. The concert was in aid of the British Red Cross Society.

Among the many interesting features of the meeting held by the Music Club at the Grafton Galleries on January 25 were three 'Japanese Songs' by Stravinsky, sung to orchestral accompaniment by Miss Carrie Tubb. There are doubts as to whether they were performed correctly. A new Légende for violin and orchestra by Delius was played by Mr. Albert Sammons, and three of Delius's songs, newly orchestrated, were sung by Miss Jean Waterston. Mr. Thomas Beecham conducted.

The London Trio, at their concert on February 4, gave the first English performance of Frederic Ayres's Trio in A flat—a work with not a few passages of real beauty, especially in the Largo. Madame Amina Goodwin played a group of solos, and joined M. Louis Pécskai in the 'Kreutzer' Sonata. Miss Norina sang an interesting group of songs.

A portion of the Ostend Kursaal Orchestra, assisted by London players, gave a concert of Belgian music at the Queen's Hall on February 4. A Symphonic poem, 'La Mer,' by M. Paul Gilson, was an interesting feature. 'Noël's Populaires Liégeois,' by M. Joseph Jongen, was effective but it seemed over long. Miss Flora Woodman sang with much charm, and M. de Greef played Franck's 'Variations Symphoniques' very finely. M. Leon Rimskov conducted.

The 'Orchestral Concerts for Young People' given by Miss Gwynne Kimpton at Æolian Hall sustain their interest and usefulness. On January 23 Mischa Violsky played Spohr's A minor Violin concerto. On February 20 Dvorák's A major Pianoforte quintet and Schubert's Octet for strings and wind distinguished the programme.

An excellent series of chamber concerts has been given in the intimate and pleasant surroundings of Leighton House studio on January 29, February 10 and 19. Artists of the first rank have appeared on each occasion.

A Bach concert was given at South Place on Sunday, January 31, with the Suite in B minor for flute and strings and the Triple concerto in D major for pianoforte, violin, flute, and strings as principal items.

Suburban Concerts.

The second concert of the season of the Ealing Choral and Orchestral Society took place at the Ealing Town Hall on January 19, in aid of the Military Hospital, when Elgar's 'Banner of St. George' was sung. The orchestra played the 'Symphony Pathétique' (Tchaikovsky), 'Flemish Dances' (Blockx), and 'Suite L'Arlésienne' (Bizet). Included in the programme was a new song by the conductor, 'The Troubadour,' sung by Mr. Lloyd Chandos with orchestra and choir. On Sunday afternoon, January 31, the choir and orchestra journeyed to Wormwood Scrubbs and gave a selection from 'Elijah' to the prisoners there.

The Central Croydon Choral Society gave a performance of Bantock's 'The Fire-worshippers' on February 13, under the direction of Mr. Roland Richards. The choir was also heard in Coleridge-Taylor's 'The Quadroon Girl' and 'Beside the ungathered rice.'

and the orchestra played 'Carillon' (Elgar), 'Rosamunde' Overture, &c., and accompanied the following artists: Miss Carrie Lanceley, Miss Phyllis Lett, Mr. Joseph Cheetham, and Mr. Hamilton Harriss in various songs by Elgar, Mendelssohn, Gounod, and Mozart. At its next concert, on March 24, the Society will give Elgar's 'The Dream of Gerontius.' Mr. Albert Thompson is the conductor of the Society.

The South London Philharmonic Society gave a good performance of an interesting programme on January 23, at the Borough Hall, Greenwich. The chief choral item was Hubert Bath's 'The Wake of O'Connor.' The orchestra played Percy Grainger's 'Shepherd's Hey,' and other popular works. Miss Edith Ashby played two movements of Mendelssohn's Pianoforte concerto in G minor, and songs were contributed by Miss Ida Cooper, Miss Marjorie Lockey, Mr. William Arthur, and Mr. David Evans. Mr. Wilfrid Bruin conducted.

The Mansfield House Choral Society gave a concert at the Public Hall, Canning Town, on February 6, when they sang Stanford's 'The Revenge' and Elgar's 'From the Bavarian Highlands.' Although the male part of the choir was necessarily depleted, the Society gave an excellent account of itself. The orchestra—mainly local amateurs—played Schubert's Symphony in B flat very creditably. Mr. Ernest Coward conducted. Mr. Wilfrid Abor (vocalist) and Miss Grace Tennant (violin) were the soloists.

A concert was given on January 29 at St. Mildred's Hall, Lee, in aid of the Waifs and Strays Society. Miss Evelyn Hilton, Mr. David Evans, Miss Walpole Gray, and the Misses Ruth and Christabel Baxendale contributed items in a programme of a popular and topical character.

Music in the Provinces.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

BELFAST.

The Philharmonic Society at their concert on February 5 (the third of the season) provided a very interesting concert of a miscellaneous character. The first part consisted of Bach's Cantata 'God's time is the best,' and Beethoven's C minor Symphony (Op. 67). The solos in the Cantata were sung by Miss Dorothy Webster, Mr. R. M. Kent, and Mr. Frederick Ranalow. The orchestral parts were played from copies kindly lent by Sir Henry Wood of Mr. Van der Stucken's orchestration specially arranged for the Bach Chicago Festival. These and the Symphony were very well performed by the orchestra under the baton of the Society's conductor, Mr. E. Godfrey Brown. The second part comprised songs by Miss Webster and Mr. Ranalow, pianoforte solos by Mr. McBratney (accompanist of the Society), and Sir Edward Elgar's Carillon, 'Chantons, Belges, chantons,' the recitation admirably done by Prof. D. L. Savory, of the Queen's University of Belfast. Balfour Gardiner's 'News from Whydah' concluded a most enjoyable concert.

BIRMINGHAM.

Concerts at Birmingham are gradually becoming more numerous, yet the current musical season is by no means productive of any special enterprise; perhaps the most serious loss we are likely to sustain is the abandonment of the Festival Choral Society's concerts for this season, and the public will be deprived of hearing Brahms's 'Requiem,' Mendelssohn's 'Hymn of Praise,' 'The mystic trumpeter,' and Bach's Mass in B minor, which had been projected.

A patriotic concert was given by Mr. Sidney Stoddard in the Grosvenor Room, Grand Hotel, on January 27, in aid of the Wounded Soldiers' Fund. The vocalists, all of whom were pupils of the concert-giver, exhibited fresh and well-trained voices, especially Miss Muriel Hall. This artistic singer is gifted with a sympathetic voice of rich timbre. Some excellent recitations were given by Miss Katrina Lund, and some pianoforte solos by Miss Winifred Taylor.

The Birmingham Choral and Orchestral Association gave a concert-performance of Gounod's Opera 'Faust,' in the Town Hall, on January 30, under Mr. Joseph H. Adams's conductorship, to which complete justice was done; indeed, the whole performance reflected the utmost credit upon the executive. The choir for once realised some good effects in the Kermesse scene, which as a rule is a crucial test on a concert platform, and the orchestra too was reliable and well balanced. The principals, Miss Mary Whitfield, Miss Agnes Cockshott, Mr. Walter Ottey, Mr. Alfred Askey, and Mr. Frank Macnamara, quite distinguished themselves by their admirable singing.

The feature of attraction at the third Harrison Concert, given in the Town Hall on February 1, was the reappearance of Madame Clara Butt since her return from a world tour. Hundreds were unable to procure admission, the Hall being crowded from the organ loft to the last row of the great gallery. The great contralto was in excellent voice, its glorious timbre ringing as richly and voluminously as ever; needless to add that the encores she gave were as numerous as her original contributions. Madame Clara Butt had for her coadjutors Miss Carrie Tubb, Mr. Ben Davies, Miss Edie Marr (pianoforte), Miss Muriel Pickupp (violin), and Mr. Harold Craxton (accompanist). By way of an unusual interlude at a Harrison Concert were some dramatic recitations graphically delivered by Miss Constance Collier, the well-known actress.

The third Max Mossel Drawing-room Concert provided for this season took place in the Grosvenor Room, Grand Hotel, on February 4, and was in the nature of a chamber concert, the instrumentalists being the London String Quartet (Messrs. Sammons, Petre, Warner, and Evans), an excellent organization of the highest artistic attainments. They gave a gratifying performance of Mozart's String quartet in E flat, the third of a set of six dedicated to Haydn, written in 1783; a new Phantasy in one movement for string quartet by Waldo Warner, the viola-player of the London String Quartet; and Brahms's String quartet in A minor, Op. 51, No. 2, composed at Vienna in 1873, the year of the great Vienna Exhibition. Mr. Waldo Warner's composition is a charming work which one would be glad to hear again, possessing a good deal of originality and skilful, picturesque treatment. The vocalist was Miss Agnes Nicholls, who was accompanied on the pianoforte by Mr. Hamilton Harty. Perfect diction, purity of style, and consummate art characterized her singing.

A popular orchestral concert was given by the Birmingham Symphony Orchestra at the Town Hall on February 6, a special feature of attraction being the appearance of the popular English composer, Mr. Edward German, who conducted some of his own compositions, and the début here of the Belgian violoncello virtuoso, Maurice Dambois, of the Liége Conservatoire de Musique. Mr. Julian Clifford conducted the first part of the programme, which comprised Gounod's 'Marche Militaire,' the Overtures 'Ruy Blas' and 'Rienzi,' and Saint-Saëns's Concerto for violoncello and orchestra. The Belgian artist created quite a furore with his playing, and certainly one was strongly impressed by his magnificent technique, and by the richness and beauty of his tone. In addition to the Concerto, he played a dainty piece of his own, 'Sur le lac,' and Popper's 'Rhapsodie Hongroise.' Mr. Edward German, who met with a splendid reception, conducted a poignant and impressive performance of his 'Coronation' March and hymn, 'Veni Creator Spiritus,' 'Welsh Rhapsody,' and 'Three graceful Dances' from 'Henry VIII.' The vocalist was Miss Alys Gear, a contralto singer gifted with a sweet voice of limited power, but over which she has complete control. Her singing of some Somersetshire folk-songs revealed artistic style and pleasing diction. She also sang two of Edward German's songs, 'Sea Lullaby' and 'Love in all seasons,' accompanied on the pianoforte by the composer.

The Midland Musical Society gave Dvorák's dramatic Cantata, 'The Spectre's Bride,' at the Town Hall on February 13. The work was first heard here at the Triennial Musical Festival, 1885, when the composer conducted. Miss Gladys Moger and Mr. John Booth personated the Lovers, and Mr. Herbert Parker carried on the narrative in conjunction with the choir. It was at once evident that Mr. A. J. Cotton, who conducted, had admirably prepared the work, and he is to be complimented upon the artistic results he obtained from the choir and orchestra. The principals did well, a notable feature being Mr. Parker's impressive delivery of the episode of the dead-house, where the corpse thrice uprises to deliver the hapless maiden to her demon lover. Haydn's Symphony in D, and selections from Wagner's 'Parsifal,' completed an excellent evening's programme.

Miss Kathleen Bruckshaw gave a pianoforte recital at the Queen's College on February 10, the whole of the programme being devoted to pianoforte compositions by the late Edward MacDowell. The most important section comprised the 'Sonata Tragica' and the 'Celtic Sonata,' but the whole programme was interesting. Evidently the performer was in thorough sympathy with the subjects treated, and nothing could have surpassed the splendid finish of her technique and artistic conception of every bar she played.

BOURNEMOUTH.

One of the principal charms of the Winter Gardens is the many-sidedness of its musical activities—a factor, be it noted, which the good people of Bournemouth are perhaps a little too prone to overlook. A fine permanent orchestra is in itself an asset of the first water, but, over and beyond that, the endless procession of miscellaneous concerts, with their differing appeal to various shades of opinion, is a feature by no means to be disregarded. There is, for all that, just one department of music to which a measure of indifference is meted out by public and management alike, namely, that of chamber music pure and simple. It was therefore with particular pleasure that we welcomed the project to fill the void which was undertaken by Mr. Albert Fransella (flute), Miss Marjorie Hayward (violin), and Miss Winifred Christie (pianoforte) on February 3,—a wholly delightful concert, distinguished not alone by Mr. Fransella's playing in sonata and trio items but also by as interesting an account of Beethoven's 'Kreutzer' Sonata as one could wish to hear. Of the other recent special concerts that which brought to our notice Elgar's Carillon, 'Chantons, Belges, chantons' (poem by Emile Cammaerts) must be regarded as one of the most important. The music—which was receiving its first provincial performance—proved, however, slightly disappointing, and Miss Mary Mackenzie was hardly dramatic enough in her delivery of the impassioned lines. The appearance of Ysaye will, again, stand out as one of the really prominent events of the season; a more attractive choice of items could, we think, have been made, but the beauty of this great artist's playing, in which temperamental fervour was combined with a guarded restraint, transmuted everything he touched into purest gold. A Chopin-Liszt recital by Sapellnikov on January 23 gained for him the usual tributes from his numerous Bournemouth admirers; Miss Isolde Menges, that extremely talented young violinist, exhibited her rare powers to distinct advantage on January 30; and a pianoforte and song recital by Miss Fanny Davies and Miss Carmen Hill on February 6 was very successful, Miss Davies's playing maintaining to the full its characteristic soundness and consistency.

Several new works of an exacting nature at the Symphony Concerts have put Mr. Dan Godfrey and his orchestra to some severe tests, but practically all difficulties have been surmounted with assurance and success. Of these novelties Vaughan Williams's 'London' Symphony was not only the most advanced in style, but also presented the most anxious problem from the executants' point of view; nevertheless, a sterling performance stimulated us to an attitude of unmixed approval of this vital and exceptionally clever composition. Granville Bantock's 'Scenes from the Scottish Highlands' Suite also gave genuine pleasure, the by no means easy phrases being displayed to marked advantage. Two of Molyneux Palmer's 'Four pieces on Irish folk-tunes' must also be added to the list of first performances here. The principal contributions from the already established répertoire have been as follows: 'Die Meistersinger' Overture (Wagner); Beethoven's eighth Symphony; Brahms's Symphony in D; Mozart's 'Jupiter' Symphony; Prelude and Liebestod from 'Tristan and Isolde' (Wagner); and Dvorák's 'Carneval' Overture. The soloists have been Mr. Felix Salmond, who played Saint-Saëns's A minor Violoncello concerto with a maximum of charm and resource; Miss May Matthews, whose equipment was hardly equal to Rubinstein's onerous Pianoforte concerto in D minor; Mr. Philip Cathie (his appointment as principal violin professor at the Bournemouth School of Music has just been notified), whose beautiful tone and intuitive artistry found ample scope in Max Bruch's Violin concerto in D minor; and Mrs. Farnell-Watson (co-director with Mr. Hamilton Law of the above-mentioned institution), whose reading of Mozart's D minor Pianoforte concerto was in happy conformity with the spirit of the charming old-world phraseology.

Provision was made at the fifteenth Monday 'Pop' for one of those exceedingly interesting and informing programmes which the policy of these concerts has made possible; described as the 'Evolution of the Overture' (Opera, Oratorio, or Drama), the plan was as here subjoined: Handel's 'Occasional Overture' (1746), Gluck's 'Alceste' (1767), Mozart's 'Don Juan' (1787), Cherubini's 'Anacreon' (1803), Beethoven's 'Egmont' (1810), Weber's 'Euryanthe' (1823), Mendelssohn's 'St. Paul' (1836), Wagner's 'Tannhäuser' (1845), Humperdinck's 'Die Königskinder' (1893). The principal details of the remaining concerts of this series are as follows: January 25, 'Tchaikovsky' programme ('Casse Noisette' Suite, 'Capriccio Italien'). February 1, 'Grieg' programme (Suite No. 1, 'Peer Gynt'; 'Holberg' Suite for Strings; Solveig's Song, sung by Miss Lillian Burgiss. February 8, British composers (Percy Fletcher's 'Prelude to an unwritten Symphony,' conducted by the composer; Incidental music to 'Grania and Diarmid' by Elgar; Overture, 'Youth,' by Arthur Hervey).

BRISTOL AND DISTRICT.

On January 20 the Society of Bristol Gleemen gave a concert in the Public Hall, Clevedon, and there was a large attendance. In addition to part-songs there were songs by Miss Hilda Eager, Mr. Herbert Spiller, and Mr. Lionel Venn; and Mr. Maurice Alexander contributed violin solos which highly gratified. Mr. C. W. Stear conducted with skill, and the concert, which was in aid of the Prince of Wales's National Relief Fund, was a success.

At All Saints' Hall, Clifton, on January 27, a concert in aid of the Belgian Relief Fund was given through the initiative of Mr. Herbert G. Hill, a member of the choir of All Saints' Church. He secured the co-operation of some of the best-known local vocalists and instrumentalists. Those who contributed were Miss Elsie White, Miss Gertrude Winchester, Mr. J. Horsell, Mr. F. Wensley, Mr. F. C. Preston (the last three of Bristol Cathedral), Mr. T. A. Gass, and Mr. Herbert G. Hill (vocalists), Mr. Cedric Bucknall (pianoforte), Mr. Maurice Alexander (violin), and Mr. Roger Bucknall (violoncello). There were recitations by Mr. W. J. A. Grant, and Mr. A. Ransom was the accompanist. The various features of the programme were appreciated by a numerous assembly.

Mr. Hubert Hunt held the first of three chamber concerts at the Royal West of England Academy on February 1. The programme illustrated variation form, and the works presented were Haydn's Quartet in E flat (Op. 50, No. 3), Beethoven's Quartet in E flat (Op. 127), and Brahms's Quartet in B flat (Op. 67). The players were Mr. Hunt and Miss Avice Sealy (violins), Miss Gladys Home (viola), and Mr. Roger Bucknall (violoncello). These competent executants performed the works chosen in a satisfactory manner.

A miscellaneous concert was given in Bishopston Parish Hall on February 3. Agreeable interpretations of some popular songs were afforded by Madame Lena Stone, Miss Ethel Harris, Miss Maud Battagel, Mr. H. B. Lovell, and Mr. Arthur Mass. Instrumental compositions were contributed by Miss Ivis Rickman (violin), Miss Ruby Rickman, (violoncello), Miss Florence Harris, and Mr. W. J. Cocks (pianoforte), all of which were of an acceptable character.

The Clifton Quintet gave a concert at the Royal West of England Academy on February 8, the players being Messrs. Herbert Parsons (pianoforte), Maurice Alexander and Edgar Hawke (violin), Alfred Best (viola), and Percy Lewis (violoncello). There were fine performances of Beethoven's Quartet in F minor (Op. 95), and Brahms's Quintet in F minor (Op. 34). Messrs. Alexander and Hawke played with effect Bach's Concerto in D minor for two violins, and Mr. Parsons delighted by his brilliant execution of two movements by Scarlatti.

On February 10 the annual meeting of the Bristol Madrigal Society was held at the Montague Hotel under the presidency of Dr. Basil Harwood, who proposed that Mr. Hubert Hunt should be the hon. musical director in succession to Mr. D. W. Rootham. The resolution, seconded by Mr. J. Barrett (one of the vice-presidents), was heartily affirmed, and in responding Mr. Hunt made an interesting speech in which he said he sang madrigals at Windsor when he was a boy under Sir George Elvey, before he was a selected boy to sing at Bristol on the Ladies' Nights. Mr. Rootham commenced as director of the Bristol Society in 1865, the year that he (Mr. Hunt) was born; Mr. Rootham was born in 1837, the year the Society was established, so that these were pleasing coincidences.

The ninth annual Ladies' Night of the Weston-super-Mare Orpheus Society was held on February 4 at Knightstone Pavilion, under the direction of Mr. Edward Cook. There was a choir of forty, which interested a large audience by the excellent manner in which it interpreted favourite part-songs. A noteworthy item was Dr. Walford Davies's setting of Rudyard Kipling's 'Hymn before action.' At intervals Mr. W. H. Squire performed violoncello solos with much charm. Mr. G. Blanchard was the accompanist.

CAMBRIDGE.

In spite of the abnormal conditions, music in the University claims a great many adherents, and the musical Societies of the various Colleges are in a flourishing condition. There is no lack of enthusiasm, but the shortage of money and consequent falling-off in the number of subscribers prevent many of the original plans from being carried out.

The programme for the University Musical Society Concert on March 12 has been altered from the one previously arranged. In place of Parry's 'Prometheus unbound,' the choir is singing 'The glories of our Blood and State' by the same composer, and a selection of madrigals by Orlando Gibbons. In addition to these choral items and Dvorák's Symphony 'From the New World,' Haydn's Concerto in D major, with Mr. Howard Bliss, of Trinity, as solo violoncellist, will be performed. The whole of the chamber concerts and the combined Musical Society and Musical Club performance have had to be abandoned.

At Newnham College, on February 6, before a highly appreciative audience, the Motto Quartet gave an excellent performance of String quartets by Haydn in G minor and Dvorák in E flat minor, and of a duet for violin and viola by Mozart.

Mr. E. J. Dent, of King's College, is lecturing to the Society of Antiquaries on February 22 on 'English musical drama in the Commonwealth.' The lecture will be illustrated by a performance of scenes from James Shirley's Masque, 'Cupid and Death,' with the original music (1659) composed by Matthew Locke and Christopher Gibbons. It is very probable that this performance of the masque will be the first given for 250 years.

DEVON AND CORNWALL.

Very little has occurred during the last month in the way of serious music. The entertainments and miscellaneous concerts given for War purposes have been too numerous to chronicle, but their educational purpose and artistic result having been negligible they may not be said to comprise a feature of a review of the month's work.

Because of the tremendous enthusiasm it created, the visit of Madame Clara Butt and party, under the auspices of Messrs. Moon & Sons, on January 22, cannot be ignored. The programme was not of importance musically, and was repeated at Exeter and Torquay in the same week. Some delightful choral singing, chiefly in part-songs, was heard from Dr. Weekes's Choral Society at Plymouth on February 10. Mr. Walter Weekes conducted, and after a very fair performance of 'The banner of St. George,' the choir sang with refined and tuneful quality pieces by Macfarren, Eaton Faning, and Russell. The men were few but capable, and their singing was artistic. A small band of members of the Orchestral Society, led by Mr. H. R. V. Ball, took part, and played two independent numbers. The playing members of the Extempore Chamber Music Club—Dr. Lake (pianoforte), Messrs. Ball, Coombe, Fouracre, and Pike—were prepared to give a thoroughly artistic interpretation of the Andante and Scherzo from the Pianoforte quintet of Brahms, Op. 34, but owing to the indisposition of the violoncellist the performance was unsatisfactory.

The chief events at the Torquay Pavilion have been visits from Mr. Percy Grainger and M. Sapellnikov, with Miss Lena Kontorovitsch, who performed in collaboration with the Municipal Orchestra and Mr. Basil Cameron. At the Symphony Concert on February 3 Dvorák's 'New World' Symphony was the chief work, and Miss M. Bentwich played the Max Bruch C minor Violin concerto.

An instrumental concert of good standard was given at Exeter on January 28 by Miss Ruby Davy (violin) and Mr. S. W. A. Moyle (violoncello), with assistance in vocal numbers from other artists.

After a long suspension, the Linkinhorne Choral Society came to life again just before Christmas with new material and under new conditions. Promise of good work in the future was given by the excellent performances early in January at Upton Cross and St. Cleer of T. Mee Pattison's Cantata 'The Shepherd's holiday,' and in Part-songs by Pierson, Arne, and Coward. The Rev. C. C. C. Bosanquet conducted.

DUBLIN.

The Sunday Orchestral Concerts finished their series on February 14. During the month the programmes have included Mendelssohn's 'Scotch,' Mozart's in E flat, and Beethoven's second Symphonies. Mozart's Violin concerto in E flat (soloist, Signor Simonetti), Hubert Bath's 'Pierrot' Suite (first performance), Grieg's 'Sigurd Jorsalfar,' Bizet's 'L'Arlésienne,' and Borodin's 'In the Steppes of Asia,' were also included in the programmes. The vocalists were Miss Lilian Whittaker, Miss Barbara Florac, Miss May Doyle, Mr. Robert Harrison, and Mr. Irvine Lynch. Instrumental soloists were Mr. P. J. Griffith and Signor Simonetti (violin), Mr. Clyde Twelvetrees (violoncello), and Mr. Victor Love and Dr. Esposito (pianoforte).

The Royal Dublin Society Chamber Music Recitals have been those of Mr. Herbert Ellingford (organ), January 25, and the London Chamber Musicians (Schubert's Octet and Beethoven's Septet) on February 15. The recitals to have been given by Mr. Harold Bauer, the Brodsky Quartet, and the Brussels Quartet fell through owing to the War.

Mr. Gabriel Cleather, on February 15, at the Royal Irish Academy of Music, gave an interesting lecture on 'Timpani' before the Leinster Section of the I.S.M. In the course of the evening he played illustrations (accompanied on the organ by Mr. T. H. Weaving) in which he used six timpani.

Mr. Joseph O'Mara's Opera Company has given a very successful fortnight's season at the Gaiety Theatre from February 8 to 20.

EDINBURGH.

The third Historical Concert was given on January 20. A performance of Bach's Cantata for contralto, organ obbligato and orchestra, 'Geist und Seele wird verwirret,' was given, with Helen Anderson as vocalist, Dr. Shirlaw as organist, and Prof. Sanford Terry as conductor. Miss Kate Friskin gave adequate interpretations of Beethoven's Pianoforte concerto in G, and Schumann's Introduction and Allegro for pianoforte and orchestra, Op. 92.

On January 23 a very large audience met to welcome Ysaye. All his previous triumphs were eclipsed by his success on this visit. Mr. Charlton Keith proved an admirable accompanist. Miss Millar, a brilliant South African soprano, made her first Edinburgh appearance.

The last two orchestral concerts of the season were given on January 25 and February 1 respectively. At the former an all-British programme was submitted, under the baton of Mr. Hamilton Harty, in the absence of Mr. Landon Ronald.

The 'Enigma Variations' of Elgar and the Symphonic-Poem 'Villon,' by Wallace, were the outstanding items of an enjoyable concert. It is to be regretted that Scriabin was unable to be present at the twelfth concert, as Edinburgh musicians had looked forward to his visit with much interest.

In view of the above-mentioned prospective visit of Scriabin, Miss Pinkham gave an interesting lecture-recital on Scriabin and his compositions.

On February 6 Madame Clara Butt, Miss Constance Collier, and Mr. Ben Davies filled the important rôles at the third Harrison Concert.

GLASGOW.

The Choral Union, under Mr. Henri Verbrugghen, gave Elgar's 'The dream of Gerontius' on January 26. Except for an occasional faulty intonation, especially in the unaccompanied parts, the choruses were sung with good effect, and the general standard of performance was a high one. The solo music was given by Miss Doris Woodall, Mr. Gervase Elwes, and Mr. Hutton Malcolm, the last-named, an accomplished local musician, taking at a few hours' notice Mr. Julian Henry's place in the part of the Priest. Excellent work was done by the Scottish Orchestra in the accompaniments. At the fourteenth (and last) Classical Concert on February 2, Miss Irene Scharrer appeared for the first time here as solo pianist and gave a very virile reading of Tchaikovsky's Pianoforte concerto No. 1, in B flat minor. In the purely orchestral numbers—Beethoven's seventh Symphony, the Overture to 'Die Meistersinger,' and a selection from Ravel's 'Rhapsodie Espagnole,' the playing of the band reached the highest level. The annual plebiscite concert on February 6 brought the present season to a close. The programme on this occasion included the inevitable 'Tannhäuser' Overture, Tchaikovsky's fifth Symphony, and a selection from the 'Peer Gynt' Suite. In his valedictory remarks M. Mlynarski emphasised the important educational value of the four 'People's Concerts' given under the auspices of the City Corporation. These concerts have invariably attracted overflowing audiences, and there seems every justification for the Corporation increasing the number of concerts next season.

The students of Notre Dame Training College gave three excellent concerts—on February 11, 12, 13—in aid of the Belgian refugees. In addition to some songs and instrumental music, the programmes included fourteen choral pieces, which were sung with fine effect. A notable feature was the performance of the National Anthems of France, Belgium, Russia, Japan, and Britain, all being 'arranged' for the occasion by the Rev. Dom Gregory Ould, O.S.B. The only other event to be recorded is a Harrison Concert on February 5, at which Madame Clara Butt was the chief attraction.

LIVERPOOL.

Prof. Granville Bantock's orchestral drama 'Fifine at the Fair' received an unmistakably favourable hearing at the eighth Philharmonic Concert on January 26, which was conducted by Sir Henry Wood. Browning's poem has given the composer a peculiarly fascinating subject of human interest for musical expression, and even apart from its psychological basis the music makes an immediate appeal by its beauty and orchestral mastery. Another work by an English composer, the 'Dance Rhapsody' by Delius, presented attractive features of rhythm, tunefulness, and piquant scoring, and other opportunities for displaying the qualities of the fine band were found in 'The entrance of the Gods into Walhalla' and the Introduction to Act 3 of 'Tristan,' in which the cor anglais soloist, Mr. S. Whittaker, distinguished himself. Mozart's 'Jupiter' Symphony completed the orchestral scheme, but the headlong speed at which the Finale was taken did not generally commend itself. Madame Edvina was the vocalist.

M. Emil Mlynarski conducted the ninth concert on February 9, at which a particularly fine performance was given of Liszt's 'Les Préludes.' Other examples of capable and lucid direction were afforded in Haydn's gratefully melodious old Symphony in G, letter V (B. & H., No. 13), in the barbaric Dances from Borodin's 'Prince Igor,' and in Wallace's Orchestral Poem 'Villon,' which renewed the favourable impression this picturesque composition previously made at these concerts. A well-known member of the orchestra, Mr. Walter Hatton, gave a clever exhibition of his skill in the solo-part of Boëllmann's 'Variations symphoniques' for violoncello and orchestra, and Miss Ruth Vincent sang Elisabeth's greeting from 'Tannhäuser' and Puccini's Aria, 'Vissi d' arte' with abundant animation, as well as fresh and powerful beauty of tone. Two Elgar part-songs were sung by the choir, 'The Snow' (female voices, with violin and pianoforte accompaniment) and the beautiful unaccompanied chorus from 'King Olaf,' 'As torrents in summer.'

It was originally announced that M. Scriabin would appear at the ninth concert in conjunction with M. Mlynarski, but owing to the War he was unable to come, and other modifications, which include the postponement of Mr. Albert Coates's visit, have been rendered necessary. Sir George Henschel will conduct the eleventh concert on March 9, for which the choir is being prepared by Mr. R. H. Wilson in Mendelssohn's 'Walpurgis Night' and Beethoven's Choral Symphony.

At the sixth concert of the Akeroyd Symphony Orchestra series on January 19, an operatic contralto, Miss Marguerite D'Alvarez, made a successful début as a concert-singer, interpreting Gluck's 'Divinités du Styx' with dramatic intuition and vocal command. The fine quality and range of her voice were further exhibited in 'Printemps qui commence' (Saint-Saëns) and other songs. The orchestral items, which Mr. Akeroyd ably conducted, included the Overture to 'Hansel and Gretel' and Tchaikovsky's tremendous 'Francesca da Rimini' Fantasia, the gloom of which was agreeably dispelled by Handel's suavely beautiful, although well-nigh forgotten, Minuet from 'Berenice,' which it was a happy thought to revive at such an especially favourable moment. Another example of Mr. Akeroyd's eclecticism was afforded in Beethoven's Rondino in E flat for two oboes, two clarinets, two bassoons, and two horns, which was beautifully played.

The seventh and closing concert of the Akeroyd series was given on February 2, when Saint-Saëns's Pianoforte concerto No. 2 was masterfully played by M. Moiseïvitsch, and Mr. Herbert Heyner was equally successful in his baritone songs. Other features of an interesting popular programme were the 'Freischütz' Overture, the 'Casse Noisette' Suite, Beethoven's Symphony No. 8, and Percy Grainger's Irish tune 'From County Derry' and 'Shepherd's Hey.'

Mr. Adrian Boult's Wednesday evening popular orchestral concerts in the Sun Hall are attracting improved attendances week by week, but it cannot yet be said that the surrounding district, a town in itself, responds as it should. But Mr. Boult goes imperturbably on his way, and is content to wait. Still quite young, his early training at Westminster School was enlarged at Oxford and Leipsic, solid advantages added to natural abilities which only need experience to develop fully.

As examples of the music Mr. Boult seeks to popularize, the following are taken from his first four programmes: Bach's Concerto in C and Mozart's Concerto in E flat for two pianofortes, cleverly played by the Misses Una and Irene Truman, Sir Hubert Parry's 'Lady Radnor's Suite,' Haydn's Symphony in E flat (Salomon Set), Beethoven's Pianoforte concerto in G, No. 4 (soloist, Mr. Frank Bertrand), Minuet from the Symphony in A by Alfred R. Sutton, Mozart's Symphony in G minor, and 'In the New Forest' (R. F. Woodman). Several first-rate local singers, including Miss Edina Thraves, Miss Edith McCullagh, and Mr. Spencer Hayes, an exceptional tenor, have also contributed to the musical success of the concerts.

There was a crowded audience at Mr. Percy Harrison's third concert on February 10, at which a strong company appeared, including Madame Clara Butt, Miss Carrie Tubb, Miss Constance Collier (recitations), Mr. Ben Davies, Miss Edie Marr (solo-pianoforte), and Melsa (violin), with Mr. Harold Craxton at the pianoforte. Madame Butt's flexible singing of Handel's florid 'Lusinghe più care' and Liza Lehmann's 'By the lake,' from King Albert's Book, were noteworthy items of a programme every piece in which was encored.

At the concert of the Welsh Choral Union on February 6 a powerful attraction was provided by the Grenadier Guards Band, conducted by Dr. Williams, so that matters choral occupied rather a subsidiary place. This is an inversion of the usual order of things at these concerts, but interesting as was the singing of part-songs and choruses, which were capably conducted by Mr. John Watkyn, chief interest centred in the inspiriting playing of the renowned band, which roused patriotic outbursts of national ardour from a crowded audience. Indeed such enthusiasm has seldom been witnessed in the historic Philharmonic Hall. The concert was distinctly exhilarating, and the music for band and choir, and also the songs, ably sung by Mr. Charles Tree, had been well chosen.

The seventh concert of the Rodewald Club on January 25 was provided by the Manchester Trio,—Mr. Edward Isaacs (pianoforte), Mr. Arthur Catterall (violin), and Mr. W. Warburton (violoncello),—who played Beethoven's Trio in B flat, Op. 97, two movements from Bossi's Trio in D minor, and a new Trio in E flat, Op. 7, by Edward Isaacs, a melodious work of sustained interest.

It would be difficult as well as unnecessary to seek new terms of appreciation of Mr. Plunket Greene's interpretative art. It is sufficient to say that he was in first-rate form at the eighth concert of the Rodewald Club on February 8, when he sustained the entire programme, and sang no fewer than twenty-six songs, accompanied by Mr. S. Liddle at the pianoforte.

Other recent happenings have included the concert given on January 30 by the Oxton and Claughton Orchestral Society (conductor, Mr. J. E. Matthews), at which Lady Bates sang and Mrs. A. C. Bamford played Debussy's 'Reflets dans l'eau'; the concert given by the Liscard Orchestral Society on February 6 (conductor, Mr. P. R. Smart); and the lecture by Mr. Tobias Matthay to the Music Teachers' Association in the Rushworth Hall on January 30, on 'The teaching of the fundamentals of pianoforte technique.'

MANCHESTER AND DISTRICT.

The outstanding feature of the month's music has been Beecham's tackling of Bantock's 'Omar Khayyám,' which had threatened to fall through owing to the composer's illness, which prevented him conducting on January 21. The Executive heard on Monday afternoon that Bantock could not come; by early evening Beecham had consented to act, and the full score was in his hands by special messenger to St. Helens the same night. For many hours on Tuesday he shut himself up for its study; this was followed by an attendance at the Hallé Choir for evening rehearsal, where he was a silent listener. On Wednesday evening he put the choir through its paces for two and a-half hours; on Thursday, from 1 p.m. to 4.35, he rehearsed the orchestra, and, as one of them said, 'He knew it, and we knew that he knew it,'—and so also did the choir! So marvellous was his surety that he galvanized the whole thing as probably even Bantock himself could not have done, and a triumph was snatched from the jaws of disaster.

Beecham's reading had greater urgency in many parts than Bantock's, and occasionally the Hallé Choir could not last the pace, but on the whole it rose to the occasion. At last we seem to have got the real 'Omar' trio of soloists in Miss Doris Woodall, who unites sensuous beauty of tone with highly individual dramatic power, Mr. John Coates, already identified with the part of the Poet, and Mr. Herbert Brown, who, whilst lagging behind at least one other singer in the argumentative power of the Philosopher, still combines fervency of style and genial irony with a vocal method without serious flaw. The 'Pot' Sestet in Part 3 was well done by selected members of the choir.

Probably by now, as a result of the last few years having brought so many new conductors here, the Manchester public is better qualified than usual to pass judgment on the capacities of these visitors, and if asked to draw up a list of the most meritorious names, that of Mr. Hamilton Harty would be found high up on the list. Orchestral players are probably shrewd judges, too, of whether a man 'has it in him,' and their playing under some men has a greater warmth and freedom as compared with their performance under others quite as well endowed in a purely musical sense. Mr. Harty undoubtedly is gifted with a magnetic personality and does not harry his players needlessly; altogether he is uncommonly well-equipped, and nobody endows music with greater rhythmical life. In Beethoven's seventh Symphony he occasionally stressed the rhythm unduly, but all the music he played on January 28 palpitated with life; and when he sat down and played accompaniments for Miss Isolde Menges we got another glimpse of his manifold attainments. That he did not include one of his own orchestral works speaks well for his modesty, and next time he comes the management might fittingly insist on a removal of this self-denying ordinance.

Verbrugghen's concert at Hallé's on February 4 was a severely classical one. Beethoven's 'Name Day' Overture was uninspiring, and Brahms's second Symphony too fragmentary in treatment, for the conductor has not a sufficient degree of the architectonic sense so essential for this majestic work. There is no use denying it, but Richter's monumental readings of these Brahms Symphonies are unchallengeable, and in Manchester we cannot forget them. Brahms interpretations stand or fall by such comparisons. The best playing of the night was in a C major Suite by Bach, and, as ever here, good Bach playing or singing roused great enthusiasm.

On February 11, the Hallé Choir gave Sullivan's 'Golden Legend' and Brahms's 'Song of Destiny.' Mr. Herbert Heyner's singing was such as to have fired an artistically sensitive body of singers, and his performance was for some the chief delight of the concert. Miss Caroline Hatchard pluckily appeared, though obviously unwell, and found able assistance in Miss Edna Barker, one of the chorus ladies; two other Manchester singers in Miss Marion Beeley and Mr. John Collett completed the cast. Mr. R. H. Wilson conducted.

No department of musical endeavour has been more thoroughly disorganized by the War than chamber music. Visiting quartets and trios and distinguished solo players have not been available, and it is with the greater pleasure that one can record the completion of the Bowdon Chamber Music Society's winter efforts—the series just closed being its seventh, and its membership, so far from being impaired, being in a flourishing condition. Miss Isolde Menges, when playing at Hallé's in the same week, was over-ambitious in selecting the Tchaikovsky Concerto, as her technique is rather below the full requirements of the work, but a series of items in the older style of Fiocco, Haydn, and Handel set her grace of playing in a much more favourable light. Mr. Carlton Brough sang, and Mr. R. J. Forbes has now come to be regarded as the (happily) inevitable accompanist at our Manchester district concerts. Next month it will be possible to deal more fully with chamber music, for with lengthening days we learn of concerts by the Edith Robinson Quartet, and of Messrs. Catterall, Forbes, and the Rawdon Briggs Quartet, which will bring us new works by Ravel and Delius and César Franck. If present efforts for the liberation of Brodsky and Carl Fuchs from their respective internment camps are successful, we may yet have the Brodsky Quartet resuming operations.

While Manchester audiences have filled our halls for orchestral works, the response to Mr. Percy Harrison's series has not been so gratifying. Possibly the 'ballad' type of programme, however varied by operatic selections and able instrumental solos, has quite definitely passed out of favour here, and no one, least of all the entrepreneur, need regret it, for it is a definite pronouncement in favour of an advance in musical appreciation.

On February 5 the Manchester Musical Society gave the newly-formed Amateur Orchestra, conducted by Mr. Walter Mudie, its introduction to the city's musical life. There would seem to be something almost prophetic for the new orchestra's future in such collaboration, for it showed quite emphatically that it can tackle scores which would make it a worthy associate of some of the smaller expert choirs which sing in the Manchester area, and so enable productions of works which, though of small dimensions, need adequate orchestral accompaniment for their worthy presentation.

The Salford Municipal Choral Society possesses about eighty voices of satisfactory tone-quality and blend, and under Mr. J. Pugh Lane gave 'Elijah' on February 6, with instrumental forces in scale with the vocal power available. Miss Ethel Donelly, Madame Gertrude Brooks, and Messrs. Giddins and Horner were the soloists.

Mr. Herbert Whittaker introduced Walford Davies's 'Pastorals,' accompanied by Miss Edith Robinson's well-known players, at the second concert of the Manchester Vocal Society, and in the choice of vocal solos showed a nice discrimination in avoiding works which too obviously transcend the powers of executants.

The Bolton Amateur Orchestral Society, at a Relief Fund concert on January 13, had the assistance of Mlle. Madeleine Van Hamme, a Belgian contralto, and the band performed some entr'acte music written by its conductor, Mr. Andrew Morris.

NEWCASTLE AND DISTRICT.

The work of the Newcastle and Gateshead Choral Union this season is confined to the giving of popular oratorios with organ accompaniment, the proceeds being devoted to the War Funds. The absence of an orchestra was hardly felt in the 'Messiah,' but it was sadly missed in the performance of 'Elijah,' which took place in the Town Hall on February 10. Mr. Preston did wonders with a hopelessly inadequate instrument. His playing of the Overture, an arrangement from his own pen, and the accompaniment to 'Is not His word like a fire' were magnificent. Miss Katharine Vincent, the soprano, was suffering from illness and was unable to do herself justice. Miss Maud Wright, the contralto, was excellent, especially in her singing of 'Woe unto them.' The tenor was Mr. Walter Glynne, who was always artistic, and Mr. Robert Charlesworth made a fine Elijah. The choir as usual was superb, and must be reckoned among the finest choral bodies in the country. Dr. Coward conducted, and the concerted numbers were taken by members of the choir.

The same work had been given on February 9 by the Darlington Choral and Orchestral Society in the Court Kinema to a crowded audience. Miss Phyllis Graves, a young soprano from Perth, made her début in the district and won a decided success. Her voice is clear and resonant, and she sings most artistically. The contralto and tenor were the same as at Newcastle, and were received with equal favour by the audience. Mr. Robert Burnett, although suffering from cold, sang magnificently, his dramatic instinct being never at fault. Both choir and orchestra were excellent, and the performance all round reached a high standard. Mr. T. Henderson conducted. The Darlington Chamber Music Society gave its third concert at Polam Hall on Thursday, February 11, when the programme was provided by the London String Quartet. It consisted of Brahms's Quartet in B flat, Dvorák in E flat, Phantasy in D by H. Waldo Warner, 'The Lonely Shepherd' by Speaight, and Percy Grainger's 'Molly on the shore.' The standard of performance was quite equal to that of the best Continental quartets that have appeared at these concerts, and the great interest aroused among the audience by the last three examples from British pens proved that there is always a hearing awaiting those musicians who really have something to say.

The same Quartet, with the addition of Mr. Charles Draper (clarinet), Miss Hilda Herbert (contralto), and Mr. Paul Kilburn (accompanist), gave the second concert of the Middlesbrough Musical Union in the Wesley Hall on February 10. The programme was an exceptionally fine one, including Brahms's Clarinet quintet, Debussy's Rhapsody for clarinet and pianoforte, Glazounov's Quartet in D minor, Warner's Phantasy in D, and Grainger's 'Molly on the shore.' There was a large and very enthusiastic audience.

At the monthly meeting of the Northern Section of the I. S. M. at Newcastle, on February 13, Mr. W. G. Whittaker gave a most interesting lecture, with illustrations, on 'Erik Satie,' one of the most striking representatives of the modern French school. A Sarabande in particular was delightful.

The Stratford-on-Avon School of Folk-song and Dance will hold an Easter session from April 3 to 10, if sufficient applications are received. Those who wish to attend are requested to send their names as early as possible to the secretary, English Folk-Dance Society, 73, Avenue Chambers, Bloomsbury, W.C.

NOTTINGHAM AND DISTRICT.

A concert was given by the members of the Incorporated Society of Musicians at the Albert Hall, Nottingham, on January 16. A fine performance of Saint-Saëns's Pianoforte concerto in G minor was given by Miss Irene Truman. Mr. Bernard Johnson supplied the orchestral parts on the organ. Vocal items were contributed by Miss Edith Payne, Mr. Henry Dobson, and Miss Emily Hart. An organ recital by Mr. Bernard Johnson followed.

The choir festival at the Mansfield Road Wesley Church took place on January 24, when the 'Messiah' was given under the direction of Mr. Herbert Richards. Mr. Blyton Dobson supplied the accompaniments, and the solos were sung by Miss Dorothy Wilson, Miss Roebuck, Mr. Franklin Pearson, and Mr. Barras.

It is especially notable that Brahms's 'Requiem,' which as reported was given on November 29 last, was repeated by request at the Albert Hall on January 31.

The orchestral concert given by the Nottingham Sacred Harmonic Society on February 4 introduced Guilmant's Concerto for organ and orchestra, when Mr. Bernard Johnson, who was the soloist, received a welcome. Miss Florence Mellor, a native of Nottingham, was the vocalist, and must have been encouraged by her very hearty reception. The programme included the 'William Tell' Overture, 'Finlandia' (Sibelius), 'Scènes Pittoresques' (Massenet), the second and third movements of the 'Pathetic' Symphony, Handel's Largo for strings, and the 'Peer Gynt' Suite. The orchestra, which was scarcely in its best form, was conducted by Mr. Allen Gill.

Arensky's Pianoforte concerto in F formed the attraction at the Albert Hall organ recital on February 7, with Miss Una Truman at the pianoforte and Mr. Bernard Johnson at the organ. Included in the same programme were Rachmaninov's 'Prelude,' Elgar's 'Carillon' (reciter, M. Joseph Faes), and the 'Tannhäuser' Overture.

Mr. William Woolley's Choral Society gave its annual concert on February 11, when the programme included works by Hubert Bath, Orlando Gibbons, Brahms, Walford Davies, and Coleridge-Taylor.

Mr. Allen Gill delivered a lecture at the University College on February 11, his subject being 'Music in the Modes.' Miss Amy Holman and Mr. Gill contributed examples from old songs, airs, and folk-songs, and choral illustrations were given by members of the Sacred Harmonic Society.

YORKSHIRE.

LEEDS.

On February 10 the Leeds Philharmonic Society gave an exceedingly fine performance of Verdi's 'Requiem. Mr. Verbrugghen, who conducted, thoroughly understood the emotional, strongly-coloured nature of the music, and emphasised it, though not unduly. The choir, which had been well drilled by Mr. Fricker, responded quickly, and its singing was full of colour and highly expressive. The soloists, Miss Agnes Nicholls, Madame Kirkby Lunn, Mr. Frank Mullings, and Mr. William Hayle, were quite equal to their prominent and most effective share in the work, and the Hallé Orchestra was at its best both in the 'Requiem' and in the two orchestral pieces of which the second part consisted, the 'Egmont' Overture and Liszt's 'Les Préludes.'

At the Bohemian Concert on January 27 a novelty to Leeds was afforded in Glazounov's String quartet in A, Op. 64, which, like all this composer's music, is admirably written, genial, and effective, but does not show the individual temperament revealed in Debussy's Quartet (Op. 10), which was also in the programme. It has been given at Leeds several times, but its freshness and interest have by no means evaporated. Mr. Alex. Cohen, Mr. Bensley Ghent, Miss Lily Simms, and Mr. Hemingway were the executants, and realised the spirit of the music very sympathetically. At the Harrison Concert on February 2, Madame Clara Butt appeared, with Miss Carrie Tubb, Mr. Walter Hyde, and Mr. Robert Radford, Miss Muriel Pickupp being the violinist and Miss Edie Marr the pianist. The performance maintained a high standard, but the programme was not of any special interest.

BRADFORD.

At the concerts of the Bradford Permanent Orchestra on January 23 and February 13, Mr. Julian Clifford was the conductor. On the former occasion, Tchaikovsky's 'Francesca da Rimini' was the central feature of the programme, and was played with tremendous force and vitality. Mendelssohn's G minor Pianoforte concerto has certainly lost some of its wonted charm, but it is capable of more piquancy than was given to the solo part by Mr. J. H. Woodcock's conscientious but not very inspired performance. Mr. Frank Mullings was the vocalist. On February 13, Dvorák's 'New World' Symphony, which is extraordinarily popular in this part of the country, was given, with Dr. Ethel Smyth's clever Overture to 'The Wreckers' and a movement from a Suite by Ivanov. The Hon. Mrs. Julian Clifford was the vocalist. The Subscription Concert on January 29 was of the character of a variety entertainment—songs, violin duets, and violoncello solos being varied by recitations and a part-song. The programme was of less account than the soloists, among whom Madame Clara Butt, and two clever young violinists, Miss Molly Blower and Miss Elsie Faulkner, may be mentioned. At the Free Chamber Concert on February 1 Beethoven's Violoncello sonata in G minor, Schubert's Pianoforte trio in B flat, and Dvorák's Pianoforte trio in G minor, were rather happily associated, since they are works in which the same spirit seems to recur. They were artistically played by Messrs. Dunford, Drake, and Midgley, Miss Carrie Birkbeck being the vocalist. On February 15, the programme included Sir Hubert Parry's early Pianoforte trio in E minor, a work of such power and beauty that its neglect is incomprehensible, Beethoven's great Trio in B flat, and Schubert's Violin sonata in A. Messrs. E. and H. Drake and Mr. Midgley were the executants, and Miss Patti Clayton was the vocalist.

OTHER TOWNS.

The Wakefield and District Choral Society gave a concert on January 20. Miss Doris Carter and Miss Phyllis Lett sang; and Mr. Maurice Taylor and M. Benno Moiseivitsch played violoncello and pianoforte solos. Mr. Edward Archer accompanied, and Mr. Percy H. Bligh conducted.

The Wakefield Chamber Concerts have this year been reduced to one, but this, which took place on January 28, was highly enjoyable. The Withers-Sammons Trio was heard in Brahms's seldom-played Pianoforte trio in C (Op. 87) and Arensky's very showy Trio in D minor, of which sympathetic and brilliant performances were given by Mr. Sammons, Mrs. Withers (pianoforte), and, in the absence through illness of Mr. Withers, Mr. Cedric Sharpe (violoncello). A pleasant feature of the concert was the very artistic singing of Miss Jean Waterston, who, with Miss Louie Heath at the pianoforte, gave with good effect a great variety of songs, from Schumann to Cyril Scott. At the Halifax Chamber Concert on February 12, three Manchester artists, Messrs. J. S. Bridge, J. H. Foulds, and R. J. Forbes, played Pianoforte trios by Beethoven (in E flat, Op. 70), and Dvorák (Op. 90), with good effect.

On February 3 Mr. Fred. Dawson visited Keighley and gave a pianoforte recital on behalf of the Belgian Relief Fund, playing the 'Appassionata' Sonata, Schumann's 'Papillons,' a series of Chopin pieces, and some interesting examples of more recent pianoforte music, with his accustomed brilliance and zest. On the invitation of the Mayor, a number of children from the Elementary Schools were present, but judging from their demeanour, hardly knew what to make of so unwonted an experience.

Answers to Correspondents.

Amateur.—Joule's 'Collection of chants' is still used in numerous churches notwithstanding the output of many other collections. Dr. Peace's 'Programme Notes for Organ Recitals' is published by Messrs. Novello & Co., price 5*s*.

Lashwood.—We cannot trace the carol from your description. If you send us a copy of the music and words we will make further inquiries.

(Other inquiries are held over or have been answered privately.)

Country and Colonial News.

Cheltenham.—On February 11 the Cheltenham Philharmonic Society gave a successful concert before a distinguished audience. Elgar's 'Carillon' was given, with Miss Ethel Smith as reciter. Mr. C. J. Phillips conducted.

Clitheroe.—The Blackburn Ladies' Choir gave a concert at Clitheroe on February 16. An excellent and difficult programme of part-songs was efficiently carried out under Mr. F. Duckworth. Miss Myra Dixon (vocalist), Miss Helena McCullagh (pianoforte), and Miss Mabel McCullagh (violin) assisted.

Cockermouth.—The Harmonic Society gave its sixty-first concert on February 10, when Gounod's 'Faust' (concert arrangement) was successfully performed under the direction of Mr. George Tootell. The band and choir numbered 120. The soloists were Miss Evangeline Florence, Mr. Wilfrid Abor, and Mr. Cuthbert Allan.

Leek.—The Leek Amateur Musical Society gave a Patriotic Concert in the Town Hall on February 1, when Elgar's 'The Banner of St. George' and part-songs by Faning and Elgar were performed. The soloists were Madame Lily Moffitt, Mr. William Elliot, and Mr. Fred. C. Morris (violin). Mr. John Cope conducted.

Rugeley.—Elgar's 'The banner of St. George' was chosen by the Rugeley Choral Society, and a highly creditable performance was given last month under Mr. G. H. Grummitt's direction. Miss C. Gardner was the soprano soloist.

Southport.—The Southport Orchestral Society gave a concert on January 29. Mr. William Rimmer conducted. Schubert's 'Unfinished' Symphony and German's 'Welsh Rhapsody' were items in the programme. Mr. John Clarke (tenor) and Mr. Walter Hatton (violoncello) performed.

Toronto.—The National Chorus had a large and appreciative audience at its concert in January. The programme consisted mainly of French and English music, the latter including Coleridge-Taylor's 'Sea-Drift,' and Elgar's 'Death on the hills' (which was a notable success), 'It comes from the misty ages,' and 'Weary wind of the west.' Miss Maggie Teyte sang songs by Debussy, Charpentier, and Hué. Dr. Albert Ham conducted.

Miscellaneous.

At Claridge's Hotel on February 8 Miss Ethel Rayson gave a lecture-recital on 'The Romantic movement in literature and music.' The occasion was on behalf of the British Red Cross Society, and we are informed that the excellent attendance has resulted in a substantial sum being added to the funds.

At the meeting of the Musical Association held on February 16, the Rev. E. H. Fellowes gave an informing lecture on 'John Wilbye,' the great English madrigal composer. We regret we are compelled to hold over a report until April.

Miss Katherine Doubleday is an accomplished pianist. Her recital at the Æolian Hall on February 16 drew an excellent audience. Amongst the pieces she played was Franck's 'Prélude, Arie, et Finale.' Miss Winifrid Small (violin) was another attraction.

On February 13 the Incorporated Society of Musicians paid a visit to Southwark Cathedral. In the Chapter House Mr. E. T. Cook, the organist, lectured on 'English church music of the 16th and 17th centuries.'

Mr. Donald Tovey gave six pianoforte recitals at the Æolian Hall during February. His performances displayed many fine artistic qualities.

A students' concert given on February 1 at Trinity College of Music served to show that the teaching in this well-established institution is first-rate.

On February 3, at a War concert given at the Mansion House, Sir Charles Santley (81) and Mr. Edward Lloyd (69) sang.

Glinka's 'Life for the Czar' was performed at the Playhouse on January 21, in aid of the Grand Duke Michael's Fund.

This Supplement is part also of the March issue of THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW, and can be obtained with the REVIEW, price 1½*d.*

The Competition Festival Record

No. 80.

THE ROYAL NATIONAL EISTEDDFOD OF WALES, 1916.

(To be held at BANGOR, not ABERYSTWYTH.)

In our last issue we gave some details of the syllabus issued by the committee of the Royal National Eisteddfod, announced to be held at Aberystwyth this autumn. We are now officially informed that this event is postponed to 1916, and that the National Eisteddfod will be held at Bangor as stated below. The following is from the syllabus of the Bangor event:

Tests for the chief choral competitions:

CHIEF CHORAL COMPETITION (open to all comers).

Number of voices, 150 to 200.
First prize, £150. Second prize, £40.

'When Israel out of Egypt' (Mendelssohn).
'They that go down to the sea in ships' (Bantock).
'Y Mebyn-ôd' ('The snow flake') (E. T. Davies).

SECOND CHORAL COMPETITION (open to all comers).

Number of voices, 60 to 80.
First prize, £40. Second prize, £10.

'Put off, O Jerusalem' (Hubert Parry).
'The Indian serenade' (Christmas Williams).
'The summer night' ('Yr hafaidd nos') (Vaughan Thomas).

COMPETITION FOR MALE CHOIRS (open to all comers).

Number of voices, 50 to 80.
First prize, £40. Second prize, £10.

'O, mariners out of the sunlight' (Coleridge-Taylor).
'The Assyrian came down' (Cyril Jenkins).
'Canu'r wyf dan chwareu'r Crwth' (D. D. Parry).

COMPETITION FOR FEMALE CHOIRS (open to all comers).

Number of voices, 30 to 40.
Prizes, £20 and £5.

'The Lord is my Shepherd' (Schubert).
'Cân yr Eos' ('The nightingale's song') (E. T. Davies).

COMPETITION FOR CHILDREN'S CHOIRS (age limit, 16). (Open to all comers.)

Number of voices, 40 to 50.
Prizes, £10, £3 and £2.

'The nightingale' (Weelkes).
'Madelein' (Mark Evans).

The date of the Eisteddfod, which was postponed from last year owing to the War, has not yet been fixed, but it will probably be held in August or September, 1915.

The secretary is Mr. T. R. Roberts, Breeze Hill, Colwyn Bay.

FAILSWORTH, MANCHESTER.—January 30.

The diversified programme presented at the Annual Juvenile Musical Festival, organized by the Failsworth Industrial Co-operative Society, comprised pianoforte, violin, solo-singing, sight-test, recitation, action-song, and choral competitions. A marked feature was the preponderance of budding pianists, who, divided into two classes, outnumbered all the entries in the other musical classes put together.

The winners in the individually tested classes were Lucy White (junior pianoforte), Frank Clough (senior pianoforte), Edith Taylor and George F. Thorp (solo-singing), and Clarence Swift (violin).

Out of the six competing choirs in the action-song class, four were drawn from the Hulme Hall Lane Wesleyan Sunday School, one of which carried off the second-prize with 'Good night,' the first falling to Holy Trinity Girls (Miss A. Powell) for their performance of the same work.

There were only two competitors in the choral class, who sang Este's three-part glee, 'How merrily we live,' and Robertson's 'Jenny Wren and Robin Redbreast.'

		Marks.
1st.	Eccles Co-operative Juvenile Prize Choir (Mr. James Currie)	182
2nd.	Longsight Juvenile Choir (Mr. Frank Owen)	169

The Eccles Choir thus repeated the success they achieved last year.

Dr. Thomas Keighley adjudicated.

NOTTINGHAM.—February 6.

The ordinary competitive musical Festival having been suspended on account of the War, a less ambitious scheme was devised to meet the needs of the juniors and the Girls' Friendly Society choirs and clubs. There were seven classes in the competition, and the entries were satisfactory.

The following are some of the results:

Girls' Solo.—Test: 'My mother bids me bind my hair' (Haydn); Miss Edith Hickling.

Soprano.—Test: 'Rose, softly blooming' (Spohr); Miss Edith Rhodes.

Contralto.—Miss Edith Newman.

Girls' Choirs (Open).—Tests: 'A song of the year' (Harrison) and 'Beauty and truth' (Coleridge-Taylor); Nottingham G.F.S. Lodge.

Girls' Choirs (Choirs in the Nottingham and District Girls' Evening Homes and Clubs).—Tests: 'Winds are blowing' (Battison Haynes) and 'Beauty and truth' (Coleridge-Taylor); Mansfield Road Girls' Club.

Mr. Allen Gill and Mr. Arthur Barlow adjudicated.

The prizes were distributed by the Duchess of Newcastle.

HUDDERSFIELD ('THE MRS. SUNDERLAND') FESTIVAL.—February 12, 13.

This well-established Festival was held successfully notwithstanding the distraction of the War. Huddersfield is one of the Yorkshire cities that have been kept busy because of the War, and the demand for skilled and able-bodied workpeople has kept many male choralists at home who might otherwise have been with the Army.

The following is a summary of the results. The maximum number of marks for each test was 100:

Contralto Solo.—Tests: 'Hence, Iris, hence away' (Handel's 'Semele') and 'Hindoo song' (H. Bemberg); Addyce Shuttleworth, Todmorden.

Tenor Solo.—Tests: 'Love sounds the alarm' (Handel's 'Acis and Galatea') and 'Come, Margarita, come' (Sullivan's 'Martyr of Antioch'); Wilfred Butler, Huddersfield.

Pianoforte Solo (Senior).—Tests: Rondo from Sonata in E flat major, Op. 7 (Beethoven), and Polonaise in A flat, Op. 53 (Chopin); H. Augustus Leah, Huddersfield.

Pianoforte Solo (Junior).—Tests: Rondo in B flat, Op. 107 (Hummel), and Rondino, Op. 28, No. 2 (Sterndale Bennett); William Baines, Cleckheaton.

Choirboy's Solo.—Tests: 'O bid your faithful Ariel fly' (Linley) and 'The fairy pipers' (A. H. Brewer); Arthur Northrop, Bradford.

Mixed-Voice Choirs.—Tests: part-song, 'The sea shell' (Coleridge-Taylor), and 'The snowflake' (E. T. Davies); Gledholt Vocal Union (Mr. J. Fletcher Sykes).

Male-Voice Choirs.—Tests: Part-song, 'Soldier, rest' (Oliver King), and part-song, 'Twilight' (Dudley Buck); Holme Valley Male-Voice Choir (Mr. Irving Silverwood).

Public Elementary School Choirs (Open).—Tests: two-part song, 'Song of summer winds' (Percy E. Fletcher), and two-part song, 'Golden slumbers' (A. H. Brewer); Lower Wortley Boys' Council School.

Dr. A. H. Brewer adjudicated.

The Yorkshire Post says:

'One of the most remarkable features was the singing of the elementary school-children. Four choirs had survived the afternoon's test, and at night they charmed everyone by their singing of one of Dr. Brewer's own compositions—a dainty and exceedingly difficult lullaby, "Golden Slumbers." One feels that this delicate tone-poem could never have been written for children. Certainly, no teacher would undertake it except under the stimulus of a competition such as this, and in any case nothing less than a process of "forcing" would achieve the desired end. Thus the finished product presented itself as a kind of exotic. Conductors played upon their youthful choirs as upon some delicate instrument, and skilled grown-ups could hardly have responded with more perfect nuances. In the end, the award came to the Lower Wortley Boys' Council School, Leeds.

'Delightful, too, was the singing of the adult mixed choirs. They were all under perfect control, and the evening test-piece, "Snowflakes," by E. T. Davies, gave ample scope for delicate expression and also for the genius of true interpretation. The Gledholt Vocal Union, which secured the highest marks, was beautifully cohesive, and though no part dominated another, the tone of the sopranos was true and full. The Bradford Vocal Union gave a very finished rendering of the same piece, but in this case the adjudicator had occasion to warn singers against adopting the vibrato habit. One of the chief glories of these contests is the singing of male-voice choirs, for which the West Riding is famous. Probably, however, the War has interfered with some of these combinations, and now only four were entered. But they fully maintained the traditions of the Festival in wealth as well as volume of tone, and in dramatic power. The prize went to the Holme Valley Choir, which gained the ascendancy both morning and night—a magnificent body of voices.'

SCHOOL CHOIR COMPETITIONS IN SOUTH AFRICA.

The Education Gazette (South Africa) gives full accounts of school competitions held during the autumn.

Malmesbury and Paarl Mission School Choir Competition.

The competition was held in the Town Hall, Paarl, on October 16 last, in the presence of a large and deeply interested audience.

Mr. Arthur Lee, Departmental Instructor, adjudicated.

Prescribed song: 'The spring, the pleasant spring,' by R. Spofforth.—This song was sung with much refinement by Klein Drakenstein and Malmesbury. The shades of feeling were brought out better by the latter choir. Wellington did creditably, considering that this was the first time the teacher had taken part in a competition. The rendering was correct, the tone of pleasing quality, but of piano singing there was little.

Own-choice songs: 'How lovely are the messengers,' by Mendelssohn (Malmesbury).—The choir was under capital control, and the work-up to the climax was effected with skill. 'Away from scenes of earthly sadness,' by R. Muller (Klein Drakenstein).—The outstanding features of this part-song were exact attention to detail, good feeling, and pure vowel quantities. 'The time of joy,' by Gastoldi (Wellington).—The singing was hearty, but the heartiness was in no place exaggerated.

Sight-singing: The first test was sung in fine style by Malmesbury and Klein Drakenstein. The tone of the former choir was fuller, and a few members of the latter overlooked some octave marks. Klein Drakenstein gripped the rhythm of the dual test firmly. Individuals of the Wellington Choir read well

The award was made in favour of Malmesbury Choir, trained by Mr. J. B. Oppelt.

The winners of the Departmental prizes offered for efficiency in writing from ear were won by Susanna Oppelt and Magdalena Hendricks (Malmesbury), Susie Klaasen and Minnie April (Wellingson), Sophia Otto and Mozes Lambert (Klein Drakenstein).

As a result of the competition, £7 1s. 9d. was made over to War Relief Funds.

The prescribed song for 1915 is 'The angel of the rain,' trio by Roland Rogers.

Ceres, Piquetberg and Tulbagh Public School Choir Competition.

Piquetberg Choir sang in the Zaal on the October 22, 1914. There was a fair gathering of the public, and after deducting expenses, £1 7s. 6d. was sent in to the War Relief Funds. It is to be regretted that the Public Schools at Porterville, Ceres, and Tulbagh did not take part in the competition.

Mr. Arthur Lee adjudicated, and reported as follows:

In a three-part setting of 'Robin Adair' the second soprano and alto were a little too strong. Intervals were correct and the modulations were taken with confidence. Articulation was somewhat forced, and there was a tendency to quit long notes too early. The balance of parts in Cowen's 'Violets' was satisfactory, but the keenness of the choir for clear articulation led to some clipping of words. Otherwise the rendering of both items was very creditable. Mendelssohn's 'Then shall the righteous shine forth as the sun' ('Elijah') was given as the unison sight-test in the lower key. [This is notable.—Ed., C.F.R.] The first half was read very well indeed, but on account of a failure to return to the original key the latter part, although correct in itself, was sung in a wrong key. The two-part test, an adaptation of the last verse of Balfe's duet, 'Excelsior' gave the pupils no trouble. Except in the selection from 'Elijah,' the choir finished each item of the competition in perfect tune—an excellent testimony to the natural and unstrained use of the vocal organs.

The shield will be held for 1914-15 by the Piquetberg Public School Choir, which was trained by Miss A. S. Curlewis.

The ear-test prizes were won by Anna Arangies and Minnie Baransky.

The song prescribed for 1915 is 'Serenade,' by Bertram Luard-Selby.

COMING COMPETITIONS

(With Secretaries' Names).

March.—Haughton and District (Staffordshire). Eleven classes, village choirs and school choirs. Two open classes are for choirs of mixed voices, another for male voices. No solos or instrumental classes. Miss B. E. Royds, Haughton, near Stafford.

March 20.—Sheffield. Under the auspices of the Clarion Vocal Union. The syllabus has not reached us.

March 26, 27. Wansbeck (Morpeth). The programme is on the usual scale—eight junior classes and eighteen adult classes,—and includes vocal solos for boys and tenors, violin and string quartets. No pianoforte. Mrs. Orde, Nunnykirk, Morpeth.

April 16, 17.—Belfast. The syllabus of this Festival has just been issued. Forty-three classes are provided for. They include choirs of all kinds and several for instruments. The Northern Whig, in backing up the event, says, 'Surely the music-lovers of Belfast will see that the movement, which has now been firmly established in our midst as an annual event, will not suffer on this occasion. The times are exceptional, but there is no reason why we should hang our harps upon the willows.' We trust the courage of the committee will be justified by a full response. Miss L. Murphy, B.A., Churchill, Craigavad, Belfast.

April 27, 28.—Whitby, Yorkshire. The Eskdale Tournament of Song. The syllabus has just been issued. It is evident that the unscrupulous bombardment of this 'fortified' town has not intimidated the townsfolk. The syllabus is an elaborate one, enumerating thirty-three classes. Thirteen classes are for juniors. Although the event is styled a tournament of song, there are classes for pianoforte, violin, violoncello, string quartet, pianoforte trio, combined violins for junior, and accompaniment at sight. The Misses C. and M. Yeoman, Woodlands, Sleights, S.O.

May 1.—Glasgow. Originally it was intended to enlarge the scope of this already important event. But this year it has been deemed expedient not to attempt to do more than encourage the schools, female-voice choirs, vocal quartets, and adult solo singers (six classes). The following statement as to the tests is made in the syllabus: 'The committee—although not actuated by any Chauvinistic spirit—has thought the present an appropriate time to exploit more fully than heretofore the creative resources of British musicianship. The result is an "all-British" syllabus of outstanding interest.' We hope to find space in our next issue for this patriotic list of tests. Mr. Hugh S. Roberton, 115, Renfield Street, Glasgow.

May 5, 6.—Tewkesbury. The first competition was held here in March, 1914, and was a great success. This year's scheme, which was drafted before the War, is to be persevered with as far as it is found possible. Over a thousand men in the neighbourhood have joined the Army. Eighteen classes are enumerated in the syllabus. Choirs of all kinds, solos for all voices, pianoforte and violin playing, and string quartets are provided for. Mrs. Purcell Wilson, Avonbank, Tewkesbury.

May 10 to 15.—'Feis Ceoil' Irish Musical Festival, Dublin. The syllabus of this leading event ignores all reference to the effects of the War, and the programme is as elaborate as ever. Sixty-four classes, covering almost every department of musical activity, are enumerated. The selection of tests must have been a heavy task. No fewer than 114 pieces are scheduled. The syllabus is an interesting record of the event since its establishment in 1897. The budget of last year's Festival shows a turnover of £772 3*s.* 10*d.*, the loss for that year being £30 3*s.* 10*d.* Miss Edith Mortier, 37, Molesworth Street, Dublin.

May 19, 20.—Taunton. Thirty-five classes, including junior choirs and boys' solos, junior violin and pianoforte, Morris dances, Country dances, Singing games, and senior violin and pianoforte accompanying, organ, string orchestra, vocal solos (seven classes), and female-voice, male-voice, and mixed-voice choirs. Miss Lucy Hook, 11, Middle Street, Taunton, and Mr. E. Edgcombe, One Ash, Taunton.

May 20, 21. The sixth Cornwall Competition. To be held at Wadebridge (a new centre). This Festival has been promoted by Lady Mary Trefusis. Sixteen classes, mostly for school choirs. No adult mixed-voiced choirs on this occasion, but choirs of women's voices are provided for. Pianoforte, violin, viola, and violoncello are also included. The Lady Mary Trefusis, Porthgwidden, Devoran, Cornwall.

PEOPLE'S PALACE MUSICAL FESTIVAL.

February 25, 27, April 30, and ten dates in May.

We have now before us the full syllabus of this important Festival, which, as stated above, will be spread over thirteen days. Sixteen classes are enumerated, but as many of these are subdivided into graded sections there are really forty-two classes. The appeal is chiefly to choral societies of all grades and constitution—church choirs, children's choirs, elementary, secondary, and continuation school choirs. There are also sections for children's violin bands, male-voice quartets (no alto allowed), mixed-voice quartets, trios for S.S.A., violin and pianoforte duet, instrumental trios, string quartets, and orchestras (full, and for strings only). The combined music includes Parry's 'Blest Pair of Sirens' and Purcell's fine chorus 'Soul of the World.' The hon. secretary is Miss Edith Barran, 33, Elgar Street, Rotherhithe, S.E.

SLIGO FEIS CEOIL.—April 7, 8, 9.

Like Belfast and Coleraine, this Festival has issued its syllabus and seems determined to carry the event through. There are ten classes for choirs, eight for vocal quartets, trios, and duets. Solo-singing has no fewer than sixteen classes. Instrumental music has thirty-six classes. In an Irish section (Gaelic words) there are school choir classes and solo-singing, and there are five classes for dancing. The secretary is Mr. H. C. Gordon McCormick, Sligo.

The above are in addition to Festivals announced in recent issues of the COMPETITION FESTIVAL RECORD:

Macclesfield.
Coleraine (Ireland).
Stratford (London, E.).
South-West London.
Ilkley (Wharfedale).
West Sussex (Chichester).
Hastings.
Morecambe.
London Working Girls' Federation of Girls' Clubs.
Manchester and District.

The following was written by Dr. McNaught as an introduction to the first People's Palace Festival, and it is reproduced here for the information of any who may be thinking of competing:

'THE PEOPLE'S PALACE COMPETITION MUSICAL FESTIVAL.

'What does it all mean? In the first place, it means a gathering of all sorts and conditions of persons interested in music—as performers or listeners—and of persons not necessarily musical but interested in the welfare of the community. It certainly does not mean merely an exhibition of skill from first-rate performers. That will be a pleasant incident. What we want also is the comparatively inefficient to come and learn to know what there is to do and how to do it, and to get a new outlook—a new motive for practice and untold pleasure and re-creation of spirit. It does not matter if you do not win a prize. You must gain something by taking even a humble part in the proceedings. Is there an ill-balanced choir bravely working away in some out-of-the-way corner? We want that choir and its conductor to come and do what it can to help to make the gathering comprehensive. Is there a girls' club singing-class where the attendance is unavoidably irregular and the girls are often tired, and where, therefore, not very much can be accomplished even by the most devoted teachers? If yes, then we particularly want that class to come, and get new ideas and desires that will encourage the girls all the year round.

'The first aim of the Festival is to assemble under one roof and on a memorable occasion as many as possible of the existing organizations, small and large, that practise music, and we hope that this will lead to the creation of many other similar organizations. We want you to meet one another, as we all do in games, in friendly rivalry, and we want to be all knit together by the common desire to get pleasure and solace out of the most wonderful of all the arts.

'Even to the best isolation may mean partial stagnation. A choir of any grade has its purpose strengthened when it hears another choir better or worse than itself. Loyalty to a conductor and to your own side in the game stimulates you to do your very best.

'I believe that there are many undreamt-of possibilities for music in the East of London. The best choir I ever had the honour to conduct was composed of 150 enthusiastic East-enders. It is worth while to add that this choir was brought into being in order to compete at the Crystal Palace in 1873, and it was their winning of the first-prize on that occasion that made their reputation and set them going for twenty-five years. So much for the fruit of one competition!'

THE MORRIS BOOK

A HISTORY OF MORRIS DANCING WITH A DESCRIPTION OF DANCES AS PERFORMED BY THE MORRIS-MEN OF ENGLAND.

By CECIL J. SHARP and HERBERT C. MACILWAINE.

PART I. (Second Edition). Containing a description, &c. of the Dances in Sets I. & II. of Traditional MORRIS DANCE TUNES.

PART II. Containing a description, &c., of the Dances in Sets III. and IV. of Traditional MORRIS DANCE TUNES.

PART III. Containing a description, &c., of the Dances in Sets V. and VI. of Traditional MORRIS DANCE TUNES.

PART IV. Containing a description, &c., of the Dances in Sets VII. and VIII. of Traditional MORRIS DANCE TUNES.

PART V.

Containing a description, &c., of the Dances in Sets IX. and X. of Traditional MORRIS DANCE TUNES.

Price, Two Shillings and Sixpence each Part. Cloth, Three Shillings and Sixpence each Part.

MORRIS DANCE TUNES

ARRANGED WITH PIANOFORTE ACCOMPANIMENT.

Price Two Shillings each Set.

SET I. (Second Edition.)
Bean Setting (Stick Dance).
Laudnum Bunches (Corner Dance).
Country Gardens (Handkerchief Dance).
Constant Billy (Stick Dance).
Trunkles (Corner Dance).
Rigs o' Marlow (Stick Dance).
How d'ye do? (Corner Dance).
Tideswell Processional (Morris).

SET II. (Second Edition.)
Blue-Eyed Stranger (Handkerchief Dance).
The Maid of the Mill (Linked Handkerchief Dance).
The Old Woman tossed up (Handkerchief Dance).
Shepherd's Hey (Stick or Hand-Clapping Dance).
The Cuckoo's Nest (Stick, or Hand-Clapping Dance).
The Black Joke (Stick, or Hand-Clapping Dance).
Tideswell Processional Morris.

SET III.
Morris On, or Hey Diddle Dis.
Hunting the Squirrel (Stick Dance).
Getting Upstairs (Handkerchief Dance).
Double Set Back (Handkerchief Dance).
Haste to the Wedding (Handkerchief Dance).
Rodney (Stick Dance).
Processional Morris.

SET IV.
Morris On, or Hey Diddle Dis.
Jockie to the Fair.
Old Mother Oxford.
Old Woman Tossed up in a Blanket.
Bacca Pipes Jig.
Processional Morris.

SET V.
Flowers of Edinburgh (Handkerchief Dance).
The Maid of the Mill (Handkerchief Dance).
The Maid of the Mill (Handkerchief Dance) Alternative Version.
Bobbing Joe (Handkerchief Dance).
Shepherd's Hey (Handkerchief Dance), 2nd Version.
Glorishears (Handkerchief Dance).
The Gallant Hussar (Handkerchief Dance).
Leap-Frog (Handkerchief Dance).

SET VI.
Shooting (Stick Dance).
Brighton Camp (Handkerchief Dance).
Green Garters (Handkerchief Dance).
Princess Royal (Jig).
Lumps of Plum Pudding (Jig).
The Fool's Dance (Jig).
Derbyshire Morris Dance (Handkerchief Dance).
Derbyshire Morris Reel (Handkerchief Dance).

SET VII.
The Old Woman tossed up in a Blanket (Handkerchief Dance)
The Cuckoo's Nest (Handkerchief Dance).
The Monks' March (Heel-and-Toe Dance).
Lads a-Bunchun (Corner Dance).
Longborough Morris, or Hey Diddle Dis (Handkerchief Dance)
London Pride (Handkerchief Dance).
Swaggering Boney (Corner Dance).
Young Collins (Handkerchief Dance).
The Rose (Handkerchief Dance).
Field Town Morris (Handkerchief Dance).

SET VIII.
Heel-and-Toe (Handkerchief Dance).
Bobby and Joan (Stick Dance).
Banks of the Dee (Handkerchief Dance).
Dearest Dicky (Corner Dance).
Step Back (Handkerchief Dance).
I'll go and enlist for a Sailor (Jig).
Sherborne Jig (Jig).
Princess Royal (Jig). 2nd Version.
None so pretty (Jig).

SET IX.
Old Black Joe (Handkerchief Dance, Badby Tradition).
The Beaux of London City (Stick Dance, Badby Tradition).
The Gallant Hussar (Handkerchief Dance, Bledington Tradition).
Trunkles, 2nd Version (Corner Dance, Bledington Tradition).
William and Nancy (Handkerchief Dance, Bledington Tradition).
Leap-Frog (Handkerchief Dance, Bledington Tradition).
Lumps of Plum Pudding, 2nd Version (Jig, Bledington Tradition).
Ladies' Pleasure (Jig, Bledington Tradition).
Helston Furry Dance (Processional).

SET X.
Bonny Green (Handkerchief Dance, Bucknell Tradition).
Room for the Cuckoo (Hand-clapping Dance, Bucknell Tradition).
The Queen's delight (Corner Dance, Bucknell Tradition).
Saturday Night (Progressive Dance, Bucknell Tradition).
Bonnets so Blue (Jig, Bucknell Tradition).
Constant Billy, 2nd Version (Handkerchief Dance, Longborough Tradition).
Shepherd's Hey, 4th Version (Handkerchief Dance, Field Town Tradition).
Leap Frog, 2nd Version (Handkerchief Dance, Field Town Tradition).
Wyresdale Greensleeves Dance (Three-Men Dance).
Castleton Garland Dance (Processional).

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

Lighten our darkness

COMPOSED BY

JOSIAH BOOTH.

78. Above all praise Mendelssohn 1½d.
145. Almighty and Everlasting God A. M. Richardson 1½d.
Ditto .. J. S. Smith 1½d.
122. Almighty God, Who hast Ford 1½d.
20. And I saw another Angel Stanford 2d.
24. Arise, O Jerusalem Oliver King 1½d.
36. Arise, O Lord .. G. F. Cobb 1½d.
126. Arise, O Lord .. Hervey 1½d.
168. Arise, ye people .. W. Hayes 1½d.
60. Ave Maria .. .. Arcadelt 1½d.
48. Ave Verum .. .. J. White 1½d.
90. Awake up, my glory F. Iliffe 1½d.
177. Be not Thou far from me Hird 1½d.
193. Behold, God is my .. Stainer 1½d.
165. Behold, O God C. Macpherson 1½d.
117. Ditto G. C. Martin 2d.
195. Behold the Lord .. Thorne 1½d.
30. Beloved, if God so loved Barnby 1½d.
35. Beloved, let us love G. F. Cobb 1½d.
10. Beloved, now are we E. H. Thorne 1½d.
204. Beside Thy cradle J. S. Bach 1½d.
160. Blessed are they S. S. Wesley 1½d.
185. Blessed be the Lord Ouseley 1½d.
125. Blessed be Thou, O Lord Lloyd 2d.
143. Blessed is He A. H. Brewer 1½d.
9. Blessed is He B. Luard-Selby 1½d.
199. Ditto .. Verrinder 1½d.
26. Blessed is the man .. Oliver King 1½d.
194. Ditto .. J. Stainer 1½d.
207. Blessed Lord C. Lee Williams 1½d.
98. Bread of the world John E. West 2d.
167. Break forth .. J. S. Bach 1½d.
17. Christ is not entered E. Faning 1½d.
59. Come, let us worship Palestrina 1½d.
102. Come unto Me .. H. Hiles 2d.
40. Ditto M. Kingston 1½d.
173. Come, ye blessed .. Barnby 1½d.
108. Deliver me, O Lord J. Stainer 1½d.
127. Deliver us, O Lord .. Batten 1½d.
164. Except the Lord F. H. Cowen 1½d.
135. Father of all .. .. .. Tye 1½d.
25. For it became Him Oliver King 1½d.
81. For our offences Mendelssohn 1½d.
179. Forth from the dark .. Hook 1½d.
91. Fret not thyself .. F. Iliffe 1½d.
60. Give ear unto my prayer Arcadelt 1½d.
114. Give rest, O Christ Arranged 1½d.
38. God so loved the world Kingston 1½d.
1. God, Who is rich in mercy Garrett 1½d.
11. Grant, we beseech Thee J. Booth 1½d.
205. Ditto C. Lee Williams 1½d.
141. Hark, hark, my soul Oliver King 1½d.
147. Haste Thee, O God J. Hopkins 1½d.
47. Have mercy upon me J. White 1½d.
210. He that soweth .. J. B. Calkin 1½d.
130. Hide me under the shadow West 1½d.
123. Hide not Thou Thy Face Farrant 1½d.
213. Ho! ye that thirst C. Tye 1½d.
107. Holy, Holy, Holy .. F. Cellier 1½d.
124. How dreadful is this place Monk 1½d.
163. How still and peaceful C. Tye 1½d.
111. I am not worthy C. Lee Williams 3d.
170. I am Thine, O save me Wesley 1½d.
82. I heard a voice G. M. Garrett 1½d.
86. I heard a voice .. A. Gray 1½d.
157. I heard a voice C. V. Stanford 1½d.
92. I look for the Lord .. F. Iliffe 1½d.
54. I will arise .. .. Ch. Wood 1½d.
42. I will go forth .. H. Blair 1½d.
189. I will go to the altar .. Reay 1½d.
131. I will go unto the altar H. Gadsby 2d.
186. I will lay me down in peace C. Lee Williams 1½d.
8. I will magnify Thee Luard-Selby 1½d.
37. I will wash my hands A. D. Culley 1½d.
85. If any man sin Thos. Adams 1½d.
103. If any man sin .. H. Hiles 1½d.
21. If thou shalt confess C. V. Stanford 2d.
215. In life's gay morn ... C. Tye 1½d.
18. In this was manifested C. H. Lloyd 3d.
155. Is it nothing to you Ouseley 1½d.
206. It is high time .. Williams 1½d.
22. It is of the Lord's mercies Thorne 1½d.
56. Jesu, Saviour, I am Thine Steane 1½d.
46. Jesu, Who from Thy F. C. Woods 3d.
48. Jesu, Word of God J. White 1½d.
64. Jesus said unto the people Stainer 1½d.
186. Judge me, O God .. Ouseley 1½d.
208. Judge nothing before Williams 1½d.
61. Lead me, Lord S. S. Wesley 1½d.
116. Let my prayer be set forth Martin 1½d.
166. Ditto C. Macpherson 1½d.
118. Let my prayer come up Purcell 1½d.
80. Let our hearts be Mendelssohn 1½d.
139. Let the wicked forsake his way Goss 1½d.
32. Let the words of my mouth Blair 1½d.
117. Let Thy hand be strengthened G. C. Martin 2d.
65. Let us come boldly C. H. Lloyd 1½d.
209. Let your moderation Williams 1½d.
137. Lift up the everlasting gates Tye 1½d.
161. Lo! from the hills .. Williams 1½d.
120. Lo, the day of rest Elliot Button 1½d.
19. Lo, the Winter is past H. Gadsby 3d.
142. Lord God Almighty, hear Verdonck 1½d.
93. Lord, I call upon Thee F. Iliffe 1½d.
140. Lord, in thankful love Schubert 1½d.
79. Lord, on our offences Mendelssohn 1½d.
128. Lord, we beseech Thee Batten 1½d.
149. Lord, we pray Thee Chambers 1½d.
154. Love not the world Ouseley 1½d.
62. Master, what shall I do Bowes 1½d.
100. Mercy and truth .. A. Sullivan 2d.
176. Mine eyes are ever Hamilton 1½d.
212. Mock not God's name C. Tye 1½d.
94. My song shall be of mercy F. Iliffe 1½d.
73. O Day-spring .. J. Stainer 1½d.
148. O do well unto Thy servant West 1½d.
75. O Emmanuel .. J. Stainer 1½d.
146. O God, forasmuch as Richardson 1½d.
136. O God of Bethel .. .. Tye 1½d.
162. O God, our help C. Lee Williams 1½d.
23. O God, Whose nature A. Gray 1½d.
214. O happy is the man C. Tye 1½d.
119. O hearken Thou .. A. Sullivan 1½d.
72. O Key of David .. J. Stainer 1½d.
74. O King and Desire J. Stainer 1½d.
70. O Lord and Ruler .. J. Stainer 1½d.
53. O Lord, correct me J. Coward 1½d.
67. O Lord, give ear W. H. Cummings 2d.
133. O Lord, give Thy Holy Tallis 1½d.
113. O Lord, grant the King Child 2d.
138. O Lord, increase my faith Gibbons 1½d.
159. O Lord, my God C. Lee Williams 2d.
13. O Lord, my trust .. King Hall 1½d.
15. O Lord, rebuke me not H. Lahee 1½d.
132. O Lord, we beseech Thee Shaw 2d.
57. O Lord, Who hast .. Iggulden 1½d.
188. O Lord, why sleepest Thou Reay 1½d.
33. O most merciful .. J. W. Elliott 1½d.
89. O Perfect Love H. Elliot Button 1½d.
112. O Perfect Love .. C. L. Naylor 2d.
43. O praise God .. H. Blair 1½d.
174. O praise the Lord, all ye Barnby 1½d.
203. O praise the Lord F. Champneys 2d.
71. O Root of Jesse .. J. Stainer 1½d.
104. O Saving Victim .. J. Stainer 2d.
218. Ditto A. W. Wilson 1½d.
171. O send out Thy light Armes 1½d.
84. Ditto J. B. Calkin 2d.
69. O Wisdom .. .. J. Stainer 1½d.
95. O worship the Lord F. Iliffe 1½d.
196. Ditto E. H. Thorne 1½d.
178. O ye priests of the Lord Hird 1½d.
39. O ye that love the Lord Elliott 1½d.
44. O ye that love the Lord S. Coleridge-Taylor 1½d.
217. Our Father which art Phillips 1½d.
7. Our soul on God G. M. Garrett 1½d.
45. Ponder my words, O Lord Culley 1½d.
3. Praised be the Lord daily Calkin 1½d.
105. Prevent us, O Lord A. H. Brewer 1½d.
14. Rejoice greatly .. Woodward 1½d.
175. Rejoice in the Lord .. Calkin 1½d.
187. Ditto .. Reay 1½d.
76. Rejoice, O ye people Mendelssohn 1½d.
144. Rejoice ye with Jerusalem King 1½d.
200. Remember, Lord .. Verrinder 1½d.
153. Rend your heart .. Ouseley 1½d.
129. Seek the Lord H. Elliot Button 1½d.
201. Seek ye the Lord .. Verrinder 1½d.
49. Shew me Thy ways J. V. Roberts 3d.
115. Sing to the Lord .. .. Tye 1½d.
5. Teach me Thy way Gladstone 1½d.
55. The Angel of the Lord A. Gray 1½d.
190. The Gentiles shall come Reay 1½d.
4. The great day of the Lord is near G. C. Martin 1½d.
216. The Harvest truly .. Pearson 2d.
111. The Heavenly Word Williams 3d.
150. The Joy of our heart is ceased M. B. Foster 1½d.
202. The Light hath shined Verrinder 1½d.
181. The Lord hath been Macfarren 1½d.
198. The Lord hath brought us Thorne 1½d.
27. The Lord is in His Holy Elliott 1½d.
197. Ditto E. H. Thorne 1½d.
96. The Lord is King .. F. Iliffe 1½d.
88. The Lord is nigh .. Cummings 1½d.
31. The Lord is the True God J. Barnby 3d.
50. The Lord opened the doors F. C. Woods 1½d.
83. The Lord redeemeth J. B. Calkin 1½d.
191. The love of God .. .. Reay 1½d.
184. The pains of hell .. Monk 1½d.
52. The path of the just J. V. Roberts 1½d.
101. The Peace of God J. Rheinberger 1½d.
12. The pillars of the earth Tours 1½d.
134. The righteous souls Skeats 1½d.
41. The Sacrifices of God H. Blair 1½d.
152. The Salvation of the Righteous Ouseley 1½d.
34. Ditto Vincent 1½d.
169. The Souls of the righteous Hall 1½d.
87. The steps of a good man F. Cambridge 3d.
66. These are they which J. Goss 1½d.
180. These have left a name .. Hook 1½d.
192. This is the day .. .. Reay 1½d.
211. Thou didst turn Thy face Attwood 1½d.
77. Thou Lord, our Mendelssohn 1½d.
28. Thou shalt shew me the A. Gray 1½d.
29. To Thee do I lift up my soul Hall 1½d.
16. Try me, O God .. C. Wood 1½d.
99. Turn Thee again .. A. Sullivan 1½d.
158. Turn Thy face C. Lee Williams 2d.
51. Watch ye and pray G. R. Vicars 2d.
172. We wait for Thy loving Armes 1½d.
182. Ditto .. Macfarren 1½d.
2. When my soul fainted within me J. F. Bridge 1½d.
63. Wherewithal shall a young man Alcock 1½d.
183. While all things were Macfarren 1½d.
106. While we have time H. W. Parker 3d.
6. Who are we, O Lord C. H. Lloyd 1½d.
68. Whom have I in heaven Elvey 2d.
151. Whom have I in heaven Ouseley 2d.
110. Whom the Lord C. Macpherson 3d.
121. Why art thou so heavy Gibbons 1½d.
109. Why art thou so C. Macpherson 2d.
97. Worship and praise F. Iliffe 1½d.

(To be continued.)

LONDON : NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

4-3-14.

Lighten our darkness.

COLLECT, FOR AID AGAINST ALL PERILS.

Composed by JOSIAH BOOTH.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED; NEW YORK: THE H. W. GRAY CO., SOLE AGENTS FOR THE U.S.A.

Lento.
pp
Soprano.
Light - en our dark - ness we be - seech Thee, O Lord: and Alto.
Light - en our dark - ness we be - seech Thee, O Lord: and
Tenor.
Light - en our dark - ness we be - seech Thee, O Lord: and
Bass.
Light - en our dark - ness we be - seech Thee, O Lord: and Lento. ♩=62.
Organ.
f
pp
by Thy great mer - cy de - fend us from all per - ils and by Thy great mer - cy de - fend us from all per - ils and by Thy great mer - cy de - fend us from all per - ils, and by Thy great mer - cy de - fend us from all per - ils, and

Copyright, 1915, by Novello and Company, Limited.

mp
dan - gers of this night; . . for the love of Thy on - - ly
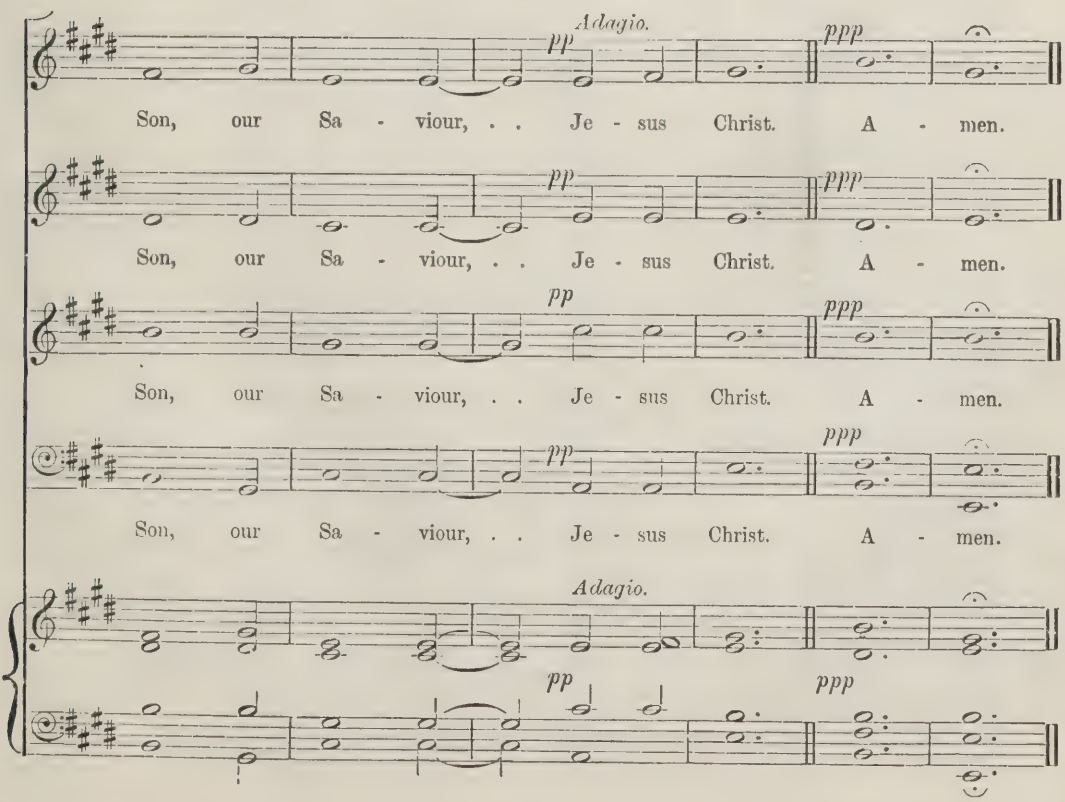
mp dan - gers of this night; . . for the love of Thy on - - ly
mp
dan - gers of this night; for the love of Thy on - - ly
mp
dan - gers of this night; for the love of Thy on - - ly
mp



Adagio.
pp
ppp
Son, our Sa - viour, . . Je - sus Christ. A - men.
pp
ppp
Son, our Sa - viour, . . Je - sus Christ. A - men.
pp
ppp
Son, our Sa - viour, . . Je - sus Christ. A - men.
pp
ppp
Son, our Sa - viour, . . Je - sus Christ. A - men.
Adagio.
pp
ppp

NOVELLO'S ANTHEM BOOK.

Book 1.

Advent	O King and Desire of all Nations	Stainer
Christmas	Arise, shine, for thy Light is come	Elvey
Lent	Lord, for Thy tender mercies' sake	Farrant
,,	Enter not into judgment	Attwood
,,	O ye that love the Lord	Coleridge-Taylor
Easter	O give thanks	Goss
Whitsun	Come, Holy Ghost	Attwood
Harvest	The Lord is loving unto every man	Garrett
General	O love the Lord	Sullivan
,,	The day Thou gavest, Lord	Woodward
,,	Blessed are they that dwell	Tours
,,	Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace	Lee Williams

Book 2.

Advent	Hosanna in the highest	Stainer
Christmas	Sing and rejoice	Barnby
Lent	O Saviour of the world	Goss
,,	Teach me, O Lord	Attwood
,,	Jesu, Word of God Incarnate	Gounod
Easter	Christ is risen	Elvey
Harvest	Great is the Lord	Steane
General	What are these?	Stainer
,,	O how amiable	West
,,	O taste and see	Sullivan
,,	The Lord is my Shepherd	Macfarren
,,	God that madest earth and heaven	Fisher

Book 3.

Advent	Far from their home	Woodward
Christmas	Four Christmas Carols	Various
Lent	Turn Thy face from my sins	Sullivan
,,	O Lord, my God	Wesley
,,	Jesu, Word of God Incarnate	Mozart
Easter	Break forth into joy	Barnby
Harvest	O Lord, how manifold	Barnby
General	Seek ye the Lord	Roberts
,,	I was glad	Elvey
,,	The radiant morn	Woodward
,,	O praise God in His holiness	Weldon
,,	Doth not wisdom cry	Haking

Book 4.

Advent	Arise, O Jerusalem	King
Christmas	Let us now go even unto Bethlehem	Hopkins
Lent	In Thee, O Lord	Tours
,,	Comfort, O Lord, the soul of Thy servant	Crotch, arr. by Goss
,,	God so loved the world	Stainer
Easter	Christ our Passover	Goss
Whitsun	Praised be the Lord daily	Calkin
Harvest	Ye shall dwell in the land	Stainer
General	O how amiable are Thy dwellings	Barnby
,,	O taste and see how gracious the Lord is	Goss
,,	Thine, O Lord, is the greatness	Kent
,,	O give thanks unto the Lord	Elvey

Book 5.

Advent	The Great Day of the Lord	Martin
Christmas	It came upon the midnight clear	Stainer
Lent	Incline Thine ear	Himmel
,,	Lead me, Lord	Wesley
,,	Rend your heart	Calkin
Easter	Awake up, my glory	Barnby
Whitsun	O for a closer walk with God	Foster
Harvest	The eyes of all wait on Thee, O Lord	Elvey
General	I am Alpha and Omega	Stainer
,,	O how amiable are Thy dwellings	Richardson
,,	Blessed are the merciful	Hiles
,,	I will sing of Thy Power. O God	Sullivan

Book 6.

Advent	Hearken unto Me, My people	Sullivan
Christmas	O Zion, that bringest good tidings	Stainer
Lent	Turn Thy face from my sins	Attwood
,,	O Saving Victim, slain for us!	Stainer
,,	There is a green hill far away	Gounod
Easter	Now is Christ risen from the dead	West
Whitsun	O Holy Ghost, into our minds	Macfarren
Harvest	Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem	Maunder
General	Sweet is Thy mercy, Lord	Barnby
,,	I will lift up mine eyes	Clarke-Whitfeld
,,	Rejoice in the Lord, O ye righteous	Elvey
,,	I will alway give thanks unto the Lord	Calkin

Book 7.

Advent	It is high time to awake out of sleep	Barnby
Christmas	Come, ye lofty	Button
Lent	Bow down Thine ear	Attwood
,,	Come unto Him	Gounod
,,	The Lord is nigh unto them	Cummings
Easter	Open to me the gates	Adlam
Whitsun	When God of old came down from heaven	Vine Hall
Harvest	Look on the fields	Macpherson
General	Weary of earth and laden with my sin	Tozer
,,	Sing praises unto the Lord	Cruickshank
,,	Deliver me, O Lord	Stainer
,,	Blessed are the poor in spirit	Hiles

Book 8.

Advent	Day of Wrath! O day of mourning	Stainer
Christmas	Like silver lamps in a distant shrine	Barnby
Lent	Cast thy burden upon the Lord	Mendelssohn
,,	Seek ye the Lord	Bradley
,,	The sacr fice of God	Wareing
Easter	This is the day	Vine Hall

Book 8 (continued).

Whitsun	Spirit of mercy, truth, and love	Selby
Harvest	Behold, I have given you every herb	Harris
General	All people that on earth do dwell	West
,,	Through the day Thy love has spared us	Naylor
,,	The King shall rejoice	Goss
,,	Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace	Calkin

Book 9.

Advent	Blessed is He Who cometh	Gounod
Christmas	Sing, O Heavens	Gaul
Lent	O bountiful Jesu!	Stainer
,,	O Lord, correct me	Coward
,,	By the waters of Babylon	Coleridge-Taylor
Easter	The strife is o'er	Steane
Whitsun	Grieve not the Holy Spirit of God	Stainer
Harvest	Great is the Lord	Marchant
General	Lead, kindly Light	Pughe-Evans
,,	O Lord, my trust is in Thy mercy	King Hall
,,	Hymn of Peace	Callcott
,,	How dear are Thy counsels	Crotch

Book 10.

Advent	God shall wipe away all tears	Field
Christmas	Sing, O Heavens	Maunder
Lent	Jesu, Word of God Incarnate	Elgar
,,	Hear the voice and prayer	Hopkins
,,	By Babylon's wave	Gounod
Easter	Unto the Paschal Victim bring	West
Whitsun	Our Blest Redeemer	Vine Hall
Harvest	Great is the Lord	Sydenham
General	Blessed be the Lord my strength	Markham Lee
,,	Abide with me	Atkins
,,	O how amiable	Maunder
,,	The Lord is exalted	West

Book 11.

Advent	The night is far spent	Steane
Christmas	Nazareth	Gounod
Lent	God so loved the world	Moore
,,	I came not to call the righteous	Vincent
,,	Wash me throughly	Wesley
Easter	Alleluia! now is Christ risen	Adams
Whitsun	Holy Spirit, come, O come	Martin
Harvest	The earth is the Lord's	Hollins
General	Saviour, Thy children keep	Sullivan
,,	The day is past and over	Marks
,,	Jesu, priceless Treasure	Roberts
,,	O worship the Lord	Hollins

Book 12.

Advent	Rejoice greatly	Woodward
Christmas	Hark! what mean those holy voices	Sullivan
Lent	Give ear, O Lord	Pattison
,,	Come now, and let us reason	Briant
,,	Is it nothing to you	Foster
Easter	Christ is risen	Roberts
Whitsun	I will not leave you comfortless	Steane
Harvest	Father of mercies	West
General	Praise ye the Lord	Button
,,	Save us, O Lord, while waking	Martin
,,	Come, weary pilgrims	Tozer
,,	Comes, at times	Woodward

Book 13.

Advent	Prepare ye the way of the Lord	Garrett
Christmas	In a stable lowly	King
Lent	Hear me when I call	King Hall
,,	Come, ye sin-defiled and weary	Stainer
,,	In Thee, O Lord	Coleridge-Taylor
Easter	As it began to dawn	Foster
Whitsun	God is a Spirit	Bennett
Harvest	O God, who is like unto Thee	Foster
General	Nearer, my God, to Thee	Adams
,,	Lord, I have loved the habitation	Torrance
,,	Send out Thy light	Gounod
,,	O God, whose nature	Wesley

Book 14.

Advent	The night is far spent	Foster
Christmas	Glory to God in the highest	Bayley
Lent	The path of the just	Roberts
,,	Come, and let us return	Jackson
,,	O Saviour of the world	Moore
Easter	Who shall roll us away the stone?	Torrance
Whitsun	If I go not away	Adams
Harvest	The woods and every sweetsmelling tree	West
General	The Lord is my Light	Sydenham
,,	Evening and morning	Oakeley
,,	Holiest, breathe an evening blessing	Martin
,,	Let the righteous be glad	R. F. Lloyd

Book 15.

Advent	Awake, awake, put on strength	Borton
Christmas	See, amid the winter's snow	West
Lent	There is a green hill far away	Somerset
,,	Weary of earth	Vine Hall
,,	Come, and let us return	Goss
Easter	Come, ye saints	Button
Whitsun	If ye love Me	Stewart
Harvest	The eyes of all wait on Thee	Caul
General	Bread of Heaven	German
,,	Blessing, glory, wisdom, and thanks	Brewer
,,	Thy word is a lantern	Young
,,	Hymn to the Trinity	Tschaikovsky

PRICE ONE SHILLING EACH BOOK. TONIC SOL-FA, NINEPENCE EACH BOOK.

Give rest, O Christ

CONTAKION OF THE FAITHFUL DEPARTED
(KIEFF MELODY).

78. Above all praise Mendelssohn 1½d.
145. Almighty and Everlasting God A. M. Richardson 1½d.
58. Ditto .. J. S. Smith 1½d.
122. Almighty God, Who hast Ford 1½d.
20. And I saw another Angel Stanford 2d.
24. Arise, O Jerusalem Oliver King 1½d.
36. Arise, O Lord .. G. F. Cobb 1½d.
126. Arise, O Lord .. Hervey 1½d.
168. Arise, ye people .. W. Hayes 1½d.
60. Ave Maria .. .. Arcadelt 1½d.
48. Ave Verum .. .. J. White 1½d.
90. Awake up, my glory F. Iliffe 1½d.
177. Be not Thou far from me Hird 1½d.
193. Behold, God is my .. Stainer 1½d.
165. Behold, O God C. Macpherson 1½d.
117. Ditto G. C. Martin 2d.
195. Behold the Lord .. Thorne 1½d.
30. Beloved, if God so loved Barnby 1½d.
35. Beloved, let us love G. F. Cobb 1½d.
10. Beloved, now are we E. H. Thorne 1½d.
204. Beside Thy cradle J. S. Bach 1½d.
160. Blessed are they S. S. Wesley 1½d.
185. Blessed be the Lord Ouseley 1½d.
125. Blessed be Thou, O Lord Lloyd 2d.
143. Blessed is He A. H. Brewer 1½d.
9. Blessed is He B. Luard-Selby 1½d.
199. Ditto .. Verrinder 1½d.
26. Blessed is the man .. Oliver King 1½d.
194. Ditto .. J. Stainer 1½d.
207. Blessed Lord C. Lee Williams 1½d.
98. Bread of the world John E. West 2d.
167. Break forth .. J. S. Bach 1½d.
17. Christ is not entered E. Faning 1½d.
59. Come, let us worship Palestrina 1½d.
102. Come unto Me .. H. Hiles 2d.
40. Ditto M. Kingston 1½d.
173. Come, ye blessed .. Barnby 1½d.
108. Deliver me, O Lord J. Stainer 1½d.
127. Deliver us, O Lord .. Batten 1½d.
164. Except the Lord F. H. Cowen 1½d.
135. Father of all .. .. .. Tye 1½d.
25. For it became Him Oliver King 1½d.
81. For our offences Mendelssohn 1½d.
179. Forth from the dark .. Hook 1½d.
91. Fret not thyself .. F. Iliffe 1½d.
60. Give ear unto my prayer Arcadelt 1½d.
114. Give rest, O Christ Arranged 1½d.
38. God so loved the world Kingston 1½d.
1. God, Who is rich in mercy Garrett 1½d.
11. Grant, we beseech Thee J. Booth 1½d.
205. Ditto C. Lee Williams 1½d.
141. Hark, hark, my soul Oliver King 1½d.
147. Haste Thee, O God J. Hopkins 1½d.
47. Have mercy upon me J. White 1½d.
210. He that soweth .. J. B. Calkin 1½d.
130. Hide me under the shadow West 1½d.
123. Hide not Thou Thy Face Farrant 1½d.
213. Ho! ye that thirst C. Tye 1½d.
107. Holy, Holy, Holy .. F. Cellier 1½d.
124. How dreadful is this place Monk 1½d.
163. How still and peaceful C. Tye 1½d.
111. I am not worthy C. Lee Williams 3d.
170. I am Thine, O save me Wesley 1½d.
82. I heard a voice G. M. Garrett 1½d.
86. I heard a voice .. A. Gray 1½d.
157. I heard a voice C. V. Stanford 1½d.
92. I look for the Lord .. F. Iliffe 1½d.
54. I will arise .. .. Ch. Wood 1½d.
42. I will go forth .. H. Blair 1½d.
189. I will go to the altar .. Reay 1½d.
131. I will go unto the altar H. Gadsby 2d.
156. I will lay me down in peace C. Lee Williams 1½d.
8. I will magnify Thee Luard-Selby 1½d.
37. I will wash my hands A. D. Culley 1½d.
85. If any man sin Thos. Adams 1½d.
103. If any man sin .. H. Hiles 1½d.

21. If thou shalt confess C. V. Stanford 2d.
215. In life's gay morn' ... C. Tye 1½d.
18. In this was manifested C. H. Lloyd 3d.
155. Is it nothing to you Ouseley 1½d.
206. It is high time .. Williams 1½d.
22. It is of the Lord's mercies Thorne 1½d.
56. Jesu, Saviour, I am Thine Steane 1½d.
46. Jesu, Who from Thy F. C. Woods 3d.
48. Jesu, Word of God J. White 1½d.
64. Jesus said unto the people Stainer 1½d.
186. Judge me, O God .. Ouseley 1½d.
208. Judge nothing before Williams 1½d.
61. Lead me, Lord S. S. Wesley 1½d.
116. Let my prayer be set forth Martin 1½d.
166. Ditto C. Macpherson 1½d.
118. Let my prayer come up Purcell 1½d.
80. Let our hearts be Mendelssohn 1½d.
139. Let the wicked forsake his way Goss 1½d.
32. Let the words of my mouth Blair 1½d.
117. Let Thy hand be strengthened G. C. Martin 2d.
65. Let us come boldly C. H. Lloyd 1½d.
209. Let your moderation Williams 1½d.
137. Lift up the everlasting gates Tye 1½d.
161. Lo! from the hills .. Williams 1½d.
120. Lo, the day of rest Elliot Button 1½d.
19. Lo, the Winter is past H. Gadsby 3d.
142. Lord God Almighty, hear Verdonck 1½d.
93. Lord, I call upon Thee F. Iliffe 1½d.
140. Lord, in thankful love Schubert 1½d.
79. Lord, on our offences Mendelssohn 1½d.
128. Lord, we beseech Thee Batten 1½d.
149. Lord, we pray Thee Chambers 1½d.
154. Love not the world Ouseley 1½d.
62. Master, what shall I do Bowes 1½d.
100. Mercy and truth .. A. Sullivan 2d.
176. Mine eyes are ever Hamilton 1½d.
212. Mock not God's name C. Tye 1½d.
94. My song shall be of mercy F. Iliffe 1½d.
73. O Day-spring .. J. Stainer 1½d.
148. O do well unto Thy servant West 1½d.
75. O Emmanuel .. J. Stainer 1½d.
146. O God, forasmuch as Richardson 1½d.
136. O God of Bethel .. .. Tye 1½d.
162. O God, our help C. Lee Williams 1½d.
23. O God, Whose nature A. Gray 1½d.
214. O happy is the man C. Tye 1½d.
119. O hearken Thou .. A. Sullivan 1½d.
72. O Key of David .. J. Stainer 1½d.
74. O King and Desire J. Stainer 1½d.
70. O Lord and Ruler .. J. Stainer 1½d.
53. O Lord, correct me J. Coward 1½d.
67. O Lord, give ear W. H. Cummings 2d.
133. O Lord, give Thy Holy Tallis 1½d.
113. O Lord, grant the King Child 2d.
138. O Lord, increase my faith Gibbons 1½d.
159. O Lord, my God C. Lee Williams 2d.
13. O Lord, my trust .. King Hall 1½d.
15. O Lord, rebuke me not H. Lahee 1½d.
132. O Lord, we beseech Thee Shaw 2d.
57. O Lord, Who hast .. Iggulden 1½d.
188. O Lord, why sleepest Thou Reay 1½d.
33. O most merciful .. J. W. Elliott 1½d.
89. O Perfect Love H. Elliot Button 1½d.
112. O Perfect Love .. C. L. Naylor 2d.
43. O praise God .. H. Blair 1½d.
174. O praise the Lord, all ye Barnby 1½d.
203. O praise the Lord F. Champneys 2d.
71. O Root of Jesse .. J. Stainer 1½d.
104. O Saving Victim .. J. Stainer 2d.
218. Ditto A. W. Wilson 1½d.
171. O send out Thy light Armes 1½d.
84. Ditto J. B. Calkin 2d.
69. O Wisdom .. .. J. Stainer 1½d.
95. O worship the Lord F. Iliffe 1½d.
196. Ditto E. H. Thorne 1½d.
178. O ye priests of the Lord Hird 1½d.
39. O ye that love the Lord Elliott 1½d.

44. O ye that love the Lord S. Coleridge-Taylor 1½d.
217. Our Father which art Phillips 1½d.
7. Our soul on God G. M. Garrett 1½d.
45. Ponder my words, O Lord Culley 1½d.
3. Praised be the Lord daily Calkin 1½d.
105. Prevent us, O Lord A. H. Brewer 1½d.
14. Rejoice greatly .. Woodward 1½d.
175. Rejoice in the Lord .. Calkin 1½d.
187. Ditto .. Reay 1½d.
76. Rejoice, O ye people Mendelssohn 1½d.
144. Rejoice ye with Jerusalem King 1½d.
200. Remember, Lord .. Verrinder 1½d.
153. Rend your heart .. Ouseley 1½d.
129. Seek the Lord H. Elliot Button 1½d.
201. Seek ye the Lord .. Verrinder 1½d.
49. Shew me Thy ways J. V. Roberts 3d.
115. Sing to the Lord .. .. Tye 1½d.
5. Teach me Thy way Gladstone 1½d.
55. The Angel of the Lord A. Gray 1½d.
190. The Gentiles shall come Reay 1½d.
4. The great day of the Lord is near G. C. Martin 1½d.
216. The Harvest truly .. Pearson 2d.
111. The Heavenly Word Williams 3d.
150. The Joy of our heart is ceased M. B. Foster 1½d.
202. The Light hath shined Verrinder 1½d.
181. The Lord hath been Macfarren 1½d.
198. The Lord hath brought us Thorne 1½d.
27. The Lord is in His Holy Elliott 1½d.
197. Ditto E. H. Thorne 1½d.
96. The Lord is King .. F. Iliffe 1½d.
88. The Lord is nigh .. Cummings 1½d.
31. The Lord is the True God J. Barnby 3d.
50. The Lord opened the doors F. C. Woods 1½d.
83. The Lord redeemeth J. B. Calkin 1½d.
191. The love of God .. .. Reay 1½d.
184. The pains of hell .. Monk 1½d.
52. The path of the just J. V. Roberts 1½d.
101. The Peace of God J. Rheinberger 1½d.
12. The pillars of the earth Tours 1½d.
134. The righteous souls Skeats 1½d.
41. The Sacrifices of God H. Blair 1½d.
152. The Salvation of the Righteous Ouseley 1½d.
34. Ditto Vincent 1½d.
169. The Souls of the righteous Hall 1½d.
87. The steps of a good man F. Cambridge 3d.
66. These are they which J. Goss 1½d.
180. These have left a name .. Hook 1½d.
192. This is the day .. .. Reay 1½d.
211. Thou didst turn Thy face Attwood 1½d.
77. Thou Lord, our Mendelssohn 1½d.
28. Thou shalt shew me the A. Gray 1½d.
29. To Thee do I lift up my soul Hall 1½d.
16. Try me, O God .. C. Wood 1½d.
99. Turn Thee again A. Sullivan 1½d.
158. Turn Thy face C. Lee Williams 2d.
51. Watch ye and pray G. R. Vicars 2d.
172. We wait for Thy loving Armes 1½d.
182. Ditto .. Macfarren 1½d.
2. When my soul fainted within me J. F. Bridge 1½d.
63. Wherewithal shall a young man Alcock 1½d.
183. While all things were Macfarren 1½d.
106. While we have time H. W. Parker 3d.
6. Who are we, O Lord C. H. Lloyd 1½d.
68. Whom have I in heaven Elvey 2d.
151. Whom have I in heaven Ouseley 2d.
110. Whom the Lord C. Macpherson 3d.
121. Why art thou so heavy Gibbons 1½d.
109. Why art thou so C. Macpherson 2d.
97. Worship and praise F. Iliffe 1½d.

(To be continued.)

LONDON : NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

4-3-14.

Give rest, O Christ.

CONTAKION OF THE FAITHFUL DEPARTED (KIEFF MELODY).

AS SUNG IN THE PANNYKHIDA (DIRGE) OF THE ORTHODOX EASTERN CHURCH OF RUSSIA.

The Words translated by W. J. Birkbeck.

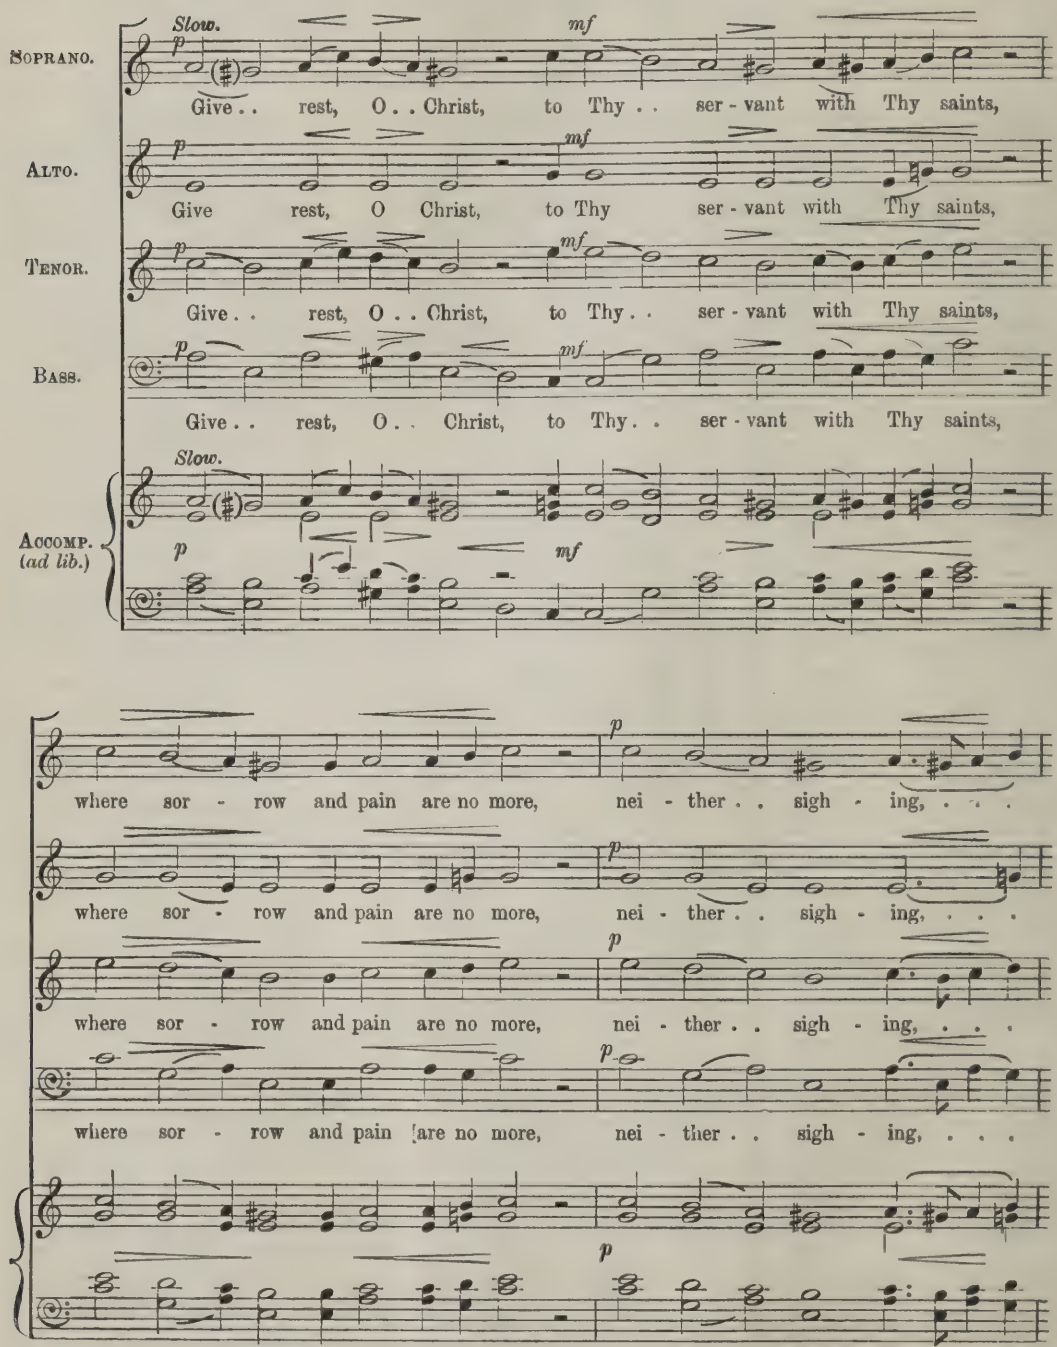
The Music edited by
Walter Parratt.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited; and NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., New York.



Slow.
Soprano.
Give . . rest, O . . Christ, to Thy . . ser - vant with Thy saints,
Alto.
Give rest, O Christ, to Thy ser - vant with Thy saints,
Tenor.
Give . . rest, O . . Christ, to Thy . . ser - vant with Thy saints,
Bass.
Give . . rest, O . . Christ, to Thy . . ser - vant with Thy saints, Accomp. (ad lib.)
where sor - row and pain are no more, nei - ther . . sigh - ing, . . .
where sor - row and pain are no more, nei - ther . . sigh - ing, . . .
where sor - row and pain are no more, nei - ther . . sigh - ing, . . .
where sor - row and pain are no more, nei - ther . . sigh - ing, . . .

This Contakion can be sung by men's voices only, if transposed a fifth lower.

Copyright, 1902, by Novello and Company, Limited.

Fine.
but life . . ev - er - last - ing. Thou on - ly art im - mor - tal, but . . life ev - er - last - ing. Thou on - ly art im - mor - tal, but life . . ev - er - last - ing. Thou on - ly art im - mor - tal, but . . life . . ev - er - last - ing. Thou on - ly art im - mor - tal, Fine.
the Cre - a - tor and Ma - ker of man: and we are mor - tal, form - ed . . of the earth,
the Cre - a - tor and Ma - ker of man: and we are mor - tal, form - ed . . of the earth, the Cre - a - tor and Ma - ker of man: and we are mor - tal, form - ed of the earth,
the Cre - a - tor and Ma - ker of man: and we are mor - tal, form - ed . . of the earth, and un - to earth shall we re - turn: for . . so Thou didst or - dain,
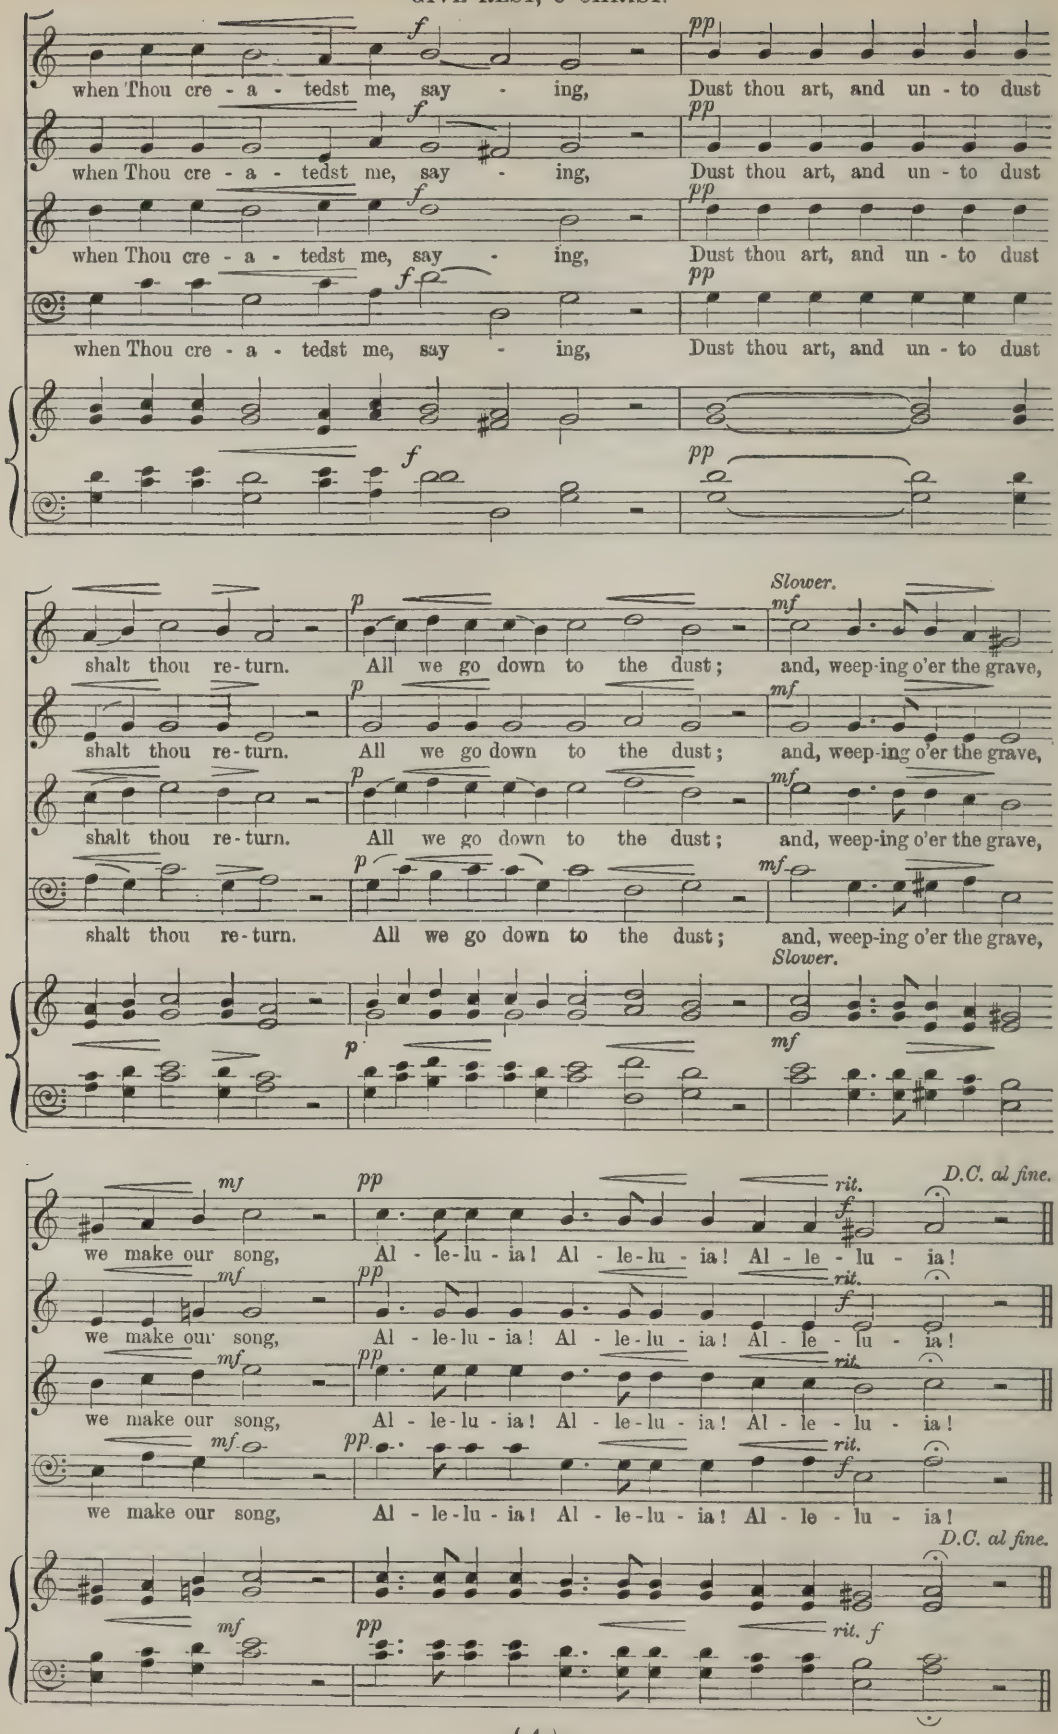
and un - to earth shall we re - turn: for so Thou didst or - dain,
and un - to earth shall we re - turn: for . . so Thou didst or - dain,
and un - to earth shall we re - turn: for so Thou didst or - dain,



when Thou cre - a - tedst me, say - ing, Dust thou art, and un - to dust
when Thou cre - a - tedst me, say - ing, Dust thou art, and un - to dust
when Thou cre - a - tedst me, say - ing, Dust thou art, and un - to dust
when Thou cre - a - tedst me, say - ing, Dust thou art, and un - to dust shalt thou re - turn. All we go down to the dust; and, weep-ing o'er the grave, shalt thou re - turn. All we go down to the dust; and, weep-ing o'er the grave, shalt thou re - turn. All we go down to the dust; and, weep-ing o'er the grave, shalt thou re - turn. All we go down to the dust; and, weep-ing o'er the grave, Slower.
Slower.
we make our song, Al - le - lu - ia! Al - le - lu - ia! Al - le - lu - ia!
we make our song, Al - le - lu - ia! Al - le - lu - ia! Al - le - lu - ia!
we make our song, Al - le - lu - ia! Al - le - lu - ia! Al - le - lu - ia!
we make our song, Al - le - lu - ia! Al - le - lu - ia! Al - le - lu - ia!
D.C. al fine.
D.C. al fine.

CONTENTS.

	Page
Frederick Delius (with special Portrait)	137
Some Notes on Delius and his Music. By Philip Heseltine	137
The Public, the Critic, and the Native Composer. By Ernest Newman	142
Teachers and Text-Books. By G. H. Clutsam ...	144
Occasional Notes	146
The New Army and its Musical Needs	147
At a Solemn Music: Gloucester Cathedral	148
'Star-Spangled Banner': An Exhaustive Official Inquiry. By Frank Kidson	148
Church and Organ Music	151
The Compleat Organist. By Harvey Grace (continued)	151
Reviews	154
Correspondence	155
Obituary	157
Royal Academy of Music	158
The late Mr. F. W. Renaut	158
'Britannia, the Pride of the Ocean': Origin of the Song and Tune. By W. H. Grattan Flood ...	159
The Royal College of Organists: Diploma Distribution	159
International Musical Society	160
Royal Philharmonic Society	165
Royal College of Music	165
The Royal Institution: Lecture to Untrained Listeners. By H. Walford Davies...	166
London Concerts	169
Suburban Concerts	169
Music in the Provinces	170
Miscellaneous	176
Country and Colonial News	176
Answers to Correspondents	176

MUSIC:

'A character of Love.' Four-part Song. By H. M. Higgs	161

FOUR Extra Supplements are given with this number:

1. Portrait of Frederick Delius.
2. 'Give rest, O Christ.' Contakion of the Faithful Departed (Kieff Melody). For S.A.T.B. Edited by Walter Parratt.
3. 'Lighten our darkness' (Collect for aid against all perils). Anthem, for S.A.T.B. By Josiah Booth.
4. Competition Festival Record.

THE MUSICAL TIMES.

SCALE OF TERMS FOR ADVERTISEMENTS.

	£ s. d.
Two Lines	0 3 0
Three Lines	0 3 4
For every additional Line	0 0 10
One inch (displayed)	0 10 0
Half a Column	2 0 0
A Column	4 0 0
A Page	7 10 0

Special Pages (Cover, &c.) by arrangement.

A remittance should be sent with every Advertisement.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

To ensure insertion in their proper positions, Advertisements for the next issue should reach the Office, 160, Wardour Street, London, W., not later than

MONDAY, MARCH 22. (First Post.)

D

DURING THE LAST MONTH.

Published by NOVELLO & CO., Limited.

B., J. G.—A Hymn for Peace ("Holy Spirit, Heavenly Dove"). 1d. Words only, 1s. 6d. per 100.

BENYON, M.—"S.O.S." On Card. 1d.

BOOTH, JOSIAH.—"Grant, O Lord." Short Anthem. (No. 223, Novello's Short Anthems.) 1½d.

—— "Lighten our Darkness." Short Anthem. (No. 224, Novello's Short Anthems.) 1½d.

BROOKE, MRS. A. AMY.—"When Lancashire leads the way." Song. 6d.

—— "Carry on" (The Bugles). Song. 6d.

BULLOCK, E.—"O most merciful." Short Anthem or Introit. (No. 225, Novello's Short Anthems.) 1½d.

GLADSTONE, F. E.—Original Tunes for Catholic Hymns. No. 1, Five Hymns for Passiontide. 6d.

GRAHAM, BASIL.—"Dreamland, and You." Song for Contralto or Baritone. 2s.

GRAINGER, A. F.—A Patriotic Song ("Stand to your guns, lads"). 1s.

HIGGS, H. M.—"A character of Love." Four-part Song. (No. 865, The Musical Times.) 1½d.

JOBLING, J.—"Go when the morning shineth." Hymn. 1½d.

LEMARE, EDWIN H.—Minuet Nuptiale. (No. 36, Original Compositions for the Organ, by Edwin H. Lemare.) 1s. 6d.

—— Scherzo Fugue. (No. 47, The Recital Series of Original Compositions for the Organ, edited by Edwin H. Lemare.) 2s.

MITCHELL, E. E.—"Land we love the best of all." Song, with Accompaniment for Pianoforte (with Organ ad lib.) or Organ only. 2s.

—— ditto. Arranged as a Part-song for S.A.T.B. 4d.

PAREZ, C. C. TH.—Recessional ("God of our Fathers, known of old"). 2d.

R., J. G.—A National Prayer, and "O God of Battles, mighty Lord." For use in time of war. 1d.

SAVILLE, M. F. TEMPLE.—"Strength, loyalty, and a happy way." Fulham College Song. 6d.

SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW.—No. 273 contains the following music in both Notations:—

"The dear little Shamrock." Unison Song with ad lib. Three-part Chorus. W. Jackson. "Cold and raw's the wind without" (Old English Air). Unison Song. 1½d.

TERRY, C. SANFORD.—"The Challenge." For Solo, Chorus, and Orchestra. Edition with Pianoforte Accompaniment. 1s.

TONIC SOL-FA PUBLICATIONS:

BATH, HUBERT.—"The Wake of O'Connor." An Irish Rhapsody for Soli, Chorus, and Orchestra. 1s. 6d.

HOLBROOKE, J.—A Dramatic Choral Symphony (Op. 48). 1s. 6d.

TONIC SOL-FA SERIES.—Edited by W. G. McNaught:

No. 2219. "Water Lilies." (Songs of the River, No. 2). Four-part Song. F. H. Cowen 1½d.

,, 2220. "I will lay me down in peace." Anthem. A. C. Mackenzie 1½d.

,, 2222. "Go where glory waits thee." Irish Melody. Arranged as a Four-part Song by John E. West 1½d.

,, 2223. "Hark! Apollo strikes the lyre!" Trio for S.S.B. Henry Bishop 1½d.

TYLER, G. H.—Benedicite, omnia Opera (No. 2) in A. Shortened form. 2d.

DURING THE LAST MONTH—continued.

WESTERBY, H.—Agnus Dei and Sanctus. 1½d.

—— Two Prayers in time of war. 1½d.

WOODWARD, MABEL N. — Two Songs. For Unison singing. Set I. 1. "A Sleepy Song"; 2. "Birds." 2d.

—— Two Songs. For Unison singing. Set II. 1. "The Night has a thousand eyes"; 2. "To the Blackbird" (Vespers). 2d.

REDUCED PRICES.

WILLIAMS, C. LEE.—"The last night at Bethany." 1s. 6d.; paper boards, 2s.
—— "Gethsemane." 1s. 6d.; paper boards, 2s.

PUBLISHED FOR
THE H. W. GRAY CO., NEW YORK.

CONVERSE, F. S.—Dirge. From the Music for "The Masque of St. Louis." For Women's Voices. 10 cents (3d.).
—— "March of the Pioneers." From the Music for "The Masque of St. Louis." For Male Chorus. 12 cents (4d.).
JAQUES, E.—"Come, Holy Ghost." Anthem. Adapted to the Plainsong. 10 cents (3d.).
NOBLE, T. TERTIUS.—A Prayer of Thanksgiving. Anthem. For Baritone Solo and Chorus. Founded on the Tune "Netherlands."
—— "The Risen Christ." Easter Anthem.
PURRINGTON, A. J.—"Come, Holy Spirit." Song, with Violin Obbligato. 60 cents (2s.).

OVER SIX MILLION COPIES OF CALEB SIMPER'S
Compositions in Church Music now sold.
WORLD-WIDE POPULARITY. FAVOURITES EVERYWHERE.

NEW EASTER ANTHEMS, Etc.

COMPOSED BY CALEB SIMPER.

*WORTHY IS THE LAMB. New .. .. 6th 1000 4d.
"A lovely Anthem with an exceptionally nice solo."
*And the Third Day rise again .. ..18th Edition 3d.
Bright, jubilant and most impressive.
NOW IS CHRIST RISEN. (Norman Stewart.) New 6th 1000 2d.
*I will praise the Name of God. New last year .. 10th 1000 4d.
*Arise from the Dead. A great favourite .. .. 11th 1000 3d.
*Awake up, my Glory. Very popular .. .. ..33rd Edition 4d.
*Now is come Salvation .. .. 10th 1000 3d.
*He is not here, but is risen .. .. 13th 1000 3d.
*Christ being raised .. .. 15th 1000 4d.
*Let us keep the Feast .. .. 11th 1000 4d.
*We will rejoice. (Sung at a Choral Festival) .. 20th 1000 3d.
*The Lord is risen indeed .. .. 14th 1000 4d.
*He hath done wonders .. .. 18th 1000 3d.
Easy Holy Communion Service in A flat .. ..11th Edition 4d.
Very useful and devotional. With Benedictus and Agnus Dei.
NEW VOLUNTARY BOOKS. Nos. 9 and 10. 1s. 6d. each. Written on Two Staves. Over 200 Editions of this useful and wonderfully popular series now sold. Also issued in Two Gilt-Lettered Cloth Volumes (85 Voluntaries in each), 5s. each Volume.
*NEW No. 22 ANNIVERSARY SELECTION. Complete, 2d. Words only, 3s. 6d. per 100. Quantities on liberal terms. A charming set of Eight Children's Festival Hymns and Tunes. Three of the Hymns specially written by Caleb Simper. Words can be localized.
*New War Hymn, O LORD OF HOSTS. Words and Music. 1d.
For Intercession Services and ordinary use. The refrain is, "Thou who makest wars to cease, Grant us soon a lasting peace." Words only, 1s. 6d. per 100. "Most effective. Will touch all hearts." "One of the most beautiful I have ever heard."
*God is our Hope and Strength. New .. .. 5th 1000 4d.
A fine, effective Anthem for use during the War.
Those marked * are also issued in Tonic Sol-fa.
London: WEEKES & Co., 14, Hanover Street, Regent Street, W.
Canada: ANGLO-CANADIAN M.P.A. Ltd., 144, Victoria St., Toronto.
Chicago, U.S.A.: CLAYTON F. SUMMY Co., 62-66, E. Van Buren Street.

CHOIRMEN.—A VACANCY occurs for a VOLUNTARY ALTO and a TENOR at a West-End Church, close to Grosvenor Square. Quarterly travelling expenses allowed, 25/-. Write, G. N., c/o Novello & Co., Ltd., 160, Wardour Street, W.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER REQUIRED for Trinity Presbyterian Church, Bromley, Kent. Fine new Organ by Harrison & Harrison. State experience and salary required. Reply to A. O'Hanlon, Dunoran, Bromley, Kent.

NOBLE MUSIC AND PATRIOTIC FEELING ARE COMBINED IN

E. GRIEG'S
OUR NATIVE LAND

(PATRIOTIC HYMN).

	s.	d.
Two-part Song (Staff and Sol-fa)	0	2
Four-part, Male Voices (Staff and Sol-fa)	0	3
Four-part, Mixed Voices	0	3
Song (2 keys)	1	0
Organ Solo (A. E. HULL)	1	0
Pianoforte Solo	0	6

Grieg's beautiful Hymn, with most appropriate Words, is a highly impressive and effective work, which will come in useful at the present time.

SAMPLE COPIES OF THE PART-SONGS POST-FREE.

AUGENER LTD.,
LONDON, W.
63, CONDUIT STREET; 18, GREAT MARLBOROUGH STREET.

POPULAR EASTER ANTHEMS

COMPOSED BY EDWIN A. CLARE.

Not difficult, but very interesting and effective.

*Hallelujah! King of Kings .. .. 23rd 1000 3d.
*He is Risen. A great favourite .. .. .. 35th 1000 3d.
*Christ shall give thee Light .. .. 26th 1000 3d.
*Thanks be to God (with a fine Bass Solo) .. .. 24th 1000 4d.
*Why seek ye the Living among the Dead? .. .. 25th 1000 3d.
*Now is Christ Risen .. .. 16th 1000 3d.
*Hallelujah! Christ is risen .. .. 25th 1000 3d.
*The Lord Reigneth (Festival) .. .. 17th 1000 3d.
Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem .. .. 42nd 1000 3d.

Favourite Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis in D .. 26th 1000 4d.
Full of flowing melody. Sung at a Choral Festival.

Those marked are also issued in Tonic Sol-fa.*

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Ltd., 160, Wardour Street, W.
New York: THE H. W. GRAY CO., Sole Agents for the U.S.A.

TENOR, and probably an ALTO, REQUIRED. Communicants. Salary £10 per annum. Apply by letter to The Organist, St. Martin's Church, Ludgate Hill, E.C.

WANTED.—TENOR for Christ Church, Albany Street, N.W. Sunday Services; Friday practice. Churchman. £10. Apply, Way, 5, Warrington Crescent, Maida Hill.

ALTO REQUIRED for Christ Church, Lancaster Gate, W. £14 per annum. Write, stating age and experience, with copies of three recent testimonials, to W. H. Rose, 4, Cornwall Road, Bayswater, W.

LADY (Violinist) desires Engagement in good-class Orchestra in Town, for Afternoons. D. H., c/o Novello & Co., Ltd., 160, Wardour Street, W.

THE DUKE OF NEWCASTLE'S CHOIR SCHOOL, Clumber Park, Worksop, Notts. Three Vacancies for Boys with good voices. Full particulars from L. R. Pike, Organist.

MUSIC FOR LENT.

*THE PASSION OF OUR LORD. (According to St. Matthew.) J. S. BACH. Edited by EDWARD ELGAR and IVOR ATKINS. 2s. 6d.; paper boards 3s. 6d.; cloth, gilt, 4s. 6d. Vocal Parts, 1s. each. Tonic Sol-fa, 1s. Words only, 15s. per 100.

*THE PASSION OF OUR LORD. (According to St. Matthew.) J. S. BACH. 2s.; paper boards, 2s. 6d. Choruses only, Tonic Sol-fa, 1s. Words only, 15s. per 100.

*THE PASSION OF OUR LORD. (According to St. Matthew.) J. S. BACH. Abridged, as used at St. Paul's Cathedral, 1s. 6d.; paper boards, 2s. Book of Words, with Music to the Chorales, 6d. Words only, 10s. per 100.

*THE PASSION OF OUR LORD. (According to St. John.) J. S. BACH. 2s.; paper boards, 2s. 6d.; cloth, gilt, 4s.

*THE PASSION OF CHRIST. G. F. HANDEL. 3s.; paper boards, 3s. 6d.; cloth, gilt, 5s. Abridged edition for Church use, 1s. Words only, 10s. per 100.

*THE PASSION OF OUR LORD. (The Seven Words of Our Saviour on the Cross.) J. HAYDN. 2s.; paper boards, 2s. 6d.; cloth, gilt, 4s.

THE PASSION OF OUR LORD. (The Seven Words of Our Saviour on the Cross.) CH. GOUNOD. 1s.

*THE PASSION OF OUR LORD ("Der Tod Jesu.") C. H. GRAUN. 2s.; paper boards, 2s. 6d.; cloth, gilt, 4s. Choruses only, 1s.

THE PASSION OF OUR LORD. H. SCHÜTZ. 1s.

*PASSION MUSIC (from the Oratorio "St. Peter"). By SIR JULIUS BENEDICT. 1s. 6d.

*OUT OF DARKNESS. (Psalm cxxx.) For Soli, Chorus, and Orchestra. GEORG HENSCHEL (Op. 30). 2s. 6d.

OUT OF DARKNESS (De Profundis). (Psalm cxxx.) For Soli, Chorus, and Orchestra. Composed by CH. GOUNOD. English or Latin words. 1s.

*ZION'S WAYS DO LANGUISH. Soprano Solo and Chorus, from "Gallia" (Motet). CH. GOUNOD. 1s. Tonic Sol-fa, 4d.

MISERERE MEI, DEUS, &c., as sung at St. Paul's Cathedral, preceding Bach's Passion on Tuesday in Holy Week. Arranged by J. STAINER. 3d. Tonic Sol-fa, 3d.

MISERERE MEI, DEUS. The Music composed by J. BARNBY. 3d.

MISERERE MEI, DEUS. Set to the well-known Ancient Chant, as arranged and harmonised by VINCENT NOVELLO. Price 2d.; Ditto, Latin words, 3d.

MISERERE MEI, DEUS. (Chant Setting.) The Music composed by EDGAR PETTMAN. Price 1½d.

MISERERE MEI, DEUS. The music composed by GREGORIO ALLEGRI. As used at St. Paul's Cathedral Lenten Services. Edited by GEORGE C. MARTIN. 4d.

MISERERE MEI, DEUS. The music composed by G. P. DA PALESTRINA. Edited by W. BARCLAY SQUIRE. Latin and English words. 4d.

MISERERE MEI, DEUS, in F. The music composed by F. E. GLADSTONE. Latin words, 3d.

MISERERE MEI, DEUS, in F sharp minor. The music composed by F. E. GLADSTONE. Latin words, 6d.

MISERERE MEI, DEUS. A simple Unison Arrangement with Organ Accompaniment, 1d.

*Orchestral Parts of the works marked * can be had.*

THE BENEDICITE

SET TO MUSIC BY

THE FOLLOWING COMPOSERS.

BAIRSTOW, E. C. (on the plan of the Paragraph Psalter)	3d.
BENNETT, GEORGE J. (in E flat)	1½d.
BENNETT, GEORGE J. (in G)	1½d.
BENNETT, GEORGE J. (in D, Unison)	3d.
BEST, W. T. (in C). (Sol-fa, 1½d.)	3d.
BLAIR, HUGH (in G)	1½d.
BRIDGE, J. F., JAMES TURLE, and HAYES	1½d.
BUTTON, H. ELLIOT (in D)	1½d.
BUTTON, H. ELLIOT (Shortened Form)	1½d.
COBB, G. F. (in G)	2d.
ELLIOTT, J. W. (in G)	1½d.
ELLIOTT, J. W. (in G)	2d.
ELLIOTT, J. W. (in G)	4d.
ELLIOTT, M. B. (in G)	1½d.
ELLIOTT, R. B. (in G)	1½d.
EYRE, ALFRED J. (in E flat)	2d.
EYRE, ALFRED J. (No. 2, in F)	1½d.
FOSTER, MYLES B. (in F, Chant Form)	4d.
FROST, PERCY H. (in D)	2d.
GADSBY, HENRY (in G, Chant Form)	1½d.
GALE, C. R. (in D)	1½d.
GLADSTONE, F. E. (in C, Chant Form)	1½d.
GLADSTONE, F. E. (in G, Unison)	1½d.
GODFREY, A. E. (in C)	3d.
GODFREY, A. E. (No. 2, in G)	3d.
H. B. C. (Three Chants)	1½d.
HERVEY, F. A. J. (in A flat, Chant Form)	1½d.
HUGHES, W. (in E flat)	1½d.
ILIFFE, FREDERICK (No. 1, in E flat, Chant Form)	1½d.
LEMARE, E. H. (in B flat)	3d.
LLOYD, C. HARFORD (in E flat, Chant Form)	2d.
LUCAS, P. T. (in A flat, shortened form)	1½d.
MACPHERSON, CHARLES (in F, rhythmic setting)	4d.
MARTIN, G. C. (No. 1, in F; No. 2, in E flat; No. 3, in G) each	4d.
MATTHEWS, T. R. (in E flat)	1½d.
MERBECKE (arranged by GEORGE C. MARTIN)	2d.
MILLER, C. E. (second setting) (in G, Chant Form)	2d.
PETTMAN, EDGAR (No. 1, in C; No. 2, set to Double Chants)	2d.
PETTMAN, EDGAR (in E flat)	1½d.
PULLEIN, J. (in E flat)	1d.
ROBERTS, J. VARLEY (in B flat)	4d.
SLATER, W. (in F)	1½d.
SMITH, BOYTON (in A flat)	1½d.
SMITH, CHAS. W. (in C). S.A.T.T.B., also simplified for S.A.T.B.	2d.
STAINER, J., and B. BLAXLAND (in F, Chant Form)	1½d.
STAINER, J., R. DE LACY, A. GIBBS, and F. CHAMPNEYS	1½d.
STAINER, J., W. WINN, and F. WALKER	1½d.
Ditto (Welsh words). (Sol-fa, 1d.)	1½d.
STAINER, J., J. TURLE, and H. S. IRONS	2d.
STAINER, J. (in D, Chant Form)	1½d.
STEWART, C. HYLTON (on the plan of the Paragraph Psalter)	3d.
BARNBY, J. FOSTER, JOHN SMITH, MONTEM (two settings) TURLE, J. (two settings) WICKES, C. A. (two settings)	1½d.
TOZER, FERRIS (in G)	2d.
TOZER, FERRIS (in A). Short and simple	2d.
WEST, JOHN E. (in G)	4d.
WEST, JOHN E. (in C)	1½d.
WESTBURY, G. H. (in C)	1½d.
WILLAN, HEALEY (in D). Shortened Form	1½d.
WOOD, W. G. (in D)	1½d.
WRIGLEY, G. F. (in G, Quadruple Chant)	1½d.

THE STORY OF THE CROSS

FOR VOICES AND ORGAN

With Short Interludes, giving opportunity for Meditation.

THE WORDS BY

THE REV. E. MONRO

SET TO MUSIC BY

BUTTON, H. ELLIOT	2d.
FOSTER, MYLES B. (Sol-fa, 1½d.)	3d.
ROBERTS, J. VARLEY (Sol-fa, 1½d.)	3d.
SOMERVELL, ARTHUR (Sol-fa, 1½d.)	3d.
STAINER, J. (Sol-fa, 1½d.)	3d.

Words only, 1s. 6d. per 100.
Large Type Edition, 2s. 6d. per 100.

THE REPROACHES

SET TO MUSIC BY

DYKES, REV. J. B.	3d.
GOUNOD, CH.	2d.
PALESTRINA (together with the proper plain-chant melodies) (Edited by W. S. Vale)	4d.
WILLAN, HEALEY (Double Choir) (unaccompanied)	3d.

ANTHEMS IN THE LUTE SERIES.

121	Give sentence with me, O God	F. Lewis Thomas	3d.
38	Hear me, O Lord	W. H. Dixon	3d.
*197	Hear me when I call	A. W. Marchant	3d.
*13	Hear, O Lord	Michael Watson	3d.
193	Just as I am	Ferris Tozer	3d.
110	Like as the hart; O send out Thy Light	C. Lochnane	3d.
27	Oh most Merciful	J. F. Bridge	3d.
67b	O Lord, rebuke me not	Gaynor Simpson	1½d.
200	O Saving Victim	J. Lionel Bennett	3d.
113	Out of the deep have I called	Hamilton Clarke	3d.
145	Ponder my words, O Lord	Norman Hatfield	3d.
196	Remember not, Lord	J. M. Bentley	3d.
67a	Rend your heart	W. H. Dixon	1½d.
*2	Seek ye the Lord	J. F. Bridge	3d.
*77	There is a green hill	Fred. H. Burstall	2d.
165	Turn Thee, O Lord	Norman Hatfield	3d.
206	Turn Thy face from my sins	Cuthbert Harris	3d.

Those marked thus * are also published in Tonic Sol-fa.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

NOVELLO'S ANTHEMS FOR LENT.

*All ye who seek for sure relief	H. M. Higgs	3d.
All ye who weep	Ch. Gounod	3d.
And Jacob was left alone	J. Stainer	6d.
And Jesus entered into the Temple	H. W. Davies	4d.
*Art thou weary	C. H. Lloyd	6d.
*As pants the hart	Spohr	1½d.
At Thy feet in adoration	Anton Dvorák	3d.
Behold, I come quickly	I. Atkins	2d.
Behold, two blind men	J. Stainer	3d.
Be merciful unto me	E. A. Sydenham	3d.
Be not Thou far from me, O God	F. W. Hird	1½d.
Blessed are they that mourn	A. W. Batson	3d.
*Bow down Thine ear	Attwood and Beale, each	1½d.
*Bow Thine ear, O Lord	W. Byrd	3d.
*By Babylon's wave	Ch. Gounod	2d.
By the waters of Babylon	Boyce and H. Clarke, each	4d.
By the waters of Babylon	Higgs and *Coleridge-Taylor, each	3d.
By Thy glorious Death	Anton Dvorák	4d.
*Call to remembrance	R. Farrant	1½d.
Cast me not away	C. Lee Williams	2d.
Cast me not away	S. S. Wesley	3d.
*Cast thy burden upon the Lord	Mendelssohn	1½d.
*Come, and let us return (Two-part Anthem)	G. A. Macfarren	2d.
*Come, and let us return	J. Goss and W. Jackson, each	3d.
Come, let us worship	Palestrina	1½d.
*Come now, and let us reason together	R. Briant	1½d.
Come now, let us reason together	H. W. Wareing	4d.
*Come unto Him	Ch. Gounod	2d.
Come unto Him	Henry Leslie	3d.
Come unto Me	Bach, Couldrey, and Elvey, each	3d.
Come unto Me	H. Hiles	2d.
Come unto Me	M. Kingston and J. S. Smith, each	1½d.
*Come, ye sin-defiled and weary	J. Stainer	2d.
*Comfort, O Lord	W. Crotch	1½d.
Comfort the soul of Thy servant (A.T.T.B.)	John E. West	4d.
Create in me a clean heart	Percy J. Fry	3d.
Daughters of Jerusalem	G. J. Elvey	1½d.
Daughters of Jerusalem	H. J. King	3d.
Enter not into judgment	T. Attwood	1½d.
Flee from evil	W. J. Clarke	3d.
For our offences	Mendelssohn	1½d.
Forsake me not, O Lord, my God	Goss	4d.
Give ear, O Lord	C. Oberthür	1½d.
*Give ear, O Lord	T. M. Pattison	2d.
Give ear, O Shepherd of Israel	A. Whiting	3d.
Give ear unto my prayer	J. Arcadelt	1½d.
God's Peace is peace eternal	Grieg	3d.
*God so loved the world	Goss, Kingston, and Stainer, each	1½d.
*God so loved the world	Harold Moore and J. V. Roberts, ea.	3d.
Grant, we beseech Thee	J. Booth	1½d.
Grant, we beseech Thee	M. Elvey	2d.
Grant, we beseech Thee	J. V. Roberts	3d.
Have mercy upon me, O God	J. Goss	4d.
Have mercy upon me, O God	J. Barnby	2d.
Have mercy upon me	Barnby, Minshall, Pye, and Shaw, each	3d.
Have mercy upon me	J. White	1½d.
*Hear me when I call	King Hall	1½d.
Hear me when I call (A.T.T.B.)	T. Distin	2d.
*Hear my prayer	J. Kent	3d.
*Hear my prayer	*Mendelssohn and C. Stroud, each	4d.
Hear my prayer	Winter	1½d.
Hear, O Lord	J. Goss	2d.
Hear, O Thou Shepherd	J. Clarke-Whitfeld & T. A. Walmisley, ea.	4d.
Hear the voice and prayer	J. L. Hopkins	1½d.
Hear us, O Saviour	M. Hauptmann	1½d.
He in tears that soweth	F. Hiller	1½d.
Hide not Thy Face	K. J. Pye	2d.
How long wilt Thou	Oliver King	2d.
*Hymn of Peace	W. H. Callcott	1½d.
*I came not to call the righteous	C. Vincent	3d.
If any man sin	H. Hiles	1½d.
*Incline Thine ear	Himmel	1½d.
In Thee, O Lord	*S. Coleridge-Taylor and J. Weldon, each	3d.
*In Thee, O Lord	B. Tours	3d.
*Is it nothing to you? (S.A.T.B.)	M. B. Foster	3d.
*Is it nothing to you? (for S.A.)	M. B. Foster	3d.
I will arise	C. Wood	1½d.
I will cry unto God	H. J. King and C. Steggall, each	3d.
*I will look unto the Lord (Two-part Anthem)	G. A. Macfarren	2d.
*I wrestle and pray	J. C. Bach	4d.
Jesus of Nazareth (Turbarum voces)	G. Byrd	4d.
*Jesu, Blessed Word of God	Ch. Gounod	1½d.
Jesu, Lord of life and glory	G. A. Naumann	1½d.
Jesu, Saviour, I am Thine	B. Steane	1½d.
*Jesu, Word of God	Gounod, Hoyte, Mozart, and White, each	1½d.
*Jesu, Word of God Incarnate	E. Elgar	2d.
Judge me, O God	Ouseley and *Mendelssohn, each	1½d.
Lead. kindly Light	R. Dunstan	3d.
Lead. kindly Light	C. L. Naylor and *J. Stainer, each	4d.
*Lead, kindly Light	Pughe-Evans	3d.
*Lead me, Lord	S. S. Wesley	1½d.
Let my complaint (A.A.T.T.B.B.)	E. H. Thorne	3d.
*Let my prayer come up	H. Purcell	1½d.
Let the words of my mouth	H. Blair and J. Barnby, each	1½d.
Let the words of my mouth	A. D. Culley	3d.
Let us come boldly	C. H. Lloyd	1½d.
Like as the hart	T. Adams and J. H. Clarke, each	3d.
*Like as the hart	V. Novello	1½d.
Lord, for Thy tender mercies' sake	*R. Farrant, G. R. Vicars, ea.	1½d.
Lord, how are they increased	Kent	2d.
Lord, how long wilt Thou forget me	Mendelssohn	1½d.
Lord, I call upon Thee	Ouseley, West, and Culley, each	1½d.
Lord, on our offences	Mendelssohn	1½d.
Lord, teach us to number our days (A.A.T.T.B.B.)	C. H. Lloyd	3d.
Lord, Thou hast searched	A. Whiting	3d.
Lord, what is man	W. Boyce	3d.
Make me a clean heart	J. Barnby and A. W. Batson, each	3d.
Mine eyes look unto Thee, O Lord God	H. Baker	3d.
My God, I love Thee	G. J. Bennett	3d.
My God, look upon me	J. L. Hopkins	3d.
*My God, look upon me	J. Reynolds	1½d.
My soul is weary	J. C. Beckwith	4d.
O all ye that pass by	Vittoria	3d.
*O bountiful Jesu	J. Stainer	1½d.
O God, Thou hast cast us out	H. Purcell	4d.
O God, Whose nature	A. Gray and *S. S. Wesley, each	1½d.
O have mercy	H. Leslie	1½d.
*O hearken Thou	A. Sullivan	1½d.
O Jesu! Victim blest	J. B. Powell	3d.
*O Lamb of God	J. Barnby	3d.
O Lamb of God	G. E. Lake	1½d.
*O Lord, correct me	J. Coward	1½d.
O Lord, give ear	W. H. Cummings	2d.
O Lord God, Thou strength	J. Goss	1½d.
O Lord, look down	J. Battishill	3d.
*O Lord, my God	C. Malan and S. S. Wesley, each	1½d.
O Lord, my God	C. Lee Williams	2d.
O Lord, rebuke me not	H. Lahee	1½d.
O most merciful	J. W. Elliott	1½d.
O saving Victim	W. A. C. Cruickshank and Rossini, each	3d.
*O saving Victim	Ch. Gounod	4d.
*O saving Victim	J. Stainer	2d.
O saving Victim	B. Tours and *F. Kœnig, each	1½d.
*O Saviour of the world	J. Goss	1½d.
*O Saviour of the world	Harold Moore	3d.
O Saviour of the world (A.T.T.B.)	J. V. Roberts	2d.
Out of the deep	F. E. Gladstone and G. C. Martin, each	3d.
Out of the deep	Mozart	1½d.
Out of the deep	H. W. Davies and J. Naylor, each	4d.
*O ye that love the Lord	S. Coleridge-Taylor	1½d.
O ye that love the Lord	F. A. W. Docker and G. J. Elvey, each	4d.
O ye that love the Lord	J. W. Elliott	1½d.
O ye that love the Lord	H. W. Wareing	3d.
Ponder my words, O Lord	A. D. Culley	1½d.
Put me not to rebuke, O Lord	W. Croft	4d.
*Remember not, Lord	H. Purcell	1½d
*Remember now thy Creator	C. Steggall	4d.
Remember, O Lord	T. A. Walmisley	4d.
*Rend your heart	J. B. Calkin	1½d.
Rend your heart	J. Clippingdale	3d.
Rend your heart (Turn ye even to Me)	A. E. Godfrey	3d.
Save me, O God	C. S. Jekyll	1½d.
*Seek ye the Lord	C. Bradley	1½d.
Seek ye the Lord	H. Kinsey and *J. V. Roberts, ea.	3d.
Show me Thy ways	J. V. Roberts	3d.
Spare us, Lord, most holy	E. A. Sydenham	1½d.
*Teach me, O Lord	T. Attwood and B. Rogers, each	1½d.
Teach me Thy way	Spohr and W. H. Gladstone, each	1½d.
The Lord is full of compassion	F. E. Gladstone	3d.
*The Lord is nigh	W. H. Cummings	1½d.
*The path of the just	J. V. Roberts	1½d.
*There is a green hill far away	Ch. Gounod	4d.
*There is a green hill far away	Lord H. Somerset	1½d.
The Reproaches (from the "Redemption")	Ch. Gounod	2d.
The Reproaches	Healey Willan and J. B. Dykes, ea.	3d.
*The sacrifice of God	H. W. Wareing	1½d.
The sacrifices of God	H. Blair	1½d.
*The Story of the Cross	Stainer, Somervell, Foster, & Roberts, ea.	3d.
The Story of the Cross	H. Elliot Button	2d.
Think not that they are blest alone	F. Brandeis	2d.
Thou didst turn Thy face	T. Attwood	1½d.
*Through peace to light	J. H. Roberts	3d.
Thus saith the Lord	G. M. Garrett	6d.
Try me, O God (A.T.T.B.)	A. D. Culley	2d.
Try me, O God	C. Wood	1½d.
Turbarum voces (Jesus of Nazareth)	G. Byrd	4d.
Turn Thee again, O Lord	T. Attwood	1½d.
*Turn Thy face from my sins	T. Attwood and A. Sullivan, each	1½d.
Turn Thy face from my sins	C. Steggall	4d.
Turn Thy face from my sins	C. Lee Williams	2d.
Turn ye even to Me (Rend your heart)	A. E. Godfrey	3d.
Unto Thee have I cried	G. J. Elvey	3d.
*Wash me throughly	S. S. Wesley	3d.
Watch ye and pray	G. R. Vicars	2d.
*Weary of earth	Ferris Tozer	1½d.
*Weary of earth	E. Vine Hall	3d.
Whom the Lord loveth	C. Macpherson	3d.
Why art Thou so vexed	C. Macpherson	2d.
Word of God Incarnate	Ch. Gounod	3d.
Ye who from His ways have turned	Mendelssohn	3d.

*Anthems marked thus * to be had in Tonic Sol-fa, 1d., 1½d., and 2d. each.*

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

CANTATAS FOR LENT.

(REDUCED PRICE.)

LAST NIGHT AT BETHANY

THE WORDS WRITTEN AND COMPILED BY
JOSEPH BENNETT

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY
C. LEE WILLIAMS.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.
Paper boards, 2s. Tonic Sol-fa, 1s.
String Parts, 8s. 6d. Wind Parts, 15s. 6d. Full Score, MS.
Words only, 7s. 6d. per 100.

(REDUCED PRICE.)

GETHSEMANE

THE WORDS WRITTEN AND COMPILED BY
JOSEPH BENNETT

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY
C. LEE WILLIAMS.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.
Paper boards, 2s. String Parts, 10s. 6d. Wind Parts and Full Score, MS.
Words only, 7s. 6d. per 100.

IN THE DESERT AND IN THE GARDEN

FOR
SOPRANO, TENOR, AND BARITONE SOLI AND CHORUS

THE WORDS WRITTEN AND SELECTED BY
VIOLET CRAIGIE HALKETT

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY
FERRIS TOZER.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.
Paper boards, 2s.
Tonic Sol-fa, 1s. Words only, 7s. 6d. per 100.
Parts for Strings and Timpani may be had on hire.

THE CRUCIFIXION

A MEDITATION
ON THE
SACRED PASSION OF THE HOLY REDEEMER

THE WORDS SELECTED AND WRITTEN BY
W. J. SPARROW-SIMPSON, M.A.

SET TO MUSIC BY
J. STAINER.

Vocal Score, paper cover, One Shilling and Sixpence.
Paper boards, 2s. Tonic Sol-fa, 9d.
Words only, with Hymn Tunes, 2d.; Tonic Sol-fa, 2d.
Words, complete, 10s. per 100; Words of Hymns, 5s. per 100.

THE DARKEST HOUR

FOR
SOPRANO, TENOR, AND BARITONE SOLI AND CHORUS
WITH
HYMNS TO BE SUNG BY THE CONGREGATION

THE WORDS SELECTED, AND THE MUSIC COMPOSED, BY HAROLD MOORE.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.
Paper boards, 2s.; Tonic Sol-fa, 9d.
Words only, 7s. 6d. per 100. String Parts, 6s. 6d.
Wind Parts and Full Score, MS.

THE CROSS OF CHRIST

WORDS SELECTED FROM THE HOLY SCRIPTURES, INTERSPERSED WITH APPROPRIATE HYMNS, BY W. MAURICE ADAMS

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY
THOMAS ADAMS.

Price One Shilling.
Tonic Sol-fa Edition, 6d. Words only, 7s. 6d. per 100.

THE STORY OF CALVARY

FOR TENOR AND BASS SOLI AND CHORUS

THE WORDS SELECTED AND WRITTEN BY
ROSE DAFFORNE BETJEMANN

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY
THOMAS ADAMS.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence. Paper boards, 2s. Tonic Sol-fa, 9d.
Words only, 10s. per 100.

IS IT NOTHING TO YOU?

AN EASY CANTATA

For use during the Season of Lent, and on Good Friday, specially adapted for Country Choirs

BY
E. V. HALL, M.A.

Price Eightpence.
Tonic Sol-fa, 3d. Words, with Music to the Hymns, price 2d.

VIA DOLOROSA

A DEVOTION

FOR BARITONE SOLO AND CHORUS

Suitable for the Seasons of Lent and Passiontide

THE WORDS DERIVED MAINLY FROM ANCIENT SOURCES

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY
E. CUTHBERT NUNN.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence. Paper boards, 2s.
Words only, 7s. 6d. per 100.

OLIVET TO CALVARY

FOR
TENOR AND BARITONE SOLI AND CHORUS
INTERSPERSED WITH HYMNS TO BE SUNG BY THE CONGREGATION

THE WORDS SELECTED AND WRITTEN BY
SHAPCOTT WENSLEY

THE MUSIC BY
J. H. MAUNDER.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.
Paper boards, 2s. Tonic Sol-fa, 9d. Words only, 10s. per 100.
String Parts, 11s. Wind Parts, 13s. 6d. Full Score, MS.

AT THE FOOT OF THE CROSS

(STABAT MATER)

FOR SOLI, CHORUS AND ORCHESTRA

COMPOSED BY ANTON DVOŘÁK.
(Op. 58.)

THE ENGLISH ADAPTATION BY FRED. J. W. CROWE.

Price Two Shillings and Sixpence.
Tonic Sol-fa, 1s. 6d. Words only, 5s. per 100. Vocal Parts, 9d. each.
String Parts, 10s. Wind Parts, &c., 20s. Full Score (Latin words), 45s.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

Music for Lent and Easter

BY

EDWARD BUNNETT, MUS. D. CANTAB.

Te Deum in E. Chant Form	3d.
Benedicite in E	2d.
Benedictus and Jubilate in E. Chant Form	3d.

REDUCED IN PRICE.

Communion Service in E	6d.
Communion Service in G. For Men's Voices ...	6d.
130th Psalm—Out of the deep	9d.
The Story of the Cross	2d.
Lead me in Thy truth (Lent)	3d.

If we believe. Easter Anthem	4d.
If we believe. Tonic Sol-fa	1½d.
The Good Shepherd	3d.

ORGAN MUSIC.

Ave Maria	1 6
Two Short Pieces, Larghetto in F and Pastorale in A	1 6
Two Sketches. Adagio in F♯ and Andante in D♭	1 6
Introduction, Air with Variations, and Fugue in B♭	2 0

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

PENITENCE PARDON AND PEACE

J. H. MAUNDER.

The Musical Times, 1/1/99: "An admirable example of a commendable class of Church music. Consists of writing of that melodious and effective nature for which the composer is so widely famed."

Musical Opinion, 1/2/98: "A fine Church composition."

Musical News, 15/1/98: "We have no hesitation in cordially recommending it."

Musical Standard, 5/3/98: "Deserves considerable popularity."

Organist and Choirmaster, 15/2/98: "For the music we have nothing but praise."

Birmingham Post, 5/3/98: "The music is of a high artistic value."

Liverpool Courier, 2/8/98: "A work of great merit in every respect."

Manchester Courier, 9/3/98: "It will doubtless be used in many 'quires and places where they sing.'"

Newcastle Leader, 23/2/98: "A well-written work."

Western Morning News, 25/3/98: "A good composition. Striking and original."

Chester Chronicle, 16/4/98: "A beautiful work, very tuneful, and exceedingly effective."

Lichfield Mercury, 4/2/98: "Extremely effective, containing some really beautiful music."

Journal of the Incorporated Society of Musicians, 1/2/98: "A well-written work. We can strongly recommend it."

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.

Paper boards, 2s.; Tonic Sol-fa, 1s. Words, 2s. per 100.

Band Parts may be hired or purchased from Messrs. Goodwin & Tabb, 34, Percy Street, W.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

RECENTLY PUBLISHED.

COMMUNION SERVICE IN G FOR S.A.T.B.

By F. J. MARCHMENT.

Originally written for the St. Agnes Choir of the Church of St. John Evangelist, Upper Norwood. An Appendix containing Second Soprano and Contralto Parts provides for its use by similar Choirs.

PRICE ONE SHILLING.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

GILL'S EASY VOLUNTARIES.—Messiah, Elijah, Creation, St. Paul, Judas, One Shilling each. GILL'S EASY ANTHEMS, No. 1 to No. 7, Twopence each; Sol-fa, One Penny. London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

NOVELLO'S Sunday School Anniversary Music

ANTHEMS.

*Sun of my Soul	J. H. ADAMS
†Thine for ever	H. ELLIOT BUTTON
†I love to hear the story	MYLES B. FOSTER
†Lord, Thy children guide and keep	J. H. MAUNDER
†Hosanna we sing	JOHN E. WEST

Price Threepence each.

† Tonic Sol-fa, price 1½d. each. * Tonic Sol-fa, price 2d.

HYMNS AND TUNES.

SET I.

No.
1.	Come, children, on and forward	GEORGE C. MARTIN
2.	For the freshness of the morning	Lady EUAN-SMITH
3.	I love to hear the story	FREDERIC CLAY
4.	Come, O come! in pious lays	J. STAINER
5.	Thine for ever! God of Love	W. C. HARVEY
6.	Jesu, Whom Thy children love	H. ELLIOT BUTTON
7.	Sweetly o'er the meadows fair	F. A. CHALLINOR
8.	Would you gain the best in life	C. J. MAY
9.	On our way rejoicing	WALTER B. GILBERT
10.	Now the daylight goes away	J. ADCOCK

SET II.

1.	Again the morn of gladness	J. STAINER
2.	The Angels' Song	ALBERTO RANDEGGER
3.	Forward, Christian children	ALFRED MOFFAT
4.	The Golden Shore	J. STAINER
5.	Saviour, blessèd Saviour	JOHN E. WEST
6.	Enter with thanksgiving	F. H. COWEN
7.	Man shall not live by bread alone ..	J. VARLEY ROBERTS
8.	Stars, that on your wondrous way	J. STAINER
9.	The day is past and over	JOSEPH BARNBY
10.	God will take care of you	FRANCES R. HAVERGAL

SET III.

1.	We march, we march, to victory	JOSEPH BARNBY
2.	Hark! bark! the organ loudly peals ..	GEORGE J. BENNETT
3.	O what can little hands do?	H. ELLIOT BUTTON
4.	While the sun is shining	T. ADAMS
5.	I love to hear the story	H. J. GAUNTLETT
6.	The roseate hues of early dawn	A. SULLIVAN
7.	Lord, Thy children guide and keep	A. S. COOPER
8.	In our work and in our play	F. WESTLAKE
9.	The Beautiful Land	J. STAINER
10.	Gentle Jesus, meek and mild	J. STAINER

(JUST PUBLISHED).

SET. IV.

1.	The boys and girls of England	J. STAINER
2.	The crown is waiting	J. STAINER
3.	The City of Light	E. J. TROUP
4.	He dwells among the lilies	Lady EUAN-SMITH
5.	God is in Heaven! Can He hear ..	H. ELLIOT BUTTON
6.	The Good Shepherd	J. STAINER
7.	A little kingdom I possess	R. S. NEWMAN
8.	Raise your standard, brothers	E. J. TROUP
9.	Flowers	ALBERTO RANDEGGER
10.	Jesus, tender Shepherd, hear me	HORATIO PARKER

Both Notations, price Fourpence per Set.

Words only, 5s. per 100.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

THE PASSION

A MEDITATION ON THE SUFFERINGS OF CHRIST

FOR TWO SOLO VOICES (TENOR AND BASS) AND CHORUS

TOGETHER WITH

HYMNS TO BE SUNG BY THE CHOIR AND CONGREGATION

BY

J. VARLEY ROBERTS.

Price, Paper Covers, 1s. 6d.; Paper boards, 2s.
Words, with Hymn Tunes, price 2d.; Words only, price 1d.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

EASTER ANTHEMS.

RECENTLY PUBLISHED.

OPEN ME THE GATES OF RIGHTEOUSNESS.

By MYLES B. FOSTER. Price 1½d.; Tonic Sol-fa, 1½d.

THIS IS THE DAY.

By J. H. MAUNDER. Price 3d.; Tonic Sol-fa, 1½d.

*Above all praise and all majesty	Mendelssohn	1½d.
*Alleluia! now is Christ risen	T. Adams	3d.
*Alleluia! the Lord liveth	Cuthbert Harris	3d.
*All hail, dear Conqueror	T. Adams	1½d.
*All men, all things	Mendelssohn	4d.
As Christ was raised	G. A. Macfarren	2d.
*As Christ was raised	H. W. Wareing	3d.
*As it began to dawn	M. B. Foster	1½d.
As it began to dawn	C. Vincent	3d.
*As Moses lifted up the serpent	F. Gostelow	3d.
As we have borne	J. Barnby	1½d.
*At the Lamb's high feast	E. V. Hall	3d.
At the Sepulchre	H. W. Wareing	4d.
*Awake, awake, with holy rapture sing	John E. West	3d.
*Awake, thou that sleepest	J. Stainer	6d.
*Awake up, my glory	J. Barnby	1½d.
Awake up, my glory	B. Haynes	1½d.
Awake up, my glory	F. Iliffe	2d.
Awake up, my glory	M. Wise	3d.
*Be glad, O ye righteous	H. Smart	4d.
*Be glad then, ye children	Alfred Hollins	3d.
*Behold, the Angel of the Lord	B. Tours	1½d.
*Behold the Lamb—All glory to the Lamb	Spohr	1½d.
*Blessed be the God and Father	S. S. Wesley	2d.
*Blessed be Thou	Kent	4d.
Blessing and glory	Boyce	1½d.
*Blessing, glory	B. Tours	4d.
*Break forth into joy	J. Barnby	1½d.
*Break forth into joy	T. R. Prentice	6d.
*Break forth into joy	B. Steane	3d.
*Christ being raised from the dead	G. J. Elvey	1½d.
Christ being raised from the dead	S. Webbe	1½d.
Christ both died and rose	E. W. Naylor	3d.
Christ is risen	J. M. Crament and G. B. J. Aitken, ea.	3d.
*Christ is risen	G. J. Elvey	1½d.
Christ is risen	Warwick Jordan	4d.
*Christ is risen	E. H. Thorne	1½d.
*Christ is risen	J. V. Roberts and E. A. Sydenham, ea.	3d.
*Christ our Passover	J. Goss and O. King, ea.	1½d.
*Christ our Passover	E. V. Hall	3d.
Christ our Passover	G. A. Macfarren	2d.
*Christ our Passover	B. Tours	1½d.
*Christ the Lord is risen again	E. V. Hall	4d.
*Christ the Lord is risen to-day	E. V. Hall	3d.
*Christ was delivered for our offences	C. H. Lloyd	1½d.
*Come, let us join our cheerful songs	E. V. Hall	3d.
*Come with high and holy gladness	Hugh Blair	3d.
*Come, ye faithful, raise the anthem	E. V. Hall	3d.
*Come, ye faithful, raise the strain	E. V. Hall	3d.
*Come, ye Saints (S.A.T.B.)	H. Elliot Button	1½d.
*Come, ye Saints (Unison)	H. Elliot Button	3d.
*Death is swallowed up in victory	Alfred Hollins	3d.
*Far be sorrow, tears and sighing	E. V. Hall	3d.
For it became Him	Oliver King	1½d.
For us the Christ	Ch. Gounod	2d.
*From Thy love as a Father	Ch. Gounod	1½d.
Give thanks unto God	Spohr	4d.
*God hath appointed a day	B. Tours	1½d.
God, Who is rich in mercy	G. M. Garrett	1½d.
Great is the Lord	Hayes	4d.
*Hallelujah!	Handel	2d.
Hallelujah! Christ is risen	B. Steane	3d.
Hearken unto Me	M. B. Foster	1½d.
*He is risen	H. Gadsby	1½d.
*He shall swallow up death in Victory	F. R. Greenish	3d.
He that spared not His own Son	F. E. Gladstone	3d.
*He that spared not His Son	W. G. Alcock	1½d.
He will swallow up death in Victory	Wesley	1½d.
I am He that liveth	T. Adams	4d.
*I am the Resurrection	Roland Rogers	4d.
I declare to you the Gospel	W. A. C. Cruickshank	4d.
If Christ be not raised	Charles Macpherson	4d.
*If we believe that Jesus died	B. Luard-Selby and J. Goss, ea.	1½d.
If we believe that Jesus died	G. A. Macfarren	2d.
*If ye then be risen with Christ	Ivor Atkins	4d.
If ye then be risen with Christ (Two-part)	M. B. Foster	3d.
*If ye then be risen with Christ	H. M. Higgs	1½d.
If ye then be risen with Christ	J. Naylor	3d.
*I heard a great voice	G. F. Cobb	3d.
*I will alway give thanks	J. B. Calkin	1½d.
*I will alway give thanks	J. Clarke-Whitfeld	3d.
I will extol Thee	C. M. Hudson	4d.
*I will go unto the Altar of God	C. Harris	3d.
I will greatly rejoice	W. A. C. Cruickshank	4d.
I will love Thee, O Lord	M. Kingston	4d.
I will magnify Thee	*J. B. Calkin and W. H. Bell, ea.	4d.
I will magnify Thee	E. M. Lee	3d.
I will magnify Thee	B. Luard-Selby	1½d.
*I will mention	A. Sullivan	6d.
I will sing of Thy power	M. Greene	4d.
*I will sing of Thy power	A. Sullivan	1½d.
*Jesus Christ is risen to-day	Alfred R. Gaul and Oliver King, ea.	4d.
*Jesus lives	Myles B. Foster	3d.
*Know ye not	Edward C. Bairstow	1½d.
Let God arise	M. Greene	6d.
Light's glittering morn	John E. West	4d.
Lord, before Thy footstool bending	Spohr	3d.
Lord Christ! when Thou hadst overcome	Haydn	1½d.
*Lord, Thy arm hath been uplifted	Spohr	2d.
Lo, the winter is past	*B. Farebrother and H. Gadsby, ea.	3d.
*Lo! the winter is past	B. Luard-Selby	1½d.
Magnify His Name	G. C. Martin	4d.
Morn's roseate hues	G. W. Chadwick	3d.
*Most glorious Lord of Life	John E. West	1½d.
My beloved spake	H. Purcell	6d.
My heart is fixed, O God	W. A. C. Cruickshank	4d.
My heart was glad	A. Carnall	4d.
Not unto us, O Lord	H. Gadsby	6d.
*Not unto us, O Lord	T. A. Walmisley	1½d.
Not unto us, O Lord	John E. West	4d.
*Now dawning glows the day of days	David Stanley Smith	1½d.
*Now is Christ risen	G. B. Allen and John E. West, ea.	1½d.
*Now late on the Sabbath Day	S. Coleridge-Taylor	3d.
*Now on the first day of the week	H. Lahee	1½d.
O clap your hands	M. Greene	4d.
*O clap your hands	J. Stainer	6d.
O clap your hands (S.S.A.)	E. H. Thorne	6d.
O clap your hands	T. T. Trimnell	3d.
*O come, let us sing	M. B. Foster	3d.
*O death, where is thy sting?	A. Herbert Brewer	1½d.
*O death, where is thy sting?	Alfred Hollins	4d.
*O give thanks	J. Goss	3d.
O give thanks	S. S. Wesley	4d.
O give thanks to the Lord	H. J. King	3d.
*O give thanks unto the Lord	W. Wolstenholme	1½d.
*O sing unto the Lord	J. Varley Roberts	3d.
*O voice of the Beloved	Henry John King	3d.
*On the first day of the week	E. M. Lott	1½d.
*Open to me the gates	F. Adlam	4d.
*Praise His awful Name	Spohr	2d.
Praise Jehovah	Mendelssohn	4d.
Praise the Lord, ye servants	B. Steane	3d.
*Rejoice in the Lord	*J. B. Calkin and G. J. Elvey, ea.	1½d.
Rejoice in the Lord	G. C. Martin	6d.
Rejoice, O ye people	Mendelssohn	1½d.
*Sing praises unto the Lord	W. A. C. Cruickshank	1½d.
*Sing praises unto the Lord	Ch. Gounod	6d.
Sing to the Lord	Mendelssohn	8d.
*Sing ye to the Lord	E. C. Bairstow and C. Harford Lloyd, ea.	3d.
*Ten thousand times ten thousand	E. Vine Hall	3d.
Ten thousand times ten thousand	Ferris Tozer	4d.
Thanks be to God	J. W. Gritton and Oliver King, ea.	3d.
*The Day of Resurrection	E. Vine Hall	3d.
*The end of the Sabbath	A. Carnall	1½d.
*The first day of the week	B. Steane	3d.
*The Lord hath brought us	E. H. Thorne	1½d.
*The Lord hath done great things	H. Smart	4d.
*The Lord is King	J. Pittman	1½d.
*The Lord is King	T. T. Trimnell	4d.
The Lord is my strength	S. Coleridge-Taylor	3d.
*The Lord is my strength	W. H. Monk and V. Novello, ea.	1½d.
*The Lord is my strength	H. Smart	1½d.
*The Lord is risen	G. M. Garrett	4d.
*The Lord is risen again	B. Luard-Selby	3d.
*The Lord liveth	A. W. Marchant	3d.
*The Lord omnipotent reigneth	Thomas Adams	3d.
The promise which was made	Ed. C. Bairstow	4d.
*The strain upraise	A. Sullivan	1½d.
*The strife is o'er, the battle done	B. Luard-Selby	1½d.
*The strife is o'er	B. Steane	1½d.
*They have taken away my Lord	J. Stainer	1½d.
*This is the day	S. C. Cooke and Basil Harwood, ea.	3d.
*This is the day	E. H. Lemare and E. V. Hall, ea.	4d.
This is the day	G. A. Macfarren	2d.
This is the day	A. W. Marchant	3d.
*This is the day	J. Sewell	2d.
This is the day	*J. H. Maunder and J. Turle, ea.	3d.
'Tis the spring of souls to-day (Cantata)	E. H. Lemare	1s.
*Unto the Paschal Victim bring	John E. West	1½d.
*Upon the first day of the week	Myles B. Foster	1½d.
When Christ, who is our life, shall appear	J. V. Roberts	2d.
When my soul fainted within me	J. F. Bridge	1½d.
*When the Sabbath was past	M. B. Foster	1½d.
*Who is like unto Thee?	A. Sullivan	6d.
*Who shall roll us away the stone?	G. W. Torrance	1½d.
*Why rage fiercely the heathen?	Mendelssohn	6d.
*Why seek ye the living?	A. Hollins and A. Alexander, ea.	3d.
Why seek ye the living? (Two-part)	M. B. Foster	3d.
*Why seek ye the living?	E. J. Hopkins	1½d.
Why seek ye the living?	F. Peel	4d.
Worthy the Lamb—Hallelujah!	Crotch	3d.
*Worthy is the Lamb	J. F. Barnett	1½d.
*Worthy is the Lamb	Handel	2d.
Worthy is the Lamb	E. H. Thorne	3d.

*Anthems marked thus * to be had in Tonic Sol-fa, 1d., 1½d., and 2d. each.*

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

NOVELLO'S HANDBOOKS FOR MUSICIANS.

Edited by Ernest Newman.

CHORAL TECHNIQUE & INTERPRETATION

BY

HENRY COWARD.

Mus. Doc. Oxon.

Published as a Net Book. Price, Cloth, gilt, Five Shillings net.

THE TEACHING AND ACCOMPANIMENT OF PLAINSONG

BY

FRANCIS BURGESS.

Published as a Net Book.

Price, Cloth, gilt, Three Shillings and Sixpence net.

THE MUSIC OF THE BIBLE

With some account of the Development of Modern Musical Instruments from Ancient Types.

BY

JOHN STAINER.

New Edition, with Additional Illustrations and Supplementary Notes

BY

THE REV. F. W. GALPIN, M.A., F.L.S

Published as a Net Book.

Price, Cloth, gilt, Five Shillings net.

SONGS FROM THE PLAYS OF WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE

With Dances and Incidental Music as sung and danced by the Bermondsey Guild of Play.

WRITTEN AND COMPILED BY

MRS. G. T. KIMMINS.

Published as a Net Book.

Price, Half Bound, Paper Sides, gilt top, Five Shillings net.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

WILL BE READY SHORTLY.

POCKET SING-SONG BOOK
FOR SOLDIERS AND SAILORS, SCHOOLS AND HOMES.

Old Notation and Tonic Sol-fa Combined.
PRICE ONE SHILLING.

NATIONAL HYMNS.

God Save the King.
The Russian National Hymn.
The Japanese National Anthem.
The Belgian National Song.
The Marseillaise.

MARCHING SONGS.

John Peel.
The Loud Tattoo (The Soldier's Life).
March of the Men of Harlech.
Wi' a Hundred Pipers.
A Soldier's Life.
The Coasts of High Barbary.
Dashing away with the Smoothing Iron.
Charlie is my darling.
Heave away, my Johnny.
The Greenland Fishery.
Nuts in May.
The Girl I left behind me.
The British Grenadiers.
Admiral Benbow.
The young May moon.
The Mermaid.
The Flight of the Earls.
Widdicombe Fair.
The Red, White, and Blue (Britannia, the Pride of the Ocean).
Let the Hills resound.
We be Three Poor Mariners.

NATIONAL AND FOLK-SONGS.

Auld Lang Syne.
Begone! dull care.
Heart of Oak.
Blow, blow, thou Winter Wind.
Neptune and Britannia.
O No, John!
The Meeting of the Waters.
The Lass of Richmond Hill.
Ash Grove, The.
The Maple Leaf for ever.
Here's a Health unto His Majesty.
A Man 's a Man for a' that.
The Golden Vanity.
Let Erin remember.
The Harp that once through Tara's Halls.
Home, Sweet Home.
Blue Bells of Scotland.
Long, long ago.
The Bells of Aberdovey.
The Flowers o' the Forest.
Rule, Britannia.
Good-Morrow, Gossip Joan.
All through the Night.
Land of my Fathers.
Scots wha' ha'e.
The last Rose of Summer.
Summer is a-coming in.

HYMNS.

Onward, Christian Soldiers.
Rock of Ages.
Abide with me.
Now thank we all our God.
Sun of my soul.
All People that on earth do dwell.
Through the Night of Doubt and Sorrow.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

NAVAL AND MILITARY MUSICAL UNION SONG BOOK

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.

CONTENTS.

No.
1.	A Vintage Song	Mendelssohn
2.	Drink to me only with thine eyes	(Arr. by) H. Elliot Button
3.	Far down the green valley	C. H. Döring
4.	Gipsy Song	Mendelssohn
5.	Maiden fair, O deign to tell	Haydn
6.	Men of Harlech	(Arr. by) J. Tilleard
7.	O who will o'er the downs	R. L. de Pearsall
8.	Once more with joy (Pilgrims' Chorus, Tannhäuser)	Wagner
9.	Serenade	Mendelssohn
10.	Soldiers' Chorus (Faust)	Gounod
11.	Sweet and low	J. Barnby
12.	The Comrades' Song of Hope	Adolphe Adam
13.	The Dear Little Shamrock	(Arr. by) H. Elliot Button
14.	The Frog (humorous)	Ernest Newton
15.	The Long Day Closes	Arthur Sullivan
16.	The Three Chafers (humorous)	H. Trühn
17.	The Three Huntsmen (humorous)	C. Kreutzer
18.	The wintry winds are blowing	J. Müller
19.	Thuringian Volkslied	Franz Abt
20.	What care I how fair she be	Jacques Blumenthal

TWENTY-ONE SONGS

By CHARLES DIBDIN.

Edited and with Pianoforte Accompaniment by

W. A. BARRETT.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.

In every fertile Valley.
The Sailor's Epitaph, or Tom Bowling.
Ben Backstay.
Then farewell, my trim-built wherry.
Jolly Dick, the Lamplighter.
I lock'd up all my treasure.
Blow high, blow low.
While the lads of the village.
True courage.
Poor Jack.
Tom Tough.
The Token.
The Anchorsmiths.
The Greenwich Pensioner.
All 's one to Jack.
The jolly young Waterman.
Lovely Nan.
The sailor's Journal.
The tar for all weathers.
'Tis said we venturous die-hards.
The lass that loves a sailor.

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

SONGS FOR SAILORS.

Written by W. C. BENNETT.

Music by J. L. HATTON.

Price Two Shillings and Sixpence.

Trafalgar.
Would you be a sailor's wife.
A fisher-wife's song.
Nay, never cry, lass.
A kiss to take to sea.
Homeward bound.
The Nile.
The apparition.
The Dutchman's broom.
Take me, lass, for life.
The fine old English admiral.
Ring, happy bells.
The forsaken.
The sailor's dream.
To sea.
Rooke in the Bay of La Hogue.
A thousand leagues away.
Strike, and strike hard.
Were I that gull.
Hawke in Quiberon Bay.
Saturday night at sea.
Duncan at Camperdown.
Rum.
Rodney and De Grasse.
From Sea.
A wife's song.
The winds, inconstant ever.
Old Benbow.
There 's nothing like a smoke.
The sea-boy's dream.
A song of the sea.
The wife for a British sailor.
We roam and rule the sea.
The homeward watch.
Off to sea.
A mother's song.
Here we sit by our Christmas fire.
A Christmas song.
Outward Bound.
Herrings are in the bay.

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

NOVELLO'S VOCAL ALBUMS.

ARNE, THOMAS A.—Twenty Songs (1710-1778). Edited, and with Pianoforte Accompaniment, by W. A. Barrett. Price 1s. 6d.

BACH, J. S.—Twenty Sacred Songs. Selected from the Schemell Collection, and arranged for Voice and Pianoforte Accompaniment by Robert Franz. The English Version by the Rev. J. Troutbeck. Price 1s. 6d.

BEETHOVEN.—Twenty-Six Songs. Vol. I. English and German words. The English Version by the Rev. J. Troutbeck. Price 1s. 6d.

BEETHOVEN.—Seventeen Songs. Vol. II. English and German words. The English Version by the Rev. J. Troutbeck. Price 1s. 6d.

BEETHOVEN.—Twenty-Two Songs. Vol. III. English and German words. The English Version by the Rev. J. Troutbeck. Price 1s. 6d.

BENNETT, W. STERNDALE. — Twelve Songs, English and German words. Price 1s. ; cloth, gilt, 2s. 6d.

BISHOP, H. R.—Twenty Songs (1786-1855). Edited by W. A. Barrett. Price 1s. 6d.

BRAHMS, J.—Six Songs (Op. 3). For Soprano or Tenor. English and German words. The English Version by W. G. Rothery. Price 2s.

BRAHMS, J.—Six Songs (Op. 6). For Soprano or Tenor. Edited by Alberto Randegger. English and German words. English words by Felix Mansfield. Price 2s.

BRAHMS, J.—Eight Songs (Op. 14). For High Voice. English and German words. The English Version by W. G. Rothery. Book I. (Nos. 1—4). Book II. (Nos. 5—8). Price 2s. each book.

BRAHMS, J.—Five Songs. (Op. 19). For High Voice. English and German words. English words by W. G. Rothery. Price 2s.

BRAHMS, J.—Four Songs (Op. 32. Book I.). No. 1 for High Voice; Nos. 2, 3, and 4 for Low Voice. English and German words. English words by W. G. Rothery. Price 2s.

BRAHMS, J.—Five Songs (Op. 32. Book II). For High Voice. English and German words. English words by W. G. Rothery. Price 2s.

BRAHMS, J.—Four Songs (Op. 46). For Soprano or Tenor. English and German words. The English words by W. G. Rothery. Price 2s.

BRAHMS, J.—Five Songs (Op. 47). For Soprano or Tenor. English and German words. The English words by W. G. Rothery. Price 2s.

BRAHMS, J.—Seven Songs (Op. 48). For Soprano or Tenor. English and German words. The English words by W. G. Rothery. Price 2s.

BRAHMS, J.—Twenty-Two Songs. English words by F. Hueffer. Price 1s. 6d.

BRAHMS, J.—Selected Songs. English, French, and German words. Eight Volumes for High Voice and Eight Volumes for Low Voice, each 3s.

DIBDIN, CHARLES.—Twenty-One Songs (1745-1814). Edited, and with Pianoforte Accompaniment, by W. A. Barrett. Price 1s. 6d.

DVOŘÁK, A.—Sixteen Songs. English and German words. English version by the Rev. J. Troutbeck. Price 2s. 6d.

DVORÁK, A.—Eight Love Songs (Acht Liebes Lieder). (Op. 83.) With English, German, and Bohemian words. Price 3s.

FRANZ, ROBERT.—Thirty Songs. With English words by F. Hueffer. Price 1s. 6d.

FRANZ, ROBERT.—Fourteen Songs (Vierzehn Lieder). English and German words. Set to poems of Robert Burns. Edited and adapted by Natalia Macfarren. Price 2s. 6d.

HOOK, JAMES.—Twenty Songs (1746-1827). Edited, and with Pianoforte Accompaniment, by W. A. Barrett. Price 1s. 6d.

LISZT, FRANZ.—Twenty Songs. Selected, and the words translated, by F. Hueffer. Price 1s. 6d.

LODER, EDWARD JAMES.—Twenty-One Songs (1813-1865). Edited by W. A. Barrett. Price 2s.

MOZART, W. A.—Nineteen Songs. English and German words. The English version by the Rev. J. Troutbeck, D.D. Price 1s. 6d.

MOZART, W. A.—Songs from the Operas. With Marks of Expression and Phrasing by Alberto Randegger. English and Italian words. Le Nozze di Figaro, 4 Books; Don Giovanni, 4 Books. Price, each, 2s.

SCHUBERT, FRANZ.—Volume I. Twenty Songs. For Mezzo-Soprano Voice. Selected, edited, and translated by Natalia Macfarren. Price 1s. 6d.

SCHUBERT, FRANZ.—Volume II. Twenty Songs. For a Contralto Voice. Selected, edited, and translated by Natalia Macfarren. Price 1s. 6d.

SCHUBERT, FRANZ.—Volume III. Twenty Songs. For Soprano or Tenor. Selected, edited, and translated by Natalia Macfarren. Price 1s. 6d.

SCHUBERT, FRANZ. — Volume IV. Swan Songs (Schwanengesang). Fourteen Songs. German and English words. The English version by the Rev. J. Troutbeck. Edited, with Marks for Phrasing, Expression, and Breathing, by Alberto Randegger. Price 1s. 6d.

SCHUBERT, FRANZ.—Volume V. "The Fair Maid of the Mill" (Die Schöne Müllerin). German and English words. Twenty Songs. The English version by the Rev. J. Troutbeck. Edited, with Marks for Phrasing, Expression, and Breathing, by Alberto Randegger. Price 1s. 6d.

SCHUBERT, FRANZ.—Volume VI. "The Winter Journey" (Winterreise). German and English words. Twenty-four Songs. The English Version by the Rev. J. Troutbeck. Price 1s. 6d.

SCHUMANN, R.—Songs. English and German words. Edited, and in part translated, by Natalia Macfarren. Folio, cloth, price 10s. 6d.

SCHUMANN, R.—Myrtles. English and German words. Op. 25. A circle of Songs. Edited and translated by Natalia Macfarren. Price 1s. 6d.

SCHUMANN, R.—Thirty Songs. English and German words. Price 2s. 6d. ; cloth, 4s. 6d.

SCHUMANN, R.— Woman's Love and Life (Frauenliebe). English and German words, Op. 42. Edited and translated by Natalia Macfarren. Price 1s.

SCHUMANN, R.—Liederkreis (Op. 39). Twelve Songs. English and German words. Edited and translated from the German of J. von Eichendorf by Natalia Macfarren. Price 1s.

SCHUMANN, R.—Twelve Songs (Op. 35). English and German words. Edited and translated by Lady Macfarren. Price 1s.

SCHUMANN, R.—A Poet's Love (Dichterliebe). Op. 48. A Cycle of Songs. English and German words. Edited and translated by Natalia Macfarren. Price 1s. 6d.

TSCHAIKOWSKY, P.—Twenty-Four Songs. Selected and translated into English by Lady Macfarren. Price 2s. 6d.

WAGNER, RICHARD.—Five Songs. For Soprano or Tenor. English and German words. The English translations by Felix Mansfield. Edited by Alberto Randegger. Price 2s.

NOVELLO'S
PIANOFORTE ALBUMS.

EDITED BY BERTHOLD TOURS.

In Numbers, each One Shilling; or, Cloth Volumes, each Four Shillings.

No. 1.—BACH. Twenty Pieces from Petits Préludes, Suites Anglaises. Partita Nos. 1 to 3, &c.
No. 2.—BACH. Twenty Pieces from Suites Anglaises, Suites Françaises. Partita Nos. 4 and 5, &c.
No. 3.—BACH. Twenty Pieces from Petits Préludes, Concertos, Suites Anglaises, &c.
Nos. 1, 2, and 3, in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

No. 4.—HANDEL. Twenty-four Pieces from Suites 1 to 7, Sonatas, "Harmonious Blacksmith," &c.
No. 5.—HANDEL. Twenty-four Pieces from Suites 8 to 12, Gavottes, &c.
No. 6.—HANDEL. Twenty-four Pieces from Suites 13 to 16, Water Music, &c.
Nos. 4, 5, and 6, in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

No. 7.—MARCHES. Fifteen Pieces, including Mendelssohn's Hero's March, Rakoczy March, Bridal March "Lohengrin," &c.
No. 8.—MARCHES. Fifteen Pieces, including Meyerbeer's Coronation March, Cornelius March, Pilgrims' March, &c.
No. 9.—MARCHES. Fifteen Pieces, including Mendelssohn's Wedding March, March "Tannhäuser," &c.
Nos. 7, 8, and 9, in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

No. 10.—GAVOTTES, MINUETS, Etc. Sixteen Pieces, including Rameau's Gavotte, Zimmermann's Gavotte, Calkin's Minuet, Silas's Bourrée, &c.
No. 11.—GAVOTTES, MINUETS, Etc. Sixteen Pieces, including Gluck's Gavotte, W. Macfarren's Bourrée, Bach's Bourrée, &c.
No. 12.—GAVOTTES, MINUETS, Etc. Sixteen Pieces, including W. Macfarren's 2nd Gavotte, Sir J. Benedict's Gavotte, Mozart's Minuet, &c.
Nos. 10, 11, and 12, in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

No. 13.—WOLLENHAUPT, J. Ten Pieces, including Marche Hongroise, Scherzo Brillant, &c.
No. 14.—WOLLENHAUPT, J. Ten Pieces, including "La Gazelle," "Mazeppa Galop," &c.
No. 15.—WOLLENHAUPT, J. Ten Pieces, including "Les Clochettes," "Feu Follet," &c.
Nos. 13, 14, and 15, in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

No. 16.—SCHWEIZER, OTTO. Eight Scottish Airs (arranged for four hands).

No. 17.—SPINDLER, FRITZ. Nine Pieces, including "Murmuring Rivulet," The Pilgrims' Chorus ("Tannhäuser"), &c.
No. 18.—SPINDLER, FRITZ. Nine Pieces, including "L'Oisillon," "Le Carillon," "The Evening Star" ("Tannhäuser"), &c.
No. 19.—SPINDLER, FRITZ. Ten Pieces, including "Jeu des Ondes," Valse Mélodieuse, Spinning Song ("Flying Dutchman"), &c.
Nos. 17, 18, and 19, in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

No. 20.—GOETZ, HERMANN. Five Compositions.
No. 21.—GOETZ, HERMANN. Four Compositions.
No. 22.—GOETZ, HERMANN. Six Compositions.
Nos. 20, 21, and 22, in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

No. 23.—RHEINBERGER, JOSEF. Seven Compositions.
No. 24.—RHEINBERGER, JOSEF. Eleven Compositions.
No. 25.—RHEINBERGER, JOSEF. Seven Compositions.
Nos. 23, 24, and 25, in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

No. 26.—TOURS, BERTHOLD. Juvenile Album. Eight Characteristic Pieces (Duets), 2s.

Nos. 27 and 28.—MOSCHELES, J. "Domestic Life." Twelve Characteristic Duets, Two Books, each 2s.
The Two Books, in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

No. 29.—KJERULF, HALFDAN. Nine Pieces. Op. 4, Nos. 1 to 3; Op. 12, Nos. 1 to 6.
No. 30.—KJERULF, HALFDAN. Ten Pieces. Op. 24, Nos. 1 to 4; Op. 27, Nos. 1 and 2; Op. 28, Nos. 1 to 4.
No. 31.—KJERULF, HALFDAN. Op. 28, Nos. 5 and 6; Op. 29; and Twenty Songs arranged for the Pianoforte by the Composer.
Nos. 29, 30, and 31, in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

Nos. 32, 33, and 34. The National Dance Music of Scotland. Arranged for the Pianoforte by Alexander Mackenzie; with additions by his son, Dr. A. C. Mackenzie.
Nos. 32, 33, and 34, in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

No. 35.—MACKENZIE, Dr. A. C. Eight Pieces. Op. 13, Nos. 1 to 5; Op. 15, Nos. 1 to 3.
No. 36.—MACKENZIE, Dr. A. C. Nine Pieces. Op. 20, Nos. 1 to 6; Op. 23, Nos. 1 to 3.
No. 37.—MACKENZIE, Dr. A. C. Six Songs. Transcribed for the Pianoforte by Giuseppe Buonamici.
Nos. 35, 36, and 37, in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

No. 38.—ALTSCHUL, RUDOLF. Fifty Hungarian National Songs.

No. 41.—LIADOFF, ANATOLE. Twenty-one Pieces. Op. 2, Nos. 1 to 14; Op. 3, Nos. 1, 3, 4, and 6; Op. 6; Op. 15, Nos. 1 and 2.
No. 42.—LIADOFF, ANATOLE. Seven Pieces. Op. 4, Nos. 1 to 4; Op. 7, Nos. 1 and 2; Op. 11.
No. 43.—LIADOFF, ANATOLE. Ten Pieces. Op. 8; Op. 9, Nos. 1 and 2; Op. 10, Nos. 1, 2, and 3; Op. 13, Nos. 1 to 4.
Nos. 41, 42, and 43, in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

No. 44.—CUI, CÉSAR. Thirteen Pieces. Op. 20, Nos. 1 to 12; Op. 21, No. 3.
No. 45.—CUI, CÉSAR. Eleven Pieces. Op. 21, No. 4; Op. 22, Nos. 1, 2, and 3; Op. 31, No. 2; Op. 39, Nos. 1 to 6.
No. 46.—CUI, CÉSAR. Seven Pieces. Op. 22, No. 4; Op. 29, No. 1; Op. 30, No. 1; Op. 35, Nos. 1 and 2; Op. 40, Nos. 2 and 4.
Nos. 44, 45, and 46, in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

No. 47.—SCHUBERT, FRANZ. Four Impromptus. Op. 90.
No. 48.—SCHUBERT, FRANZ. Four Impromptus. Op. 142.
No. 49.—SCHUBERT, FRANZ. Moments Musicals (Op. 94), and Adagio and Rondo (Op. 145).
Nos. 47, 48, and 49, in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

No. 50.—SCHUBERT, FRANZ. Three Sets of Variations, Andante, and Klavierstück.
No. 51.—SCHUBERT, FRANZ. Adagio, Allegretto, and March in E major, &c.
No. 52.—SCHUBERT, FRANZ. Five Klavierstücke and Two Scherzi.
Nos. 50, 51, and 52, in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

No. 53.—HOFMANN, H. "The Trumpeter of Säkkingen" (Op. 52) and Two Valses Caprices (Op. 2).
No. 54.—HOFMANN, H. "Italian Love Tale" (Op. 19) and Five other Pieces.
No. 55.—HOFMANN, H. Fourteen Pieces.
Nos. 53, 54, and 55, in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

SHORT PRELUDES
FOR THE
ORGAN

These Short Preludes are intended for use chiefly as Introductory Voluntaries to Divine Service, more especially in those churches where the time allowed for such is, of necessity, somewhat limited.

No.
	Book I.
1.	Andante Grazioso	Thomas Adams
2.	Andante	W. G. Alcock
3.	Largamente	George J. Bennett
4.	Andante Religioso	Myles B. Foster
5.	Andantino	Alfred Hollins
6.	Adagio Cantabile	Alfred Hollins
7.	Larghetto	Charles J. May
8.	Andante con Moto	John E. West
9.	Andantino quasi Allegretto	John E. West
10.	Andante	W. Wolstenholme
	Book II.
1.	Andante con Moto	Thomas Adams
2.	Con Moto	W. G. Alcock
3.	Moderato	H. A. Chambers
4.	Marziale, poco Lento	Myles B. Foster
5.	Moderato	Alfred Hollins
6.	Andantino	Alfred Hollins
7.	Adagio	Charles J. May
8.	"Hymnus"—Andante e Sostenuto	John E. West
9.	Andante Serioso	John E. West
10.	Adagio	W. Wolstenholme
	Book III.
1.	Moderato e Legato	Thomas Adams
2.	Moderato	W. G. Alcock
3.	Andante con Moto	George J. Bennett
4.	Andante	H. A. Chambers
5.	Grazioso molto Espressivo	Myles B. Foster
6.	"Song without Words"—Con Moto	Alfred Hollins
7.	Andante	Alfred Hollins
8.	Andante Dolente	John E. West
9.	Andante Pastorale	John E. West
10.	Adagio	W. Wolstenholme
	(Just Published.)
	Book IV.
1.	"Elevation"—Andante e Legato	Thomas Adams
2.	Andante Religioso	Myles B. Foster
3.	"Simplicity"—Andante	Barry M. Gilholy
4.	Largamente	R. G. Hailing
5.	"Dialogue"—Andante Grazioso	Charles H. Lloyd
6.	Andantino	Arthur W. Marchant
7.	Con Moto Moderato	William Sewell
8.	Andante Amabile	William Sewell
9.	Andante	Clement M. Spurling
10.	Andante Sostenuto	F. Cunningham Woods
	Book V.
1.	"Invocation"—Andante Grazioso	Thomas Adams
2.	Andante con Moto	Percy E. Fletcher
3.	Poco Adagio	Myles B. Foster
4.	Andante Espressivo	Ignace Gibsone
5.	Adagio	Alfred Hollins
6.	Poco Lento	Charles H. Lloyd
7.	Andante Dolente	Arthur W. Marchant
8.	Andantino con Tenerezza	William Sewell
9.	Andante con Moto	Clement M. Spurling
10.	Adagio Molto	F. Cunningham Woods
	Book VI.
1.	Dolente	Edmund T. Chipp
2.	Andante Sostenuto	Myles B. Foster
3.	Andantino	R. G. Hailing
4.	Con Moto	Alfred Hollins
5.	"Communion"—Cantabile	J. Lemmens
6.	Andante Religioso	Arthur W. Marchant
7.	Lento	Charles J. May
8.	Larghetto	Albert Robins
9.	Adagio e Mesto	William Sewell
10.	Andante Affetuoso	William Sewell

Price One Shilling Each Book.

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

FANTASIA
ON
TWO ENGLISH MELODIES
("Home, Sweet Home," and "Rule, Britannia")
FOR THE ORGAN.
COMPOSED BY
ALEX. GUILMANT.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

ORIGINAL COMPOSITIONS
FOR THE
ORGAN.
(New Series.)

No.		s.	d.
1.	Seven Chorale Preludes — C. H. H. Parry	3	6
2.	Prelude in C — W. Wolstenholme	1	6
3.	Festival Prelude on "Ein' Feste Burg" — W. Faulkes	1	6
4.	Meditation — W. Faulkes	1	6
5.	Postludium — W. Faulkes	1	6
6.	Jour de Noces — J. Stuart Archer	1	0
7.	Cantilène — R. G. Hailing	1	0
8.	Ite Missa Est (Edited by John E. West) — J. Lemmens	1	6
9.	Triumphal March (Edited by John E. West) — J. Lemmens	1	6
10.	Fanfare (Edited by John E. West) — J. Lemmens	1	0
11.	Cantabile (Edited by John E. West) — J. Lemmens	1	6
12.	Finale (Edited by John E. West) — J. Lemmens	1	6
13.	A Fantasy — C. Edgar Ford	1	6
14.	Intermezzo (A Marriage Souvenir) — W. Wolstenholme	1	6
15.	Legend — Harvey Grace	1	6
16.	Meditation — Alfred Hollins	1	0
17.	Barcarolle — A. W. Pollitt	1	0
18.	Cantique — Edward Elgar	1	6
19.	Prelude and Fugue in C (Edited by John E. West) — J. L. Krebs	2	0
20.	Epilogue — W. Wolstenholme	1	6
21.	Suite Ancienne — F. W. Holloway	2	6
22.	Fantasia and Fugue — C. H. H. Parry	2	6
23.	Voluntary — W. G. Alcock	1	0
24.	Impromptu — W. G. Alcock	1	0
25.	Legend — W. G. Alcock	1	0
26.	Intermezzo — J. Stuart Archer	1	6
27.	Twelve Miniatures — H. M. Higgs	3	0
28.	Toccatina — W. G. Alcock	1	6
29.	Romance in A flat — H. Sandiford Turner	1	0
30.	Nocturne — Thomas F. Dunhill	1	0
31.	Festal Prelude — Thomas F. Dunhill	1	6
32.	Caprice de Concert — J. Stuart Archer	1	0
33.	Romance — H. R. Woledge	1	0
34.	Prelude in G minor — W. S. Vale	1	0
35.	Romanza — Alfred Hollins	1	6
36.	Festal Prelude — Alec Rowley	2	0
37.	Romance with Variations — J. Stuart Archer	2	0
38.	Tone-Poems — Oliver King	2	0

(To be continued.)

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

THE LATIN ORGANIST
EDITED BY
SAMUEL GREGORY OULD.

Book I.

No.	CONTENTS.
1.	Prelude on "Veni, Creator Spiritus"	J. S. Bach
2.	Prelude on "Angelus ad Virginem"	Alfred Hollins
3.	Voluntary on "Orbis Factor"	S. G. Ould
4.	Eight Verses in the Church Modes (1st Set)	S. G. Ould
5.	Eight Verses in the Church Modes (2nd Set)	S. G. Ould
6.	Prelude on "Asperges me"	William Sewell
7.	Prelude on "Asperges me"	William Sewell
8.	Postlude on "Cum jubilo"	William Sewell

Book II. (Just Published).

No.	CONTENTS.
1.	Prelude on "Tonus Peregrinus"	J. S. Bach
2.	Prelude on "Et in terra pax"	Georg Böhm
3.	Meditation on "Pange lingua"	F. E. Gladstone
4.	Solemn Fughetta on "Credo in unum Deum"	C. W. Pearce
5.	Processional Verses on "Pange lingua":—
	(a) Molto Moderato	William Sewell
	(b) Andante piacevole	William Sewell
	(c) Allegro ma non troppo	William Sewell
	(d) Larghetto	William Sewell
	(e) Pomposo e non troppo allegro	William Sewell

Price One Shilling and Sixpence each Book, Net.

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

THE ORGAN

BY

WALTER G. ALCOCK,

M.V.O.,

Mus. Doc. Dunelm., A.R.C.M., F.R.C.O.

Organist and Composer to His Majesty's Chapels Royal and Assistant-Organist of Westminster Abbey.

Published as a Net Book.

Price Four Shillings Net.

THE ATHENÆUM.

A fine work . . . and is admirable at all points.

YORKSHIRE POST.

The name of Dr. Walter G. Alcock is in itself a sufficient guarantee of the sound teaching of organ-playing, and his book, "The Organ," more than sustains his reputation. . . . There are many useful exercises on various technical points, and some short original pieces which serve as further illustrations of the author's teaching. It is very clearly printed on good, stout paper, and from every point of view is a desirable book.

YORKSHIRE OBSERVER.

A treatise on the instrument by so eminent an authority as Dr. Walter Alcock is likely to become a standard text-book. The young student could ask for none better.

THE SCOTSMAN.

The work is a distinctly useful addition to books of musical instruction.

THE BRISTOL TIMES AND MIRROR.

Although many books of instruction about the organ have been published, the latest is among the best. Its merits are sundry. . . . If the book be thoroughly mastered no other one is needed for the purpose of tuition, for it is the key to everything that has been written for the king of instruments. The print is exceedingly clear, and the book itself neat and attractive.

THE WESTERN MORNING NEWS.

This is not an "instruction" book in the ordinary use of the term, for its scope is too wide, and the information given is so largely the result of personal experiment and experience that those who have already advanced in the art of organ playing will find many hints and suggestions which will prove of practical service. The book is admirably divided into sections dealing with the elements of organ art; and a very important chapter is that on hymn-playing.

THE SUNDAY TIMES.

Every young organ student will find himself greatly helped by "The Organ," a new manual of the instrument by Dr. Alcock.

THE CHOIR.

We congratulate Dr. Alcock on having produced a work which will rank with the best of its kind.

THE MUSIC STUDENT.

The work is up-to-date in every way, it is well arranged and graduated, and begins at the beginning . . . One must look a long way to find a work which unites as much sound instruction with so much good music of all grades, all under one cover.

THE BOOKSELLER.

Dr. Alcock has produced a very helpful and useful book which the ambitious player will do well to study with great care and attention; he who follows the directions here given will undoubtedly find his work as an organist very materially assisted.

CHURCH FAMILY NEWSPAPER.

Written by a master of his subject, "The Organ" makes an immediate appeal to organists of all descriptions, for the matter contained in the book embraces all that is necessary from simple pedal exercises—called by some "first steps"—up to pieces requiring all the resources of modern organ technique.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

POPULAR MARCHES

FOR THE

ORGAN.

Volume 1.

1.	Marche Triomphale	F. Archer
2.	The Bride's March, from "Rebekah"	J. Barnby
3.	Harvest Thanksgiving March	J. B. Calkin
4.	March for a Church Festival	E. T. Driffield
5.	Imperial March	E. Elgar
6.	March to Calvary, from "The Redemption"	Ch. Gounod
7.	Religious March	G. A. Macfarren
8.	March, from "Abraham"	B. Molique
9.	March in B flat	E. Silas
10.	Festive March in D	Henry Smart
11.	March in G	B. Tours
12.	March in D minor	Agnes Zimmermann

Volume 2.

1.	March for a Church Festival	W. T. Best
2.	Processional Wedding March	H. R. Bird
3.	Festal March	J. B. Calkin
4.	Solemn March, from "The Black Knight"	E. Elgar
5.	Festal March	G. Elvey
6.	Marche Solennelle	Ch. Gounod
7.	March, from "St. Polycarp"	F. A. G. Ouseley
8.	March, with Pastoral Trio	B. Luard-Selby
9.	March in G	H. Smart
10.	Jubilant March	J. Stainer
11.	March in F	J. H. Wallis
12.	Commemoration March	John E. West

Volume 3.

1.	Festal March	George Calkin
2.	Festal March	C. S. Heap
3.	Triumphal March	Alfred Hollins
4.	Secular March	G. A. Macfarren
5.	Solemn March ("Story of Sayid")	A. C. Mackenzie
6.	Pilgrims' March (Symphony No. 4)	Mendelssohn
7.	Marche Religieuse	G. Merkel
8.	Bridal March and Finale	C. Hubert H. Parry
9.	Marche Serieuse	B. Luard-Selby
10.	Grand Solemn March	Henry Smart
11.	March and Chorus ("Tannhäuser")	R. Wagner
12.	Festival March	Herbert W. Wareing

Volume 4.

1.	Marche Religieuse	J. Baptiste Calkin
2.	Wedding March	William Faulkes
3.	Marche Triomphale	Alex. Guilmant
4.	March in E flat	Lefébure-Wely
5.	Funeral March ("Dream of Jubal")	A. C. Mackenzie
6.	Solemn Processional March	C. J. B. Meacham
7.	Schiller-March	G. Meyerbeer
8.	March in E flat	R. Schumann
9.	Nuptial March	B. Luard-Selby
10.	Marche Funèbre	P. Tschaïkowsky
11.	Grand March (Introduction to the 3rd Act of "Lohengrin")	R. Wagner
12.	Bridal Chorus ("Lohengrin")	R. Wagner

Price Four Shillings and Sixpence each.

In Cloth, Six Shillings and Sixpence each.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

(EDITION NOVELLO, No. 15.)

CLEMENTI.

GRADUS AD PARNASSUM

TWENTY-FOUR SELECTED STUDIES

EDITED AND FINGERED BY

FRANKLIN TAYLOR.

In One Volume, Price 3s. Or in Four Books, Price 1s. each.

(EDITION NOVELLO, No. 16.)

CRAMER.

FIFTY-SIX SELECT STUDIES

EDITED BY

FRANKLIN TAYLOR.

In One Volume, Price 4s. Or in Four Books, Price 1s. each.

(EDITION NOVELLO, No. 18.)

CZERNY.

SCHOOL OF VELOCITY

THIRTY SELECTED STUDIES

EDITED BY

FRANKLIN TAYLOR.

In One Volume, Price 2s. 6d. Or in Three Books, Price 1s. each.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

OLD

ENGLISH VIOLIN MUSIC

EDITED BY

ALFRED MOFFAT.

PREFATORY NOTE.

ALTHOUGH considerable attention has been given to the resuscitation of Church Music, Glees and Madrigals, Organ and even Harpsichord Music by the older English composers, very little has been done to make known the large mass of music for the Violin written by English musicians from the time of Purcell to the close of the eighteenth century. These works for the most part consist of Suites or Sonatas written for a solo violin with a figured bass, or for two violins and violoncello with a figured bass for the harpsichord or organ; another favourite form was the Concerto grosso.

It is with the object of making known to the public a selection of the best of these compositions that the present series has been undertaken.

ALFRED MOFFAT.

No.		s.	d.
1.	SONATA in G major .. .. .. JAMES LATES	2	0
2.	SONATA in D minor .. .. .. HENRY ECCLES	2	0
3.	SONATA in B flat major .. .. .. WILLIAM BABELL	2	0
4.	SONATA in G minor .. .. .. JOHN STANLEY	2	0
5.	SONATA in A major .. .. .. JOHN COLLETT	2	0
6.	TRIO-SONATA in E minor THOMAS AUGUSTINE ARNE	3	0
7.	SONATA in D major .. .. .. RICHARD JONES	2	0
8.	TRIO-SONATA in D minor .. .. WILLIAM BOYCE	3	0
9.	THREE PIECES .. .. WILLIAM BOYCE	2	0
10.	SONATA in E major .. .. CHARLES MACKLEAN	2	0
11.	SONATA in G minor .. .. .. WILLIAM CROFT	2	0
12.	SONATA in D minor .. .. .. JOSEPH GIBBS	2	0
13.	SONATA in D minor .. .. .. JOHN HUMPHRIES	2	0
14.	SONATA in A minor .. .. .. THOMAS VINCENT	2	0

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

TEN

SEVENTEENTH-CENTURY SONGS

OF THE

SHAKESPERIAN AND RESTORATION PERIODS.

SELECTED, EDITED, AND THE ACCOMPANIMENTS ADDED BY

SIR FREDERICK BRIDGE, C.V.O.

Price Two Shillings and Sixpence.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

INVALUABLE FOR EXAMINATIONS.

WEBSTER'S

GROUNDWORK OF MUSIC

BOOKS I. AND II., ONE SHILLING EACH. KEYS, 1s. 6d. EACH.

"The examination questions are searching and well chosen."—The Musical Standard.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

RAINBOW

OUR MUSIC READING LADDER FOR BEGINNERS

BY ERICA LOSH.

A first step towards rapid Reading. An original and simple colour scheme that will appeal o children.

Price Three Shillings and Sixpence.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

EDITION NOVELLO.

	S.	D.
BEETHOVEN—Sonatas and Sonatinas, edited and fingered (English fingering) by Agnes Zimmermann, cloth, gilt edges	16	0
Ditto, in 2 Vols., paper ... ... each	5	0
Six Sonatinas	1	6
Sonatas and Sonatinas, 8vo	5	0
Ditto, ditto, cloth, gilt edges	7	6
Ditto, ditto, roan	9	0
Ditto, in 2 Vols., paper ... ... each	2	6
Six Sonatinas, 8vo	1	0
CLEMENTI—Gradus ad Parnassum. 24 Select Studies. (Franklin Taylor)	3	0
Or, in 4 Books ... ... each	1	0
CRAMER—56 Select Studies. (Franklin Taylor) ...	4	0
Or, in 5 Books ... ... each	1	0
CZERNY—30 Select Studies from Op. 299. School of Velocity. (Franklin Taylor)	2	6
Or, in 3 Books ... ... each	1	0
19 Select Studies from Op. 636. Preparatory School of Velocity. (Franklin Taylor)	1	6
ROBERT SCHUMANN—Complete Works for the Pianoforte, edited and fingered by Agnes Zimmermann. (Continental fingering) :—
OPUS.
1 Variations on the name "Abegg"	1	0
2 Papillons	1	0
3 Studies on Paganini's Caprices, with Preface ...	1	6
4 Intermezzi	1	6
5 Impromptus on a Theme by Clara Wieck, with Appendix to the Second Edition of the same	1	6
6 Die Davidsbündler, with Preface	1	6
7 Toccata in C	1	0
8 Allegro in B minor	1	0
9 Carnival. Scènes Mignonnes sur Quatre-Notes	1	6
10 Six Concert Studies on Caprices by Paganini ...	1	6
11 Grand Sonata in F sharp minor	1	6
12 Phantasiestücke	1	6
13 Studies in the Form of Variations (Symphonic Etudes)	2	0
14 Third Grand Sonata (Concerto without Orchestra) in F minor	2	0
15 Scenes of Childhood	1	0
16 Kreisleriana	1	6
17 Phantasie in C major	1	0
18 Arabesque in C major	1	0
19 Flower Piece in D flat major	1	0
20 Humoresque in B flat major	1	6
21 Novelettes	2	6
22 Second Sonata in G minor	1	6
23 Night Pieces	1	0
26 Carnival Freak from Vienna	1	6
28 Three Romances	1	0
32 Scherzo, Gigue, Romance, and Fughetta ...	1	0
56 Six Studies for the Pedal Pianoforte	1	6
58 Four Sketches for the Pedal Pianoforte	1	0
68 Forty-three Pianoforte Pieces for the Young— Part I., Nos. 1 to 18...	1	0
Part II., Nos. 19 to 43...	1	6
72 Four Fugues	1	0
76 Four Marches	1	6
82 Forest Scenes	1	6
99 Leaves of many colours. Fourteen Pieces ...	2	0
111 Three Phantasiestücke	1	0
118 Three Pianoforte Sonatas for the Young ...	1	0
124 Album Leaves (20 Pieces)...	1	6
126 Seven Pieces in Fughetta Form	1	0
133 Songs of the Dawn	1	0
Complete Works in Three Volumes, cloth— Vol. 1, Op. 1 to Op. 12	16	0
,, 2, Op. 13 to Op. 23	16	0
,, 3, Op. 26 to Op. 133	16	0
In Three Volumes, 8vo, paper covers, each volume	5	0
,, ,, ,, cloth ,, ,,	7	6

Novello's selected List of Classical and Romantic Music for Pianoforte Solo will be sent gratis and post-free on application.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

NEW FRENCH PUBLICATIONS.

PIANOFORTE MUSIC.

	NET. s.	d
ALLIER, G.—Charmeresse. Valse lente. Pianoforte Solo ..	2	0
BARDAC, R.—Petite Suite majeure. Pianoforte Duet	4	0
BOELLMANN, L.—Op. 25. Suite Gothique. Transcribed for 2 Pianofortes, 8 hands	7	0
CASSADO, J.—Rondalla Espanola. Pianoforte Solo	2	0
CHENNEVIÈRE, D.—Lamento. Pianoforte Solo	1	6
—— Cortège funèbre. Pianoforte Solo	2	0
COUPERIN.—Allemande for 2 Pianofortes, 4 hands	2	0
DEBUSSY, C.—Berceuse héroïque. (Dedicated to King Albert of Belgium and his Soldiers.) Pianoforte Solo	2	0
D'INDY, V.—Médée. Suite d'orchestre d'après la Tragédie de Catulle Mendes. 2 Pianofortes, 4 hands	8	0
DUPIN, P.—Trois esquisses fuguées (2me Série). No. 4, 2s. 6d. net; No. 5, 2s. net; No. 6	3	0
LABORI, M.—Concerto en fa mineur. 2 Pianofortes, 4 hands ..	12	0
MARTIN, R. C.—Entre Grands et Petits pièces faciles pour Piano à 4 mains	4	0
MILHAUD, D.—Suite. Pianoforte Solo. 1. Lent; 2. Vif et Clair; 3. Lourd et Rythmé; 4. Lent et Grave; 5. Modéré Animé	4	0
PESSE, M.—Two Pieces for 2 Pianofortes, 8 hands. 1. Sous le brillant soleil de Mai; 2. Marche Triomphale .. .. each	3	6
—— Il neige des pétales de fleurs. Pianoforte Solo	2	6
RABEY, R.—Valse expressive. Pianoforte Solo	2	0
ROGER-DUCASSE.—Orphée. Mimodrame Lyrique. Transcribed for 2 Pianofortes, 4 hands. 1. Prélude et Noces d'orphée, 8s. net; 2. Evocation et Course du Flambeau, 8s. net; 3. Prélude, 2nd Act, 5s. net; 4. Prélude et Scène du Sacrifice, 7s. net; 5. Bacchanale, 10s. net; 6. Scène finale et Chœur	7	0
SCHMITT, FLORENT.—Musiques de plein air. Transcribed for Pianoforte Duet. 1. La procession dans la Montagne, 3s. net; 2. Danse désuète, 3s. 6d. net; 3. Accalmie	3	0
—— Danse des Perles. Pianoforte Solo	3	0
—— Berceuse (Feuillets de Voyage). Pianoforte Solo	2	0
TANGUAY, G. E.—Scherzo-Valse. Pianoforte Solo	2	0

CHAMBER MUSIC.

DEBUSSY.—Minstrels. Transcribed for Violin and Pianoforte	2	6
D'INDY.—L'Etranger. Transcribed for Pianoforte, Violin, and 'Cello (Contra-Bass and Clarinet ad lib.)	5	0
MILHAUD, D.—Sonata. For Violin and Pianoforte	8	0
—— String Quartet. Score, 3s. net; Parts	8	0
RABEY, R.—Elégie. For 'Cello and Pianoforte (or Organ) ..	2	0
SAINT-SAËNS.—Le Déluge. Transcribed for Pianoforte, Violin, and 'Cello (Contra-Bass and Clarinet ad lib.)	5	0
—— Allegro de Concert (from 3rd Concerto, Op. 61). Violin and Pianoforte	5	0
—— Parysatis. Transcribed for Pianoforte, Violin, and 'Cello ..	5	0
—— La Lyre et la Harpe. Transcribed for Pianoforte, Violin, and 'Cello	5	0
SAMAZEUILH, G.—Fantaisie Elégiaque. Violin and Pianoforte	5	0
SCHMITT, FLORENT.—Méditation (extrait des soirs). Violin and Pianoforte (or Organ)	2	0
WAGNER, R.—Les Maîtres Chanteurs. Transcribed for Pianoforte, Violin, and 'Cello	5	0

ORGAN MUSIC.

SCHMITT, FLORENT.—Méditation (extrait des soirs). Transcribed for Organ	2	0

VOCAL MUSIC.

BARDAC, R.—Simone (poème champêtre). Chant et Piano. 1. La Neige; 2. Le houx; 3. Le Moulin; 4. L'Eglise; 5. Le Verger	5	0
DELAGE, M.—Trois mélodies. 1. Intermezzo, 2s. net; 2. Améthystes, 2s. net; 3. Du livre de Monelle, 2s. net; complete	3	6
MASSON, P. M.—Chants de Carnaval Florentins de l'époque de Laurent le Magnifique	6	0
RAVEL, M.—Deux Mélodies Hebraïques. 1. Kaddisch; 2. L'Enigme Eternelle	3	0
ROGER-DUCASSE.—Les Jets d'eau. Chant et Pianoforte ..	2	0
ROPARTZ, J. GUY.—Le Rêve sur le Sable. Chant et Piano. 1. Ton Image, 2s. net; 2. Prière du Matin, 2s. net; 3. Le vent est doux, 2s. net; 4. Soir d'adieu, 2s. net; 5. Ah! s'en aller, 2s. net .. .. complete	5	0
SAINT-SAËNS, C.—Ave Maria, pour chœur à quatre voix mixtes avec accomp. d'orgue	2	0
—— Vive la France. Chant et Piano	1	6
—— La Cendre Rouge. Dix poèmes lyriques pour Chant et Piano	8	0
—— God save the King. (French and English Words.) (Hymne National Anglais.) 1. Soprano or Tenor; 2. Mezzo or Baritone .. .. each	1	6

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

JUST PUBLISHED.

USEFUL TEACHING SONGS

FOR ALL VOICES.

COMPILED AND EDITED BY LIZA LEHMANN.

From THE DAILY TELEGRAPH, February 20, 1915.

It is late in the day to sing the praises of Madame Liza Lehmann. To the musical public her reputation as a musician is almost, if not quite, unique: once upon a time a popular singer, now and for many years a great favourite as a composer, renowned also as a teacher. Hence it follows that any publication bearing her name is a matter of some importance, and the series of "Useful Teaching Songs" which Chappell's have just issued may clearly be so described.

There are five volumes: Soprano, Mezzo-Soprano, Contralto, Tenor, Baritone, and Bass—songs for the last two voices being included in one volume. In a preface, Madame Lehmann writes: "It is said that a good singer is born, not made, and one might almost say that a good teaching song is born, not made; in other words, a song unconsciously either possesses the necessary characteristics, or not, from the moment of its inception in a composer's brain." This is true, and Madame Lehmann has compiled in this series a wonderful little anthology of songs not only good and beautiful in themselves, but entirely admirable from the point of view of the teacher and the serious student of singing. A dozen songs are contained in each volume, each volume being, as it were, a compendium of vocal styles—within, of course, the métier of the particular voice. For this reason, if for this alone, teachers of singing will welcome so useful a series. In making the selection Madame Lehmann has not forgotten the claims of the English song to serious attention. The Soprano volume, for example, contains—in addition to songs of Handel, Gluck, Flotow, Schubert, Méhul, Brahms, and others—examples of Sterndale Bennett ("Dawn, Gentle Flower"), Dr. Boyce ("By thy banks, gentle Stour") and Dr. Arne ("By Dimpled Brook"). The other volumes contain something of the same just proportion of our native classics. The songs are all copiously annotated, and each little book should prove itself a veritable treasure.

Price 3s. 6d. net cash each Volume. List of Contents post-free on application.

CHAPPELL & CO., LTD., 50, NEW BOND STREET, LONDON, W.

NEW YORK, TORONTO, AND MELBOURNE; AND OF ALL MUSIC SELLERS.

JUST PUBLISHED.

No. 86, NOVELLO'S MUSIC PRIMERS.

A PRACTICAL GUIDE TO THE THEORY OF MUSIC

CONTAINING

NUMEROUS TEST-QUESTIONS WITH ANSWERS.

BY

JULIA A. O'NEILL

Composer of "EXERCISES FOR THE WEAKER FINGERS" (Progressive Studies, Edited by FRANKLIN TAYLOR, Book 53) and of "MELODIOUS TECHNIQUE."

Price One Shilling. Paper Boards, 1s. 6d.

THE TIMES.

It is in its clear statement of facts, both in writing and by the use of simple diagrams, that Miss Julia O'Neill's book excels.

THE MORNING POST.

Her manner of putting down the facts is concise and clear. An immense amount of ground is covered in logical sequence, and the book is one of the most helpful publications as yet made. It is satisfactory to note that ear-cultivation is touched upon.

MUSICAL OPINION.

It is really surprising the amount of useful matter that Julia A. O'Neill has managed to compress within the covers of her primer, "A Practical Guide to the Theory of Music." Teachers who wish to keep abreast of the times in an educational sense will find this well-written guide calculated to help them to a knowledge of the latest and most accepted method of elementary theoretical instruction. We are pleased to note that the all-important subject of ear-culture has not been neglected in the present primer.

THE LADY.

Is a thoroughly praiseworthy attempt to present the cardinal facts of musical theory in a plain and straightforward manner to the beginner. Wholly admirable is the way the gradual formation of our present-day clefs is explained.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

A VALUABLE BOOK FOR TEACHERS AND STUDENTS.

TECHNIQUE AND EXPRESSION IN PIANOFORTE PLAYING

BY

FRANKLIN TAYLOR.

EXTRACT FROM PREFACE.

In the course of my experience as a teacher of the pianoforte, an experience extending over many years, certain ideas have from time to time suggested themselves to me which have proved useful—to myself, as enabling me to express more clearly that which I desired my pupils to understand, and to my pupils, as tending to facilitate their comprehension of the various difficulties they have had to encounter, at the same time leading them to perceive the most practical means of overcoming them, and thus accelerating their general rate of progress.

These suggestions relate to both the mechanical and intellectual sides of the study of pianoforte playing, or briefly, to Technique and Expression, the chief matters implied by the first of these terms being the production of various qualities of tone, the choice of suitable fingering, and the best methods of attacking certain difficulties; while the second, which may perhaps be more aptly designated the means of expression, includes rhythm, phrasing, variety, and gradation of tone, the use of the pedals, et cætera.

WITH NUMEROUS MUSICAL EXAMPLES FROM THE WORKS OF THE GREAT MASTERS.

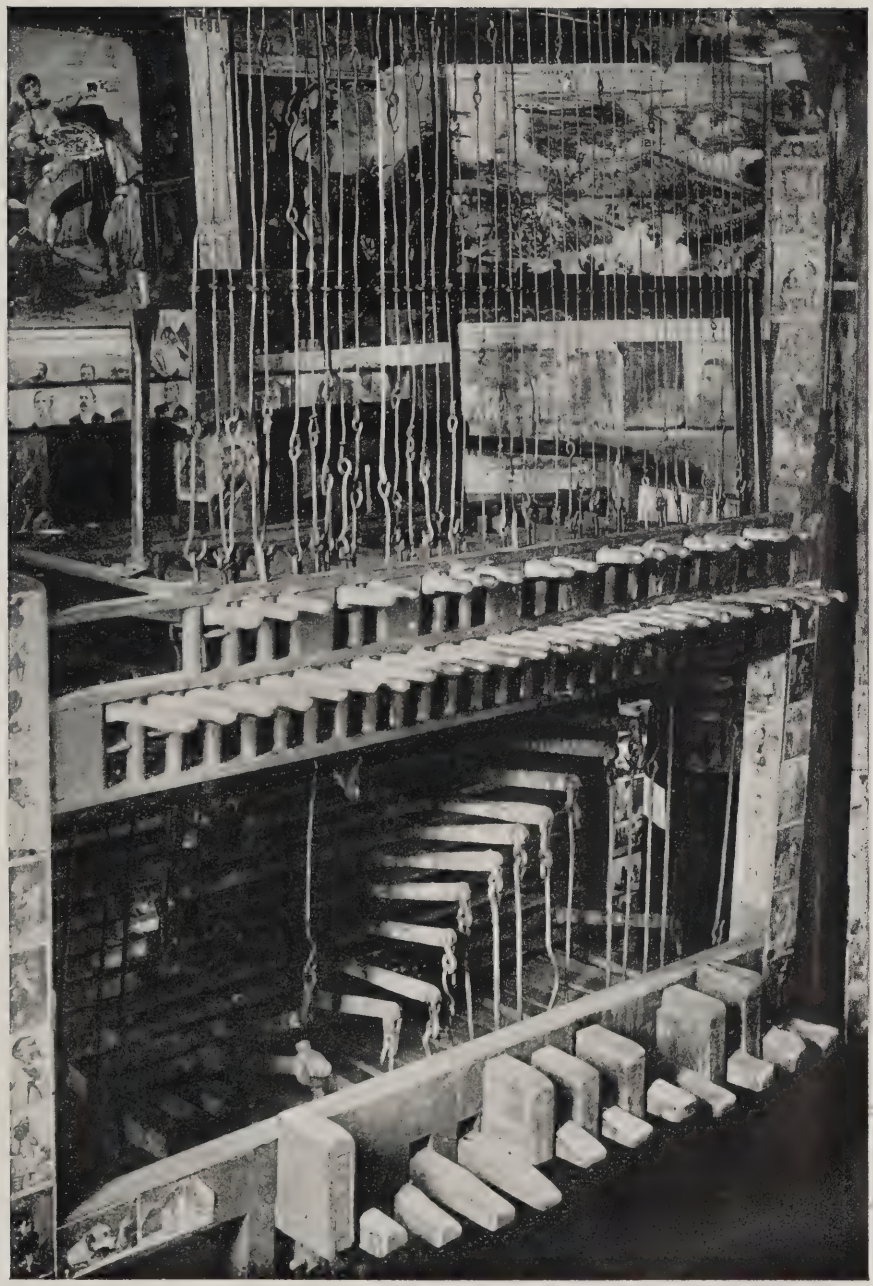
PRICE, CLOTH, GILT, FIVE SHILLINGS NET.

Published as a net Book.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

London:—Printed by NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited, at Novello Works, Soho, and published at 160, Wardour Street, Soho, W.
Sold also by SIMPKIN, MARSHALL, HAMILTON, KENT AND CO., Ltd., Paternoster Row, E.C.—Monday, March 1, 1915.

THE TOWER OF MALINES.



THE CLAVIER OF THE MALINES CARILLON.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

FOUNDED IN 1844.

PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH.

No. 866.—Vol. 56.
Registered at the General Post Office for Canadian Postage.

APRIL 1, 1915.

Price 3d.; Postage 1½d.
Annual Subscription, Post-free, 4s.

ROYAL CHORAL SOCIETY.

ROYAL ALBERT HALL.

Patron: HIS MAJESTY THE KING.
Conductor: SIR FREDERICK BRIDGE, C.V.O.

GOOD FRIDAY AFTERNOON, APRIL 2, AT 3.

"MESSIAH" - - - HANDEL.

MISS RUTH VINCENT.
MADAME KIRKBY LUNN.
MR. JOHN COATES.
MR. HARRY DEARTH.

FULL BAND AND CHORUS.

Organist: MR. H. L. BALFOUR.

Prices: Stalls, 7s. 6d.; Arena, 6s.; Balcony, 4s. and 2s. 6d.; Gallery (Promenade), 1s.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC,

YORK GATE, MARYLEBONE ROAD, LONDON, N.W.

Instituted 1822. Incorporated by Royal Charter, 1830.
Patron: HIS MAJESTY THE KING.
President: H.R.H. THE DUKE OF CONNAUGHT, K.G.
Principal: Sir A. C. MACKENZIE, Mus. Doc., LL.D., F.R.A.M.

MIDSUMMER TERM BEGINS MONDAY, MAY 3.
ENTRANCE EXAMINATION, FRIDAY, APRIL 30, at 2.
L.R.A.M. Examination Syllabus is now ready.

The Baume (Manx) Scholarship in any Branch of Music will be competed for on or about Thursday, April 29. Last day for entry, April 15.

Full particulars will be sent on application.

J. A. CREIGHTON, Secretary.

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC,

PRINCE CONSORT ROAD, SOUTH KENSINGTON, S.W.
(Incorporated by Royal Charter, 1883.)

Telegrams—"Initiative, Southkens, London." Telephone—"1160, Western.

Patron: HIS MAJESTY THE KING.
President: H.R.H. THE PRINCE CHRISTIAN, K.G.
Director:
Sir C. HUBERT H. PARRY, Bart., C.V.O., D.C.L., M.A., Mus. Doc.
Hon. Secretary: CHARLES MORLEY, Esq.

The MIDSUMMER TERM will commence on Monday, May 3. Entrance Examination, Thursday, April 29.

Syllabus and Official Entry Forms may be obtained from

CLAUDE AVELING, Registrar.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

Patron: HIS MAJESTY THE KING.
President: H.R.H. THE PRINCE CHRISTIAN, K.G.
Director: Sir C. HUBERT H. PARRY, Bart., C.V.O., D.C.L., M.A., Mus. Doc.

PATRON'S FUND
(Founded by S. Ernest Palmer, Esq.)
for the encouragement of British Composers and Executive Artists.

The CHAMBER MUSIC CONCERT usually given in March is DEFERRED, the Committee having decided to utilise the Fund for the relief of distress caused among musicians by the War.

CLAUDE AVELING, Registrar.
Royal College of Music, Prince Consort Road, South Kensington.

THE ASSOCIATED BOARD
OF THE R.A.M. AND R.C.M.
FOR LOCAL EXAMINATIONS IN MUSIC.

Patron: HIS MAJESTY THE KING.

LOCAL CENTRE EXAMINATIONS (SYLLABUS A).
Examinations in Theory held in March and November at all Centres. In Practical Subjects in March-April at all Centres, and in the London district and certain Provincial Centres in November-December also. Entries for the November-December Examinations close Wednesday, October 13, 1915.

SCHOOL EXAMINATIONS (SYLLABUS B).
Held throughout the British Isles three times a year, viz., June-July, October-November, and March-April. Entries for the June-July Examinations close Wednesday, May 12 (Irish Entries, May 5), 1915.

Theory papers set in Examinations of past years (Local Centre or School) can be obtained on application. Price 3d. per set, per year, post-free.

The Board offers annually SIX EXHIBITIONS tenable at the R.A.M. or R.C.M., for Two or Three Years.

Syllabuses A and B, Syllabus in Ear-Training and Sight-Singing, Entry Forms, and any further information, may be obtained post-free from— JAMES MUIR, Secretary,
Telegrams: "Associa, London." 15, Bedford Square, London, W.C.

THE GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

JOHN CARPENTER ST., VICTORIA EMBANKMENT, E.C.
Established by the Corporation of London.
PRINCIPAL .. .. .. LANDON RONALD.

COMPLETE MUSICAL EDUCATION at an inclusive fee.

PRIVATE LESSONS are given in all musical subjects and STAGE TRAINING in Elocution, Gesture, Stage Dancing, Fencing, and OPERA.

WEEKLY ORCHESTRAL PRACTICES ARE CONDUCTED BY THE PRINCIPAL. Prospectus and Syllabus of Local Centre and Local Schools Examinations (open to general public) free.

H. SAXE WYNDHAM, Secretary. Tel. Holborn 1943.

ROYAL
MANCHESTER COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

Patroness: HER MAJESTY QUEEN ALEXANDRA.
President: Sir W. H. HOULDSWORTH, Bart., LL.D.
Principal: Dr. ADOLPH BRODSKY.

The COLLEGE YEAR opened on Tuesday, September 29.

Special Houses of Residence recommended for Students.

Students are required to enter upon a complete course of Musical instruction, and are not admitted for a shorter period than one year.

Fee for the year, £30, payable in instalments of £10 at the beginning of each term. Special Fee for Wind Instrument Course, £15.

Systematic Course for the Training of Teachers included in the curriculum.

The Prospectus, with Scholarship information, Diploma Regulations, and Entry Forms, on application.

Opera Class—MISS MARIE BREMA.

STANLEY WITHERS, Registrar.

BIRMINGHAM & MIDLAND INSTITUTE.
SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

Visitor .. .. Sir EDWARD ELGAR, O.M., Mus. Doc., LL.D.
Director .. .. GRANVILLE BANTOCK, M.A.
Visiting Examiner.. W. G. MCNAUGHT, Mus. Doc.

SESSION 1914-1915.

The Session consists of AUTUMN TERM (September 21 to December 19); WINTER TERM (January 18 to March 27); SUMMER TERM (April 12 to June 26).

Instruction in all branches of Music, Students' Choir and Orchestra, Chamber Music, Students' Rehearsals, and Concerts.

Prospectus and further information may be obtained from—

H. M. FRANCIS, Secretary.

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF ORGANISTS.

Examination Regulations, List of College Publications, Lectures, &c may be had on application.

H. A. HARDING, Hon. Sec.

Kensington Gore, S.W.

UNIVERSITY OF DURHAM.

Examinations for degrees in Music are held as follows:—Matriculation, April and October; First Mus. B., March and September; Final Mus. B., and Mus. D., September only.

For particulars, apply Secretary of Examinations, University Office, Durham. Copies of former Examination Papers, 1s. per set.

MANCHESTER SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

Patron: Sir W. H. Houldsworth, Bart.

Principal: Albert J. Cross, A.R.A.M. Sixty Professors.
New Violin Professor: Mr. John Dunn.

All Branches of Music taught. Private or Class Tuition.

Full and String Orchestras, Operas, Lectures, Recitals, Chamber and Orchestral Concerts. Prospectus from The Secretary, Albert Square.

The Opera Class will give Auber's "Fra Diavolo" on April 16 and 17 in aid of the War Funds, conducted by The Principal.

INCORPORATED GUILD OF CHURCH MUSICIANS.

Founded 1888.

Incorporated pursuant to Act of Parliament XXX. and XXXI. Victoria, Cap. cxxxi., § 23.

President: The Very Rev. The Dean of Bristol, D.D.

ASSOCIATE (A.I.G.C.M.), LICENTIATE (L.I.G.C.M.), FELLOWSHIP (F.I.G.C.M.) EXAMINATIONS in London and at approved Provincial Centres in July and December.

COMPETITIONS FOR 1915.

Silver Medal for the best Setting of the Nicene Creed to Easy Ecclesiastical phrases, not necessarily Gregorian Tones.

Silver Medal for the best Magnificat, set to one of the Festal Gregorian Tones, with varied Bourdons to Verses 3, 4, and Gloria Patri.

Bronze Medal for the best simple Andante for the Organ (Pedal obbligato).

Bronze Medal for the best Kyrie.

April 28, 1915, Annual Service.
May 27, 1915, Lecture: "Some Æstheticisms of Ecclesiastical Etiquette," by Dr. T. Westlake Morgan.

REGISTER OF ORGAN VACANCIES.

Organists (Members) have the free use of the Register of Vacant Appointments.

Calendar (gratis) and further information of Dr. LEWIS, Warden, 18, Berners Street, London, W.

VICTORIA COLLEGE OF MUSIC,

LONDON.

(Under the direction of the Victoria College Corporation, Ltd.)

INCORPORATED 1891.

18, Berners Street, Oxford Street, London, W.

President: The Most Hon. The Marquis of Anglesey.

Board of Examination:

Principal: J. H. Lewis, D.C.L., F.E.I.S., Mus. Doc.
Chairman: J. M. Bentley, Mus. Doc. Cantab., Hon. F.R.A.M.
Hon. Director of Studies: Churchill Sibley, Mus. Doc., F.I.G.C.M.
Robert Fox Frew, Mus. Doc. Dunelm.
Rev. Noel Bonavia-Hunt, M.A. Oxon.
Secretary: H. Portman Lewis.

Metropolitan Examinations in all subjects, including the Diplomas of A.V.C.M., L.V.C.M., F.V.C.M., also for the Teachers' Professional Diploma in the Art of Teaching, April, July, and December.

Local Theoretical Examinations, July and December.

Practical Examinations are now being held at the various Centres.

Gold, Silver, and Bronze Medals are offered for Competition.

Local Secretaries required for towns not represented.

Dr. Churchill Sibley gives personal lectures at the College.

All communications to be addressed as usual to The Secretary, Registered Office, 11, Burleigh Street, Strand, W.C.

POSTAL INSTITUTE OF MUSIC.

ALDERMAN'S WALK, LONDON, E.C.

For Tuition in Theoretical and Practical Music; and preparation for all examinations.

Postal Lessons by Specialists in all Branches of Music at very moderate fees.

Further particulars on application to E. W. S. Watson, Secretary.

LONDON COLLEGE OF MUSIC,

GREAT MARLBOROUGH STREET, LONDON, W.

Patron: His Grace The Duke of Leeds.

Board of Examination.

Dr. Horton Allison, Mus. D. Dublin; Mus. B. Cantab.; F.R.A.M.
Dr. Arthur S. Holloway, Mus. Doc. Oxon.; F.R.C.O.
Dr. F. J. Karn, Mus. Bac. Cantab., Principal.
G. Augustus Holmes, Esq., Director of Examinations.

EXAMINATIONS—LOCAL AND HIGHER.

The NEXT EXAMINATION for certificates in Pianoforte, Violin, Singing, Elocution, Organ, Theory of Music, &c., will be held in London and at over 450 Local Centres throughout the United Kingdom in JULY (JUNE for Scotland and Ireland).

SYLLABUS, with Annual Report and Forms of Entry, may be had on application to the Secretary.

The HIGHER EXAMINATIONS for the Diplomas of Associate (A.L.C.M.) and Licentiate (L.L.C.M.) take place in April, June, July, and December; and for the Diplomas of Associate in Music (A. Mus. L.C.M.), Licentiate in Music (L. Mus. L.C.M.), and Fellowship (F.L.C.M.), in June, July, and December.

LOCAL CENTRES may be formed in districts unrepresented, either in the United Kingdom or abroad; particulars on application. SCHOOL CENTRES may also be arranged.

In the Educational Department students are received and thoroughly trained under the best Professors at moderate fees. Lessons may commence from any date.

A. GAMBIER HOLMES, Secretary.

Telegrams: "Supertonic Reg, London." Telephone: 3870 Central.

MR. W. H. BREARE

VOCAL ADVISER AND TEACHER OF SINGING

TO STUDENTS AND THE PROFESSION.

Author of "Vocalism," "Elocution: Its First Principles," "Vocal Faults and their Remedies."

In the Press, and shortly to be Published: "Vocal Technique: How it feels to Sing."

"The most complete guide to singing in English."—"Lancelot," in the Referee.

"One of the sanest of sane expositions."—Musical Courier, N.Y.

"One step nearer to the ideal."—Referee ("Lancelot").

"Is a reliable expert in all branches."—Gentlewoman.

"A magnificent guide to both teachers and students."—Eastern Morning News.

"Do not hesitate to commend."—Glasgow Herald.

"Well up and enthusiastic in his subject, which he handles in a masterly manner. His technical knowledge is minute, wide and accurate: what he has to say is well worthy of consideration by public singers and music teachers."—Aberdeen Free Press.

"Has had exceptional opportunities of studying his subject. . . . Common-sense in all he utters."—Leeds Mercury.

"Is an acknowledged authority. . . ."—Western Morning News.

"I have not the slightest fear of contradiction when I say that no one knows more about the voice and vocal production than Mr. W. H. Breare."—"Counterpoint," in the Newcastle Journal.

Further Press Opinions on application.

Address: "Herald" Buildings, Harrogate,
or 139, New Bond Street, W.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE. PROBATE, DIVORCE AND ADMIRALTY DIVISION. (DIVORCE.) TO PERCY HAROLD WOODS, formerly of 10, Stanford Terrace, Penzance, in the County of Cornwall, but whose present address is unknown. TAKE NOTICE that a Citation has been issued in this Division citing you to appear and answer the Petition of Caroline Woods, of 1, Hag End Brow, Haugh, Bolton, in the County of Lancaster, praying for a dissolution of marriage. In default of your so appearing you will not be allowed to address the Court, and the Court will proceed to hear the said Petition proved and pronounce sentence in respect thereto. AND take further notice that for the purpose aforesaid within one month after the date of this publication an appearance must be entered at the Divorce Registry, Somerset House, Strand, London.

Robt. A. Pritchard,
Registrar.

Ronald G. Taylor,
30, Walbrook, London, E.C.,
Solicitor for the Petitioner.

THE OLD FIRM.

P. CONACHER & CO., LTD.,

Organ Builders,

SPRINGWOOD WORKS,

HUDDERSFIELD.

TWO GOLD MEDALS.

DO YOU NEED TO PRACTISE YOUR MUSIC BEFORE YOU CAN PLAY IT SATISFACTORILY?

MOST players need to practise a new piece over and over before they can give a satisfactory rendering, and probably this is the case with you.

If you were a good sight-player, your fingers would fall instinctively and automatically on the right notes, and you would obtain immeasurably greater pleasure from your playing.

Years of daily practice may make you a good sight-player, but my System cannot fail to do so. I will guarantee that a pianist of average ability will become able to play any piece within his or her technical ability after three months of about fifteen minutes' daily practising. The testimony of hundreds of students will amply corroborate this claim.

Booklet sent Free to any Pianist.

The inventor of this System is a Frenchman domiciled in England.

L. M. EHREMAYER, 27, CHANCERY LANE, W.C.

EHREMAYER
System of Pianoforte SIGHT-PLAYING.

PROFESSIONAL PIANISTS

Readily appreciate the saving in time, energy, and money that my System means to them, and even though you are a first-rate pianist, it is certainly worth your while to investigate my Methods for yourself. I invite your inquiries with the fullest confidence. The success of 6,000 pupils has proved that

"From Brain to Keyboard"

MACDONALD SMITH'S SYSTEM OF PIANOFORTE TOUCH AND TECHNIQUE gives permanent mastery over all difficulties of Technique

Pianist's Cramp, Stiffness, Wooden Touch, Lack of Power and Independence, Thumping, Nervousness, Inability to read at sight, to play arpeggios, trills and long skips, Faulty Inflection and Accentuation, are all overcome with amazing rapidity by the eight minutes twice daily application of this System. In fact there is not a single technical requirement of the pianist or organist, from beginner to the most advanced, which is not successfully met by this System. And the results are permanent and not materially affected by neglect of the instrument. The necessity for perpetual keyboard "practice" is totally abolished—a point of the highest value to the busy pianist.

Write for my FREE BOOK to-day

I shall be pleased to send you post free "Light on Pianoforte Playing," which explains my System and its principles. If you will detail any special difficulties you have, I will explain how they can be permanently overcome by my "From Brain to Keyboard" System. My System has been used and cordially endorsed by Sir Frederick Bridge and other leading musicians, and it is therefore well worth your while at least to study carefully the possibilities it holds for you. It is taught by post, does not interfere with your present arrangements, and is indisputably the cheapest, quickest, and most certain way to the complete and permanent mastery of technique. Write to-day to

M. MACDONALD SMITH,
19, BLOOMSBURY SQUARE, LONDON, W.C.
(Personal Interviews by Appointment only.)

PROFESSIONAL NOTICES.

MR. WILFRID ABOR
(TENOR).
Royal Albert Hall. Promenade Concerts. Queen's Hall and Sheffield, &c.
Parkstone, Wallington, Surrey.

MR. SAMUEL MASTERS
(TENOR).
Address—164, Bank Buildings, Ewell Road, Surbiton.

MISS ETHEL VISICK
RECEIVES PUPILS FOR PIANOFORTE TUITION
At Her Studio, 4, Coleherne Terrace, S.W.

MONS. EDOUARD DERU,
Violinist to the Court of Belgium and Assistant to M. Eugène Ysaÿe, can receive pupils at 31, Harrington Gardens, London, S.W.

THE LONDON COLLEGE FOR CHORISTERS.
Director: Mr. JAMES BATES.
SOLO BOYS for Oratorios, Festival Services, Concerts; also LEADING BOYS for Church Choirs can be supplied for occasional or permanent engagements. Address, E. B. Golding, Secretary, 6, Blomfield Crescent, Hyde Park, W.
Telegrams; "Musicomane, Phone, London." Telephone: 5990 Paddington.

Musical Reviser to Messrs. Novello for Thirty Years.
COMPOSERS' MSS.
REVISED and PREPARED FOR PRINTING; ADVICE GIVEN as to most suitable publishers for various styles of composition.
H. ELLIOT BUTTON, "Harewood," Ardwick Road, Hampstead, N.W.
Reference to the following composers kindly permitted:—
Sir C. Hubert H. Parry, Bt., C.V.O., Sir Edward Elgar, O.M., Sir Frederick Bridge, C.V.O., Dr. Walford Davies.

DR. A. EAGLEFIELD HULL
Mus. Doc. Oxon., F.R.C.O.
Author of "Modern Harmony: Its Explanation and Application" (Augener), and "Organ Playing: Its Technique and Expression."
Address:
Melbourne House, Huddersfield.

DR. ALLISON instructed by Post Candidates who OBTAINED DEGREES OF MUS.D. and MUS.B. at Oxford, Cambridge, Dublin, London, and Durham Universities, Diplomas of F.L.C.M., L.Mus.L.C.M., A.R.C.M., F.R.C.O., and L.R.A.M. Gold Medals, Silver Medals, Scholarships, Prizes, "Honours," and Pass Certificates (of the Colleges of Music) to the number of eight hundred and seventy. Dr. Allison is quite willing to teach those who neither require nor desire to pass examinations. Harmony, Counterpoint, Orchestration, and Analysis of Composition by Post, to correspondents anywhere. Personal instruction in Theory, Singing, Organ, and Pianoforte. Cambridge House, 68, Nelson St., Manchester.

REVISION OF MUSICAL COMPOSITIONS.
Dr. Horton Allison, Mus.D., 68, Nelson Street, Manchester.

L.R.A.M. (PAPER WORK).
MR. E. H. BIBBY (Mus. Bac., L.R.A.M., A.R.C.M.) has SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE COURSES for the "Form and Teaching" and "Rudiments and Harmony" papers set at the L.R.A.M. Exams.
L.R.A.M. EXAMS., 1910-14.—68 Correspondence Pupils successful. (September and Christmas, 1914: 17 Successes out of 21 Entries.)

A.R.C.M. (PAPER WORK).
MR. BIBBY has now also CORRESPONDENCE COURSES for the Paper Work portions of the A.R.C.M. Exams.
A.R.C.M., April, 1914: 9 Correspondence Successes. No Failures.

MR. BIBBY also gives Postal Lessons in RUDIMENTS, HARMONY, FORM, &c., quite apart from the above-mentioned Special Examination Courses.
Address, c/o Forsyth Bros., Deansgate, Manchester.

DR. CUTHBERT HARRIS, Mus. Doc. Dunelm., F.R.C.O. SPECIALIST IN CORRESPONDENCE TUITION. 340 Successes in Mus. D., Mus. B., F.R.C.O., and A.R.C.O. MSS. revised and arranged for publication. 48, Braxted Park, Streatham, S.W. Telephone: Streatham 487.

MISS H. HEALE COACHES for all EXAMINATIONS in MUSIC (at private residence or at West-End studio), in Pianoforte, Harmony, Counterpoint, Fugue, Form, Orchestration, "Teaching," Modulation, Transposition, &c. For Terms, &c., apply Dunraven House, 41, Albert Bridge Road, S.W.

DR. ARTHUR S. HOLLOWAY, Mus. D. Oxon., 13, Roseleigh Avenue, Highbury, N., continues to PREPARE CANDIDATES for the various Theoretical Examinations. Music of any description revised or arranged. LESSONS in COMPOSITION, by post if desired.

DR. FREDERICK J. KARN (Mus. Bac. Cantab.; Mus. Doc. Toronto), gives Lessons by post, in Harmony, Counterpoint, Fugue, Form and Analysis, Acoustics, Orchestration, &c. Individual instruction. Also Personal Lessons. MSS. corrected for publication. Analyses of Classical Works for Examinations. Terms moderate and inclusive. Candidates prepared by Dr. Karn have obtained the degrees of Mus. Bac. or Mus. Doc. at Durham, Oxford, Dublin, Cambridge, London, and the University of Wales. Also F.R.C.O., A.R.C.O., L.R.A.M. (Composition, Pianoforte, Organ, Bandmastership, and Conducting), A.R.C.M. (Composition, Theory of Music, and Pianoforte Teaching), L. Mus. and A. Mus., L.C.M. Associated Board, &c. Dr. Karn continues to coach for all Musical Examinations. 106, Haverstock Hill, London, N.W.

DR. LEWIS, Mus. Doc., F.E.I.S., Warden, Incorporated Guild of Church Musicians, gives LESSONS, Personally or by Post, in HARMONY and COUNTERPOINT. 18, Berners Street, Oxford Street, W.

DR. LEWIS' TEXT-BOOKS:

Harmony. (2 vols.) 5s. each, net.
Counterpoint. 5s. net.
Double Counterpoint and Canon. 5s. net.
Fugue. 1s. 6d. net.
Elements of Music. 2s. 6d. net.
Development of Anglican Church Music. 2s. net.
Pronouncing Vocabulary of Musical Terms. 6d. net.
Dictionary of Musical Terms. 6d. net.
Material of Melody. 3d. net.

The above, complete, will be forwarded (carriage paid) for 15s.

MISS F. HELENA MARKS PREPARES for L.R.A.M. and other Examinations. Pianoforte, Harmony, "Form and Teaching," &c. Lessons (oral or by correspondence). Pupils received and visited for the Pianoforte. Many recent successes, L.R.A.M., &c. Pianoforte Classes, 10, Matheson Rd., West Kensington.

DR. H. H. L. MIDDLETON, Mus. Doc. (Dubl.), F.R.C.O., L.R.A.M., A.R.C.M., makes a SPECIALITY of COACHING FOR DEGREES. L.R.A.M., 1897-1914, ONE HUNDRED AND THIRTY-EIGHT SUCCESSES; A.R.C.M., 1897-1914, THREE HUNDRED AND FIFTY-SIX SUCCESSES. Equally good results in R.C.O. and other Examinations.
Address, Thornleigh, 6, Elm Park Road, Finchley, N.

PERCY WOOD, Mus. Bac. Oxon., F.R.C.O., Specialist in Correspondence Tuition for F.R.C.O., A.R.C.O. RECENT SUCCESSES: 227 Correspondence Pupils have passed F.R.C.O. or A.R.C.O. SINCE 1909, as follows:

81 F.R.C.O. (Paper Work).	146 A.R.C.O. (Paper Work).
6 F.R.C.O., Jan., 1914.	11 A.R.C.O., Jan., 1914.
6 F.R.C.O., July, 1914.	12 A.R.C.O., July, 1914.
4 F.R.C.O., Jan., 1915.	5 A.R.C.O., Jan., 1915.

38, Warwick Road, Cliftonville, Margate.

MISS MARGARET YOUNG, L.R.A.M., A.R.C.M. (Pianoforte Teacher), A.T.C.L. (Pianoforte and Vocal Teacher), Correspondence Lessons, Theory, Harmony, Form, Art of Teaching. Successes at R.A.M. and T.C.L. Metropolitan Examinations. Compiler, Musical Terms (English first), Novello, 4d. Bawburgh Vicarage, Norwich.

STUDENT TEACHER. — Young Gentleman WANTED in School of Music in London. Board-residence and small salary. Premium required. State qualifications, &c., to W. F., c/o Novello & Co., Ltd., 160, Wardour Street, W.

CLIFTON COLLEGE.—Classical, Mathematical, Modern Language, Natural Science, and Music Scholarships, value from £25 to £100 a year. Also two Percival Scholarships and a SCHOLARSHIP for ARMY CANDIDATES. EXAMINATION in June. There are also some "War Exhibitions" for sons of Old Cliftonians. Particulars from the Secretary, Clifton College, Bristol.

£20.—LEADING TENOR WANTED. St. Mary's, Primrose Hill, N.W. Good reader. Experience of Plainsong desirable but not essential. Apply by letter, Martin Shaw, 12, Rothwell Street, Primrose Hill, N.W.

ST. GEORGE'S, BLOOMSBURY. — TENOR WANTED. Good reader. £15 per annum. Apply by letter only. Organist, Vestry Hall, Little Russell Street, W.C.

LINCOLN CATHEDRAL.

A Trial of Boys' Voices will shortly take place, to fill up vacancies in the Choir. Applications should be made to The Precentor.

ROCHESTER CATHEDRAL.

LAYCLERK (Bass, not Baritone) WANTED. Stipend £85. Applications, giving age and experience, with copies of four recent testimonials, to be sent to The Chapter Clerk, Rochester, by April 7, 1915. Candidates should not be over 35 years of age.

ST. JAMES, WEST HAMPSTEAD.—BASS SOLOIST WANTED. Good reader. Salary, £15 p. a. Apply, B. Mus. Oxon., 15, Capel Road, East Barnet Village, Herts.

£100 VOCAL SCHOLARSHIP and £2 2s. CASH PRIZE.—Mr. Clifton Cooke's Competition for all Voices, May 8, 1915. Entries close May 4. Prospectus from Mr. Cooke, 20M, Bloomsbury Street, W.C.

ORGANIST AND CHOIRMASTER WANTED for Forres Parish Church (3-Manual Organ). Salary, £50. Apply, by April 8, to Thomas Geddie, Session Clerk, Forres, N.B.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER WANTED, for West U. F. Church, Alloa. Salary, £75 per annum. Three-Manual Lewis Organ. Applications, with copies of testimonials, by April 7, to Mr. J. A. C. Brown, Claremont, Alloa.

ORGANIST WANTED, for a North London Wesleyan Church. Apply, stating qualification, and salary required (which must be moderate), to R. A. L., 55, Bethune Road, Stoke Newington, N.

MR. HERBERT C. MORRIS, M.A. Cantab., F.R.C.O., A.R.C.M., L.R.A.M., Organist of St. David's Cathedral, has a Vacancy for a Resident Pupil. The Close, St. David's, S. Wales.

LADY (L.R.A.M.) DESIRES ENGAGEMENT as Visiting Music Tutor in School. Piano, Theory, Harmony. Vicinity Blackpool and Fylde District. A., c/o Novello & Co., Ltd., 160, Wardour Street, W.

CHURCH ORGANS FOR SALE (Immediately). Prior to alterations and extension of Factory. Two Manuals, modern compass, pneumatics and latest improvements. Guaranteed. 12 and 22 Stops. W. E. Richardson & Sons, Organ Works, Cornbrook Street, Brooks Bar, Manchester.

ORGANS (New and Second-hand) for SALE. Various prices. Instruments built for Church or Chamber from £50, on up-to-date principles, at Bedwell & Sons, Cambridge Organ Works, Cambridge.

ORGAN FOR SALE.—Two-Manual, 12 Stops, new, full rich tone. Alfred Monk, Organ Builder. Established 43 years. Organs built of high-class work, best mechanism; richest tones; moderate prices. Works: 49, Grayling Road, Lordship Road, Stoke Newington, London, N.

GREAT CLEARANCE SALE OF ORGANS.—Bargains. Warranted. Apply C. H. Walker, 25, Manchester Street, Manchester Square, London, W.

THE POSITIVE ORGAN.—A real PIPE ORGAN (all British), giving the effects of two manuals and pedals on its single keyboard. Prices from £77. Over 900 supplied. Estimates given for Repairs, Rebuilds, Two- and Three-Manual Organs, &c.
Positive Organ Co. Ltd., 44, Mornington Crescent (opposite Tube Station), London, N.W.

ORGAN PRACTICE.—Three-manual Pipe Organ for Practice—good condition; complete set of Couplers; blown by hydraulic engine. 1s. per hour. Hamilton Evans & Co., 54, London Road, Forest Hill, S.E. (one minute from station). Telephone: 693 Sydenham.

ORGAN PRACTICE, 1s. per hour (30 for a guinea). 3 Manuals, 18 Stops, R. C. O. Pedals. Hydraulic. 28, Poets Road, Canonbury, N. Near N. L. R. Station.

CRAMER PIANOS, SECOND-HAND, WANTED.—Please send particulars and prices to W. Saville & Co., Pianoforte Warehouse, Bruce Grove, Tottenham.

WILL anyone interested in Singing give £200 to enable a poor girl, who has a most lovely voice, to complete her training. She is at present in London, and her voice could be heard. All particulars willingly given. S. J., c/o Novello & Co., Ltd 160, Wardour Street, W.

WILL some lover of Church Music present a Pianoforte to an East-End Church Choir (unpaid) for Practice. Appearance not material so long as tone good. Letters, Choirmaster, St. Luke's Church, Burdett Road, London, E.

FOR SALE.—GROVE'S DICTIONARY OF MUSIC. New Edition; 5 vols.; spotless. £4 10s. C. J. c/o Novello & Co., Ltd., 160, Wardour Street, W.

FOR SALE.—TWO-MANUAL AND PEDAL REED ORGAN, R.C.O. Measurements, Radiating and Concave Pedal Board. Stop Jambs at an angle of 45 degs.; 19 full sets of Reeds. Great Bargain, 75 Gns. Can be seen by appointment only. F. Crawford, 71, Dairsie Road, Eltham Park, S.E.

MUSIC PRIZE COMPETITION.—The Committee of a Fund for Assisting Musicians in War time offers two Prizes of Ten Guineas each for an Art Song and a short Pianoforte work respectively. A copy of the Rules will be posted on receipt of stamped and addressed envelope sent to "Music Prize Competition, 19, Berners Street, W.

I. S. M.—Entire publications of the "Journal" and "Official Reports," from 1888 to 1915; also "Musical Times," from 1877 to 1914 (38 Vols.). Uniform binding, complete text and music. Offers? Blakey, Organist, Falkirk.

PIANO PEDALS with Octave Coupler

This wonderful invention supersedes all Piano Pedals, and is a Master Patent.

The Cathedral, Manchester,
Nov. 8, 1910.

Dear Mr. Malkin,

I think your Patent Pedal Attachment, which you have fitted to my Steinway, is simply splendid. I find the action absolutely silent and its touch beautiful.—Yours truly,

R. H. P. COLEMAN, F.R.C.O., Sub-Organist.

Terms :—Cash, or instalments of 8s. per month.

Write for Lists, Prices, and Clients' Opinions, and References to

THE MALKIN PATENT PEDAL CO., Ltd.,
Works—Hanley, Staffs. NEWCASTLE-UNDER-LYME.

PIANO PEDALS.

EVERY ORGANIST
should investigate the importance and special advantages
of
NORMAN & BEARD'S
PNEUMATIC PEDAL ATTACHMENT
FOR THE PIANO.

Correct relative position of Keys and Pedals guaranteed.
Gives a perfect touch and repetition.
Does not injure the most delicate Piano, all parts of the Pianoforte action being left perfectly free.
Pedals can be instantly removed.
Does not alter the Piano touch.
Every Attachment made specially in our own Factory.

NORMAN & BEARD, Ltd., 61 Berners St., London, W.
Telegrams: "Vibrating, London." Telephone: Gerrard 9145.

NOVELLO'S EDITIONS
OF THE
FAVOURITE OPERAS
ADAPTED FOR CONCERT USE.

1. FAUST.
Price 1s. Tonic Sol-fa, 9d.

2. IL TROVATORE.
Price 1s. 6d. Tonic Sol-fa, 1s.

3. TANNHÄUSER.
Price 1s. 6d.

4. MARITANA.
Price 1s. 6d.

5. THE BOHEMIAN GIRL.
Price 1s. 6d.

6. THE DAUGHTER OF THE REGIMENT.
Price 1s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

TO COMPOSERS.

Messrs.
KEITH PROWSE & CO., Ltd.,
MUSIC PUBLISHERS,

Give serious consideration to any Manuscripts sent in for selection, also estimates free for publication of Authors' works. Authors' copies kept on sale at our many Music Branches, on a royalty basis. Kindly enclose postage for return of manuscripts.

PUBLISHING DEPÔT:
42, Poland Street, London, W.

SOLEMN MELODY
composed by
H. WALFORD DAVIES.
FULL ORCHESTRA.

	s.	d.
Full Score	3	0
String Parts	1	3
Wind Parts	3	9

STRINGS AND ORGAN.

Score	2	0
String Parts	1	3
Organ	0	6
Pianoforte Solo	1	6
Organ Solo	1	6
Violin and Pianoforte	1	6
Violoncello and Pianoforte	1	6

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

AUF WIEDERSEHEN
composed by
A. HERBERT BREWER.

Violin and Pianoforte	2s. od.
Viola and Pianoforte	2s. od.
Violoncello and Pianoforte	2s. od.
Small Orchestra
String Parts	1s. 3d.
Wind Parts	2s. od.
Pianoforte Solo	2s. od.
Organ Solo	1s. 6d.
Pianoforte and Stringed Instruments (Separate String Parts, 6d. each.)	2s. 6d.
Arrangement for Military Band	5s. od.

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

SERENADE
from
"THE WAND OF YOUTH"
(FIRST SUITE)
composed by
EDWARD ELGAR.

Pianoforte Solo	1s. 6d.
Violin and Pianoforte	2s. od.
Violoncello and Pianoforte	2s. od.
Pianoforte and Stringed Instruments (Separate String Parts, 3d. each.)	2s. 6d.

ARRANGEMENT FOR SMALL ORCHESTRA.

String Parts	1s. 3d.
Flute and Clarinet	each 3d.
Harp or Pianoforte	1s. od.

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

A Modern School for the Violin

BY

AUGUST WILHELMJ AND JAMES BROWN.

THE purpose of this Work is to provide, in one systematic and comprehensive scheme, all that is necessary for the acquirement of the Art of Modern Violin Playing.

"A Modern School for the Violin" consists of Six Books devoted to Daily Technical Practice, Six Books of Studies for Violin alone, and a number of Pieces with Pianoforte Accompaniment, the Violin parts being specially edited for the purposes of teaching.

SECTION A.—TECHNICAL PRACTICE. IN SIX BOOKS.

The foundation of "A Modern School for the Violin" is laid by means of a series of Six Books dealing exclusively with the important subject of Daily Technical Practice. The First Book of Technical Practice (Book 1A) is limited to the 1st Position; the Second Book (2A) to the 1st, 2nd, and 3rd Positions; the Third Book (3A) to the first five Positions; and so on. Bowings and other technical devices are introduced in a similarly progressive manner throughout. Each Book of Technical Practice is divided into "Lessons" (or Chapters), and each Lesson contains a number of short repeating Exercises on some definite point of Violin Technique—as Fingering, Bowing, &c., with the needful explanations. Included in each Book will be found a complete set of Scales and Arpeggi, arranged according to the particular stage of advancement reached.

Taken as a whole, this section is intended to facilitate, and to insist on, a thorough, steady, and continuous progress in the mastery of the Instrument, this being the only possible means of preparing the groundwork for artistic achievement with all its lasting delights.

SECTION B.—STUDIES. IN SIX BOOKS.

Section B is formed of a series of original and selected Studies, in Six Books. Each Book of Studies (Section B) is carefully co-ordinated, in respect of difficulty and range of subject, with the correspondingly numbered Book of Technical Practice (Section A). Thus the First Book of Studies (1B) is written in the 1st Position; the Second Book (2B) in the 1st, 2nd, and 3rd Positions; the 3rd Book (3B) in all Positions up to and including the 5th; and so on. It should further be explained that the two Sections are designed to complement one another, and that the "School" must be practised, not in single Books of Technical Practice and Studies alternately, but in pairs. Thus, Books 1A and 1B are to be taken concurrently, then Books 2A and 2B, 3A and 3B, and so on, and the appropriate pairs are now issued bound together in cloth (see Cloth Bindings below).

1A.	TECHNICAL PRACTICE	(1st Position)	2s. od.		1B.	STUDIES	... ...	(1st Position)	2s. od.
2A.	Ditto	(1st, 2nd, and 3rd Positions)	2s. od.		2B.	Ditto		(1st, 2nd, and 3rd Positions)	2s. 6d.
3A.	Ditto	... (1st to 5th Position)	3s. od.		3B.	Ditto	... ...	(1st to 5th Position)	3s. od.
4A.	Ditto	... ... (all Positions)	2s. 6d.		4B.	Ditto	... ...	(all Positions)	3s. od.
5A.	Ditto	... ... Do.	2s. 6d.		5B.	Ditto	... ...	Do.	3s. od.
6A.	Ditto	... ... Do.	3s. od.		6B.	Ditto	... ...	Do.	3s. od.

CLOTH BINDINGS.

Book 1.	(1A and 1B, bound together)	in Cloth	5s. od.
,, 2.	(2A and 2B, bound together)	Do.	5s. 6d.
,, 3.	(3A and 3B, bound together)	Do.	7s. od.
,, 4.	(4A and 4B, bound together)	Do.	6s. 6d.
,, 5.	(5A and 5B, bound together)	Do.	6s. 6d.
,, 6.	(6A and 6B, bound together)	Do.	7s. od.

PIECES.

In completion of the scheme of "A Modern School" a number of Pieces are published, in a form designed to fulfil the requirements of Violin Teachers and Students. In each number the Violin part is furnished with complete Fingerings and Bowings, besides remarks as to the methods of rendering, &c.

No. 13.	TWELVE FOLK DANCES FROM DENMARK	(1st Position)	2s. od.
No. 14.	SONATA IN G MINOR. G. Tartini	(All Positions)	2s. od.
No. 15.	OVERTURE TO SAMSON. G. F. Handel	(1st, 2nd, and 3rd Positions)	2s. od.
No. 16.	SONATINA IN D. Franz Schubert	(1st, 2nd, and 3rd Positions)	2s. od.
No. 17.	EIGHT HYMN TUNES. Various Composers	(1st Position)	1s. 6d.
No. 18.	STYRIAN DANCES (LANDLER) (Op. 165). Josef Lanner	(1st to 5th Position)	2s. od.
No. 19.	PRELUDE AND FUGUE IN G MINOR. J. S. Bach	(Advanced)	2s. od.
No. 20.	SONATA IN G (No. 8). Joseph Haydn	(1st to 6th Position)	2s. od.
No. 21.	CONCERTO IN A MINOR. J. S. Bach	(1st to 6th Position)	2s. od.
No. 22.	CONCERTO IN A MINOR. Pierre Rode	(Op. 9). (All Positions)	2s. 6d.
No. 23.	TWELVE CAROLS	(1st Position)	2s. od.
No. 24.	SONATA IN A. W. A. Mozart	(1st to 5th Position)	2s. od.
No. 25.	RÊVERIE. Henri Vieuxtemps (Op. 22, No. 3).	(Advanced)	2s. od.
No. 26.	FOUR LITTLE PIECES. (From Op. 8) Ignaz Pleyel	(1st Position)	2s. od.
No. 27.	SARABANDE AND TAMBOURIN. Jean-Marie Leclair	(1st to 5th Position)	2s. od.
No. 28.	BOURRÉE AND GIGUE. J. S. Bach	(1st and 3rd Positions)	1s. 6d.
No. 29.	BALLADE AND POLONAISE. Henri Vieuxtemps (Op. 38)	(Advanced)	2s. od.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

A NEW SERIES
OF
SACRED SONGS
EDITED, WITH MARKS OF EXPRESSION AND PHRASING, BY ALBERTO RANDEGGER.

PRICE TWO SHILLINGS EACH BOOK.

The two sets of Songs for each voice are also published in four volumes.
CLOTH, SIX SHILLINGS EACH.

FIRST SET.

SOPRANO.

1. My heart ever faithful ... ... J. S. Bach
2. I will sing of Thy great mercies ("St. Paul") F. Mendelssohn-Bartholdy
3. Jerusalem ("Gallia") ... ... Ch. Gounod
4. With verdure clad ("Creation") ... ... J. Haydn
5. I will extol Thee, O Lord ("Eli") ... M. Costa
6. I mourn as a dove ("St. Peter") ... ... J. Benedict

TENOR.

1. O God, have mercy (Pietà, Signore) ... A. Stradella
2. In native worth ("Creation") ... ... J. Haydn
3. Be thou faithful unto death ("St. Paul")... F. Mendelssohn-Bartholdy
4. Cujus animam ("Stabat Mater") ... ... G. Rossini
5. The Lord is very pitiful ("St. Peter") ... J. Benedict
6. The soft southern breeze ("Rebekah") ... J. Barnby

CONTRALTO.

1. Slumber Song ("Christmas Oratorio") ... J. S. Bach
2. But the Lord is mindful ("St. Paul") F. Mendelssohn-Bartholdy
3. What tho' I trace ("Solomon") ... ... Handel
4. Evening Prayer ("Eli") ... ... M. Costa
5. There is a green hill... ... ... Ch. Gounod
6. O Thou afflicted ("St. Peter") ... ... J. Benedict

BASS.

1. Dost thou despise ... ... J. S. Bach
2. O God, have mercy ("St. Paul") F. Mendelssohn-Bartholdy
3. Now heaven in fullest glory shone ("Creation") J. Haydn
4. Pro peccatis ("Stabat Mater") ... ... G. Rossini
5. How great, O Lord ("St. Peter")... ... J. Benedict
6. If Thou should'st mark iniquities ("Eli")... M. Costa

SECOND SET.

SOPRANO.

1. Thou, O Lord, art my Protector (Psalm xix.) C. Saint-Saëns
2. Lo! the heaven-descended Prophet ("The Passion") ... ... C. H. Graun
3. Jerusalem ("St. Paul") ... F. Mendelssohn-Bartholdy
4. Great is Jehovah ... ... F. Schubert
5. Turn Thee unto me ("Eli") ... ... M. Costa
6. Let the bright Seraphim ("Samson") ... Handel

TENOR.

1. Only be still, wait thou His leisure ("If thou but sufferest") ... ... J. S. Bach
2. Daughters of Jerusalem ("St. Peter") ... J. Benedict
3. Thus was the sun ("Samson") ... ... Handel
4. O come, let us worship (Psalm xcv.) F. Mendelssohn-Bartholdy
5. Twilight is gently falling (Ave Maria) ... J. Raff
6. Song of Penitence (Busslied) ... ... Beethoven

CONTRALTO.

1. To living waters ("The Lord is my Shepherd") J. S. Bach
2. O God, have mercy (Pietà, Signore) ... A. Stradella
3. All my heart inflamed and burning ("Stabat Mater") ... ... A. Dvorák
4. The glory of God in Nature (Creation's Hymn) Beethoven
5. Fac ut portem ("Stabat Mater") ... ... G. Rossini
6. Morning Prayer ("Eli") ... ... M. Costa

BASS.

1. Mighty Lord and King all glorious ("Christmas Oratorio") ... ... J. S. Bach
2. Rolling in foaming billows ("Creation")... J. Haydn
3. Litany for All Souls' Day ... ... F. Schubert
4. The glory of God in Nature (Creation's Hymn) Beethoven
5. Consume them all ("St. Paul") F. Mendelssohn-Bartholdy
6. Nazareth ... ... Ch. Gounod

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

TRINITY COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

(Instituted 1872.)

Chairman of Board:

Sir FREDERICK BRIDGE, C.V.O., M.A., Mus.D.

Director of Studies: G. E. BAMBRIDGE, F.T.C.L., F.R.A.M.

Director of Examinations: C. W. PEARCE, Mus.D.

April 30. Summer Term begins.

The College provides Instruction and Training in all Musical Subjects: Instrumental, Vocal, and Theoretical, and the Lessons are arranged to meet the convenience of both day and evening students. Any number of subjects—from one to the Full Course—may be entered for.

The College is open to beginners as well as to advanced students.

Approved complete Courses for the University of London Degrees in Music under recognised Teachers of the University. Also preparation for the degrees of other Universities, the examinations of the Royal College of Organists, Trinity College of Music, etc.

The Orchestral, Choral, and Chamber Music Classes are open also to sufficiently competent persons who are not College students for any other subjects.

All modern systems of Technique, whether for the Pianoforte, Violin, or other Instrument, are taught by eminent Professors.

Tuition in the Rudiments of the Theory of Music, Harmony, Counterpoint, Form, Instrumentation, Composition, and the Art of Teaching is also given by Correspondence.

In the Junior School (for Students up to 16 years of age) the fees are reduced.

Particulars of the Teaching Department, with list of Professors, Fees, Scholarships regulations, and the Syllabuses of the Higher and Local Examinations, on application to the undersigned.

SHELLEY FISHER, Secretary.

Mandeville Place, Manchester Square, London, W.

Just Published.

THE

BARLESS PSALTER CHANTS

EDITED BY

WALTER MARSHALL, M.A.

AND

SEYMOUR PILE, M.A., F.R.C.O.

Price One Shilling net.

Cloth, 1s. 6d. net.

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

TO BE PRODUCED AT THE ROYAL ALBERT HALL, APRIL 11.

IMPERIAL MARCH,

"PRO PATRIA"

FOR FULL ORCHESTRA.

COMPOSED BY

J. D. DAVIS.

Op. 58.

Orchestral Parts } In the Press.
Pianoforte Solo }

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

BROADWOOD PIANOS

BOSWORTH'S

PORTRAIT CLASSICS

CONSTITUTE A RECORD IN CHEAP, CORRECT, HIGH-CLASS ENGLISH PRODUCTIONS.

BEETHOVEN SONATAS

560 pages. Price 5s. net.

CHOPIN WALTZES

80 pages. Price 1s. net.

MENDELSSOHN SONGS WITHOUT WORDS

131 pages. Price 1s. 8d. net.

BACH FIRST INSTRUCTIONS IN

In two Books. Price 1s. net each.

Having again been thoroughly revised, we may safely claim these to be the finest editions on the market.

BOSWORTH & CO.,

8, Heddon Street, Regent Street, London, W.

Publishers of the Four Great British Piano Methods:

"Beringer's Tutor," "Graham Moore's First Principles," "Ward's Progressive," and "Wickin's Rapid Tutor."

Price 2s. 6d. each.

Just Published.

HANDBOOKS FOR MUSICIANS.

EDITED BY ERNEST NEWMAN.

The Sources of Keyboard Music in England

BY

CHARLES VAN DEN BORREN,

Professor of the Université Nouvelle of Brussels.

Translated from the French by

JAMES E. MATTHEW.

Published as a Net Book.

Price Seven Shillings Net.

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

The Musical Times

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

APRIL 1, 1915.

CARILLONS.

By W. W. Starmer.

During the past six months all lovers of bells and bell music have been wondering what has happened to the beautiful carillons of Belgium. Although it is extremely difficult to get accurate information respecting the details of the German orgy of destruction, there is no doubt that many carillons have been totally destroyed, notably those of Termonde, Louvain (St. Pierre), Dinant, Ypres, Dixmude, and Nieuport. Up to the present Bruges and Antwerp have survived, and although Malines has been damaged, it is not to any great extent.

MALINES CATHEDRAL AND CARILLON.

We know that Malines Cathedral has suffered much, but its glorious tower containing the famous carillon withstood the early bombardments wonderfully well, and sustained comparatively insignificant damage. Owing to its great stability the shells ricochetted, incidentally destroying the buildings in the immediate vicinity.

The last reliable report from one who had lived in Malines some time during the German occupation was that the parapet of the tower and the great clock face were partially destroyed, and that some shells had gone through the upper portion of the tower. This could happen without doing much harm, as there is a good deal of open stonework in the structure. What may be the fate of the bells at Malines, Antwerp, and Bruges after the German inquisitorial copper hunt, has yet to be told. Curiously enough, in 1792 the Malines carillon was saved from destruction by Haverals, the then carillonneur, who succeeded in persuading the revolutionary City Council to preserve the bells, although it had been decreed that they should be melted down to make cannon. Some years later, when the reaction came, the authorities reprimanded Haverals for playing so many Republican tunes on the magnificent carillon he had been instrumental in saving! He very soon changed his music to suit the circumstances, and retained his appointment until the year of his death, in 1841, completing over sixty years' service as City Carillonneur. May 1915 be as fortunate a year for the Malines carillon as 1792! Although the tower at Malines is part of the Cathedral, it with its bells belongs to the city, and is controlled by the municipal authorities.

M. Jef. Denyn, the present City Carillonneur, is now a refugee in England, he and his family being at Tunbridge Wells. Since he has been in this country he has given two recitals—at Bournville and at Loughborough. Many thousands listened to his enchanting music, and the funds in aid of the Belgian refugees benefited to the extent of £100. At Bournville, Prof. Granville Bantock was present. He was greatly pleased with Denyn's wonderful performance, and hopes that some way can be found of developing this branch of musical art in England. Although there are five carillons with clavier in Great Britain, not one is of the proper size and compass to enable the player to give an adequate demonstration either of his own executive powers or of the artistic capabilities of the instrument.

ENGLAND A BELL-RINGING COUNTRY.

Handel has been credited with the statement that the bell is the English national instrument, and centuries ago England was called the 'ringing isle.' Most of us love the music of bells, but our change-ringing—clever as it is—possesses none of the artistic merits of carillon playing. The carillon raises the bell to a higher artistic plane, and in addition to good tone-quality demands the most accurate pitch. Many of our bells on which peals are rung—with great pleasure to the ringers—are poor in tone and inaccurate as regards tune. The reason of this is not far to seek. Change-ringing is directly responsible for the alteration of the shape of bells—the shortening of the body—so that the series of harmonic tones has been completely upset, much to the detriment of tone and tune. Our forefathers, instead of improving the method of bell-hanging and the proper adjustment of the balance of the bell, indiscriminately treated the bell itself and altered it in such a way as to impair its symmetry in order that greater ease in ringing might be attained. The difficulty of the balance of the bell for this purpose has now been entirely overcome, so that the true symmetrical shape can be used and great weights manipulated with ease. Change-ringing therefore at the present time can be practised with bells good as to their proportions, tone, and of perfect tune (as regards the fundamental tones) with greater facility than ever before.

CARILLONS DESCRIBED.

The special characteristic of the carillon is its chromatic scale and large compass—four octaves. With us for change-ringing the bells without exception sound the notes of the diatonic scale (major), with a compass of from five to twelve notes.

Another consideration of the greatest musical importance is the difference in the construction scale in making bells for carillon use and for change-ringing. The following table will show where these differences occur:

	For Carillons. Cwts.	Qrs.			For Change-Ringing. Cwts.	Qrs.
1.	1	2	G		6	0
2.	2	0	F		6	1
3.	2	2	E		6	2
4.	3	2	D		7	1
5.	5	0	C		8	0
6.	6	0	B		9	0
7.	8	2	A		11	0
8.	11	3	G		13	0
9.	16	0	F		17	0
10.	20	2	E		20	2
11.	28	0	D		28	0
12.	40	0	C (Middle C)		40	0

The reason of the heavier weights in the smaller bells of the change-ringing scale is to prevent them being swamped by the larger ones, and, for the purpose, increased thickness is an absolute necessity. This upsets the harmonic tones more or less, and although the most important ones can be satisfactorily dealt with, at times no tuning can completely rectify the subordinates.

Then of course the difference between the methods employed in sounding the bells has to be taken into account. In a carillon, the clapper strikes the bell (hung 'dead' or 'fixed') from a very short distance, consequently no great volume of tone is produced. In change-ringing the bell completes a circle for each blow of the clapper, which thus hits the bell with great force. The clappers of our bells are much lighter than those of Continental bells. On the Continent the automatic carillons play music in three, four, or more parts; with us, chimes play melody only.

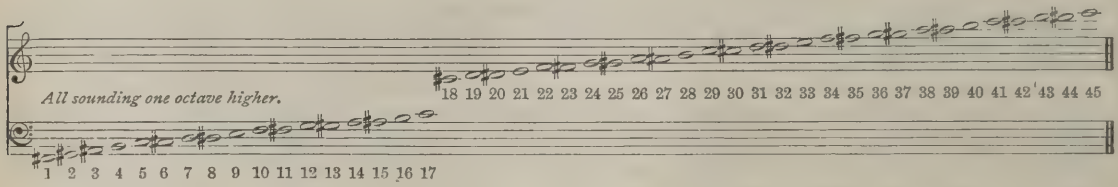
Taking these things into consideration, it is difficult to make any true comparison between the use of English bells cast on a different scale and operated upon in an entirely different manner, and Continental bells made for carillon use, automatic or otherwise.

In automatic carillons the bells are played by means of outside hammers, just the same as in our English chimes.

BRUGES AND MALINES.

The two most famous carillons in the world are those of Bruges and Malines. The former carillon is associated with the well-known poem of Longfellow, 'The Belfry of Bruges,' but the reputation of Malines is on a much sounder basis. The beautiful tower of Malines (320 ft. high) is undoubtedly the finest of its kind in the world. If it had been specially designed for the purpose of the carillon it could not be better than it is. (See illustration.) The bells at Malines are mostly excellent examples of the best master bell-founders, and are of fine tone. The disposition of the bells is very much more satisfactory for the clavier than those at Bruges, the action-work being direct and consequently much more under the control of the player. The bells are also much heavier than those of Bruges.

Malines Carillon. The Scale of the Bells.



C = 520.

No.	Note.	Date.	Founder.	Reputed Weight. Kilos.
1	F♯	1844	L. & S. van Aerschodt (Louvain)	8,884 (8¾ tons)
2	G♯	1696	Melchior de Haze (Antwerp) ...	6,000
3	A♯	1861	Severin van Aerschodt	4,235
4	B	1498	Symon Waghevens	3,000
5	C	1697	M. de Haze	2,000
6	C♯	1766	Andreas van den Gheyn	1,749
7	D	1777	,, ,, ,, ,, ...	1,555
8	D♯	1873	A. L. J. van Aerschodt	1,201
9	E	1735	Georges Dumery (Bruges)... ...
10	F	1564	Adrien Steylaert
11	F♯	1515	Georges Waghevens	655
12	G	1674	Pierre Hemony
13	G♯	1480	Henri Waghevens	400
14	A	1674	Pierre Hemony
15	A♯	1784	Andreas van den Gheyn
16	B	,,	,, ,, ,, ...
17	C	1908	Michiels (Tournai)
18	C♯	1912	Felix van Aerschodt (the 'Denyn' bell)	275
19	D	1784	Andreas van den Gheyn
20	D♯	1674	Pierre Hemony
21	E	,,	,, ,, ...
22	F	,,	,, ,, ...
23	F♯	,,	,, ,, ...
24	G	,,	,, ,, ...
25	G♯	,,	,, ,, ...
26	A	,,	,, ,, ...
27	A♯	,,	,, ,, ...
28	B	1674	Pierre Hemony
29	C	,,	,, ,, ...
30	C♯	,,	,, ,, ...
31	D	,,	,, ,, ...
32	D♯	,,	,, ,, ...
33	E	,,	,, ,, ...
34	F	,,	,, ,, ...
35	F♯	,,	,, ,, ...
36	G	,,	,, ,, ...
37	G♯	,,	,, ,, ...
38	A	,,	,, ,, ...
39	A♯	1908	Michiels (Tournai)
40	B	,,	,, ,, ...
41	C	1674	Pierre Hemony
42	C♯	,,	,, ,, ...
43	D	,,	,, ,, ...
44	D♯	,,	,, ,, ...
45	E	,,	,, ,, ...

Total reputed weight of the forty-five bells, 34,098 kilos (about 33½ tons).

For the last twenty-five years the instrument has been played by M. Jef. Denyn (Chevalier of the Order of Leopold), who has added to the fame of the carillon his own great reputation as a virtuoso. His executive skill places him far above any other players—he is a veritable carillon Liszt.

Back Row, Standing :
(1) Noël Igodt, Ypres. (2) Louis Van de Walle, Malines. (3) Jean Huyghebaert, Malines. (4) M. Lamot, Malines. (5) P. Verheyden, Antwerp. (6) Robert Peeters, Malines. (7) F. Redoute, Mons. (8) W. W. Starmer, Tunbridge Wells. (9) John Taylor, Loughborough. (10) J. Van Hoof, Antwerp. (11) E. de Keyser, Malines.

BOSTON PUBLIC

Front Row, Seated :
(1) A. Nauwelaerts, Lierre. (2) J. Van de Plas, Louvain. (3) Edward Steenackers, Borgerhout. (4) J. Van Beers, Schaerbeek. (5) Jef. Denyn, Malines. (6) G. Van Zuylen, Gouda. (7) A. Vermeulen, Courtrai. (8) A. Rolliers, St. Niklaas. (9) Ed. Denyn, Malines.

FAMOUS CARILLONNEURS.

METHOD OF PLAYING.

The carillon is played by means of a clavier arranged on the same principle as the manuals and pedals of an organ (see illustration). The keys are made of oak. They are round, being about $\frac{3}{4}$-in. in diameter. There are two rows of keys, the upper representing the black notes of the ordinary keyboard, projecting $3\frac{1}{2}$-in., the lower corresponding to the white notes, and projecting $6\frac{1}{2}$-in. The pedals are from 1 to $1\frac{1}{2}$ octaves in compass.

The pedal board is a necessity, because the larger bells require much more force to bring out their tone. The clappers are consequently much heavier, and demand a considerable expenditure of energy to move them. The pedal clavier also greatly increases the resources of the instrument, and permits the music to be played in three or more parts.

The keys are struck with the closed hand, the little finger being protected with a leather covering to prevent injury when playing. As the leverage of the key has to move the weight of the clapper, which in large bells is very considerable, and as the amount of tone produced depends entirely upon the amount of force with which the key is struck, it will easily be understood that carillon-playing requires a great deal of strength as well as celerity and skill. Sometimes the hand is covered with a kind of glove made of leather or other material, but whatever is used is to afford protection to the fingers and hand. Great dexterity of hand is essential, as much of the playing for sustained chord effects is done with a kind of tremolando.

The connection between the key and the bell clapper is exactly the same in principle as the tracker action used in organs, iron levers, squares, and wires being used in the place of the wooden materials of organ-building. On the clappers of the smaller bells springs are fixed to bring them back into their original position quickly after striking. In the larger bells the clappers are too heavy for this arrangement. They have a simple appliance consisting of a chain, which is attached to the 'flight' of the clapper and passed over a pulley. A weight is fixed to the other end of the chain sufficiently heavy to bring the clapper within a very short distance of the sound-bow of the bell, so that the key has only to upset the balance between the weight and the clapper.

The mechanism connected with each key is fitted with an adjustable screw-plate by which the tension can be regulated to a very great nicety and the touch adapted to the requirements of the player.

The bulk of the playing is done on the smaller bells, with only occasional use of the larger ones. The reasons why this should be so are :

(1.) The small bells are more easily manipulated;

(2.) The effect of chords is much more satisfactory than on the large bells, owing to the fact that in the latter the harmonic tones are very prominent and frequently interfere with each other when sounded together, in a disagreeable manner.

This is not the case with the smaller bells when used in a combination, as their harmonic tones are too high in the scale of sounds to inconvenience the ear. Chords, generally speaking, are most satisfactory when played arpeggiando. Chromatic and diatonic scale-passages can be rendered at almost any speed, and are most effective. When playing in three or more parts the greatest care is necessary as to the disposition of the different notes of the chords, the best effects being obtained by keeping a wide interval between the lowest note and the note next above it. The most intense crescendo and the most delicate diminuendo are possible.

During recent times the following players have performed with distinction on the Malines carillon, and are virtuosos of the highest order. Appended to the names are items of particular interest which displayed the special abilities of the players as well as the varied and artistic possibilities of the instrument :

M. Jef. Denyn (Carillonneur, Malines) :

Third Prelude	Van den Gheyn.
Third and Sixth Sonatas	Nicolai.
'Solvejgs song'	Grieg.
'Myn Moederspraak'	Benoit.

M. Jules Van de Plas (Carillonneur, Louvain) :

Prelude in D major (Book 1, No. 5)	Bach.

M. Fern. Redoute (Carillonneur, Mons) :

'Les Pêcheurs de Perles'	Bizet.

M. A. Rolliers (Carillonneur, St. Niklaas) :

'Het Lied van de Smid'	Andelhof.

M. A. Nauwelaerts (Carillonneur, Bruges) :

'Le retour de la Fauvette'	De Broeck.

(See illustration, p. 203.)

MALINES CHIMES.

The automatic carillon of the Malines chimes is important, as music is played no less than eight times during the hour : a short flourish at each half-quarter, a short piece at the quarter before and after each hour, a longer piece at the half-hour, and at the hour a piece of still greater length. The hour is struck as in England, but the hour to come is announced after the half-hour on a smaller bell than that used for the hour strike.

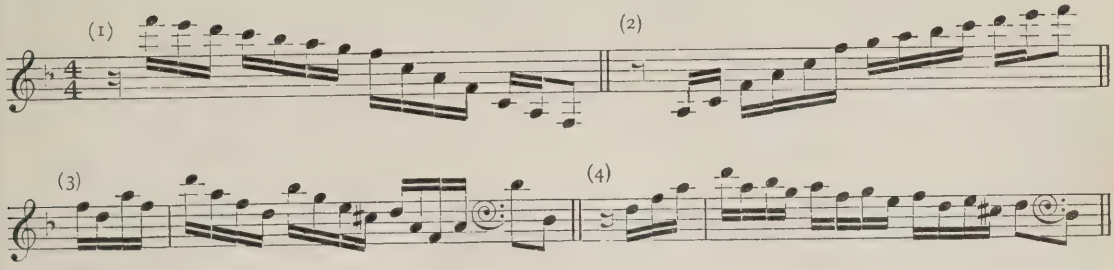
The music for the purpose needs very careful arrangement, and too many notes must not be used at the same time, for the effect suffers in direct proportion to the multiplicity of the parts.

The music as set on the chime-barrel frequently necessitates the playing of 60,000 to 70,000 notes every twenty-four hours. The tunes are changed twice a year.

The chime barrel was completed in 1734, is 5-ft. 3-in. in diameter, and contains 16,200 small holes into which the studs are fixed. There are 90 chime-hammers connected with the bells, which are operated by the chime barrel.

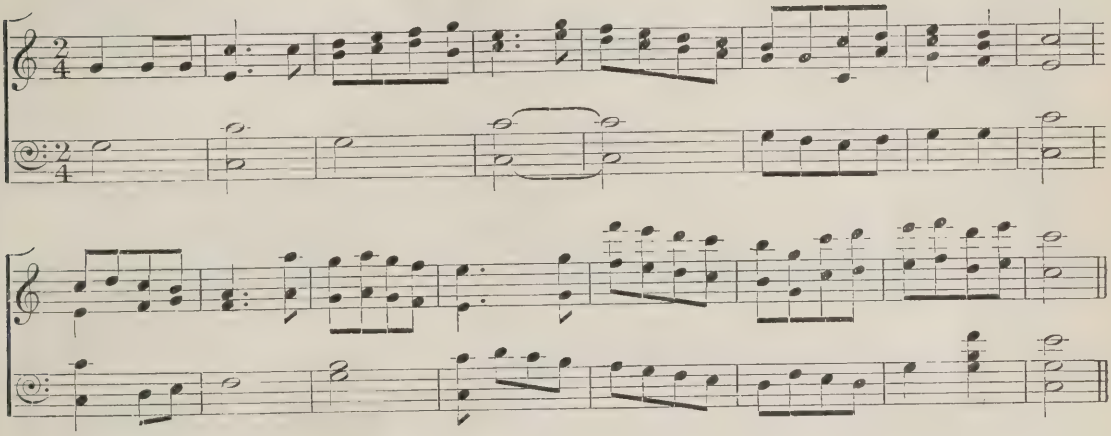
A good specimen of the automatic music played is the Finale from 'Le Triomphe de Groeninghe' (Mestdagh).

MALINES.—HALF QUARTERS.



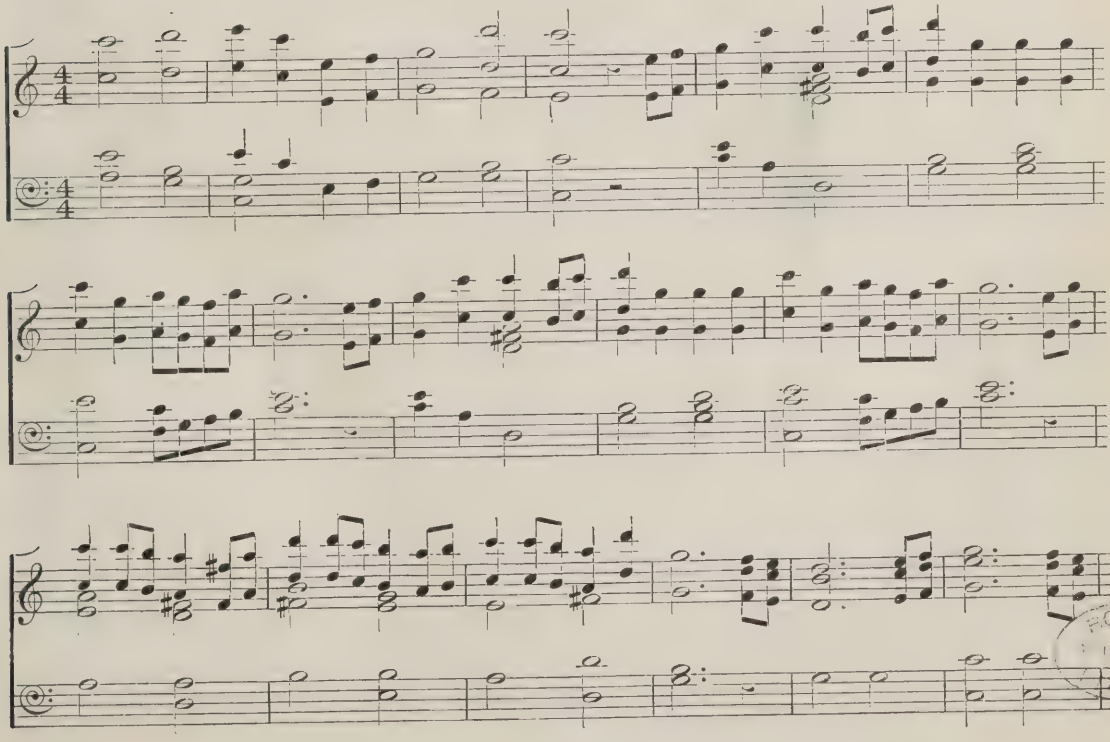
MALINES.—QUARTER.

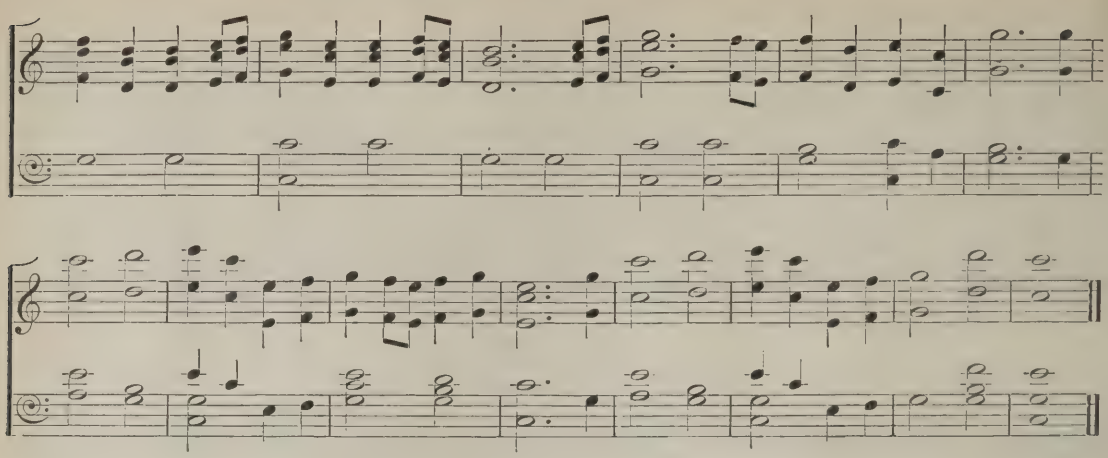
Local song of the town of Ypres.



MALINES.—HALF-HOUR.

Finale de la cantate flamande, 'Le Triomphe de Groeninghe,' by Ch. Mestdagh.





CÉSAR FRANCK AND THE SONATA.

By H. C. Colles.

The frequenters of London concert-rooms have lately been listening to the music of César Franck with more than ordinary attention. Our Belgian guests are particularly anxious to perform it, and to remind us that Franck was not a Frenchman, but a Belgian, born at Liége; our own conductors, Sir Henry Wood and Mr. Thomas Beecham, have given us the Symphony, and others of his works have appeared in recent programmes. All this brings in no new factor to our knowledge of Franck; his instrumental music has been performed in the past with quite sufficient frequency to give everyone a very fair knowledge of him. The Violin sonata has been played perhaps too often, the String quartet not quite often enough, but no one can say that any one of his later and more characteristic works for instruments has been neglected in this country. At the same time our acceptance of Franck has been rather passive; he has been praised by the precious; the keepers of 'the classical tradition' have opened their door by one chink to admit him into the circle of the elect, while at the same time the assailants of 'the classical tradition' and of all tradition have not despised him. English musical journalists emulate the pæans of such accomplished French critics as M. D'Indy and M. Rolland, who find Franck to be the saviour of music, the restorer of the symphony, and who attribute to his beneficent influence nearly every species of musical development since 1870. M. D'Indy and the disciples of the Schola Cantorum like to talk of Bach, Beethoven, and Franck, just as another côterie in Germany and England likes to talk of 'The three B's,' and its excuse for doing so (quite apart from their lack of alliterative excuse) is much less apparent to the ordinary person. For in spite of all the enthusiasm, real and affected, Franck's music has not gripped the heart-strings of a people (at any rate of this people) in a decisive way. It has remained the property of musicians, and been taken on trust by the public which cares most about it when it gets the added interest of interpretation by a great artist. The public (by which is meant the consensus of ordinarily intelligent listeners who do not base their taste upon any established code of artistic principles) loves the Violin sonata as much on Ysaÿe's account as on Franck's; it delights in the Prelude, Chorale and Fugue when it is performed by a pianist of outstanding gifts like Harold Bauer, and is much less moved by the Quartet, the Quintet, and the Symphony: from which it appears that there is something lacking to Franck's genius which leaves him peculiarly in need of an imaginative interpreter. There is some lack of directness in his musical speech.

Now directness of speech, literary or musical, comes from two things: first, the knowledge on the part of the speaker of his own meaning; secondly, his power to clothe the meaning in exactly that form of language which will give it precision to his hearers. It was in the second, I think, that Franck failed. He was tremendously exercised over problems of musical form, but he did not always see the form clearly in relation to his own thought. If he had he would have occupied himself less with the sonata type of form, with which he was not in full sympathy. It may be difficult to accept this statement as true in face of the extraordinary beauty of the Violin sonata. Franck in that work has certainly overcome in a remarkable degree what for him were the disadvantages of sonata form. But form is not an enemy to be wrestled with and brought into subjection, although the text-books and their opponents often lead the student to believe that it is. The fact that Franck succeeded in writing one sonata in which we are scarcely aware of any opposition between the principle of the form and his own natural style does not prove the complete harmony of the two, or make his manipulation of the form anything but a tour de force. In the Symphony, the Quintet, and the Quartet we can, I think, clearly trace signs that in his dealings with sonata form Franck is subduing an enemy rather than enlisting the support of a friend, and it will be worth while to see what caused that opposition. There are two principles at the root of sonata form, or rather two aspects of one principle, the melodic and the harmonic. One is that melodic ideas propounded in contrast with one another should grow gradually through the course of the movement by the force of their contact; the other that their growth should be furthered by showing them in relation to various tonal centres of which the counterpoise of tonic and dominant is the most primitive example.

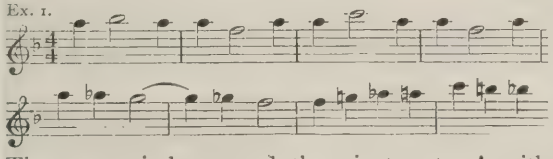
The very cast of Franck's melodic thought shows that this change of tonal centre meant very little to him. It is quite true that his tunes constantly change their keys, but they are principally chromatic changes wrought by subtle movements of semitones, having beauty of colour as their aim, and so arranged as to make the melodic period close in the same key as that in which it began. Leaving actual harmony out of the question it will be generally found that his melodies are intonations round a single note, not movements from one centre to another.

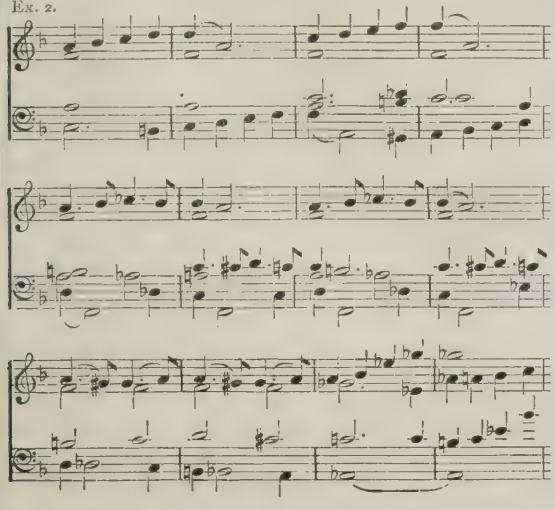
A famous theme of the Symphony gives a ready example:

Ex. 1.



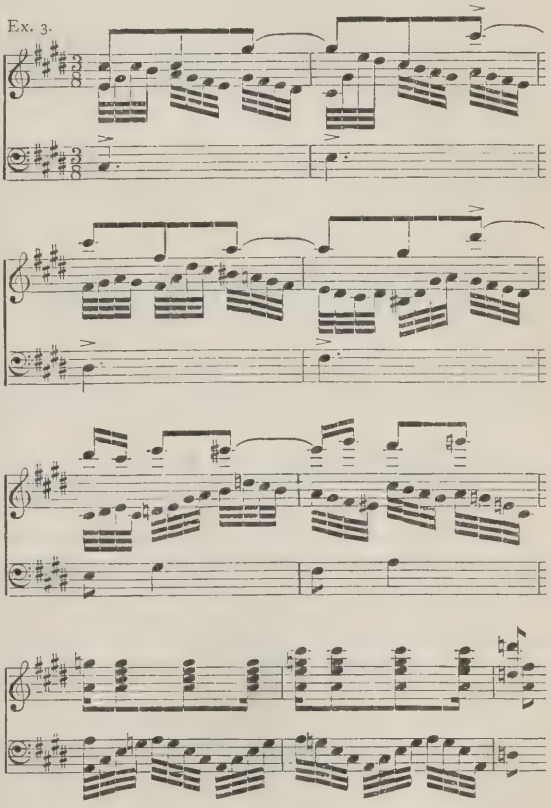
The tune circles round the pivot note A with almost distressing regularity, and as with this, so with a hundred others of Franck's themes, one finds that they inflect upon a point of rest—they do not travel. A passage a little earlier in the Symphony might be cited as a case to the contrary, but is really further evidence of the bias of Franck's mind. It is quoted here in skeleton harmony:

Ex. 2.



In the first ten bars every one of the melodic parts is revolving round some note in the chord of F; then in the last two bars the pivot is changed to the chord of A flat preparatory to repeating the process in the key of D flat. He does in fact achieve a change of centre here, but it is done grudgingly as a matter of necessity. There is no joy in the achievement. Contrast with it the following, and carry your eye and your ear on through the next thirty bars of Schubert's 'Unfinished' Symphony, and you see at once the very antithesis of Franck's method in a series of adventures through keys each one of which is a determining factor in the development of the melody itself:

Ex. 3.



There is no question here of making dogmatic assertions as to which is the better, or of chiding Franck for not writing like Schubert. But the fact is that the whole plan of sonata form, its development, and particularly its recapitulations, is conditioned by what we may call the travelling type of melody and not by the circling one. A recapitulation of any sort, in speech or music, is a tedious and tautologous business unless the listener has been carried a considerable distance from the premises from which the discussion started and feels the need for their restatement.

But we must look more closely at Franck's melody if we are to understand what he does with it. An examination of the first of those early Trios for pianoforte and strings, which date from 1841 and are never heard or likely to be heard in this country, is illuminating in this respect. The Trio in F sharp minor (Op. 1, No. 1) has three movements, of which the first is the most important for our purpose; the second, a Scherzo in B minor, of which M. D'Indy says that it 'suit pas à pas le trace beethovénien des X^e et XIV^e quatuors,' is obviously a student's exercise; the last movement is Franck's first experiment in the practice which became his settled principle later of weaving in suggestions of the themes of previous movements among the strands of a sonata pattern. But in the first movement he does not seem to have settled upon any such definite plan of action. He seems ready to let his imaginative invention carry him where it will, and as a matter of fact it leads him upon a very curious course.

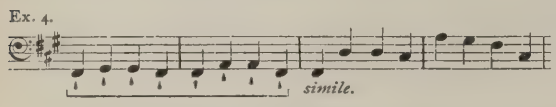
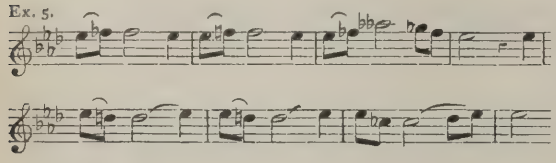
There is no mistaking Franck's identity in his initial thought (Ex. 4); its hypnotic concentration upon the keynote (notice the balance of the two bracketed passages) gives more than a hint of the theme in the Quintet (Ex. 5):

Ex. 4.



Ex. 5.



A single note has so great a fascination for the introspective Franck that the departure from it and the return to it is in itself an event of the first magnitude. Such departures and returns in his early days were most naturally diatonic ones; later the alteration of an outline by a chromatic semitone opened up a new vision of possibilities to him. One traces in these two examples a distinct stage in his melodic development, from the diatonic to the chromatic inflexion.

To return to the Trio, however: the strings enter with counter ideas which are combined with this one (Ex. 4) enunciated by the pianoforte, and as they are displayed we meet for the first time another characteristic which all know well in his later work—a habit of dealing with several ideas without granting a precedence to any one. Here we have a trinity of themes in which none is greater or less than another, and so subtly does he move from one rhythm to another that one cannot always analyse the progress, or say to which original thought a passage refers. The fact is of course that themes of the inflecting type are chiefly distinguishable by their rhythm and not by their outline.

Perhaps the most significant feature of this movement is the fact that the tonality never changes. There is indeed a contrasting theme in F sharp major, but this is only a change of mode; the centre of tonality remains fixed. And this major episode even seems to stand rather outside the scheme. A cold, plain melody, intentionally so as is proved by the direction in the violin part, Sans aucune nuance, it never becomes drawn into the vortex of development with its companions.

This is sufficient to suggest the appropriateness of the simile which likens the music of Franck to the art of illumination. He enriches with an extraordinary beauty something which in itself has little artistic significance. His single note or single chord or single tonality is his groundwork just as the initial letter of a Response or a Lection was the groundwork for the monk who took in hand the illumination of a Missal. He is not impelled forward from one emotional crisis to another like Tchaikovsky, nor moved to epic fervour like Wagner. Neither has he the tremendous architectural sense, the meeting of stress with resistance, which made Brahms the greatest of modern symphonists. In spite of the fact that his one work labelled 'Sonata' is the most popularly successful to-day (for reasons which have been hinted at), he only pursued his individual course with complete freedom when he could get rid of what for him were the trammels of sonata form. M. D'Indy's phrase about the heavy symphonic baggage of Brahms is really applicable to Franck and his Symphony. There is a good deal of baggage there; a good deal of vain repetition of themes which do not become more significant for being planted out in various keys not following one another inevitably, but reached by a certain wrench such as that which occurs in the passage quoted as Ex. 2.

Franck is at his happiest when he is relieved of all these considerations, in the Symphonic variations (which like the early Trio never leave the key of F sharp) and in the two great pianoforte works, where he weaves his themes together with ever increasing beauty of line and colour, employing changes in tonality merely incidentally. In all this he appears as one of the greatest decorative artists ever known; his pianoforte writing is as ornamental as that of Liszt, but he always chooses the ornament which he conceives to be the most beautiful, never the one which will most attract attention. In spite of the fact that he sometimes toyed with a programme, that he called one work 'Les Djinns' after Hugo's poem, and another 'Le Chasseur Maudit' after a ballad by Bûrger, he is the most 'abstract' composer of the 19th century. One does not find the style of 'Les Djinns' differs greatly from that of the Symphonic variations, and he takes refuge in the symphonic poem because it can be less dramatic than the symphony. The symphony demands the plural number and the two genders. The symphonic poem may be, and is in Franck's case, a monologue. A solitary idea or group of ideas (for, as we have seen, an idea with Franck is generally composite) will serve him in the symphonic poem, and the contrasts which are most foreign to his nature and most inherent in the elements of design in sonata or symphony can be avoided.

We shall not get a true measure of Franck's genius until we realise the directions in which he expanded naturally and the limitations which held him in check and confined his important works to a mere handful. The French eulogy of him, especially when it is echoed with less knowledge in this country, is apt to obscure the view. But Franck's unselfconscious art is really simple; it has no other end than the expression of pure beauty.

TEACHERS AND TEXT-BOOKS.

By G. H. Clutsam.

(Continued from March number, page 146.)

But, after all, counterpoint and its bewildering nonsense may be gradually drifting from the consideration of many teachers, who only hang on to a system that has at the moment nothing whatever to supersede it with any ostensible show of reason. Since my last article I have been favoured by the forwarding to me of a paper on 'The difficulties of counterpoint,' by Mr. Corder, who read it to the Musical Association some eighteen months ago. One is very interested to read that Mr. Corder finds it necessary to warn his fellow-musicians that 'in these days we cannot afford to make the student waste his time over the study of a dead language. There are so many living facts that he has got to assimilate, that unless something is speedily done to modernise the methods and material of counterpoint, our students will either neglect the study—they pursue it only under protest now—or they will have their spirit crushed.'

Sir Alexander Mackenzie, in presenting diplomas at the Royal College of Organists quite recently, suggested that he frequently left an examination in a state of depression, and with the feeling that all the attempts to improve musical education were being made in vain unless the condition of mental deafness that was so obviously present in many examination papers received immediate and universal attention. The genial President also pointed out that counterpoint, fugue, and all else, could only be a mechanical process with results correct enough from the view of the teacher, but certainly dull as music.

Altogether, although in certain authoritative quarters the old tenets and conventions of teaching are clung to as a drowning man clutches at a straw, it must not be disputed that in other directions the futility of them all, in the light of what is being accomplished by the modern composer, is slowly but surely being recognized. Of course, if it is insisted that the modern composer does not count, that his ideals are will-o'-the-wisps, and that the last quarter of a century has little to boast of in the matter of a healthy artistic activity, then there is nothing left for it but to pull out the plums contained in the teachings based on Fux, Albrechtsberger, Vogler, et hoc genus omne, and go ahead in a state of blind and blessed faith.

As a matter of fact, nobody has ever taken the trouble to question the authority of any of the old teachers or their text-books. Any variants of, or any attempts to compromise with, their theories by recent writers never touch the root of the trouble. Until an entirely new grammar of music, discarding the smallest allusion to the modal system and founded on modern practices, is evolved, the student of to-day is not likely to receive the smallest assistance from any teacher. I say grammar advisedly, not theory. There is no theory of music any more than there is a theory of painting, or of literature. When music was more or less an exact science, from the days of Palestrina, Purcell, Tallis, Byrd, Sweelinck, the 16th and 17th century Italian, English, and Flemish schools generally onwards to those of Bach, who epitomised the system nobly and served as its stupendous monument, the idea of a theory was not only possible but a necessity to the musician.

To put the matter broadly, music was during this long period invented: not composed, and not imagined. It is the application of modern imagination to much of this vast material that endows it with new life, and gives it an emotional value intrinsically not its own. Many enthusiasts—far too many for the health of a sane art—conjure up an affection for these historical relics that finds something of an equivalent in the china connoisseur's appreciation of Toby jugs or Staffordshire cows. This habit of thought, which is far too easily transferable by the assertive conoscente to the æsthetically susceptible, has hindered the proper progress and development of a sensitive art from the outset of its significance as a part and parcel of the poetry of general life.

It is rampant in text-book and teacher at the present moment. The adherence to counterpoint, strict or free, in any shape or form, the delving of harmonic unities out of contrapuntal fatuities, the system that vainly attempts to differentiate between concords and discords before the latter were ever imagined, the classification of chords, the figuring of their inversions, and a hundred-and-one of the commonplaces of current teaching, however, are possibly less dangerous to the nascent creative artist than the false ideals that are persistently thrust before him as the surest guidance to his artistic morality.

These ideals, the nearly impregnable securities of the teacher, are principally the shibboleths of form and architectonics vouched for as correct and immaculate by the practices of the classic masters, who since the advent of Bach have been almost entirely represented, at least in England, by the spirit of Germanic art. It is very curious, when you come to think the matter over, how dependent we as a nation have been on Teutonic influences in our musical affairs and conduct. The French or Italian schools, for all their fine polish and dainty discriminating tastes, have left us as a nation quite unmoved to the value of the educatory material they offer, and to this neglect may be attributed our utter want of activity in the operatic field—a significant story that may be dealt with at some other opportunity.

An examination of the many text-books published on musical subjects during the last half-century—our activity in writing about the art we have not particularly adorned in other respects is, at least, marvellous—reveals the fact that in the perspective of the teacher the music of Mozart, Haydn, Bach, Beethoven, and Handel provides an ideal foundation for every type of incipient English musical talent. There is no discrimination as to what is really beautiful—the real soul finding stubborn realization despite a grey, thick cloud of formalities—or what is but the musical journalism of a particular period. Much of this work should be studied for the express purpose of knowing what to avoid. The sonata and symphonic forms alone are responsible for a large casualty list in a promising army of musicians. Teachers know this, but still insist, after counting the bars of a Beethoven sonata—generally a weak one—in studying the disposition of first and second subjects, the padding, which is always found most bountifully appropriate even when its weakly purport is most obvious, the motto figures, the development, the changed characters to subjects, the recapitulations, the pedals, the codas, and a hundred other useless appurtenances of the formal idea, and doling it out piecemeal, with a totally unnecessary reverence, to their poor scholars, who must often wonder whether they are studying an imaginative art or the differential calculus. The necessity of understanding all these things, and others equally unprofitable, forms the backbone of our university and academic systems of examinations, and a method of incubating musical authority that requires, without the smallest hesitation, immediate 'scrapping.' Examinations, as at present conducted, are only advantageous to the organizations that originate them, and their particular gain is antipodean to the artistic.

Bach, of course, is a study that should only happen into a student's thoughts a considerable time after his natural musical instincts have outstripped anything that remains over from what he has forgotten of his teacher's instruction. He will then be capable of knowing what he likes and what he does not, and can deal with Bach accordingly. To revert to the Teutonic influence on English music and musicians, the subject is a vast one, and certainly, beyond the mentioning, is not possible of consideration in this article. But it could be easily shown that the worthy German composers above mentioned are the great ground-landlords of a vast field of English musical art, exercising a crushing, unproductive power, and a curtailment of their privileges and vested rights is a matter that demands immediate attention if our musical house is to be set in order in the universal rupture now obtaining. And the honour of attacking unceremoniously an idea that has hitherto sustained his very existence lies with the humble and modest (the adjectives are suggested by Mr. Corder) teacher. First of all he must find beauties, system, and perfect expression in the works of other composers than those who have hitherto served as his models. The hunt to find them will prove extremely interesting, and not nearly so difficult as it would appear to be. In fact, each gain would render the next an easier matter, and probably would result in an ultimate mental joyousness that might merge the teacher once more into the ranks of the creators. Once the teacher became, as he should be, the creator, then he would immediately banish into the limbo of forgotten things all the acquired wisdom that has served as the basis of musical teaching in the past centuries, and give the art, in common with those other matters of civilization that are at present receiving such strenuous attention, a new future, a new significance, and a new glory.

Occasional Notes.

Mr. Clutsam writes:

Mr. Heseltine in his article on Delius in last month's Musical Times finds it 'rather difficult to see exactly what Mr. Clutsam means when he quotes a passage from "Appalachia" in pianoforte score, with no indications of the very subtle and telling way in which it is orchestrated, and proceeds to point out that it "reveals the fact that Delius has the weakest technical ability of any strong composer living."' Mr. Heseltine has only read me very casually. The quotation was Dr. Eaglefield Hull's, not mine, and my remark did not concern that particular work or part thereof but the entire Delius output, and was in reference to its value as material for analysis by a student. Delius's technique is entirely personal, unsystematised, and irresponsible. His very idiom is dependent on these conditions. Perhaps this is the reason that in certain qualities of expression his work attains a curious power, but it is decidedly a hopeless model for the ambitious student at any stage of his career.

A 'Three B's' Festival. Last month we drew attention to the forthcoming Festival of modern British music. A scheme that is likely to be equally powerful in its appeal is that of the Bach-Beethoven-Brahms Festival, which will make Queen's Hall a busy place from April 19 to 24. A body of two hundred voices selected from the Leeds Philharmonic and Festival Choirs will sing the B minor Mass, the 'Missa Solemnis,' and the 'Requiem.' The London Symphony Orchestra and an attractive list of soloists have been engaged, and M. Henri Verbrugghen will conduct. The net proceeds will be devoted to French, Belgian, and British benevolent musical institutions.

Park Music. We are glad to see that the L.C.C. proposal to suspend the band performances during the coming season has fallen through. It has been decided to continue them, though on a modified basis. Bearing in mind the heartening effect of music, we think it is a pity to economise in this direction. Still, 'half a loaf is better than no bread,' so we must be duly grateful. At the same time, few ratepayers would have complained if the Council had decided to go the whole loaf.

Naval and Military Music.

The annual report of the Naval and Military Musical Union shows that good progress is being made in encouraging our forces to sing, both on the march and when at rest. Particularly interesting are the accounts of Regimental Choral Competitions held at Aldershot. Copies of the report may be obtained from the hon. secretary, 7, Russell Square, W.C.

A Sorry World.

Mr. Beecham has been writing trenchantly in the Daily Chronicle on various musical topics. The charity concert is denounced, serious fault is found with our Colleges of Music, and the critics (who of course are always in hot water) come in for severe castigation. What he calls the tragi-comedy of English singing is dismally dealt with, and the arts of the middleman in music—the musical agents—are held up to reprobation. Altogether, it is a sorry world. But there is a gleam of hope in it, as Mr. Beecham has got the situation well in hand.

War Emergency Concerts.

The number of concerts being given for various funds and objects is extraordinarily large. We can only hope that they bring grist to the mill of the professional performer. The Committee of Music in War-time continues to be very active, but its work is of the unobtrusive kind that does not seek record in daily newspapers. Mr. Isidore de Lara and those associated with him pursue their way very industriously and gain considerable attention. Mr. de Lara is insistent in advocating the claims of the British composer to a hearing, and in his programmes has done good work in this direction. One hundred concerts had been given up to March 4, and at these events 700 engagements had been fulfilled by professional artists. Madame Butt has also been active in collecting large sums for various funds, no less than £7,000 having been distributed. Over two hundred concerts have been given in asylums, hospitals, workhouses, &c.

Recruiting Bands.

Owing chiefly to the unremitting efforts of the Daily Telegraph many new bands have been formed to cheer our new armies on the march, and to aid recruiting. A most praiseworthy achievement.

Three concerts of orchestral British Music, organized by Mr. I. de Lara, will take place at the Queen's Hall on April 27, May 8 and 29. Miss Mary Garden, who is a British-born lady, has promised to sing. These concerts are made possible by Sir Francis Trippell's generous guarantee of £1,000. Mr. Hubert Bath has been awarded the prize of £50 offered by Sir Francis for a new work by a British composer.

In reviewing recent editions of Czerny's works (published by Novello & Co., Ltd.), the Daily Telegraph critic says, 'the composer should be named "Karl," not "Charles," as printed. Five foreign editions before us say "Charles."

In the sketch of Mr. Frederick Delius's career given in our March issue, it was somewhat ambiguously stated that he had been 'driven from France.' This was intended to mean only that the exigencies of the War made it expedient for him to leave France, which he did entirely of his own free will. From the context it is clear that he is regarded as anything but an alien enemy. It should have been stated that he remained in Yorkshire until 1884, not 1883.

A POST-PRANDIAL VISITATION.

By Harvey Grace.

The blame or credit (as you will) must be shared between a morning's work collating editions of his organ music, a lunch indiscreetly extensive, and a long low chair that invited to 'just a few minutes' . . . . .

* * * * * * *

There seemed to be nothing odd in seeing him seated opposite. His appearance was quite familiar: a thickset figure, a massive head (the wig a trifle awry), strongly marked features, with a grimness—even truculence—about the eyebrows that was tempered by the humour of the mouth. Just as his presence seemed natural enough, so there was no apparent incongruity in his dress: nor was I surprised at his ability to converse fluently in idiomatic English of to-day.

'Of course,' he was saying, 'I am glad to find that they are at last in a fair way to be appreciated.' (I knew by the odd and time-saving intuition that one possesses at such moments, that he was speaking of the Church Cantatas.) 'Yet I am not sure that you devotees are all on the right tack. In the first place, some of you destroy the balance of my work by employing far too large a choir. Not that I object to a large choir, as such; I often complained of the smallness of mine. But what you appear to overlook is the fact that I composed these works for performance by a choral and instrumental force of about equal strength. You may be sure that had I had at my disposal some hundreds of good voices, I should have written differently for my orchestra. Do you imagine I should have woven elaborate polyphonic webs with my handful of wood-wind and strings, knowing that they would have no chance of being heard against the voices? A man's methods of composition are largely the result of the performing medium at hand. I had a small choir—I was lucky if I could muster four voices to a part—and a band of about twenty, three of which were trumpets; these and the drums being used, as a rule, only in climaxes, there remained for ordinary purposes a choral and instrumental force of about equal size. I think you will admit that I gave them all something to do, partly because I wanted them all to earn their money, and partly because it was our way of writing. Consequently you are to remember that the instrumental parts of my cantatas are as important as the vocal. The result is chamber music, rather than choral with orchestral accompaniment.'

'But,' I said, 'our ideas on orchestration are so different from yours, that I doubt if modern ears would appreciate your intricacies if they could be heard. Are we, then, to go on neglecting the cantatas?'

'There are three methods,' he replied, 'by which the works can be successfully performed: first (and preferably), by some such organization as your Classical Concert Society, which might give them with a picked force of forty or fifty performers; secondly, by the best of your church choirs, with an accompaniment of strings, the wood-wind being provided by the organ; thirdly (and, I expect, the best from a popular point of view), by a large festival choir, with the accompaniments rewritten for full modern orchestra, my wood-wind and string parts remaining pretty much as they are, with doublings or new parts for clarinets, bassoons, and so on. Above all, give me some sonorous work by the brass. Let me have four (or even eight) horns, four trumpets (your fine modern ones, not my post-horns), three trombones, and a tuba. Of course these changes in the scoring apply only to the choruses. By-the-by, many of the solos will, I fear, be always a bugbear. Their difficulty will be against the cantatas being very generally sung. I wonder some of your publishers don't issue separately even more of the choruses than they do, in a form suitable for use as anthems, with my accompaniment reduced to a comfortable piece of organ music instead of a difficult piano part. Talking of organs, I should like to try one of your best . . . .'

I don't remember how we got there, but there we certainly were, at the console of St. Praxed's.

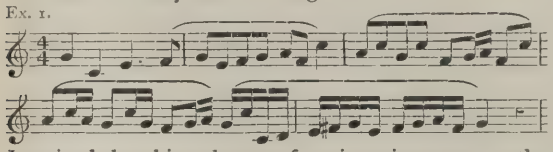
. . . 'These pistons . . . Yes, I see; wonderful! And your Choir enclosed, and a fourth manual. What! sometimes a fifth? Send for a blower, there's a good man! I'm itching to play on it.'

'We have something better than the blowers you mean,' I said, touching a switch. 'There! the wind is now on, and you may play as long and loud as you like. There will be no shortage of wind, no complaints as to hard work, and no threat of a strike for another penny an hour.'

He slid on to the bench, like the old hand that he was, and put down a chord.

'The touch!' he exclaimed. 'Why, I could blow the keys down! A fly perching on a note would produce a cypher! Ah, my boy, I wish you could have an hour on my Arnstadt organ. You would realise that we old organists had to use brawn as well as brain!' He went on playing awhile, experimenting with the various mechanical devices, and murmuring, 'I always had a suspicion that I was born a good many years too soon. Now I know it.' Gradually his improvisation began to take shape, and soon I found myself listening to a complex fugue on a subject that had an oddly familiar ring about it:

Ex. 1.

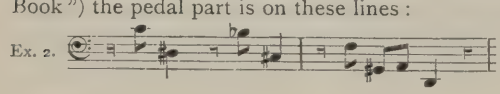


I noticed that his scheme of registration was on the lines of a general crescendo, with an occasional episode for manuals only on the Swell or Choir . . . 'No,' he said, in answer to my question, 'I don't much care for solo stop effects in a fugue. If you regard the form as a series of presentments of a given subject, then soloing is natural. But we of the old brigade considered a fugue to be a musical web of which the subject was merely one strand, and not always the most important. We tried to make the interest cumulative, and soloing a part as a rule destroyed the root idea of the whole, which was that of several companions walking arm-in-arm to a given point, rather than one important individual humbly attended by two or three lackeys. Moreover, a fugue wherein the subject is made to "stick out" all the time is an ostinato rather than a fugue. My Sonatas and Choral Preludes give you ample opportunity for using your solo stops. By the way, the Choral Preludes seem to be making some headway with you English, I notice.'

'Yes,' I replied; 'thanks to Schweitzer, Pirro & Co., we are beginning to understand them, and to see what poetic tone-pictures so many of them are.'

'As to that,' he said, 'there is some danger of your attaching too much importance to what Schweitzer calls "Le langage musical de chorals." I fear one result will be an underlining of effects which I intended merely as a hint. Let me deal fully with one of the many examples. In the Prelude on "Through Adam's Fall" (No. 37 in the "Little Organ Book") the pedal part is on these lines:

Ex. 2.



A commentator thereupon says: "The fall of Adam is represented by this basso ostinato." Of course the figure may be looked at as a piece of tone-painting. But surely the point of the passage lies not more in its falling than in its broken utterance, and in the interval used. Then, too, "the fall" is quite as graphically represented by two other features that seem to have escaped notice. The tenor part is mainly concerned with some variant of its opening figure:

Ex. 3.

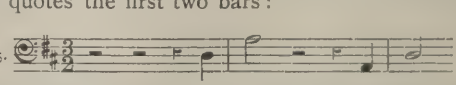
while the alto frequently makes use of this close juxtaposition of the major and minor third:

Ex. 4.

'In only two of its appearances does the major third come first, so you see that this little figure, like the descending scale in the tenor, is as consistent an illustration of the text as is the bass. But, after all, the expression of poignant regret is the real object of the prelude, and obviously a figure in which the minor treads hard on the heels of the major, a tenor part whose progress is a series of tortuous struggles up and down the scale, and a bass that enters, only to plunge heavily down the awkward interval of a seventh (thereby invariably giving rise to some harmonic pungency), are natural means for the purpose. Study the Prelude carefully, and you will see that each voice has its part to play in the scheme: you will never again be content to point out the bass as "a bit of naive tone-painting on old Bach's part." Tone-painting it was, perhaps (though we didn't use the terms of one art to describe another in my day!), but not quite so obvious and childish as you may think. Some of you seem to imagine that I had set out to depict a physical fall on the part of Adam,—as if he had ventured into the tree for a second apple and had come a cropper!

'Besides, descending intervals naturally suggest themselves as fitting for use in music expressive of grief or regret, so I could hardly have written the work on very different lines. As an example of a Prelude in which joy is expressed by a contrary process, look at No. 30 in the same collection. Here you will find the idea of the Resurrection treated. The three parts accompanying the choral all show a general upward tendency, and you will notice that the bass again consists of nothing but a series of leaps. But what a difference in their character! Instead of the vague drop of a most dissonant interval, we have here the leap of a fourth or fifth used fifteen times. Of these, thirteen are perfect intervals, one is an augmented fourth, and one a diminished fifth. The resultant effect is of course vigorous joy. What an inadequate appreciation of this little piece is shown by Schweitzer when he contrasts its bass with that of "Since Adam's fall," and quotes the first two bars:

Ex. 5.



as examples of a rising bass used to express the idea of the Resurrection! When I remind you that of the fifteen entries of this little motive no fewer than six leap down, you will see the futility of hastily deciding as to my intentions. Listen while I play you the Prelude, and you will agree that I am not guilty of a kind of musical pun on the word "rise," but have merely used a very natural musical method of expressing joy, hope, and confidence,' and he forthwith played the well-known strains commencing :

Ex. 6. Allegro.

'A glance at the scheme of the alto and tenor will show how misleading it is to focus the player's attention almost exclusively on the bass. And why describe it as rising, when nearly half of its leaps are downward? I could give you many other instances of exaggerated importance attached to some detail in my work. The moment musicians began to see that I wrote programme music (who doesn't? or didn't? Everybody except some of my colleagues, who wrote little but canonic ingenuities), they at once put their noses to the ground and went sniffing round for examples of "old Bach's naive realism." Almost all the effects I used in the Choral Preludes are, and always have been, the stock-in-trade of composers. What is required to make these works appreciated in England is not so much insistence on their programmatic nature as familiarity with the text of the hymns and their melodies. You organists should study the music rather than blindly follow analytical signposts whose fingers as a rule point only to the more obvious details. Give some information to your recital audiences, too, and always furnish a translation of the title, and, if possible, of a whole verse. For instance, what in the world is the use of playing the prelude on "Wir glauben all'," and announcing it as "The Giant Fugue"? It is more than a fugue, and I had no giant in view when I wrote it. Announce it on your programme thus : "Prelude on the choral, 'Wir glauben all' an einen Gott'" (We all believe in one God), and add a note to the effect that "in this Prelude the idea of constancy and faith is expressed by a vigorous phrase in the bass, repeated from time to time, while the upper parts deal fugally with the first line of the choral melody." Don't you think people would appreciate the so-called "Giant" Fugue very much more if they listened to it with this information at the back of their mind?'

What is your feeling about the numerous transcriptions of your music?' I asked.

'I am no purist in such matters,' he replied. 'Generally speaking it's a poor musical idea that is killed by having its clothes changed. I did my share of arranging, both of my own and other folks' music, so I am not likely to complain of the transcriber. Indeed, I hope he will busy himself still more with my works. Two of the organ fugues, in particular, call out for orchestral arrangement,—the D major and G major alla giga. The F major Toccata has been orchestrated by more than one admirer, but I always feel that several of its features can be properly dealt with only by the organ. Such are the long pedal points at the beginning, and the careering up and down the keyboard over the dominant pedal at the end ; then, too, the striding bass figure is surely a passage for organ pedals rather than for strings or brass. The pedal solos, however, are the real difficulty. If played by the orchestra at the good round pace demanded, you must either confine their performance to strings and wood-wind (in which case the result is lacking in body), or you must have your brass (especially the bass trombone and tuba) lumbering along, beaten by a short neck the whole course, with many of the notes not speaking. No collection of instruments can deliver these solos so satisfactorily as can a big organ. Now the D major fugue, played brillante by strings and wood-wind, with the brass and drums reserved for the crashing chords at the end, would be a popular success, as should be also the Gigue Fugue, which as a matter of fact is not particularly well-suited to the organ. The subject seems to call for strings. The organ can never give the springing rhythm of :

Ex. 7. Vivace.

so well as can strings. Let one of my admirers arrange these two, and disregard the speed-limit. I am sure audiences will thank him, and I shall not complain! The more people realise that I was a composer with a cheerful—even gay—side, the better.'

'Well,' I said, 'posterity is beginning to give you something like your due at last. It served you ill for a long time.'

'Posterity?' . . . he laughed. 'I never gave it a thought. I was too busy considering my present to bother about my future. For only one thing do I feel bitter towards the folk I left behind—their neglect of my widow. They let her feel the pinch of want, and she ended her days living on alms. My Anna Magdalena!' . . . He broke off abruptly, and turning to the keyboard began to play a simple, tender strain : I recognised it as one of the little clavier pieces he wrote for his young wife . . Presently, 'What a smell of burning there is!' he said : 'is it . . .'

I jumped up hurriedly, to find that the cigar had dropped from my fingers, and was making a good impression on the higher slopes of my waistcoat. I looked at my watch. It was just eight minutes since I closed my eyes.

THE ABBEY GLEE CLUB.

The cult of that form of polyphonic vocal music called the Glee is peculiar to this country. The glees composed by our forefathers towards the end of the 18th century and up to about the middle of the 19th century are national musical assets that one may hope will not be 'scrapped' by the evolution of the later 'part-songs' and 'choral songs.' No doubt the fact that a large proportion of the compositions, including many of the finest specimens, cast in this form are written for the adult resources of a cathedral choir, in which the man-alto is the top part, is a serious bar to their general choral use, and it has to be admitted that the chaste and delicate beauty of many glees will not allow of the employment of many voices to each part. Such a gem, for instance, as 'By Celia's arbour' (W. Horsley) can only be perfectly sung by four accomplished solo-singers, who by continued association have became welded into a unity. Do we ever in any other form of concerted music experience the perfect chording that fills the ear with gorgeous resonance and fascinates the attention simply as sound, as when a fine glee party warbles one of the old masters' creations? It has been well said that modern music looks so much better than it sounds, but this glee music may be said truly to sound much better than it looks, for the simple reason that the best composers, either by instinct or craft, knew just where to 'throw' each voice in order to produce the maximum effect with the minimum of effort : that is, they conceived their music in terms of the particular vocal resources for which they wrote.

The word 'Glee' is said (see Stainer and Barrett's 'Dictionary of Musical Terms') to come from the Anglo-Saxon 'Gle,' meaning music or the performance of music. Some writers derive the word from 'gligg,' the Anglo-Saxon term for joy or merriment, or from 'gleek,' which signifies to scoff, sneer, or banter. Whatever the derivation of the word, it is certain that in its modern use it does not necessarily indicate a composition of a gleeful character. Some glees are specifically classed as 'serious.' As a musical form its chief characteristic is its expressiveness, which is often exhibited by changes of movement and style in obedience to the mood of the words, making a miniature suite for voices. All the 'parts' are of importance in turn or even simultaneously, the music never being merely a harmonized top-part tune. This freedom of treatment and movement enabled the glee writers to set poems or poetic prose that could be dealt with scarcely in any other way. Here are the words of two of the finest glees:

FATHER OF HEROES.

Father of heroes! high dweller of the eddying winds, where the dark red thunder marks the troubled clouds; open thou thy stormy halls; let the bard of old be near. We sit at the rock, but there is no voice; no light but the meteor of fire. O! from the rock on the hill, from the top of the windy steep! O! speak, ye ghosts of the dead! O! whither are ye gone to rest? In what cave of the hill shall I find the departed? No feeble voice is on the gale; no answer half-drown'd in the storm! Father of heroes! the people bend before thee; thou turnest the battle in the field of the brave! thy terrors pour the blasts of death! thy tempests are before thy face! But thy dwelling is calm above the clouds; the fields of thy rest are pleasant. OSSIAN.

Set for A.T.T.B.B. by J. W. Callcott (1766-1821).

TO ALL THAT BREATHE.

To all that breathe the air of heav'n
Some boon of strength has Nature giv'n.
When the majestic bull was born,
She fenc'd his brow with wreathèd horn;
She arm'd the courser's foot of air,
And wing'd, with speed, the panting hare;
She gave the lion fangs of terror:
And in the ocean's crystal mirror
Taught th' unnumber'd scaly throng
To trace the liquid path along;
While from the umbrage of the grove
She plum'd the warbling world of Love.
To man she gave the flame refin'd,
The spark of Heav'n, a thinking mind;
And had she no surpassing treasure
For thee, O woman! child of pleasure?
She gave thee beauty, shaft of eyes,
That ev'ry shaft of war outflies;
She gave thee beauty, blush of fire,
That bids the flames of war retire.
Woman, be fair! we must adore thee,
Smile! and a world is weak before thee.
MOORE'S 'ANACREON.'

Set for S.A.T.B.B. by Thomas Attwood (1765-1838).

These reflections were prompted by a recent visit to one of the meetings of the Abbey Glee Club. This Club was formed on January 9, 1841, by a few old choir-boys of Westminster Abbey and their friends, the object being to cultivate the practice of glee singing and glee composition. The first president was Mr. J. L. Hopkins. The non-performing members number about 150, and they are the only subscribing members.

The performing members, who are elected annually, are mostly professional singers attached to the Abbey, St. Paul's Cathedral, or other church choirs. In turn they are appointed 'conductor.' This, however, does not mean conducting with a baton, but by that subtle understanding which enables experienced choirmen to respond readily to a leader.

The index to the Club library enumerates over seven hundred pieces by 224 composers. The following is a list of the composers whose works appear most frequently:

Dr. Arne	7	W. Horsley	35
W. Beale	13	G. W. Martin	8
J. Benet	6	R. L. Pearsall	14
Bishop	40	Henry Smart	10
J. W. Callcott	31	Stafford Smith	7
Dr. B. Cooke	8	Spofforth	10
T. S. Cooke	8	R. J. S. Stevens	14
J. Coward	27	Sullivan	8
Dr. Cummings	13	T. F. Walmisley	7
John Goss	9	Samuel Webbe	31
J. L. Hatton	30

The rules say that the meetings are to be held on the second Tuesday of every month except August and September. At present they are held in the commodious Caxton Hall, Westminster.

The following was the programme on the occasion of my visit:

Kindly refrain from striking matches during the performance of the Glees, &c.
It is not the Custom of the Club to allow encores.

THE ABBEY GLEE CLUB
(Founded 1841).

CAXTON HALL,
CAXTON STREET, VICTORIA STREET, WESTMINSTER, S.W.

President:
The Right Hon. The VISCOUNT ALVERSTONE, G.C.M.G.

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 9, 1915.

The Programme for this evening is under the Direction of MR. WILLIAM FELL.

THE SINGERS.

Sopranos
Master Percy Edgerton	London College for Choristers
Master Eric Piper
Altos
Mr. Walter Coward	Chapel Royal
Mr. George May	St. Paul's Cathearal
Mr. Ernest Taylor	Chapel Royal
Tenors
Mr. George Brierley	St. Paul's Cathedral
Mr. John Collett	St. Paul's Cathedral
Mr. William Fell	Westminster Abbey
Mr. Wilfred Kearton	St. Peter's, Eaton Square
Basses
Mr. Joseph E. Farrington	St. Paul's Cathedral
Mr. Bertram Mills	Westminster Abbey
Mr. George Stubbs	St. Paul's Cathedral

HENRY KING,
Secretary and Librarian,
34, Voltaire Road, Clapham, S.W.

PROGRAMME.

The National Anthem.

'Strike the lyre,' A.T.T.B.	T. Cooke
'Blow light, thou balmy air,' A.T.T.B.	Horsley
'In the merry month of May,' S.A.T.B.	Dr. Cooke
'Father of heroes,' A.T.T.B.B.	Callcott
'When the pearly dews,' A.T.T.B.	Pyne
'To all that breathe,' S.A.T.B.B.	Attwood
'Oh! bold Robin Hood,' A.T.T.T.B.B.	Bishop
''Twas in the dark and dismal hour,' A.T.B.B.	Howe
'The Spring, the pleasant Spring,' S.A.T.B.	Spofforth
'Ave Maria!' S.A.T.B.	Smart
'There is a paradise on earth,' A.T.B.B.	Pearsall
'Bold Turpin,' A.T.T.B.	Bridge
'The long day closes,' A.T.T.B.	Sullivan

The first piece, 'Strike the lyre,' is an old favourite known to many of our choral Societies in its arranged S.A.T.B. form. Its three movements are admirably contrasted; the middle movement especially interests because of its grace and tenderness, and the last movement with its slurred runs—so often sung smudgily by inexperienced choralists—and final imposing bass-run is a fitting climax. Was it not Tom Cooke who said that Sir George Smart was knighted more on the score of his merit than the merit of his score? A smart remark! 'In the merry month,' by Dr. Cooke, is a rattling good piece of music, full of flowing contrapuntal device and melody, and madrigalian in character. It pleased the non-performers greatly. 'Father of heroes' (the words of which are quoted above) has some splendid moments. It is a real classic in its style. Then there came the admirably-written 'To all that breathe,' in which Attwood justified the lessons he had direct from Mozart. It is a descriptive glee calculated to attract any audience open to the charm of pure choral music. Another striking success of the evening was Bishop's 'Bold Robin Hood,' a piece that well exemplified that composer's facility and melodic gift. 'Bold Turpin' is neither a glee nor a part-song, but its humour was in tune with the mood of the audience, which, however, was very quickly changed in response to a fine performance of Sullivan's 'The long day closes,' with its grave and beautiful expression of touching words. So ended what was to me, at least, a refreshing experience. May the Abbey Glee Club long continue to keep alive the tradition of glee-singing! M.

NEW IMPERIAL MARCH: 'PRO PATRIA,' BY J. D. DAVIS. (Op. 58).

This new composition by J. D. Davis is now being passed through the press by Messrs. Novello & Co., and will receive its first performance at the Royal Albert Hall on Sunday afternoon, April 11, by the New Symphony Orchestra, under Mr. Landon Ronald. Being introduced at a time when the compositions of native composers should make a peculiar appeal to our concert audiences, it may be hoped that this dignified work of one of the ablest and, we may add, sanest of our young composers will receive due attention.

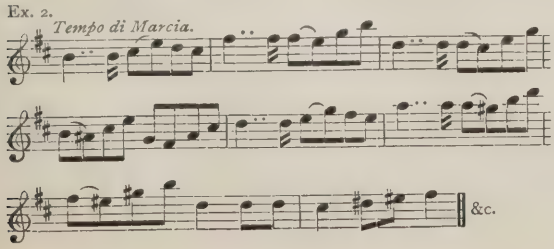
The following is a synopsis of the form of the March. It is laid out on symphonic lines for full orchestra (including an ad libitum organ part). In B minor, the work opens with a figure suggestive of a military call forming the chord of G major over the dominant pedal of B minor:

Ex. 1.

This introductory matter embraces fourteen bars, during which the rhythmic characteristics of the whole work are made evident.

The first subject, in B minor, is then given out by the first violins and oboe:

Ex. 2.



the counter-phrase being in D major. A new figure on the dominant pedal of B minor, under which the four quavers of bar 1 in Ex. 2 provide a basso ostinato, leads to a short development of the four quavers of the first subject, which is then repeated forte by the full orchestra, and leading up to a sonorous climax the first part ends with a Coda in which Ex. 2 is given to the 'celli and bassoons, the higher strings and wind supplying a new theme as a contrapuntal contrast. The Coda finishes with an extension of Ex. 1, ending in B minor.

The middle section is devoted to what is perhaps the most important theme of the whole March, inasmuch as it is a tune:

Ex. 3. Meno mosso (molto espressione).

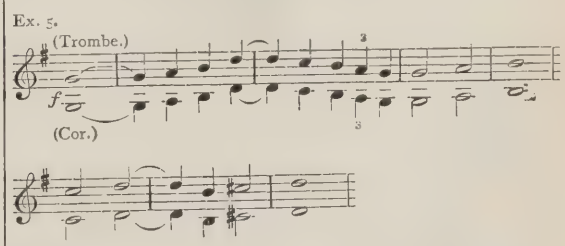
Given only to the strings in G major and A minor, it is in two sections, rounded off by a phrase:

Ex. 4.

which is afterwards somewhat developed. As a counterpart the first two bars of Ex. 3 are developed with considerable harmonic freedom, and include the use of Ex. 1 both in its original form and as thematic material in the strings. Ex. 3 is then repeated by the full orchestra. The composer here has converted the part assigned to the violas in the exposition of Ex. 3 into an imposing theme of the character of a chorale as a counterpoint to Ex. 3:

Ex. 5.



This section is completed by Ex. 4, developed and modulating into the dominant of B minor; after which Ex. 1, given out by the trumpets and trombones in imitation and gradual augmentation, introduces a bridge-passage based upon Ex. 2, leading to the recapitulation of Part I., after which Ex. 3 is repeated in the tonic major key by the whole of the forces plus organ employed. A Coda ensues (based on Ex. 2) in which the first three bars of our National Anthem are introduced, and after a brilliant unison passage for strings and wind the March is brought to an imposing end by means of the quotation of Ex. 1 in imitation, and a long reiterated tonic major chord.

Church and Organ Music.

Lists of music used at Metropolitan Cathedrals and Churches on the fifth Sunday in Lent:

Benedicite.

Martin.	Roberts in F.
Hylton-Stewart in C.	Best.
Frost in D.	W. Inglish Jones.

Te Deum and Benedictus.

King in F.	Barnby in G.
Wesley in F.	Stainer in A.
Walford Davies in F.	Parry in D.
Roberts in F.	Young.
Stanford in C.

Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis.

Farrant in G minor.	Smart in G.
Gibbons in F.	Stainer in A.
Kempton in B flat.	Tallis in the Dorian Mode.
King in F.	Vinning in F.
Noble in B minor.	Walmisley in D.
Parisian Tones.	Wesley in F.

Anthems.

'Zion's ways do languish.' Gounoa.
'Faithful Cross.' John IV. of Portugal.
'Hear, O Thou Shepherd.' Walmisley.
'God is a Spirit.' Sterndale Bennett.
'Remember not, Lord.' Hathaway.
'At Thy feet in adoration.' Dvorák.
'Thou wilt keep him.' Wesley.
'Have mercy upon me, O God.' Allegri.
'By Thy glorious Death and Passion.' Dvorák.
'Hear, O Lord.' Goss.
'O come near to the Cross.' Gounod.
'O cast thy burden.' Thorne.
'Let my complaint.' Boyce.
'Vexilla regis.' Gregorian melody, harmonized by Gounod.
'All ye who weep.' Gounod.
'Thou wilt keep him.' Lee Williams.
'Blessed Jesu.' Dvorák.
'Super Flumina.' Palestrina.
'Bread of the world.' Walford Davies.
'Have mercy upon me.' Pelham Humphreys.
'Turn Thee unto me.' Boyce.
'In the hour of persecution.' Graun's 'Passion.'
'There was darkness.' Gounod.
'Beside her Son's Cross.' Gounod's 'Redemption.'
'O Thou, Whose head was wounded.' Bach.
'Tristes est Anima.' Orlando di Lasso.
'Ave Verum.' Gounod.

Holy Communion.

'Æterna Christi.' Palestrina.
'Missa Brevis.' Palestrina.
'Assumpta est Maria.' Palestrina.
Merbecke.
Selby in F.
Tallis in the Dorian Mode.

Larger Works.

'The Passion' (St. Matthew). Bach.
(As Anthem, Temple Church, Sunday, March 21.)
'Gethsemane.' Lee Williams.

THE GREGORIAN ASSOCIATION.

The forty-fifth annual meeting of the Association was held at St. Paul's Chapter House on March 1. In the unavoidable absence of the new president, the Duke of Argyll, the chair was taken by Mr. E. W. Longmore, who was supported by Mr. Francis Burgess (musical director), the Rev. Roscow Shedden (precentor of All Saints', Margaret Street), the Rev. James Baden Powell, Mr. E. T. Cook (organist of Southwark Cathedral), Mr. Sydney Scott (organist of St. Stephen's, Lewisham), Mr. Frank Eames (organist of St. Mary Magdalene's, Paddington), and a large number of members and friends. In moving the adoption of the annual report, the chairman briefly drew attention to the progress made by the movement during the past twelve months. The committee had given a great deal of attention to the question of improving the organization of the Association. The outbreak of the War, however, had rendered it inadvisable to proceed further in the matter during the year just passed. An important contribution to the literature of Plainsong had been published in the shape of their musical director's lectures, delivered at the Royal College of Organists, and issued by Messrs. Novello & Co. He was glad to say that those lectures in their printed form had had a very wide circulation. Another event which was extremely gratifying to the friends of the movement was the founding of a professorship of Plainchant at Trinity College, London. This was, he believed, the first time that an English music school of any standing had formally recognized Plainchant as an essential part of the complete training of a church organist. Although the Gregorian Association could not claim any initiative in this matter, they were very gratified that the authorities of the College had appointed Mr. Burgess to the newly-created professorship.

The question of holding the anniversary service at St. Paul's this year was fully discussed by the members present, and it was decided to proceed with the arrangements as usual, the date being provisionally fixed for June 17.

EDINBURGH SOCIETY OF ORGANISTS: BY A CORRESPONDENT.

A lecture-recital was given before the above Society in St. George's United Free Church, Edinburgh, on March 8, by Mr. Alfred Hollins, vice-president, his subject being 'Improvisation,' in which he is an acknowledged expert.

The following are a series of notes taken by an auditor, which, though sketchy, will give as it were a photographic snapshot of the lecture.

Improvisation furnishes themes for composition; do not despise the inspiration of the keyboard. E. J. Hopkins's well-known Andante 'Placidamente' in A was originally improvised on the organ in Westminster Abbey. Bach's Chorale Preludes are but the written form of the great master's improvisations, and such improvisations are still continued by German organists. Without change of tone-colour they shine by their counterpoint. We are rather surfeited by the profusion of choral preludes now being written. Karg-Elert's 'O Gott du frommer Gott' is however very beautiful. Light music is admissible and possible on concert organs. Church music for the Church, concert music for the concert-room. Certain classes of melodies and passages suit certain stops, e.g., flute passages must not be played on a tuba! The musician with a soul can find comfort and solace in extempore outpourings on his instrument in the privacy of his studio. The gift of improvisation cannot be imparted by teaching, only the technique thereof in some sort. The requisites are a fine ear, a sense of absolute pitch, mental temperament, melody, rhythm, form. A good improvisation should sound as if it had been written. The possession of a splendid ear alone has been known to enable an amateur, innocent of harmony and counterpoint, to improvise with natural beauty and effect.

The current number of the Cathedral Quarterly announces that after a career of moderate prosperity extending over two years, it has now decided to 'broaden its basis. Hitherto it has dealt almost exclusively with cathedral matters. In future, however, a part of its work will be to survey the whole question of music in its relation to religious worship. An editorial committee has been formed, consisting of three cathedral representatives and three others, and the revised title will be The Cathedral Quarterly and Church Music Review. The members of the committee are: Dr. H. Walford Davies, the Rev. H. Dams, the Rev. Dr. W. H. Frere, Mr. Francis Burgess, the Rev. B. Dennis Jones, and Mr. Sydney H. Nicholson. The first number issued under the new régime will appear in Easter week.

This Supplement is part also of the April issue of THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW, and can be obtained with the REVIEW, price 1½*d.*

The Competition Festival Record

No. 81.

It will be seen from the reports in our present issue that the competition movement is by no means killed, although it must be admitted that it is maimed for a time. It is evident that individual competitors still find it attractive to have their progress tested and compared, and this is especially the case with the young. All through this trying time we have pleaded for the continuance of the educational competitions for juniors. We learn with regret that it has been decided to give up the West Sussex (Chichester) this year. Blackpool is seriously contemplating the holding of its Festival on October 11 to 16. Hastings means to carry out the scheme announced for May 10 to 12. The Irish Festivals at Belfast, Coleraine, and Sligo are to go on. Londonderry held its competition in March.

COMING COMPETITIONS.

Competitions to be held in 1915 not hitherto announced are as follows:

Alberta Festival (Edmonton), Canada, May 25, 26, 27.

Stocksbridge, July 9, 10; Secretary, Mr. A. E. Drabble, Holly Bush, Bolsterstone, near Sheffield.

LONDONDERRY.—March, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6.

The entries here constituted a record for this centre. The proceeds, after the payment of expenses, are to be handed to War funds, and it is hoped that a substantial sum will be thus contributed. Dr. Sinclair adjudicated, and during his visit gave an organ recital on the new organ, by Hill, erected in the Guildhall. His performance was much appreciated. One of the most welcome features of the Festival was the playing of a Ladies' string orchestra from Belfast, conducted by Miss Burnett.

CHOIR BOYS' SOLO.

Tests: (a) 'My heart ever faithful' (J. S. Bach).
(b) 'The Arethusa' (Shield).
Jack Evans.

BOYS' SOLO.

Test: 'The Midshipmite' (Stephen Adams).
Walter Gailey.

GIRLS' SOLO.

Test: 'Where the Bee sucks' (Arne).
Laurie R. Boal.

SOPRANO.

Tests: (a) 'Oh, had I Jubal's lyre' (Handel).
(b) 'Down in the Forest' (Landon Ronald).
Miss E. Payne.

MEZZO-SOPRANO.

Tests: (a) 'Knowest thou that dear land' (Ambroise Thomas).
(b) 'Wake up, my Nestling' (Ed. German).
Miss H. Thompson.

CONTRALTO.

Tests: (a) 'Irish Lullaby' (Hamilton Harty).
(b) 'The Swimmer' (Elgar).
Miss Doran.

TENOR.

Tests: (a) Recit. 'Lo, here my love'
Aria. 'Love in her eyes sits playing' (Handel).
(b) 'My love's an arbutus' (Stanford).
2nd. Mr. G. Braid and Mr. J. Burke.

BARITONE.

Tests: (a) 'The Outlaw's song' (Eric Coates).
(b) 'Drake's Drum' (Stanford).
Mr. J. Donnellan.

BASS.

Tests: (a) 'The lover's pledge' (Strauss).
(b) 'Eldorado' (Walthew).
Mr. A. E. H. Gillespie.

PIANOFORTE (Senior).

Tests: (a) Sonata No. 2, G minor (Op. 22), 1st movement (Schumann).
(b) 'Si oiseau j'etais' (Adolphe Henselt).
(c) Sight-test.
Mr. Jack M'Keown.

VIOLIN (Senior).

Tests: (a) Adagio from Concerto No. 11, in G (Spohr).
(b) Romance et Bolero (Op. 50, in A) (Charles Dancla).
(c) Sight-test.
Miss Keem M'Endoo.

VIOLONCELLO.

Tests: (a) Allegro Appassionato (Op. 43) (Saint-Saëns).
(b) Tarantelle (Op. 23) (W. H. Squire).
(c) Sight-test.
Miss Angela Loughrey.

PIANOFORTE, VIOLIN AND 'CELLO.

Test: Trio No. 2 (Allegro Moderato, p. 91 to end) (Schubert).
Ballycastle Instrumental Trio.

ORCHESTRA (String).

Tests: (a) Serenade in G, for strings (Mozart).
(b) Own selection.
Ladies' String Orchestra, Belfast.

JUVENILE CHOIRS.

Tests: (a) 'Lullaby' (J. L. Roeckel).
(b) 'The ride of the witch' (Charles Wood).
(c) Sight-test.
Mrs. Whale's Juvenile Choir, Belfast.

NATIONAL SCHOOL CHOIRS (Large).

Tests: (a) 'Song of the Japanese dwarf tree' (Granville Bantock).
(b) 'Drake's Drum' (Coleridge-Taylor).
(c) Sight-test.
Ebrington No. 1 Choir (Mr. Boyd).

NATIONAL SCHOOL CHOIRS (Small).

Tests: (a) 'Mother Tabbyskins' (W. Elliott).
(b) 'The carrion crow' (F. Muspratt).
(c) Sight-test.
Myroe National School (Miss Isobel Whyte).

LADIES' CHOIRS.

Tests: (a) 'There is a garden in her face' (John Ireland).
(b) 'The call of the morning' (A. J. Silver).
(c) Sight-test.
Mrs. Whale's Ladies' Choir.

Male Choirs.

Tests: (a) 'The peaceful lake' (Schumann).
(b) 'Joy to the victors' (Arthur Sullivan).
(c) Sight-test.
Derry Glee and Madrigal Society.

Mixed-Voice Choirs (Large).

Tests: (a) 'Dead in the Sierras' (Coleridge-Taylor).
(b) 'When summer's merry days come in' (E. T. Davies).
(c) Sight-test.
The Maiden City Choir, Derry.

Mixed-Voice Choirs (Small).

Tests: (a) 'The fortune-teller's song' (Eaton Faning).
(b) 'Oh, my love's like a red, red rose' (C. M. Garrett).
(c) Sight-test.
The Omagh Mixed-Voice Choir (Mr. S. P. B. Smith).

Ladies' Choirs.

Tests: (a) 'Weep on the rocks' (Brahms).
(b) 'Now is the month of Maying' (Alfred Silver).
(c) Sight-test.
The Maiden City Ladies' Choir (Mr. S. P. B. Smith).

Male Choirs.

Tests: (a) 'The linden blossom' (W. von Moellendorff).
(b) 'The hag' (S. E. Lovatt).
(c) Sight-test.
The Maiden City Male Choir (Mr. S. P. B. Smith).

Church Choirs (A).

Tests: (a) Anthem, 'Cast me not away' (C. L. Williams).
(b) Hymn, 'The saints of God' (Sir J. Stainer).
Ballycastle Church Choir.

SOUTH AND WEST LONDON MUSICAL FESTIVAL.—March 6 to 13.

This Festival was courageously carried through and its success was marked. The adjudicators were Mr. H. R. Bird, Mr. E. T. Cook, Mr. T. J. Crawford, Mr. Harry Farjeon, Mr. Allen Gill, Mr. Alfred Gibson, Mr. Charles Macpherson, Dr. F. G. Shinn, and Dr. Warriner. Some of the chief results were as follows:

Girls' Solo.

Test: 'Bed-time' (Percy Bowie).
1st. Guilleret Gwenllian.

Under 16.

Test: 'May dew' (Sterndale Bennett).
1st. Gladys James.

Boys' Solo.

Test: 'My heart ever faithful.'
1st. Divided between Cecil Merritt and Bertram Siems.

Pianoforte (14 and 15).

Tests: (a) 'Puck' (E. L. Bainton).
(b) Three-part invention in E minor (Bach).
1st. Irene Hasler Browne.

Pianoforte (16 and 17).

Test: 'Rondeau à la Polonaise' (Sterndale Bennett).
1st. Sybil Bagnall.

Pianoforte (Seniors).

Tests: (a) 'Dream visions' (Schumann).
(b) 'Prelude in G minor' (Rachmaninov).
1st. Mary C. Stevens.

Pianoforte (13 years).

Tests: (a) Presto (last Movement from Sonata No. 13, in F) (Haydn).
(b) Mazurka in A minor (Chopin).
1st. Audrey Hurst.

Violin (over 13, under 15).

Test: 'Sarabande and Allegretto' (Corelli-Kreisler).
William Tookey.

Violin (Senior).

Tests: (a) 'Chanson d'Amour' (Theodore Holland).
(b) 'Mazurka' (Drdla).
Miss Doris Ashton Ball.

Pianoforte and Violin Duet.

Test: 'Sonata in A minor' (First Movement) (Schumann).
Chilton Griffin and Jean Butt.

School Orchestras.

Test: 'Norwegian Suite' (Hubert Bath).
Brandlehow Road School Orchestra (Mr. Thoday).

String Orchestras.

Test: Ballet Suite, 'Idomeneo' (Mozart).
Balham School of Music Orchestra (Signor Coviello).

Soprano.

Test: 'Spring had come' ('Hiawatha') (Coleridge-Taylor).
Miss Cecil Rough.

Mezzo-Soprano.

Test: 'The unforeseen' (Cyril Scott).
Miss Kathleen Stone Wigg.

Contralto.

Test: 'Oh, soft was the song' (Elgar).
Miss Vera Colls.

Tenor.

Test: 'I made thee mine' (Ernest Austin).
Mr. William Foakes Brown.

Baritone.

Test: 'Arm, arm, ye brave' ('Judas Maccabæus') (Handel).
Mr. Arnold Stoker.

Bass.

Test: 'The song of Hybrias the Cretan' (J. W. Elliott).
Mr. John S. Emms.

Elementary School Choirs (Girls).

Tests: (a) Two-part song, 'Robin, sweet robin' (Granville Bantock).
(b) Two-part song, 'Twelve by the Clock' (Charles H. Lloyd).
(c) Ear-test and unison sight-test.
Merton Road L.C.C. School, Wandsworth (Miss A. Forrest).

Elementary School Choirs (Boys).

Tests: (a) Two-part song, 'Song of the Dunes' (Charles H. Lloyd).
(b) Two-part song, 'The song of the gale' (Myles B. Foster).
(c) Ear-test and unison sight-test.
Kilmorie Road L.C.C. School, Forest Hill (Mr. O. Roberts).

Choirs from Girls' Clubs.

Tests: (a) Two-part song, 'Song of the Fairies' (J. P. Attwater).
(b) Chorus for S.S.A., 'In a garden' (S. P. Waddington).
Marylebone Social Girls' Club (Miss Reed).

Choirs of Equal Voices.

Tests: (a) Two-part song, 'Oh, Sweet Content' (C. V. Stanford).
(b) Two-part song, 'Should he upbraid' (A. Madeley Richardson).
The Rothschild's Senior Girls' Singing Class (Mr. Thompson).

Ladies' Choirs.

Tests: (a) Three-part song, 'From the green heart of the waters' (Coleridge-Taylor).
(b) Four-part chorus, 'The Lord is my Shepherd' (Schubert).
Mrs. Mary Layton's Choir.

Church Choirs (Men and Boys).

Tests: (a) Anthem, 'The Lord is loving unto every man' (George M. Garrett).
(b) Hymn, 'The Lord of Hosts our King shall be' tune 'Bishopgarth' (Arthur Sullivan).
St. Paul's Church, Wimbledon (Mr. G. H. Dean).

South of the Thames Choral Competition.

Tests: (a) 'As torrents in summer' (Elgar).
(b) 'The three Knights' (Edward German).
*Clapham High Street Choir (Mr. Wesley Hammet).
*Brixton Musical Society (Mr. Frederick Williams).
* 1st divided.

The Musicians' Company Competition for Church Choirs.

Tests: (a) Anthem, 'O Lord my God' (Wesley).
(b) 'Then round about the starry Throne' (Handel).
Vineyard Congregational Church, Richmond (Mrs. Lyne).

Open Class.

(The Daily Telegraph Choral Championship.)

Tests: (a) Madrigal, 'Ye that do live in pleasures plenty' (John Wilbye).
(b) Part-song 'The Lee Shore' (Coleridge-Taylor).
Willesden District Choir (Mr. S. W. Chuckerbutty).

The Sir Henry Kimber Competition for Choral Societies.

Tests: (a) Madrigal 'O that the learned poets' (Orlando Gibbons).
(b) Part-song, 'Who is Sylvia?' (Edward German).
Essendine Choir, Paddington (Mr. Wm. Kendall).

STRATFORD AND EAST LONDON MUSICAL FESTIVAL.—March 13 to 20.

The determination to hold this Competition met with a remarkably successful response, a fact that should hearten other centres in the country. Stratford has always specialised in individual testing, especially in junior pianoforte playing, and as this section of the community is not affected by the War things have kept their normal course. The entries numbered 1,015. The adjudicators were Mr. James Bates, Mr. Oscar Beringer, Mr. Frederick Corder, Mr. Ernest Fowles, Mr. Allen Gill, Mr. Edward Iles, Mr. Joseph Ivimey, Mr. George Oakey, Mr. Daniel Price, and Dr. H. W. Richards.

Some of the results were as follows:

Pianoforte (12 years).

Tests: 'L'harmonie des anges' (Burgmüller, Op. 100).
'Fairy dance,' No. 4 of Lyric Pieces (Grieg).
Samuel R. H. Drake.

Pianoforte (Gold Medal class).

Test: 'Deuxième Ballade' in F (Chopin, Op. 38).
Miss Hilda Klein.

Soprano.

Test: 'A Spring morning' (H. Lane Wilson).
Miss Dorothy Riche.

Mezzo-Soprano.

Test: 'Softly awakes my heart' (C. Saint-Saëns).
Miss Muriel Macgregor.

Tenor.

Test: 'Love me, if I live' (Sir F. H. Cowen).
Mr. Anthony Bennett.

Baritone.

Test: 'The pipes of Pan' (Sir Edward Elgar).
Mr. Cyril C. J. Whipps.

Baritone or Bass (Open).

Test: 'Arm, arm, ye brave' (Handel).
Mr. Harry Gibson.

Bass.

Test: Onaway, awake, beloved' (Sir F. H. Cowen).
Mr. Arthur Belling.

Elementary School Choirs (Boys).

Test: 'Sing we and chaunt it' (C. E. Miller).
Highlands School, Ilford (Mr. G. W. Baker).

Men's Choirs (Open).

Tests: 'Yea, cast me from heights of the mountains' (Elgar).
'King's messenger' (Granville Bantock).
Mr. G. Day-Winter's Men's Choir.

Choral Societies (Daily Chronicle Challenge Shield).

Test: 'A Federal song' (Edgar L. Bainton).
Mansfield House Choral Society (Mr. C. Ernest Coward).

Mixed-Voice Choirs.

(The Daily Telegraph Challenge Shield).

Tests: 'The Vesper Bell' (Montague F. Phillips).
'England, my England' (Ernest A. Dick).
Mr. G. Day-Winter's Choir.

String Orchestras.

Test: 'Folk-Tune and Fiddle Dance' (Percy E. Fletcher).
Metropolitan Academy of Music Orchestra (Mr. Frederick Simmons).

Ladies' Choirs.

Tests: 'Encinctured with a twine of leaves' (Coleridge-Taylor).
'Storm song' (Cyril Jenkins).
Madame Grace Day-Winter's Choir.

School Choirs (Girls).

Uphall School, Ilford.

School Choirs (Girls) (Challenge).

Balaam Street, Plaistow.

School Choirs (Boys) (Challenge).

Tests: 'Winds gently whisper' (J. Whittaker).
Three-part (own-choice).
Grange Road School, Plaistow.

Girls' Club Choirs.

Tests: 'Soldier, rest' (James Thomson).
Two-part (own-choice).
Hoxton Working Girls' Club.

Choirs of Equal Voices (Shield).

Forest Gate Junior Choir.
Metropolitan Academy of Music.

Church Choirs (Mixed Voices).

Tests: 'The Lord hear thee' (John Blow).
A Hymn for use in War-time.
Plashet Park Congregational Church, East Ham.

Soprano (Gold Medal).

Test: 'The Lord is my light' (Frances Allitsen).
Miss Marjorie Bowen.

Contralto.

Test: 'Sink, red sun' (Teresa del Riego).
Miss Edith Bartlett.

Elementary School Choirs (Girls) (Challenge Class).

Tests: 'Serenade' (B. Luard-Selby).
Three-part (own-choice).
Davies Lane Girls' School, Leytonstone.

SWALEDALE TOURNAMENT.—March 17, 18.

This event was held as usual, this time at Northallerton, Yorkshire. Although the choral entries were not numerous, there was considerable activity in other sections. In the course of his remarks Dr. Walford Davies, the adjudicator, said that some people objected to the holding of these Festivals during the War. To that objection these performances were an answer. Of course, he added, none of them wanted to dance and make merry at this time, but singularly enough two works named, perhaps of all others, reflected the mood which was upon Europe at this moment. It was marvellous how music epitomised our deepest feelings. It was the musician's privilege to put into language which was universal sorrows and joys which were universal.

That he was not in a downcast mood was evident from his illustrating one of his criticisms by quoting (or did he make it himself?) the following limerick :

There was a young lady of Rio,
Who tried to play Hummel's Grand Trio ;
Her technique was scanty,
So she played it andante,
Instead of allegro con brio.'

The chief results were as follows :

Pianoforte Playing.

(For competitors under 16 years of age.)

1st. Violet Castell.
2nd. Louie Todd.

Violin Playing.

(For competitors under 16 years of age.)

1st and certificate for sight-reading. E. Grainger.

Class Sight-Singing.

Northallerton.

Two-Part Song.

(For Girls under 17 years of age).

1st. { Northallerton.
{ Miss Yeoman's Class.

Solo for Boys.

Test : 'Come, happy Spring' (Giordani).
1st. W. Johnson.

Two-Part Song.

(For Boys under 16.)

Test : 'A bird song' (Roland Rogers).
Northallerton Church of England School.

Unison Song.

Tests : 'The Arethusa' and Round.
1st. Northallerton.
2nd. Brompton No. II.

Pianoforte Playing (Adults).

Tests : Prelude in G minor (Bach).
Prelude in C sharp minor (Rachmaninov).
Miss G. J. Harkness, Leeming.

Trio for Pianoforte, Violin, and Violoncello.

Test : No. 1, Op. 70 (Beethoven).
'The Rebecks' (Miss Walker, Northallerton ; Miss Winnie Connell, Danby Wiske ; and Mr. Cowper, Northallerton).

String Quartet.

Test : No. 11, in D minor (Schubert).
'The Rebecks' (Miss Winnie Connell, Mr. Steedman, Miss Kerr Smith, and Mr. Cowper).

Violin and Pianoforte Sonata.

Test : Sonata in F major, Op. 8 (Grieg).
Miss M. Tweedy and Miss Connell.

Anthem, Hymn, and Chanting.

(For village church or chapel choirs which have never before competed, or gained a first-prize.)
Yafforth Church Choir.

Anthem, Hymn, and Chanting.

(For village church or chapel choirs.)
Aldborough (near Boroughbridge) Parish Church Choir.

Bass Solo.

Test : 'The Old Superb' (Sir Charles Stanford).
Mr. G. S. Townsend.

Mixed Choirs.

Test : Russian National Anthem.
Zion Congregational Church Choir, Northallerton.

Tenor Solo.

Test : 'Where'er you walk' (Handel).
1st. Mr. T. Layt, Ingleby Greenhow.

Composition, Song.

Mr. Charles Brown, Brompton.

Choral or Glee Clubs.

(In villages with a population of under 1,500.)
Test : 'The March of the Cameron Men.'
Catterick, who were also awarded the Challenge Shield for sight-reading.

LONDON GIRLS' CLUB UNION.—March 20.

The 28th annual Singing Competition was held at the City of London Schools.

Advanced Division.

Tests : (a) 'Flow down, cold rivulet' (B. Luard-Selby).
(b) 'Song of the Shoemakers' (Von Holst).

	Marks. (a)	(b)	Sight.	Total.
St. Mary's (Mr. George Grace) ...	70	72	90 =	232
Hoxton (Miss R. A. Dixon)... ...	66	77	42 =	185
Eton Mission (Mr. Ernest Hodgson)	72	68	25 =	165
Soho (Mr. George Grace)	64	68	25 =	157
Walworth (Miss Ryan)	61	67	25 =	153
Passmore Edwards (Mr. Wm. Holmes)	62	67	20 =	149

Intermediate Division.

Test : 'Piper's Song,' (Rutland Boughton).

	Marks.	Sight.	Total.
St. Ursula (Mr. W. Holmes)	81	98 =	179
Onward (Mr. Filmer Rook)	75	95 =	170
West Central (Mr. Harvey Grace) ...	70	97 =	167
Upper Chelsea (Miss Forbes)	68	98 =	166
Rugby (Miss Marion Dykes Spicer) ...	74	90 =	164
St. Alphege (Miss Gwynedd Bellamy) ...	64	96 =	160
Sutton (Mrs. Crosland)	66	25 =	91

The adjudicators were Mr. Dan Price (prepared songs), and Mr. Stanley Stubbs (sight-singing). The combined choirs in the Advanced division sang the two test-pieces under Mr. Stanley Stubbs.

FEDERATION OF WORKING GIRLS' CLUBS (LONDON).—March 20,

This Competition was held in the Holborn Town Hall. The following were the results :

Advanced Class (Singing and Sight-Reading).

Tests : Folk-song, 'Green Broom' (Sharp's Folk-Songs, Novello's Series).
Three-part, 'Rest thee on this mossy pillow.' (Henry Smart).

		(a.)	(b)	Total.
	St. John's, Hoxton	76	68 =	144
	Welcome, E.C.	80	80 =	160
	Whitefield's, W.C.	83	79 =	162
1st.	St. Philip's, Bethnal Green...	84	84 =	168
3rd.	Barnsbury	84	79 =	163
	St. Andrew's, Chelsea ...	67	61 =	128
	St. Gabriel's, Pimlico ...	80	68 =	148
	Sunbeam, Bermondsey ...	82	76 =	158
2nd.	Hesper, Battersea	88	78 =	166
	Victoria, Walthamstow ...	77	60 =	137
	St. Brigid's, Hammersmith	85	75 =	160

The Countess of Portsmouth was in the chair, and the adjudicators were Dr. McNaught (prepared songs) and Miss Shepard (sight-reading).

The 20th Annual Eisteddfod was held on February 25 at Widnes, and attracted a large number of competitors. The Highfield Male Choir, Runcorn (Mr. Weedall) won the chief choral prize. The prize for mixed voices went to the Wesley Choir, Widnes. The standard of solo-singing was exceptionally high. Dr. Caradog Roberts adjudicated.

The attention of those interested in the higher education of choristers and ex-choristers may well be directed to the election for the Goss Exhibition, tenable at the Royal Academy of Music for three years from next Michaelmas term. The election is vested in the council of the Royal College of Organists, and the examination will take place at the College on May 7 and 8 next. Application should be made for particulars as to date of entry, &c., to the hon. secretary, the Royal College of Organists, Kensington Gore, London, S.W.

The fifth annual report of the Organists' Benevolent League reveals satisfactory progress. The contributions during the year have shown no falling off, in spite of the War, and the League has so far been able to make a grant in every case brought to its notice. In view of the probability of increased calls on the funds, however, it is hoped that the profession will strengthen their efforts on its behalf. Communications should be addressed to Mr. Thomas Shindler, at the Royal College of Organists, Kensington Gore, S.W.

Bach's 'St. Matthew' Passion was sung on Wednesday evenings during Lent, at St. James's Church, Piccadilly, under the direction of Mr. Sydney W. Toms, who has also given a series of Bach organ recitals on Saturdays that have been well attended.

Bach's 'St. John' Passion was sung at Glasgow Cathedral on March 30. Mr. J. Michael Diack conducted, and Mr. Herbert Walton was at the organ.

Stainer's 'The Crucifixion' was sung by an augmented choir at Regent Presbyterian Church on March 9, with Mr. H. Stanley Johnson at the organ, and Mr. Allan Brown as conductor.

Haydn's 'The Creation' was sung at the Parish Church, Tamworth, on March 3. Mr. W. Darling played the organ, and Mr. R. Shackleton conducted.

At Skinner Street Congregational Schoolroom, Poole, a 'Mendelssohn evening' was held on March 16, when an address on the composer's life was followed by a programme drawn from his works.

ORGAN RECITALS.

Mr. A. E. Chapman, Brandon Parish Church—Fantasia on the National Anthems of the Allies, Pearce.
Mr. G. Bernard Gilbert, Town Hall, Stratford—Sonata No. 4, Mendelssohn.
Mr. W. E. Fairclough, Toronto University—Fantasia and Toccata, Stanford.
Mr. W. H. Hewlett, Toronto University—Choral Improvisation on 'In dulci Jubilo,' Karg-Elert.
Mr. C. E. Blyton Dobson, Central Mission, Nottingham (four recitals)—Sonata in G minor, Hiles.
Mr. Frederick Huxtable, St. Matthew's, Morningside—Melody, Parry.
Mr. F. J. Buckle, St. Paul's, Herne Hill—Fantasy in D, Harvey Grace.
Dr. Francis Hemington, the Church of Epiphany, Chicago—Pièce Héroïque, César Franck.
Mr. Ernest O'Dell, St. John's Church, Smith's Falls, U.S.A.—Allegro Maestoso, John E. West.
Mr. Harvey Grace, St. Mary Magdalene's, Munster Square—Choral No. 3, César Franck.
Dr. T. D. Edwards, Ebenezer Chapel, Porth—Funeral March and Hymn of Seraphs, Guilmant.
Mr. G. G. Beale, All Saints', Llandaff (two recitals)—Lament, Harvey Grace.
Mr. Allan Brown, Regent Square Presbyterian Church—Fantasia in E minor, Silas; at Upper Tooting Wesleyan Church—Finale, Sonata in C minor, Reubke.
Mr. J. A. Longfield, St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Victoria, B.C.—Offertoire, Grison.
Mr. J. A. Meale, Wesleyan Central Hall, Westminster (five recitals)—Allegro Pomposo, John E. West; at Wesleyan Methodist Church, Ilford—Suite Gothique, Boellmann; at De Montfort Hall, Leicester—Imperial March, Elgar.
Mr. Herbert Hodge, St. Michael, Cornhill—Fugue in B minor, Bach; at St. Stephen's, Walbrook—Fantasia in F minor, Mozart.
Mr. George Leake, St. Mark's, Southampton—Pastoral in A, Joseph Jongen.
Dr. Caradog Roberts, Carmel Church, Penrhiwceiber—Funeral March and Hymn of Seraphs, Guilmant.
Mr. Herbert Walton, Chapel Street Congregational Church, Southport—Rondo Capriccio, Lemare; at Steven Memorial Church, Bellahouston—Introduction and Allegro, Wolstenholme; at St. John's, Blackpool—Fugue in G minor, Bach.
Mr. H. C. Tonking, Royal Albert Hall—Jubilant March in D, Stainer.

APPOINTMENTS.

Mr. Edward J. Neck, organist and choirmaster, St. John's Church, Goose Green, East Dulwich.
Mr. Leonard D. Ovens, organist and choirmaster, All Saints', Boreham Wood, Herts.
Mr. W. Walker, organist, St. Clement's Church, Bristol.

Reviews.

PIANOFORTE MUSIC.

Etudes. By H. Bertini. (Edition Novello, No. 14.) Edited by Franklin Taylor.
Etudes. By Charles Czerny. (Edition Novello, No. 17.) Edited by Franklin Taylor.

[Novello & Co., Ltd.]

Two new numbers of the Edition Novello are now ready. No. 14 consists of thirty-one selected studies from Henry Bertini's three separate works known as Opp. 100, 29, and 32. Pianoforte teachers will undoubtedly warmly welcome this compilation of the best and most valuable teaching material from the three different well-known sets. Eleven studies are selected from Op. 100, nine from Op. 29, and eleven from Op. 32. The three works are progressive in degree of difficulty, and being of more musical interest than many so-called studies, which are often little else than mere technical exercises, they become not only interesting to teach but also help to feed the medium pupil intellectually as well as digitally. The work is published at 3*s.* net, or in separate numbers at 1*s.* each.

No. 17 contains nineteen selected studies from Czerny's Op. 636, known as 'Preparatory Studies to his School of Velocity' (German titles are taboo nowadays). These much used studies are highly suitable for candidates preparing for the Associated Board Local Centre Intermediate Examinations. They are put together in one volume, price 1*s.* 6*d.* net. The editing, fingering, and printing of these new editions could not possibly be bettered.

Tipperary. Six Variations for Pianoforte ('Founded on the Immortal Song'). By A. M. Goodhart.

[B. Feldman & Co.]

Mr. Arthur Murray Goodhart, the popular house-master of Eton College, is to be congratulated on his Six Variations for Pianoforte founded on the song of 'Tipperary.' The first variation is Allegro Giocoso alla Hornpipe, in which the melody is well brought out by the left-hand in the bass; while Variation No. 2 is in $\frac{3}{4}$ rhythm, Tempo di Valse. Of the others, Variation No. 6 is a delightful Toccatina, displaying considerable ingenuity. The whole (dedicated to the memory of Lieut. Rodolph Algernon Persse, of the Rifle Brigade, a gallant young Irishman of Cregclare, Ardrahan, Co. Galway, who was killed in action on New Year's Day, 1915) is a scholarly piece of writing, yet presenting no great difficulties.

Hymns and Tunes for Sunday School Anniversary Services. Set IV.

O most merciful. By Ernest Bullock. (Novello's Short Anthems, No. 225.)

And in that day. By F. R. Rickman. (Novello's Octavo Anthems, No. 1055.)

Benedicite, omnia Opera. By various composers. (Novello's Parish Choir Book, No. 931.)

[Novello & Co., Ltd.]

Ten hymns are contained in the fourth set for use at Sunday School Anniversaries, the music being by Stainer, E. J. Troup, H. Elliot Button, Lady Euan-Smith, Alberto Randegger, and Horatio Parker. The music is printed in both notations, and the words are to be had separately.

Mr. Bullock's setting of Weber's well-known words is a devotional and earnest little work, with a fine climax. Mr. Rickman's anthem was awarded the prize offered by the Nonconformist Choir Union in 1914. It is effective and well written, and of a moderate degree of difficulty. Somewhat unusually, it begins in C minor and ends in B♭, though there is no unsatisfactory effect, as the final key is established by a fugato of three pages.

Eight settings of the 'Benedicite, omnia Opera' are here provided, the chants used being by C. A. Wickes, Barnby, Turle, Foster, and Montem Smith.

Fugue in F major (Bach's Organ Works, edited by Bridge and Higgs. No. 21.)

[Novello & Co., Ltd.]

The Fugue to which the great Toccata in F serves as prelude is one of the Fellowship tests at the July Royal College of Organists' Examinations. For the convenience of candidates it is here reprinted from the complete Bridge and Higgs edition.

BOOKS RECEIVED.

Catalogue of Music for the Pianola and Pianolo-Piano. Pp. 311. (The Orchestrelle Company, London, W.)

Hermaia: A Study in Comparative Æsthetics. By Colin McAlpin. Pp. 429. Price 10*s.* 6*d.* net. (London and Toronto: J. M. Dent & Sons, Ltd.)

Correspondence.

CONSECUTIVE FIFTHS AND OTHER MATTERS.

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

Sir,—Heaven forbid that I should wish to waste my time, as Mr. Clutsam and Mr. Runciman (in the Saturday Review) seem to think I do, in arguing about consecutive fifths. To do that in the year of grace 1915 would be like walking ten miles to hit a poor blind paralytic dotard, peaceably mumbling his 'And the Lord said unto Moses' at some street corner. I merely made a passing reference to fifths in an article giving some ironical advice to a young man as to how to become a great composer. Thereupon Mr. Turner smote me upon the nose, and, as fighting is half the fun of life, I could not resist the temptation to turn round and have a friendly whack at him. But I will see Mr. Turner and the rest of them languishing for the rest of their lives in a worse than Cimmerian darkness with regard to the true inwardness of consecutive fifths before I spend any more of my limited time in lightening that darkness. After all, what does it matter?

I must just say a word, however, in final reply to Mr. Turner. His original argument was that consecutive fifths were unobjectionable 'whenever the progressions in the other parts became exciting,' because 'then attention is distracted from the fifths.' I quoted two or three passages—and could of course have quoted hundreds more—in which there was absolutely nothing even remotely resembling excitement in the other parts, and in which the composer, so far from sneaking the fifths in and then trying to distract our attention from them, positively flaunted them before us. To that objection of mine Mr. Turner makes no reply. He merely talks about the passage from Borodin's song 'The Sea-Queen' in a way that only shows that he does not hear it quite as I do. Mr. Turner takes my remark as to the charm of the passage depending on its fifths rather too literally. Of course I did not mean the whole charm—that would be ridiculous—but that the fifths gave it a peculiar charm that no other sequence could have done. 'Play the fifths alone and they are far from attractive,' says Mr. Turner solemnly. So they are, indeed! Eat a tomato without the soup, and of course you do not get tomato soup. Let me bring home to Mr. Turner the irrelevancy of his objection by a musical illustration. In Mr. Herbert Hughes's delightful arrangement of the Irish folk-song, 'I know where I'm going,' the harmonization, until near the end, is virtually that of the key of A flat major throughout. But in the last stanza (the fifth), Mr. Hughes cunningly drops in a dominant seventh on A flat that he has been quietly keeping up his sleeve all the time until now, and the effect is exquisite:

Ex. 1.

Everyone who knows the song will say, with me, that the charm of this passage depends upon the G flat. 'Not at all,' says Mr. Turner, with a seriousness that I regret to see in a fellow-townsman of mine: 'play the G flat alone and it is far from attractive.' The G flat, of course, is not the soup, but it is the tomato-flavouring that makes the soup tomato soup. So with the fifths in the Borodin passage; and if Mr. Turner really thinks that, as he says, 'the position of the chords may be rearranged so as to remove the fifths entirely, without robbing the passage of its character,' then I can only say again that he does not hear the passage as I do. (Perhaps he does not hear, in the passage I quoted, the song as a whole. To me the fifths convey a peculiar sense of the sea.) That makes argument doubly impossible. If he still smacks his lips and says 'Ah! tomato soup!' when he has abstracted the tomato flavouring and substituted celery for it, he must have a palate that I cannot pretend to understand.

Just a line, too, in reply to the almost too effusively courteous letter of 'A Teacher.' 'Mr. Newman,' he says, 'naively confesses that he has studied many books on harmony, but could never understand one of them. This one can easily believe.' But if 'Teacher' will do me the honour to read the original passage once more, he will see that I said nothing of the kind. What I really said was that I could not understand how these authors could solemnly go on laying down their nonsensical 'laws' as to 'good' and 'bad' progressions, how they could ever imagine they could 'teach harmony' to pupils who could not by nature think harmonically—who could not even realise mentally the sound of the chords and progressions they are taught to write on paper—and other things of that kind. My own experiences may be interesting to some people. I was one of those who were fortunate enough to escape academic training in their most impressionable years. I had never the least difficulty in reading music without being taught to do so; a page of music was as clear to me, when a small child, as a page of print. After learning Wagner almost by heart, and reading and playing a fair quantity of other music, I began, at the age of seventeen or eighteen, to study a book on harmony. I found that, roughly speaking, half of what the book said—the prohibitory half—was plainly pedantic nonsense that had not the slightest relation to any of the great music I knew. The other half was, to me, so obvious that I could not imagine how anyone who had any music in his head required be told such self-evident things. They ought to be self-evident to every musician, especially if he has been brought up in daily intercourse with great music. Ever since then I have never been able to read a pedagogical book on harmony without the same feeling of mingled amusement and astonishment.

'Teacher' plays an old card when he talks of it being necessary to conform to the 'grammar' of music; but with all respect to him, that card is worn rather thin nowadays. The use of the word 'grammar' in this connection is illegitimate. A grammar is nothing more than a number of rules that a people living within a certain area gradually come to an agreement to observe. Many of these rules seem arbitrary to people who live in other areas. There is no reason in the nature of things why 'moon' should be masculine in German, feminine in French, and neuter in English; it is a mere matter of national convention. It is, again, a mere matter of convention, not something rooted in the very nature of things, that plural neuter nouns should take a plural verb in English and a singular verb in Greek. It surely ought not to need any demonstration that there is nothing corresponding to these local conventions in music, and therefore no 'grammar' that we are bound to observe on pain of being called illiterate. Something must be left to individual taste. 'Teacher' lays it down that nothing I or others can say 'will alter the fact—known to all musicians—that consecutive fifths, sevenths, ninths and fourths are possible so long as you don't hear them, and ugly when you do. Let it go at that.' But with all respect to one who is evidently conscious of speaking with authority, we cannot let it go at that. I can give 'Teacher' examples by the hundred of consecutive fifths, sevenths, ninths, and fourths that the world of musicians agrees are not in the least ugly, but perfectly delightful. I have no objection to 'Teacher' laying down 'grammatical rules' for himself and his pupils, but who set him up as a ruler and a judge over me and my like? And has it ever struck him that if there really were a 'grammar' of music the teachers of grammar would all be agreed as to its rules? I do not find Lindley Murray telling us that a combination like 'as sure as eggs is eggs' is 'good,' Morris telling us that it is 'bad,' and a third grammarian telling us that it is 'permissible' so long as we spell eggs with an 'h.' Yet something of this sort of thing goes on in the school harmony books. And it follows that if one set of practitioners is right, all the students who have been guided by rival practitioners have been misled. We all know the fuss the harmony books make about the six-four chord. Well, Dr. Kitson now comes along and tells a number of his fellow-theorists that they simply don't know what they are talking about in connection with the six-four. It doesn't look as if there were anything very positive about this department of musical grammar!

The truth is that we sorely need a totally new explanation of the rationale of modern harmony, counterpoint, and composition for the use of students. The historical development of musical theory is interesting on purely historical grounds, but there is no more sense in stuffing intelligent students with a lot of obsolete lore than there would be in beginning the training of a modern dentist with the dental theory and practice of the Middle Ages. I am afraid that teachers of theory become so immersed in routine that even the best of them unconsciously see music too much in terms of paper theory and too little in terms of hearing and imagination. I can imagine no abler or more open-minded or more progressive writer upon harmony than Dr. Kitson, —an author whom I always read with the greatest respect. Yet Dr. Kitson can be so obsessed by mere theory as to be capable of printing such a passage as this in his recent admirable book on 'The Evolution of Harmony':

Ex. 6.

'Mentally (a) and (b) are identical in effect. Contrapuntally (a) is possible, (b) is impossible. At (b) the G in the bass forms a discord with the C in the treble, and it cannot be approached or quitted by leap. Harmonically both are unobjectionable.'

Is it not time an end was made of this kind of dead lore? I can imagine a dialogue between a man's two ears after the performance of a composition in which the above passage had occurred:

The One Ear: Very good indeed, except for that bar with a forbidden discord in it.

The Other Ear: Which bar? I didn't hear any forbidden discord.

The One Ear: Why, the discord of the fourth, of course.

The Other Ear: It sounded all right to me.

The One Ear: How could it? The G in the bass forms a discord with the C in the treble, and it cannot be approached or quitted by leap. Contrapuntally it is impossible.

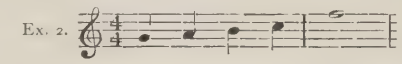
The Other Ear: Yes, but I wasn't listening contrapuntally; I was listening harmonically; and, as Dr. Kitson says, harmonically it is unobjectionable.

The One Ear: But you shouldn't listen harmonically to a contrapuntal passage.

The Other Ear: You shouldn't be listening contrapuntally to a harmonic passage. How on earth can I switch off my harmonic sense at will whenever you tell me I am listening to counterpoint? [Left arguing.]

Again I ask, what is the use of teaching young people things like this, that have not the slightest relation to any of the actualities of composition? I am in complete agreement with Mr. Clutsam: the writing of modern music has next to nothing to do with the theories that certain amiable recluses have evolved, to their own satisfaction, out of the works of composers who lived long, long ago, or out of their own dear heads. What is the use of Prout telling a student that 'after two or three steps by conjunct motion, it is not good to leap in the same direction to an accented note,' when the student knows that the very progression Prout quotes as an example of this awful crime:

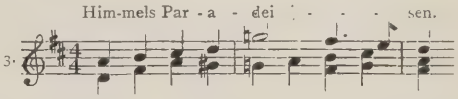
Ex. 2.



occurs in a delightful passage in Humperdinck's 'Hänsel and Gretel':

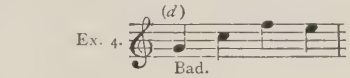
Him-mels Par - a - dei - - - - sen.

Ex. 3.



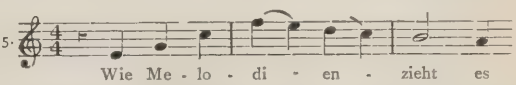
What is the use of Prout telling the student that 'two successive leaps of a fourth, as at (d), are particularly objectionable':

Ex. 4.



when the student knows that the melody of one of Brahms's loveliest songs commences with two successive leaps of a fourth—

Ex. 5.



I have no prejudice against those who are engaged in teaching text-book harmony; I am sure it is a most respectable industry. But it is an industry that has the minimum of connection with modern art. However, as Mr. Clutsam is saying everything I should have liked to say upon the subjects of composition and harmony teaching had I been discussing them, and as his article is not completed as I write this, I gladly leave to him the necessary work of slaughter.—Yours sincerely,

Ernest Newman.

BRITISH COMPOSERS AND THEIR CRITICS.

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

Dear Sir,—When I wrote the article published in your January number, 'Some Reflections of a Native Composer,' my object was to endeavour to arouse a little general interest in the claims and aspirations of the younger present-day British composers.

I seem only to have succeeded in stirring up a perfect wasps'-nest of professional critics, and I regret that the wider public in whose views composers really are interested have so far given no sign of life.

It would be of great use to us, as composers, if we could ascertain how the general public regard us and our work and aims; we have already abundant opportunities of finding out what the critics think of us.

Mr. F. Gilbert Webb is quite right when he hints that between the creative artist and the critic there exist animosity and hostility; it could not be otherwise, and, indeed, should not be otherwise. A healthy and virile hatred of those who would find blemishes in our offspring is human and right. The composer's point of view in respect to his critics has been so well put by M. Vincent D'Indy in his 'Revue d'Art Dramatique' (1899) that I cannot do better than give the words of this celebrated composer and author. 'I consider,' he says, 'that criticism is useless, I would even say it is harmful. . . . . Criticism generally means the opinion some man or other holds about another person's work. How can that opinion help forward the growth of art? It is interesting to know the ideas, even the erroneous ideas, of geniuses and men of great talent, such as Goethe, Schumann, Wagner, Sainte-Beuve, and Michelet, when they wish to indulge in criticism; but it is of no interest at all to know whether Mr. So-and-so likes, or does not like, such-and-such dramatic or musical work.'

Mr. Webb, in his article, after sentencing me to 'six months' hard, without the option,' has been forced to agree with so many of my contentions that, on second thoughts, he has resolved to be merciful, and let me off with a severe caution. Not so Mr. Newman, who, lumping us composers all together 'in our tens of thousands' with 'surgeons, journalists, railway managers, naval officers, and people in hundreds of other walks of life,' laments that so much of his crowded time should have to be wasted in criticising us. It is ungrateful of him to forget that at least we furnish him with the opportunities of exercising the delicate wit and irony so characteristic of him, and so copiously displayed in his article.

It is satisfactory, however, to learn from both these celebrated critics, that while the British composer is gravely deficient in most ways, the professional musical critic stands, as ever, high and lonely in general wisdom and perfection. It would be a pity to spoil this noble picture—we can only look and wonder.

I should like to be allowed to assure those gentlemen who have written answers to my article that I am not a 'grouser,' nor do I wear long hair, or differ from my fellows in any way in point of wearing unconventional clothing. On the whole I think the world is a good and lucky place to live in, but I do feel that native musicians have not so far had a fair chance in their own country, and that now, if ever, is the time for them to advance their claims, and endeavour with all their strength to better their position.—I am, yours faithfully,

A British Composer.

CHOIR AND GLEE PARTY OF H.M.S. 'ACHILLES.'

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

Sir,—Many are the amusements and pastimes which are indulged in to relieve the monotonous hours of waiting for 'the enemy that cometh not.' Our choir has been formed for the purpose of performing anthems when circumstances permit, and thus serves the purpose of varying the somewhat dreary Sunday services which at this time are inevitable. It consists (up to the time of writing) of fourteen members, including conductor and organist (Mr. E. Garrett, R.N.). Among the anthems which have been given are the following: 'The radiant morn' (Woodward); 'Saviour, Thy children keep' (Sullivan); 'Seek ye the Lord' (Varley Roberts); 'O Saviour of the world' (Goss)—all of these being sung by men's voices, the chaplain (the Rev. J. P. Evans) being a great help in the first tenor parts.

The glee party (consisting of the same men) sings at many of the impromptu concerts, adding greatly to the interest of the varied programmes, and being regarded as somewhat of a 'star turn.' Glees which have already been given include 'Comrades' song of hope,' 'In this hour of softened splendour,' and 'The keys of heaven.'

I should just like to mention that as the work of the choir and glee party has proved so beneficial and uplifting both to those taking part and also to the ship's company, it would be worth the experiment if tried on other ships, and when improved upon would be a very pleasant recreation both at the present, and also later in times of peace.—Yours truly,

Ernest L. Marriott,
Royal Marines.

A FIFTH CENTURY CAROL.

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

Sir,—A version of 'A solis ortu cardine' was given in your December, 1914, number, as an illustration to Mr. Edmondstoune Duncan's article; some comment appears called for. The version is an arrangement using four-part harmony, quite unknown when the words were written; and the balanced rhythms are also modern. Ancient melodies are often published as modern part-songs; but should it not be explained that the editor is responsible, that the arrangements are not ancient? Naumann, in his pretentious 'Illustrated History of Music,' published just such arrangements without explanation, and has misled many a student.—Yours, &c., H. Davey.

70, Montpelier Road, Brighton.

CROATIAN MUSIC.

Mr. Lewis L. Kropf writes as follows with reference to his letter on 'Croatian music' which appeared in our February issue (p. 95):

> Allow me to correct a small slip in my letter in last month's issue. August von Adelburg, who wrote the pamphlet against the Abbé Liszt's book, was the composer of the opera 'Zrinyi,' the libretto of which was based upon the life of the heroic defender of Szigetvár in Hungary in 1566. I was thinking of Adelung, another writer. I find also a note that Scudo, a French musical critic, answered Liszt in the Revue de deux Mondes, but am unable to give the exact reference. The first edition of Liszt's book appeared in 1859.

Obituary.

We regret to record the following deaths:

Bernard Lane, on February 14, from heart failure. A well-known tenor, he was born in 1846, and commenced his professional career as a violinist at the early age of seven. His voice subsequently developed into one of such rare quality that he was advised by Sir Michael Costa and others to abandon the violin in favour of singing. He received his first instruction from the late M. Lemmens, the husband of Madame Lemmens-Sherrington; afterwards he toured with these artists in concert and oratorio work. From about 1875 to 1890 he was constantly before the public in English opera, and also on oratorio and concert platforms in association with artists of the first rank. On the occasion of the performance of the 'Meistersingers' at the Albert Hall, conducted by Wagner himself, one of the solo tenors failed at the last moment, whereupon Mr. Dannreuther telegraphed for Mr. Bernard Lane to take the part. He sang this difficult music at sight so well that, after the performance, Wagner threw his arms around his neck, and embraced him. A severe attack of influenza so far impaired his voice that he retired from public singing and devoted the last years of his life to teaching. He will be greatly missed by his pupils, not only for his efficiency as a teacher but also by reason of his kind and cheerful personality. For the last five years he conducted the choir at Holy Trinity Church, Brook Green, and only failed to attend five times during that period. He died on his way home from the Church.

Charles Ainslie Barry, at Sydenham Hill, on March 21. He was born in London on June 10, 1830, and was thus eighty-five years of age. He was originally intended for the Church. After leaving Rugby School he entered Trinity College, Cambridge, where he came under the influence of Dr. T. A. Walmisley, and soon after he definitely gave himself up to music. He studied at Leipsic under Moscheles, Plaidy, and Richter. On his return to London, in 1858, he became organist and choir-master at the Forest School, Leytonstone. In 1863 he was appointed musical critic to the Guardian (a post he occupied until 1879), and he wrote in the Athenæum and the Musical World. For a few years he edited the monthly Musical Record, and contributed many able analyses to concert programmes. His sympathies were by no means conservative, and he showed appreciation of the modern music of his period. Some of his published music had a fair vogue. A symphony, a string quartet, an operetta, and several cantatas exist in manuscript.

Eustace Carey, of Liverpool, at the age of eighty years. He was a cultivated amateur of music who had rendered useful service to the art in various ways. In 1908-9 he occupied the important position of chairman of the Liverpool Philharmonic Society, and was hon. treasurer of the Liverpool Church Choir Association since its promotion in 1900.

Thomas Weekes Holmes, on March 4, after a long illness. He was for twenty-seven years the secretary at the London College of Music, during which period he enjoyed the great respect of his colleagues.

Edgardo Lèvi, on March 3, aged forty-nine. He was a professor of singing at the Royal Academy of Music.

Frederick Ralph Kinkee, on March 19, at Fulham, aged fifty-nine years.

A colleague of Charles Karlyle, whose death on February 11 we recorded in our March issue, sends us the following appreciation of the late esteemed musician's career: 'This well-known musical critic and teacher of singing was in his sixty-third year. His loss will be deeply regretted by a large circle of friends and many past and present pupils. He was a man of great musical knowledge and wide general culture, and his reputation as a teacher was growing rapidly in the last few years. His career was interrupted a year ago by the serious illness which proved fatal. Mr. Karlyle was born in South Germany, and had lived in England for over thirty years, and studied singing with some of the best known masters both abroad and here. He wrote a good deal for foreign musical papers, and was on the staffs of the Tribune, the Daily News and Leader, and the Star. His criticisms were always fair and temperate, and, based on solid knowledge, they carried weight. Few of those who read them could have realized that English was not Mr. Karlyle's native language. He translated many English libretti and songs into German, including "The Martyr of Antioch," and also a good deal of German into English. He was genuinely devoted to the country of his adoption.'

In our March issue we recorded with much regret the very sudden death on February 18 of Pierre Sarpy, the general-manager and secretary of the Copyright Protection Society (Mechanical Rights), Ltd., and of the Performing Right Society, Ltd. He was a man of considerable ability, and his death came at a time when the work to which he had devoted his life was on the eve of fulfilment. Mr. Sarpy succeeded Mr. Alfred Moul as manager of the French Society in the year 1903, and only this last year as the result of his untiring efforts he formed for the benefit of British composers an English branch of the French Society. The English Society is now the representative in this country of the French, German, Austrian, and Italian Societies, and has recently concluded a Treaty with the American Society. Mr. Sarpy was extremely reticent and retiring, but cultivated and well-read to a degree, and a master of the intricacies of Copyright law. To those who knew him intimately he revealed a disposition of engaging charm.

MODERN HARMONY AS IT AFFECTS THE TEACHER AND STUDENT OF TO-DAY.

Lecture by Stewart Macpherson.

The following are quotations from a lecture delivered before the Music Teachers' Association on February 20:

THE TEACHER'S DIFFICULTY.

The thought—unexpressed, perhaps, in words, but none the less insistent—in many a teacher's mind to-day is, 'Of what use is it for me to teach my pupils Harmony when apparently everything I teach them is abrogated and ignored in so many of the compositions with which they make acquaintance? Are they to believe me and the text-books I use, or are they to pin their faith to the direct negation of all that I have been trying to instil into their minds?'

Now the first point in our consideration of the whole question, I think, is that at some future time it may conceivably be necessary to revise our whole conception of the theoretical and practical bases of our musical system, in order to conform with new revelations of the possibilities of the composer's art.

Some would say that that is necessary now, and that it is impossible to square the doings of the French modernists, of Scriabin and of Schönberg, with the principles of art inherent in the compositions of those whom the world recognizes as the great and acknowledged masters. That this is impossible may be true, but the time for casting the whole of our existing machinery into the 'scrap-heap' is not yet.

THE BASIS OF MUCH 'MODERNIST' ART MERELY EXPERIMENTAL.

For one very simple reason: the experiments of the 'Extremists,' beautiful as some may be, the reverse of beautiful as others undoubtedly are, are still only experiments; that there is anything yet to be seen that we can set up as providing the basis for a new artistic system with qualities of permanence would be, to say the least, an assumption whose temerity would be equalled only by its foolishness.

ART MUST BE PROGRESSIVE.

Art must, in order to preserve its own vitality, be always in a state of flux; its boundaries must ever be widening, and the great artist must of necessity be something of a pioneer, a pathfinder.

But simply for the reason that the most recent musical art is still in an experimental stage, the stage of its 'growing pains,' so to speak, any form of teaching that would throw to the winds all the principles upon which most of the greatest works of the world have avowedly been based would deservedly be doomed to failure. The compositions of Bach, of Beethoven, of Wagner, have not as yet passed into the region of the archaic; the system of tonality upon which those compositions have been built is to us, therefore, not a dead language, but a living one.

THEORY MUST FOLLOW PRACTICE.

The objection, sometimes seriously put forward, that the harmony professor and the harmony book check the full tide of original thought on the part of those budding geniuses by whose existence some people seem so obsessed, is surely one that argues an imperfect realisation of the office and functions of both. The student must learn the elements of his trade; he must know how to use his tools and the means by which he may avoid cutting himself therewith. As soon as he has done these things the wise teacher leaves him largely to himself, and tells him to read and absorb all the music—of all ages and countries—that he can lay his hands upon. If he has originality in him, it 'will out,' and the elementary knowledge of the rules of his art, and the degree of discipline to which he has submitted, will no more check the development of his individuality than learning to draw straight lines will cramp or hinder the artistic flights of the most ardent 'impressionist' painter.

THE STUDY OF COMPOSITION; WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

The art of composition is not the mere learning of chords. In some ways the harmonic side of the business is that which is of the least moment. The would-be composer, in the expression of the ideas with which he may be blessed, has much more to do than to saturate himself with special harmonic idioms. He must learn by slow and sometimes painful degrees the secret of the development of those ideas and the placing of them in such relations that they shall make their full effect, and he must gain the power of imparting to his music that rhythmic life and variety which really is at the root of the whole matter, and in fact depends comparatively little upon the actual nature of the harmonic tissue.

OBJECTS OF LEARNING HARMONY.

The most important question for the teacher to ask himself is surely this: 'Why do I teach my pupil harmony, and what is its value in his musical development?' In order to get a satisfactory answer to this question it is necessary to disabuse our minds of ideas which still tend to obscure the real issue. These are (i.) that the object of learning harmony is to enable the pupil to 'explain' every combination he meets with according to some theory; (ii.) that the study is merely a sort of mental discipline which in some vague way imparts what is called musicianship (a term which is not very accurately defined). That the study of harmony rightly pursued does contribute vitally to the growth of musicianship is true, but only under certain very clear conditions, the first of which is that it shall be a training of the ear.

Our duty is to endeavour to cultivate the hearing sense of pupils to appreciate the finer and more delicate impressions and distinctions, and to train them to an appreciation of those very matters in the discerning of which the more perfectly educated ear of the musician differs from the blunter sensibilities of the 'man in the street.'

[Here Mr. Macpherson played an extract from Schönberg which had recently appeared in the Musical Times written in two ways—once as the composer conceived it, and once upside down. After the performance of both versions, the lecturer asked the audience to vote upon the question of which was the original one. The great majority decided in favour of the 'upside-down' version !]

VARIOUS SCALE SYSTEMS.

Composers of all schools to-day are beginning to frame their melodies and their harmonies upon other forms of scale than those with which we are familiar in the works of the classical masters. There is no finality about our major and minor scales; they have been evolved from pre-existing scales or modes, and it is quite likely that they may in turn yield place of honour to others of different formation—not to their total extinction, perhaps, but to such an extent that they become partners, with an equal status, with the others.

But here again everything is empirical, hazy, indeterminate; nothing is definite or assured, and some of the results up to now have not been exactly encouraging !

Seemingly we have four main lines along which some writers are attempting to 'enlarge their borders':

(a) The revival of the old Ecclesiastical Modes as a means of extending the harmonic scheme;
(b) The exploitation of so-called Eastern scales;
(c) The selection of certain arbitrarily chosen notes in the natural 'harmonic series,' to form a scale-system;
(d) The use of the whole-tone scale.

THE PUPIL'S EARLY STUDIES.

It should be obvious that the very empirical nature of all attempts such as these prevents our considering them for one moment as the foundation of our pupil's efforts in harmony. These efforts must be made at first along lines which have passed out of the region of the experimental, and have been proved to possess a degree of permanence sufficient for us to draw certain conclusions and generalisations from them, which may guide the faltering footsteps of the beginner. In other words, he must learn the simple every-day idioms—the 'bread and butter' of his music, so to speak—first, just as the child learns first to make known his needs and his feelings in monosyllables, and in his first attempts to read and to write makes acquaintance, not with the ravings of Futurist poets, but with the phrases and expressions which are in general currency around him.

IS MODERN CACOPHONY IN THE LINE OF EVOLUTION FROM THE CLASSICS?

To consider the cacophony of some of the latest examples of modernism as an evolution in direct line of succession from the art of the acknowledged great masters is an instance of special pleading which needs infinitely more proof than those who put it forward are able to adduce. To urge that because for some special effect the tonality of certain so-called 'classical' passages may purposely have been left vague and indeterminate, it is only a few steps further on—in natural sequence—to the abandonment of tonality altogether is, surely, an argument based upon premisses which are in their nature untenable.

THE DUTY OF THE TEACHER.

The wise teacher will always urge his pupil to make acquaintance, as his standard of progress admits from time to time, with as much music of all schools as possible. To restrict him, on the one hand, to the works of the past would be to put a fictitious value upon some of those of the present, as a species of 'forbidden fruit' which he would all the more ardently desire in proportion to their 'wickedness'; to rear him on an unlimited diet of modernism (even of a non-virulent type) would, on the other hand, be to put him out of focus with almost everything that the world acknowledges to be great and noble in our art. There must, of course, come a time when the student must take his own line and rest upon his own standard of values; it is for the teacher to see to it that his early training shall be such that the conclusions he comes to and the judgments he ultimately forms shall rest upon such a foundation of knowledge and experience as shall prevent those judgments from being one-sided, prejudiced, and narrow.

For the teacher the right attitude surely must always be that of an enlightened Liberal-Conservatism; and the motto for both teacher and student an old one—one that dates back almost to the beginning of the Christian era: 'Prove all things: hold fast that which is good.'

DR. CAMILLE SAINT-SAËNS.

The illustrious doyen of French musicians, who is now in his eightieth year, has accepted an invitation to conduct a series of orchestral concerts of his own music, during the months of May and June, at the Panama-Pacific International Exhibition now being held at San Francisco. He has also been commissioned to write a pièce d'occasion for orchestra, in honour of the event, of which he will conduct the first performance, and the composition is now being scored by Dr. Saint-Saëns in his home at Paris, where he has been spending the winter. It is entitled 'Hail, California !' and is practically a fantasia upon American and Spanish airs, a grand military march, and other more or less popular themes. The work will occupy about twenty minutes.

During his stay at San Francisco, Dr. Saint-Saëns has hopes of conducting there the first performance in America of his oratorio 'The Promised Land,' which was produced at the Gloucester Festival of 1913, and subsequently given by the Royal Choral Society at the Albert Hall. The choral resources at the disposal of the Exhibition have yet to be ascertained, as well as the amount of time available for preparation, so that nothing definite has yet been arranged on this point. Meanwhile it will be interesting to state that the veteran composer has himself recently prepared a revised French version of the text of his oratorio, with a view to its performance at a grand choral concert to be given in the Paris Trocadéro next October. This will constitute the actual celebration of his eightieth birthday, which occurs on the ninth of that month, and, needless to add, he fully intends conducting the work in person.

On the subject of the remarkable change that has come over the value and popularity of music at the Trocadéro during the past few months, Dr. Saint-Saëns writes to his friend and collaborateur, Mr. Hermann Klein, as follows:

'You must know that, thanks to the War, we now own the magnificent concert-room which Paris has hitherto lacked ! They had tried in every way to discover the cause of the echo which rendered the Trocadéro so detestable; well, it came very simply from the glass in the huge windows. The city authorities having caused them to be covered over, so that the bright light of the interior should not be seen outside on account of possible visits by hostile "birds of prey" (otherwise aircraft), the echo forthwith disappeared as if by magic. And now behold us provided with an ideal concert-hall containing a magnificent organ, and capable of holding as many executants as may be desired, and vast enough to afford all the requisite accommodation at cheap prices. Since concerts were started there again the hall has always been crowded; and in connection with that fact it should be remembered that the district in which the building was erected in 1878 was then very difficult to get to, but is no longer so. An altogether new Paris has been constructed on the western side of the city, and the tramways and the Underground, which did not then exist, have made this quarter easy of access to the less fortunate inhabitants of other districts. Besides, for those who can afford automobiles and taxis the question of distance no longer arises.'

JOHN WILBYE.

The Rev. E. H. Fellowes was the lecturer at the meeting of the Musical Association held on February 16, his subject being 'John Wilbye.' He said that although the name of this famous madrigalist was very well known, yet the particulars of his life were until recently almost a complete blank. Our ignorance of his personal history was on a par with our ignorance of the bulk of his works, only a few of his compositions being known even to enthusiasts. It had been his (the lecturer's) good fortune recently to discover some fresh facts in connection with Wilbye's history, the first clue being the find of his will at Somerset House, which was proved on November 13, 1638.

Many interesting and important facts have been revealed by this will. It was possible to trace his family history, and the legacies mentioned in the will showed his connection with certain important personages. His legacy to Lady Rivers had led to the discovery that Hengrave Hall was the home of John Wilbye for a long period of his life. At Hengrave he had a special room assigned to him, which it was possible to identify with some degree of certainty, and with the documents in existence relating to the furniture, &c., a very exact picture could be formed of the composer in his life there. On the death of Lady Kytson in 1628, the splendid establishment at Hengrave was broken up, and Wilbye entered the service of Lady Rivers at Colchester, where he lived until his death, in 1638. The fact that he never married, and that the words of so many of his madrigals were on the subject of unhappy love, led the lecturer to surmise that possibly Wilbye's life was overshadowed by an infatuation for Lady Rivers, a theory that would fit in with such evidence as was available.

Wilbye's two sets of madrigals constituted his most important work that had survived to our time. The first of these sets, published in 1598, included thirty compositions, and the second, published in 1609, contained thirty-four. The only other known compositions of Wilbye were his madrigal in 'The triumphs of Oriana,' two motets with Latin words, and two motets contributed to Leighton's 'Teares or Lamentacions.' Leighton's collection was published in 1614, and it was a surprising fact that Wilbye, who was only forty at the time, lived subsequently for twenty-four years without apparently publishing another note of music.

The madrigal as a form of composition had been much misunderstood owing to the small amount of material hitherto printed and in a form available for study, as well as to the fact that a large proportion of such as was printed belonged almost exclusively to the ballet form and to that type which had a clear-cut and simple rhythm. Many musicians had been misled into the belief that the bulk of the work of the Elizabethan madrigalists belonged to the type with the four-square rhythm, and was in many cases little more than a dry and academic effect of contrapuntal writing. The madrigals of John Wilbye, examined as a whole, were in themselves sufficient to expose the utter fallacy of this idea. Much of the editorial work in the 19th century had been carried out with a want of accuracy and insight which greatly outweighed the commendable zeal that did at least point in the right direction. In modern times a different standard of criticism prevailed, but much misapprehension had still to be removed, especially in the matter of rhythm.

It was a grave error to suppose that anybody could take part at sight in a madrigal, and at the same time do anything like justice to the music. Neither could a madrigal of complex rhythm be conducted without the most careful preparation. Yet these were not adequate reasons for ignoring the difficulties. If the difficulties were faced and overcome, and the works of these great composers sung with proper regard to rhythm, expression, and suitable emotional feeling, the effect could never fail to be one of great beauty. If on the other hand they were ignored, plain ugliness resulted, for the effect was often downright dull if not ugly when madrigal societies and cathedral choirs now sang the music of the Madrigalian period.

It was the directness and purity of the style, the strong sense of beauty in sound, the admirably vocal nature of the part-writing, in fact the perfection of workmanship, that impressed themselves irresistibly on the mind of the musician who studied Wilbye's madrigals. The English musicians were less offended by severe discords than were the Italians, and thus they succeeded in infusing vigour and virility which raised their work to a higher plane. In the serious type of madrigal, Wilbye surpassed all his contemporaries. It afforded him scope not only for the ingenious devices by which he gave dramatic colour to his words, as well as for more freedom and sometimes complexity of rhythm, but also for the varied emotional sentiment which he treated with such depth, although with such true artistic reserve that his work had never been tainted with anything approaching sentimentalism. He rarely made use of the devices of augmentation and diminution, nor did he indulge in the device of treating a single part as a canto fermo. In the main he adhered to the Italian design of madrigal, but there were striking examples in which he foreshadowed the principle of recapitulation upon which Form came to be based a generation later. John Wilbye was not only one of the greatest figures in English music, but he had few equals in the whole range of European music in the secular branch of purely vocal writing.

The illustrations to the paper consisted of 'I always beg,' 'Oft have I vowed,' 'As fair as morn,' 'Of joys and pleasing pains,' and 'Adieu, sweet Amaryllis,' which were sung. Two were also rendered by strings, 'Sweet honey-sucking bees' and 'Oft have I vowed.'

SHOULD CHIN-RESTS BE ABOLISHED?*

Mr. W. W. Cobbett writes:

Adventitious aids to the acquirement of violin technique are of greater importance to amateurs than to professional artists, for the obvious reason that they need them more. Among these aids, the chin-rest stands high in the estimation of all but a negligible minority.

If I may speak for myself, I am thankful to my chin-rest (1) for absolving me from the necessity of wasting force by hugging the fiddle, to save it from being dragged away by the left hand; (2) For enabling me to play with greater ease and with head more erect; (3) For the comfortable consciousness it gives me that there is no 'war of attrition' going on between my chin and the wood of my Strad.

One at least of Mr. Hartmann's statements is convincing, but not in the way he intended. In fact no advocate of the chin-rest could have put his case stronger than this: 'Many violins of the 16th to the 19th centuries, having been much played, show the marks of beards or perspiration in the right-hand corner.' This is not pleasant reading, but it is true, and because it is true, every lover of fine violins rejoices to know that both wood and varnish can be protected by the use of a chin-rest.

I do not agree with Mr. Hartmann that Sarasate was indifferent as to 'whether his violin carried a chin-rest or not.' I spent many hours in his company, and know that he prided himself on the almost miraculous ease with which he played. This he could not have done without a chin-rest. He used a small one because his neck was short.

I agree with Mr. Sammons that pads are not to be recommended to men, but for ladies they are indispensable.

Mr. M. Montagu-Nathan writes:

Mr. Arthur Hartmann's suggestion that chin-rests should be abolished is, in a way, Procrustean. I agree with him in one particular: I am dissatisfied with the present chin-rest. But my complaint against it is that it is inadequate.

Before proceeding to argument, it should be mentioned that Mr. Hartmann is in error in supposing that the chin-rest was invented as a means of preserving varnish. Spohr is quite definite on the subject. He used it and advocated it as a physical aid; so did Wieniawski, who had one of a simpler kind specially made for him in London.

To argue that because Paganini used no chin-rest we should dispense with its aid, is absurd. Such argument could be advanced only by those who are victims of the superstition that Paganini's playing was technically superior to the playing we hear to-day.

The truth is that modern violin technique is partly a product of the chin-rest, and that the 'lop-sidedness' or spinal curvature from which many fiddlers suffer is due to its inadequacy as an aid.

Every violinist ought to design his own chin-rest and pad, because no two human bodies are alike in all dimensions.

* See remarks by Mr. Arthur Hartmann, and opinions by Mr. Thomas Fussell and Mr. Albert Sammons, in our February issue.

To meet the demand for a pad that helps the shoulder to the extent required by the individual, a pneumatic pad has been designed. Its size can be adjusted by varying the amount of air.

But one could do away with every difficulty and solve the problem of violin-holding in a fashion that does not seem to have occurred either to Mr. Fussell or Mr. Sammons, by getting someone else to hold the violin, or failing that, to have the 'scroll' of the instrument suspended from the ceiling by a string or supported from the floor by a rod. No pianist would ever dream of using an instrument which had to rest partly on his knees, and no wind-player would tolerate what the fiddler puts up with. So soon as muscular rigidity is set up, technique suffers. Gripping a violin between chin and shoulder produces a bad effect on left hand and bowmanship alike.

Away, then, with the chin-rest, and let us have a self-supporting instrument and a free left-hand and bow-arm.

THE GERMAN TEMPERAMENT AND THE NEW ORGAN AT BRESLAU.

By Aubrey C. de Brisay.

The last six months have disclosed more to the world than any months preceding them; for in them we have seen that Germany in the guise of Science in its cold material callousness is attempting to rob the world of her long-cherished spiritual ideals. We are beginning to realise the awfulness of this new spirit of dominance of what is mighty, as we see it guiding and propelling the whole present campaign. We have seen that they recognize it as the only vehicle for their national expansion. And under this head it is an interesting question to ask how far this spirit has permeated? Whether, again, the lighter and artistic side of their nature remains unaffected or besmirched with this new and prevalent blight? Is this spirit merely a passing obsession, or is it a deep-rooted conviction pervading all their efforts whether individual or national? And nothing in our humble opinion seems to demonstrate better how firm is the cold grip of science and how enmeshed and restricted is their individuality, than the photographs published in the February number of the Musical Times of the new organ inaugurated at Breslau.

It may appear strange to base a criterion of an organ upon what it looks like, but the appearance of the Breslau organ lends support to the fact that modern organ builders seem to be paying too little attention to that interrelation of ear and eye that must ever exist. And indeed, to an imaginative mind, a vision of one word might appear to be inscribed across the metal part of the new instrument—and that word is 'Krupp.' In the silvery expanse of metal which the builders have there presented to the German public whereon to feast their iconoclastic desires, there seems to appear a clavier des bombardes in no way dissimilar to those that line the frontiers of France and Belgium.

Ritter has mentioned somewhere that the case of an organ placed in Magdeburg Cathedral in the year 1604 A.D. cost as much as the organ itself. It had forty-two figures, twelve of which moved, and a crowing cock. This is evidently an error on the other side of bad judgment, but although it is an exceptional instance, it serves to show to some extent that the theory of music as it affects ear and eye was better understood then than it is to-day. What to the eye appears deformed the ear will resent is a sound criterion of musical appreciation. It is the cold militariness of the new case that is so distasteful: it is its lack of sympathy, the incompatibility of the thought of it whispering anything but incitements to murder that are everywhere imaged in the cold callousness of what is after all nothing but an engineering feat.

Schilick has said, 'The organ must be an ornament to the Church, and an help to godly singers: it must have suitable figures upon it, not trivial and ridiculous tricks such as were made a few years ago in a Capuchin Monastery, in which a large figure of a monk looked out of a window, and then suddenly disappeared, so that young and old, man and woman, were startled, and some began to laugh and others to curse.'

But on the other hand, although to-day we can dispense, and have dispensed, with the theatricalities that Schilick mentions, the organ must at all times be a thing of concealed Romance. In no instrument ought the mechanism to be so completely shrouded as in the organ. In its many appeals, in its many notes of message, sometimes lavish in their gorgeousness, or poignant with human tenderness, the religious romance of the organ is partially dependant upon a beautiful case. And in it must always lurk that elegiac and plaintive note that fittingly apparels religious sentiment, and infuses into its hearers, by the winningness of its harmonious appeal, a sense of something which the mere reiteration of words, however beautifully expressed, fails to effect.

Walter Pater, in his essay upon Style, has admirably said that style in any art is the treatment of the sense or perception of a fact. It is a preconceived interpretation as opposed to a literal interpretation. And so it is with the organ. A picturesque tone-poem can only be created through a scrupulous adherence to the demands of ear and eye. The demands of the ear for a picturesque treatment of the sentiment or the verbal idea fail to be satisfied if the appearance of the instrument itself is an eyesore or if its external trappings are banausic. And this seems to be the dilemma at Breslau. The German temperament, which is responsible for the construction of the organ, has demanded that all available funds are to go to the production of a myriad sounds both great and small, to the obvious detriment of what must ever be an integral part of that proportion which so enormous an instrument demands, the case.

Finally, it is to be hoped that in this respect our constitutional English moderation will not become unhinged, and that the advent of the gospel of bleak might will not cause us to emulate the antics of modern German organ builders. It is greatly to be regretted that this lust after freak production is not confined to Germany alone America has but to add two or three more stops to an organ that she at present possesses and Wilhelm Sauer & Co., of Frankfort-on-Oder, will have to redouble their efforts to avoid being out of the fashion. It is not likely that the Breslau people will sit still while America beats records, and these organ antics will never cease; and it is hardly likely that Wilhelm Sauer will devote any further funds that he may have entrusted to him to adjusting the toilet of the instrument that he has left so naked. Much more likely is it that he will add two more 32-ft. stops on heavy pressure, and claim a record for cubic wind capacity.

It is only to be hoped that the authorities at Liverpool will not be possessed with a like deviltry; and to cement our faith in their prudence, it is to be remarked that the construction is in the hands of Messrs. Willis & Co., whose many creations of old, enshrined in their dark and beautiful cases, are becoming mellow with seasoned richness.

AN ARNE PORTRAIT.

At the Musical Association meeting on March 16 Mr. Ralph Griffin exhibited an interesting little portrait of Dr. Arne in oil, which he had bought at a sale of a gentleman of the name of Roger de Coverley. A visit to the British Museum showed that, apart from an engraving by Bartolozzi, there were practically no portraits of Arne, while the National Portrait Gallery was even worse off. He (Mr. Griffin) thought that the picture ought to go there eventually. If there was any one person who was likely to know anything about Arne portraits it was the President of the Association, Dr. Cummings.

Dr. Cummings said that engraved portraits of Dr. Arne were very numerous, but so far as he knew portraits in oil were but few. The earliest was by Gainsborough, which was now in his possession. Another was by Zoffany, which belonged to the Sacred Harmonic Society, and more recently to the late Alfred H. Littleton. Then there was the painting exhibited by Mr. Griffin, which was painted by Cruse, a well-known artist of his period. There was not the least doubt that it was copied from an etching by Bartolozzi which was never published. It was similar to the well-known etching by that artist which was published, but reversed, showing the left side of the face instead of the right. The oil painting was identical with the unpublished portrait, even to the ring on the finger. It was a very charming work, and the National Portrait Gallery would not do a bad thing if it secured that and the Gainsborough portrait.

Our report of the paper on 'The Standardization of Temperament,' which was afterwards read by Mr. E. Lennox Atkins, is held over.

The Musical Times — EXTRA SUPPLEMENT. — April 1, 1915.
No. 841. NOVELLO'S OCTAVO ANTHEMS. Price 2d.

CAST ME NOT AWAY

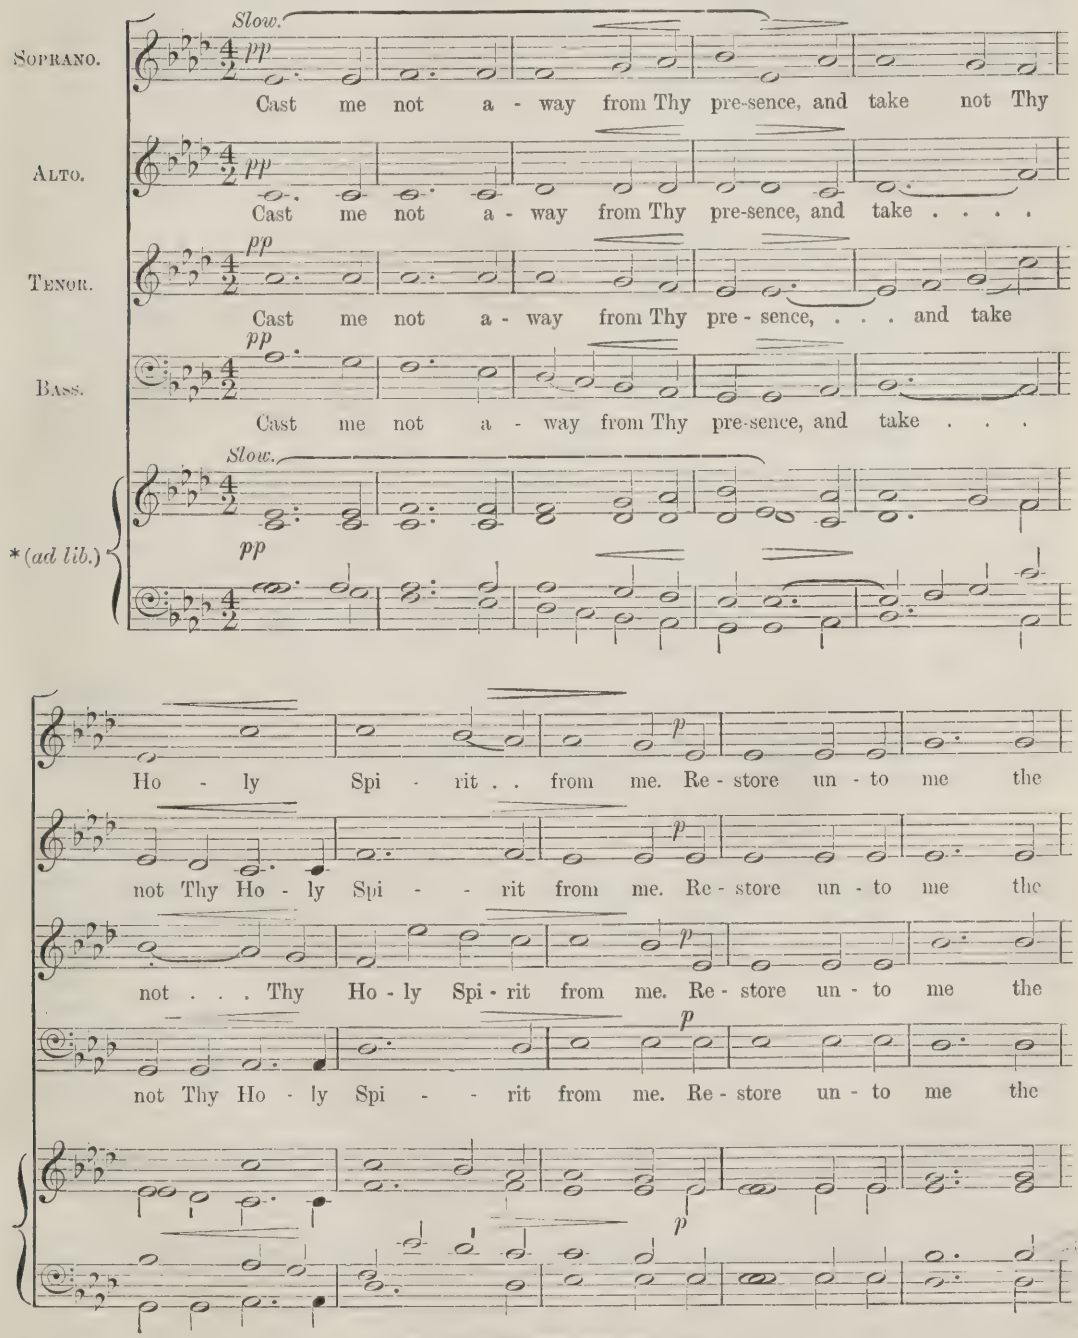
ANTHEM FOR LENTEN OR GENERAL USE.

Psalm li. 11, 12, 17, 18. (Bible Version.)

COMPOSED BY

C. LEE WILLIAMS.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED; AND NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., NEW YORK



Slow.
SOPRANO.
pp
Cast me not a - way from Thy pre-sence, and take not Thy ALTO.
pp
Cast me not a - way from Thy pre-sence, and take . . . .
TENOR.
pp
Cast me not a - way from Thy pre - sence, . . . and take
BASS.
pp
Cast me not a - way from Thy pre-sence, and take . . .
Slow.
*(ad lib.)
pp
Ho - ly Spi - rit . . from me. Re - store un - to me the not Thy Ho - ly Spi - - rit from me. Re - store un - to me the not . . . Thy Ho - ly Spi - rit from me. Re - store un - to me the not Thy Ho - ly Spi - - rit from me. Re - store un - to me the
p

* A Semitone higher when sung unaccompanied.

Copyright, 1906 by Novello and Company, Limited.

joy of Thy sal - va - tion, re - store un - to me the joy of Thy sal
joy of Thy sal - va - tion, re - store un - to me the joy of Thy sal -
joy of Thy sal - va - tion, re - store un - to me the joy of Thy sal -
joy of Thy sal - va - tion, re - store un - to me the joy of Thy sal -
- - va - tion, and up- hold me with Thy Spi - rit. The sac - ri - fi - ces of
- - va - tion, and up- hold me with Thy Spi - rit. The sac - ri - fi - ces of
- - va - tion, and up- hold me . . with Thy Spi - rit. The sac - ri - fi - ces of
- - va - tion, and up- hold me with Thy Spi - rit. The sac - ri - fi - ces of God are a bro - - ken spi - rit; a bro - ken and a con - trite heart Thou
God are a bro - - ken spi - rit; . . . a bro - ken heart . . Thou
God are a bro - ken spi - rit; . . . a bro - ken heart . . Thou
God are a bro - - ken spi - rit; a bro - - ken heart Thou rall. dim.

a tempo.
wilt not des - pise, O God. . . . Make me to hear, . .
wilt not des - pise, O God. . . . Make me to hear . . of wilt not des - pise, O God. . . . Make me to hear . . of wilt not des - pise, O God. . . . Make me to make me to hear of joy . . and joy . . and glad - ness, make . . me to hear of joy and joy . . and glad - ness, make me to hear . . of joy . . and hear of joy, . . make me to hear of joy and mf
glad-ness, that the bones which Thou hast bro - ken may . . . re - joice, . .
glad-ness, that the bones which Thou hast bro - ken may re - joice, glad-ness, that the bones which Thou hast bro - ken may re - joice, glad - ness, that the bones which Thou hast bro - - - - ken may re - joice,

Slower.
pp
that the bones which Thou hast bro - ken may . . re -
f
that the bones which Thou hast bro - ken may re -
that the bones which Thou hast bro - ken may re -
that the bones which Thou hast bro - ken may . re - Slower.
pp
f
Slower.
ppp
- - joice. . . . Cast me not a - way from Thy pre - sence, and
- - joice. . . . Cast me not a - way from Thy pre - sence, and
- - - joice. . . . Cast me not a - way from Thy pre - sence, . .
- - - joice. . . . Cast me not a - way . . from Thy pre - sence, and Slower.
ppp
pp
take not Thy Ho - ly Spi - rit . . from . . me.
take . . . not Thy Ho - ly Spi - - rit from me.
. . . . and take . . not . . . Thy Ho - ly Spi - rit from . . me.
take . . . not Thy Ho - ly Spi - - rit from me.
pp

The Musical Times | EXTRA SUPPLEMENT. | April 1, 1915.
No. 906. | NOVELLO'S OCTAVO ANTHEMS. | Price 3*d.*

THE LORD CAME FROM SINAI

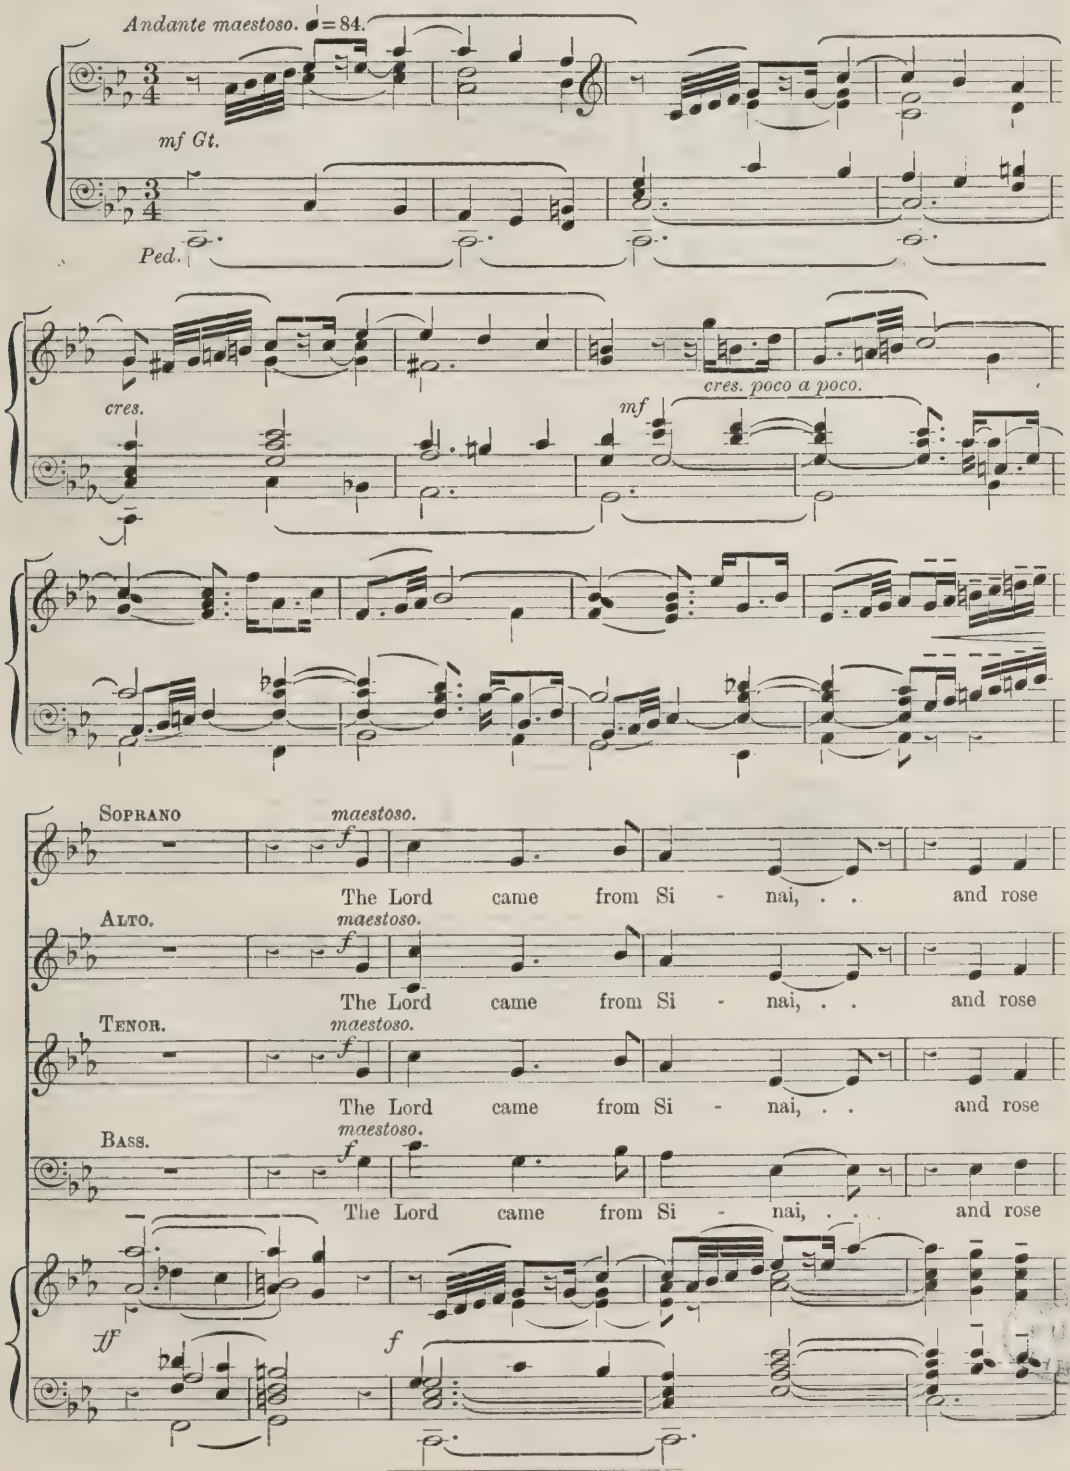
ANTHEM FOR WHITSUNTIDE OR GENERAL USE

COMPOSED BY

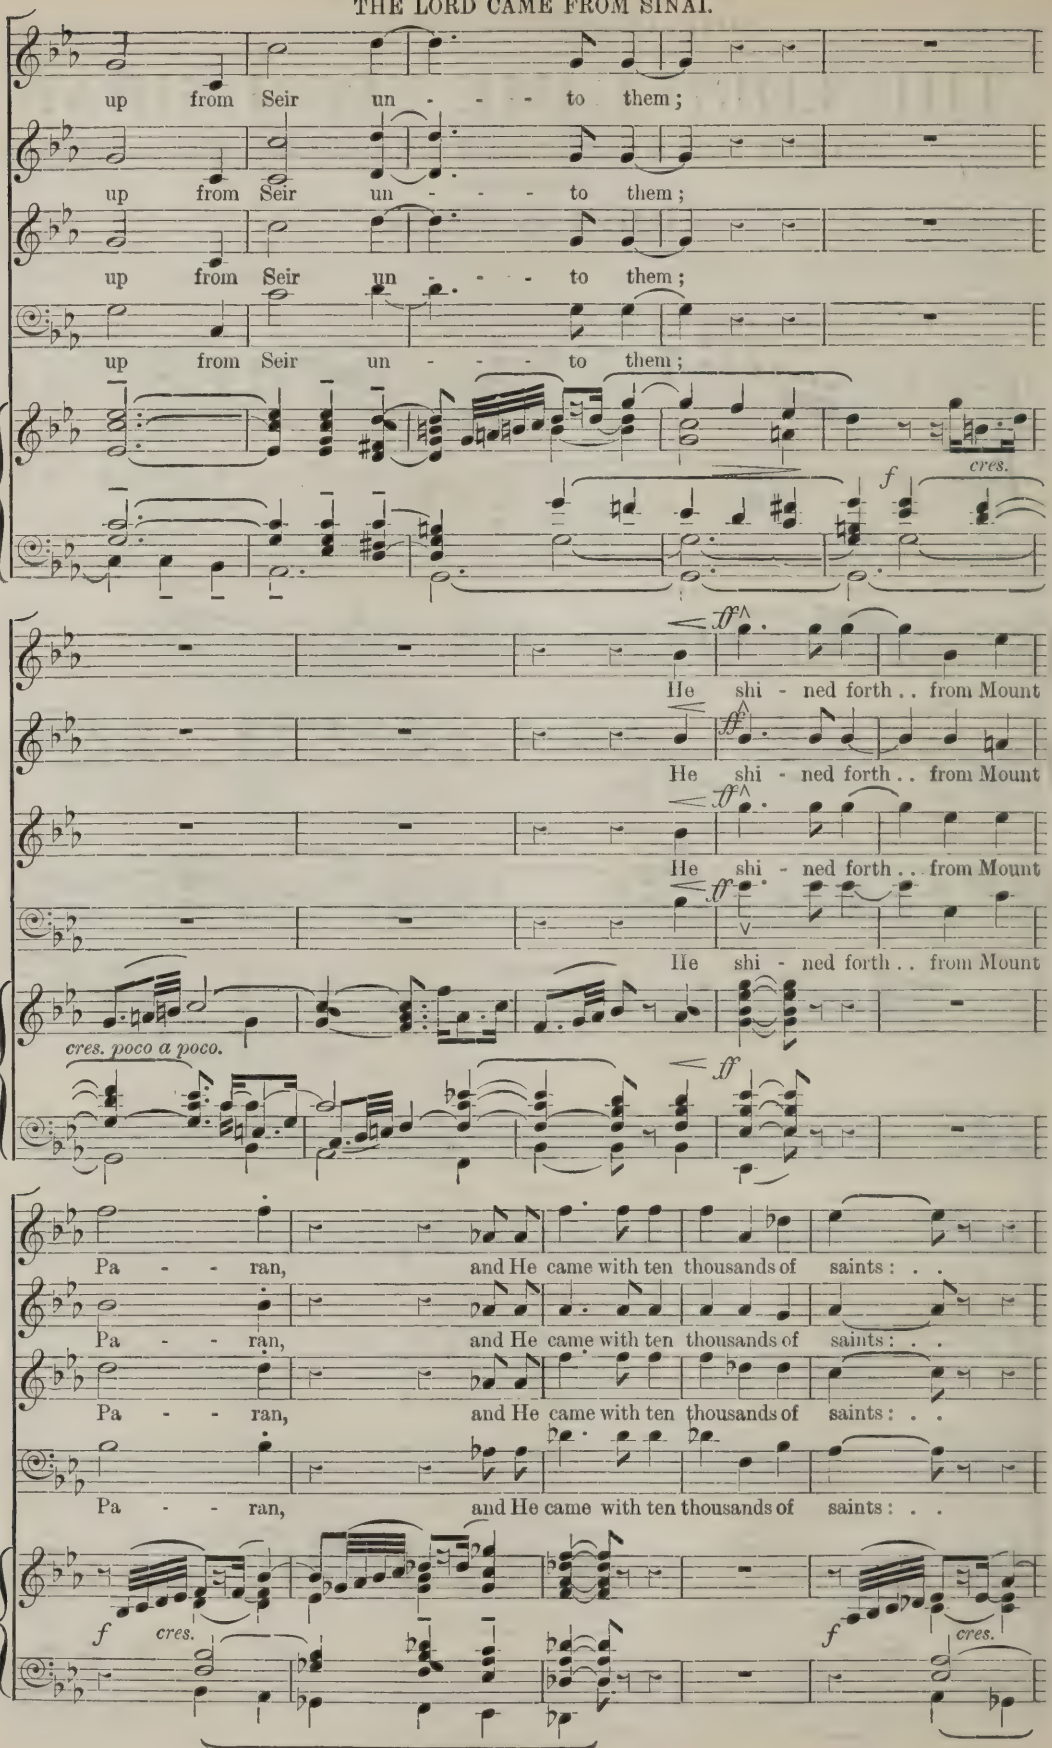
JOHN E. WEST.

Deut. xxxiii. 2, 3.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED; NEW YORK: THE H. W. GRAY CO., SOLE AGENTS FOR THE U.S.A.

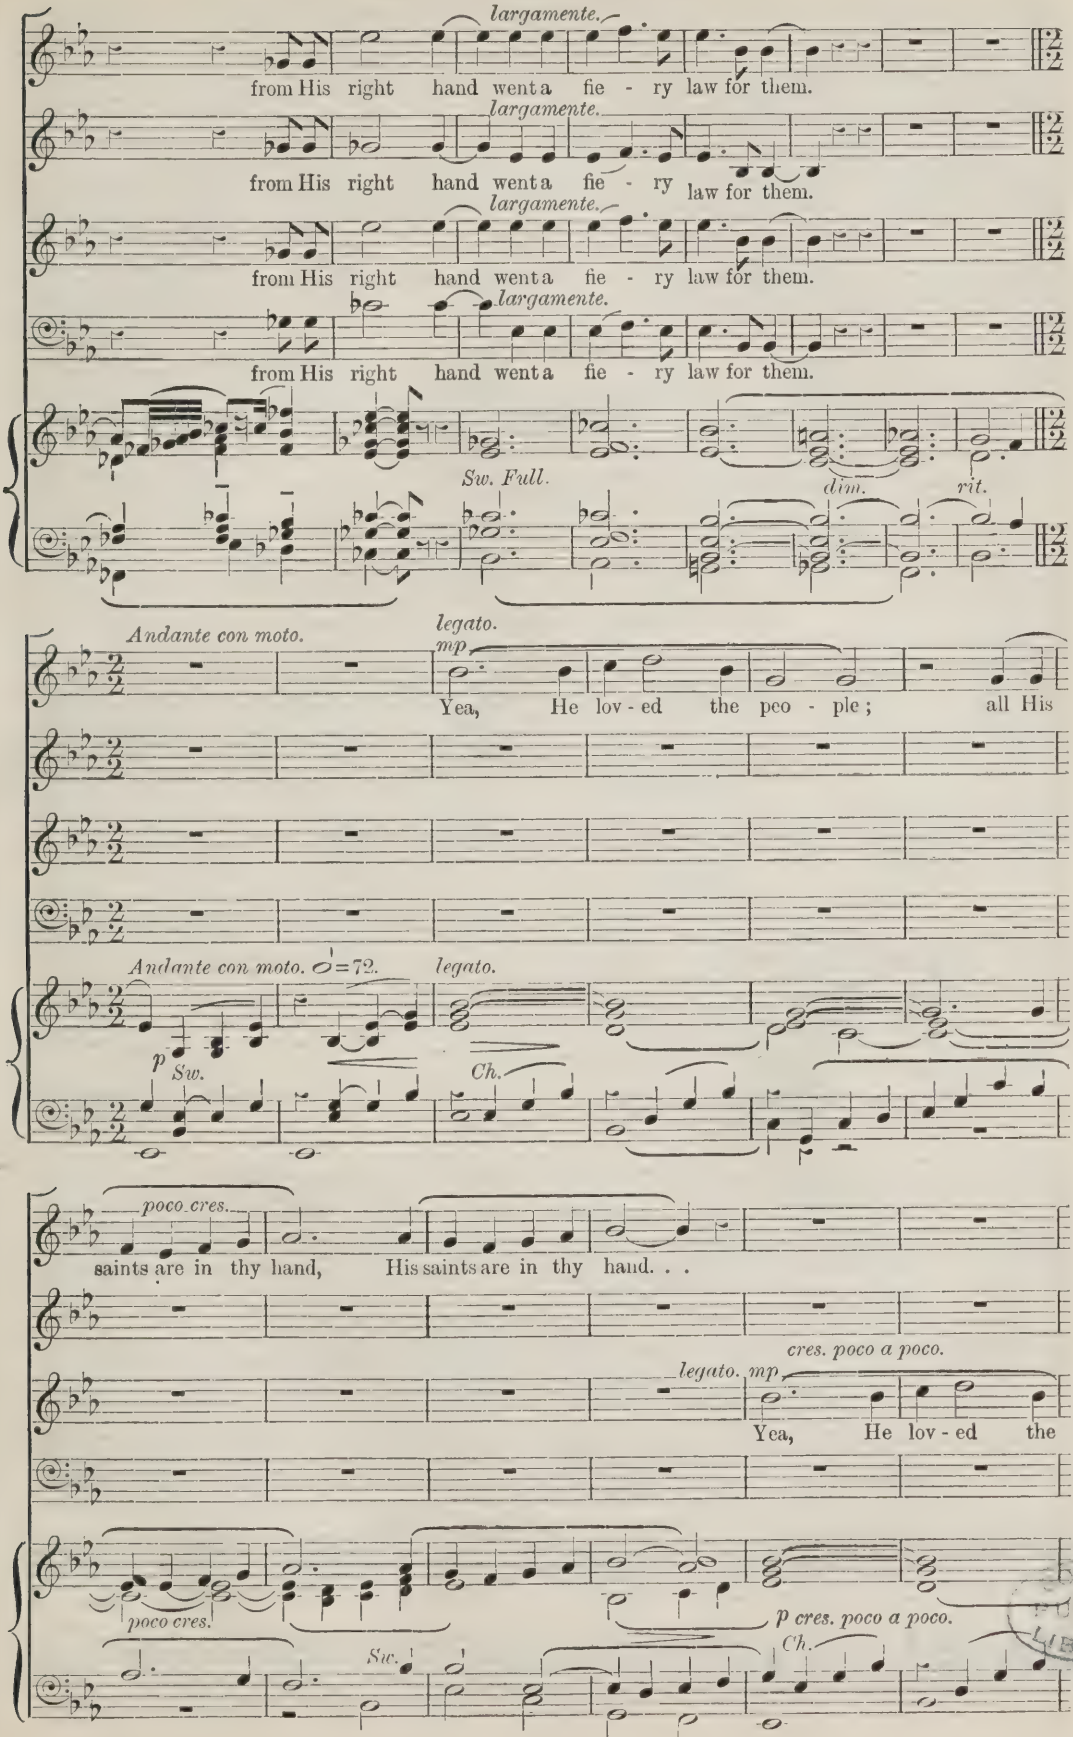


Copyright, 1907, by Novello and Company, Limited.



up from Seir un - - - to them;
up from Seir un - - - to them;
up from Seir un - - - to them;
up from Seir un - - - to them;
cres.
f
He shi - ned forth . . from Mount
He shi - ned forth . . from Mount
He shi - ned forth . . from Mount
He shi - ned forth . . from Mount
cres. poco a poco.
Pa - - ran, and He came with ten thousands of saints: . .
Pa - - ran, and He came with ten thousands of saints: . .
Pa - - ran, and He came with ten thousands of saints: . .
Pa - - ran, and He came with ten thousands of saints: . .
f cres.
f cres.

THE LORD CAME FROM SINAI.



largamente.
from His right hand went a fie - ry law for them.
largamente.
from His right hand went a fie - ry law for them.
largamente.
from His right hand went a fie - ry law for them.
largamente.
from His right hand went a fie - ry law for them.
Sw. Full.
dim.
rit.
Andante con moto.
legato.
mp
Yea, He lov - ed the peo - ple; all His Andante con moto. ♩=72.
legato.
p
Sw.
Ch.
poco cres.
saints are in thy hand, His saints are in thy hand. . .
cres. poco a poco.
legato. mp
Yea, He lov - ed the
poco cres.
p cres. poco a poco.
Sw.
Ch.

BOSTON PUBLIC LIBRARY

mp cres. poco a poco.
Yea, He lov - ed the peo - ple;
mp cres. poco a poco.
Yea, He lov - ed the peo - ple;
peo - ple;
mp cres. poco a poco.
Yea, He lov - ed the
f dim.
all His saints are in . . thy hand: . .
f dim.
all His saints are in thy hand: . .
f dim.
all His saints are in . . thy hand: . .
f dim.
peo - ple; all His saints are in thy hand: . .
Sw.
mp
Ch.
Sw.
f mp poco cres.
and they sat down, . .
mp poco cres.
and they sat down, . . poco cres. sat down at thy
mp poco cres.
and they sat down, . .
mp poco cres.
and they sat down, . . sat down at thy
poco cres.

f marcato.
sat down at thy feet; . .
ev - 'ry one . . shall re - feet; . .
sat down at thy feet; . .
ev - 'ry one . . shall re -
ev - 'ry one . .
sempre cres.
Sw.
f Gt.
- ceive . . . of thy words, . .
. . shall re - ceive of thy words, . .
marcato.
f Gt.
ev - 'ry one . . shall re - ceive . . . of thy words.
ev - 'ry one . . shall re - ceive . . . of thy words.
ev - 'ry one . . shall re - ceive . . . of thy words.
ev - 'ry one . . . shall re - ceive of thy words.
legato.
mf Gt.

mp
mf
mf legato.
Yea, . . . He lov - ed the peo - ple; all His
Yea, . . . He lov - ed the peo - ple; all His
Yea, . . . He lov - ed the peo - ple; all His Yea, . . . He lov - ed the peo - ple;
poco cres.
cres. poco a poco.
saints are in thy hand, His saints are in thy hand, . . Yea, He saints . . . . are in thy hand, are in thy hand, His saints are saints . . . . are in thy hand, His saints are in thy hand, . .
mf legato.
all His saints, His saints are in thy hand, His lov - ed the peo - ple, yea, He lov - ed the peo - ple; in thy hand, are in thy hand, His saints are in thy hand, are yea, He lov - ed the peo - ple, yea, He saints, His saints are in thy hand, His saints, His saints are

f mf
cres.
Yea; . . . . . all His saints are in thy hand, His in Thy hand, . . all His saints, all His saints are in thy hand, His lov-ed the peo-ple; all His saints, all His saints are in thy in thy hand, . . all His saints, all His saints are in thy Full Sw. cres.
marcato.
saints are in thy hand, His saints, . . . His saints are hand, thy hand, His saints, . . . His saints . . . are ff
Gt.
dim.
in thy hand, are in . . . . . thy hand.
in thy hand, His saints are in . . . thy hand.
in thy hand, His saints are in thy hand.
legato.
Sw.
mp

PUBLIC LIBRARY

legato.
mp
cres.
Yea, He lov - ed the peo - ple; all His saints are in thy legato.
mp
cres.
Yea, He lov - ed the peo - ple; all . . . His legato.
mp
cres.
Yea, He lov - ed the peo - ple; all . . . His legato.
mp
cres.
Yea, He lov - ed the peo - ple; all . . . His mp Sw.
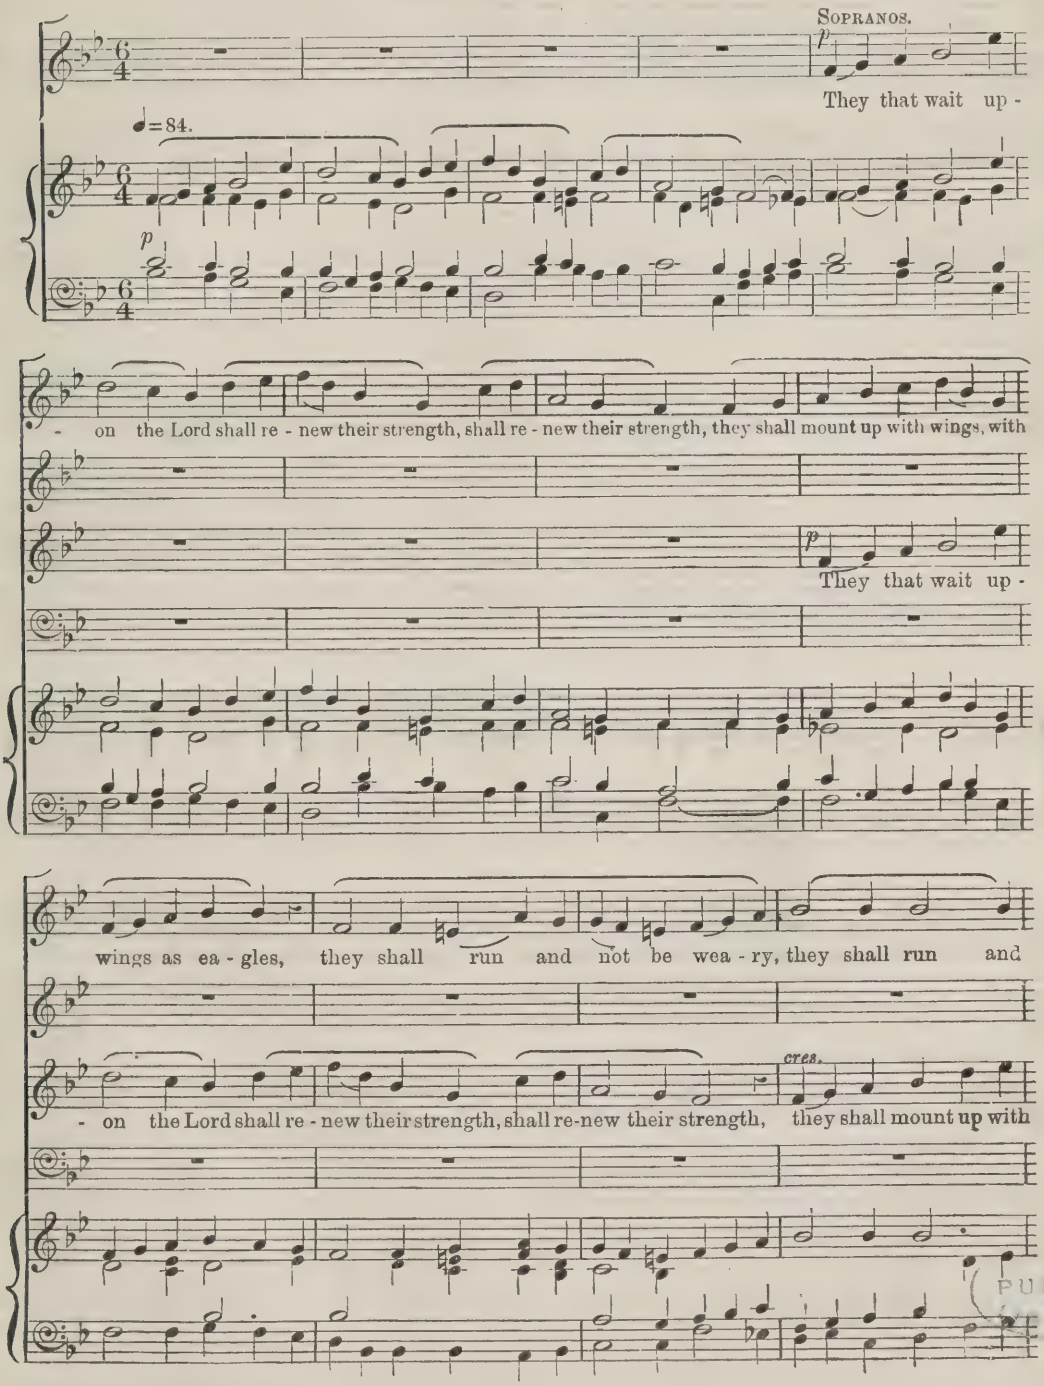
cres.
marcato.
mf
legato. poco rit.
p
a tempo.
pp
hand, His saints . . . . are in thy hand. . .
marcato.
mf
legato. poco rit.
p
a tempo.
pp
saints, His saints . . are in . . thy . . hand. . .
marcato.
mf
legato. poco rit.
p
a tempo.
pp
saints, His saints . . are in . . thy . . hand. . .
marcato.
mf
legato. poco rit.
p
a tempo.
pp
saints, His saints . . are in thy hand. . .
marcato.
a tempo.
mf Gt.
poco rit.
legato.
pp Sw.
poco rall.
sf
pp

They that wait upon the Lord.

ANTHEM FOR GENERAL USE.

From "O clap your hands." Composed by J. Stainer.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited; New York: THE H. W. GRAY CO., Sole Agents for the U.S.A.



Sopranos.
p
They that wait up -
♩=84.
p
- on the Lord shall re - new their strength, shall re - new their strength, they shall mount up with wings, with
p
They that wait up -
wings as ea - gles, they shall run and not be wea - ry, they shall run and
cres.
- on the Lord shall re - new their strength, shall re-new their strength, they shall mount up with not be wea - ry, run and not be wea - ry,

p
They that wait up - on the Lord shall re - new their strength, shall re - p wings as ea - gles, they shall mount up with wings as ea - gles.
p
They that wait up - on the Lord shall re -
- new their strength. They that wait, . . . they that wait up - on the Lord shall re -
They that wait, that wait up - on the Lord shall re -
p
They that wait up - on the Lord, they that wait up - on the Lord shall re - Solo.
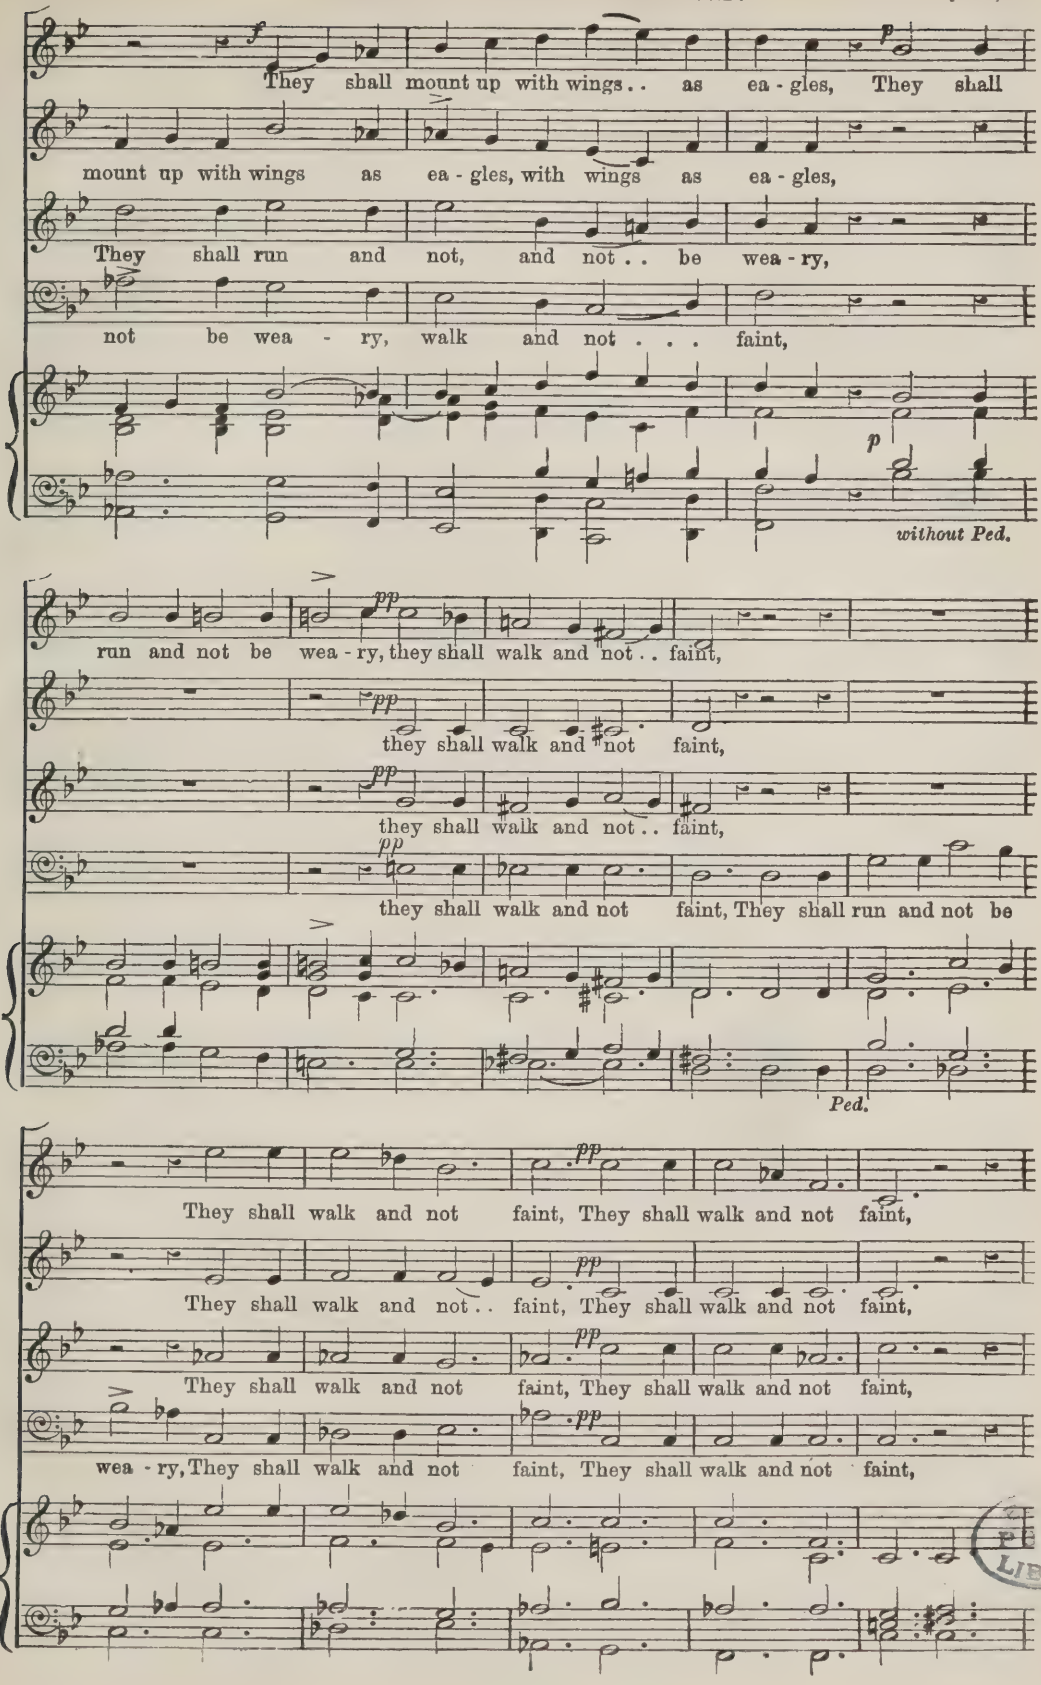
Sw.
pp
Ped.
cres.
- new their strength, shall re - new their strength, They shall mount up with wings, with wings as ea - gles,
cres.
- new their strength, shall re - new their strength, They shall
cres.
- new their strength, shall re - new their strength, They shall mount up with wings as ea - gles,
cres.
- new their strength, shall re - new their strength, They shall run and
cres.



They shall mount up with wings . . as ea - gles, They shall mount up with wings as ea - gles, with wings as ea - gles,
They shall run and not, and not . . be wea - ry,
not be wea - ry, walk and not . . . faint, without Ped.
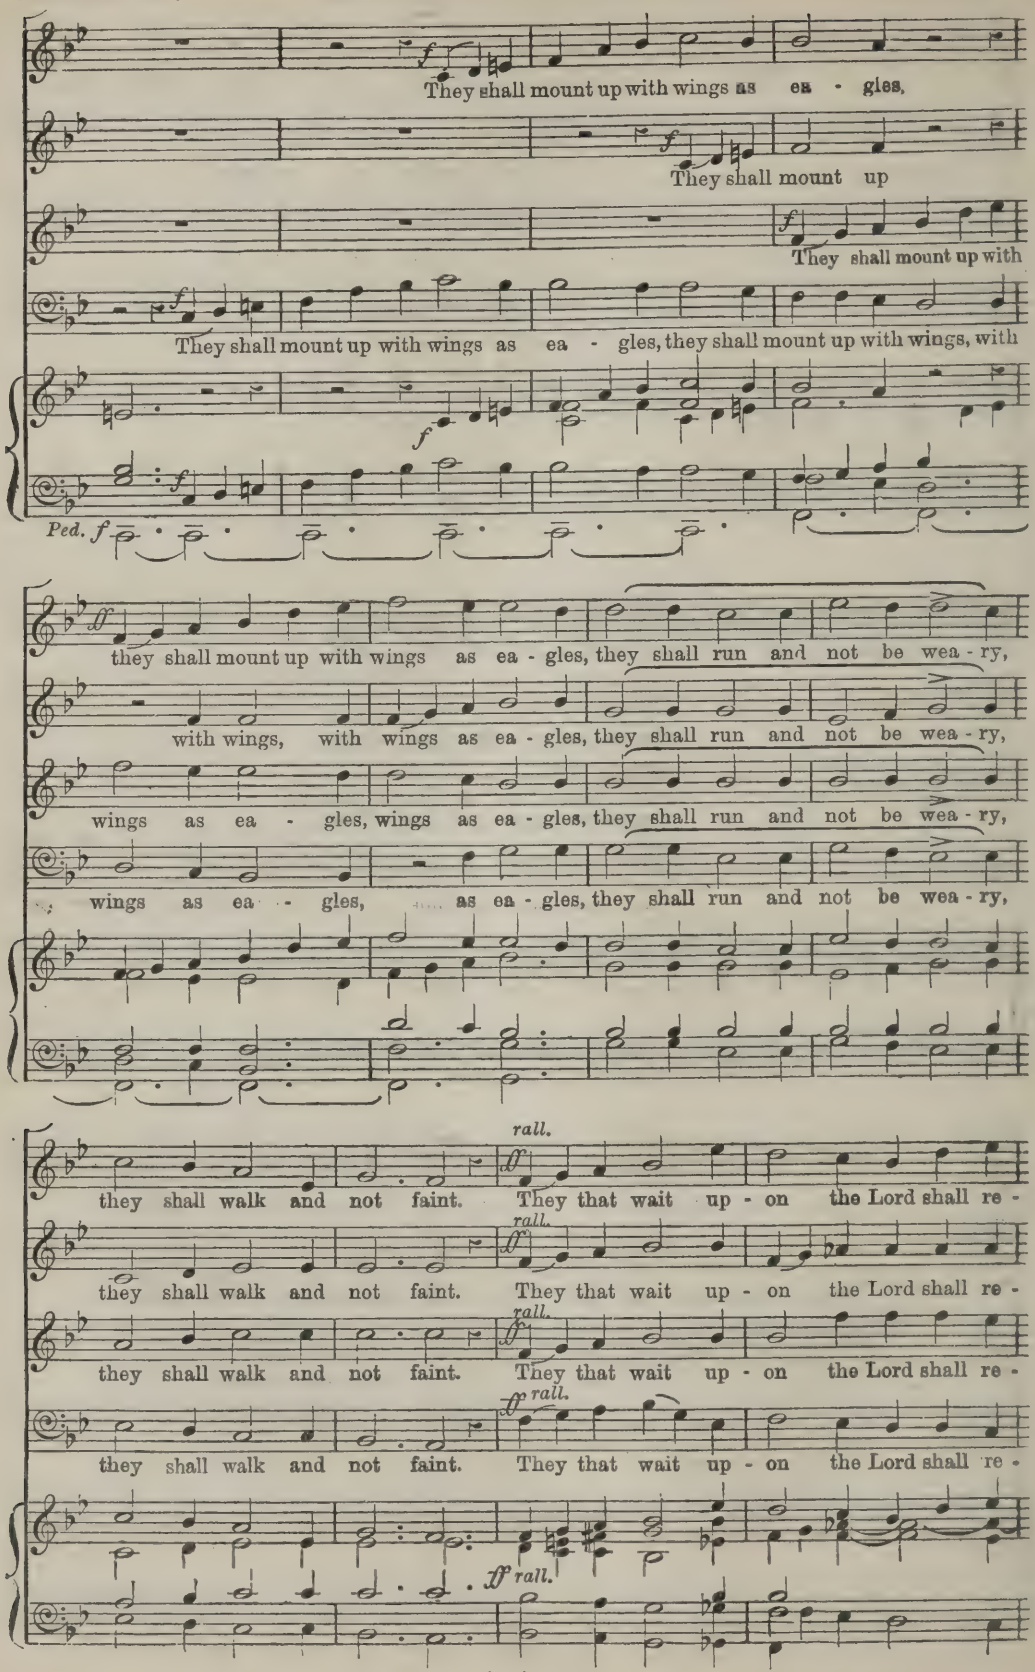
run and not be wea - ry, they shall walk and not . . faint,
they shall walk and not faint,
they shall walk and not . . faint,
they shall walk and not faint, They shall run and not be
Ped.
They shall walk and not faint, They shall walk and not faint,
They shall walk and not . . faint, They shall walk and not faint,
They shall walk and not faint, They shall walk and not faint,
wea - ry, They shall walk and not faint, They shall walk and not faint,



They shall mount up with wings as ea - gles,
They shall mount up
They shall mount up with
They shall mount up with wings as ea - gles, they shall mount up with wings, with Ped.
they shall mount up with wings as ea - gles, they shall run and not be wea - ry, with wings, with wings as ea - gles, they shall run and not be wea - ry, wings as ea - gles, wings as ea - gles, they shall run and not be wea - ry, wings as ea - gles, as ea - gles, they shall run and not be wea - ry,
rall.
they shall walk and not faint. They that wait up - on the Lord shall re -
they shall walk and not faint. They that wait up - on the Lord shall re - they shall walk and not faint. They that wait up - on the Lord shall re - they shall walk and not faint. They that wait up - on the Lord shall re - slower.

- new their strength, shall re - new their strength, shall re - new, re - new their
- new their strength, shall re - new their strength, shall re - new, re - new their
- new their strength, re - new their strength, shall re - new, re - new their
- new their strength, re - new their strength, shall re - new, re - new their strength.
1
2
strength.
strength.
strength.
p dim.
dim.

Also published in Novello's Tonic Sol-fa Series, No. 2226, price 1½d.

PIANISTS AND CINEMAS.

Miss Kate Idle, who is musical director of the Trans-Atlantic Film Company writes as follows in the Trans-Atlantic Review:

A profession that might well be adopted by students from London Music Colleges is that of playing to animated pictures.

Cinematograph theatres have increased so considerably during the last few years, and the public who patronise them have been educated to a point that good music is most essential to the continued success of this form of public entertainment.

As a consequence, the salaries paid are good, and are far in excess of what an ordinary musician can earn by teaching music. For instance, a pianist at a suburban theatre will receive as much as £2 per week for only four hours' playing, i.e., from 3 o'clock to 7, whilst for playing with an orchestra from 3 to 10.30 for dramas only—with two hours' leave from 5 to 7, between £3 and £4 can be earned. Some clever musicians in the West-End cinemas get as much as £10 per week.

The articles that have been written on this subject in various newspapers would give one the impression that those who play at the cinematograph theatres are quite second-rate pianists. This is partly true, and the reason is that this kind of work has to a large extent been thought rather infra dig. by most good professional players.

But those who have been sufficiently wide-awake to see the immense possibilities and the wonderful field open to the really good player in picture theatres, have realised that there is scope for good work, and, in addition, intelligent appreciation, both from managers and the public.

There is still, however, heaps of room for improvement, which can only come about by more and more capable musicians entering this new, pleasant, and paying profession.

A good picture pianist or a member of a cinema orchestra can make a film worth double to the management. It is just a case of careful thought and tasteful selection. I give an instance of what I consider could be played to a drama with the usual scenes of love making, tragedy, battle or galloping of horses: 'Un peu d'Amour,' 'Valse Triste' by Sibelius or 'Andante Religioso' by Thomé, 'Finlandia' by Sibelius or an Overture; and 'From Foreign Parts,' Moszkovski, No. 5.

I have heard people say that they go to certain cinema theatres simply to hear the music, and if the proprietors show consideration to their pianists, and are very particular to get good ones, they will find their takings greatly increased.

It is, however, necessary, in order to become a successful picture pianist, to be able to read well and to memorise. Here are a few maxims for the budding picture musician:

Do not play the same selection twice;

Try as far as possible to find a piece of music that will exactly fit the situation on the picture;

Do not break off in the middle of a well-known work that people are enjoying, to go on with something else;

Dance music should only be played when there is dancing in the film. To a light comedy 'The Passing Show' selection, also 'The Frolic' by Herbert Haines, are particularly appropriate.

With practice, all these things can be accomplished with success. Anyone with average talent and perseverance is bound to succeed, and make a good income.

I may be excused in recounting my own career, as it may be useful to those who contemplate taking up this kind of work.

I have played at concerts from the age of eight, played the violin and accompanied orchestras, been used to concert-party work and singing in oratorios, and this experience has been very useful.

I play at the Trans-Atlantic Film Company's theatre during the daytime, and have deputised at cinematograph theatres, both with and without orchestras, and I consider it is most interesting work.

There has come a day when good pianists are wanted at picture theatres, and I am sure that those who decide to enter this new and profitable field will be surprised at the amount of appreciation they will receive, and the intrinsic interest of the work.

London Concerts.

ROYAL CHORAL SOCIETY.

This Society pursues its excellent plan of giving concerts on Saturday afternoons. On February 27, 'The Dream of Gerontius' was performed with considerable success. Interest centred in Madame Butt's first appearance in this work. Her voice, of course, told splendidly in the immense hall, and her interpretation caught some, if not nearly all, the tenderness of the Angel's part. Mr. Gervase Elwes was deeply impressive as Gerontius, and Mr. Robert Radford never sang more finely than he did on this occasion. Sir Frederick Bridge conducted. On March 20 'The Golden Legend' was revived. The performance was a fair one. Miss Carrie Tubb, Miss Dilys Jones, Mr. Ivor Walters, Mr. Charles Tree, and Mr. Graham Smart were the soloists. Other items were Bridge's 'Flag of England,' two of Elgar's 'Sea-Pictures' (sung by Miss Dilys Jones), and a new Choral song, 'The Grey Seas,' by Mr. Percy E. Fletcher, which was conducted by the composer and very well received by the audience.

THE ROYAL PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.

QUEEN'S HALL.

The concert given on March 18 brought forward an all-British programme. Dr. Vaughan Williams's lively and interesting Overture to 'The Wasps' opened the concert, and then came Elgar's 'Carillon.' The poem was movingly recited by Mr. Henry Ainley, and the performance of the orchestra under the composer was a splendid one. An encore was given. Four of Stanford's 'Songs of the Sea' were sung not very successfully by Mr. Harry Dearth and the Stock Exchange Male-Voice Choir. The Symphonic-poem 'From Death to Life,' by Sir Hubert Parry, seemed rather to miss fire. Yet it is obvious that there is much fine music in the work. A memorable performance of Elgar's second Symphony under the composer's direction provided a fine conclusion to the concert.

Mr. Samuel Dushkin gave a recital at the Æolian Hall on February 24, and showed himself a refined and artistic violinist. Dr. Walford Davies's Sonata in D minor for violin and pianoforte and a Mozart Sonata were played, with Dr. Davies at the keyboard. Mr. Percy Kahn accompanied.

Madame Emily Thornfield's song recital at the Steinway Hall on March 3 was out of the beaten track in several respects,—the programme lasted but little more than an hour, the songs were sung in English, and the singer's words were plainly heard. Madame Thornfield's performance throughout showed her to be an artist of wide sympathies.

A fine performance of Brahms's Trio in C minor was the principal feature of the London Trio's fourth concert at Æolian Hall on March 3. Mr. Whitehouse played a Boccherini Sonata; Madame Goodwin and M. Pécskai joined forces in Schumann's Sonata in D minor, and Miss Hart-Soper sang songs by Mozart, Kjerulf, and Grieg. There was a large audience.

The Oxford House Musical Association, Bethnal Green, which on previous occasions has given notably fine performances of great works, brought forward Brahms's 'Requiem' at the Queen's Hall on March 8. Again it has to be said that Mr. Cuthbert Kelly showed exceptional skill as a choir-trainer and conductor. The soloists were Miss Carrie Tubb and Mr. Herbert Heyner. Protests were made in the Press against the performance of a German work at this time. It is difficult to know where to draw the line. Our own feeling is that this 'Requiem' should not be barred.

CLASSICAL CONCERT SOCIETY.

Two concerts of exceptional interest have been given by this Society to full audiences. On March 10 Dr. Henschel conducted a small orchestra in performances of such rarely heard symphonies as C. Ph. E. Bach's in D minor, and Mozart's in A major. Madame Suggia gave a delightful performance of Haydn's Violoncello concerto in D major. Other items were the 'Siegfried' Idyll, and an extract from Henschel's 'Hamlet' music.

On March 17 the first English performance took place of Maurice Ravel's 'Trois Poëmes de Stéphane Mallarmé,' for soprano, with accompaniment of two flutes, two clarinets, string quartet, and pianoforte. The chief interest in the work was provided by the delicate patches of instrumental colour. Of melody there was little, as might be expected from such a source, and the harmony was by turns nebulous and, to our thinking, monotonous. Madame Jane Bathori-Engel sang the ungrateful vocal part most artistically, and Mr. Thomas Beecham conducted. A violent contrast was provided by Dr. Ethel Smyth's Four Songs with accompaniment of flute, violin, viola, violoncello, harp, and percussion. This composer's methods at times—notably in the 'Anacreontic Ode'—are as straightforward and emphatic as Ravel's are vague and suggestive. The Songs were conducted by the composer. The London String Quartet gave finished performances of Schubert's 'Quartet Satz' in C minor, H. Waldo Warner's Phantasy in D, and Glazounov's Quartet in D minor.

ORIANA MADRIGAL SOCIETY.

This choir gave a concert at the Westminster Cathedral Hall on March 11. The programme was, as usual, well chosen and refreshingly unconventional. Items that one rarely has an opportunity of hearing were Byrd's fine Madrigal 'In fields abroad,' Ravenscroft's amusing arrangement of 'Willy, prithee go to bed,' and the Sea-chanty 'Bully in our alley,' arranged for bass solo and chorus. Modern English choral music was well to the fore with Parry's 'My delight and thy delight,' Stanford's 'Blue Bird' (a beautiful piece of descriptive writing), 'Wilderspin,' two Northumbrian pipe-tunes arranged for unaccompanied singing (without words) by W. G. Whittaker, 'How should I your true love know' (traditional), arranged for female voices by H. Balfour Gardiner, and Vaughan Williams's rousing setting for men's voices of the folk-song 'Ward, the Pirate.' An interesting and effective item was Liszt's 'By the waters of Babylon,' for soprano solo (Miss Beatrice Hughes-Pope), female choir, violin solo (Miss Marian Jay), and pianoforte. The work of the Society showed no falling-off from the high standard of its reputation. Mr. C. Kennedy Scott conducted.

The Arundel Male-Voice Choir gave a concert at the Holborn Restaurant on March 15, when an interesting selection of old and new madrigals and part-songs was excellently sung. Mr. Robert Hart conducted.

THOMAS DUNHILL CONCERTS.

Regret would have been felt in chamber music circles had these Concerts been allowed to lapse owing to the War. This year's scheme has so far been exceptionally interesting. At the first concert R. H. Walthew's G major Trio, McEwen's Phantasy String quartet, and Brahms's G minor Pianoforte quartet were played. Mr. Plunket Greene sang a group of songs by Sir Charles Stanford to the composer's accompaniment.

The second concert was devoted to works by members of the Society of Women Musicians. The programme included Miss Ethel Bilsland's Serenade for pianoforte and strings, Miss Katharine Eggar's Quintet in D minor, three Violin studies by Miss Marion Scott, and Madame Liza Lehmann's 'In memoriam' Cycle (sung by Mr. George Baker). Miss Helen Egerton and the Egerton Quartet were the executants.

At the third concert the programme was decidedly lively. Elgar's Serenade for strings, Parry's attractive 'Lady Radnor' Suite, and a Dance Suite by Mr. Dunhill, were the chief items. The last-named work showed elegance of style and a fresh treatment of old forms. It contains some dainty tunes. Miss Lilian McCarthy sang Mr. Dunhill's songs with great charm, Mr. Harold Darke played his own Variations on a Beethoven theme, and Miss Jessie Stewart gave a sympathetic performance of the Adagio of Bach's Concerto in E.

LONDON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA.

The eleventh series of Symphony Concerts arranged by this Orchestra commenced on March 22. The programme consisted of three Symphonies—a somewhat forbidding arrangement at first sight. The works chosen, however, being the delightful No. 4 of Beethoven, the C minor of Haydn, and the 'Rhenish' of Schumann, the result was exhilarating. M. Savonov conducted, and the band was in splendid form.

Suburban Concerts.

The Fulham and District Choral Society has introduced to London choral circles a conductor who is well known in the North. Mr. J. C. Clarke is no novice, and his success with the Southport Choral Society and the Southport Male-Voice Choir has proved his ability with both orchestra and choir and his capacity to tackle modern music. The Fulham Society gave an excellent concert at the Town Hall on March 11. The programme included the concert-version of 'Merrie England' (E. German), and an interesting miscellaneous selection. Miss Florence Fleming, Miss May Peters, Mr. John Collett, and Mr. George Baker were the solo-singers.

The excellent choral and orchestral Societies (numbering together 220 performers) connected with the People's Palace, London, E., gave brilliant performances of 'A tale of Old Japan' and 'The Revenge' on March 13. Mr. Frank Idle conducted in his usual inspiriting manner.

The Balham Strollers Operatic Society, instead of the usual costume performance, gave a concert recently, devoting part of the profits to charity and part to the payment of the professional singers engaged. The programme included Dunhill's 'Tubal Cain,' and German's 'Princess of Kensington' (concert version). Both these popular works were given with orchestral accompaniment. Mr. Sidney Physick conducted.

The string orchestra of the Croydon Conservatoire of Music gave a concert on February 26. The instrumental features were Handel's Concerto for strings in D minor, Arnold Krug's Serenade for strings (Op. 34), and two of Percy Grainger's arrangements. Mr. W. H. Reed conducted.

The Bromley Choral Society has been keeping music going. At a recent concert it gave Elgar's 'Banner of St. George,' with orchestra. Mr. Frederic Fertel conducted.

Music in the Provinces.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

BIRMINGHAM.

The various concerts provided for this season are gradually coming to a conclusion. Meanwhile a number of special musical functions in aid of War funds and Belgian Refugees funds have sprung up in all directions, but are more or less devoid of real musical interest. It is gratifying to be able to record that the Birmingham Chamber Concerts Society has just concluded a most successful season of Chamber Concerts under Mr. Gerald Forty's able direction, and the Society's future is now assured, thanks to the magnificent playing of the Catterall String Quartet. The last concerts were given on February 16 and March 16. At the former the programme consisted of Beethoven's String quartet in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2; Hugo Wolf's 'Italian Serenade'; and César Franck's String quartet in D major; and at the latter Haydn's String quartet in C major, Brahms's String quartet in C minor, and Beethoven's 'Serenade' Trio were performed. With such an artistic musical organization as the Catterall String Quartet, the performances throughout reached a high level of musical art, characterized by unanimity, true sense of rhythm, and delightful tone-colour. These concerts were given in the room of the Royal Society of Artists. The Birmingham Choral Union gave Coleridge-Taylor's ever-popular 'Hiawatha' Trilogy in the Town Hall on February 20, under Mr. Richard Wassell's able conductorship. He had excellently prepared the work, the performance vividly bringing out the descriptive character of the music, so strongly imbued with prairie life, with all its deep-felt touches of pathos and gaiety. The choir was in excellent form, producing a fine volume of sound and gradation of light and shade of artistic tendency. The orchestra too was better than usual, and infused a good deal of dramatic power into its playing. The principals—Miss Eva Rich, Mr. Arthur Jordan, and Mr. Frank Macnamara—did excellent work. Mr. C. W. Perkins was the organist.

The last Harrison Concert was given in the Town Hall on March 1, the attraction being the London Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Sir Edward Elgar. It was by far the best concert heard this season, indeed one of the best heard at Birmingham for some time past. Sir Edward gave a delightful and thoroughly impressive reading of Beethoven's 'Prometheus' Overture, Mozart's dainty Serenade for strings, in G, better known as 'Eine kleine Nachtmusik,' Dvorák's Symphony 'From the New World,' and his own now famous 'Carillon,' the poem to which was graphically declaimed by Miss Constance Collier. The eminent Belgian pianist M. Arthur de Greef played Saint-Saëns's Pianoforte concerto in G minor with consummate artistic skill, and later he introduced his own 'Fantasia' on old Flemish folk-songs, written for pianoforte and orchestra, a pianistic piece of work of much brilliance.

In aid of the Prince of Wales's Fund, Mr. Richard Wassell gave an orchestral concert in the Town Hall on March 6. He had a complete orchestra of about sixty performers under his beat, who gave lucid and rhythmically strongly marked performances of the second and third movements of Tchaikovsky's 'Pathetic' Symphony, Elgar's 'Pomp and Circumstance' March No. 1, Sibelius's charming 'Valse Triste,' Järnefeldt's sparkling 'Preludium,' and the 'Peer Gynt' Suite. The Wassell Male-Voice choir and the Ladies' choir, two of the finest musical organizations in the Midlands, secured a great success with their magnificent singing of part-songs. The remarkably gifted boy pianist, Master Frank Stanley Shale, improves at each hearing, and on this occasion gave quite a scholarly and technically excellent performance of Chopin's first Ballade in G minor, Rachmaninov's 'Prelude,' and Debussy's 'Second Arabesque.' Mr. Alfred Askey gave a stirring interpretation of Elgar's 'A War Song' and a new song by Mr. Wassell, 'The Royal Standard,' a martial and spirited composition, effectively orchestrated.

The New Philharmonic Orchestral Society, conducted by Mr. H. M. Stevenson, jun., gave an orchestral concert in the Town Hall on March 4 in aid of the St. John Ambulance Voluntary Aid Detachments. The principal orchestral item was Tchaikovsky's fifth Symphony in E minor, Op. 64, the performance of which was not without merit; indeed in some instances, notably the Andante Cantabile, the orchestra realised excellent effects. Mr. Frank Mullings and Miss Florence Parker-Derby sang the great Love-duet from 'Lohengrin,' accompanied by the orchestra, and Mr. Mullings also contributed the 'Narration' and the 'Farewell' from 'Lohengrin,' achieving an enormous success. His magnificent voice completely filled the Town Hall. The Birmingham Madrigal Singers, conducted by Miss Winifred Kingsford, also took part in the concert, their efforts being restricted to a madrigal, some part-songs, and the Bridal Chorus from 'Lohengrin.' The voices are fresh and pleasing in tone-quality, and the ensemble denoted careful training.

The last Max Mossell Drawing Room Concert of the present series was given in the Grosvenor Room, Grand Hotel, on March 11. It was an excellent concert, one of the best of the series, in which the accomplished Russian pianist M. Benno Moiseivitch, the Australian violinist Miss Daisy Kennedy, and Miss Jean Waterston, vocalist, took part. Mr. G. H. Manton was the accompanist. Among the younger generation of contemporary pianists M. Moiseivitch holds a position of high rank, for he is a performer possessing remarkable interpretative gifts and a technique as facile as it is flawless.

The Birmingham Choral and Orchestral Association gave a performance of 'Messiah' under Mr. Joseph H. Adams's conductorship. The large audience present in the Town Hall on March 13 to hear this favourite oratorio received each number with unbounded applause, no regard being paid to the religious character of the work. The choristers sang with much fervour and fine tone-quality; indeed they never rendered better service, and the orchestra too played well. Mr. C. W. Perkins was at the organ, admirably supporting the choristers. The principal parts were effectively interpreted by Madame Laura Taylor, Miss Florence England, Mr. Albert C. Benson, and Mr. Harry Horner.

Under the auspices of the Croix-Rouge de Belgique a concert was given in the Town Hall on March 15 by Belgian Artists in aid of the British Society for the Relief of Belgian Wounded Soldiers in the United Kingdom, which was well attended. In addition to the Belgian contingent, Miss Katrina Lund, Miss Muriel Hall, and Miss Winifred Taylor, all of Birmingham, contributed to the programme.

BOURNEMOUTH.

The winter concerts have well-nigh run their course, for now there is left rather more than four weeks only ere the curtain descends upon what must be considered, despite the abnormal conditions, a very successful season. Our immediate concern, however, is with the doings of the past month, and here we find several features that have added to the interest of the winter's record.

Madame Ada Crossley at an Ash Wednesday sacred concert was bound to appeal to a large section of the public; such, indeed, was the case, and the large audience was rewarded by some delightfully pure and stylish singing on the part of the popular contralto. An 'Anglo-Russian' concert was given on the Saturday following by the Muscovite violinist, Zacharevitsch. His very able performances were somewhat discounted by the circumstance that his principal contributions consisted of movements from concertos with pianoforte accompaniment; why not have replaced these artificial conditions by a couple of good sonatas? The reappearance of Miss Stella Carol, hardly any longer the prodigy child with a strikingly fresh voice, was an occasion for interested curiosity; unhappily, work of probably too strenuous a nature for one so young has seemingly left its mark. Associated with Miss Carol were Miss Jeanette Sherwin (reciter), Mr. Edward Graeme-Browne (flautist), Mlle. Tarli and Mr. Lyon Mackie (vocalists), and Miss Malvern (accompanist); but, excepting the two first-named, it cannot be said that the performers showed any evidence of having advanced beyond the novitiate stage. Mr. and the Hon. Mrs. Julian Clifford's annual concert, assisted by the Municipal Orchestra under Mr. Dan Godfrey's direction, took place on February 27. The Harrogate conductor was quite in his best form at the pianoforte, and Mrs. Clifford sang in her usual stylish manner. On March 6 Mr. W. H. Squire gave an orchestral concert, and had no difficulty in pleasing his audience with some charmingly played violoncello compositions. Mr. Frederick Dawson also had the assistance of the Orchestra on March 13, when this first-rate pianist played the Rimsky-Korsakov Concerto and Saint-Saëns's 'Africa' with unusual verve and resource. The really outstanding feature of the month, however, has been the Municipal Choir and Orchestra's performance of Elgar's 'Dream of Gerontius.' The writer of these notes was unfortunately prevented from being present, so that no remarks upon the event are possible; there is, however, unanimity of opinion regarding the success of the undertaking. The soloists were Miss Phyllis Lett, Mr. Herbert Brown, and Mr. Alfred Heather (in the absence, through indisposition, of Mr. Gervase Elwes); Mr. Godfrey conducted.

The continued attractiveness of the Symphony Concerts, in spite of the embargo on the works of living Teutonic composers, affords indirect proof of a much discussed postulate, namely, the rapid decline in value, as a whole, of German-made music since the death of Brahms and of Wagner. Recent concerts in the series now under review have yielded several capital performances, and a number of acceptable compositions, of which the following were the chief: 'Barber of Bagdad' Overture (Cornelius);

Beethoven's 'Eroica' Symphony and 'Consecration of the House' Overture; Elgar's 'Froissart' Overture; Tchaikovsky's fourth Symphony; Goldmark's 'In spring' Overture; Arthur Somervell's 'Thalassa' Symphony; Saint-Saëns's 'Danse Macabre'; Schubert's 'Unfinished' Symphony; Debussy's 'L'Après-midi d'un Faune'; and a Suite de Ballet by Gustav von Holst (first performance at these concerts). The soloists have been Mr. Alexander Rossi, a local performer (Vieuxtemps's Violin concerto in D minor); Mr. Julian Clifford (Pianoforte concerto in G minor by Saint-Saëns); Mr. Felix Salmond, in a Violoncello concerto by O'Connor-Morris (first performance, conducted by the composer); and Mr. Frederick Dawson (Liszt's Pianoforte concerto in E flat).

Many differing schools and phases of the musical art have also been represented in the programmes of the Monday 'Pops,' of which we here give a short summary of the principal details: February 15, Russian music—'Capriccio Espagnole' by Rimsky-Korsakov; 'Gopak,' by Moussorgsky; 'Carneval' Overture by Glazounov; Two movements from Borodin's second String quartet (played with much delicacy by Messrs. Whitaker, Solomon, De la Riviere, and Hend. Wolters, members of the Orchestra. February 22, Beethoven programme—Pianoforte concerto in C, executed in sparkling fashion by Mr. Thomas Egerton, an ex-scholar of the Bournemouth School of Music. March 1, Mendelssohn programme—'Ruy Blas' Overture; 'The Hebrides' Overture; Nocturne and Scherzo from 'A Midsummer Night's Dream'; 'Capriccio Brillante' for pianoforte and orchestra, capitally played by Miss Stella Williams, who also contributed some solos which were extraneous to the scheme; song, 'I'm a Roamer,' in which Mr. J. H. Scotland was heard to advantage. March 8, 'Evolution of the Suite'—Suite in G minor by J. S. Bach (1685-1750); First Suite by Lachner (1803-1890); 'Scenes Napolitaines' by Massenet (1842-1912); 'Scheherazade' by Rimsky-Korsakov (1844-1908). March 15, British Music—Overture 'Le Deserteur,' by King Hall, leader of the Municipal Orchestra, who conducted his composition; Elgar's 'Enigma' Variations; Suite, 'Sakura,' by Percy Pitt, conducted by the composer; Tone-poem, 'In the East,' by Arthur Hervey; Sullivan's songs, 'Orpheus with his lute' and 'Where the bee sucks,' sung with pleasant vocal tone by Miss Nora Reed, of Bournemouth. At the twenty-second concert of this series some songs outside the precise limitations of the programme were contributed by Mr. Tom Brown, a local artist, whose efforts met with well-deserved encouragement.

BRISTOL.

At Redland Park Church, on February 17, there was a large congregation to hear A. R. Gaul's 'The Holy City,' sung by a choir of seventy voices. The principal vocalists were Miss May Cotterell, Miss Isabel Weir, Mr. H. B. Lovell, and Mr. S. W. Smith. Mr. S. J. Bayliss was at the organ, Miss Mabel Bartlett at the pianoforte, and Mr. C. W. Casley directed the performance, which was much appreciated.

In connection with St. Bartholomew's Literary Society, Dr. Norman Sprankling gave a lecture-recital upon 'Liszt's Pianoforte music,' in the Parish Hall, on February 20. There was a crowded audience, which recognized heartily the interesting lecture and the performance of several compositions of Liszt by Dr. Sprankling.

A miscellaneous concert was given on March 3 in the Hall of the Y.M.C.A. at Knowle. An agreeable programme was presented by Miss Amy Perry and Miss Blanche Padden (vocalists), Miss Ethel Cockle (elocutionist), and Miss Lavinia Prideaux and Miss Amy Arscott, who played duets on two pianofortes. Miss Ethel Tammadge was the accompanist.

On March 8, Mr. Hubert W. Hunt gave a chamber concert in the principal saloon of the Royal West of England Academy, Clifton. The works performed were Mendelssohn's Quartet in E flat (Op. 12), Beethoven's Quartet in B flat (Op. 130), including the seldom-played fugue in the last movement, and the Quintet in F (Op. 88) by Brahms. The players were Miss Avice Sealy, Miss Gladys Horne and Miss Hilda Barr, and Messrs. H. W. Hunt and Rodger Bucknall. The important productions were interpreted with considerable skill, and the hearers, who included some professional musicians, testified their appreciation by frequent applause.

At Bristol Musical Club, on March 13, Mr. Hubert W. Hunt read a paper entitled 'Musical Milestones,' written for the local branch of the Incorporated Society of Musicians. The Milestones commenced 300 years ago, and the reader stopped at the Milestone of each subsequent century, pointing out peculiarities in the works of different composers and illustrating them at the pianoforte. Discussion was invited at the close of the paper, and Mr. D. W. Rootham voiced the thanks of the audience to Mr. Hunt, as well as to Mr. James Baker, who presided.

The concert given by the Clifton Quintet at the Royal West of England Academy, on March 15, was devoted entirely to Russian music. Glazounov's Quartet in D minor (Op. 70), for strings, and Tanéïèv's Quintet in C minor (Op. 30) for pianoforte and strings, were excellently played, and produced a great impression upon the large audience. Mr. Herbert Parsons played pianoforte solos—Rachmaninov's two Preludes, respectively in D minor and B flat major,—and his ability was recognized by a hearty recall, when he played by way of an encore the same composer's best-known Prelude. The other soloist, Mr. Maurice Alexander, contributed for his display on the violin Tchaikovsky's 'Valse scherzo' (Op. 34), which he executed with fine effect, and being summoned again to the platform he gratified by a tasteful performance of a Melodie by the composer.

CAMBRIDGE.

The University Musical Society concert on March 12 was under the circumstances a gratifying success both musically and financially, and in view of the support given by members and subscribers the committee decided to hold another concert next term. Usually no concert is given in the Lent term, and the one proposed for the May term is therefore an additional one. The items decided to be performed were Beethoven's Violin concerto, a Bach Suite, and a series of short choral works by Dr. Rootham.

The members of the University Musical Club held their final concert on Saturday, March 13, when the programme consisted for the most part of works by Russian composers. The sympathies of most of the younger musicians of the University as exemplified in the programmes of the various College clubs have tended this term towards the modern school, particularly the Russian.

DEVON AND CORNWALL.

PLYMOUTH.

King Street Wesleyan Junior Choir, by winning many trophies in local competitions, has gained a high place in the estimation of its public, and at its annual concert on March 24 Mr. Harry Woodward, the persevering trainer, conducted his forces through an ambitious programme with creditable if not unqualified success. Two pieces by Elgar,—'The snow' and a 'Lullaby'—were among the best. 'Night-time,' by Granville Bantock, was another good number, and pieces by Horrocks and Miller were included, duets and solos being contributed also by members of the choir.

The Plymouth Orpheus Male Choir sang many of the best pieces in its répertoire on March 3, for patriotic purposes. War-songs by Maunder, Cowen, Stanford, de Rille, and Gounod were varied by part-songs by Bantock, Buck, Abt, and Cook. Mr. David Parkes conducted.

On March 10 M. Zacharevitsch, at a musical matinée in the Theatre Royal, played movements from the Tchaikovsky and Elgar Concertos for violin, with Miss Adela Hamaton at the pianoforte. The pianist introduced to Plymouth a Sonata in B flat minor by Balakirev, playing the Intermezzo and Finale. The music created a sense of bewilderment, but also a desire to hear it again. Miss Ethel Bilsland was the vocalist.

Two war cantatas, 'The United Kingdom' and 'Flags of the Nations,' were performed with spectacular effects on February 27 by Connaught House School League of Young Patriots, the singing being spirited and tuneful.

The most important event of the month was the second concert on March 10 of the Plymouth Madrigal Society, the conductor of which is Dr. Harold Lake. In spite of short experience it ventured into the Guildhall, and gave a thoroughly enjoyable programme. The size of the hall did not tempt the choralists—who numbered between sixty and seventy only—to force their tone; but with ease and naturalness of production they ensured a carrying power which was more effective than volume. Niceties of light and shade and clear enunciation added to the attractiveness of their interpretations of madrigals and folk-songs in old and new forms by Orlando di Lassus, Caldecott, Bantock, Dunhill, Boughton, and a chorus by Tchaikovsky. They were inclined now and again to exaggerate the expression on the soft side, and on occasion a little more vitality in the attack would have increased dramatic effect. The progress made by this Society during two seasons of study has been remarkable, and it has become an essential element in the town. During the concert the Society was assisted by M. Arthur de Greef, pianoforte, Miss Carmen Hill, vocalist, and Mr. Percy Lowman, violin.

TORQUAY.

The public filling Torquay Musical Pavilion is an enthusiastic and discriminatingly appreciative audience, and has evidenced in practical ways its satisfaction with the high-class fare which has been provided during February and March. It gave a warm welcome to M. Sapellnikov on February 13, when he played the Tchaikovsky Pianoforte concerto in B flat minor, the orchestra, conducted by Mr. Basil Cameron, performing its share very artistically. M. Anton Maaskov played Bach's Violin concerto in A minor. On February 20 Sir Frederic H. Cowen conducted a concert of his own compositions and the 'Oberon' Overture; and on February 25 Mendelssohn's Pianoforte concerto in G minor was performed, with Mrs. W. H. Mortimer as soloist, and also Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 5. At the eighth Symphony Concert, on March 3, Brahms in C minor was played, and Miss Daisy Kennedy co-operated with the orchestra in Saint-Saëns's Concerto in B minor for violin. Mr. Julian Clifford gave a pianoforte recital on March 6, and Miss Isolde Menges appeared in a programme of violin music on March 13. Kalinnikov's Symphony received an impressive interpretation from Mr. Cameron and his players on March 17, and concerted music for solo violoncello was given with the assistance of Miss Thelma Bentwich.

OTHER DEVONSHIRE TOWNS.

At the Barnstaple Musical Festival Society's annual meeting it was stated that the accounts showed an adverse balance of £9 10s. 9d., though large sums had been raised for charitable purposes. Dr. H. J. Edwards was re-elected conductor.

At Exeter, on February 23, a concert in aid of Belgian Funds was given by Belgian and French operatic artists.

Gaul's 'Joan of Arc' was sung with orchestral accompaniment by Dawlish Choral Society on March 8, conducted by Mr. J. F. King. Mr. Stanley Chipperfield, assisted by Mrs. W. Oxley (vocalist) and Miss R. Lansdown (violin) gave an organ recital at Ottery St. Mary on March 10; and at Exeter, on March 17, Mons. F. de Bourguignon in a recital of pianoforte music presented pieces by Beethoven, Chopin, Debussy, de Bourguignon, de Greef, and Saint-Saëns.

CORNWALL.

St. Day Choral Society, in spite of the difficulties of country conditions and special circumstances, has made great efforts to maintain the regularity of its rehearsals, and on February 16 gave a programme of part-songs in a manner which did it credit. The Rev. W. W. Bickford conducted, and pieces by Parry and Stanford were interspersed with songs for female voices, duets, and quartets.

Stithians Male Choir, conducted by Mr. J. H. Bowden, gave a concert for charitable purposes on March 4; and Gunnislake Male Choir has been conspicuously energetic during the winter on behalf of charities, and at its concert on March 9, at Lanhargy, conducted by Mr. W. T. Thomas, was assisted by an orchestra under Mr. A. Preston.

At Delabole, on March 10, St. Teath United Methodist Church Choir gave a service of song for the Belgian Relief Fund.

DUBLIN.

At the Royal Dublin Society the last chamber music recital for the season was given on February 22, when the Wessely Quartet played Stanford's Quartet in D minor, Op. 64 (a first performance at Dublin), and Smetana's Quartet 'From my life.' Mr. Hans Wessely and Dr. Esposito played César Franck's beautiful Sonata in A major, a work which has not often been played here.

The Æolian Choir (conductor, Mr. Thomas H. Weaving) recently gave a performance of Gade's 'The Crusaders' at the Gresham Hotel. Mr. T. W. Hall was the soloist. Miss Molly Keegan made her first appearance as vocalist since she won the open scholarship at the R.C.M., where she originally went as the winner of the Ladies' Committee Prize at the Feis Ceoil of 1912.

Mr. Melfort D'Alton, our leading tenor vocalist and vicar-choral at St. Patrick's Cathedral, has taken a commission in the Loyal North Lancashires, and is at present stationed at Boscombe.

Mr. George Hewson, organist and choirmaster at the Castle Chapel, has recently taken the Mus. Doc. degree, and Mr. John F. Larchet, musical director at the Abbey Theatre, has taken the Mus. Bac. degree, both at Trinity College, Dublin.

GLASGOW.

On February 23 the Bach Choir gave a programme of British music ranging from the 13th century to the present day. The chief interest centred in the music performed, although the performance also was in most cases very good. Mr. F. Boothroyd's excellent playing on the pianoforte of pieces by Gibbons, Bull, Byrd, Purcell, &c., deserves special mention.

The Glasgow University Choral Society concert took place on March 1. Mr. A. M. Anderson, the conductor, is always singularly fortunate in the outside help which he secures, and on the present occasion the singing of Miss Helen Henschel and Mr. Maurice D'Oisly gave distinction to the programme. The choral numbers, selected with fine taste, were sung with good effect, the most successful being Tchaikovsky's eight-part motet, 'Angel spirits ever blessed.' Mr. Henderson's playing of two groups of pianoforte solos gave the necessary variety to the vocal programme.

The only other events to be recorded are the Harrison Concert on March 5 (London Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Sir Edward Elgar), and a three weeks' season of the Royal Carl Rosa Opera Company, a feature of which was the unusually good orchestra employed.

LIVERPOOL.

Two items in the programme of the tenth Philharmonic Concert on February 23 stood out prominently. These were Schubert's 'Unfinished' Symphony, conducted by Mr. Landon Ronald, and Chopin's E minor Pianoforte concerto, which was played by M. Sapellnikov, whose performance was chiefly compelling in its technical mastery over the external demands of the music rather than in the expression of its inner sentiment. In his singing of Stanford's spirited 'Sea-Songs,'—'Drake's Drum' and 'The Old Superb,'—Mr. Herbert Heyner was heard to less advantage than in Verdi's 'Eri tu,' which was finely sung. Goldmark's melodious Overture 'In Spring,' and Stanford's fine 'Irish Rhapsody' No. 1, completed the scheme, with the assistance of the choir, which sang Mendelssohn's four 'Open Air Songs,' Op. 41, with no special impressiveness.

At the eleventh concert, on March 9, Mendelssohn's 'Walpurgis Night' was bracketed with a far greater work, Beethoven's 'Choral Symphony,' of which a really fine performance was conducted by Sir George Henschel. His direction of the colossal work was marked by breadth and forcefulness as well as careful and intimate finish of detail, and in the Finale the choir quite rose to the occasion with a vigour and staying-power that spoke of the quality of Lancashire throats. Mr. R. H. Wilson's work in preparation had evidently been conscientiously done. The vocal soloists in both works were Miss Edith McCullagh, Miss Hilda Cragg-James, two artistic local singers, and Mr. John Booth and Mr. Herbert Heyner.

Sir Edward Elgar's contribution to 'King Albert's Book,' 'Carillon,' with Miss Constance Collier as reciter of M. Cammaerts's heroic poem, the outcome of Belgium's unexampled national misfortunes, made a deep impression at the performance which the composer conducted on March 2, the occasion of Mr. Percy Harrison's fourth and final concert. There was an intensely sympathetic audience, and the work was repeated with increased effect in response to an undeniable encore. As a musical expression of the poet's fervent lines the 'Carillon' is no less happy in conception than in its novelty of treatment and orchestral mastery. It is surely a model of successful combination of the speaking voice with instrumental accompaniment. After this glowing work the rest of the programme left one cold, although the London Symphony Orchestra was the interpreter of Beethoven's 'Prometheus' Overture and of Dvorák's 'From the New World'; and it must not go unnoted that M. Arthur de Greef was heard to great advantage as pianist in Saint-Saens's sparkling G minor Pianoforte concerto, and less so as a composer of a Fantasia on old Flemish folk-songs for pianoforte and orchestra.

Madrigals of the Elizabethan School and Stanford's choral song 'The Last Post' were agreeable features of Mr. Adrian Boult's fifth popular concert in the Sun Hall, on February 17. These were sung by members of the Philharmonic Society's choir, who were fully responsive to Mr. Boult's clear beat. Grieg's Pianoforte concerto served to introduce an accomplished American pianist, Mrs. Pollender-Roper, who played with great skill. At the sixth and closing concert, on February 24, Dr. Vaughan Williams's clever Overture, 'The Wasps,' was repeated by desire, and M. Van Damme, an excellent Belgian musician long resident at Liverpool, played the solo in Saint-Saëns's Violoncello concerto in A minor. The vocalist was Miss Zillah Bateman. In these concerts Mr. Boult has fairly won his spurs as a conductor and interpreter not only of the great classics, but also of works by the younger school of native composers.

An interesting novelty was provided at the ninth concert of the Rodewald Concert Club on February 22, when Miss Elsie Walker (pianoforte) and Mr. Harry Mortimer (clarinet) played Brahms's two Sonatas for pianoforte and clarinet,—in F minor, Op. 120, No. 1, and in E flat, Op. 120, No. 2,—melodious examples of experimental tone combinations which cannot be deemed entirely satisfactory. Vocal relief was provided by Miss Ethel Penhall in two groups of well-contrasted songs, which included the musicianly settings 'In a fairy boat' and 'Sunset and evening star' by Mr. F. Nicholls, who accompanied.

The tenth and closing concert of the successful series was given on March 15, when the Rawdon Briggs Quartet, assisted by Mr. S. Speelman (2nd viola), played Mendelssohn's Quintet in B flat, Op. 87, Ravel's Quartet in F major, and Beethoven's Quintet in C, Op. 29, which latter great work, crowded with beauties and contrapuntal devices of all kinds, had a steadying influence after Ravel's music, remarkable as it is in melody and atmospheric charm.

An entertainment which realised eighty pounds for the benefit of the Société de la Croix-Rouge de France was given in the theatre of the University Students' Union on February 19, at which artistic tableaux vivants and a French play were varied by some interesting musical items contributed by Miss Marguerite Stilwell (pianoforte), Mrs. Frank Jeans (violoncello), and Mr. George Burrows, a young baritone whose singing is marked by high intelligence and individuality.

The last of the special series of lectures arranged to mark the fiftieth anniversary of the Corporation free lectures at Liverpool was delivered by Sir Frederick Bridge on March 9, when this eminent musician interested an audience of 1,500 in the Picton Hall in the subject 'Milton and music' (The Masque of Comus). The Lord Mayor presided, and the musical illustrations were played by a quintet of strings assisted by Mr. H. F. Ellingford at the pianoforte, with Miss Amy Taggart and Mr. J. C. Brien as vocalists.

The Rev. J. Russell Darbyshire, vicar of St. Luke's, gave a thoughtful address before the local Organists' and Choirmasters' Association on 'The altruistic art,' especially with reference to music, which he considered peculiarly altruistic in character. Modern music seemed especially open to the charge of being only for the expert, and the apparently chaotic revolution against tradition was indicative of the fact that music, though progressing, was advancing along fallacious lines. He contended that music did not depict, and that it was æsthetically bad to make it wholly dependent upon literary interest. The best music was written on intelligible lines, with respect for directness of appeal, simplicity of means, and sublimity of end.

At the Liscard Orchestral Society's third and closing concert on March 13, a young local pianist, Miss Edith Byrom, made a highly promising début in Liszt's first Concerto, and Mr. Philip Smart conducted the large orchestra which he has kept together in a high state of efficiency. The vocalists were Miss Mary Thom and Mr. Charles Leeds.

Tchaikovsky's great Trio, Op. 50, had two performances within a week in the Yamen Concert Room—firstly, on February 19, by the Liverpool Trio,—Mr. J. P. Sheridan (violin), Mr. Walter Hatton (violoncello), and Mr. Douglas Miller (pianoforte),—three skilful players with a fine ensemble; and on February 26, when Mr. Arthur Catterall (violin), Mr. J. H. Foulds (violoncello), and Mrs. Heber Kendall, a sympathetic pianist, combined no less effectively.

The Post Office Choral Society sang Stanford's 'The Revenge,' with orchestra, conducted by Mr. Arthur Davies, at its concert in the Philharmonic Hall on March 17. The vocal principals were Miss Lilian Dillingham, Miss Hilda Cragg-James, and Mr. Herbert Teale.

At her Students' Vocal Recital in the Rushworth Hall on March 20, Miss Edina Thraves gave a short address on 'Some thoughts about singing, and the teaching of singing,' a subject upon which her success as a singer and teacher well qualify her to speak usefully.

MANCHESTER AND DISTRICT.

In what now seem the good old days of 1910-11, to have talked or suggested to the Hallé executive either that there were really accomplished conductors outside what we may call the Bayreuth School, or that a season of varied conductors could possibly be productive of any artistic good either to orchestra or public, would have been loftily dismissed as the sloppy talk of inexperienced youth. But if ever such advocacy, so airily dismissed at the time, has had a triumphant vindication, it has been in the two recent periods when, perforce, guest-conductors have appeared here; and the past season has abundantly demonstrated that not only at Hallé's, but at the 'Proms' of the Manchester Orchestra, Ltd., the public is getting accustomed to hearing conductors as it formerly heard vocalists and then instrumentalists. Audiences have gladly availed themselves of the opportunities presented by representatives of the young modern school, who play contemporary music gladly because they are temperamentally fitted for the task, just as Richter was for Bach, Beethoven, Wagner, and Brahms. As my recent articles have indicated, Hamilton Harty and Verbrugghen have emerged with flying colours at the afore-mentioned 'Proms,' whilst at Hallé's it has been manifest even to the merest tyro that no other has approached Beecham in fitness for the position of conductor and artistic director to the Hallé executive, and yet no one more than he realises the unwisdom of entrusting all the concerts to one man. This is the age of the specialist, in art as in other professions and businesses, and the public wants, and will have, the best of all sorts. Everything seems to point to Manchester having at least four young modern conductors of outstanding ability playing regularly to her audiences next winter—Beecham, Harty, Verbrugghen, and Wood (the order, be it noted, is alphabetical).

At the end of each season in recent years it has been difficult to avoid feelings of artistic depression; but I think that at the moment there is a prevalent sense that we have passed the worst, that now we begin to see daylight. Much new music has been played, and the audiences have frequently been large as well as demonstrative, and policies tried in a tentative manner have yielded results justifying their continuance.

Landon Ronald's Hallé concert on February 18 showed clearly that he approaches more nearly the Richter-Schalk ideal of conducting than any other of our present British-born men. Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 5 is of course his 'swell' work, and one would expect him to get the finest results here, but Mendelssohn's 'Ruy Blas' and the accompaniment to Saint-Saëns's Violin concerto No. 3 revealed just as clearly his tendencies towards nobility and majesty of movement.

The 'Satyrs' Dance,' by the modern Russian Ilja Satz, and orchestrated by Glière, is very easily the most brutally ugly orchestral work heard at Hallé's for many a year. Cor anglais and violas hammer away at A, whilst clarinets and violins pay constant attention to B flat and G sharp, and presently the din increases and anon percussion wades in. The battle section of Strauss's 'Heldenleben,' or Stravinsky in his most grotesque moods, are not in the hunt with Satz-Glière. Granted that a Satyrs' dance must be vividly repellent if it is to be characteristic at all, yet this can be done with more imaginative power and less realism. Whilst writing thus, I may add that I am prepared to swallow more in the way of dissonance than most folk, always provided beauty in veracity is achieved. Renée Chemet on a first appearance here speedily convinced us that she ranks to-day amongst women violinists as did Madame Norman Neruda in her palmy days. Good judges here class her as high in her department as they would Cortôt in his.

On March 4, MM. Leon Rinskov (from Ostend) and Joseph Jongen, a young Liègois composer and conductor, brought some French, Belgian, and Scandinavian music to a first hearing at Manchester: probably linguistic difficulties prevented the highest degree of achievement. The Ravel 'Pavane' was M. Rinskov's finest interpretative effort. His compatriot Théophile Ysaÿe (the violinist's brother) was presented to us in a 'Fantasia on a Walloon air,' brilliantly, even exuberantly, scored, and under the conditions played with exceptional abandon. M. Jongen's 'Liége Carol Fantasia' is much simpler stuff, comparable with much of the quiet, orderly work frequently heard at our West Country cathedral Festivals—homely, agreeable, and unaffected.

Beecham's three concerts on February 25, March 11 and 18 stand in a class by themselves, not merely in relation to what he has already done this season, but as the strongest possible disproof of the argument constantly advanced that 'Your new modern stuff' will not draw a decent gallery—the standard in vogue here. His three concerts have embraced twenty items, and half of these were unknown even to those members of the audience who are at some pains to keep in reasonably close touch with current orchestral thought. The February 25 programme was all novelty—advertised as such—and the 'gallery-gauge' showed a very high reading. On March 11 it was Wagnerian; and the Pension Fund programme was all unfamiliar save for Weber, Tchaikovsky, and Liszt's 'Hunnenschlacht' (audaciously advertised as 'Defeat of the Huns'!), and again there was scarcely any standing-room in the popular parts. If Beecham has done nothing else he has laid that bogey of 'won't pay.' The 'Sea Drift' of Delius at the Pension Fund concert enabled Manchester to make ample atonement for that black night of December, 1910, when only 250 people turned out to hear him, and it was good to have the composer there to receive the audience's hearty, if tardy, recognition of the astounding character of this work. 'Gerontius,' 'Sea Drift,' and 'Omar Khayyám' are the finest flowers of the newer choralism ever to be identified with the first decade of the 20th century. Hamilton Harris as the victor in the Beecham controversy 'trial of song' had a warm welcome, and gave the most emotional reading of the solo portion I have yet heard in this country. His purely vocal qualities have long ago earned praise. A singer who can get to the heart of his Whitman as he did is clearly marked out for higher things, if he gets the chance. Beecham departed from the printed score at several important points, presumably with the composer's consent, but I for one prefer the 'authorized' to the 'revised' version, notably in the 'Shake out Carols' section. The orchestral portion gave one intense joy the whole time; players and soloists had perfect familiarity with the work. The choir had all its work cut out to be note-perfect, still more to imbibe the subtle atmosphere of the piece. It has been sadly overworked lately, and one of the several needed reforms will secure that the season's choral scheme shall be so drafted as to secure adequate rehearsal and less haphazard introduction of choral features as the season advances.

Another wonderfully fine example of vividly dramatic singing came from Mr. Herbert Heyner (February 25) in the 'Monologue of Boris' (Act 2, 'Boris Godounov'). It is a long time since so drastic, intensely concentrated a scena has been given here. Stravinsky has once more been to the fore in Beecham's programmes; 'L'Oiseau de Feu' did not grip one quite so forcibly as the selection from 'Petrouchka.' It had more of the iridescent quality of the 'Fireworks,' and my mind was at once carried back to the wonderful exhibition here a few years ago of Monet, Dégas, and others of the modern French painters; Stravinsky's orchestral colour has all the qualities of their paint. His three 'Japanese Songs,' sung by Miss Eveline Matthews (earlier on she did some Mozart exquisitely), cannot be meant as other than a musical joke. They were both sung and received as such, and after hearing of 'Les cerisiers épanouis fêtent enfin l'arrivée du Printemps,' the audience passed out into a howling blizzard, and M. Stravinsky seemed as remote as Spring! Space will not permit of more than a passing allusion to Debussy's 'Nocturnes,' Schumann's 'Carneval' music as orchestrated for ballet purposes by divers Russian composers, Borodin's wild, orgiastic Dances, Delius's Pianoforte concerto (R. J. Forbes) or his naive 'Village Romeo and Juliet,' Wagner's 'Venusberg' music of the Paris version, positively stupefying in its sensuous abandon. We shall now await with mingled anxiety and curiosity the publication of the annual report and its results as affecting the players and artists who have so splendidly kept Manchester music going in a sense greater, perhaps, than in any other large centre in England.

The Harrison Concert on March 3 did not bring together an audience much bigger than the average at these concerts this winter. Elgar was in especially attractive mood. Particularly appealing I thought his 'Kleine Nachtmusik' (Mozart): not so delicately filigree-like as Savonov's earlier in the season, but just that admixture of virility to rescue it from seeming too pretty-pretty. M. Arthur de Greef was revealed as an infinitely greater player in Saint-Saëns's G minor Concerto than anyone would have judged from his performance at the first concert of this series. 'Elgar's 'Carillon' was encored. The performance was a brilliant one as regards the music. Miss Constance Collier recited the poem with, perhaps, hardly sufficient warmth of temperament. The outstanding surprise of the work to me was its mellow beauty, and its reticence was so marked; none of the 'Pomp and Circumstance' character, until those majestic chords by way of peroration.

The report of the concerts given for the Town Hall Committee, under Dr. J. K. Pyne's management, shows that the £100 voted towards their cost will more than suffice to meet the loss upon them. With the exception of the first, which was best of all, they were uniformly well attended, and they certainly brought before the public some neglected types of concerted music.

Assiduous practice has been the rule with the amateur orchestras of Manchester, Bolton, Oldham, Blackburn, and elsewhere, though there has been a natural decline in the number of formal concerts they have been enabled to give.

The Bolton Philharmonic Society, conducted by Mr. Charles Risegari, gave a performance of Edgar Bainton's 'Blessed Damozel' Cantata.

The Manchester District of the Tonic Sol-fa Association held its fifteenth annual Festival on March 27, in the Technical Institute of the Salford Peel Park, under the auspices of the Salford Municipal Entertainments Committee.

NEWCASTLE AND DISTRICT.

The twenty-third annual concert of the Armstrong College Choral Society was given in the Town Hall, Newcastle, on Wednesday, March 17. The occasion was notable for the performance of Byrd's unaccompanied four-part Mass, as published by Novello, in F minor. To the choir it was evidently a labour of love, and the beautifully flowing counterpoint, fine contrasts of tone, and restrained, but true expression made a profound impression upon the audience. Another work, in its way equally beautiful, was B. J. Dale's setting of Christina Rossetti's 'Before the paling of the stars.' Though removed from the Mass by more than three centuries, it was strangely akin to it in the purity of its part-writing, melodic beauty, and gently undulating themes. It breathes the same spirit of simple, reverent adoration, and makes the same deep impression upon its hearers. The choir also sang two unaccompanied Northumbrian folk-songs, skilfully arranged by the conductor, Mr. W. G. Whittaker, and Brahms's 'Gipsy songs,' Op. 103. Mr. Frederic Austin was the vocalist, and his first group of songs was selected from Sibelius, Moussorgsky, Borodin, Debussy, and Puget. The second group was by English composers,—Vaughan Williams, Roger Quilter, Frederic Austin, and Norman O'Neill. The choral accompaniments for organ and pianoforte were played by Mr. G. W. Danskin and Mr. W. T. Roan, who also gave an excellent performance of Saint-Saëns's Variations on a theme by Beethoven for two pianofortes.

The Darlington Chamber Music Society gave its fourth concert of the present season at Polum Hall on March 11, when a unique programme was presented by the members. The central feature was Bach's Concerto for two claviers and strings, of which a finely finished performance was given by Miss Jennings and Miss Pearce. The delicate phrasing and balance of tone were most artistically realised, and the audience was so charmed with the graceful music that the last two movements were repeated. Mozart's Flute quartet in A major, for flute and strings, was also played with great charm by Miss Inch and Miss Norah Bowman, Messrs. W. Richmond and B. Mills Francis. The remainder of the programme consisted of 16th- and 17th-century madrigals sung by a small, well-balanced choir. Mr. T. Henderson conducted throughout.

The Middlesbrough Musical Union gave a capital performance of Handel's 'Messiah' in the Town Hall on March 3, the soloists and orchestra being all drawn from the immediate neighbourhood. Dr. Kilburn conducted.

NOTTINGHAM AND DISTRICT.

At Gate Burton the choir, assisted by the Gainsborough Choral Society performed Brahms's 'Requiem' and Mendelssohn's 'Hymn of Praise' in the church on February 15. The treble and tenor solos were ably sung by Miss Creasy and Mr. Render (both of Lincoln), and the proceeds were for the War relief funds. Large congregations enjoyed the very effective performance.

Dr. Markham Lee gave a very interesting lecture at the University College, Nottingham, on February 18. His subject was 'Impressionism in modern music,' and the illustrations were culled from the works of MacDowell, Debussy, Ravel, Cyril Scott, and Grovlez. The High Pavement Choral Society (Nottingham) gave a performance of Cowen's 'Rose Maiden' on February 23. The work received a careful and artistic performance under the baton of Mr. Charles Lymn, assisted by Miss Edith Shipley, Mrs. Griffiths, Mr. H. W. Cooper, and Mr. E. Warner.

The last lecture of the series at the University College was given on February 25, when the lecturer was Mr. Hubert Bath, who treated his subject, 'Kaffir war dances,' with great ability, urging the importance of rhythm in music, alike in the past as the future. Some very quaint examples were given on two pianofortes, Mr. Hubert Bath and Prof. Allen Gill; the violin, Mr. Fred Mountney; the 'cello, Mr. Edwin Thorpe; and the double-bass, Mr. C. E. Twinn.

The Nottingham Sacred Harmonic Society gave a miscellaneous concert at the Albert Hall on February 25. Choral numbers were sung by the choir, including Wesley's 'When Israel came out of Egypt,' Mendelssohn's 'Hear my prayer,' and Coleridge-Taylor's 'The sea shell,' which was admirably performed. Two part-songs for female voices by Mr. Bernard Johnson proved a decided success.

Mr. Johnson's performance of Guilmant's 'Scherzo capriccioso,' in F minor, for organ, received well-merited applause, and in this he was associated with Miss Alice Hogg, who took the pianoforte part. So effective was the performance that an encore was insisted upon. Miss Hogg was also recalled for her pianoforte solo, 'Theme and variations,' by Glazounov. A spirited performance of Faning's 'Song of the Vikings' brought the concert to a brilliant conclusion. Miss Emily Shepherd was the vocalist, and was heard in Stanford's 'There 's a bower of roses, and Hemer's 'Sing me a song of a lad that 's gone,' besides undertaking the solo part in 'Hear my prayer.' Mr. Allen Gill conducted.

OXFORD.

The War is responsible for the dearth of concerts here this term; indeed, there has been only one of note, and this a 'Memorial' concert on February 25 for those who had fallen in the War, particularly of those belonging to this University and City. The Examination Schools and Town Hall having been transformed into auxiliary hospitals, the performance was given in the Sheldonian, the Oxford Bach Choir and Choral Society uniting their efforts under Dr. Allen's able direction, and giving capital performances of Sir Hubert Parry's Ode 'The glories of our blood and state,' and Verdi's 'Manzoni' Requiem. Sir Hubert's Ode, though short, is a most beautiful and effective setting of Shelley's noble poem, and the large choir sang con amore and missed none of the salient points in the work from beginning to end.

Of the Requiem it may be said at once that on the whole it was an excellent all-round performance. Trying indeed as is the work in more places than one, both choir and band braced themselves well to the task under their confident and watchful conductor. The soloists were Miss V. Salvin, Miss S. Silvers, Mr. C. Child, and Mr. F. Ranalow. The most trying of all the solo-parts is perhaps the contralto, but Miss Silvers worked thoroughly hard and well, though there were naturally slight signs of fatigue in the 'Lux æterna.' We must not omit to notice that the soprano and contralto solo-parts in the 'Agnus Dei' were most artistically sung.

The choral-singing was excellent, though the balance of the parts was hardly satisfactory. The Sanctus, a fine double-chorus, was especially well given, as was also the 'Libera me.' Beethoven's Funeral march from the 'Eroica' was played by the orchestra between the vocal items, and though often heard here, proved a relief, and also afforded a temporary rest—much needed—for the choir.

The musical lecture announced to be given on March 9 by Prof. Sir Walter Parratt on 'War music' had unfortunately to be postponed until next term.

SHEFFIELD AND DISTRICT.

An interesting revival of Purcell's 'King Arthur' music was given by the Sheffield University Musical Society under the direction of Dr. Coward. The choice of this work, together with Bach's 'God's time is best,' performed at the same concert, indicates an intention on the part of the Society to devote attention to music of archaic or specialized interest—a function essentially suitable to what is primarily an educational body. Purcell's setting of Dryden's irrelevant intermezzi makes no severe demands on the actual technique of the performers; but the work calls for an artistic and well-judged estimate of proportions and treatment, elements which were for the most part present in a performance of considerable merit. A few cuts were made, but the main scenes were given intact. The famous Frost Scene was excellently presented by all concerned, and the familiar selections 'Come, if you dare,' 'Fairest Isle,' and 'Two daughters of this ancient stream' made their full effect. The performers, mainly amateurs, sang, in solo and chorus, with both enthusiasm and understanding. The orchestra, led by Mr. G. E. Linfoot, was thoroughly capable. The Bach Cantata, if less successful from a choral standpoint than was the Purcell work, was given a reverent performance, well thought out and of constant interest. The Bach idiom and technique are not easily acquired, but Dr. Coward may be relied upon to educate his small but zealous choir to do justice to both. The antique orchestration was transferred to modern instruments. The wood-wind in particular played extremely well, and the strings, led by Mr. Allan Smith (principal viola), were adequate. Mrs. Patten played the continuo part on the pianoforte. Between the two choral works Miss Eleanor Coward sang a Bach aria and Mr. Collin Smith gave an artistic performance of Bach's Suite in G major for violoncello alone.

The Sheffield Promenade Concerts have been resumed in a somewhat abbreviated form, only three concerts being given, all conducted by Mr. J. A. Rodgers. At the first the Symphony was Dvorák's 'From the New World,' which is having such a general vogue just now. In the West Riding of Yorkshire at least six important performances have been given in the space of a few months. The Concerto was Lalo's 'Symphonie Espagnole,' the soloist being that gifted violinist, M. Anton Maaskov, who also gave a scholarly performance of Bach's 'Chaconne.' Some Russian music was brought forward at the second concert. Liadov's Tableau Musical 'Baba-Yaga' is now rapidly finding its way into British orchestral programmes. Its bizarre 'programme' and piquant scoring captivated the audience, who asked for a repetition. A different type of Russian music was heard in Glazounov's first Concert Valse in D. The orchestra played with point and finish in Mozart's 'Jupiter' Symphony, and some picturesque French music. Miss Kathleen Bruckshaw played with tasteful judgment and a beautiful touch in Mendelssohn's Pianoforte concerto in G minor. At the third concert the Symphony was Beethoven's 'Pastoral,' and the Concerto, Tchaikovsky's in B flat minor, with M. Benno Moiseivitch as soloist. The playing of the orchestra has shown a consistent advance due to a growing cohesion, and further improvements in the personnel of what is now a fine and thoroughly equipped body.

The Chesterfield Musical Union visited Sheffield to sing at a concert given in the Albert Hall by the Sheffield Symphony Orchestra. Mr. J. F. Staton conducted a spirited performance of Bridge's 'The Flag of England,' and secured some careful and effective playing from the amateur orchestra in the Ballade from Frederic Cliffe's Symphony in G minor and in other works.

The Barnsley St. Cecilia Society successfully contended against War conditions, and substituting the 'Hymn of Praise' for a couple of modern works originally chosen, gave a successful concert under their new conductor, Mr. H. N. Horton, organist of the parish church. The choir regained much of its one-time high merit, and with the revival of choral enthusiasm in its ranks may look forward to a new lease of life. An excellent orchestra played the Symphony, Bennett's Overture 'The Naiades,' and other compositions. Miss Clytie Hine and Mr. Sydney Coltham were the soloists.

YORKSHIRE.

LEEDS.

The Saturday Orchestral Concert on February 20 ended a season which to all appearances has been the most successful since these concerts were first established. The problem of making them pay their way without the aid of the subsidy which the Town Council now refuses to grant, and at cheap prices, has been a difficult one, but it seems that they have at last turned the corner, and it is announced that a small profit on the season has been made. The programme on the above occasion was an attractive one; Mr. Fricker gave a good performance of Tchaikovsky's 'Pathetic' Symphony, and a novelty to Leeds was introduced in the shape of César Franck's 'Les Djinns,' the solo pianoforte part being very artistically played by Miss Kathleen Frise Smith. Rhapsodies by Liszt and Dvorák, and Debussy's 'Prélude à l'après-midi d'un faune,' were among the salient features of the concert, which was attended by a very large audience. On February 22 Mr. Louis Edger gave a pianoforte recital, the programme of which contained two specially interesting things: the complete series of Chopin's 'Twenty-four preludes' (Op. 48), and Balakirev's famous 'Islamey' Fantasia, of which Liszt thought so highly. The great technical requirements of the music were most successfully met by the soloist, whose executive powers are quite exceptional. On February 27 the Leeds Choral Union gave a popular concert in aid of War charities, and under Dr. Coward choruses from 'Israel in Egypt,' and some portions of Elgar's naive and pleasing 'Bavarian Highlands' Suite were sung in spirited fashion. The special feature of the concert was the appearance of Mr. Albert Sammons, who, cleverly accompanied by Mrs. Alfred Hobday, played the first movement of Elgar's Violin concerto in a fashion that was at once brilliant and sympathetic. The Leeds Bohemian Concert on March 3 introduced Pianoforte quartets by Brahms (in A, Op. 26) and Dvorák (in D, Op. 23), and Dohnányi's graceful and attractive Pianoforte quintet, of which Mr. Cohen, Mr. S. Nagley, Miss Simms, Mr. Hemingway, and (pianoforte) Mr. Herbert Johnson gave thoroughly artistic interpretations. There is no more appreciative audience in Yorkshire than this, and it was pleasant to notice the very real enthusiasm with which the performances were acknowledged. On March 8, Mr. H. P. Richardson conducted in St. Chad's, Headingley, an impressive performance of Brahms's 'German Requiem,' which, with the accompaniment of organ and kettledrums, was thoroughly effective. The soloists were Miss May Smailes and Mr. Nathan Whiteley. On the following day Mr. Harrison brought to Leeds, for the last of his concerts, the London Symphony Orchestra, which was heard in Elgar's recent 'Carillon,' under the direction of the composer. It made a distinct impression, and one resented less than usual the interference of the reciter with the music, since these two are so judiciously kept apart. None the less, it is difficult to accept this as an entirely satisfying genre. The Symphony was Dvorák's 'New World,' which had already been heard once at Leeds this season, and is still (at the time of writing) to be heard again. Miss Doris Grover, a very promising young pianist, gave a concert on March 17, with the co-operation of Mr. Cohen, at which were played Sonatas for pianoforte and violin by Brahms (in G, Op. 78) and Lekeu, in G, the concert-giver being also heard in Schumann's 'Carnaval.'

BRADFORD.

The Bradford Subscription Concerts, which have fully maintained their ascendency during this critical season, came to an end on February 19, when Sir Edward Elgar, with the Hallé Orchestra and the choir of the Festival Society, gave an adequate performance of Berlioz's Te Deum. Mr. Catterall, the very able leader of the Hallé Orchestra, played the Andante of Elgar's Violin concerto, and made so good an impression that the whole movement had to be repeated. Mr. John Booth was the vocalist. On February 26 the Edgar Drake String Quartet played Quartets by Mozart and Tchaikovsky, and Dvorák's pleasing Terzetto. The reading of Mozart was especially good. Miss Helen Mould was the vocalist. The last two Free Chamber Concerts were on March 1 and 15. On the former occasion Brahms's Horn trio (with violoncello), and Mendelssohn's D minor Pianoforte trio were heard; Mr. Edward Haley (pianoforte), at short notice, took the place of Mr. Midgley, who was unwell, and was associated with Messrs. W. Norton and G. S. Drake, Miss Annie Cockcroft being the vocalist. On the latter occasion the bulk of the programme was of vocal music, and it was interesting to notice that the audience was very considerably larger than on ordinary occasions. Airs and concerted pieces were very artistically sung by Mrs. Midgley, Misses Judson, Cockcroft, May Midgley, and Clayton, and Violin sonatas by Esposito and Beethoven were played by Miss Ada Sharp and Mr. Midgley. The concert of the Bradford Permanent Orchestra, on March 13, was conducted by Mr. Julian Clifford, who gave a good performance of Rimsky-Korsakov's 'Scheherazade' ballet, while Mr. Arnold Trowell's artistic reading of Saint-Saëns's Violoncello concerto in A minor was the other striking feature of the concert. Miss Nellie Judson was the vocalist, and sang Bantock's very characteristic version of 'The Wilderness,' which has reason if not orthodoxy on its side. The Bradford Old Choral Society chose for its concert on March 10 Hamilton Harty's 'Mystic Trumpeter,' and secured the services of the composer as conductor. Brahms's Alto Rhapsody was also given under Mr. Pickles's conductorship, Miss Lottie Beaumont being the soloist, and Miss Margaret Collins made a creditable débût as soloist in the first movement in Tchaikovsky's B flat minor Pianoforte concerto. The choral performances had great freshness and spirit; the orchestra, on the other hand, was not altogether equal to the demands made upon it. On March 19, the Bradford Old Choral Society, under Sir Frederic Cowen, gave an excellent all-round performance of 'The Dream of Gerontius.' Mr. Frank Mullings was at his best in the part of Gerontius, which he sang with genuine appreciation of the situation, and the other solo parts were ably impersonated by Miss Maude Wright and Mr. Herbert Heyner. The choral-singing reached a very high level, being at once accurate and expressive, and the Permanent Orchestra was quite equal to its task.

OTHER TOWNS.

At the Halifax Chamber Concert on March 5, the Catterall String Quartet was heard in finished performances of Quartets by Mozart, Debussy, Balfour Gardiner, and Hugo Wolf (the 'Italian Serenade'). At a miscellaneous concert by the Morley Choral Society, under Mr. Fricker, on March 9, the programme consisted largely of madrigals, motets, and the like, Mr. Frank Mullings contributing a generous selection of songs of more than ordinary interest. On the same date the Batley Choral Society gave a creditable performance of Elgar's 'King Olaf,' under Mr. Fearnley's direction, and with Miss Emily Breare, Mr. Hempsall, and Mr. Ward Kempe as soloists.

The powerful choir of the Huddersfield Choral Society is heard to peculiar advantage in Handel, and its performance of 'Israel in Egypt' on March 5 was as lusty and forceable as the work demands. The doubtful precedent by which 'The Lord is a Man of War' is turned into a chorus was followed, and proved as popular as usual. Miss Mellors, Miss Emily Fox, Miss Mostyn, and Mr. Heather were the soloists, and Dr. Coward conducted. The performance of Bach's 'St. Matthew' Passion in York Minster on Sunday, March 21, was a notable event, which one trusts may be repeated. Mr. Bairstow had a small but generally efficient orchestra, and the choir of the York Musical Society joined the Cathedral Choir. The soloists, Miss Ettie Ferguson, Misses Brearley and Hayle, were excellent in their respective parts, and in the vast cathedral the great work seemed to find its most fitting surroundings. Performances of 'Gerontius' by the Wakefield Choral Society on March 17, and by the Doncaster Society on March 18, the Calverley Society's performance of 'St. Paul' on March 22, and the Pudsey Choral Union's concert on the same day, when Stanford's 'Songs of the Fleet' were given, can only be briefly mentioned, as indicating that 'Business as usual' has been the motto of Yorkshire Choral Societies.

Country and Colonial News.

Aberdeen.—The Bach Society is preparing a performance of the B minor Mass in King's College Chapel, under the direction of Mr. Warren T. Clemens, the conductor of the memorable Festival performance of the 'St. Matthew' Passion music in 1913. Mr. R. F. McEwen, of Bardrochat, is showing great interest in the work, which, with his help, is likely to be heard under ideal conditions. On February 25, Prof. C. Sanford Terry inaugurated the enterprise with a lecture on 'The High Mass in B minor.' The second University Concert on March 19 introduced two 'first performances': a Melody for violoncello (played by Mr. J. Angless, of the Scottish Orchestra) by Prof. Terry, and a new setting of Stevenson's 'Requiem' by Mr. G. T. Wright, president of the Society. The latter, a baritone solo, scored for orchestra, is of great merit, broad and sincere. It made a deep impression. Mr. T. E. Wright conducted.

Braintree.—On March 11 Gounod's 'Redemption' was given by the Braintree and Bocking Institute Choral Society, with Miss Mildred Guthrie, Miss Betts, Mr. George Brierley, and Mr. Herbert Tracey as principals. The choir sang under the conductorship of Mr. Hubert Lines, who was recently appointed organist and choirmaster of Braintree Parish Church. The surplus proceeds, after payment of expenses, were given to the Belgian Relief Fund.

Brighton.—The Aquarium Winter Garden was well filled on March 13, when M. Sapellnikov gave a recital. He was assisted by Mr. Felix Salmond. M. Sapellnikov played Chopin's Concerto in E minor, and for his solos drew on Scriabin, Tchaikovsky, and Balakirev. Mr. Salmond's contributions were Saint-Saëns's Violoncello concerto in A minor, and solos by Saint-Saëns, Fauré, and Godard. The orchestra, conducted by Mr. Lyell-Taylor, played German's 'Spring,' and Grainger's 'Shepherds' Hey.' It is to be hoped that the Brighton powers-that-be will see that music is an important asset to the town, especially in these times.

Cardiff.—Two of the open scholarships given by the Royal College of Music have been awarded to Mr. Haydn Matthews (pianist and composer), and Mr. Tudor Davies (tenor), both pupils of Dr. David Evans at the Cardiff University College. Many good concerts have been given at the Park Hall on Sunday evenings by Mr. Arthur Angle's Orchestra and some prominent vocalists. The University Choral Society recently gave a performance of Elgar's 'The Banner of St. George,' Dr. David Evans conducting.

Cheltenham.—The Musical Afternoons given by Mr. Horace Teague's Orchestra at the Cheltenham Town Hall came to a close on March 12. These Musical Afternoons at popular prices have been a feature of Cheltenham's entertainments during the autumn and winter, under Mr. Teague's conductorship.

Elland.—The Elland Madrigal Society gave a popular concert on March 9, and drew a large audience. Mr. A. Spencer conducted.

Hanley.—An enjoyable miscellaneous concert was given by the Potteries Choral Society at the Victoria Hall on February 25. Under the direction of Mr. Carl Oliver the choir earned high praise for its singing of Marchant's 'Love is a sickness full of woes,' Lassus' Madrigal 'Matona, lovely maiden,' and 'Hiawatha's Wedding-feast,' (soloist, Mr. Charles Saunders). Mr. Alfred Hollins and Mr. W. T. Bonner gave the first performance of the former's 'Polonaise Brillante' for organ and pianoforte duet.

Ipswich.—Verdi's 'Requiem' was performed by the combined forces of the Ipswich Choral Society and the choir of St. Mary-le-Tower Church on March 17. Under the direction of Mr. W. Hockey the choir did justice to the dramatic qualities of the music, and showed a high standard of training. The soloists were Miss Laura Evans-Williams, Miss Dorothy Hayward-Webb, Mr. Anderson Nicol, and Mr. George Baker. A collection of £40 was made for the Belgian Relief Fund.

Liverpool.—Mr. H. F. Ellingford, the organist to the Corporation, lectured to school-teachers on March 12. His subject was 'The development of British song.' Compositions by Bantock, Cyril Scott, Mackenzie, Parry, and Norman O'Neill were performed.

Norwich.—A very successful concert was given in February under the able direction of Mr. Ernest Harcourt, who contributed two compositions, 'England's brave sons' and 'Four German ships,' to the programme.

Nottingham.—The annual concert of University College took place at the Albert Hall on March 18, when in conjunction with the Sacred Harmonic Society a successful performance of 'Hero and Leander' (Harford Lloyd) was the chief feature of the programme. The fresh and brilliant tone of the choir was also heard to advantage in various part-songs. Prof. Henderson is to be congratulated upon the high standard of the performances. The orchestra, which was purely local, was under Mr. Allen Gill, and was heard in Weber's 'Euryanthe' Overture, and other works. The solos in the cantata were given by Miss Perceval Allen and Mr. Percy Heming.

Petworth.—On March 10 Brahms's 'Requiem' was performed in the Parish Church by the Petworth Choral Society, assisted by nine members of the Temple Church Choir, under the conductorship of Mr. Selfe Fowles. Dr. Walford Davies was at the organ. Mr. William Forington and Master H. Frow were the vocalists. Good balance and precision in attack were features of the performance.

Rhosllanerchrugog (N. Wales).—On February 24 the Bethlehem United Choral Society, under the conductorship of Mr. Dan Roberts, gave a magnificent performance of Verdi's 'Requiem,' the tenth oratorio which has been performed by the Society since its inception in 1906. The principals were Madame Laura Evans-Williams, Miss Morfydd Owen, Mr. J. J. Maltby, and Mr. David Hughes. The organist was Dr. Caradog Roberts.

Southport.—The Southport Choral Society gave its second Patriotic Concert in the Cambridge Hall on March 16 in aid of the funds of the British Red Cross Society and the R.S.P.C.A. for sick and wounded horses, the first concert having been for the Belgian Fund. The work chosen was German's 'Merrie England,' and a most successful performance was given under the direction of Mr. J. C. Clarke. The principals were Miss Dora Heywood, Miss Hilda Cragg-James, Mr. George Barnett, and Mr. Arthur Yates. In the miscellaneous part Oliver King's 'Soldier, rest' was beautifully sung by the choir. Nicolai's Overture to 'The Merry Wives of Windsor' was played by the orchestra, and Mr. John Lawson contributed two violin solos. The concert finished with the singing of the National Anthems of the Allies.——The Military Male-Voice Choir gave its second concert in the Cambridge Hall on March 1. The singing revealed progressive training under the able guidance of Mr. C. Hughes. The sum of £18 13s. was handed to the Mayor for the Belgian Relief Fund.

Stourbridge.—On February 15 the Stourbridge Concert Society gave a successful concert, the programme consisting of Acts 1 and 2 of Wagner's 'The Flying Dutchman' and Act 3 of 'Tannhäuser.' Mr. G. Halford conducted. Equal praise was won by the choir, soloists, and band. The solo parts were taken by Miss Mary Rowe, Miss Annie Watson, Mr. Frank Webster, Mr. William Bennett, and Mr. Joseph Farrington. It is a matter for congratulation that Stourbridge, unlike many Midland towns, is giving its concerts as usual.

Timaru (N.Z.).—A choral and orchestral concert given here recently resulted in £167 being handed to the Belgian Relief Fund.

Vancouver (B.C.).—The annual Christmas performance of 'Messiah' by the Musical Society was again carried out with great success under the direction of Mr. George P. Hicks, to whose untiring exertions is due the continued activity of the Society in the existing adverse circumstances. The creditable choral standard of the performance was equalled by the work of the soloists—Mrs. Day, Mrs. Chandler Sloan, Mr. T. K. Johnston, and Mr. Gideon P. Hicks. An orchestra of forty players took part.

Miscellaneous.

The Independent Music Club organized a wonderful concert at the Kingsway Hall on March 2. It began at seven o'clock, and went on for several hours. Such a cosmopolitan variety has rarely if ever been presented on one occasion. Britain, Belgium, France, America, India, Japan, Russia, Serbia, were all represented by native performers, sometimes in costume. The Japanese prima donna, Madame Tamaki Miura, sang quite delightfully, and Prof. Imayat Khan gave some very interesting performances of Indian music in which he displayed remarkable flexibility of voice.

Mr. C. Egerton Lowe completed on March 13 a series of six historical concert-lectures at the Finchley Conservatoire of Music (principal, Madame Edith Hands). The subjects ranged from ancient music before the 17th century up to the modern school. Each lecture was fully illustrated by the professors and students of the Conservatoire.

We are requested to announce that the Dresden Piano Company of New Zealand, which is one of the largest importing firms in that country, has decided to change its title to the Bristol Piano Company. It is a purely-British concern, and we think the proprietors have acted wisely in shedding their German-looking name.

Captain George Cecil is amongst the musicians who have gone to the Front. Captain Cecil served in the East, and subsequently became musical and dramatic critic to the Morning Advertiser. He was gazetted to the Army Service Corps, and was made a captain shortly after his arrival in France.

The Great Eastern Railway Musical Society, although forced to abandon Symphony concerts, still retains choral and instrumental forces. They gave a concert at the White City Camp on March 16. The hon. conductor is Mr. W. Johnson Galloway.

In the announcement of the awards of the Royal College of Organists that appeared in our March issue (p. 160), it should have been stated that Mr. Dupère won the E. H. Turpin Prize, and Mr. James Baillie the Lafontaine Prize.

Sir George Henschel has presented the autograph MS. of Brahms's song 'Todessehnen' to the great sale which Messrs. Christie will open on April 12, in aid of the British Red Cross Society and the Order of St. John.

The South-West Choral Society performed Stanford's 'The Revenge' and Elgar's 'Britons, alert' at its concert given on February 24, in the Battersea Town Hall. Mr. Arthur R. Saunders conducted.

It is a pleasure to record that a great popular success attended the first performance at Paris of Elgar's 'Falstaff.' The occasion was a Colonne-Lamoureux Concert, under the direction of M. Gabriel Pierné.

At the concert given by the students of the Royal Academy of Music on February 26, Mr. Frederick Corder's fine 'Elegy' for twenty-four violins, with an added full orchestra, was performed in memory of the late Mr. F. W. Renaut.

A translation of Dr. Eaglefield Hull's book on 'Modern Harmony' is to appear as a serial in the Spanish paper Revista Musical of Madrid.

Mr. C. T. Daniel Crews, whose death in his seventy-ninth year took place on May 31, 1914, left to the Royal Academy of Music and to the Musicians' Company £500 each.

Mr. J. A. Creighton has been appointed secretary of the Royal Academy of Music in place of the late Mr. F. W. Renaut.

W. H. Bullock's patriotic comic opera, 'Dogs of Devon,' has been successfully performed in various parts of the country during the past few months.

Answers to Correspondents.

Copyright.—The act of publication of music in this country confers copyright in the British Empire. If it is desired to extend copyright to the United States, musical works must be specially copyrighted in this country, and publication must be simultaneous in both countries, and every copy must state the date of the American entry. It is sometimes erroneously presumed that the absence of a notice of copyright on a musical publication implies that no copyright exists in this country. But this omission, as will be seen from the foregoing, may merely mean that no effort has been made to secure copyright in the United States.

Other answers are held over or dealt with privately.

CONTENTS.

	Page
Carillons. By W. W. Starmer (Illustrated)	201
César Franck and the Sonata. By H. C. Colles ...	206
Teachers and Text-Books. By G. H. Clutsam ...	209
Occasional Notes	210
A Post-Prandial Visitation. By Harvey Grace ...	211
The Abbey Glee Club	213
New Imperial March: 'Pro Patria,' by J. D. Davis ...	215
Church and Organ Music	216
Reviews	217
Correspondence	218
Obituary	220
Modern Harmony as it affects the Teacher and Student of to-day (Lecture by Stewart Macpherson)	221
Dr. Camille Saint-Saëns	222
John Wilbye (Lecture by the Rev. E. H. Fellowes) ...	223
Should Chin-rests be abolished?	223
The German Temperament and the New Organ at Breslau. By Aubrey C. de Brisay	224
An Arne Portrait	224
Pianists and Cinemas	230
London Concerts	230
Suburban Concerts	231
Music in the Provinces	231
Country and Colonial News	239
Miscellaneous	240
Answers to Correspondents	240
Music:
'They that wait upon the Lord.' Anthem for General Use. By J. Stainer	225

FIVE Extra Supplements are given with this number:

1. The Tower of Malines.
2. The Clavier of the Malines Carillon.
3. 'Cast me not away.' Anthem for S.A.T.B. For Lenten or General use. By C. Lee Williams.
4. 'The Lord came from Sinai.' Anthem for S.A.T.B. For Whitsuntide or General use. By John E. West.
5. Competition Festival Record.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

To ensure insertion in their proper positions, Advertisements for the next issue should reach the Office, 160, Wardour Street, London, W., not later than

THURSDAY, APRIL 22. (First Post.)

DURING THE LAST MONTH.

Published by NOVELLO & CO., Limited.

ALCOCK, W. G.—Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in B flat. 4d.

ALLEN, A. BEN.—A Patriotic Hymn ("When peace proclaims the end of War"). For use in time of War. 1d.

BACH, J. S.—Fugue in F major (from the Toccata and Fugue in F major). Edited by J. F. Bridge and James Higgs. (No. 21, Bach's Organ Works in separate numbers.) 1s.

BANTOCK, GRANVILLE.—"The Fire-Worshippers." Words only. 7s. 6d. per 100.

BARLESS PSALTER CHANTS.—Edited by Walter Marshall and Seymour Pile. Paper cover, 1s. net; cloth, 1s. 6d. net.

BERTINI, H.—Thirty-one Selected Studies from Op. 100, Op. 29, and Op. 32. Edited by Franklin Taylor (Edition Novello, No. 14). 3s. Also in Three Books (Edition Novello, Nos. 14a, 14b, 14c), 1s. each.

BRIDGE, Sir FREDERICK.—"Lord, Who dost lead us through the day." A Prayer. 1d.

CZERNY, C.—Nineteen Selected Studies from Op. 636. Edited by Franklin Taylor. (Edition Novello, No. 17.) 1s. 6d.

FETHERSTON, Rev. SIR GEORGE RALPH.—"Abide with me, fast falls the eventide." Hymn and Tune. 2d.

FLETCHER, PERCY E.—"Song of the Grey Seas." Choral Song for Mixed Voices and Orchestra. (No. 1314, Novello's Part-Song Book.) 6d.

GLADSTONE, F. E.—Second Sonata for Organ. 3s.

GRACE, HARVEY.—Rhapsody. For Organ. 1s. 6d.

GROVES, R. E.—"Some Hints on the Chanting of the Psalms." 9d.

HALFORD, GEORGE.—Te Deum laudamus, in D. 6d.

—— "The Souls of the Righteous are in the hands of God." Anthem. 3d.

HARTY, HAMILTON.—"Spring Fancies." Two Preludes for Harp Solo. 2s. each.

HOLBROOKE, J.—Pierrot's Song and Duet. From "Pierrot and Pierrette." 1s. 6d.

HUGHES, MARGARET A.—Physical Exercises, Dances, and Games in the Infant School. The Music arranged by W. McNaught. 4s. net.

HYMN OF THE THEOTOCOS, FROM THE LITURGY OF ST. CHRYSOSTOM.—Serbian Chant. Harmonized by A. Kastalski. Translated from the Slavonic by W. J. Birkbeck. 3d.

HYMNS AND TUNES FOR SUNDAY SCHOOL ANNIVERSARY SERVICES.—Set IV. 4d. Words only, 5s. per 100. For contents, see page 243.

JAQUES-DALCROZE, E.—Six New Songs with Action, for the Very Little Ones, with Explanatory Text (Op. 58). 4s.

—— Ten Callisthenic Songs, with Explanatory Text (Op. 60). 4s.

—— Ten Children's Scenes, with Explanatory Text (Op. 54). 4s.

JEFFERIES, H. HAMILTON.—"A Nation's Prayer." Hymn for use in time of War. 1d. Words only, 2s. 6d. per 100.

LEEDS, F.—Benedicite, omnia Opera, in D. 2d.

LUCAS, R. H.—Benedicite, omnia Opera. 2d.

MARTIN, GLADYS.—"Since last we met." Song for Medium Voice. 2s.

NOVELLO, VINCENT.—"O God our Father, take our Cause." Hymn for the time of War. On Card. 1d. Words only, 2s. 6d. per 100.

PARTRIDGE, BARRS.—"Our Iron Walls." Patriotic Song. 1s. 6d.

POCKET SING-SONG BOOK FOR SOLDIERS, SAILORS, SCHOOLS, HOMES, Etc.—Edited by W. G. McNaught. Vocal Parts in Old Notation and Tonic Sol-fa. 1s.

DURING THE LAST MONTH—(continued).

RICKMAN, F. R.—"And in that day." Anthem. (No. 1055, Novello's Octavo Anthems.) 3d.

ROBINS, A.—"When the sun sinks to rest." Song for Soprano or Tenor. 2s.

SALMON, H. J.—"Christ is our Corner-stone." Hymn and Tune. 1d.

—— "Great King of Nations." Hymn and Tune. 1d.

—— "Lo! God is here!" Hymn and Tune. 1d.

—— Seven Double Chants. 1d.

—— "Sevenfold Amen." On Card. 1d.

—— "Te Deum laudamus." In Chant form. 1½d.

—— Vesper Hymn ("Lord, keep us safe this night"). On Card. 1d.

SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW.—No. 274 contains the following music in both Notations:—

"Kimi-ga-yo" (Reign of my Sovereign). National Anthem of Japan. Arranged by John E. West; "Widdicombe Fair." Devonshire Folk-Song, collected by S. Baring-Gould; "Scots, wha ha'e wi' Wallace bled." Scotch air; "The Young May Moon." Irish air; "The Blue-Bell of Scotland. Scotch air, &c. 1½d.

SHARP, CECIL J.—Fifty Folk-Songs. Compiled at the request of the English Folk Dance Society. Words only. 3d.

SHORE, ROYLE.—"Kyrie Eleison," No. 2; and "Responses to the Commandments." Supplement to Missa Stabat Mater. 2d.

STAINER, J.—"They that wait upon the Lord." (From the Anthem "O clap your Hands"). (No. 866, The Musical Times.) 1½d.

TONIC SOL-FA SERIES.—Edited by W. G. McNaught:

No. 2221. "God is our refuge and strength" (46th Psalm). Henry Hiles 4d.
,, 2224. "A Character of Love." Four-part Song. H. M. Higgs 1½d.

TOWNEND, D. A.—Fifteen Settings of the Responses to the Commandments. 3d.

TYLER, G. H.—Magnificat and Nunc dimittis, in D. 3d.

VAN DEN BORREN, C.—The Sources of Keyboard Music in England. Translated from the French by James E. Matthew. (Handbooks for Musicians. Edited by Ernest Newman.) 7s. net.

WEDDELL, GEORGE.—"Come!" Patriotic Song. 1s.

WILLIAMS, C. LEE.—"Roll up, Gloucesters!" Song and Chorus. 1d.

WOOLNER, H. C.—"The Earth trembled" (Terra tremuit). Easter Offertorium. 3d.

PUBLISHED FOR

THE H. W. GRAY CO., NEW YORK.

BREWER, J. H.—Reverie. Trio for Organ, Harp, and Violin, with Bells ad lib. $1.25 (5s.).

DEMAREST, C.—"My faithful Shepherd." Sacred Song. 60 cents (2s.).

MATTHEWS, H. A.—Concert Overture, in D minor. For the Organ. $1 (4s.).

NOBLE, T. T.—Two Traditional Hebrew Melodies. Arranged for Organ. 50 cents (2s.).

A GENTLEMAN WANTED for combined Posts of Music Master at a Preparatory School and Organist at a small Church. Board, residence, and £60. Apply Rector, c/o Novello & Co., Ltd., 160, Wardour Street, W.

VOLUNTARY ALTO and TENOR REQUIRED, for West-End Church, near Grosvenor Square; 25s. allowed each quarter for travelling expenses. Write N. S., c/o Novello & Co., Ltd., 160, Wardour Street, W.

FOR SALE.—Rare specimen of Barrel Organ, for 30 years in a Cotswold Church. Oak case; stands 8 feet high; 6 Stops; 117 pipes of excellent tone. Plays 30 tunes. M., 104, Dyer Street, Cirencester.

ANTHEMS FOR ASCENSIONTIDE.

*Above all praise and all majesty .. .. Mendelssohn 1½d.
Achieved is the glorious work .. .. .. Haydn 1d.
*Achieved is the glorious work (2nd Chorus) .. Haydn 1½d.
*All glory to the Lamb .. .. Spohr 1½d.
Awake up, my glory .. .. M. Wise 3d.
*Christ became obedient unto death .. .. J. F. Bridge 1½d.
Christ is not entered into the Holy Places .. Eaton Faning 1½d.
Come, ye children .. .. Henry John King 3d.
For it became Him .. .. Oliver King 1½d.
God is gone up .. .. .. *Croft, 4d.; W. B. Gilbert 2d.
*God, my King .. .. Bach 1½d.
Grant, we beseech Thee .. .. H. Lahee 1½d.
Grant, we beseech Thee (Collect) .. .. A. R. Gaul 3d.
*Hallelujah unto God's Almighty Son .. .. Beethoven 3d.
*How excellent Thy Name, O Lord .. . Handel 1½d.
*If ye then be risen with Christ .. .. .. Ivor Atkins 4d.
If ye then be risen .. *F. Osmond Carr and J. Naylor, ea. 3d.
If ye then be risen (Two parts) .. .. .. Myles B. Foster 3d.
In My Father's house H. Elliot Button and J. Maude Crament, ea. 3d.
In that day .. .. George Elvey 4d.
In that day (Open ye the gates) .. .. F. C. Maker 3d.
*It shall come to pass .. .. B. Tours 1½d.
I will not leave you comfortless .. .. W. Byrd 3d.
*King all-glorious .. .. J. Barnby 6d.
King all-glorious (with Chorus arr. for four voices) J. Barnby 4d.
*Leave us not, neither forsake us .. .. J. Stainer 1½d.
Let not your heart .. Eaton Faning and G. Gardner, each 3d.
Let not your heart be troubled (Double Chorus, unac.) M. B. Foster 3d.
*Let not (Four-part arrangement, with organ) Myles B. Foster 3d.
*Let their celestial concerts all unite .. .. Handel 1½d.
*Lift up your heads .. Handel and J. L. Hopkins, each 1½d.
*Lift up your heads .. .. S. Coleridge-Taylor 3d.
Lift up your heads .. .. W. Turner 2d.
*Look, ye saints .. .. Myles B. Foster 3d.
O all ye people, clap your hands .. .. H. Purcell 3d.
*O clap your hands .. .. J. Stainer 6d.
O clap your hands .. .. T. T. Trimnell 3d.
*O God, the King of Glory .. .. .. H. Smart 4d.
*O God, when Thou appearest .. .. .. Mozart 3d.
*O how amiable .. .. J. Barnby 3d.
*O Lord our Governour .. .. H. Gadsby 3d.
O Lord our Governour .. .. Marcello 1½d.
*O risen Lord .. .. J. Barnby 1½d.
*Open to me the gates .. .. F. Adlam 4d.
*Rejoice in the Lord .. .. J. B. Calkin 1½d.
*Sing unto God .. .. F. Bevan 3d.
*Ten thousand times ten thousand .. .. E. Vine Hall 3d.
The earth is the Lord's .. .. T. T. Trimnell 4d.
*The Lord is exalted .. .. John E. West 1½d.
The Lord is King .. .. H. Gadsby, 6d.; H. J. King 4d.
Thou art a priest for ever .. .. .. S. Wesley 3d.
*Unfold, ye portals .. .. Ch. Gounod 3d.
*Where Thou reignest .. .. Schubert 3d.
Who is this so weak and helpless .. .. Rayner 2d.

ANTHEMS FOR WHITSUNTIDE.

And all the people saw .. .. J. Stainer 6d.
*And suddenly there came .. .. .. Henry J. Wood 3d.
And when the day of Pentecost .. .. C. W. Smith 3d.
*As pants the hart .. .. Spohr 1½d.
*As the hart pants .. .. Mendelssohn 1½d.
Behold, I send the promise .. .. .. J. Varley Roberts 4d.
*Come, Holy Ghost .. .. T. Attwood 1½d.
Come, Holy Ghost .. .. Elvey and J. L. Hatton, each 4d.
Come, Holy Ghost .. C. Lee Williams and Palestrina, each 2d.
Come, Thou Holy Spirit .. .. .. J. F. Barnett 3d.
Do not I fill heaven and earth .. .. .. Hugh Blair 3d.
*Eye hath not seen (Two-part setting) .. .. Myles B. Foster 3d.
*Eye hath not seen (Four-part setting) .. Myles B. Foster 3d.
Fear thou not .. .. Josiah Booth 1½d.
Give thanks unto God .. .. Spohr 4d.
Glorious and powerful God .. .. .. Orlando Gibbons 3d.
*God came from Teman .. .. C. Steggall 4d.
*God is a Spirit .. .. W. S. Bennett 1½d.
*Great is the Lord .. .. W. Hayes 4d.
*Grieve not the Holy Spirit .. .. .. J. Stainer 3d.
Hail! breath of life .. .. Thomas Adams 1½d.
Happy is the man .. .. E. Prout 8d.
He that dwelleth in the secret place .. .. Josiah Booth 4d.
*Holy Spirit, come, O come (Ad Spiritum Sanctum) G. C. Martin 1½d.
I was in the spirit .. .. Blow 6d.
*I will magnify Thee .. .. J. H. Parry 3d.
*I will not leave you comfortless .. .. Bruce Steane 2d.
*I will pray the Father .. .. G. W. Torrance 1½d.
If I go not away .. .. Thomas Adams 1½d.
If I go not away .. .. A. J. Caldicott 3d.
If ye love Me .. .. C. S. Heap 1½d.
*If ye love Me W. H. Monk, Tallis, and R. P. Stewart, each 1½d.
If ye love Me .. .. Bruce Steane 2d.
If ye love Me Herbert W. Wareing and W. J. Westbrook, each 3d.
In My Father's house .. .. J. Maude Crament 3d.
It shall come to pass .. .. G. Garrett 6d.
*It shall come to pass .. .. B. Tours 1½d.
Let God arise .. .. Greene 6d.
Let God arise .. .. T. T. Trimnell 4d.
*Let not your heart be troubled .. .. .. H. G. Trembath 1½d.
Look down, Holy Dove .. .. B. Luard-Selby 3d.
*O clap your hands .. .. J. Stainer 6d.
*O give thanks .. .. G. Elvey 3d.
*O Holy Ghost, into our minds .. .. .. G. A. Macfarren 1½d.
*Oh! for a closer walk with God .. .. Myles B. Foster 1½d.
O taste and see .. .. .. *Goss; A. H. Mann, each 3d.
*O taste and see .. .. Sullivan 1½d.
O Thou, the true and only Light .. .. Mendelssohn 2d.
O where shall wisdom be found .. .. Boyce 6d.
*Our blest Redeemer .. .. E. V. Hall 3d.
*Praised be the Lord daily .. .. .. J. B. Calkin 1½d.
Sing to the Lord .. .. Smart 1s.
*Spirit of mercy, truth, and love .. .. B. Luard-Selby 1½d.
*Spirit of mercy, truth, and love .. .. H. A. Chambers 1½d.
The eyes of all wait upon Thee .. .. Gibbons 4d.
*The Glory of the God of Israel .. .. T. Adams 3d.
The Lord came from Sinai .. .. .. John E. West 3d.
The Lord descended .. .. Hayes 1½d.
The Lord is in His Holy Temple .. .. J. Stainer 4d.
The Lord is in His Holy Temple .. .. E. H. Thorne 1½d.
The love of God is shed abroad .. .. S. Reay 1½d.
There is no condemnation .. .. .. H. S. Irons 3d.
The Spirit of God .. .. .. Arthur W. Marchant 3d.
*The wilderness .. .. John Goss, 2d.; *S. S. Wesley 6d.
*When God of old came down from Heaven .. E. V. Hall 3d.
We will rejoice .. .. Croft 4d.
When the Day of Pentecost .. .. .. A. Kempton 3d.
Whosoever drinketh .. .. J. T. Field 1½d.

ANTHEMS FOR TRINITYTIDE.

*Almighty and everlasting God .. .. .. Gibbons 1½d.
Almighty God, Who hast promised .. .. H. Elliot Button 1d.
*Angel Spirits, ever blessed .. .. .. Tchaikovsky 2d.
Ascribe unto the Lord .. .. S. S. Wesley 4d.
*Behold, God is great .. .. E. W. Naylor 4d.
Beloved, if God so loved us .. .. .. J. Barnby 1½d.
Beloved, let us love one another .. .. Gerard F. Cobb 1½d.
Be ye all of one mind .. .. Arthur E. Godfrey 3d.
*Blessed is the man .. .. John Goss 4d.
Blessing and glory .. .. Boyce 1½d.
*Blessing, glory .. .. Bach 6d.
Come, ye children .. .. Josiah Booth 3d.
*God came from Teman .. .. C. Steggall 4d.
*God so loved the world .. .. Matthew Kingston 1½d.
Grant, O Lord .. .. Mozart 1½d.
Grant to us, Lord .. .. H. Elliot Button 1d.
*Hail, gladdening Light .. J. T. Field, 2d.; *G. C. Martin 4d.
*Holy, holy, holy .. .. Crotch 3d.
Holy, Lord God Almighty .. .. .. T. Bateson 4d.
*How goodly are Thy tents .. .. .. F. Ouseley 1½d.
*How lovely are Thy dwellings .. .. .. Spohr 1½d.
*Hymn to the Trinity .. .. Tchaikovsky 1½d.
I am Alpha and Omega .. .. Ch. Gounod 3d.
*I am Alpha and Omega .. .. J. Stainer 1½d.
I am Alpha and Omega .. .. J. Varley Roberts 3d.
I beheld, and lo! .. .. Blow 6d.
I know that the Lord is great .. .. .. F. Ouseley 1½d.
I saw the Lord .. .. Cuthbert Harris, 3d.; *J. Stainer 6d.
I will magnify .. .. J. Shaw 3d.
I will sing of Thy power .. .. Greene 4d.
*I will sing of Thy power .. .. A. Sullivan 1½d.
I will sing unto the Lord .. .. .. H. Wareing 3d.
*In humble faith .. .. G. Garrett 1½d.
*In Jewry is God known .. .. J. Clarke-Whitfeld 1½d.
In sweet consent .. .. E. H. Thorne 3d.
In the fear of the Lord .. .. J. Varley Roberts 3d.
Let the peace of God .. .. J. Stainer 4d.
*Let Thy merciful ears .. .. A. R. Gaul 1½d.
*Light of the world .. .. E. Elgar 3d.
Lord of all power and might .. .. .. E. T. Chipp 3d.
*Lord of all power and might .. .. .. William Mason 1½d.
Lord of all power and might (men's voices) .. J. Barnby 2d.
*Lord, we pray Thee .. .. J. Varley Roberts 1½d.
O Father blest .. .. J. Barnby 3d.
O God, Who hast prepared .. .. .. A. R. Gaul 2d.
O joyful Light .. .. B. Tours 4d.
*O Lord, my trust .. .. King Hall 1½d.
O taste and see .. .. .. *J. Goss and A. H. Mann, each 3d.
*O taste and see .. .. A. Sullivan 1½d.
O where shall wisdom be found? .. .. Boyce 6d.
Ponder my words, O Lord .. .. .. Arnold D. Culley 1½d.
*Praise His awful Name .. .. Spohr 2d.
Rejoice in the Lord .. .. G. C. Martin 6d.
*See what love hath the Father .. .. .. Mendelssohn 1½d.
Sing to the Lord .. .. Mendelssohn 8d.
*Stand up and bless .. .. J. Goss 4d.
Teach me Thy way W. H. Gladstone, 1½d.; Frank L. Moir 3d.
*The Lord hath been mindful .. .. .. S. S. Wesley 3d.
*The Lord is my Shepherd .. .. .. G. A. Macfarren 1½d.
*The Lord is my Shepherd .. .. .. J. Shaw 3d.
The Lord will comfort Zion .. .. .. H. Hiles 6d.
Thou art worthy, O Lord .. .. .. F. E. Gladstone 3d.
Thou shalt shew me the path of life .. .. Alan Gray 1½d.
We humbly beseech Thee .. .. .. H. Elliot Button 1d.
Whatsoever is born of God .. .. .. H. Oakeley 3d.
Who can comprehend Thee .. .. .. Mozart 3d.

 Anthems marked thus () may be had in Tonic Sol-fa, 1d. to 2d. each.*

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

Music for Easter and Whitsuntide

BY

EDWARD BUNNETT, Mus. D. Cantab.

If we believe. Easter ... ... 4d.
If we believe. Tonic Sol-fa ... ... 1½d.
The Good Shepherd ... ... 3d.
If ye love Me. Whitsuntide ... ... 3d.
I will magnify Thee. Whitsuntide ... ... 3d.
I will magnify Thee. Whitsuntide. Tonic Sol-fa ... 1½d.
I was glad ... ... 3d.
I was glad. Tonic Sol-fa ... ... 2d.
The Lord is my Shepherd ... ... 3d.

REDUCED IN PRICE.

Communion Service in E ... ... 6d.
Communion Service. For Men's Voices ... ... 6d.
130th Psalm—Out of the deep ... ... 6d.

ORGAN MUSIC.

Introduction, Air with Variations, and Finale Fugato in B♭ ... ... s. 2 d. 0
Twelve Short and Easy Pieces. Set I. 2 0
Twelve Short and Easy Pieces. Set II. 2 6
Largo in E♭ 1 0
Two Sketches. { Adagio in F♯ major / Andante in D♭ major } 2 0

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

CALEB SIMPER'S NEW

ANTHEMS FOR WHITSUNTIDE,

ASCENSIONTIDE AND ANNIVERSARIES.

*Peace! Glorious Peace! New .. .. 4d.
A stirring and fascinating Anthem for Thanksgiving Services when the War is over.
*O Lord of Hosts! Favourite War Hymn .. .. 6th 1000 1d.
*The Comforter. New Whitsun Anthem .. .. 3d.
Beautiful, highly expressive, and richly harmonized.
*God is our Hope. New .. .. 6th 1000 4d.
Contains some fine imitative choruses, a beautiful Soprano or Tenor Solo; also a rich soft chorus (or quartet). An inspired and inspiring composition.
*The Lord is King. New .. .. 10th Edition 3d.
A rousing Anthem, full of life and melody.
*Make His Praise Glorious .. .. 12th 1000 4d.
This New Anthem is a favourite everywhere.
*I will pray the Father .. .. 12th 1000 3d.
Lift up your heads .. .. Norman Stewart 2d.
Teach me, O Lord .. .. Norman Stewart 2d.
*Call upon His Name .. .. 27th 1000 4d.
Sung at a Choral Festival.
*The Lord Loveth the Gates of Zion .. .. 11th 1000 4d.
Full of Interest. Fine Treble or Tenor Solo.
*The Promise of My Father .. .. 17th Edition 4d.
*Tell it out. Sung at two Choral Festivals .. 14th 1000 3d.
*Shout for joy. Sung at a Choral Festival .. 19th 1000 4d.
*Praise His Holy Name .. .. 18th Edition 3d.
*Our Help and Shield.. .. .. 13th 1000 3d.
*Blessed be my Rock. Sung at a Choral Festival 20th 1000 4d.
*Therefore with Joy .. .. 13th 1000 4d.
*A Joyful Thanksgiving .. 10th 1000. Sol-fa, 1s. O.N. 1s. 6d.
A very popular Harvest Cantata. Occupies about 40 minutes.
Specimen copy from the Composer, 6d.
*Festival Hymns and Tunes, No. 22 Selection .. .. 2d.
Contains Eight bright, melodious, and taking pieces. This new Selection, also Selections Nos. 13 to 22, price 2d. each, complete, can all be had in Leaflets, and the title-page of Words Edition localized when desired.

New Voluntary Book No. 10. Third Edition now ready, price 1s. 6d.
Those marked * are also issued in Tonic Sol-fa.
The Composer (Caleb Simper, "Kilbirnie," Barnstaple) will send any THREE of the above Selections or Anthems FREE to Organists or Choirmasters giving Name of Church.

London: Weekes & Co., 14, Hanover Street, Regent Street, W.
Chicago, U.S.A.: Clayton F. Summy Co., 62-66, E. Van Buren Street.
Canada: Anglo-Canadian M.P.A. Ltd., 144, Victoria St., Toronto.

GILL'S EASY VOLUNTARIES.—Messiah, Elijah, Creation, St. Paul, Judas, One Shilling each. GILL'S EASY ANTHEMS, No. 1 to No. 11, Twopence each.
London: Novello and Company, Limited.

PEDAL BASSES added to Thirty-six A. & M. Tunes. By H. G. Williams, Hon. Assistant-Organist, St. Margaret's, Lee. Price 9d. London: Novello & Company, Ltd.

NOVELLO'S
Sunday School Anniversary Music

ANTHEMS.

*Sun of my Soul .. .. J. H. Adams
†Thine for ever .. .. H. Elliot Button
†I love to hear the story .. .. Myles B. Foster
†Lord, Thy children guide and keep .. .. .. J. H. Maunder
†Hosanna we sing .. .. John E. West

Price Threepence each.
† Tonic Sol-fa, price 1½d. each. * Tonic Sol-fa, price 2d.

HYMNS AND TUNES.

No. Set I.

1. Come, children, on and forward .. .. George C. Martin
2. For the freshness of the morning .. .. Lady Euan-Smith
3. I love to hear the story .. .. .. Frederic Clay
4. Come, O come! in pious lays .. .. J. Stainer
5. Thine for ever! God of Love .. .. .. W. C. Harvey
6. Jesu, Whom Thy children love .. .. H. Elliot Button
7. Sweetly o'er the meadows fair .. .. .. F. A. Challinor
8. Would you gain the best in life .. .. C. J. May
9. On our way rejoicing .. .. .. Walter B. Gilbert
10. Now the daylight goes away .. .. J. Adcock

Set II.

1. Again the morn of gladness .. .. J. Stainer
2. The Angels' Song .. .. .. Alberto Randegger
3. Forward, Christian children .. .. .. Alfred Moffat
4. The Golden Shore .. .. J. Stainer
5. Saviour, blessèd Saviour .. .. John E. West
6. Enter with thanksgiving .. .. .. F. H. Cowen
7. Man shall not live by bread .. J. Varley Roberts
8. Stars, that on your wondrous y .. .. .. J. Stainer
9. The day is past and over .. .. .. Joseph Barnby
10. God will take care of you .. .. .. Frances R. Havergal

Set III.

1. We march, we march, to victory .. .. .. Joseph Barnby
2. Hark! bark! the organ loudly peals .. George J. Bennett
3. O what can little hands do? .. .. H. Elliot Button
4. While the sun is shining .. .. T. Adams
5. I love to hear the story .. .. .. H. J. Gauntlett
6. The roseate hues of early dawn .. .. .. A. Sullivan
7. Lord, Thy children guide and keep .. .. A. S. Cooper
8. In our work and in our play .. .. .. F. Westlake
9. The Beautiful Land.. .. .. J. Stainer
10. Gentle Jesus, meek and mild .. .. J. Stainer

(Just Published.)

Set IV.

1. The boys and girls of England .. .. .. J. Stainer
2. The crown is waiting .. .. J. Stainer
3. The City of Light .. .. E. J. Troup
4. He dwells among the lilies.. .. .. Lady Euan-Smith
5. God is in Heaven! Can He hear .. H. Elliot Button
6. The Good Shepherd.. .. .. J. Stainer
7. A little kingdom I possess .. .. R. S. Newman
8. Raise your standard, brothers .. .. .. E. J. Troup
9. Flowers .. .. Alberto Randegger
10. Jesus, tender Shepherd, hear me .. .. Horatio Parker

Both Notations, price Fourpence per Set.
Words only, 5s. per 100.

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

EDWIN A. CLARE'S FAVOURITE

WHITSUNTIDE ANTHEMS, Etc.

Peace I Leave with You (Sol-fa, 2d.) .. .. 17th 1000 3d.
Abide in My Love (Sol-fa, 2d.) .. .. 11th 1000 3d.
And when the Day of Pentecost .. .. .. 11th 1000 3d.
The Lord Reigneth (Sol-fa, 2d.) .. .. .. 17th 1000 3d.
Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem .. .. .. 42nd 1000 3d.
Sung at Two Choral Festivals.
Favourite Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis in D 26th 1000 4d.
Full of flowing melody and effect.

London: Novello and Company, Ltd., 160, Wardour Street, W.
New York: The H. W. Gray Co., Sole Agents for the U.S.A.

THE

SOUTHWARK PSALTER

BY

A. MADELEY RICHARDSON.

"Without doubt this is the most pious and scholarly Psalter that has been produced."—The Musical Herald.

"Displays great earnestness of purpose and grasp of a subject which presents greater difficulties to the Church musician than any subject he is called upon to deal with."—The Organist and Choirmaster.

"Of real value and interest, not only for the result that it achieves, but for the principles that it embodies."—The Guardian.

"The author is unquestionably right in the principle upon which his method is based, and the meaning of the Psalms is expressed in a manner hitherto unknown."—Church of Ireland Gazette.

"Lifts us out of a groove we have occupied ever since the Psalms were first sung to Anglican chants."—Church Bells.

"The narrow limits of the Anglican chant have been expanded into a much freer treatment by the genius and originality of the author."—Wakefield Diocesan Gazette.

"We have never met with any collection of Anglican chants that contained so many pleasing melodies, or melodies so well fitted to the words of the Psalter."—Exeter Diocesan Gazette.

"The most devout, painstaking, and artistic attempt to improve our Psalm-singing of modern years."—Ripon Diocesan Gazette.

Price Four Shillings and Sixpence.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co., 39, Paternoster Row, London, E.C.

By the same Author:

THE PSALMS, THEIR STRUCTURE AND MUSICAL RENDERING.

Price Three Shillings.

G. SCHIRMER, LTD., 60, Berners Street, W.

RECENTLY PUBLISHED.

COMMUNION SERVICE IN G FOR S.A.T.B.

By F. J. MARCHMENT.

Originally written for the St. Agnes Choir of the Church of St. John Evangelist, Upper Norwood. An Appendix containing Second Soprano and Contralto Parts provides for its use by similar Choirs.

PRICE ONE SHILLING.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

MARTIN SHAW.

A MODAL SETTING OF THE COMMUNION SERVICE.

Composed at the request of the Church Music Society.

THE REV. CANON SCOTT HOLLAND writes in The Commonwealth:—"If only there were half-a-dozen Merbeckes which we all knew by heart, and which would belong to every congregation at every stage of their life-story, what more would ever be required? And Mr. Martin Shaw has just added one to the list. He has written a Communion Service exactly at that level, and fulfilling that purpose."

Curwen's Edition, 80558, Staff, 4d.

GOD SAVE THE KING.

A new arrangement, with alternative verses in Faux Bourdon.

DR. W. H. HADOW says:—"Most effective, and ought to come off well in performance."

Curwen's Edition, 61055, Staff, 2d., Sol-fa, 1½d.

LONDON: J. CURWEN & SONS, LIMITED,
24, BERNERS STREET, W.

Vesper Hymns for Use in Time of War.

ERE WE LEAVE THY HOUSE, O FATHER .. .. .. 1d.
By ERNEST HARRISON.
Words only, 1s. 6d. per 100.

DARKNESS OF NIGHT .. .. 1d.
By GEORGE C. MARTIN.
Words only, 1s. 6d. per 100.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

CANTIONES SACRÆ

MUSICAL SETTINGS OF THE

ROMAN LITURGY

EDITED BY

DOM SAMUEL GREGORY OULD

Monk of the Order of St. Benedict.

33.	ADESTE FIDELES. The complete Text (8 verses) with a Prelude by Dr. F. E. Gladstone, and varied Accompaniments by H. B. Collins, Dom Samuel G. Ould, Sir Walter Parratt, Sir C. Hubert H. Parry, Dr. C. W. Pearce, William Sewell, Dr. A. E. Tozer, and S. P. Waddington	1s.
4.	ADORAMUS TE, CHRISTE .. .. Mozart	2d.
22.	ADOREMUS (for Benediction) .. .. F. E. Gladstone	2d.
2.	ADOREMUS (Motet) .. .. C. W. Pearce	6d.
10.	ALMA REDEMPTORIS MATER .. .. .. W. Sewell	2d.
65.	ANGELUS AD PASTORES .. .. Sweelinck	4d.
56.	ANGELUS AD VIRGINEM .. .. S. G. Ould	3d.
40.	AVE MARIA, Op. 12, S.S.A.A. .. .. .. J. Brahms	6d.
42.	AVE MARIA .. .. Edward Elgar	3d.
53.	AVE MARIA .. .. Robert Parsons	3d.
55.	AVE MARIA .. .. Verdonck	2d.
43.	AVE MARIS STELLA .. .. Edward Elgar	3d.
27.	AVE MARIS STELLA .. .. S. P. Waddington	6d.
45.	AVE REGINA CŒLORUM .. .. S. Ould	2d.
11.	AVE REGINA CŒLORUM .. .. W. Sewell	2d.
36.	AVE VERUM (Sol-fa, 1d.) .. .. .. Edward Elgar	2d.
7.	AVE VERUM .. .. Healey Willan	2d.
26.	BENEDICTA ET VENERABILIS .. .. F. E. Gladstone	6d.
6.	BENEDICTION SERVICE (Unison) .. .. .. S. Ould	3d.
59.	BENEDICTION SERVICE (Unison) .. .. .. R. R. Terry	3d.
9.	BENEDICTION SERVICE (Unison) .. .. John E. West	3d.
68.	BENEDICTION SERVICE (Unison) .. .. Alfred Hollins	3d.
32.	BENEDICTION SERVICE (Four-part) Agnes Zimmermann	2d.
48.	BONE PASTOR .. .. M. H. Eslava	2d.
38.	CHRISTUS FACTUS EST .. .. .. Felice Anerie	2d.
29.	COMPLINE HYMN .. .. S. Ould	3d.
52.	COR JESU, SALUS IN TE SPERANTIUM (Motet) .. W. Schulthes	3d.
50.	CRUX FIDELIS (Motet) .. .. .. S. P. Waddington	4d.
3.	DEUS MISEREATUR .. .. F. E. Gladstone	6d.
47.	DEXTERA DOMINI .. .. W. Sewell	2d.
34.	DOMINE SALVUM FAC in G .. .. Ch. Gounod	2d.
30.	DOMINE SALVUM FAC .. .. E. Silas	2d.
12.	DOMINE SALVUM FAC .. .. A. E. Tozer	2d.
61.	DOMINE JESU CHRISTE .. .. .. Abel L. Gabert	3d.
66.	EX QUO OMNIA .. .. W. Sewell	2d.
17.	HÆC DIES .. .. F. E. Gladstone	3d.
7.	HODIE SANCTUS BENEDICTUS .. .. .. Peter Philips	4d.
60.	INTENDE VOCI ORATIONIS MEÆ .. .. Edward Elgar	2d.
49.	LAUDA SION .. .. R. O. Y. Cahahorra	2d.
20.	LITANY OF LORETTO, THE .. .. .. F. E. Gladstone	6d.
44.	LITANY OF LORETTO, THE .. .. S. G. Ould	2d.
69.	LITANY OF LORETTO, THE (Eightfold) .. .. S. G. Ould	3d.
23.	MAGNIFICAT in A .. .. F. E. Gladstone	8d.
31.	MAGNIFICAT in E flat .. .. .. William Sewell	4d.
1.	MAGNIFICAT in B flat .. .. E. Silas	6d.
28.	MAGNIFICAT in D .. .. E. Silas	1s.
15.	MISERERE in F .. .. F. E. Gladstone	3d.
16.	MISERERE in F sharp minor .. .. F. E. Gladstone	6d.
25.	MISERERE (Gregorian Chant) (Harmonized by V. Novello)	3d.
54.	O DOCTOR OPTIME (Motet) .. .. .. Palestrina	3d.
63.	O REX GLORIÆ (Edited by J. Varley Roberts) S. Webbe	2d.
64.	O SACRUM CONVIVIUM .. .. Sweelinck	4d.
19.	O SALUTARIS HOSTIA .. .. .. F. E. Gladstone	2d.
58.	O VOS OMNES QUI TRANSITIS PER VIAM Sebastian Duron	3d.
41.	O VOS OMNES QUI TRANSITIS PER VIAM T. L. de La Vittoria	3d.
39.	PANIS ANGELICUS (Italian, 18th Century?) Edited by S. Ould	3d.
46.	RECORDARE .. .. W. Sewell	2d.
51.	REGINA CŒLI .. .. A. Hollins	2d.
8.	REGINA CŒLI .. .. W. Sewell	2d.
14.	RESPONSES AT MASS AND OFFICE. Harmonized E. S. Ould	3d.
35.	SALVATOR MUNDI .. .. J. Blow	4d.
24.	SALVE, REGINA in E .. .. .. R. L. de Pearsall	3d.
13.	SALVE, REGINA .. .. Schubert	2d.
5.	SALVE, REGINA .. .. W. Sewell	2d.
18.	SALVE, REGINA .. .. S. P. Waddington	4d.
21.	TANTUM ERGO .. .. F. E. Gladstone	2d.
67.	TE DEUM (Roman Chant) .. .. S. G. Ould	2d.
62.	TE DEUM (Vatican Gradual) .. .. .. S. G. Ould	3d.
37.	VIRGAM VIRTUTIS TUÆ .. .. .. Leonardo Leo	4d.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

DEDICATED (BY PERMISSION) TO
THE RIGHT HON. THE EARL OF MEATH, P.C., K.P.

MAY 24TH

HYMNS FOR EMPIRE DAY

WITH A SHORT FORM OF SERVICE FOR USE IN SCHOOL OR IN CHURCH.

PRICE THREEPENCE.
Words only, 1d. ; or 5s. per 100.

CONTENTS.

		AUTHOR.	COMPOSER.
1.	LAND OF OUR BIRTH	RUDYARD KIPLING ...	F. R. STATHAM.
2.	FLAG OF OUR COUNTRY	W. H. DRAPER ...	MYLES B. FOSTER.
3.	LITANY OF HUMBLENESS ...	J. S. B. MONSELL ...	JOHN E. WEST.
4.	LET US WITH A GLADSOME MIND	A. P. STANLEY	G. J. ELVEY.
5.	FORWARD GO IN GLAD ACCORD	L. TUTTIET	ARTHUR S. SULLIVAN.
6.	HOW BLEST THE LAND	W. H. DRAPER... ...	"EIN' FESTE BURG."
7.	LORD, WE THANK THEE	T. W. JEX-BLAKE ...	J. LANGRAN.
8.	TO THOSE ACROSS THE SEA ...	W. H. DRAPER... ...	W. G. ALCOCK.
9.	WHAT CAN I DO FOR ENGLAND	W. H. DRAPER... ...	J. H. MAUNDER.
10.	GOD OF OUR FATHERS	A. C. AINGER	A. M. GOODHART.
11.	GOD BLESS OUR NATIVE LAND ...	W. E. HICKSON ...	J. H. MAUNDER.
12.	HOW FAIR WAS THE LAND ...	W. H. DRAPER... ...	J. VARLEY ROBERTS.
	FORM OF SERVICE.	NATIONAL ANTHEM.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

JUST PUBLISHED.

FIFTY FOLK-SONGS

COMPILED AT THE REQUEST OF THE ENGLISH FOLK-DANCE SOCIETY

BY

CECIL J. SHARP.

WORDS ONLY

Price Threepence.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

THE UNION JACK

UNISON SONG, WITH ACTIONS
SUITABLE FOR PATRIOTIC GATHERINGS, SCHOOL ENTERTAINMENTS, ETC.

Words by SHAPCOTT WENSLEY
The Actions by MRS. LOUISA WALKER

MUSIC BY

ALFRED R. GAUL.

England, Scotland, and Ireland, represented by groups of children, each carrying their respective flags, sing appropriate verses connected by symphonies founded on well-known national airs—viz., "Heart of Oak," "Auld Lang Syne," "The Minstrel Boy." Under the British Flag, the three groups unite and sing together, the whole concluding with "Rule, Britannia," and "God save the King."

PRICE SIXPENCE; VOCAL PARTS, TWOPENCE.
Band Parts, Sixpence each Part.
Suitable Flags can be hired at ½d. each per week.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

HYMNS FOR EMPIRE DAY.

RECESSIONAL

"GOD OF OUR FATHERS, KNOWN OF OLD"

BY

RUDYARD KIPLING

SET TO MUSIC BY

J. B. DYKES, E. W. NAYLOR, AND GEORGE C. MARTIN.

Price One Penny each Setting.

LORD OF OUR FATHERS THOU DIDST BLEND

THE WORDS BY

A. C. BENSON

THE MUSIC BY

GEORGE C. MARTIN.

Price One Penny.
Words only, 1s. 6d. per 100.

GOD OF OUR FATHERS UNTO THEE

THE WORDS BY

A. C. AINGER

THE MUSIC BY

A. M. GOODHART.

Price One Penny.
Words only, 1s. 6d. per 100.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

NOVELLO'S VOCAL ALBUMS.

ARNE, THOMAS A.—Twenty Songs (1710-1778). Edited, and with Pianoforte Accompaniment, by W. A. Barrett. Price 1s. 6d.

BACH, J. S.—Twenty Sacred Songs. Selected from the Schemell Collection, and arranged for Voice and Pianoforte Accompaniment by Robert Franz. The English Version by the Rev. J. Troutbeck. Price 1s. 6d.

BEETHOVEN.—Twenty-Six Songs. Vol. I. English and German words. The English Version by the Rev. J. Troutbeck. Price 1s. 6d.

BEETHOVEN.—Seventeen Songs. Vol. II. English and German words. The English Version by the Rev. J. Troutbeck. Price 1s. 6d.

BEETHOVEN.—Twenty-Two Songs. Vol. III. English and German words. The English Version by the Rev. J. Troutbeck. Price 1s. 6d.

BENNETT, W. STERNDALE.—Twelve Songs, English and German words. Price 1s.; cloth, gilt, 2s. 6d.

BISHOP, H. R.—Twenty Songs (1786-1855). Edited by W. A. Barrett. Price 1s. 6d.

BRAHMS, J.—Six Songs (Op. 3). For Soprano or Tenor. English and German words. The English Version by W. G. Rothery. Price 2s.

BRAHMS, J.—Six Songs (Op. 6). For Soprano or Tenor. Edited by Alberto Randegger. English and German words. English words by Felix Mansfield. Price 2s.

BRAHMS, J.—Eight Songs (Op. 14). For High Voice. English and German words. The English Version by W. G. Rothery. Book I. (Nos. 1—4). Book II. (Nos. 5—8). Price 2s. each book.

BRAHMS, J.—Five Songs. (Op. 19). For High Voice. English and German words. English words by W. G. Rothery. Price 2s.

BRAHMS, J.—Four Songs (Op. 32. Book I.). No. 1 for High Voice; Nos. 2, 3, and 4 for Low Voice. English and German words. English words by W. G. Rothery. Price 2s.

BRAHMS, J.—Five Songs (Op. 32. Book II). For High Voice. English and German words. English words by W. G. Rothery. Price 2s.

BRAHMS, J.—Four Songs (Op. 46). For Soprano or Tenor. English and German words. The English words by W. G. Rothery. Price 2s.

BRAHMS, J.—Five Songs (Op. 47). For Soprano or Tenor. English and German words. The English words by W. G. Rothery. Price 2s.

BRAHMS, J.—Seven Songs (Op. 48). For Soprano or Tenor. English and German words. The English words by W. G. Rothery. Price 2s.

BRAHMS, J.—Twenty-Two Songs. English words by F. Hueffer. Price 1s. 6d.

BRAHMS, J.—Selected Songs. English, French, and German words. Eight Volumes for High Voice and Eight Volumes for Low Voice, each 3s.

DIBDIN, CHARLES.—Twenty-One Songs (1745-1814). Edited, and with Pianoforte Accompaniment, by W. A. Barrett. Price 1s. 6d.

DVOŘÁK, A.—Sixteen Songs. English and German words. English version by the Rev. J. Troutbeck. Price 2s. 6d.

DVORÁK, A.—Eight Love Songs (Acht Liebes Lieder). (Op. 83.) With English, German, and Bohemian words. Price 3s.

FRANZ, ROBERT.—Thirty Songs. With English words by F. Hueffer. Price 1s. 6d.

FRANZ, ROBERT.—Fourteen Songs (Vierzehn Lieder). English and German words. Set to poems of Robert Burns. Edited and adapted by Natalia Macfarren. Price 2s. 6d.

HOOK, JAMES.—Twenty Songs (1746-1827). Edited, and with Pianoforte Accompaniment, by W. A. Barrett. Price 1s. 6d.

LISZT, FRANZ.—Twenty Songs. Selected, and the words translated, by F. Hueffer. Price 1s. 6d.

LODER, EDWARD JAMES.—Twenty-One Songs (1813-1865). Edited by W. A. Barrett. Price 2s.

MOZART, W. A.—Nineteen Songs. English and German words. The English version by the Rev. J. Troutbeck, D.D. Price 1s. 6d.

MOZART, W. A.—Songs from the Operas. With Marks of Expression and Phrasing by Alberto Randegger. English and Italian words. Le Nozze di Figaro, 4 Books; Don Giovanni, 4 Books. Price, each, 2s.

SCHUBERT, FRANZ.—Volume I. Twenty Songs. For Mezzo-Soprano Voice. Selected, edited, and translated by Natalia Macfarren. Price 1s. 6d.

SCHUBERT, FRANZ.—Volume II. Twenty Songs. For a Contralto Voice. Selected, edited, and translated by Natalia Macfarren. Price 1s. 6d.

SCHUBERT, FRANZ.—Volume III. Twenty Songs. For Soprano or Tenor. Selected, edited, and translated by Natalia Macfarren. Price 1s. 6d.

SCHUBERT, FRANZ.—Volume IV. Swan Songs (Schwanengesang). Fourteen Songs. German and English words. The English version by the Rev. J. Troutbeck. Edited, with Marks for Phrasing, Expression, and Breathing, by Alberto Randegger. Price 1s. 6d.

SCHUBERT, FRANZ.—Volume V. "The Fair Maid of the Mill" (Die Schöne Müllerin). German and English words. Twenty Songs. The English version by the Rev. J. Troutbeck. Edited, with Marks for Phrasing, Expression, and Breathing, by Alberto Randegger. Price 1s. 6d.

SCHUBERT, FRANZ.—Volume VI. "The Winter Journey" (Winterreise). German and English words. Twenty-four Songs. The English Version by the Rev. J. Troutbeck. Price 1s. 6d.

SCHUMANN, R.—Songs. English and German words. Edited, and in part translated, by Natalia Macfarren. Folio, cloth, price 10s. 6d.

SCHUMANN, R.—Myrtles. English and German words. Op. 25. A circle of Songs. Edited and translated by Natalia Macfarren. Price 1s. 6d.

SCHUMANN, R.—Thirty Songs. English and German words. Price 2s. 6d.; cloth, 4s. 6d.

SCHUMANN, R.—Woman's Love and Life (Frauenliebe). English and German words, Op. 42. Edited and translated by Natalia Macfarren. Price 1s.

SCHUMANN, R.—Liederkreis (Op. 39). Twelve Songs. English and German words. Edited and translated from the German of J. von Eichendorf by Natalia Macfarren. Price 1s.

SCHUMANN, R.—Twelve Songs (Op. 35). English and German words. Edited and translated by Lady Macfarren. Price 1s.

SCHUMANN, R.—A Poet's Love (Dichterliebe). Op. 48. A Cycle of Songs. English and German words. Edited and translated by Natalia Macfarren. Price 1s. 6d.

TSCHAIKOWSKY, P.—Twenty-Four Songs. Selected and translated into English by Lady Macfarren. Price 2s. 6d

WAGNER, RICHARD.—Five Songs. For Soprano or Tenor. English and German words. The English translations by Felix Mansfield. Edited by Alberto Randegger. Price 2s.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

NOVELLO'S
PIANOFORTE ALBUMS.

EDITED BY BERTHOLD TOURS.

In Numbers, each One Shilling; or, Cloth Volumes, each Four Shillings.

No. 1.—BACH. Twenty Pieces from Petits Préludes, Suites Anglaises. Partita Nos. 1 to 3, &c.

No. 2.—BACH. Twenty Pieces from Suites Anglaises, Suites Françaises. Partita Nos. 4 and 5, &c.

No. 3.—BACH. Twenty Pieces from Petits Préludes, Concertos, Suites Anglaises, &c.
Nos. 1, 2, and 3, in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

No. 4.—HANDEL. Twenty-four Pieces from Suites 1 to 7, Sonatas, "Harmonious Blacksmith," &c.

No. 5.—HANDEL. Twenty-four Pieces from Suites 8 to 12, Gavottes, &c.

No. 6.—HANDEL. Twenty-four Pieces from Suites 13 to 16, Water Music, &c.
Nos. 4, 5, and 6, in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

No. 7.—MARCHES. Fifteen Pieces, including Mendelssohn's Hero's March, Rakoczy March, Bridal March "Lohengrin," &c.

No. 8.—MARCHES. Fifteen Pieces, including Meyerbeer's Coronation March, Cornelius March, Pilgrims' March, &c.

No. 9.—MARCHES. Fifteen Pieces, including Mendelssohn's Wedding March, March "Tannhäuser," &c.
Nos. 7, 8, and 9, in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

No. 10.—GAVOTTES, MINUETS, ETC. Sixteen Pieces, including Rameau's Gavotte, Zimmermann's Gavotte, Calkin's Minuet, Silas's Bourrée, &c.

No. 11.—GAVOTTES, MINUETS, ETC. Sixteen Pieces, including Gluck's Gavotte, W. Macfarren's Bourrée, Bach's Bourrée, &c.

No. 12.—GAVOTTES, MINUETS, ETC. Sixteen Pieces, including W. Macfarren's 2nd Gavotte, Sir J. Benedict's Gavotte, Mozart's Minuet, &c.
Nos. 10, 11, and 12, in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

No. 13.—WOLLENHAUPT, J. Ten Pieces, including Marche Hongroise, Scherzo Brillant, &c.

No. 14.—WOLLENHAUPT, J. Ten Pieces, including "La Gazelle," "Mazeppa Galop," &c.

No. 15.—WOLLENHAUPT, J. Ten Pieces, including "Les Clochettes," "Feu Follet," &c.
Nos. 13, 14, and 15, in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

No. 16.—SCHWEIZER, OTTO. Eight Scottish Airs (arranged for four hands).

No. 17.—SPINDLER, FRITZ. Nine Pieces, including "Murmuring Rivulet," The Pilgrims' Chorus ("Tannhäuser"), &c.

No. 18.—SPINDLER, FRITZ. Nine Pieces, including "L'Oisillon," "Le Carillon," "The Evening Star" ("Tannhäuser"), &c.

No. 19.—SPINDLER, FRITZ. Ten Pieces, including "Jeu des Ondes," Valse Mélodieuse, Spinning Song ("Flying Dutchman"), &c.
Nos. 17, 18, and 19, in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

No. 20.—GOETZ, HERMANN. Five Compositions.

No. 21.—GOETZ, HERMANN. Four Compositions.

No. 22.—GOETZ, HERMANN. Six Compositions.
Nos. 20, 21, and 22, in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

No. 23.—RHEINBERGER, JOSEF. Seven Compositions.

No. 24.—RHEINBERGER, JOSEF. Eleven Compositions.

No. 25.—RHEINBERGER, JOSEF. Seven Compositions.
Nos. 23, 24, and 25, in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

No. 26.—TOURS, BERTHOLD. Juvenile Album. Eight Characteristic Pieces (Duets), 2s.

Nos. 27 and 28.—MOSCHELES, J. "Domestic Life." Twelve Characteristic Duets, Two Books, each 2s.
The Two Books, in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

No. 29.—KJERULF, HALFDAN. Nine Pieces. Op. 4, Nos. 1 to 3; Op. 12, Nos. 1 to 6.

No. 30.—KJERULF, HALFDAN. Ten Pieces. Op. 24, Nos. 1 to 4; Op. 27, Nos. 1 and 2; Op. 28, Nos. 1 to 4.

No. 31.—KJERULF, HALFDAN. Op. 28, Nos. 5 and 6; Op. 29; and Twenty Songs arranged for the Pianoforte by the Composer.
Nos. 29, 30, and 31, in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

Nos. 32, 33, and 34. The National Dance Music of Scotland. Arranged for the Pianoforte by Alexander Mackenzie; with additions by his son, Dr. A. C. Mackenzie.
Nos. 32, 33, and 34, in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

No. 35.—MACKENZIE, DR. A. C. Eight Pieces. Op. 13, Nos. 1 to 5; Op. 15, Nos. 1 to 3.

No. 36.—MACKENZIE, DR. A. C. Nine Pieces. Op. 20, Nos. 1 to 6; Op. 23, Nos. 1 to 3.

No. 37.—MACKENZIE, Dr. A. C. Six Songs. Transcribed for the Pianoforte by Giuseppe Buonamici.
Nos. 35, 36, and 37, in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

No. 38.—ALTSCHUL, RUDOLF. Fifty Hungarian National Songs.

No. 41.—LIADOFF, ANATOLE. Twenty-one Pieces. Op. 2, Nos. 1 to 14; Op. 3, Nos. 1, 3, 4, and 6; Op. 6; Op. 15, Nos. 1 and 2.

No. 42.—LIADOFF, ANATOLE. Seven Pieces. Op. 4, Nos. 1 to 4; Op. 7, Nos. 1 and 2; Op. 11.

No. 43.—LIADOFF, ANATOLE. Ten Pieces. Op. 8; Op. 9, Nos. 1 and 2; Op. 10, Nos. 1, 2, and 3; Op. 13, Nos. 1 to 4.
Nos. 41, 42, and 43, in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

No. 44.—CUI, CÉSAR. Thirteen Pieces. Op. 20, Nos. 1 to 12; Op. 21, No. 3.

No. 45.—CUI, CÉSAR. Eleven Pieces. Op. 21, No. 4; Op. 22, Nos. 1, 2, and 3; Op. 31, No. 2; Op. 39, Nos. 1 to 6.

No. 46.—CUI, CÉSAR. Seven Pieces. Op. 22, No. 4; Op. 29, No. 1; Op. 30, No. 1; Op. 35, Nos. 1 and 2; Op. 40, Nos. 2 and 4.
Nos. 44, 45, and 46, in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

No. 47.—SCHUBERT, FRANZ. Four Impromptus. Op. 90.

No. 48.—SCHUBERT, FRANZ. Four Impromptus. Op. 142.

No. 49.—SCHUBERT, FRANZ. Moments Musicals (Op. 94), and Adagio and Rondo (Op. 145).
Nos. 47, 48, and 49, in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

No. 50.—SCHUBERT, FRANZ. Three Sets of Variations, Andante, and Klavierstück.

No. 51.—SCHUBERT, FRANZ. Adagio, Allegretto, and March in E major, &c.

No. 52.—SCHUBERT, FRANZ. Five Klavierstücke and Two Scherzi.
Nos. 50, 51, and 52, in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

No. 53.—HOFMANN, H. "The Trumpeter of Säkkingen" (Op. 52) and Two Valses Caprices (Op. 2).

No. 54.—HOFMANN, H. "Italian Love Tale" (Op. 19) and Five other Pieces.

No. 55.—HOFMANN, H. Fourteen Pieces.
Nos. 53, 54, and 55, in One Vol., cloth, 4s.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

POCKET SING-SONG BOOK

FOR

SOLDIERS, SAILORS, SCHOOLS, HOMES,

ETC.

EDITED BY W. G. McNAUGHT.

CONTAINING: NATIONAL ANTHEMS, ETC., OF THE ALLIES.
MARCHING SONGS.
NATIONAL AND FOLK-SONGS.
HYMNS.

PRICE ONE SHILLING.

THE POCKET SING-SONG BOOK (6 in. by 4½ in.) is designed to provide in a portable volume a collection of Unison Songs of the best type that will, it is hoped, be found welcome in camps, ships, clubs, class-rooms, and wherever "sing-song" gatherings are popular. A number of the songs will serve as marching tunes. The vocal parts are printed in both notations.

Simple accompaniments are given, except in the case of a few Folk-songs, where such aids are dispensable. If, however, accompaniments to these are desired, they are to be found in Novello's School Series, at 1½d. each. Any of the other pieces in the collection can also be obtained separately at 1d. or 1½d. each. The songs are generally printed in low keys, in order, as far as possible, to suit all voices. A competent pianist can, if necessary, easily transpose to other keys.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

NEW WORKS BY

JOSEF HOLBROOKE

JUST PUBLISHED.

NEW SONGS.

	Net. s. d.
NODENS' SONG. (Scena from Act I., "The Children of Don.") For Baritone or Bass	2 6
"O WAVERING FIRES." (Scena from Act II., "The Children of Don.") In E flat, for Contralto or Baritone. In G, for Soprano or Tenor	each 2 6
PIERROT'S SONG AND DUET, from "Pierrot and Pierrette." For Soprano and Baritone	1 6
TWO DRAMATIC SONGS, from "Dylan." For Bass or Baritone	3 0
(Orchestral Scores and Parts on hire.)
FANTASIE-SONATE ('Cello and Pianoforte). (Op. 19)	3 6
"PONTOREWYN." Incidental Music to the Drama (Op. 17, No. 8). Arranged for Pianoforte Solo	2 0
QUINTET No. 3 ("Diabolique") (Op. 44). For Pianoforte and Strings	7 6
SEXTET No. 3 (Op. 33A). For Pianoforte and Strings (or for five Wind Instruments)	7 6
SEXTET No. 4. ("In Memoriam") (Op. 46). For Pianoforte and Strings	10 6
SYMPHONIE QUARTET No. 2, in G minor (Op. 21). For Pianoforte and Strings	6 0
SYMPHONIE QUARTET No. 2, in D minor (Op. 31). For Pianoforte and Strings	6 0

(In the Press.)

A List of Songs and published Full Scores can be had on application.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

JUST PUBLISHED.

COMPOSITIONS

BY E. JAQUES-DALCROZE.

TEN CHILDREN-SCENES, WITH EXPLANATORY TEXT.
(Op. 54.)

1. Shuttlecocks.
2. The little scatterbrain.
3. Grandpapa.
4. The good Housekeeper.
5. The Oracle.
6. Tommy's got the sulks.
7. The sad story of the vain Duckling.
8. Cruel Anna.
9. The two Gossips.
10. When I've finished growing.

Price 4s. net.

SIX NEW SONGS WITH ACTION, FOR THE VERY LITTLE ONES, WITH EXPLANATORY TEXT (CALLISTHENIC STUDIES.)
(Op. 58.)

1. The little dumb maiden (Study in hand-movements).
2. Pit-a-pat (Study in step-marching).
3. The pretty Doll (Study in expression: head and eyes).
4. Clever hands and fingers (Song with action).
5. Faithful little Legs (Song with action).
6. The quick Dressmaker (Song with action).

Price 4s. net.

TWELVE CALLISTHENIC SONGS FOR YOUNG GIRLS, WITH EXPLANATORY TEXT
(Op. 60.)

1. Pretty white arms (Study in arm-movements)
2. The little stone maidens (Study in torso-movements).
3. The mermaid (Study in general grace of movement).
4. Side-by-side (Song with action).
5. The maids of Tanagra (Song with action).
6. The white Maidens (Song with action).
7. The Statues (Song with action).
8. The Pedlar (Song with actions).
9. The old arm-chair (Song in three pictures).
10. The two Dancing-lessons (Song with actions).
11. The golden-haired Fairy (Song with dance).
12. On a Sunday Morn (Marching exercise).

Price 4s. net.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

TEN

SEVENTEENTH-CENTURY SONGS

OF THE

SHAKESPERIAN AND RESTORATION PERIODS.

Selected, Edited, and the Accompaniments added by

SIR FREDERICK BRIDGE,

C.V.O.

Price Two Shillings and Sixpence.

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

INVALUABLE FOR EXAMINATIONS.

WEBSTER'S

GROUNDWORK OF MUSIC

Books I. and II., One Shilling Each. Keys, 1s. 6d. Each.

"The examination questions are searching and well chosen."—The Musical Standard.

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

RAINBOW

OUR MUSIC READING LADDER FOR BEGINNERS

By ERICA LOSH.

A first step towards rapid Reading. An original and simple colour scheme that will appeal to children.

Price Three Shillings and Sixpence.

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

OLD ENGLISH VIOLIN MUSIC

EDITED BY

ALFRED MOFFAT.

PREFATORY NOTE.

Although considerable attention has been given to the resuscitation of Church Music, Glees and Madrigals, Organ and even Harpsichord Music by the older English composers, very little has been done to make known the large mass of music for the Violin written by English musicians from the time of Purcell to the close of the eighteenth century. These works for the most part consist of Suites or Sonatas written for a solo violin with a figured bass, or for two violins and violoncello with a figured bass for the harpsichord or organ; another favourite form was the Concerto grosso.

It is with the object of making known to the public a selection of the best of these compositions that the present series has been undertaken.

Alfred Moffat.

No.			s.	d.
1.	SONATA in G major	James Lates	2	0
2.	SONATA in D minor	Henry Eccles	2	0
3.	SONATA in B flat major	William Babell	2	0
4.	SONATA in G minor	John Stanley	2	0
5.	SONATA in A major	John Collett	2	0
6.	TRIO-SONATA in E minor	Thomas Augustine Arne	3	0
7.	SONATA in D major	Richard Jones	2	0
8.	TRIO-SONATA in D minor	William Boyce	3	0
9.	THREE PIECES	William Boyce	2	0
10.	SONATA in E major	Charles Macklean	2	0
11.	SONATA in G minor	William Croft	2	0
12.	SONATA in D minor	Joseph Gibbs	2	0
13.	SONATA in D minor	John Humphries	2	0
14.	SONATA in A minor	Thomas Vincent	2	0

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

A Valuable Book for Teachers and Students.

TECHNIQUE AND EXPRESSION IN PIANOFORTE PLAYING

BY

FRANKLIN TAYLOR.

EXTRACT FROM PREFACE.

In the course of my experience as a teacher of the pianoforte, an experience extending over many years, certain ideas have from time to time suggested themselves to me which have proved useful—to myself, as enabling me to express more clearly that which I desired my pupils to understand, and to my pupils, as tending to facilitate their comprehension of the various difficulties they have had to encounter, at the same time leading them to perceive the most practical means of overcoming them, and thus accelerating their general rate of progress.

These suggestions relate to both the mechanical and intellectual sides of the study of pianoforte playing, or briefly, to Technique and Expression, the chief matters implied by the first of these terms being the production of various qualities of tone, the choice of suitable fingering, and the best methods of attacking certain difficulties; while the second, which may perhaps be more aptly designated the means of expression, includes rhythm, phrasing, variety, and gradation of tone the use of the pedals, et cætera.

WITH NUMEROUS MUSICAL EXAMPLES FROM THE WORKS OF THE GREAT MASTERS.

Price, Cloth, Gilt, Five Shillings net.

Published as a net Book.

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

Just Published.

No. 86, Novello's Music Primers.

A PRACTICAL GUIDE TO THE THEORY OF MUSIC

CONTAINING

NUMEROUS TEST-QUESTIONS WITH ANSWERS.

BY

JULIA A. O'NEILL

Composer of "Exercises for the Weaker Fingers" (Progressive Studies, Edited by Franklin Taylor, Book 53) and of "Melodious Technique."

Price One Shilling. Paper Boards, 1s. 6d.

THE TIMES.

It is in its clear statement of facts, both in writing and by the use of simple diagrams, that Miss Julia O'Neill's book excels.

THE MORNING POST.

Her manner of putting down the facts is concise and clear. An immense amount of ground is covered in logical sequence, and the book is one of the most helpful publications as yet made. It is satisfactory to note that ear-cultivation is touched upon.

MUSICAL OPINION.

It is really surprising the amount of useful matter that Julia A. O'Neill has managed to compress within the covers of her primer, "A Practical Guide to the Theory of Music." Teachers who wish to keep abreast of the times in an educational sense will find this well-written guide calculated to help them to a knowledge of the latest and most accepted method of elementary theoretical instruction. We are pleased to note that the all-important subject of ear-culture has not been neglected in the present primer.

THE LADY.

Is a thoroughly praiseworthy attempt to present the cardinal facts of musical theory in a plain and straightforward manner to the beginner. Wholly admirable is the way the gradual formation of our present-day clefs is explained.

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

SHORT PRELUDES
FOR THE
ORGAN

These Short Preludes are intended for use chiefly as Introductory Voluntaries to Divine Service, more especially in those churches where the time allowed for such is, of necessity, somewhat limited.

No.
	Book I.
1.	Andante Grazioso	Thomas Adams
2.	Andante	W. G. Alcock
3.	Largamente	George J. Bennett
4.	Andante Religioso	Myles B. Foster
5.	Andantino	Alfred Hollins
6.	Adagio Cantabile	Alfred Hollins
7.	Larghetto	Charles J. May
8.	Andante con Moto	John E. West
9.	Andantino quasi Allegretto	John E. West
10.	Andante	W. Wolstenholme
	Book II.
1.	Andante con Moto	Thomas Adams
2.	Con Moto	W. G. Alcock
3.	Moderato	H. A. Chambers
4.	Marziale, poco Lento	Myles B. Foster
5.	Moderato	Alfred Hollins
6.	Andantino	Alfred Hollins
7.	Adagio	Charles J. May
8.	"Hymnus"—Andante e Sostenuto	John E. West
9.	Andante Serioso	John E. West
10.	Adagio	W. Wolstenholme
	Book III.
1.	Moderato e Legato	Thomas Adams
2.	Moderato	W. G. Alcock
3.	Andante con Moto	George J. Bennett
4.	Andante	H. A. Chambers
5.	Grazioso molto Espressivo	Myles B. Foster
6.	"Song without Words"—Con Moto	Alfred Hollins
7.	Andante	Alfred Hollins
8.	Andante Dolente	John E. West
9.	Andante Pastorale	John E. West
10.	Adagio	W. Wolstenholme
	(Just Published.)
	Book IV.
1.	"Elevation"—Andante e Legato	Thomas Adams
2.	Andante Religioso	Myles B. Foster
3.	"Simplicity"—Andante	Barry M. Gilholy
4.	Largamente	R. G. Hailing
5.	"Dialogue"—Andante Grazioso	Charles H. Lloyd
6.	Andantino	Arthur W. Marchant
7.	Con Moto Moderato	William Sewell
8.	Andante Amabile	William Sewell
9.	Andante	Clement M. Spurling
10.	Andante Sostenuto	F. Cunningham Woods
	Book V.
1.	"Invocation"—Andante Grazioso	Thomas Adams
2.	Andante con Moto	Percy E. Fletcher
3.	Poco Adagio	Myles B. Foster
4.	Andante Espressivo	Ignace Gibsone
5.	Adagio	Alfred Hollins
6.	Poco Lento	Charles H. Lloyd
7.	Andante Dolente	Arthur W. Marchant
8.	Andantino con Tenerezza	William Sewell
9.	Andante con Moto	Clement M. Spurling
10.	Adagio Molto	F. Cunningham Woods
	Book VI.
1.	Dolente	Edmund T. Chipp
2.	Andante Sostenuto	Myles B. Foster
3.	Andantino	R. G. Hailing
4.	Con Moto	Alfred Hollins
5.	"Communion"—Cantabile	J. Lemmens
6.	Andante Religioso	Arthur W. Marchant
7.	Lento	Charles J. May
8.	Larghetto	Albert Robins
9.	Adagio e Mesto	William Sewell
10.	Andante Affetuoso	William Sewell

Price One Shilling Each Book.

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

FANTASIA
ON
TWO ENGLISH MELODIES
("Home, Sweet Home," and "Rule, Britannia")
FOR THE ORGAN.
COMPOSED BY
ALEX. GUILMANT.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

ORIGINAL COMPOSITIONS
FOR THE
ORGAN.
(New Series.)

No.			s.	d.
1.	Seven Chorale Preludes	C. H. H. Parry	3	6
2.	Prelude in C	W. Wolstenholme	1	6
3.	Festival Prelude on "Ein' Feste Burg"	W. Faulkes	1	6
4.	Meditation	W. Faulkes	1	6
5.	Postludium	W. Faulkes	1	6
6.	Jour de Noces	J. Stuart Archer	1	0
7.	Cantilène	R. G. Hailing	1	0
8.	Ite Missa Est (Edited by John E. West)	J. Lemmens	1	6
9.	Triumphal March (Edited by John E. West)	J. Lemmens	1	6
10.	Fanfare (Edited by John E. West)	J. Lemmens	1	0
11.	Cantabile (Edited by John E. West)	J. Lemmens	1	6
12.	Finale (Edited by John E. West)	J. Lemmens	1	6
13.	A Fantasy	C. Edgar Ford	1	6
14.	Intermezzo (A Marriage Souvenir)	W. Wolstenholme	1	6
15.	Legend	Harvey Grace	1	6
16.	Meditation	Alfred Hollins	1	0
17.	Barcarolle	A. W. Pollitt	1	0
18.	Cantique	Edward Elgar	1	6
19.	Prelude and Fugue in C (Edited by John E. West)	J. L. Krebs	2	0
20.	Epilogue	W. Wolstenholme	1	6
21.	Suite Ancienne	F. W. Holloway	2	6
22.	Fantasia and Fugue	C. H. H. Parry	2	6
23.	Voluntary	W. G. Alcock	1	0
24.	Impromptu	W. G. Alcock	1	0
25.	Legend	W. G. Alcock	1	0
26.	Intermezzo	J. Stuart Archer	1	6
27.	Twelve Miniatures	H. M. Higgs	3	0
28.	Toccatina	W. G. Alcock	1	6
29.	Romance in A flat	H. Sandiford Turner	1	0
30.	Nocturne	Thomas F. Dunhill	1	0
31.	Festal Prelude	Thomas F. Dunhill	1	6
32.	Caprice de Concert	J. Stuart Archer	2	0
33.	Romance	H. R. Woledge	1	0
34.	Prelude in G minor	W. S. Vale	1	0
35.	Romanza	Alfred Hollins	1	6
36.	Festal Prelude	Alec Rowley	2	0
37.	Romance with Variations	J. Stuart Archer	2	0
38.	Tone-Poems	Oliver King	2	0

(To be continued.)

London: Novello and Company Limited.

THE LATIN ORGANIST
EDITED BY
SAMUEL GREGORY OULD.

Book I.

No.	CONTENTS.
1.	Prelude on "Veni, Creator Spiritus"	J. S. Bach
2.	Prelude on "Angelus ad Virginem"	Alfred Hollins
3.	Voluntary on "Orbis Factor"	S. G. Ould
4.	Eight Verses in the Church Modes (1st Set)	S. G. Ould
5.	Eight Verses in the Church Modes (2nd Set)	S. G. Ould
6.	Prelude on "Asperges me"	William Sewell
7.	Prelude on "Asperges me"	William Sewell
8.	Postlude on "Cum jubilo"	William Sewell

Book II. (Just Published).

No.	CONTENTS.
1.	Prelude on "Tonus Peregrinus"	J. S. Bach
2.	Prelude on "Et in terra pax"	Georg Böhm
3.	Meditation on "Pange lingua"	F. E. Gladstone
4.	Solemn Fughetta on "Credo in unum Deum"	C. W. Pearce
5.	Processional Verses on "Pange lingua":—
	(a) Molto Moderato	William Sewell
	(b) Andante piacevole	William Sewell
	(c) Allegro ma non troppo	William Sewell
	(d) Larghetto	William Sewell
	(e) Pomposo e non troppo allegro	William Sewell

Price One Shilling and Sixpence each Book, Net.

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

POPULAR MARCHES

FOR THE

ORGAN.

Volume 1.

1. Marche Triomphale .. .. F. Archer
2. The Bride's March, from "Rebekah" .. .. J. Barnby
3. Harvest Thanksgiving March .. .. J. B. Calkin
4. March for a Church Festival .. .. E. T. Driffield
5. Imperial March .. .. E. Elgar
6. March to Calvary, from "The Redemption" .. Ch. Gounod
7. Religious March .. .. G. A. Macfarren
8. March, from "Abraham" .. .. B. Molique
9. March in B flat .. .. E. Silas
10. Festive March in D .. .. Henry Smart
11. March in G .. .. B. Tours
12. March in D minor .. .. Agnes Zimmermann

Volume 2.

1. March for a Church Festival .. .. W. T. Best
2. Processional Wedding March .. .. H. R. Bird
3. Festal March .. .. J. B. Calkin
4. Solemn March, from "The Black Knight" .. .. E. Elgar
5. Festal March .. .. G. Elvey
6. Marche Solennelle .. .. Ch. Gounod
7. March, from "St. Polycarp" .. .. .. F. A. G. Ouseley
8. March, with Pastoral Trio .. .. .. B. Luard-Selby
9. March in G .. .. H. Smart
10. Jubilant March .. .. J. Stainer
11. March in F .. .. J. H. Wallis
12. Commemoration March .. .. John E. West

Volume 3.

1. Festal March .. .. George Calkin
2. Festal March .. .. C. S. Heap
3. Triumphal March .. .. Alfred Hollins
4. Secular March .. .. G. A. Macfarren
5. Solemn March ("Story of Sayid") .. .. A. C. Mackenzie
6. Pilgrims' March (Symphony No. 4) .. .. .. Mendelssohn
7. Marche Religieuse .. .. G. Merkel
8. Bridal March and Finale .. .. .. C. Hubert H. Parry
9. Marche Serieuse .. .. B. Luard-Selby
10. Grand Solemn March .. .. Henry Smart
11. March and Chorus ("Tannhäuser") .. .. .. R. Wagner
12. Festival March .. .. Herbert W. Wareing

Volume 4.

1. Marche Religieuse .. .. J. Baptiste Calkin
2. Wedding March .. .. William Faulkes
3. Marche Triomphale .. .. Alex. Guilmant
4. March in E flat .. .. Lefébure-Wely
5. Funeral March ("Dream of Jubal") .. .. A. C. Mackenzie
6. Solemn Processional March .. .. .. C. J. B. Meacham
7. Schiller-March .. .. G. Meyerbeer
8. March in E flat .. .. R. Schumann
9. Nuptial March .. .. B. Luard-Selby
10. Marche Funèbre .. .. P. Tschaïkowsky
11. Grand March (Introduction to the 3rd Act of "Lohengrin") R. Wagner
12. Bridal Chorus ("Lohengrin") .. .. R. Wagner

Price Four Shillings and Sixpence each.

In Cloth, Six Shillings and Sixpence each.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

NOVELLO'S

ALBUMS FOR THE ORGAN.

No. 1. TWELVE SELECTED PIECES.

1. Interlude .. .. Th. Dubois
2. Chanson de Matin .. .. Edward Elgar
3. Fantasia on the old melody "Urbs Beata" .. .. W. Faulkes
4. There is a green hill far away .. .. .. Ch. Gounod
5. Marche Triomphale .. .. Alexandre Guilmant
6. Ave Maria .. .. A. Henselt
7. Grand Chœur No. 2 .. .. Alfred Hollins
8. Andantino in D flat .. .. Edwin H. Lemare
9. Chanson Triste .. .. P. Tschaïkowsky
10. Prelude to "Lohengrin," Act I. .. .. R. Wagner
11. Romanza .. .. W. Wolstenholme
12. Allegretto in E flat .. .. W. Wolstenholme

No. 2. TWELVE SELECTED PIECES.

1. Chanson de Nuit .. .. Edward Elgar
2. Alla Marcia .. .. Myles B. Foster
3. Minuetto .. .. Alexandre Guilmant
4. Lied .. .. H. Hofmann
5. Barcarolle .. .. H. Hofmann
6. Spring Song .. .. Alfred Hollins
7. The Curfew .. .. Edward J. Horsman
8. Pastorale in E .. .. Edwin H. Lemare
9. Ave Maria d'Arcadelt .. .. Franz Liszt
10. Cantique d'Amour .. .. Theo. Wendt
11. The Seraph's Strain .. .. W. Wolstenholme
12. Le Carillon .. .. W. Wolstenholme

No. 3. TWELVE SELECTED PIECES.

1. Scherzo in A flat .. .. Edward C. Bairstow
2. Melody .. .. S. Coleridge-Taylor
3. Serenade .. .. H. Hofmann
4. Bridal March .. .. Alfred Hollins
5. Berceuse .. .. Edwin H. Lemare
6. Melodie in E .. .. S. Rachmaninoff
7. Aubade .. .. A. Strelezki
8. Nocturne in C sharp minor .. .. .. P. Tschaïkowsky
9. Procession to the Minster ("Lohengrin") .. .. R. Wagner
10. Passacaglia .. .. John E. West
11. Fantasia upon the Plain-song Melody "Ad cœnam Agni" .. .. Healey Willan
12. Allegretto in A flat .. .. W. Wolstenholme

No. 4. TWELVE SELECTED PIECES.

1. Arietta .. .. S. Coleridge-Taylor
2. Souvenir de Printemps .. .. Joseph Holbrooke
3. Andante in D .. .. Alfred Hollins
4. Pavane in A .. .. Bernard Johnson
5. Harmonies du Soir .. .. Sigfrid Karg-Elert
6. Grand Cortège .. .. Edwin H. Lemare
7. Allegro alla Marcia .. .. A. L. Peace
8. Visione .. .. J. Rheinberger
9. Chant sans Paroles .. .. P. Tschaïkowsky
10. Prelude to Act III. ("Die Meistersinger") .. .. R. Wagner
11. Allegro Pomposo .. .. John E. West
12. Canzona .. .. W. Wolstenholme

No. 5. TWELVE SELECTED PIECES.

1. Jour de Noces .. .. J. Stuart Archer
2. Festival Prelude on "Ein' feste Burg" .. .. W. Faulkes
3. Legend .. .. Harvey Grace
4. Allegretto Pastorale .. .. H. M. Higgs
5. Benediction Nuptiale .. .. Alfred Hollins
6. Sursum Corda .. .. John N. Ireland
7. Alla Marcia .. .. John N. Ireland
8. Adagio Cantabile .. .. Edwin H. Lemare
9. Fanfare .. .. J. Lemmens
10. Intermezzo .. .. B. Luard-Selby
11. Easter Morn .. .. John E. West
12. Finale in B flat .. .. W. Wolstenholme

Price Three Shillings and Sixpence each.
Cloth, Five Shillings each.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

THE ORGAN

BY

WALTER G. ALCOCK,

M.V.O.,

Mus. Doc. Dunelm., A.R.C.M., F.R.C.O.

Organist and Composer to His Majesty's Chapels Royal and Assistant-Organist of Westminster Abbey.

Published as a Net Book.

PRICE FOUR SHILLINGS NET.

THE ATHENÆUM.

A fine work . . . and is admirable at all points.

YORKSHIRE POST.

The name of Dr. Walter G. Alcock is in itself a sufficient guarantee of the sound teaching of organ-playing, and his book, "The Organ," more than sustains his reputation. . . . There are many useful exercises on various technical points, and some short original pieces which serve as further illustrations of the author's teaching. It is very clearly printed on good, stout paper, and from every point of view is a desirable book.

YORKSHIRE OBSERVER.

A treatise on the instrument by so eminent an authority as Dr. Walter Alcock is likely to become a standard text-book. The young student could ask for none better.

THE SCOTSMAN.

The work is a distinctly useful addition to books of musical instruction.

THE BRISTOL TIMES AND MIRROR.

Although many books of instruction about the organ have been published, the latest is among the best. Its merits are sundry. . . . If the book be thoroughly mastered no other one is needed for the purpose of tuition, for it is the key to everything that has been written for the king of instruments. The print is exceedingly clear, and the book itself neat and attractive.

THE WESTERN MORNING NEWS.

This is not an "instruction" book in the ordinary use of the term, for its scope is too wide, and the information given is so largely the result of personal experiment and experience that those who have already advanced in the art of organ playing will find many hints and suggestions which will prove of practical service. The book is admirably divided into sections dealing with the elements of organ art; and a very important chapter is that on hymn-playing.

THE SUNDAY TIMES.

Every young organ student will find himself greatly helped by "The Organ," a new manual of the instrument by Dr. Alcock.

THE CHOIR.

We congratulate Dr. Alcock on having produced a work which will rank with the best of its kind.

THE MUSIC STUDENT.

The work is up-to-date in every way, it is well arranged and graduated, and begins at the beginning . . . One must look a long way to find a work which unites as much sound instruction with so much good music of all grades, all under one cover.

THE BOOKSELLER.

Dr. Alcock has produced a very helpful and useful book which the ambitious player will do well to study with great care and attention; he who follows the directions here given will undoubtedly find his work as an organist very materially assisted.

CHURCH FAMILY NEWSPAPER.

Written by a master of his subject, "The Organ" makes an immediate appeal to organists of all descriptions, for the matter contained in the book embraces all that is necessary from simple pedal exercises—called by some "first steps"—up to pieces requiring all the resources of modern organ technique.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

ORGAN ARRANGEMENTS

EDITED BY

JOHN E. WEST.

RECENT NUMBERS.

		s.	d.
35.	CORONATION MARCH ("HENRY VIII.") Arranged by John E. West EDWARD GERMAN	1	6
36.	SLOW MOVEMENT (FROM CONCERTO FOR VIOLIN AND ORCHESTRA, OP. 61) .. .. EDWARD ELGAR Arranged by CHARLES MACPHERSON	2	0
37.	VORSPIEL UND LIEBESTOD ("TRISTAN UND ISOLDE") R. WAGNER Arranged by JOHN E. WEST	2	0
38.	ROMANCE IN A FLAT (OP. 5, No. 3) A. ARENSKY Arranged by JOHN E. WEST	1	6
39.	PSYCHE (Romance) .. .. EATON FANING Arranged by C. W. PEARCE	1	0
40.	OVERTURE TO "OTHO" .. .. .. HANDEL Arranged by W. G. ALCOCK	2	0
41.	INTRODUCTION ("PARADISE AND THE PERI") SCHUMANN HYMNUS (OP. 20, No. 1) .. A. C. MACKENZIE Arranged by JOHN E. WEST	1	0
42.	INTRODUCTION AND FUGUE .. .. MOZART Arranged by W. G. ALCOCK	2	0
43.	REVERIE .. .. F. H. COWEN Arranged by JOHN E. WEST	1	6
44.	O STAR OF EVE AND ELIZABETH'S PRAYER ("TANNHAUSER") .. .. WAGNER Arranged by JOHN E. WEST	1	0
45.	ALLEGRETTO GRAZIOSO (FROM THE FOURTH SYMPHONY) .. .. .. ANTONIN DVORÁK Arranged by REGINALD GOSS CUSTARD	2	0
46.	MARCHE SOLENNELLE .. TSCHAIKOWSKY Arranged by JAMES LYON	1	6
47.	CAVATINA (OP. 85, No. 3) .. JOACHIM RAFF Arranged by JOHN E. WEST	1	0
48.	ADAGIO AND ALLEGRO SPIRITOSO (FROM A CLAVIER SONATA) BALTHASAR GALUPPI Arranged by SIR FREDERICK BRIDGE	1	0
49.	ALLEGRO MODERATO (FROM CONCERTO No. 6 IN B FLAT) .. .. .. DR. T. A. ARNE Arranged by HERBERT F. ELLINGFORD	2	0
50.	BLEST ARE THEY THAT MOURN (REQUIEM) BRAHMS Arranged by JOHN E. WEST	1	6
51.	ALL FLESH DOTH PERISH (REQUIEM) .. BRAHMS Arranged by JOHN E. WEST	1	6
52.	HOW LOVELY ARE THY DWELLINGS FAIR (REQUIEM) .. .. BRAHMS Arranged by JOHN E. WEST	1	6
53.	FESTIVAL MARCH .. GRANVILLE BANTOCK Arranged by GRANVILLE BANTOCK	2	0

(To be continued.)

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

ORGAN TRANSCRIPTIONS

BY

A. HERBERT BREWER.

		s.	d.
1.	PRELUDE AND ANGEL'S FAREWELL ("GERONTIUS") EDWARD ELGAR	2	0
2.	FUNERAL MARCH (from the Music to "GRANIA AND DIARMID") .. .. EDWARD ELGAR	2	0
3.	CHANSON DE NUIT .. .. EDWARD ELGAR	2	0
4.	CHANSON DE MATIN .. .. EDWARD ELGAR	2	0
5.	PASSACAGLIA (from "A SONG OF JUDGMENT") C. H. LLOYD	2	0
6.	CANTO POPOLARE (from "IN THE SOUTH") EDWARD ELGAR	2	0
7.	CANTIQUE D'AMOUR .. .. THEO. WENDT	1	6
8.	AVE MARIA / IL LAMENTO .. .. .. ADOLPH HENSELT	2	0
9.	PROCESSION TO THE MINSTER ("LOHENGRIN") WAGNER	1	0
10.	IN TE DOMINE SPERAVI J. W. G. HATHAWAY	2	0
11.	SOUVENIR DE PRINTEMPS JOSEPH HOLBROOKE	1	6
12.	TANNHAUSER'S PILGRIMAGE (Introduction to Act III.) .. .. WAGNER	1	6
13.	AUF WIEDERSEHEN .. .. .. A. H. BREWER	1	6
14.	WALTHER'S PREISLIED ("DIE MEISTERSINGER") WAGNER	1	0
15.	AN ETON MEMORIAL MARCH C. H. LLOYD	2	0
16.	PRELUDE TO ACT III. ("DIE MEISTERSINGER") WAGNER	1	0
17.	THE CORONATION MARCH (1911) EDWARD ELGAR	2	6

(To be continued.)

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

ENGLISH LYRICS

SET TO MUSIC BY

C. HUBERT H. PARRY.

Price Two Shillings and Sixpence each Set.

FIRST SET.

*1.	My true love hath my heart ...	Sir Philip Sidney
2.	Good-night	Shelley
3.	Where shall the lover rest	Scott
4.	Willow, Willow, Willow	Shakespeare

SECOND SET.

1.	O mistress mine	Shakespeare
2.	Take, O take those lips away	Shakespeare
3.	No longer mourn for me	Shakespeare
4.	Blow, blow, thou winter wind	Shakespeare
5.	When icicles hang by the wall	Shakespeare

THIRD SET.

*1.	To Lucasta, on going to the wars ...	Lovelace
2.	If thou would'st ease thine heart	Beddoes
*3.	To Althea, from prison	Lovelace
*4.	Why so pale and wan	Suckling
5.	Through the ivory gate	Julian Sturgis
*6.	Of all the torments	William Walsh

FOURTH SET.

*1.	Thine eyes still shined for me	Emerson
*2.	When lovers meet again ...	Langdon Elwyn Mitchell
*3.	When we two parted	Byron
4.	Weep you no more	Anon.
5.	There be none of Beauty's daughters ...	Byron
6.	Bright star	Keats

FIFTH SET.

*1.	A stray nymph of Dian	Julian Sturgis
*2.	Proud Maisie	Scott
*3.	Crabbed age and youth	Shakespeare
4.	Lay a garland on my hearse	Beaumont and Fletcher
5.	Love and laughter	Arthur Butler
6.	A girl to her glass	Julian Sturgis
7.	A Lullaby	E. O. Jones

SIXTH SET.

*1.	When comes my Gwen	E. O. Jones
*2.	And yet I love her till I die	Anon.
*3.	Love is a bable	Anon.
*4.	A lover's garland	Alfred P. Graves
5.	At the hour the long day ends ...	Alfred P. Graves
6.	Under the greenwood tree	Shakespeare

SEVENTH SET.

1.	On a time the amorous Silvy	Anon.
2.	Follow a shadow	Ben Jonson
3.	Ye little birds that sit and sing ...	Thomas Heywood
4.	O never say that I was false of heart ...	Shakespeare
5.	Julia	Herrick
6.	Sleep	Julian Sturgis

EIGHTH SET.

1.	Whence	Julian Sturgis
2.	Nightfall in winter	Langdon Elwyn Mitchell
3.	Marian	George Meredith
4.	Dirge in woods	George Meredith
5.	Looking backward	Julian Sturgis
6.	Grapes	Julian Sturgis

NINTH SET.

1.	Three aspects	Mary E. Coleridge
2.	A fairy town (St. Andrews) ...	Mary E. Coleridge
3.	The witches' wood	Mary E. Coleridge
4.	Whether I live	Mary E. Coleridge
5.	Armida's garden	Mary E. Coleridge
6.	The maiden	Mary E. Coleridge
7.	There	Mary E. Coleridge

The Songs marked * may be had separately, price 1s. 6d. each.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

NEW FRENCH PUBLICATIONS.

PIANOFORTE MUSIC.

	NET. s.	d.
BARDAC, R.—Une Semaine musicale. Pianoforte Solo ..	4	0
COUPERIN, F.—Les Chinois. Pianoforte Solo	1	0
—— Saillie. Pianoforte Solo	1	0
DEBUSSY, C.—Six Epigraphes antiques. Pianoforte Duet ..	6	0
DEPRET, M.—Chanson de la Marguerite. Pianoforte Solo ..	2	6
FRANCK, CÉSAR.—Grand Caprice (Op. 1). Nouvelle Edition. Pianoforte Solo..	3	0
GROVLEZ, G.—Trois Pièces pour Piano	3	6
JARNACH, PH.—Quatre Humoresques pour Piano	3	6
RAVEL, M.—Album de 6 morceaux choisis	4	0
SAINT-SAËNS.—Ouverture d'un opéra comique inachevé. Pianoforte Duet	3	6

CHAMBER MUSIC.

CRAS, J.—Trio for Pianoforte, Violin, and 'Cello, in C	10	0
DEBUSSY, C.—La Boite à joujoux. Transcribed for Pianoforte, Violin, and 'Cello Trio. Double-Bass and Clarinet (ad lib.)	5	0
—— La Boite à joujoux. Transcribed for Pianoforte, Flute, and Violin	5	0
—— La Boite à joujoux. Transcribed for Pianoforte, Flute, and 'Cello	5	0
JARNACH, PH.—Sonata in E. Pianoforte and Violin ..	8	0
JONGEN, J.—Op. 17. Concerto in B minor. Violin and Pianoforte	10	0
SAINT-SAËNS.—Hélène. Transcribed for Pianoforte, Violin, and 'Cello, with Double-Bass and Clarinet ad lib.	5	0
TANQUAY, G. E.—Souvenir. 'Cello and Pianoforte	2	0

ORGAN AND HARMONIUM MUSIC.

BUSSER, H.—Canzone	—
MARÉCHAL, H.—125 Pièces d'auteurs divers du XVe. au XVIIIe. siècles (Orgue ou harmonium). 2 vols. .. each	7	0
MOUQUET, J.—Marche antique pour orgue	2	0
QUEF. Trois pièces pour orgue. 1. Paraphrase, 2s. net; 2. Idylle, 2s. net; 3. Dialogue	2	6
REUCHSEL, A.—1er Sonata pour orgue	4	0
—— 2me Sonata pour orgue	4	0
—— Prelude and Cantabile pour orgue .. .. .. each	2	0
—— Fantasie et Carillon pour orgue .. .. each	1	6
—— Grand Chœur pour orgue	3	0
SAINT-SAËNS.—Le Cygne. Harmonium Solo	2	0
SALOMÉ, TH.—Cantabile pour orgue	2	0

FULL SCORES AND ORCHESTRAL MUSIC.

DEBUSSY, C.—Children's Corner. 2me Suite par Mouton. Piano conducteur et Parties d'orchestre	6	0
FRANCK, C.—Cantabile. Piano conducteur et Parties d'orchestre par Mouton	2	6
RAVEL, M.—Trois Poèmes. Pour chant. Partition	6	0

VOCAL MUSIC.

CASSADO, J.—Rondalla Espanola. Chant et Piano	2	0
GUIRAUD, E.—Le Capitaine Bois-Baudry. Chœur à 2 voix. Piano et Chant	2	6
LEMPERS, L.—Baisers de rêve. Intermezzo. Piano et Chant	2	0
DE LIONCOURT, GUY.—Trois Mélodies. 1. Je n'ose; 2. Musique sur l'eau; 3. Nocturne .. .. .. each	2	0
ROGER-DUCASSE. — Au jardin de Marguerite. Poème symphonique avec chœurs. Textes français et allemand ..	20	0
SAINT-REQUIER, L.—Deux mélodies populaires français avec chœurs ad lib. 1. Chante rossignol. Piano et Chant, avec chœur; 2. J'entends le moulin. Ditto, ditto .. each	2	0
SCHMITT, FL.—Hymne à l'Été pour Orchestre vocal en trois Chœurs. Partition	4	0
Y'ENER.—Douce fièvre. Valse lente. Chant et Piano.. ..	2	0

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

EDITION NOVELLO.

(Classics, Romantics, and Works by eminent Modern Composers.)

RUSSIAN MUSIC.

PIANOFORTE SOLO.

No.		s.	d.
125A.	Arensky, A.—Prelude in F minor (Op. 42, No. 1)	2	0
125B.	—— Romance in A flat (Op. 42, No. 2) ...	2	0
125C.	—— Étude in F major (Op. 42, No. 3) ...	2	0
188.	Cui, César.—31 Selected Compositions, cloth...	4	0
188A-C.	—— The same, in three books ... each	1	0

Book I.

1. Expansion naive (Op. 20, No. 1).
2. Aveu timide (Op. 20, No. 2).
3. Petite Valse (Op. 20, No. 3).
4. A la Schumann (Op. 20, No. 4).
5. Cantabile (Op. 20, No. 5).
6. Souvenir douloureux (Op. 20, No. 6).
7. Mosaique (Op. 20, No. 7).
8. Berceuse (Op. 20, No. 8).
9. Canzonetta (Op. 20, No. 9).
10. Petite Marche (Op. 20, No. 10).
11. Mazurka (Op. 20, No. 11).
12. Scherzo Rustique (Op. 20, No. 12).
13. Intermezzo (Op. 21, No. 3).

Book II.

14. Alla Polacca (Op. 21, No. 4).
15. Polonaise (Op. 22, No. 1).
16. Bagatelle Italienne (Op. 22, No. 2).
17. Nocturne (Op. 22, No. 3).
18. Valse (Op. 31, No. 2).
19. Marionettes espagnoles (Op. 39, No. 1).
20. Feuille d'Album (Op. 39, No. 2).
21. Etude - Arabesque (Op. 39, No. 3).
22. Au Berceau (Op. 39, No. 4).
23. Marche - Etude (Op. 39, No. 3).
24. Romanzetta (Op. 39, No. 6).

Book III.

25. Quasi Scherzo (Op. 22, No. 4).
26. Valse-Bluette Op. 29, No. 1).
27. Polonaise (Op. 30, No. 1).
28. Impromptu (Op. 35, No. 1).
29. Impromptu (Op. 35, No. 2).
30. Far Niente (Op. 40, No. 2).
31. La petite Guerre (Op. 40, No. 4).

191.	Glinka, M. I.—Polonaise from the Opera "The life for the Czar." Arranged by B. Tours	2	0
192.	Liadoff, Anatole.—38 Selected Compositions, cloth	4	0
192A-C.	—— The same, in three books ... each	1	0

Book I.

1—14. Biroulki (Op. 2, Nos. 1—14).
15. Prelude (Op. 3, No. 1).
16. Fuga (Op. 3, No. 3).
17. Mazurka (Op. 3, No. 4).
18. Mazurka (Op. 3, No. 6).
19. Impromptu (Op. 6).
20. Mazurka (Op. 15, No. 1).
21. Mazurka Rustique (Op. 15, No. 2).

Book II.

22—25. Arabesques (Op. 4, Nos. 1—4).
26. Intermezzo (Op. 7, No. 1).
27. Intermezzo (Op. 7, No. 2).
28. Mazurka (Op. 11).

Book III.

29. Intermezzo (Op. 8).
30. Valse (Op. 9, No. 1).
31. Mazurka (Op. 9, No. 2).
32. Prelude (Op. 10, No. 1).
33. Mazurka (Op. 10, No. 2).
34. Mazurka (Op. 10, No. 3).
35—38. Preludes (Op. 13, Nos. 1—4).

193.	Moniuszko, St.—Valse mélancolique ...	1	6
194.	Rachmaninoff. — Prelude, in C sharp minor. New edition, with a special pedal line showing a new system of indicating the use of the pedal. By A. Rosenkranz	2	0
195.	Rubinstein, Anton.—Barcarolle, Op. 30	1	6
196.	—— Melody in F	1	0
197.	—— Nocturne in G	1	0
198A-F.	—— Souvenir de Dresde. Six Morceaux, Op. 118 ... ... each	2	0

No. 1. Simplicitas.
2. Appassionata.
3. Novellette.
4. Caprice.
5. Nocturne.
6. Polonaise.

199A-C. Tschaikowsky, P., Christmas Album. Edited by A. Rosenkranz (Op. 39). 24 Pieces. In three books ... ... each 1 0

Book I.

Morning Prayer.
Winter Morning.
The Young Horseman.
Mamma.
Toy Soldiers' March.
Dolly is ill.
Dolly's Funeral.
Waltz.

Book II.

My New Doll.
Mazurka.
Russian Song.
The Organ Grinder.
Russian Dance.
Polka.
Italian Song.
Old French Melody.

Book III.

German Air.
Neapolitan Song.
Grandmother's Story.
The Witches' Ride.
Happy Dream.
Song of the Lark.
The Hurdy Gurdy.
In Church.

200.	—— Marche Militaire	2	0
201.	—— Marche Solennelle	2	0
202A-B.	—— Seasons, The. Twelve Characteristic Pieces (Op. 37). Edited and fingered by Franklin Taylor. In two books, each book	2	6

Book I.

1. By the Fireside (January).
2. Carnival (February).
3. Song of the Lark (March).
4. Snowdrops (April).
5. Starlit Nights (May).
6. Barcarolle (June).

Book II.

7. The Reapers' Song (July).
8. Harvest Time (August).
9. Hunting Song (September).
10. Song of Autumn (October).
11. Sleigh ng (November).
12. Christmas (December).

203A-B.	—— Select Pieces from the Pianoforte Works. Edited and fingered by Franklin Taylor. In two books ... each book	2	6

Book I.

Scherzo (Op. 2, No. 2).
Chant sans paroles (Op. 2, No. 3).
Romance (Op. 5).
Valse-Scherzo (Op. 7).
Polka de Salon (Op. 9, No. 2).

Book II.

Mazurka (Op. 9, No. 3).
Nocturne (Op. 10, No. 1).
Humoreske (Op. 10, No. 2).
Scherzo-Humoristique (Op. 19, No. 2).
Feuillet d'Album (Op. 19, No. 3).
Nocturne (Op. 19, No. 4).

204A-B.	—— Twelve Pieces for the Pianoforte (Op. 40). Edited and fingered by Franklin Taylor. In two books ... each book	2	6

Book I.

1. Etude.
2. Chanson Triste.
3. Marche Funèbre.
4. Mazurka in C.
5. Mazurka in D.
6. Chant sans paroles.

Book II.

7. Au Village.
8. Valse in A flat.
9. Valse in F sharp minor.
10. Danse Russe.
11. Scherzo.
12. Rêverie Interrompre.

205.	—— Valse Scherzo in A major	2	0

PETERS EDITIONS

IN BOUND VOLUMES.

PIANOFORTE SOLOS.

		s.	d.
2790a, b	BACH, J. S.—48 Preludes and Fugues (Ruthardt) ..	7	6
200, 201	—— Short Preludes and Fugues and Inventions in 2 and 3 parts	5	0
202-204	—— French and English Suites	6	6
296b	BEETHOVEN.—32 Sonatas. Vol. II.	6	6
180rb, c	—— The same, in 3 Vols. Sup. Ed. .. .. each	6	6
297	—— Pieces (Rondos, &c.)	4	6
144	—— Concertos and Fantasia, Op. 80	6	6
196a, b	—— Symphonies, complete in 2 Vols. .. .. each	5	0
1824a, b	—— Album, in 1 Vol...	5	0
1250	BENDEL, F.—Op. 139. Au lac de Genève	5	3
	CHOPIN, F.—Pianoforte Works, in 3 Vols. .. each	7	0
1900a	Vol. I. 14 Waltzes; 51 Mazurkas; 10 Polonaises; 19 Nocturnes.
1900b	Vol. II. Ballades; Impromptus; Scherzos; Fantasia; Studies; Preludes; Rondos.
1900c	Vol. III. Sonatas; Berceuse; Barcarolle; Bolero, &c.; Concertos; Concert-Pieces.
1926	—— Album. (32 Select Compositions)	4	6
1903	—— Polonaises	3	9
1904	—— Nocturnes	3	9
1906	—— Scherzos and Fantasia	3	9
1909	—— Sonatas	3	9
3013	CLEMENTI.—Tausig. Gradus	4	6
491	FIELD.—18 Nocturnes	3	6
197	HAYDN.—12 Symphonies	6	6
1148	JENSEN.—Op. 17. Wanderbilder	6	3
715a, b	KUHLAU.—19 Sonatinas	5	0
1187	LISZT.—Hungarian Fantasia	5	6
1704b	MENDELSSOHN.—Works: Vol. II. (Op. 5, 7, 14, 16, 33, 72)	5	6
273	MOZART.—Variations	5	6
198	—— 6 Symphonies	4	6
1189	RUBINSTEIN.—Album	6	6
	SCHUMANN.—Complete Works, in 5 Vols. .. each	6	6
2300a	Vol. I. (Op. 68, 15, 124, 99, 18, 19, 82, 28).
2300b	Vol. II. (Op. 6, 9, 21, 12, 16).
2300d	Vol. IV. (Op. 32, 72, 23, 111, 76, 126, &c.).
2300e	Vol. V. (Op. 11, 22, 14, 54, 92, 134, and Op. posth.)
2864a, b	SINDING.—Op. 31. 6 Pieces (in 1 Vol.)	7	6
2687a, b	—— Op. 34. 6 Pieces (in 1 Vol.)	7	6
489	WEBER.—Complete Works	6	0
717a, b	—— Sonatas, Pieces, &c. Concertstück	7	0
1826	—— Album	3	6
	GRIEG.—Album. Vol. I. .. .. cloth	6	6
	Poetic Tone-Pictures. Album Leaves. Lyric Pieces (Book IV.).
	—— Album. Vol. II. .. .. cloth	6	6
	Humoresken. Lyric Pieces (Book III.). Holberg Suite.
	—— Album. Vol. IV. .. .. cloth	6	6
	Two Melodies. Northern Dances and Popular Songs. Sketches of Norwegian Life.
	—— Peer Gynt Suites, Nos. I. and II. .. .. cloth	5	6

PIANOFORTE DUETS.

	GRIEG.—Holberg Suite. Norwegian Dances	6	6
2591a	HANDEL.—12 Organ Concertos. Vol. I.	6	6
186a, b	HAYDN.—12 Symphonies, in 1 Vol.	8	0
2125	MOSZKOWSKI.—Spanish Dances	6	6
12	MOZART.—Original Compositions	5	0
187b	—— 12 Symphonies. Vol. II. (7—12)	6	6
2347	SCHUMANN.—Original Compositions	5	0
2348	—— 4 Symphonies	6	6
136	BEETHOVEN.—11 Overtures	4	6
141	BELLINI—ROSSINI.—9 Overtures	3	6

VIOLIN AND PIANOFORTE.

13a	BEETHOVEN.—10 Sonatas	10	0
14	MOZART.—Sonatas	10	0
156a, b	SCHUBERT.—Sonatinas and Duets	9	0
191	WEBER.—6 Sonatas	4	0

TRIOS (Pianoforte, Violin, and 'Cello).

1740	MENDELSSOHN.—Trios	10	0
2377	SCHUMANN.—Trios (Op. 63, 80, 110)	12	6

QUARTETS (Pianoforte, Violin, Viola, and 'Cello).

1741	MENDELSSOHN. Quartets	14	0

SONGS (English and German Words).

1112a	FRANZ.—Album. Vol. I.; Vol. III. (No. 1426b) each	6	0
1427	—— ,, Vol. IV.	6	0

SONGS (German Words).

	LIEDERKRANZ.—High, Medium, and Low .. each (Nos. 2071a, 2071b, and 2071c).	6	6
395a	LIEDERSCHATZ.—Vol. I.	6	0
1774a	MENDELSSOHN.—Songs, High	6	0
20b	SCHUBERT.—Album I. Medium	6	0
20c	—— ,, Low	6	0
178a	—— ,, II. High	6	0
178b	—— ,, ,, Medium	6	0
178c	—— ,, ,, Low	6	0
790a	—— ,, III. High	6	6
790b	—— ,, ,, Medium	6	6
790c	—— ,, ,, Low	6	6
2383b	SCHUMANN.—Lieder Vol. I. Medium	4	0
2383c	—— ,, ,, Low	4	0
3120	BERLIOZ—STRAUSS.—Instrumentation (2 Vols.) ..	38	0

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

EDITION NOVELLO.

(CLASSICS, ROMANTICS, AND WORKS BY EMINENT MODERN COMPOSERS.)

PIANOFORTE MUSIC.

SCHOOLS AND STUDIES.

No.		s.	d.
125c.	ARENSKY, A.—Op. 42, No. 3. Etude in F	2	0
127.	BERGER, F.—First Steps	2	6
128.	—— Moto contrario. Study	2	0
28.	BERGER, L.—10 Selected Studies from Op. 12 and Op. 22 (Taylor)	1	6
14.	BERTINI, H.—31 Selected Studies from Op. 100, Op. 29, Op. 32 (Taylor)	3	0
14A-C.	—— The same, in three books .. .. .. each	1	0
206.	—— Op. 134. 7 Selected Studies (Taylor)	1	0
15.	CLEMENTI, M.—Gradus ad Parnassum. 24 Selected Studies (Taylor)	3	0
15A-D.	—— The same, in four books .. .. each	1	0
126.	COENEN, W.—6 Octave Studies	3	0
16.	CRAMER, J. B.—56 Selected Studies (Taylor)	4	0
16A-E.	—— The same, in five books .. .. each	1	0
29.	CZERNY, Ch.—Op. 139. 21 Short and Easy Studies (Taylor)	1	0
18.	—— Op. 299. School of Velocity. 30 Selected Studies (Taylor)	2	6
18A-C.	—— The same, in three books .. .. .. each	1	0
19.	—— Op. 335. Legato and Staccato. 10 Selected Studies (Taylor)	1	0
20.	—— Op. 355. Ornamentation. 25 Selected Studies (Taylor)	2	0
20A-B.	—— The same, in two books .. .. each	1	0
21.	—— Op. 599. First Instructor. 14 Selected Studies (Taylor)	0	9
17.	—— Op. 636. (Preparatory to Op. 299.) 19 Selected Studies (Taylor)	1	6
208.	—— Op. 718. 9 Selected Studies (left hand) (Taylor) ..	1	0
23A-B.	—— Op. 740 (Op. 699). School of Finger dexterity. 40 Selected Studies in 2 Vols. (Taylor) .. .. each	2	6
24A-F.	—— The same, in six books .. .. ,,	1	0
129.	—— Op. 748. 13 Selected Exercises for small hands (Taylor)	1	0
22.	—— Op. 834. New School of Velocity. 16 Selected Studies (Taylor)	2	0
22A-B.	—— The same, in two books .. .. each	1	0
130.	—— Op. 849. Studies of Mechanisme. 15 Selected Studies (Taylor)	1	0
131.	DÖHLER, Th.—24 Selected Studies from Op. 30 and Op. 42 (Taylor)	3	0
131A-C.	—— The same, in three books .. .. .. each	1	0
132.	DUVERNOY, J.—16 Selected Studies from Op. 61 and Op. 120 (Taylor)	1	6
133.	HELLER, St.—La Chasse (Wrist Study)	1	0
134.	HENSELT, A.—Op. 2, No. 5. (Si oiseau j'étais) (W. de Pachmann)	1	6
135.	—— Op. 2, No. 11. (Dors-tu, ma vie?) (W. de Pachmann)	1	6
136.	—— Op. 3. (Poëme d'amour) (W. de Pachmann) ..	2	0
137.	—— Op 5, No. 10. (Bonheur evanoui) (W. de Pachmann)	2	0
138.	KALKBRENNER, F.—Op. 20. 10 Selected Studies (Taylor)	1	6
139.	—— 17 Selected Studies from Op. 108, Op. 126, Op. 169 (Taylor)	1	6
140.	KRUG, A.—Op. 110. Studies	3	0
140A.	—— Op. 110. Part I. Wrist Studies	1	0
140B.	—— Op. 110. Part II. Exercises for facilitating Independence of the Fingers	1	0
140C.	—— Op. 110. Part III. Preliminary Studies in Playing Polyphonic Music	1	0
210.	LEEDS, A. H.—My First Piano Lessons (for little pupils)	5	0
207.	LEMOINE, H.—Op. 37. 11 Selected Studies (Taylor)	1	0
141.	MAYER, Ch.—8 Selected Studies from Op. 31, Op. 55, Op. 93, Op 211. (Taylor)	1	6
68.	MENDELSSOHN.—Etude in F minor	1	0
60.	—— Op. 104B. 3 Studies (Taylor)	2	0
25.	MOSCHELES, J.—Op. 70. 8 Selected Studies ..	1	6
144.	O'NEILL.—Exercises for the Weaker Fingers	1	0
145A-B.	—— Melodious Technique, in two books .. .. each	2	0
146.	PAUER, E.—The Art of Pianoforte Playing	2	0
147.	ROSELLEN.—Op. 60. 6 Selected Studies (Taylor) ..	1	0
148.	SCHMITT, Al.—Op. 16. 14 Selected Studies (Taylor)	1	6
149.	SCHMITT, J.—Op. 301. 6 Selected Studies (Taylor)	1	0
26.	STEIBELT, D.—Op. 78. 13 Selected Studies (Taylor)	2	0
26A-B.	—— The same, in two books .. .. each	1	0
27.	TAYLOR, FRANKLIN.—11 Original Studies (from Progressive Studies)	5	0
150A.	—— Double Scales. English Fingering	1	0
150B.	—— The same. Continental Fingering	1	0
150C.	—— Scales and Arpeggios	2	0
	—— Progressive Studies.—See Special List.
151.	THALBERG, S.—Tremola (Taylor)	1	0
209.	TSCHAIKOWSKY, P.—Etude in G. Op. 40, No. 1 (Taylor)	1	0
152.	WILLMERS, R.—2 Celebrated Studies. Op. 1, Nos. 6 and 9 (Taylor)	1	6
153.	WOLFF, E.—Op. 50. 7 Selected Studies (Taylor) ..	1	0

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

NOVELLO'S HANDBOOKS FOR MUSICIANS.

Edited by Ernest Newman.

CHORAL TECHNIQUE & INTERPRETATIO

BY

HENRY COWARD.

Mus. Doc. Oxon.

Published as a Net Book. Price, Cloth, gilt, Five Shillings net.

THE TEACHING AND ACCOMPANIMENT OF PLAINSONG

BY

FRANCIS BURGESS.

Published as a Net Book.

Price, Cloth, gilt, Three Shillings and Sixpence net.

THE MUSIC OF THE BIBLE

With some account of the Development of Modern Musical Instruments from Ancient Types.

BY

JOHN STAINER.

New Edition, with Additional Illustrations and Supplementary Notes

BY

THE REV. F. W. GALPIN, M.A., F.L.S.

Published as a Net Book.

Price, Cloth, gilt, Five Shillings net.

SONGS FROM THE PLAYS OF WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE

With Dances and Incidental Music as sung and danced by the Bermondsey Guild of Play.

WRITTEN AND COMPILED BY

MRS. G. T. KIMMINS.

Published as a Net Book.

Price, Half Bound, Paper Sides, gilt top, Five Shillings net.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

London:—Printed by Novello and Company, Limited, at Novello Works, Soho, and published at 160, Wardour Street, Soho, W.
Sold also by Simpkin, Marshall, Hamilton, Kent and Co., Ltd., Paternoster Row, E.C.—Thursday, April 1, 1915.

(From a photograph by W. Ralston, Glasgow.)

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

FOUNDED IN 1844.

PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH.

No. 867.—Vol. 56.
Registered at the General Post Office for Canadian Postage.

MAY 1, 1915.

Price 3d.; Postage 1½d.
Annual Subscription, Post-free, 4s.

ROYAL CHORAL SOCIETY.

Patron: HIS MAJESTY THE KING.
CONDUCTOR: SIR FREDERICK BRIDGE, C.V.O.

(Season 1915—1916.)

There are now VACANCIES in the CHOIR for SOPRANOS, CONTRALTOS, TENORS, and BASSES. Applicants should have STRONG VOICES OF GOOD QUALITY, and should be prepared to pass an examination in SIGHT-READING. Address, The Secretary, Royal Choral Society, Royal Albert Hall, S.W.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC,

YORK GATE, MARYLEBONE ROAD, LONDON, N.W.

Instituted 1822. Incorporated by Royal Charter, 1830.
Patron: HIS MAJESTY THE KING.
President: H.R.H. THE DUKE OF CONNAUGHT, K.G.
Principal: Sir A. C. MACKENZIE, Mus. Doc., LL.D., F.R.A.M.

MIDSUMMER TERM BEGINS MONDAY, MAY 3.

L.R.A.M. Examination Syllabus is now ready.

Voice-Culture Lecture-Lessons will commence on Saturday, May 8, at 10 a.m.

Fortnightly Concert, Saturday, May 22, at 8.

Chamber Concert, Monday, May 31, at 3.

Full particulars will be sent on application.

J. A. CREIGHTON, Secretary.

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC,

PRINCE CONSORT ROAD, SOUTH KENSINGTON, S.W.
(Incorporated by Royal Charter, 1883.)
Telegrams—"Initiative, Southkens, London." Telephone—"1160, Western."

Patron: HIS MAJESTY THE KING.
President: H.R.H. THE PRINCE CHRISTIAN, K.G.
Director:
Sir C. HUBERT H. PARRY, Bart., C.V.O., D.C.L., M.A., Mus. Doc.
Hon. Secretary: CHARLES MORLEY, Esq.

The MIDSUMMER TERM will commence on Monday, May 3. Syllabus and Official Entry Form may be obtained from The Registrar.

The Chamber Music Concert usually given by The Royal College of Music PATRON'S FUND (founded by S. Ernest Palmer, Esq., for the encouragement of British Composers and Executive Artists) is deferred, the Committee having decided to utilise the Fund for the relief of distress caused among musicians by the War.

CLAUDE AVELING, Registrar.

ROYAL MANCHESTER COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

Patroness: HER MAJESTY QUEEN ALEXANDRA.
President: Sir W. H. HOULDSWORTH, Bart., LL.D.
Principal: Dr. ADOLPH BRODSKY.

The COLLEGE YEAR opened on Tuesday, September 29.

Special Houses of Residence recommended for Students.

Students are required to enter upon a complete course of Musical instruction, and are not admitted for a shorter period than one year.

Fee for the year, £30, payable in instalments of £10 at the beginning of each term. Special Fee for Wind Instrument Course, £15.

Systematic Course for the Training of Teachers included in the curriculum.

The Prospectus, with Scholarship information, Diploma Regulations, and Entry Forms, on application.

Opera Class—MISS MARIE BREMA.

STANLEY WITHERS, Registrar.

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF ORGANISTS.

Examination Regulations, List of College Publications, Lectures, &c., may be had on application.

H. A. HARDING, Hon. Sec.

Kensington Gore, S.W.

THE GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

JOHN CARPENTER ST., VICTORIA EMBANKMENT, E.C.
Established by the Corporation of London.
PRINCIPAL .. .. .. LANDON RONALD.

COMPLETE MUSICAL EDUCATION at an inclusive fee.

PRIVATE LESSONS are given in all musical subjects and STAGE TRAINING in Elocution, Gesture, Stage Dancing, Fencing, and OPERA.

WEEKLY ORCHESTRAL PRACTICES ARE CONDUCTED BY THE PRINCIPAL. Prospectus and Syllabus of Local Centre and Local Schools Examinations (open to general public) free.

H. SAXE WYNDHAM, Secretary. Tel. Holborn 1943.

BIRMINGHAM & MIDLAND INSTITUTE.

SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

Visitor.. .. .. Sir EDWARD ELGAR, O.M., Mus. Doc., LL.D.
Director .. .. GRANVILLE BANTOCK, M.A.
Visiting Examiner .. W. G. MCNAUGHT, Mus. Doc.

SESSION 1914-1915.

The Session consists of AUTUMN TERM (September 21 to December 19); WINTER TERM (January 18 to March 27); SUMMER TERM (April 12 to June 26).

Instruction in all branches of Music, Students' Choir and Orchestra, Chamber Music, Students' Rehearsals, and Concerts.

Prospectus and further information may be obtained from—
H. M. FRANCIS, Secretary.

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE OF WALES, ABERYSTWYTH.

(One of the Constituent Colleges of the University of Wales.)

MUSIC SCHOOL.

DEPARTMENT OF INSTRUMENTAL MUSIC.

This Department is now open to all Students of Music. There is no Entrance Examination, and Students may specialise in one subject.

SPECIAL STAFF:—

M. GASTON LE FEUVE .. .. .. VIOLIN.
Formerly Professor at the Schola Cantorum, Paris.

M. HENRI DELANGE .. .. VIOLIN.
Premier Prix du Conservatoire de Bruxelles.

M. CAMILLE DELOBELLE .. .. VIOLONCELLO.
Lauréat du Conservatoire de Paris.

M. CHARLES TURBOUR .. .. .. VIOLA.
Elève de MM. Schwartz et Laforge, Professeurs au Conservatoire de Paris.

MADAME L. ANDRE BARBIER SINGING AND PIANOFORTE
Elève de M. Archainbaud, Professeur au Conservatoire de Paris, and Organizer of Classical Concerts in Manchester and Wales.

Classes are held in: VIOLIN, VIOLONCELLO, VIOLA, CHAMBER AND ORCHESTRAL MUSIC, THEORY OF INSTRUMENTAL MUSIC, SINGING, VOICE-TRAINING, AND PIANOFORTE.

Special attention is paid to the study and interpretation of Chamber Music, under the direction of the Le Feuve Quartette, and to the Part-Singing Classes for the training of Choirmasters, under the direction of Madame Barbier.

	£	s.	d.
Fee for the Full Course for the Session	12	0	0
Fee for a Single Course for a Term	2	2	0
Registration Fee for the Session	1	0	0
Registration Fee for a Term	0	10	0

Students taking the Full Course may also attend Arts Classes in the College without further charge.

All further particulars may be obtained from the Registrar at the College.

DR. E. H. THORNE will give a Series of BACH ORGAN RECITALS at St. Anne's Church, Soho, each Saturday Afternoon, in May, at 3.30 p.m. Programme on application.

UNIVERSITY OF DURHAM.

Examinations for degrees in Music are held as follows:—Matriculation, April and October; First Mus. B., March and September; Final Mus. B., and Mus. D., September only.

For particulars, apply Secretary of Examinations, University Office, Durham. Copies of former Examination Papers, 1s. per set.

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE, READING.

HALLS OF RESIDENCE:

Wantage Hall (Men). | St. Andrew's Hall (Women).
St. Patrick's Hall (Men). | Wessex Hall (Women).
St. George's Hostel (Women).

DEPARTMENT OF MUSIC.

Director: H. P. ALLEN, M.A., D.Mus.

SCHOLARSHIPS IN MUSIC.

An examination for one or more Scholarships in Music, each of about £26 per annum, open to men and women, tenable at the College for one, two, or three years, will be held at the College on July 8, 1915. Candidates must offer Singing, Pianoforte, Violin, Viola, Violoncello, or Organ as a principal subject. Entries must be sent in by June 24, 1915. Further particulars of these and of other Scholarships and Exhibitions, and prospectuses of the College, may be obtained from The Registrar, University College, Reading.

FRANCIS H. WRIGHT,
Registrar.

INCORPORATED GUILD OF CHURCH MUSICIANS.

Founded 1888.

Incorporated pursuant to Act of Parliament XXX. and XXXI. Victoria, Cap. cxxxi., § 23.

President: THE VERY REV. THE DEAN OF BRISTOL, D.D.

ASSOCIATE (A.I.G.C.M.), LICENTIATE (L.I.G.C.M.), FELLOWSHIP (F.I.G.C.M.) EXAMINATIONS in London and at approved Provincial Centres in July and December.

COMPETITIONS FOR 1915.

SILVER MEDAL for the best Setting of the Nicene Creed to Easy Ecclesiastical phrases, not necessarily Gregorian Tones.

SILVER MEDAL for the best Magnificat, set to one of the Festal Gregorian Tones, with varied Bourdons to Verses 3, 4, and Gloria Patri.

BRONZE MEDAL for the best simple Andante for the Organ (Pedal obbligato).

BRONZE MEDAL for the best Kyrie.

May 27, 1915, Lecture: "Some Æstheticisms of Ecclesiastical Etiquette," by Dr. T. Westlake Morgan.

Chairman: Rev. NOEL BONAVIA-HUNT, M.A. Oxon.

REGISTER OF ORGAN VACANCIES.

Organists (Members) have the FREE use of the Register of Vacant Appointments.

Calendar (gratis) and further information of DR. LEWIS, Warden, 18, Berners Street, London, W.

VICTORIA COLLEGE OF MUSIC,

LONDON.

(Under the direction of the Victoria College Corporation, Ltd.)

INCORPORATED 1891.

18, BERNERS STREET, OXFORD STREET, LONDON, W.

President: THE MOST HON. THE MARQUIS OF ANGLESEY.

Board of Examination:

Principal: J. H. LEWIS, D.C.L., F.E.I.S., Mus. Doc.
Chairman: J. M. BENTLEY, Mus. Doc. Cantab., Hon. F.R.A.M.
Hon. Director of Studies: CHURCHILL SIBLEY, Mus. Doc., F.I.G.C.M.
ROBERT FOX FREW, Mus. Doc. Dunelm.
Rev. NOEL BONAVIA-HUNT, M.A. Oxon.
Secretary: H. PORTMAN LEWIS.

Metropolitan Examinations in all subjects, including the Diplomas of A.V.C.M., L.V.C.M., F.V.C.M., also for the Teachers' Professional Diploma in the Art of Teaching, April, July, and December.

Local Theoretical Examinations, July and December.

Practical Examinations are now being held at the various Centres.

Gold, Silver, and Bronze Medals are offered for Competition.

Local Secretaries required for towns not represented.

Dr. Churchill Sibley gives personal lectures at the College.

All communications to be addressed as usual to The Secretary, Registered Office, 11, Burleigh Street, Strand, W.C.

LONDON COLLEGE OF MUSIC,

GREAT MARLBOROUGH STREET, LONDON, W.

Patron: HIS GRACE THE DUKE OF LEEDS.

BOARD OF EXAMINATION.

DR. HORTON ALLISON, Mus. D. Dublin; Mus. B. Cantab.; F.R.A.M.
DR. ARTHUR S. HOLLOWAY, Mus. Doc. Oxon.; F.R.C.O.
Dr. F. J. KARN, Mus. Bac. Cantab., Principal.
G. AUGUSTUS HOLMES, Esq., Director of Examinations.

EXAMINATIONS—LOCAL AND HIGHER.

The NEXT EXAMINATION for certificates in Pianoforte, Violin, Singing, Elocution, Organ, Theory of Music, &c., will be held in London and at over 450 Local Centres throughout the United Kingdom in JULY (JUNE for Scotland and Ireland).

SYLLABUS, with Annual Report and Forms of Entry, may be had on application to the Secretary.

The HIGHER EXAMINATIONS for the Diplomas of Associate (A.L.C.M.) and Licentiate (L.L.C.M.) take place in April, June, July, and December; and for the Diplomas of Associate in Music (A. Mus. L.C.M.), Licentiate in Music (L. Mus. L.C.M.), and Fellowship (F.L.C.M.), in June, July, and December.

LOCAL CENTRES may be formed in districts unrepresented, either in the United Kingdom or abroad; particulars on application. SCHOOL CENTRES may also be arranged.

In the Educational Department students are received and thoroughly trained under the best Professors at moderate fees. Lessons may commence from any date. For full information apply,

A. GAMBIER HOLMES, Secretary.

Telegrams: "Supertonic Reg, London." Telephone: 3870 Central.

MANCHESTER SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

Patron: Sir W. H. HOULDSWORTH, Bart.

Principal: ALBERT J. CROSS, A.R.A.M. Sixty Professors.
New Violin Professor: Mr. JOHN DUNN.

All Branches of Music taught. Private or Class Tuition.

Full and String Orchestras, Operas, Lectures, Recitals, Chamber and Orchestral Concerts. Prospectus from The SECRETARY, Albert Square.

ÆOLIAN HALL, NEW BOND STREET, W.

SCHUMANN PIANOFORTE STUDIOS,

Principal:

MME. AMINA GOODWIN.

Summer Term commences April 26.

THE "AMINA GOODWIN" SCHOLARSHIP, entitling the successful Candidate to one year's Free Tuition under Mme. Goodwin, will be competed for in June. Also a "MOZART" SCHOLARSHIP for Candidates under 14, entitling holder to one year's Free Tuition under an Assistant Professor.

For Prospectus or full particulars of Scholarships, apply Secretary.

THE MADRIGAL SOCIETY.

(FOUNDED 1741.)

THE MADRIGAL SOCIETY offers TWO PRIZES, being the "Molineux Prize" of TEN POUNDS with the Society's Medal, and the "Society's Prize" of FIVE POUNDS, for the best and second best APPROVED MADRIGALS, in not less than four nor more than six parts, the upper part or parts to be for one or two Treble Voices.

The character of the Composition to be in accordance with that of Madrigals of the best style and form, with imitative Part-Writing; not a mere Part-Song or harmonized Melody.

The following conditions must be complied with, viz.:—

1. That the Alto and Tenor Parts be written in their respective clefs;
2. That the signature be repeated at the head of each page at least;
3. That the intended "Tempo" be clearly indicated;
4. That the words, to be selected by the Composer, be written out in full on a fly-leaf at the beginning; and
5. That not more than one Composition be submitted by each competitor, which must not be in the Composer's autograph.

The Madrigals to be delivered, addressed to the Secretary of the Madrigal Society, Whyteleafe, Bromley, Kent, on or before November 1, 1915, each Composition having a device or motto affixed thereto, with the Composer's name in a sealed envelope bearing a corresponding mark.

The Award of the Judges will be made known at the meeting of the Society in December, 1915.

OSCAR W. STREET, Hon. Secretary.

Bromley, Kent,
May 1, 1915.

DURHAM MATRICULATION.

University man has special CORRESPONDENCE COURSE for the October Exam. Recent successes. Mod. fees. "C. S.," 21, Stanley Road, Whalley Range, Manchester.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL (Founded 1496), Wimborne Minster, Wimborne, Dorset, nine miles from Bournemouth. Boarders received from 8 to 18, and prepared for Professions, Army or University career. Choral and Leaving Scholarships offered. Particulars from Headmaster.

Play at Sight in three months

Years of constant toil and drudgery may make you a Sight-player—but the Ehremayer System cannot fail to do so, with infinitely less labour, time, and money expended, and this within three months.

This is because the Ehremayer System is based upon scientific facts and trains the student in a pleasant, interesting way to read music as easily as he reads a book, and to play it with equal facility.

E. B., Sparkhill, Birmingham, writes on Feb. 15, 1915.—"I am very fascinated with the Course, and I am very anxious to get on as quickly as possible. I feel so far that I have wonderfully improved, and am very glad I became a student."

And again, on April 12, 1915, after completing the Course, E. B. writes:—"I found no difficulty with the sixth lesson; indeed, it all seemed very easy. I find no difficulty with playing new music at first sight. I am gradually taking more difficult pieces, and I feel sure that in time I shall be able to play really difficult ones at first sight. I am very glad indeed that I became a student, for I am really delighted with the way I have improved. You ask me to give you a general report on my progress from the time I started the Course. I scarcely know what to say. With the very first lesson I simply followed the instructions in every little detail, and after the second lesson I improved rapidly, and I really have got on wonderfully. I am very pleased and more than satisfied. It is money well spent."

Write for my Booklet "Playing at Sight," which gives full particulars of my Sight-Reading System.

The inventor of this System is a Frenchman domiciled in England.

L. M. EHREMAYER, 27, CHANCERY LANE, W.C.

EHREMAYER
System of Pianoforte
SIGHT - PLAYING

Free Consultation to Pianists and Organists.

To every Pianist and Organist who recognises a defect in his or her technique I make the following offer.

I will give a free consultation (by letter) upon any point of technique which may be giving special trouble.

No obligation of any kind will be incurred—if it be proved that I can assist you, it will still be for you to decide whether or no to adopt my suggestions.

This is a serious offer, and the success I have already achieved justifies its immediate acceptance by every earnest student and professional pianist or organist.

There is not a single technical difficulty in pianoforte or organ playing that my System has not proved its ability to remedy.

Not only has it accomplished this, but it has enabled thousands of musicians practically to dispense with "practice" as generally understood, and thus to save much precious time and energy.

"From Brain to Keyboard."

If, therefore, you find some difficulty of technique insuperable—take advantage of this offer at once, for I may be able to save you no end of unnecessary and disappointing work.

Just fill in the form printed below and send it to me. But also give me in a letter all the particulars you can of your difficulties, your attainments, and your state of health.

Fill in and Post this Form To-day to

M. MACDONALD SMITH,
19, BLOOMSBURY SQUARE, W.C.

I am a Pianist / an Organist and find (great) difficulty in.....

.....

and I wish to take advantage of your offer of a Free Consultation made in the "Musical Times" (May, 1915).

Name.....

Address .....

PROFESSIONAL NOTICES.

MR. WILFRID ABOR
(TENOR).
Royal Albert Hall. Promenade Concerts. Queen's Hall and Sheffield, &c.
Parkstone, Wallington, Surrey.

MR. SAMUEL MASTERS
(TENOR).
Address—164, Bank Buildings, Ewell Road, Surbiton.

MR. JAMES W. ROSS
(PATRIOTIC RECITALS).
Address—1, Highgate Road, London, N.W.

MR. W. H. BREARE
VOCAL ADVISER AND TEACHER OF SINGING
TO STUDENTS AND THE PROFESSION.

Author of "Vocalism," "Elocution: Its First Principles," "Vocal Faults and their Remedies."

In the Press, and shortly to be Published: "Vocal Technique: How it feels to Sing."

"The most complete guide to singing in English."—"Lancelot," in the Referee.

"One of the sanest of sane expositions."—Musical Courier, N.Y.

"One step nearer to the ideal."—Referee ("Lancelot").

"Is a reliable expert in all branches."—Gentlewoman.

"A magnificent guide to both teachers and students."—Eastern Morning News.

"Do not hesitate to commend."—Glasgow Herald.

"Well up and enthusiastic in his subject, which he handles in a masterly manner. His technical knowledge is minute, wide and accurate: what he has to say is well worthy of consideration by public singers and music teachers."—Aberdeen Free Press.

"Has had exceptional opportunities of studying his subject. . . . Common-sense in all he utters."—Leeds Mercury.

"Is an acknowledged authority. . . ."—Western Morning News.

"I have not the slightest fear of contradiction when I say that no one knows more about the voice and vocal production than Mr. W. H. Breare."—"Counterpoint," in the Newcastle Journal.

Further Press Opinions on application.

Address: "HERALD" BUILDINGS, HARROGATE,
or 139, NEW BOND STREET, W.

MEMORY.

The Greatest Power of the Future. Is not the Brain practically the Man? Train it by

NATURE'S PERFECT PROCESS.
(Copyright.)

Of which those who are using it speak as "A Flood of Light," "A Revelation."

Harold Helman, St. John's Episcopal Church, Perth, late sub-organist of Worcester Cathedral, writes: "As an organ recitalist and pianist I forgot my pieces, always having to have the music. Your system—Nature's System—is giving me perfect power to know."

From a Public Singer: "It has helped me in singing from memory, public speaking, business, and my life generally."

"It has improved my playing 50 per cent."

Experience proves that every musician can play from memory by using this method, which also ensures a far more accurate and masterly rendering with great saving of time in learning.

Clergy, Musicians, Public Speakers, Business Men, &c., should write for new prospectus to George H. Cox, 19, Farringford, Tettenhall Road, Wolverhampton.

THE LONDON COLLEGE FOR CHORISTERS

DIRECTOR: MR. JAMES BATES.

SOLO BOYS for Oratorios, Festival Services, Concerts; also LEADING BOYS for Church Choirs can be supplied for occasional or permanent engagements. Address, E. B. GOLDING, Secretary, 6, Blomfield Crescent, Hyde Park, W.

Telegrams; "Musicomane, Phone, London." Telephone: 5990 Paddington.

MUSICAL REVISER TO MESSRS. NOVELLO FOR THIRTY YEARS.

COMPOSERS' MSS.

REVISED and PREPARED FOR PRINTING; ADVICE GIVEN as to most suitable publishers for various styles of composition.
H. ELLIOT BUTTON, "Harewood," Ardwick Road, Hampstead, N.W.

Reference to the following composers kindly permitted:—
Sir C. HUBERT H. PARRY, Bt., C.V.O., Sir EDWARD ELGAR, O.M.,
Sir FREDERICK BRIDGE, C.V.O., Dr. WALFORD DAVIES.

DR. A. EAGLEFIELD HULL

MUS. DOC. OXON., F.R.C.O.

Author of "Modern Harmony: Its Explanation and Application" (Augener), and "Organ Playing: Its Technique and Expression."

Address:

MELBOURNE HOUSE, HUDDERSFIELD.

DR. ALLISON instructed by Post Candidates who OBTAINED DEGREES OF MUS.D. and MUS.B. at Oxford, Cambridge, Dublin, London, and Durham Universities, Diplomas of F.L.C.M., L.Mus.L.C.M., A.R.C.M., F.R.C.O., and L.R.A.M. Gold Medals, Silver Medals, Scholarships, Prizes, "Honours," and Pass Certificates (of the Colleges of Music) to the number of eight hundred and seventy. Dr. Allison is quite willing to teach those who neither require nor desire to pass examinations. Harmony, Counterpoint, Orchestration, and Analysis of Composition by Post, to correspondents anywhere. Personal instruction in Theory, Singing, Organ, and Pianoforte. Cambridge House, 68, Nelson St., Manchester.

REVISION OF MUSICAL COMPOSITIONS. Dr. Horton Allison, Mus.D., 68, Nelson Street, Manchester.

L.R.A.M. (PAPER WORK).

MR. E. H. BIBBY (Mus. Bac., L.R.A.M., A.R.C.M.) has SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE COURSES for the "Form and Teaching" and "Rudiments and Harmony" papers set at the L.R.A.M. Exams.

L.R.A.M. EXAMS., 1910-14.—68 Correspondence Pupils successful. (September and Christmas, 1914: 17 Successes out of 21 Entries.)

A.R.C.M. (PAPER WORK).

MR. BIBBY has now also CORRESPONDENCE COURSES for the Paper Work portions of the A.R.C.M. Exams.

A.R.C.M., April, 1914: 9 Correspondence Successes. NO FAILURES.

MR. BIBBY also gives Postal Lessons in RUDIMENTS, HARMONY, FORM, &c., quite apart from the above-mentioned Special Examination Courses.

Address, c/o Forsyth Bros., Deansgate, Manchester.

DR. CUTHBERT HARRIS, Mus. Doc. Dunelm., F.R.C.O. SPECIALIST IN CORRESPONDENCE TUITION. 340 Successes in Mus. D., Mus. B., F.R.C.O., and A.R.C.O. MSS. revised and arranged for publication. 48, Braxted Park, Streatham, S.W. Telephone: Streatham 487.

MISS H. HEALE COACHES for all EXAMINATIONS in MUSIC (at private residence or at West-End studio), in Pianoforte, Harmony, Counterpoint, Fugue, Form, Orchestration, "Teaching," Modulation, Transposition, &c. For Terms, &c., apply Dunraven House, 41, Albert Bridge Road, S.W.

DR. ARTHUR S. HOLLOWAY, Mus. D. Oxon., 13, Roseleigh Avenue, Highbury, N., continues to PREPARE CANDIDATES for the various Theoretical Examinations. Music of any description revised or arranged. LESSONS in COMPOSITION, by post if desired.

DR. FREDERICK J. KARN (Mus. Bac. Cantab.; Mus. Doc. Toronto), gives Lessons by post, in Harmony, Counterpoint, Fugue, Form and Analysis, Acoustics, Orchestration, &c. Individual instruction. Also Personal Lessons. MSS. corrected for publication. Analyses of Classical Works for Examinations. Terms moderate and inclusive. Candidates prepared by Dr. Karn have obtained the degrees of Mus. Bac. or Mus. Doc. at DURHAM, OXFORD, DUBLIN, CAMBRIDGE, LONDON, and the UNIVERSITY OF WALES. Also F.R.C.O., A.R.C.O., L.R.A.M. (Composition, Pianoforte, Organ, Bandmastership, and Conducting), A.R.C.M. (Composition, Theory of Music, and Pianoforte Teaching), L. Mus. and A. Mus., L.C.M. ASSOCIATED BOARD, &c. Dr. KARN continues to coach for all Musical Examinations. 106, Haverstock Hill, London, N.W.

DR. LEWIS, Mus. Doc., F.E.I.S., Warden, Incorporated Guild of Church Musicians, gives LESSONS, Personally or by Post, in HARMONY and COUNTERPOINT. 18, Berners Street, Oxford Street, W.

DR. LEWIS' TEXT-BOOKS:

HARMONY. (2 vols.) 5s. each, net.
COUNTERPOINT. 5s. net.
DOUBLE COUNTERPOINT AND CANON. 5s. net.
FUGUE. 1s. 6d. net.
ELEMENTS OF MUSIC. 2s. 6d. net.
DEVELOPMENT OF ANGLICAN CHURCH MUSIC. 2s. net.
PRONOUNCING VOCABULARY OF MUSICAL TERMS. 6d. net.
DICTIONARY OF MUSICAL TERMS. 6d. net.
MATERIAL OF MELODY. 3d. net.

The above, complete, will be forwarded (carriage paid) for 15s.

MISS F. HELENA MARKS PREPARES for L.R.A.M. and other Examinations. Pianoforte, Harmony, "Form and Teaching," &c. Lessons (oral or by correspondence). Pupils received and visited for the Pianoforte. Many recent successes, L.R.A.M., &c. Pianoforte Classes, 10, Matheson Rd., West Kensington.

DR. H. H. L. MIDDLETON, Mus. Doc. (Dubl.), F.R.C.O., L.R.A.M., A.R.C.M., makes a SPECIALITY of COACHING FOR DEGREES. L.R.A.M., 1897-1914, ONE HUNDRED AND THIRTY-EIGHT SUCCESSES; A.R.C.M., 1897-1914, THREE HUNDRED AND FIFTY-SIX SUCCESSES. Equally good results in R.C.O. and other Examinations.

Address, Thornleigh, 6, Elm Park Road, Finchley, N.

PERCY WOOD, Mus. Bac. Oxon., F.R.C.O., Specialist in Correspondence Tuition for F.R.C.O., A.R.C.O. RECENT SUCCESSES: 227 Correspondence Pupils have passed F.R.C.O. or A.R.C.O. SINCE 1909, as follows:

81 F.R.C.O. (Paper Work).	146 A.R.C.O. (Paper Work).
6 F.R.C.O., Jan., 1914.	11 A.R.C.O., Jan., 1914.
6 F.R.C.O., July, 1914.	12 A.R.C.O., July, 1914.
4 F.R.C.O., Jan., 1915.	5 A.R.C.O., Jan., 1915.

38, Warwick Road, Cliftonville, Margate.

MISS MARGARET YOUNG, L.R.A.M., A.R.C.M. (Pianoforte Teacher), A.T.C.L. (Pianoforte and Vocal Teacher), Correspondence Lessons, Theory, Harmony, Form, Art of Teaching. Successes at R.A.M. and T.C.L. Metropolitan Examinations. Compiler, Musical Terms (English first), Novello, 4d. Bawburgh Vicarage, Norwich.

GENTLEMAN, A.R.A.M. (who has appeared as Solo Pianist, Queen's Hall, &c., and is Professor of Pianoforte at well-known College of Music), offers his services (at Reduced Fees during War) to any School or Musical Academy in or near London wishing for Advanced Pianoforte Tuition. Further particulars given on application to A. R. A. M., 6, Orlando Road, Clapham, S.W.

STUDENT TEACHER. — Young Gentleman WANTED in School of Music in London. Board-residence and small salary. Premium required. State qualifications, &c., to W. F., c/o Novello & Co., Ltd., 160, Wardour Street, W.

CLIFTON COLLEGE.—Classical, Mathematical, Modern Language, Natural Science, and Music Scholarships, value from £25 to £100 a year. Also two Percival Scholarships and a SCHOLARSHIP for ARMY CANDIDATES. EXAMINATION in JUNE. There are also some "War Exhibitions" for sons of Old Cliftonians. Particulars from the Secretary, Clifton College, Bristol.

WANTED IMMEDIATELY.—ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER, for All Saints', Clooney, Londonderry, Ireland. Salary, £60 per annum. Apply, with references and testimonials, to The Rev. W. F. H. Garstin, The Vicarage, Rossdowney, Londonderry.

THERE is a VACANCY for VOLUNTARY TENOR and ALTO at St. Anne's Church, Soho. Applicants should apply in writing to Dr. E. H. Thorne, 19, Clarendon Gardens, Maida Vale, W.

ACCOMPANIST.—Gentlewoman wishes practice with Singers, Instrumentalists. Excellent sight-reader. Continental training. Miss Lyle, Wilkie Hotel, St. Stephen's Road, Bayswater, W.

ORGANS (New and Second-hand) for SALE. Various prices. Instruments built for Church or Chamber from £50, on up-to-date principles, at Bedwell & Sons, Cambridge Organ Works, Cambridge.

THE POSITIVE ORGAN.—A real PIPE ORGAN (all British), giving the effects of two manuals and pedals on its single keyboard. Prices from £77. Over 900 supplied. Estimates given for Repairs, Rebuilds, Two- and Three-Manual Organs, &c.

POSITIVE ORGAN CO. LTD., 44, Mornington Crescent (opposite Tube Station), London, N.W.

ORGAN PRACTICE.—Three-manual Pipe Organ for Practice—good condition; complete set of Couplers; blown by hydraulic engine. 1s. per hour. Hamilton Evans & Co., 54, London Road, Forest Hill, S.E. (one minute from station). Telephone: 693 Sydenham.

SEVERAL TWO-MANUAL ORGANS, with pedals, various sizes, suitable for CHURCHES, COLLEGES, &c., built on entirely new principles of specially constructed action recently introduced, at minimum of cost. Apply, W. E. Richardson & Sons, Organ Builders, Manchester, S.W.

FOR SALE.—A TWO-MANUAL CHAMBER ORGAN, in good playing condition, with full compass pedalboard and motor complete. Would suit professional man for teaching purposes. Can be seen in London by appointment. Apply in first instance to Norman & Beard, Ltd., 61, Berners Street, London, W.

CRAMER PIANOS, SECOND-HAND, WANTED.—Please send particulars and prices to W. SAVILLE & Co., Pianoforte Warehouse, Bruce Grove, Tottenham.

VIRGIL CLAVIER DUMB PIANO, 7¼ Octaves, 7 Guineas cash. 74, Palermo Road, Harlesden, N.W.

FOR SALE.—GROVE'S DICTIONARY OF MUSIC, 1910 Edition. Five Volumes; excellent condition. £3 10s. W. H., c/o Novello & Co., Ltd., 160, Wardour Street, W.

PIANO PEDALS with Octave Coupler

This wonderful invention supersedes all Piano Pedals, and is a Master Patent.

THE CATHEDRAL, MANCHESTER,
Nov. 8, 1910.

DEAR MR. MALKIN,

I think your Patent Pedal Attachment, which you have fitted to my Steinway, is simply splendid. I find the action absolutely silent and its touch beautiful.—Yours truly,

R. H. P. COLEMAN, F.R.C.O., Sub-Organist.

Terms :—Cash, or instalments of 8s. per month.

Write for Lists, Prices, and Clients' Opinions, and References to

THE MALKIN PATENT PEDAL CO., LTD.,
Works—Hanley, Staffs. NEWCASTLE-UNDER-LYME.

PIANO PEDALS.

EVERY ORGANIST

should investigate the importance and special advantages of

NORMAN & BEARD'S
PNEUMATIC PEDAL ATTACHMENT FOR THE PIANO.

Correct relative position of Keys and Pedals guaranteed.
Gives a perfect touch and repetition.
Does not injure the most delicate Piano, all parts of the Pianoforte action being left perfectly free.
Pedals can be instantly removed.
Does not alter the Piano touch.
Every Attachment made specially in our own Factory.

NORMAN & BEARD, LTD., 61 BERNERS ST., LONDON, W.
Telegrams: "Vibrating, London." Telephone: Gerrard 9145.

THE OLD FIRM.

P. CONACHER & CO., LTD.,
Organ Builders,
SPRINGWOOD WORKS,
HUDDERSFIELD.
TWO GOLD MEDALS.

COMPOSERS OF DANCE MUSIC.

WE ARE OFFERING A CASH PRIZE OF £20 FOR A WALTZ.

Send Stamped Envelope for Entry Form and Particulars.
WEST & CO.,
Editorial Department, 23-24, Rathbone Place, London, W.

DIAGRAM HARMONY, an Explicit Synopsis of all Scales, Chords, and Relationships of Music, defined by the Twelve Semitones. By Panton Hook. Price 2d. Novello & Co., Ltd., 160, Wardour Street, W.

WANTED, SECOND-HAND :—

(1.) Concerto in C minor (No. 4), Saint-Saëns (Op. 44).
(2.) Concerto in E major. Moszkowski (Op. 59).
(3.) Concerto in B flat minor (Op. 23). Tschaikowsky.
(4.) Concerto in D minor (No. 8). Mozart.
Parts required are: Full Orchestral Score for No. 1.
First and Second Violin for No. 4.
Viola and Violoncello, and Contrabass for No. 2.
One Set of all the Wood-wind and Brass Parts, Timpani, &c.

W. & G. FOYLE,
121, CHARING CROSS ROAD, W.C.

NOVELLO'S EDITIONS
OF THE
FAVOURITE OPERAS
ADAPTED FOR CONCERT USE.

1. FAUST.
Price 1s. Tonic Sol-fa, 9d.
2. IL TROVATORE.
Price 1s. 6d. Tonic Sol-fa, 1s.
3. TANNHÄUSER.
Price 1s. 6d.
4. MARITANA.
Price 1s. 6d.
5. THE BOHEMIAN GIRL.
Price 1s. 6d.
6. THE DAUGHTER OF THE REGIMENT.
Price 1s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

PRODUCED AT THE
ROYAL ALBERT HALL, APRIL 11.

IMPERIAL MARCH,
"PRO PATRIA"
FOR FULL ORCHESTRA.

COMPOSED BY
J. D. DAVIS.
Op. 58.

String Parts (5) .. .. each 1s.
Full Score and Wind Parts MS.

IN THE PRESS:
Arrangement for Pianoforte Solo.
Arrangement for Military Band by DAN GODFREY.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

SERENADE
FROM
"THE WAND OF YOUTH"
(FIRST SUITE)
COMPOSED BY EDWARD ELGAR.

PIANOFORTE SOLO	1s. 6d
VIOLIN AND PIANOFORTE	2s. od.
VIOLONCELLO AND PIANOFORTE	2s. od.
PIANOFORTE AND STRINGED INSTRUMENTS	2s. 6d.

(Separate String Parts, 3d. each.)

ARRANGEMENT FOR SMALL ORCHESTRA.

STRING PARTS	1s. 3d.
FLUTE AND CLARINET	each 3d.
HARP OR PIANOFORTE	1s. od.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

NOVELLO'S HANDBOOKS FOR MUSICIANS.

Edited by Ernest Newman.

CHORAL TECHNIQUE & INTERPRETATION

BY

HENRY COWARD.

Mus. Doc. Oxon.

Published as a Net Book. Price, Cloth, gilt, Five Shillings net.

THE TEACHING AND ACCOMPANIMENT OF PLAINSONG

BY

FRANCIS BURGESS.

Published as a Net Book.

Price, Cloth, gilt, Three Shillings and Sixpence net.

THE MUSIC OF THE BIBLE

With some account of the Development of Modern Musical Instruments from Ancient Types.

BY

JOHN STAINER.

New Edition, with Additional Illustrations and Supplementary Notes

BY

THE REV. F. W. GALPIN, M.A., F.L.S.

Published as a Net Book.

Price, Cloth, gilt, Five Shillings net.

SONGS FROM THE PLAYS OF WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE

With Dances and Incidental Music as sung and danced by the Bermondsey Guild of Play.

WRITTEN AND COMPILED BY

MRS. G. T. KIMMINS.

Published as a Net Book.

Price, Half Bound, Paper Sides, gilt top, Five Shillings net.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

POCKET SING-SONG BOOK

FOR

SOLDIERS, SAILORS, SCHOOLS, HOMES,

ETC.

EDITED BY W. G. McNAUGHT.

CONTAINING: NATIONAL ANTHEMS, ETC., OF THE ALLIES.
MARCHING SONGS.
NATIONAL AND FOLK-SONGS.
HYMNS.

PRICE ONE SHILLING.

THE POCKET SING-SONG BOOK (6 in. by 4½ in.) is designed to provide in a portable volume a collection of Unison Songs of the best type that will, it is hoped, be found welcome in camps, ships, clubs, class-rooms, and wherever "sing-song" gatherings are popular. A number of the songs will serve as marching tunes. The vocal part is printed in both notations.

Simple accompaniments are given, except in the case of a few Folk-songs, where such aids are dispensable. If, however, accompaniments to these are desired, they are to be found in Novello's School Series, at 1½d. each. Any of the other pieces in the collection can also be obtained separately at 1d. or 1½d. each. The songs are generally printed in low keys, in order, as far as possible, to suit all voices. A competent pianist can, if necessary, easily transpose to other keys.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

No. 86, NOVELLO'S MUSIC PRIMERS.

A PRACTICAL GUIDE
TO THE
THEORY OF MUSIC

CONTAINING
NUMEROUS TEST-QUESTIONS WITH ANSWERS.
BY
JULIA A. O'NEILL

Composer of "EXERCISES FOR THE WEAKER FINGERS" (Progressive Studies, Edited by FRANKLIN TAYLOR, Book 53) and of "MELODIOUS TECHNIQUE."

Price One Shilling. Paper Boards, 1s. 6d.

THE TIMES.

It is in its clear statement of facts, both in writing and by the use of simple diagrams, that Miss Julia O'Neill's book excels.

THE MORNING POST.

Her manner of putting down the facts is concise and clear. An immense amount of ground is covered in logical sequence, and the book is one of the most helpful publications as yet made. It is satisfactory to note that ear-cultivation is touched upon.

MUSICAL OPINION.

It is really surprising the amount of useful matter that Julia A. O'Neill has managed to compress within the covers of her primer, "A Practical Guide to the Theory of Music." Teachers who wish to keep abreast of the times in an educational sense will find this well-written guide calculated to help them to a knowledge of the latest and most accepted method of elementary theoretical instruction. We are pleased to note that the all-important subject of ear-culture has not been neglected in the present primer.

THE LADY.

Is a thoroughly praiseworthy attempt to present the cardinal facts of musical theory in a plain and straightforward manner to the beginner. Wholly admirable is the way the gradual formation of our present-day clefs is explained.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

OLD
ENGLISH VIOLIN MUSIC

EDITED BY
ALFRED MOFFAT.

PREFATORY NOTE.

ALTHOUGH considerable attention has been given to the resuscitation of Church Music, Glees and Madrigals, Organ and even Harpsichord Music by the older English composers, very little has been done to make known the large mass of music for the Violin written by English musicians from the time of Purcell to the close of the eighteenth century. These works for the most part consist of Suites or Sonatas written for a solo violin with a figured bass, or for two violins and violoncello with a figured bass for the harpsichord or organ; another favourite form was the Concerto grosso.

It is with the object of making known to the public a selection of the best of these compositions that the present series has been undertaken.

ALFRED MOFFAT.

No.			s.	d.
1.	SONATA in G major	JAMES LATES	2	0
2.	SONATA in D minor	HENRY ECCLES	2	0
3.	SONATA in B flat major	WILLIAM BABELL	2	0
4.	SONATA in G minor	JOHN STANLEY	2	0
5.	SONATA in A major	JOHN COLLETT	2	0
6.	TRIO-SONATA in E minor	THOMAS AUGUSTINE ARNE	3	0
7.	SONATA in D major	RICHARD JONES	2	0
8.	TRIO-SONATA in D minor	WILLIAM BOYCE	3	0
9.	THREE PIECES	WILLIAM BOYCE	2	0
10.	SONATA in E major	CHARLES MACKLEAN	2	0
11.	SONATA in G minor	WILLIAM CROFT	2	0
12.	SONATA in D minor	JOSEPH GIBBS	2	0
13.	SONATA in D minor	JOHN HUMPHRIES	2	0
14.	SONATA in A minor	THOMAS VINCENT	2	0

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

TRINITY COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

(Instituted 1872.)

Chairman of Board:
Sir FREDERICK BRIDGE, C.V.O., M.A., Mus.D.
Director of Studies: G. E. BAMBRIDGE, F.T.C.L., F.R.A.M.
Director of Examinations: C. W. PEARCE, Mus.D.

Students can enter at any time.

The College provides Instruction and Training in all Musical Subjects: Instrumental, Vocal, and Theoretical, and the Lessons are arranged to meet the convenience of both day and evening students. Any number of subjects—from one to the Full Course—may be entered for.

The College is open to beginners as well as to advanced students.

Approved complete Courses for the University of London Degrees in Music under recognised Teachers of the University. Also preparation for the degrees of other Universities, the examinations of the Royal College of Organists, Trinity College of Music, etc.

The Orchestral, Choral, and Chamber Music Classes are open also to sufficiently competent persons who are not College students for any other subjects.

All modern systems of Technique, whether for the Pianoforte, Violin, or other Instrument, and of Vocal Training, are taught by eminent Professors.

Tuition in the Rudiments of the Theory of Music, Harmony, Counterpoint, Form, Instrumentation, Composition, and the Art of Teaching is also given by Correspondence.

In the Junior School (for Students up to 16 years of age) the fees are reduced.

Particulars of the Teaching Department, with list of Professors, Fees, Scholarships regulations, and the Syllabuses of the Higher and Local Examinations, on application to the undersigned.

SHELLEY FISHER, Secretary.

Mandeville Place, Manchester Square, London, W.

To be Published May 3.

THE ARETHUSA

composed by

WILLIAM SHIELD

ARRANGED FOR MEN'S VOICES AND ORCHESTRA

by

FRANK M. JEPHSON.

Price Threepence.

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

THE CHIMES OF GLOUCESTER CATHEDRAL

ARRANGED FOR PIANOFORTE

by

C. LEE WILLIAMS.

Price Two Shillings net.

ORGAN TRANSCRIPTION BY A. HERBERT BREWER,

In the Press.

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

BROADWOOD PIANOS

BOSWORTH EDITION.

TO TEACHERS. IF YOU ARE Looking for good teachable pieces by MODERN COMPOSERS OF REPUTE, who write under their own names, and have given of their very best as to form, tune, &c.,

ASK any dealer for Bosworth's Thematic Lists of carefully graded pieces, and 1s. Albums by Aletter, Angless, Granville Bantock, Beringer, Byford, Gillet, Gurlitt, Liftl, Graham Moore, Cuthbert Nunn, Reinecke, Sartorio, Spindler, Schafer, Thorpe, Travers, Wilm, Zilcher.

SELECTED FROM A CATALOGUE OF 40,000 WORKS.

BOSWORTH'S PORTRAIT CLASSICS
CONSTITUTE A RECORD IN CHEAP, CORRECT, HIGH-CLASS ENGLISH PRODUCTIONS.

BEETHOVEN (Liszt Edition) SONATAS
560 pages. Price 5s. net.

CHOPIN (80 pages. Price 1s. net.) WALTZES

MENDELSSOHN
131 pages, Price 1s. 8d. net. SONGS WITHOUT WORDS

BACH FIRST INSTRUCTIONS IN
In two Books. Price 1s. net each.
" 15 TWO-PART INVENTIONS. Price 1s.

Having again been thoroughly revised, we may safely claim these to be the finest editions on the market.

If any difficulty in obtaining lists, write direct to:
BOSWORTH & CO.,
8, Heddon Street, Regent Street, London, W.
Publishers of the Four Great British Piano Methods:
"Beringer's Tutor," "Graham Moore's First Principles,"
"Ward's Progressive," and "Wickin's Rapid Method."
Price 2s. 6d. net each.

Just Published.

HANDBOOKS FOR MUSICIANS.

EDITED BY ERNEST NEWMAN.

The Sources of Keyboard Music in England

by

CHARLES VAN DEN BORREN,

Professor of the Université Nouvelle of Brussels.

Translated from the French by

JAMES E. MATTHEW.

Published as a Net Book.
Price Seven Shillings Net.

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

The Musical Times

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

MAY 1, 1915.

EMIL MLYNARSKI.

Of the many courageous musical enterprises that have distinguished the War period, that projected by Mr. Mlynarski takes a high place. His association with Glasgow and with the most important of Scottish musical doings during recent years have brought him into touch with British music and musicians, and prompted a strong desire to serve the cause of our native art. With this praiseworthy aim he has promoted a Festival of British music which is to be held at Queen's Hall on May 11, 13, and 15. We are glad at this opportune moment to give an account of Mr. Mlynarski's career.

Emil Simon Mlynarski was born on July 18, 1870, at Kibarty, a small frontier town near Wirballen, in Souvalki, one of the ten provinces of the kingdom of Poland under Russian government. His father, a Pole, was at that time a high official in the Custom House at Kibarty, and his mother came of a Westphalian family. Both parents are no longer living. The family is entitled on the father's side to use the patronymic Belina, to show its extraction from the old Polish nobility. The family crest perpetuates the curious legend from which the word 'Belina' is derived. In the 12th century the ancestor Belina lost an arm in a great battle in the service of the Polish king, Leszek Bialy, who rewarded Belina by granting him the weight in gold of his arm and his sword. Hence the uplifted arm as the crest. The legend is the subject of a poem by the celebrated Polish poet, Syrokomla. Emil's father had no special musical leanings, but his mother was an excellent pianist, and she painted artistically. The Mlynarski salon was the resort of the musical set of the small town. Emil as a boy, instead of amusing himself with other children, preferred to be indoors when his mother played, and he used to creep under the pianoforte and thus gratify his appetite for musical sounds; and he soon dabbled on the keyboard, but at this time no particular attention was given to the cultivation of his faculty. When he was about eight years of age a train was passing near the residence (which, by the way, has been destroyed in the recent fighting), and the engine whistled. A visitor speculated as to the pitch of the note, and Emil declared it was G. This was duly verified, and the incident drew attention to his possession of pitch memory. Soon after a cousin, a violinist, visited the family, and from him the child heard the violin for the first time and was greatly excited, a fact that was duly observed by his parents. This incident led to a German amateur violinist, who resided at Eydkyhnen, just over the border, being engaged to teach Emil After forty lessons this instructor gave up his pupil, on the ground that he could teach him no more. Emil had by then learnt some fairly difficult music, including one of De Beriot's concertos, and he gave his first concert to the townsfolk. It was then decided to send him to the Warsaw Conservatoire. The director, Apolinary Kontski (a brother of the pianist, Joseph), who had practically re-created the Conservatoire after a sterile period, was much attracted by the lad's ability. But before the contemplated course could be begun Kontski died, and it was resolved that Emil should go to the Petrograd Conservatoire, where he would be in intimate touch with the best music and musicians. At this period the great violinist, Leopold Auer, was at the head of the violin department, and Anton Rubinstein was soon afterwards the chief of the whole school.

Mlynarski was at first under Boehm, with whom he studied for three years, and he worked at composition under Liadov. He recalls with natural pride that Rubinstein displayed much interest in this section of his work. Incidentally it may be worth noting that the annual fees for the

THE BELINA COAT OF ARMS.

Conservatoire course ranged from about £10 to £20. This amount no doubt represented a greater purchasing power generally than it would even at that time in this country. But the more important explanation of the lowness of the fees was the fact that the Imperial Government and patriotic patrons of music provided the greater part of the whole cost of the Conservatoire. The most gifted students were regarded as free scholars, and Mlynarski being in this category did not incur any payment. Besides working at music, students had to attend the 'Gymnasium' for their general education, and success in this department was a requirement of a first degree Diploma at the Conservatoire. This honour was gained by Mlynarski after ten years' study (1879 to 1889) at the Conservatoire. In the course of this period he came under the fascinating influence of Hans von Bülow, who conducted the orchestra of the Imperial Russian Musical Society. The advanced students were accorded free admission to the rehearsals, and a select number were allowed to attend the concerts on the same liberal terms. This formative experience was the seed of his ambition to become a conductor, but at this period there was no opportunity for him to expand in that direction. About 1890, Rubinstein organized an orchestra composed chiefly of select students of the Conservatoire. Mlynarski was appointed one of the leading violins, and thus enjoyed that intimate and invaluable experience of the orchestral world of sound which can be gained only from the inside. An orchestral player does not listen to an orchestra with the same mental attitude as an auditor who has never played an orchestral instrument. This cherished child of the great pianist had no subsidy to help its finances, and it lived only three glorious years. While he was at Petrograd, Mlynarski had the honour of being appointed second violin in Auer's quartet party, accounted one of the best in Europe. This appointment grew out of the students' quartets, which were personally superintended by Auer. Thus the trio of famous musicians, Rubinstein, Bülow, and Auer were strong forces in shaping Mlynarski's musical character. Then there were Tchaikovsky and his brilliant works, and the Belaieff concerts to stimulate the ardent student. At a concert given in the Circus, Mlynarski played the 'Fantasia Appassionata' of Vieuxtemps, Rubinstein conducting. Afterwards in the artists' room Tchaikovsky came in and Rubinstein, commenting on the performance, said to him, 'Didn't he play well? He will be another Wieniawski!' 'No,' replied Tchaikovsky, 'he will be Mlynarski.'

ANNA MLYNARSKA.

With a view to widen his experience of the world, and in order to satisfy a longing to know more of England and the English, Mlynarski now came (1890) to London, and gave a concert at the Prince's Hall. The success of this appearance led to many engagements at at-homes and concerts. His next centre was Berlin, where he stayed for three years, assimilating much modern music, including Wagner's operas, and he came under the spell of Joachim, and devoted considerable time to composition. A Mazurka in G, for violin and pianoforte, is one of the most widely known and popular pieces produced in this period. In 1894, at the age of twenty-four, he decided to settle down to one place, the chief motive being his intention to marry the lady to whom he was engaged, namely, Anna Talko-Hryncewicz, daughter of a Polish land proprietor whose estate was at Ilgowo, on the river Niemen, a district in the line of the recent German invasion which has now been more or less laid waste. As the permanent home of the family is in this part, there is at present much anxiety as to its condition. Meantime, Madame Mlynarska and her two sons and three daughters are living near Moscow. Mlynarski secured an appointment as professor of the violin at the Conservatoire, and leader of the symphony orchestra at Odessa (a branch of the Imperial Russian Society), and he formed a string quartet which soon achieved a widespread reputation in the South of Russia. While at Odessa he wrote a Violin concerto in D minor which was submitted to Leipsic for a prize offered by Paderewski to Polish composers. Nikisch and Reinecke were amongst the judges, and the violin prize was awarded to Mlynarski. Some years later, at the first performance of the Concerto at Petrograd, Auer played the violin solo and Mlynarski conducted. At this period the Opera at Warsaw was undergoing some development, and there was a vacancy in the conducting staff that Mlynarski was ambitious to fill: not only in order to conduct, but to serve the cause of Polish music, especially as regards opera. But in view of the political conditions of the city, the authorities had so far preferred to avoid both Polish and Russian conductors, and to appoint Italians. Even native opera in the Polish language was to a great extent barred, only two works being excepted, 'Halka' and 'Straszny Dwor,' both by Moniuszko. All other operas had to be given in Italian. One of the chief governing powers representing the Imperial Russian Government at this time (1897) was the Russian Prince Obolensky. He was very sympathetic towards Polish music, and through his influence a third Polish opera was permitted to be performed. This was 'Goplana,' by Zelenski (Cracow), which Mlynarski considers a beautiful work. Believing that the time was ripe for further concession to the national spirit Mlynarski ventured to apply for the vacant post, although his only experience as a conductor was that at the Odessa rehearsal of the Concerto noted above. At Petrograd he had met the Prince, whose wife, a first-rate pianist, had held musical receptions, to some of which Mlynarski had been invited. When he called on the Prince and bravely asked for the appointment, his highness laughed incredulously. But Mlynarski persevered, and eventually was permitted to conduct a rehearsal of 'Carmen,' a work with which fortunately Mlynarski was very well acquainted, although not from the conductor's standpoint. The circumstances were unfavourable, inasmuch as the prima-donna did not think it worth while to attend a rehearsal of such a familiar work. But fortunately the orchestra was more responsive, because the prospect of playing under a native conductor appealed to their patriotism. In the end, Mlynarski was deputed to conduct the performance to be given on the next day. He was nervous, especially in view of the possible vagaries of 'Carmen.' The first Act went smoothly enough, but in the second Act there was nearly a catastrophe. 'Carmen' ran away from the band, and the trumpets on the stage were playing in their own time. Chaos threatened, but Mlynarski decided to keep the trumpets and the orchestra together and to ignore the lady. This decision saved the situation. Press criticisms were favourable (it is consoling to some of us to know that they are of some use at times), and next day the Prince appointed Mlynarski to the vacant post, which carried with it a salary of £400 a year. His colleague was an Italian. He now devoted himself earnestly to his new vocation, and soon acquired valuable experience. There being no regular series of Symphony concerts at Warsaw, Mlynarski organized the Opera orchestra to give concerts on the stage of the Opera House, as there was no satisfactory arena in the city in which concerts could be given. This crying need gave birth to a scheme for the erection of a Philharmonic Hall. Thanks to the exceptional zeal of Alexander Rajchman, one of the citizens, and the substantial patronage of Maurice Count Zamojski, the scheme was realised. A limited company was formed, not as a business speculation but simply in order to provide the building and finance the concerts, and very soon the community rejoiced in the possession of a handsome and commodious auditorium that accommodates an audience of about 2,000 persons. The interior of the Philharmonic Hall is adorned with panels painted by the best artists, and there is an excellent organ, which was presented by one of the subscribers. The first concert was given in 1901 on the occasion of the ceremony of opening the new building, and drewa distinguished audience. Paderewski was the soloist. Being satisfied that Polish music was now established at the Opera House, many new works by native composers having been placed on the répertoire, Mlynarski gave up his very exacting position, and concentrated his attention on the Symphony Orchestra. He mentions that in preparation for a first series of fifty or more concerts to be given at Warsaw and elsewhere, the orchestra met twice a day for three months to rehearse the chosen répertoire. After four years, Mlynarski resigned his position as conductor of the orchestra in order to get other experience, and he was appointed director of the Warsaw Conservatoire, an institution that years before had received Paderewski as a pupil. In 1905 there were political troubles at Warsaw arising out of the Japanese War, but Mlynarski was not involved, and the stress of the situation was mitigated by his being able to induce the Viceroy to consent to the use of the Polish language in the Conservatoire. He conducted the Moscow Philharmonic Society and the orchestra of the Imperial Musical Society at Petrograd as a 'guest,' whilst still holding the Warsaw position. At Moscow, after conducting the Tchaikovsky 'Pathetic' (a work with which he is specially associated as a conductor), he was presented by the members of the orchestra with a full score of the Symphony and some silver plate he much prizes. Modeste Tchaikovsky was present on this occasion, and voiced his deep appreciation of the performance. In 1914 Mlynarski was again invited to become chief conductor of the Philharmonic Choir of Warsaw, and, but for the War, he would have been conducting eight concerts this season. In 1907 he came again to London, and gave a concert at Queen's Hall with Mischa Elman and the London Symphony Orchestra. This was Mlynarski's first appearance as a conductor in this country. He was then engaged to conduct the London Symphony Orchestra at the Royal Albert Hall Sunday Concerts on several occasions, BRONISLAS. FELIX.

ANGELICA.
ALINE. WANDA.
EMIL MLYNARSKI'S CHILDREN.

and was a guest-conductor at one of the Colonne Concerts at Paris and at other symphony concerts at Moscow and Petrograd, and notably of the Scottish Orchestra at Glasgow and Edinburgh. Soon after, on the retirement of Sir Frederic Cowen, he became the conductor of this orchestra and of the Glasgow Choral and Orchestral Union (which has now absorbed the orchestra), and this position he has held for five years. In 1909 he resigned his position at Warsaw, and was presented by the Emperor of Russia with the Decoration of St. Stanislaus. The Scottish Orchestra consists of about eighty players, nearly all of whom are British. It is supported by its concerts and a guarantee fund. The Glasgow Corporation is one of the guarantors, and regularly engages the orchestra for concerts which take place in the City Hall. Rehearsals of the orchestra are held four or five times a week for two hours. About fifty concerts are given during the season, a number that includes those given on tour in Scotland. The finances of the orchestra are at present in a satisfactory condition, the deficits of the previous years having been retrieved. Mlynarski finds that Scottish audiences are highly appreciative. They like the classics, but they also desire to hear the most modern developments of the 'forward' school as exemplified by Scriabin, Schönberg, and Stravinsky.

Mlynarski thinks that Scotland will not come into its own until it has an Opera house, a Conservatoire, and a Philharmonic orchestra, all under one roof and all co-ordinated, and that Glasgow is the most natural centre for this comprehensive institution.

Amongst the most important of Mlynarski's compositions is the Symphony 'Polonia.' It is in four movements. It has been performed twice at Edinburgh, Glasgow, London, Berlin, Lemberg, and Warsaw, and once at Petrograd. He has recently finished an opera-comique, 'A summer's night,' and is now composing another Violin concerto.

List of Published Works.

Opus.
1. 'Feuille d'album' (pianoforte).
2. Mazurka in G (violin); also arranged for violoncello and pianoforte (Popper).
3. Romance (pianoforte).
4. No. 1, Polonaise; No. 2, Berceuse Slave; No. 3, Humoresque (violin).
5. Trois Morceaux (pianoforte): No. 1, Krakowiak; No. 2, Nocturne; No. 3, Moment fugitif.
6. No. 1, Rêverie; No. 2, Musette; No. 3, Souvenir (violin).
7. Second Mazurka (violin).
11. Concerto in D minor for violin and orchestra.
14. 'Polonia.' Symphony in F (orchestral score).

As indicated at the head of this article, Mlynarski has come to London to settle the arrangements for the series of concerts illustrative of British orchestral music to be given at Queen's Hall on May 11, 13, 15. In this bold and generous scheme originated by Mlynarski, he is supported by some Scottish sympathisers. It may be hoped that the public here will respond to such a striking appeal on behalf of British art.

Mr. Mlynarski says:

The character of this Festival is retrospective. It is not for the purpose of introducing the music of new and unknown composers, for it is believed that whatever public demand there is for this is amply provided for by the efforts of other organizations. In the programmes of the three concerts, none but those composers who have already won distinction are represented. The music played is exclusively British, and consists of what is, in the opinion of the selection committee, the best and most characteristic written and produced during the past ten years. Though actual novelty has not been a credential for inclusion in the programmes, a first-rate work that is unfamiliar has obtained precedence over one that is well-known.

As conductor of the Scottish Orchestra for five seasons, I have been acquainted with many British works, and have been surprised that their composers were so little known on the Continent and, indeed, so much neglected in their own country. The reason for the neglect of the British composer abroad is largely that the foreigner has so few opportunities of hearing British music, even in Britain. Performances are so scattered and so irregular that no clear idea can be conveyed of the growth and development of British music. Important musical organizations, having no Government grant or wealthy patrons, have to please to live; experience has shown that, under existing conditions, the British composer is not profitable.

A series of Festivals in London in May-June might do much for the British composer abroad, and lead to a fuller development of British music at home.

The programmes of the Festivals should be gathered into book form, with photographs, particulars about the composer, his work, duration of the pieces, publishing houses, &c. Books should be sent to every town in Europe and America in which symphonic music is cultivated. If possible, one musicseller or distributor should be chosen from whom all the music performed could be obtained. Such a musicseller must naturally be able to correspond in several languages, including French, Russian, Polish, &c.

An ideal friend of British music would be a man of the type of Belaieff, the Russian timber-merchant, who established a cheap edition of Russian music (now known all over the world), and by spending a fortune on symphony and other concerts did everything in his power for the spread of native music.

I desire to express my great appreciation of the artistic support afforded by Mr. Thomas Beecham, whose enthusiasm has been such a great factor in musical progress in this country.

The following are the programmes of the concerts so far as they are announced at the date of our going to press:

Tuesday, May 11, at 8.30 p.m.

Humoresque ... ... O'Neill
(First performance.)
Poem for baritone solo, chorus, and orchestra 'Seadrift' ... ... Delius
(Words by Walt Whitman.)
Herbert Heyner.
Symphonic-poem 'Fifine at the Fair' ... Bantock
Poem for chorus and orchestra, 'The Bells' Holbrooke
(Words by Edgar Allan Poë.)
Songs of the Sea ... ... Ethel Smyth
Herbert Heyner.
Part-songs (a) 'The Londonderry Aires' (b) 'Father and Daughter' } Grainger
Rhapsody No. 4 ... ... Stanford
'The Fisherman of Loch Neagh and what he saw.'

Thursday, May 13, at 8.30 p.m.

Symphonic-poem 'Villon' ... ... Wallace
Violin Concerto ... ... Elgar
Albert Sammons.
Pianoforte Concerto in C minor ... ... Delius
Howard-Jones.
Songs ... ...
Miss Agnes Nicholls.
Symphonic-poem, 'With the Wild Geese' ... Harty

Saturday, May 15, at 3 p.m.

Rhapsody ... ... 'Spring' ... Frederic Austin
Songs ... (a) 'A Celtic lullaby' ... Bax
(b) 'The wood's aglow' ... McEwen
Madame Kirkby Lunn.
Pianoforte concerto ... ... Scott
(First Performance.)
Cyril Scott.
Symphonic Impression—
'In the Fen Country' Vaughan-Williams
Introduction and Allegro for string orchestra Elgar
Songs ... ... Pitt
Madame Kirkby Lunn.
Fantasy ... 'In the faery hills' ... Bax
March ... 'Pomp and Circumstance,' No. 3 Elgar

The London Symphony Orchestra.
The London Choral Society.
Conductors:
Emil Mlynarski Sir Edward Elgar
Thomas Beecham Arthur Fagge

ACADEMIC TEACHING: A DEFENCE AND A CRITICISM.

BY EDWARD J. DENT.

Recent discussions at the meetings of the Musical Association and in the columns of the Musical Times have shown that there is a growing dissatisfaction with the methods commonly practised for the teaching of musical theory. Should 'counterpoint' be strict or free? Is 'harmony' to be based on Mendelssohn or on Stravinsky? What attitude are we to take as regards 'form'? From these discussions there seem to emerge two main tendencies, which I will venture for convenience to call 'modernist' and 'academic' respectively. I hope no reader will consider either of these epithets opprobrious, or imagine that I am wanting in respect for those who have contributed to the discussions on either side. Both parties, I think, have a very intense emotional appreciation of music, according to their particular temperaments. This leads the 'modernists' to rail at the teaching of the past, because they think, not unreasonably, that it represents a kind of music which is dead, and has no message for modern ears. The 'academics' view modern tendencies with apprehension, because they feel that old music, or some old music at least, still appeals to their emotions; and feeling certain on this point, they are nervous about new movements which threaten to upset established standards of taste.

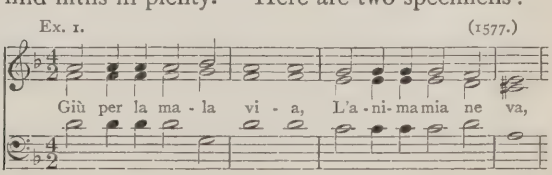
Many of those who have spoken and written on the subject have long experience as teachers behind them. I will not make any claim to experience of this kind, but prefer to approach the subject merely as an antiquary occupied mainly with historical research. I am not at all concerned about preserving the purity of my taste: I want to experience all the music that I can reach, and when I find something that interests me I want to share it with other musicians, whether it belongs to the 10th century or the 20th. The price that I have to pay for this is the boredom of wading through large quantities of rubbish of all periods. So far as I can see, musicians wrote as much bad music in the past as in the present, and therefore it seems reasonable to suppose that the musicians of the present and future will write as much good music as those of the past.

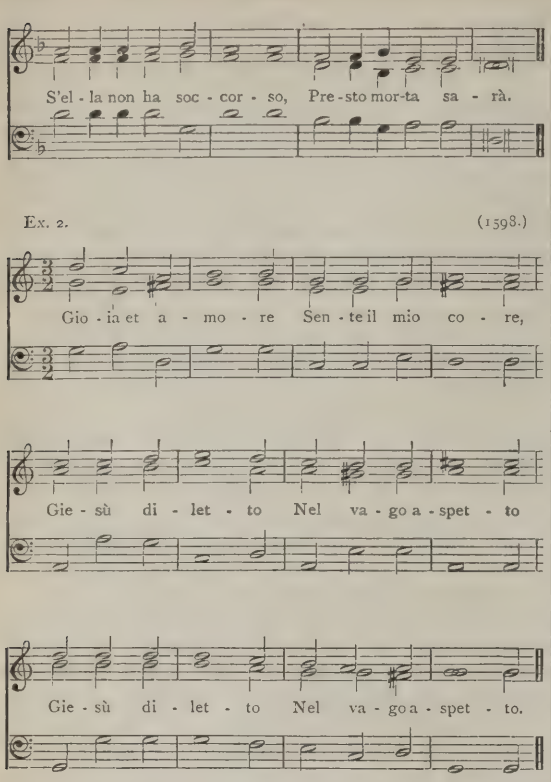
What is it that lies at the root of all theoretical teaching in music, whether our pupils are composers, organists, or just ordinary people? La musique est l'art de penser avec des sons. The first thing we must learn is to think musically. Music, like philosophy and mathematics, is an attitude of mind. We express it in sounds, but the sounds are merely the means by which we communicate our thought to others. Here, then, is the second thing that we must learn: to express our thoughts. It is the same for music as with English, Latin, or any other language: logical thought, and the clear expression of it, are the prime necessities of good style.

Now just as Latin is admittedly a very valuable training for the study of English, so the work of Palestrina and his contemporaries is a valuable training for the study of music. It is probably the best period to study, not because it is the best music ever written, which may be doubted, but because it is just near enough to our own style to be recognized as fundamentally the same language, and just remote enough to prevent us from being disturbed by questions of emotion and association. We have to disconnect our sensibility to emotion, and practise pure thought until a new emotion arises out of it. This emotion will be a true one, whereas our first emotional impression may probably have been false. We shall certainly not understand Palestrina rightly if we listen to him in a cathedral, distracted by lights, vestments, and incense, and perhaps by theological impressions as well. That is not Palestrina, but mere Liszt. To understand Palestrina we must learn his language, just as we must learn Latin to understand Virgil.

Counterpoint is merely a preliminary step towards composition in the 16th century style. It must be strict, it must be modal, and above all things it must be musical. If while conforming to all rules laid down in text-books (a matter of some difficulty, as text-books frequently disagree) it is ugly and dull, it may yet obtain marks in some examinations; but it will not be good counterpoint, and will have no educational value. The so-called 'rules' are neither objects of worship nor cities of refuge. They are simply attempts to codify the habits of leading composers. The pupil should write counterpoint not by reference to rules, but guided by a sense of style. It is impossible for him to write good counterpoint unless he is simultaneously saturating himself with the music of the period. We must not merely hear Palestrina, but read him, and still more, sing him. And to understand Palestrina's sacred music, we must study plainsong, and enter into the true modal spirit, which is only to be attained by the study of pre-harmonic music. But we must not forget that church-music is only a very small part of music as a whole, and that the 16th century could be just as secular as our own. The madrigal-writers, English, French, and Italian, will show us that strict modal counterpoint is by no means incompatible with a strong sense of humour. Incidentally, we shall perhaps learn something about consecutive fifths. Our 'modernist' friends are always asking why they should be forbidden, and our 'academics,' though anxious to support the old rule, seldom can give an adequate reason. If they will turn to Marenzio's 'Villanelle e Canzonette,' or the contemporary 'Laudi Spirituali,' they will find fifths in plenty. Here are two specimens:

Ex. 1. (1577.)





S'el - la non ha soc - cor - so, Pre - sto mor-ta sa - rà.
Ex. 2. (1598.)
Gio - ia et a - mo - re Sen - te il mio co - re,
Gie - sù di - let - to Nel va - go a - spet - to Gie - sù di - let - to Nel va - go a - spet - to.

The 'Laudi,' as is well known, were for the most part secular folk-songs adapted to sacred words. The harmonization in fifths doubtless represented a popular tradition handed down from mediæval days. What is more probable than that the artistic composers regarded it as a vulgarism to be avoided, just as any artistic composer of to-day would avoid the vulgarisms of mission hymns and popular part-songs?

I am indebted to M. Auguste Séryex, of the Schola Cantorum at Paris, for two ideas which are of some value. The first is that instead of the short canti fermi of the standard text-books, he gives his pupils, even for two-part work, complete movements of plain-song; the pupils are told to divide these themselves into phrases, and make suitable intermediate cadences at the 'points of repose.' This at once gives exercises a much more musical character, and also introduces the problem of form. Secondly, he advises his pupils to aim not so much at imitating Palestrina in the general effect of their work, as at imitating the style of Gregorian melody in the individual counterpoints. This concentrates attention on the fundamental idea of contrapuntal study—the practice of pure vocal melody. And to this I would add that if we wish to hear the actual sound of an exercise, it should on no account be played on the pianoforte, but should be sung. The pupil should make a point of singing over every part to himself, and of not resting satisfied until he feels that every part is really expressive and beautiful when sung.

Strict counterpoint, if intelligently studied, should teach us:

(1) The expressive value of pure vocal melody, which is the ultimate foundation of all music, ancient or modern;

(2) The combination of melodies, i.e., the expression of interacting personalities, out of which arise musical thought and argument;

(3) The interaction of harmony and rhythm due to suspensions and to the nascent sense of tonality;

(4) Style—the appreciation of the way in which a certain period adapts its material to purposes of expression.

The sense of 'style' and 'scholarship' is seldom trained to any great extent among young musicians. There are plenty who can satisfy examiners in text-book subjects, but few who can write, much less extemporize at the keyboard, suitable accompaniments to plainsong or to arias of Purcell and Bach. Figured basses are a common subject for abuse among 'modernists,' and we shall do well to consider what they really represent. I have seen figured basses set in examinations which Bach himself could not have made musical, for harmony and rhythm were utterly incompatible.

Let us consider how figured basses came into existence. In the early 16th century organists were expected to accompany choirs not from a figured bass, nor from an organ part, nor from a full score, but from the separate parts written out by themselves, the soprano and bass being on the left-hand page, the alto and tenor on the right. The average organist probably disregarded the right-hand page, and made what he could of the soprano and bass. Later on a few compositions were printed in score, but this was very rare, and it is thought that composers at that time very seldom wrote out a score themselves, or if they did, that it was kept very secret, like a trade recipe, and not allowed to fall into unauthorized hands.

Some composers in Italy wrote out short scores on two staves for backward pupils; but as these necessarily ignored the crossing of parts, it was soon felt that to write out so many notes was a useless labour, and the practice gradually developed of giving the accompanist a bass part, with a few indications of major and minor chords to prevent him going wrong. During the 17th century a few figures were gradually added, as music became more complicated, and still more because the new style of solo-singing required more independence on the part of the accompanist. But Italian and English composers always used a minimum of figures, and an intelligent musician was expected to fill up a bass properly, just as an intelligent pianist has no need of fingering or pedal-marking except in abnormal situations. Towards the end of the 18th century figured basses practically died out; the harpsichord and pianoforte were no longer required in the orchestra, and for solo songs and instrumental solos it became customary to write a regular pianoforte part instead of trusting to an accompanist's improvisation. Figured basses then should be used in teaching only to illustrate 17th and 18th century music. However, since the 18th century includes J. S. Bach, teachers need not have any fear that the subject will of necessity be devoid either of interest or of difficulty. In so far as figured basses are used constructively, they must be used with a sense of style: a bass from Purcell should be treated in Purcell's manner, a bass from Bach in that of Bach. The average figured bass which at its best works out in the manner of a Dykes hymn tune is wholly pernicious.

It will be pointed out that I am apparently carrying the study of harmony no further than Mozart. But I do not think any teacher will want to set his pupils exercises in the style of 19th-century composers. Their music must be studied analytically. It is no use deducing rules from Wagner and Brahms, and trying to compose by them. The composition pupil who has arrived at this stage must read all he can and write what he likes. All that a teacher can do is to criticise as sympathetically as possible, and endeavour to direct the pupil towards consistency of style and clearness of expression.

The main faults of young composers trained on 'modernist' lines appear to be a lack of clear thinking and a lack of consistency in style. They know all the latest clichés, or at any rate those of four or five years ago, but when these are reproduced without any particular idea behind them, we only see how old-fashioned they have already become. But the carping critic must admit that these young men can all write wonderfully well for the orchestra. Mr. Corder explains the reason in Grove's 'Dictionary' (s.v. 'Instrumentation,' vol. ii., p. 478): 'An orchestra will nearly always sound beautiful, even when the composer has gravely miscalculated his effects. So long as the harmonic structure is sound and the music interesting, it is almost impossible to write orchestration that sounds bad.' These works are often striking and effective in their way, but it is the way of halfpenny journalism.

Confusion of style leads inevitably to weakness of form—form is simply the larger aspect of musical thought. It is absurd to teach that the classical symphony or sonata is a permanently fixed form. Haydn alone exhibits endless varieties of it. What we ought to teach our pupils is not subservience to the form of a certain period, but an appreciation of form as a principle in all periods. And form must be connected always with counterpoint and harmonic analysis, because history shows us clearly that form is inseparably linked up with tonality and tonality with rhythm. Form is just as important a factor in Monteverde's operas as it is in the symphonies of Brahms. By all means let originality of form be encouraged. The new semi-modal tonality of the present day will inevitably find its own new forms; it is the duty of the teacher to help these to birth.

It seems to have been assumed by some of the parties to the discussions referred to above that all their pupils are, potentially at least, composers. But the percentage of Beethovens among them is bound to be small, and it is doubtful how far the rest deserve much encouragement. It may perhaps be argued that musical composition is as honourable a profession as halfpenny journalism—perhaps even more lucrative. One thing is absolutely certain—that the young composer who really believes in himself ought to be given as much encouragement and help as is practically possible. Nevertheless, the fact must be faced both by his teachers and by himself, that a great many musicians develop at the age of twenty or thereabouts a strong faculty for composition which in ten years' time or less may run completely dry. It is a phenomenon common enough in literature; plenty of young men write quite good poetry in English, Latin, or Greek during their undergraduate days who in after life do not practise literature even in any form. It is, therefore, urgent that musical education, whilst giving every assistance to the young composer, should provide him with a knowledge, and still more with habits of mind, that will make him a useful member of musical society in other capacities. He ought never to feel that the years spent in studying composition were wasted, and that his teachers, perhaps caring more for their reputations than for his, had ruined his chances of success in other fields in order that they or their institution might obtain the momentary credit of producing a composer of note. Men of this type will become organists of cathedrals, music-masters at schools, or perhaps conductors at theatres, publishers' readers, &c. Let us not forget that it is largely these men, rather than the real composers, who have the musical future of this country in their hands. It is the duty of those who train them to make them realise fully their responsibilities to others as well as to themselves, and to send them out into the world with a sense of real musical understanding and a high consciousness of their vocation as leaders in the kingdom of music.

THE CHIMES OF GLOUCESTER CATHEDRAL.*

By C. Lee Williams.

There is plenty of evidence that in the far-off days Gloucester was celebrated for its bells. There was a bell foundry at Gloucester as early as the reign of Edward III., and documents now in the archives of the Dean and Chapter of Ely tell us that Master John of Gloucester cast four new bells for Ely Cathedral in 1345. In Abbot Parker's Gloucester Register there is a copy of an agreement between the Abbot and Thomas Loveday, bell-founder, dated 1527, in which the latter 'hath covenaunted and bargayned with the Abbott to repayre a chyme gong uppon eight belles, and upon two ympnes, that is to say "Christe Redemptor omnium" and "Chorus novae Ierusalem," well, tuynable, and wokemanly, by the Feast of All Sayntes next ensuinge, for whych the seid Abbott promyseth to pay the seid Thomas Loveday four marcs sterlinge at the fynisshement of his seid repayre.' This is an interesting document, as the word 'repayre' shows that the above-mentioned fine old tunes 'Christe Redemptor omnium' and 'Chorus novae Jerusalem' must have been played by the 'eight belles' from a very early date to the citizens of Gloucester, morning, noon, and night. Church musicians are of course familiar with these stately old-world melodies, but it may be of some interest to append them here :

* A pianoforte arrangement of the Gloucester Chimes by C. Lee Williams is published by Messrs. Novello & Co. An organ arrangement by Dr. Brewer, the present organist of the Cathedral, is in the press.

Ring of Bells.

'Christe Redemptor omnium'

(An old Christmas melody, c. 10th century).

'Chorus novae Jerusalem'

(An old Easter melody, c. 10th century).

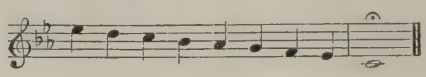
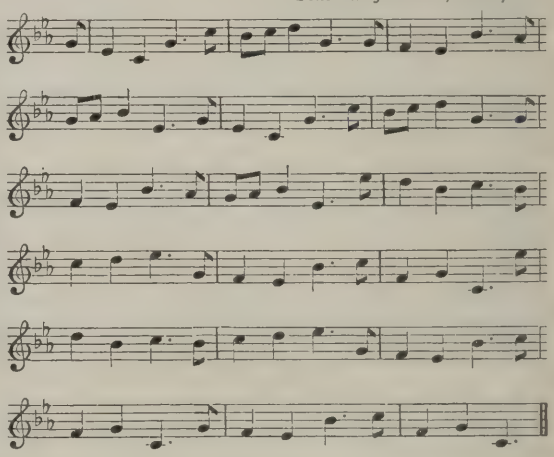
It seems that at the dissolution of the Abbey of Gloucester the bells were allowed to remain, for an indenture (1553) between the King's Commissioners and the Bishop of Worcester and Gloucester (presumably one See) shows that 'The seid Comm^rs have redelyvered unto the Deane and Chapter one great belle whereon the clock stryketh, and eight other belles whereupon the chymes goithe.' No documents can now be found at Gloucester giving reasons why the old hymns played by the chimes should have been changed, but it is certain that 'Christe Redemptor' and 'Chorus novae Jerusalem' were played daily and nightly up to 1662, to which date the present chimes can be traced. But we may presume that the arrival or restoration of the 'one great belle' giving the low C would set the Cathedral organist of that date (Stephen Jeffries) thinking how the 'big belle' could be utilised. Having now the scale of E♭ and the low C :



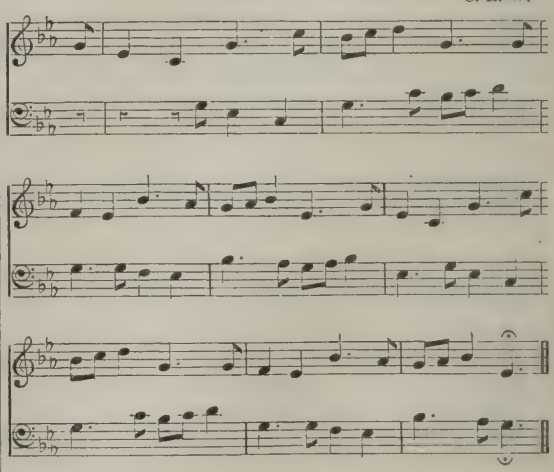
we may be sure Mr. Jeffries saw melodic possibilities which he could hand on in some shape or form to future generations of Gloucester citizens. Having discovered that barring one note (D) he had the descending melodic minor scale of C to deal with, he composed the following quaint but excellent tune, which in due time the chimes played, and made familiar to many generations of Gloucestrians :

Stephen Jeffries, 1662-1712.



A Minor Canon.

C. L. W.



We can hardly think that Mr. Jeffries's tune was the only one played by the chimes, and probably the old hymn-tunes before alluded to still played their parts in the old tower of Gloucester Cathedral.

In due time Dr. William Hayes, a former chorister, seems to have followed Mr. Jeffries's example, and composed a really beautiful tune for the chimes. It is as follows:

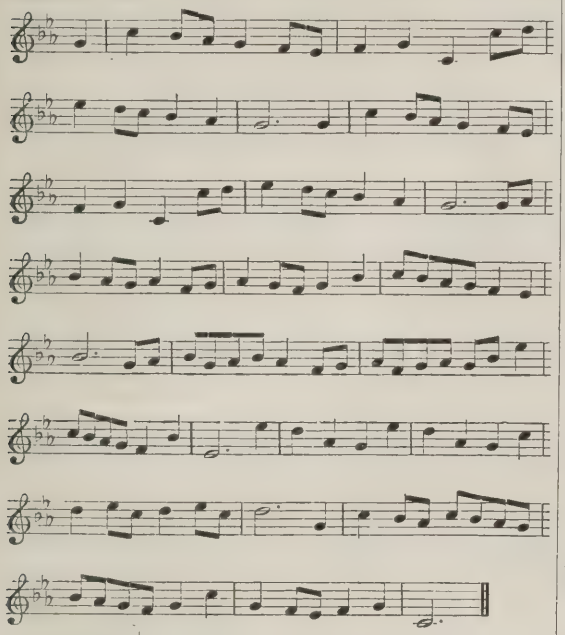
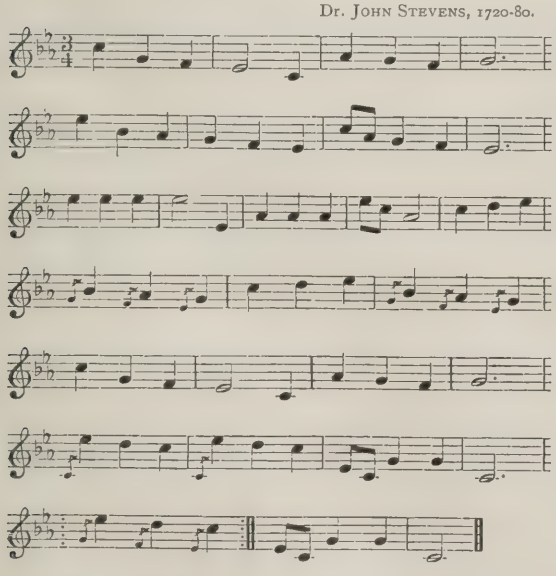
Dr. W. Hayes, 1708-77. (Organist of Worcester Cathedral and Magdalen College, Oxford.)



Another old chorister of Gloucester Cathedral, Dr. John Stevens, sometime organist of Salisbury Cathedral, seems to have been attracted by the quaint scale of bells and its musical possibilities. The happy inspiration of adopting different tempi seems to have occurred to him, and eventually the following clever melody found its home in the old grey tower at Gloucester:

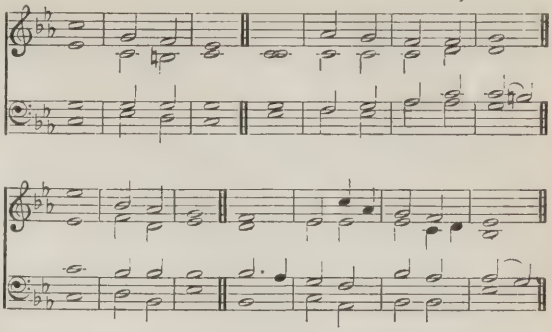
Dr. John Stevens, 1720-80.



It may be said that the gallant attempt of Dr. Stevens to add to his melody by introducing appoggiatura is not altogether a success, the mechanism of the chime-barrel being rather too clumsy for such delicate effects.

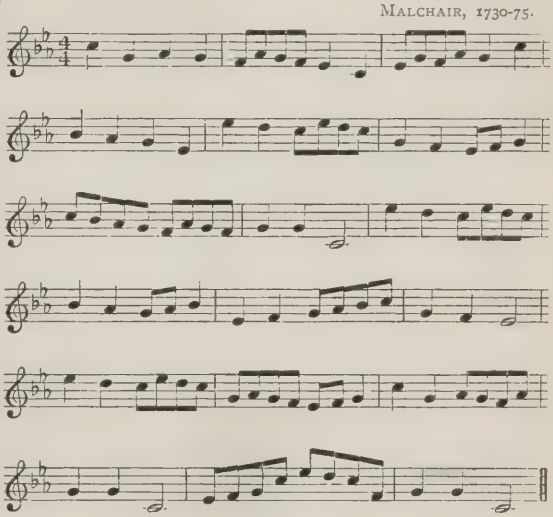
A Chime Chant.

Har. by C.L.W.



Yet one more chime-tune was added about the year 1750 by Mr. Malchair, of Oxford. How or why he came to contribute a chime-tune we cannot say. His name appears as one of the principal instrumentalists at the Three Choirs Festivals from 1759-75, and possibly as an observant musician he was struck by the archaic melodies he heard issuing from the Cathedral tower during Festival week:

Malchair, 1730-75.



These four chime-tunes have been played to many generations of Gloucester citizens, and are much appreciated and loved by them. Perhaps the writer of these notes on the chimes may relate that some years ago, travelling in far-off New Zealand, he stayed at the house of some very hospitable people, but who had never 'been home.' On being asked to play some English tunes, the Chimes of Gloucester (amongst others) was played. At the end an old white-haired servant came in and said to the host, 'Oh, may I hear those chimes again? It is fifty-four years since I heard them in my mother's house in Gloucester.' Needless to say they were played again, and mutual inquiries established the fact that 'our old housekeeper is a daughter of a former Gloucester Cathedral bell-ringer in the 'thirties.' It is said that a tune or a scent will bring long-forgotten faces and scenes back to us all very vividly, and here was a homely instance of it.

Those who have had to do with chimes and chime-barrels know how easily things go wrong, and the mechanism requires constant watching and careful handling. For some three years the chimes of Gloucester 'played anyhow,' and for a time there was a danger of the tunes being lost, or becoming unrecognisable.

However, two cathedral organists of Gloucester, Dr. C. H. Lloyd and myself, were consulted and requested to put our version on paper for the Chapter archives, and one or two amusing interviews took place between us, and at last we have all put our pens to paper and vouched for the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth of the melodies as they now stand. Next time any alteration or extension is contemplated in the mechanism of these chimes, how great a thing it would be once more to restore that king of massive tunes 'Christe Redemptor omnium' to its original home in the tower of Gloucester Cathedral, not to the detriment of any of the present good tunes, but as an alternative tune to be played, say, on Sundays or other Festivals. A tune more suitable to the architectural grandeur of the Cathedral could not possibly be written, and it would be more than interesting to think how for centuries longer, in peace and war, 'Christe Redemptor' may be heard floating up and down the Severn Valley by many a traveller as he approaches our old city of Gloucester.

Modern musicians too have used these latter-day chime-tunes as themes for their compositions. Dr. C. H. Lloyd, Dr. Brewer, Dr. Hathaway, Mr. John E. West, and the present writer—all intimately connected with Gloucestershire by family ties—have written compositions wherein the familiar tunes appear treated in various ways by the composers. It is said that Dr. Wesley, too, would take the theme of one of the chime-tunes, and treat it as he alone could, as an extempore organ solo. The very few remaining people who heard Dr. Wesley do this, say: 'He left us simply breathless at the magnificence of his climaxes in treating these old chimes.' Obviously they lend themselves to musical treatment in any form, either for the organ, pianoforte, or orchestra.

It is said at Gloucester, though it seems now impossible to verify the statement, that Stephen Jeffries's chime-tune used to be sung to secular words in praise of agricultural pursuits. It is quite possible that other musicians have taken these old-world melodies in hand, but as far as the writer of these notes is aware none are now extant.

At the seventh annual general meeting of the British Musicians' Society, held at the Bedford Head Hotel on Thursday, April 8, the hon. secretary pointed out the great work that had been done by the Samaritan Fund during the present crisis. No genuine case of distress had been refused, and the committee asked that all members of the profession would co-operate in this effort to relieve their poorer brothers and sisters by bringing genuine cases to the Society's notice. All communications should be addressed to Mr. Leonard W. Pinches (hon. secretary), 21, Albert Embankment, S.E.

Occasional Notes.

The coming visit of Sir Charles Stanford to the United States deserves special mention. At the invitation of Mr. C. Stoeckel (son of the first professor of music at Yale University, where Dr. Horatio Parker is now professor), the president of the Litchfield County Choral Union, he will conduct a selection from his own works at the Festival to be held at Norfolk (Conn.) the first week in June. Every year the Union invites a distinguished composer to direct his own works. Last year Sibelius was the guest. The orchestra engaged is the New York Symphony. Mr. Harold Bauer is to play the solo in the new Pianoforte concerto in C minor by Sir Charles Stanford, which will be given for the first time: and Mr. Clarence Whitehill will sing two of the 'Songs of Faith' (Walt Whitman), 'To the Soul' and 'Tears,' and two Irish songs, with orchestra. Besides the foregoing the 'Irish Symphony' will be performed. The first rehearsals will be in New York on May 28 and 29. After the Festival, Sir Charles will go to Boston to conduct his seventh Symphony in D minor at the Boston Conservatoire. During his stay in the States, he will go to Yale to receive the degree which was voted to him some twelve years or more ago with Richard Strauss, but which he has been unable before now to go over to take. Sir Charles will be back in England about July 3.

Tenor and Basso Too.

Kipling's well-known lines on the marine (that 'sort of bloomin' cosmopolot, soldier and sailor too') naturally occur to us on reading of a recent vocal achievement that must surely be unique. At a performance of 'Elijah' by the combined Choral Societies of Taunton and Bridgewater at Taunton on March 18, Mr. Frederic Austin, owing to a violent cold, was unable to proceed with the rôle of the Prophet after the first few numbers. Mr. Frank Webster, of St. Paul's Cathedral, gallantly stepping into the breach, sang the remainder of the bass part, in addition to his own tenor solos, and sang them admirably too. This feat shows that, apart from the matter of vocal range, it is well for a singer to be a musician as well.

We congratulate Dr. Brodsky (a Russian subject) on his safe arrival in England after eight months spent as a prisoner of war in Austria. He will now be able to resume his duties at the Royal Manchester College of Music. His release was in response to a petition of musicians in the United States. We wish these successful petitioners would now do as much for Mr. Benjamin Dale and other English musicians who are interned in Germany.

One of the most gratifying features of the winter musical season has been the success of the operations of the Royal Choral Society. The policy of holding the concerts on Saturday afternoons, and of relying upon works that the public are known to desire to hear, has been the chief factor in this happy achievement. We shall have more to say in our next number as to the Society and its doings.

In our article on Mr. Mlynarski (p. 268) we make special reference to the series of concerts of British music he is organizing. Other efforts to keep music going deserve hearty recognition. The De Lara concerts are stimulating audiences at the smaller halls, and beyond and above this useful activity there are the three concerts of British orchestral music announced for April 27, May 8 and 29. As we write the Bach-Beethoven-Brahms Festival, organized by Mr. Daniel Mayer and Mr. Verbrugghen, is in progress. This important artistic event we shall report in our next issue. Besides all this, there are the numerous concerts carried on by the Committee for Music in War-time, which serve the musical needs of large audiences in camp and hospital.

Will Mr. F. C. Tilney, who wrote in the February number of the Musical Times, kindly send his address to the Editor?

We are compelled to hold over much matter already in type, including our reports of recent Musical Association lectures (Mr. Lennox Atkins on 'Equal Temperament' and Mr. Montagu-Nathan on 'Russian music and literature as expressions of Nationalism').

'THE SOURCES OF KEYBOARD MUSIC IN ENGLAND.'*

On a few occasions tributes have been paid to English music or musicians by Continental colleagues. In some cases they have been intentional, as when Corelli undertook a journey to England on purpose to set eyes on Henry Purcell, and turned back again from Calais on hearing of the master's death. Another time an unwitting compliment was paid to the same English composer, when the editors of the Bach-Gesellschaft, discovering in Germany an unsigned MS. of Purcell's Organ toccata in A, and seeing it to be of rarely high quality, included it among doubtful compositions of Bach himself, who was a boy of ten when Purcell died! The book called in French, 'Les Origines de la Musique de Clavier en Angleterre,' published a few years ago, is a more important as well as a more graceful tribute than either of the examples cited. Its title, whether in French or English, is so far ambiguous that it can be taken to imply either that the origin of keyboard music is to be sought in England, or that the author confines himself to the history of English keyboard music without committing himself to any opinion as to priority. But the scope and contents of the work show that the more flattering of the two interpretations is strictly applicable. The Belgian book has been accessible for three years, but with characteristic diffidence our native musicians have virtually declined to believe that England has ever performed any function in the musical world worth mentioning, beyond the useful and altruistic one of paying heavily for the services of foreign singers and players. Let us hope the presentation in English will enable Englishmen to realise what a treasure they possess in the old compositions for the instrument which is the forerunner of the pianoforte.

As we are slow to believe in the originality of the old English composers, so we are apt to hug our ignorance of the distinctions between the instruments in which strings are the sound-medium and keys the player's immediate implement. The names virginal, spinet, and harpsichord are often complacently given in provincial museums and private houses to the simpler and older forms of the pianoforte, and even when the leading characteristic,—that these three are plucked by quill or leather plectra,—is grasped, the exact places of the clavichord and its direct descendant, the pianoforte, in the genealogy are but dimly apprehended. M. Ch. van den Borren is admirably explicit and concise in his opening chapters on the instrument for which Byrd, Bull, Gibbons, and the rest wrote, and he shows a remarkable familiarity with English musical terminology. Of course it is no new discovery that the very early English composers, down to the 11th century, were in advance of those on the Continent, but even after the researches of Prof. Johannes Wolf and Mr. Wooldridge, M. van den Borren finds much to tell us concerning these 'primitives.' It is very curious that a gap of nearly two centuries should have to be admitted, so far as keyboard music is concerned, between these old composers and the splendid galaxy of the Elizabethan masters, a gap which is at present filled by no important name but that of Hugh Ashton, even though Nagel, Wolf and others have spent much labour on the early history of English music. Some pieces by Ashton are to be found in Stafford Smith's 'Musica Antiqua,' a well-known collection which, it startles one to read, 'has become almost impossible to meet with.' This slight reference brings before our minds some of the difficulties with which the foreign author must have been confronted. No fewer than twenty-four MS. collections of virginal music are enumerated, some four or five of which are of considerable extent, while all, or nearly all, date from the time of the compositions they contain. The largest collection, as well as the most easily accessible, is of course the one now known as the 'Fitzwilliam Virginal Book' (formerly and quite wrongly called 'Queen Elizabeth's Virginal Book'), which was printed in its entirety some years ago. This collection forms the foundation of M. van den Borren's elaborate and scientific analysis of the various characteristics of the keyboard music of those spacious days. A curious little addition to the history of the collection is made in a footnote to the effect that Giles Farnaby, who is largely represented in the 'Fitzwilliam Book,' was a Cornishman, and that therefore Francis Tregian, whose name is closely identified with the compilation, would be specially interested in works by a native of Tregian's own county. One of the most attractive parts of the book, and one which deals with a peculiarity fraught with great historical importance, is on 'Virginalistic figuration,' in which are traced the beginnings of the art that is sometimes called musical 'embroidery.' On the influence of the modes, on frequent instances of false relations, and on a host of kindred subjects, the author is splendidly clear, and he has been lucky to obtain a translator to whom the English and French technical terms are equally well-known. Here and there, but very seldom, are statements of doubtful accuracy, as when it is implied that 'Orlando' Gibbons and 'Ferdinando' Richardson were Italianised names. These were beyond all reasonable doubt the names given in that form to the owners, and not at all like the change of Cooper into Coperario at a slightly later date. That an organ with one row of keys and no pedals could not bring out the long-held notes of a plainsong against the rapid figuration with which some of the old writers surround it, is simply not the case, as this is precisely one of the things which such an organ could do effectively. The tiresome custom of the 'Solfège' as taught in French schools and churches (with the syllables 'ut, re, mi, &c.' attached unalterably to the notes C, D, E, &c.) makes it necessary for M. van den Borren to go into the principles of solmisation with an amount of detail that is hardly needed in a country where the tonic sol-fa system is so well known. This is a passage which a translator might have been excused for modifying to some extent, if only by the addition of a footnote pointing out that the tonic sol-fa system is only a revival of the old solmisation. It should have been possible to ascertain the reading of the

* 'The Sources of Keyboard Music in England,' by Charles van den Borren. Translated from the French by James E. Matthew. Novello & Co. (7s. net.)

MS. in regard to a point concerning the use of double-bars, a point which is at present left in doubt in a footnote on page 188. As a matter of fact, the published version of the piece referred to (a Fantasia by Byrd), agrees exactly with the arrangement of the MS.

The book is indispensable for the study of the music it analyses, and it is so thorough and so well translated that it is sure to send many students to the virginal collections that are already accessible, and perhaps encourage the publication of the contents of one or other of the less extensive manuscript collections.

THE LATE JULES ECORCHEVILLE AND HIS UNDERTAKINGS.

It is estimated that three-fourths of the Parisian journalists have been swept into the net of war, by mobilization or actual despatch to the front. News reached this country five weeks after the event, that Jules Ecorcheville, who may be described as for some years past the centre of French musical journalism and various associated activities, was killed in action on February 19, 1915. Born at Paris on March 18, 1872, he was only forty-two at his death. At first engaged in business, he later severed his active connection therewith, and led the life of a man of means absorbed in music on its literary side. He had taken music-lessons from César Franck between the ages of fifteen and eighteen. When about thirty-two he went to Leipsic, and studied there literature and art-history. He also learned there to talk German fluently, a useful accomplishment not universal among Parisians. At the age of thirty-four (1906) he took the degree of Docteur ès Lettres at Paris. About this time he published papers as follows: 'De Lully à Rameau' (1906), 'Corneille et la musique' (1906), 'Un manuscrit du XVII^{e} siècle dans la Bibliothèque de Cassel' (1906), 'Actes d'état civil des musiciens insinués au Châtelet de Paris de 1539 à 1650' (1907).

The International Musical Society had been founded at Berlin in 1899, but though there was a nominal French Section under the veteran Lionel Dauriac, this had only a handful of members. In 1904 Ecorcheville threw himself into the task of making the Section a reality, and being active-minded sought varied means to his end. During two years, 1905 and 1906, a monthly musical paper was running at Paris, the Mercure Musical, edited by Louis Laloy and Jean Marnold. At the Basle Congress of the Society (September 24-27, 1906) Ecorcheville proposed that this magazine should be developed as a closer imitation of the Society's central publications, and be affiliated to the Society as the organ of the French Section. The details of what resulted are known only to few, and call for record; partly in the interests of the future historian, if such there be, of the International Musical Society, but mainly because the continuance of the Society now necessarily brings with it a consideration, in one direction or the other, of the principles of co-operation, federation, &c., involved in the French action. In dynamics a revolving body sets up at once centrifugal action, only restrained by counter-force. In joint international undertakings there is a perpetual tendency to revert to separatism, only restrained by a correctly framed constitution and watchful administration. Ecorcheville proposed that all French matter should be thrown out of the Society's central polyglot publications, the Society paying over to Paris a specified lump sum equal to more than 25 per cent. of the total subscriptions as then standing, and members of the Society all over the world receiving the French magazine free. Broadly speaking, there was a good deal to be said for this proposal; members were already getting their central publications under two separate covers, and to them the additional third would have made but little difference. However the suggestion was too revolutionary a subversal of the Society's statutory scheme, which was based essentially on polyglot central matter. Moreover the German publishers, who held the contract and bore the risk of the Society, were not prepared to make such an extensive and indeed unbusiness-like sacrifice. The proposal was rejected. As it turned out this was unfortunate, for Ecorcheville then took the bit between his teeth, and carried out his plan independently; that is to say, he assimilated the Mercure to the central publications, and entitled it the Organ of the French Section of the Society, but he left the international members outside France to receive nothing at all from France. That this was literary secession and a breaking away from the main co-operative publicational principle of the Society is obvious. That it was permitted, without exacting any conditions, which would have been readily conceded, was due to a newly arisen weakness, if not impotence, in the central control of the Society hereafter to be mentioned. Personally Ecorcheville did his best to make amends by continuing for two years to contribute short book-reviews to the central publications; but charity begins at home, and this could not last. The Society's publications soon became almost wholly German, tempered by a little English. French, the best international language of all, dropped out. The English Section then stepped into the breach, in the interests of the international members; and by their efforts a formal agreement was made on December 14, 1907, and published in the Society's Journal, under which the French, in return for borrowing the name and interest of the Society, and to reduce the effect of their separatist action, gave to the Society's central editors the right to reproduce, as if contributed to themselves, any matter appearing in the Sectional publication, This plan was already in force on the ground merely of mutual convenience between the old-established 'Musical Association' of London and the Society. Thereby authors got a wider circulation, and the Society got more English matter. The justice of the plan applied to the French case was obvious and not disputed. But here came in the grave fault and defect of the Society. In 1904 the central control had been taken from Berlin to Leipsic. To cover this and to disarm objection, the executive by a newly-made rule handed over the whole of the editorial arrangements to what was, owing to its position and constitution, a phantom committee; to such committee was entrusted the making of all editorial appointments and the entire control of the publications. How impracticable the arrangement was is shown by the fact that in the ten years of its existence the committee did not make a single appointment or exercise a single act of control. The organization was unprecedented in the history of journalistic literary undertakings. As a net result, inter alia, the central publications got away from their original aim and became almost exclusively antiquarian. The English Section ceaselessly protested, against machinery and results alike, and here also offered a practical compromise; but without avail. As regards the French affair, the editors were under the orders of no one, and neglected the agreement put into their hands; not a line from the extremely interesting French Sectional magazine was ever reproduced in the central publications or reached general members. Ecorcheville later was not unconscious of his error in 1906. But he might well have complained that whereas under the 1907 agreement a machine with a safety-valve had been provided, the Society's German editors—from whatever motive, but probably only because there was no one to guide them or indicate a policy—deliberately sat upon the safety-valve.

Ecorcheville developed the Mercure in 1906 as shown, and became along with Laloy its director-editor. In May, 1909, he founded at Paris, as a sort of musical club without a club-house, the Société Française des Amis de la Musique, with some analogy to the Viennese Gesellschaft der Musikfreunde (1813 to date); and the Mercure became the organ of this Society also. In that year Laloy was called away to other journalism, the printing was transferred to the Sainte Catherine Press at Bruges (at this moment a German arsenal), and the title became Revue Musicale, S. I. M. In January, 1912, Ecorcheville absorbed J. L. J. Combarieu's Revue Musicale d'histoire et de critique, and in July, 1913, the Courrier Musical. The Revue Musicale, S. I. M. has contained a judicious mixture of the historical and modern aspects, has borne the impress of concentrated editorial control, and has exhibited never-failing Gallic verve. Its last number (for the time being) was in May, 1914. In March, 1915, it appeared in sheet-form (Paris, Dangon), with curtailed contents, but expressing a determination that none of the associated projects should die.

Ecorcheville's own monographs scattered through the eighty-three numbers of the Revue are of considerable permanent value. But since August, 1909, from which date it was printed in Belgium, this monthly publication of 100 pages has had no monthly 'contents,' and only a very imperfect yearly one. The following list of Ecorcheville's monographs in the Revue may therefore form a useful record: 'La Musique dans les Sociétés Savantes de France' (February, 1907); 'La Schola Cantorum et le Style de Bach' (April, 1907); 'Les Textes de Musique ancienne et leurs Rééditions Modernes' (June, 1907); 'Wagner et l'Université' (September, 1907); 'Un Mariage Grégorien' (January, 1908); 'Le Luth et sa Musique' (February, 1908); 'Deux Livres de Romain Rolland' (August, 1908); 'La Société Gluck' (August-September, 1909); 'Le Professeur Hugo Riemann' (October, 1909); 'A Saint-Wandrille' (October, 1909); 'La Musique des Rois d'Angleterre' (November, 1909); 'Le Quatuor à Cordes de Théodore Dubois' (February, 1910); 'Te Deum de Berlioz' (February, 1910); 'Le Dogme en Musique' (June, 1910); 'Un Problème de Bibliographie' (June, 1910); 'Collection des Maîtres de la Musique' (July, 1910); 'La Commission du Corpus Scriptorum de Musicâ Medii Aevi' (December, 1910); 'Le Problème des Ornements dans la Musique' (January, 1911); 'Pierre Aubry' (January, 1911); 'Erik Satie' (March, 1911); 'Lully Gentilhomme et sa Descendance' (May, 1911); 'Le fils de Lully' (June, 1911); 'Les filles de Lully' (July, 1911); 'Le Congrès de Londres' (July, 1911); 'Charles Malherbe' (November, 1911); 'Un Quintette de Fanelli' (April, 1912); 'Une Séance de Luth' (May, 1912); 'La Vie des Sons' (September-October, 1912); 'Une Romance Chantée pas Louis XVII.' (January, 1913): 'Une Mélodie Inédite de Richard Wagner' (May, 1913); 'Le Futurisme ou Le Bruit dans la Musique' (December, 1913); 'La Forlane' (April, 1914).

Ecorcheville was in succession treasurer and vice-president of the French Section of the International Musical Society. Charles Malherbe having died on October 8, 1911, Ecorcheville was on November 14, 1911, elected Sectional president in his place. In September, 1912, after Sir Alexander Mackenzie had acted for two biennial terms as general-president of the whole Society, Ecorcheville was elected to that office: partly on the principle of showing attention to different nations in turn, and partly with a view to the approaching Paris Congress of 1914. Here also an aspect of the Paris Congress, in connection with the Society which lent to the Congress its name, prestige, and international organization, calls for candid record. The London Congress of 1911 (Report volume published by Messrs. Novello & Co. in 1912) frankly exploited the Society's name and influence, but gave a valid quid pro quo; no one who was not a member of the Society could read a paper (and even then there were eighty-two papers), and foreign members were treated with an exclusive, well-advertised and lavish hospitality, in which even the British Government took a part. As a consequence 222 new members came into the Society on that occasion. The Paris Congress of 1914 equally exploited the Society, but with little or no regard to the Society's general interests; everyone inside or outside the Society was free to read a paper, and, though it would be churlish to depreciate the hospitality exhibited, yet the Society's members certainly had no preferential share therein, and advertisement of the same was late and scanty. As a consequence, not one new member can be traced to the Paris Congress. Ecorcheville, personally amiable and generous, no doubt regretted proceedings of the local Congress Committee which he had little power to control. The Paris Congress was reported in the Musical Times of July and August, 1914. Ecorcheville had the satisfaction of offering to the notice of the Congress the eighth and last volume of the opus magnum of his industry, the published abstract Thematic Catalogue of old music printed and manuscript, along with books on music, down to 1750, contained in the Bibliothèque Nationale (Group V of the 'Imprimés'). The General Catalogue, begun in 1897, ignored music, and the Académie des Beaux Arts subsidised the printing of this special project. The work (published by Terquem, Paris) gives 10,000 thematic quotations, contains some facsimiles, and shows the last word in condensation.

Finally, with regard to Ecorcheville's various publicational undertakings, it is to be noted that, having once assumed the name of the International Musical Society, he stopped at nothing in using it. The Revue is known in France as the 'S. I. M.' only. Nearly every book published by a member of the French Section has been adopted, and announced as the official publication of the Section. So even the great Library Catalogue just mentioned. Yet financially or administratively the Section has had nothing to do with any of these things. Sober and literal England finds it difficult to fit them into their exact place in a co-operative Society. In Ecorcheville's own way no doubt they stimulated membership within France. From the general point of view of the Society, they may probably be described as having been non-descript but not inefficacious.

Jules Ecorcheville was called to the colours at the outset of the war, served as lieutenant in the 130th Regiment of Infantry, and was as ardent a soldier as he was a littérateur and art-propagandist. Already at the battle of the Aisne on September 13, 1914, he was wounded and mentioned in despatches, but he returned to the front. He died on February 19, 1915, at the head of his company, on the return from an offensive reconnaissance, near the Suippe, a tributary of the Aisne. It is reported that his last words were a cry to his men: 'Pour moi c'est fini; pour vous, faites votre devoir.' So died this gallant man, good friend, zealous soul, indomitable worker. His work and the impetus of his projects remain.

A colleague of the late musician writes:

By the death of Jules Ecorcheville the International Musical Society loses an ideal president, and the world of music a man of remarkable versatility. His erudition and industry are sufficiently vouched for by his monumental catalogue of musical MSS. in the Bibliothèque Nationale, his publication of the French Suites from the Cassel Library, and his organization of the 'Commission du Luth.' The pages of S.I.M. show his abilities as a journalist and critic of modern music. Always kindly in his judgments, he had a sure sense of what was vital in music, and his ready wit and urbane style deprived his censures of all malice. In private life he was a man of the world, faultlessly dressed, exquisite in hospitality, charming as only a Frenchman can be. But although he was determined to make the Congress of 1914 a social success, and S. I. M. a fashionable review, as typified by the amusingly modern decorations of his office in the Rue de la Boetie, he was completely free from the disagreeable qualities which a lesser man might have shown in his place. His unselfish and sunny disposition, his unfailing tact, and a sense of humour that endeared him peculiarly to his English friends, smoothed over all difficult situations. People might disagree with him, but it was impossible to quarrel with him, for he never considered his own interests, but only those of music and especially those of 'la musicologie.'

OLD ENGLISH VIOLIN MUSIC.*

By F. Bonavia.

There can be no doubt that the want of interest shown in the past for old English music has done much harm to the good name of English music here and abroad. If old English music had received the consideration which was its due in the last century, the superstition which condemned a whole nation as 'un-musical' could have hardly taken deep root. At the present time, when English musicians have succeeded in establishing once for all their just claims to consideration, a knowledge of their countrymen's achievements in the past would be beneficial in every way, and perhaps give courage to some young composer at the critical moment when the trials of a but too often precarious calling may test too severely the faith he ought to have in his mission. Vocal music is of course not in question now. Vocal music can be handed down from one generation to another. Possibly we still hear in some country villages the very melodies people sang to while away the ennui of a long journey by water when time was less urgent than it is to-day, and the broad Thames carried visitors from one part of the town to another. The competitive festival moreover has been an efficient means of making choral bodies acquainted with the beauty and wealth of old English music.

Instrumental music, and violin music in particular, has been less fortunate. The fact is rather remarkable, for the repertory of violinists is exceedingly limited. Old music for many violinists means—apart from Bach—three Sonatas from Tartini, one of Handel, and Leonard's peptonized version of Corelli's 'La Folia.' Shorter pieces by Martini and Couperin have been patronised at times by various performers, without however gaining a well-defined position. Now in a collection of old violin sonatas by English composers published not very long ago, there are at least three examples the extraordinary beauty of which is bound to be recognized sooner or later. Different as in many ways these are from the French and Italian work of the same period, it is impossible to read them without perceiving qualities of an exceptionally high order. They have neither the dramatic intensity of the 'Dido' Sonata, nor the coquettish airs of a Couperin, but a kind of open-air freshness, a dignified yet almost homely pathos, which stamp them through and through with an individuality of their own. I propose to consider first—very briefly—certain aspects of a Sonata by John Collett, one of the many unknown English composers of the 18th century. It is divided into three parts, of which the first and third are of a lively character, while the middle movement—a Largo of more thoughtful type—provides the needful contrast. The opening bars of the Sonata proclaim at once a new style, a perspective utterly different from the usual. We find here the grace of a Couperin gavotte coupled with the sprightly air of the country dance, gaiety tempered now and then by short phrases of exquisite tenderness. It sparkles in trill and grace-notes, not like the obvious diamond—a simile more fitted to the Variations of Tartini's 'Trillo del Diavolo'—but rather like rain pierced by a ray of sunshine. In the Tartini Variations the object of the trills is very material and obvious; in fact one may be permitted to doubt whether the composition gains anything at all by the repetition of the same trick. In Collett's Sonata every trill comes suddenly and unexpectedly, adding light and brilliancy. The close of the movement deserves attention as it is one of the most happy examples of the sense of end being implied by the very nature of the melody, and not by the dominant-tonic platitude. The middle section has much charm, and recalls faintly the mood—though not the notes—of the fine introduction to the last part of Handel's most popular Violin sonata. The third movement is quieter than the first—less sparkling and perhaps more tender, but, on the whole, hardly equal to the rest.

The Sonata of Thomas Vincent opens with one of those phrases which immediately compel the attention of the listener. It has a haunting beauty which remains with us when much else is forgotten. Tartini had a special gift for such phrases. Like Vincent, he felt no need to get in his stride as it were. The pent-up feeling welled out at the first touch; and in the tenderness of the melody, in the dignity of the expression, there is something that recalls Tartini, as well as in the 'lasting' quality of this music. Trammelled as these men were by a conventional harmonic system, bound by a limited conception of form, they have the power to move us because their expression is as deep as it is sincere. Sincerity even more than beauty is required to stand the test of time. The poetic machinery of Virgil may be in some respects inferior to that of Shelley, yet as many generations have repeated with the same emotion Sunt lacrymæ rerum, et mentem mortalia tangunt as will ever be moved by a line of Shelley. Certainly Tartini alone can stand by the side of this Vincent without suffering in the comparison. The rest of the Sonata does not disappoint the expectations aroused by the first part, and this is perhaps all that one could reasonably hope for. The third Sonata—by Humphries—appears less beautiful in any single section than the best of Collett and Vincent, yet on the whole it is inferior to neither, as it is most perfectly balanced in every part, and the same high level is maintained from beginning to end.

It seems almost incredible that three such works should have been allowed to lie so long forgotten. The only explanation one can offer is that they are apparently too easy to tempt the accomplished player, while nothing but the best playing will do them justice. Their compass is that of the oboe rather than that of the violin. Yet they require absolutely faultless, finished playing. The interpretation, the phrasing, the warmth of certain phrases, the peculiar elegance of others—these ought to interest performers with a taste for adventure. Surely there must be English violinists who can see and feel as these—their artistic ancestors—saw and felt. No one could wish that modern music should be sacrificed for the sake of the old, but there must be room for both. Modern music has attained to something utterly beyond the ken of these 18th century men. But the gain has not been without loss. Strength, power, and an almost unlimited wealth of colour are the domain of the composer of the present day, but the delicate tenderness of the 18th century is lost to us. We may prefer Wagner to Beethoven, and Debussy to both, but let us acknowledge that there was music even before Beethoven. 'Phyllis' and 'Margot' have both been worthily celebrated. The essential point is that those whose duty it is to introduce them to the public should not misunderstand them, nor exalt the one at the expense of the other.

* 'Old English Violin Music,' edited by Alfred Moffat (fourteen numbers). The John Collett Sonata in A minor is No. 5; the Sonata by Thomas Vincent (also in A minor) is No. 14; and the Sonata in D minor by John Humphries is No. 13. (Novello & Co., Ltd.)

THE CHURCH OF THE HOLY TRINITY IN PARIS, AND ITS CHOIR.

By E. H. Williams Ashman.

When in the later 'sixties the great tide of American visitors in Europe who make Paris their headquarters began to grow very large, it was felt that some provision ought to be made for their spiritual needs, and regular services were started by American clergymen in hotels. Later on a building was acquired in the Rue Marbeuf, and, finally, under the care of Dr. J. B. Morgan, a man singularly gifted for such a work, the present magnificent church in the Avenue de l'Alma was built, to prove a great boon to American churchmen, sensitive to the peculiar charm of the Liturgy of the Church in America and to a public worship reverent and dignified with the music according to the best traditions of the Anglican Communion.

The church, with its lofty spire, is one of the landmarks of Paris, and is considered by many to be George Street's happiest inspiration. It is in the Early English style, with all its characteristic light and shade, and, being the seat of the Bishop in charge of the European churches, it is well adapted to the Cathedral type of service which has been maintained in it since its consecration. The windows form a unique series illustrating the Te Deum, and those in the Tower Porch the Venite. They have always been to the writer an emblem of the part music has taken in the worship of the church—not, as it were, an external ornamentation, but an essential part of the whole. The organ is placed in a loft at the south side of the Chancel, and is a fine example of Messrs. Cavaillé Col's good work. Compared with English organs, it is lacking in rich diapason, but it has very beautiful reeds which have the quality, rare enough of its kind, of being always in tune. Like many French organs, its mechanical contrivances are not its strongest point, but this is redeemed by its beauty of tone.

Such a church, and with such opportunities, called for adequate music in its services. For the men there is always ample material to call upon from serious students of music in Paris. But the question of boys was harder to solve, as the British Embassy Church exhausted the material at hand in the shape of boys of British residents in Paris. So, to secure a continual supply of good voices, the bold step was taken of establishing a Choir School.

The choir consists of sixteen boys—twelve soprani and four altos, with four tenors and four basses, and is controlled by the organist-choirmaster under the direction of the Precentor.

The first sixteen boys were gathered together in London in 1885, and were trained there in the Psalter, the Responses, and the general grounding of efficient choir work. The copies of the earlier works, in what has grown to be a large and representative collection of Anglican music, show with what care the choirmaster sought a good tradition. Services and anthems are marked with references to renderings heard at St. Paul's Cathedral, and other churches in London which I shall not mention by name lest any should feel sorry at not having had a part in the making of the tradition. The markings are often appreciative, but they contain also many shrewd criticisms. The markings for practice are just such, I fancy, as would delight the soul of Dr. Coward.

For a time the boys were splendidly prepared before coming out to Paris by the choirmaster of a well-known West-End church, but with the tradition established, the two or three new boys needed annually were selected by the agent in London and received their full training here. One thing was anathema from the first, and that was the so-called 'Anglican thump,' so hard to avoid unless people really sing, and where those pearls among choristers—leaders with a sense of rhythm—are lacking.

The boys are trained on classical lines, and very soon such niceties as the 'coup de glotte' all unconsciously become no mystery to them, even if the younger boys do not know the term for a long time after they have full control of their voices. One always feels sorry, however, for the singer who hears of the 'shock of the glottis' in its poor English form before he has learned to make the adjustment subconsciously. Here is a chance for anyone with a sense of appropriate terminology; for as it stands the term tends to terrify rather than to help.

In return for their services the boys receive board and lodging, and first-rate preparatory school education in the Choir School free of charge. They sing at one of the daily services only. There has never been any serious illness in the School since its foundation, and the best medical attention possible is included in the terms of the agreement made by the Rector and Vestry with the parents of the boys.

The Choir School is situated in a large, roomy old house at Passy, one of the best and healthiest quarters of Paris, lying high above the Seine, with the Bois de Boulogne, where the boys play football and cricket, near at hand. It is within easy walking distance of the church, and it has, what becomes daily rarer in Paris, a garden.

Of course such a choir is only maintained at a large annual cost—about £2,000; and many people could be found to express all the usual Philistine questions as to whether the money could not be better expended in other directions. But the church has always been content with the sentiment of Milton when he wrote of King's Chapel at Cambridge:

> 'Give all thou canst; High heaven rejects the lore
> Of nicely calculated less or more.'

for it looks on the education and care of the boys as part of its ministry, and as a work well worth doing. And the records of old boys justify this attitude. There are many out here now fighting for honour and freedom, and happy while serving their King and country to be also helping that fair France they learned to love while its guests.

Several old boys are doing good work in England as priests, some are singing in representative choirs, others are organists in London and elsewhere, and others are interpreters or in good commercial positions owing to their intimate knowledge of French. There is a resident French professor at the School, and French is the language of the house.

One old boy came out to Paris in the entourage of His Majesty on his visit to the President a few months before war broke out. On that occasion a representative French committee paid the boys the well-deserved compliment of asking them to sing 'God save the King' on their Majesties' visit to the Louvre. It must have been a revelation of the possibilities of the National Anthem to some of the English people there as well as to the French, particularly to those who had heard the admirable if astonishing efforts of the chorus from the Grand Opéra the day before. A leading French paper paid the boys an unconscious compliment in saying 'A boy with a voice that was "une splendeur" sang "God save the King."' It has been a characteristic of the training to get an evenly balanced tone.

At the beginning of the War the Precentor, who is also headmaster of the School, was on a holiday in Germany, and being a British subject was detained there for nearly four months. The boys, with the threatened German advance, were sent back home to England in August. Happily the German menace to Paris is now a thing of the past, and all are confidently awaiting the invader's expulsion from France. In the meantime, Paris is as safe as any capital of the belligerent countries, and it is hoped soon to reopen the School. Some eight of the choral scholarships will be vacant, and all those who have boys—or know of gentlemanly boys with really good voices—and would like them to compete, should apply to the Reverend The Precentor, Eglise de la Sainte Trinité, 23 Avenue de l'Alma, Paris, who will send a prospectus and all details as to an approaching audition in London.

The advantages of the School will, if anything, be intensified after the War. The expression and interpretation of the rich stores of Anglican music are a revelation to the French of the artistic side of Anglo-Saxons, and no people are more susceptible to the significance of any form of art and, one would say, culture, had not the word been so cruelly and unfortunately branded; and more and more the practical knowledge of French will be an accomplishment valuable to Englishmen.

THE 'CHRISTMAS ORATORIO' IN WORCESTER CATHEDRAL.

On April 10, a performance of Bach's 'Christmas Oratorio' in Worcester Cathedral had features of particular interest. The great choir of 725 voices filled the north and south transepts, and was drawn from Worcester, Newland, Kidderminster, Redditch, Wribbenhall, Astley, Hartlebury, Hagley, Pershore, Croome, Colwall, Norton, Glenbrooke, Bushley, Stoke, Powick, and Eastwood Bank. For the most part these are village choirs, and the fact is notable as evidence of what can be done with such material. In a normal year the activities of this great body of singers would have been directed upon preparation for the annual Competition Festival. To have brought it together to perform one of the masterpieces of choral music is not only an achievement in itself, but proof—if at this late hour proof be required—of the solid foundation of technique and musical appreciation which the Competition Festivals have laid.

Of particular significance was the 'arrangement' of the oratorio which Mr. Ivor Atkins adopted for the occasion. Written originally for performance in six sections,—on the three days of the Christmas festival, New Year's Day and the Sunday thereafter, and the Epiphany—the work, on the rare occasions when it is performed in this country, has been wont to be given in a concentrated form, with a view to assembling its 'favourite' arias, choruses, and chorales in workable compass. That object, no doubt, is attained, but only by endangering the deeper purpose which Bach had in view and by sacrificing the dramatic intensity with which he designed the story to be unfolded within each section. But, as Schweitzer has pointed out, the long and detached arias, their beauty notwithstanding, may be omitted without any risk of leaving a mere torso. It is also relative, that every one of them was adapted from secular cantatas, and is far less convincing in the oratorio than in its original secular context. Mr. Atkins's experiment triumphantly confirms Schweitzer's judgment. The concentrated performance of rapidly alternating chorus, recitative, and chorale took only seventy-five minutes. The Christmas story was unfolded vividly, and the chorales acquired a deeper devotional significance in their closer concord with it. The only aria sung was the beautiful 'Slumber, beloved' (No. 19). But very properly, and with impressive effect, it was transposed from its accustomed position to a place between Nos. 30 and 33. There it was particularly satisfying and relative.

The performance was extraordinarily vivid, reverent, and impressive. The choir had been most carefully rehearsed in sections by the local conductors. But only one ensemble rehearsal was possible in the Cathedral, though the committee, in accordance with its usual plan, had appointed a visiting conductor to attend the various centres to co-ordinate the interpretation. This year the post was filled by Mr. G. S. Chignell. The choir sang with a volume of tone which its numbers might have been expected to produce, but also with a flexibility and responsiveness that were surprising. A trio of trumpets and timpani added brilliance to the choruses. The soloists, Mr. John F. Adams and Mr. Frederick Lightowler (a lay-clerk of the Cathedral), were excellent. Special mention must be made of the beautiful singing of 'Slumber, beloved,' by the Cathedral choristers. Mr. Edgar F. Day fulfilled an arduous duty at the organ most efficiently, and Mr. Atkins conducted a performance which is likely to stimulate imitators, and which he himself, it may be hoped, will repeat. He has done nothing less than confer on a somewhat neglected masterpiece a fresh opportunity to be heard and studied, and his method of performing it overcomes the conditions which prohibited familiarity with the oratorio in its larger dimensions.

Church and Organ Music.

A REMARKABLE RECORD.

Mr. Edward Colby Evans, a member of Christ Church Choir, the daughter church of St. David's, Carmarthen, has achieved a remarkable record. He joined the English choir in 1855, and has therefore completed sixty years of valuable service, first as a treble soloist and afterwards as a bass. Some few years ago, when his magnificent voice was in its prime, Mr. Evans was a well-known personality in musical circles in South Wales, but in spite of the wear and tear of sixty years his vocal ability is but little impaired. He celebrated his sixtieth year on Easter Day as a member of the same choir by singing the Recit. 'Behold, I show you a mystery' and the solo 'The trumpet shall sound,' from 'Messiah,' with great verve and power. Mr. Evans is a man of varied interests. He is a J.P., a Past-Master of St. Peter's Lodge of Freemasons, and has been Councillor, Alderman, and Mayor (during 1901-02) of his native town. We congratulate Mr. Evans on his record, and wish that he may long be spared to uplift his voice in the Church's song.

THE CHURCH OF IRELAND HYMNAL.

At the meeting of the General Synod of the Church of Ireland, held on April 15, it was decided to adopt the final recommendations of the Hymnal Committee, and it was also agreed that the musical editorship of the new Hymnal be entrusted to Dr. Charles Marchant and Dr. C. H. Kitson, the organists of St. Patrick's Cathedral and Christ Church Cathedral respectively. Out of forty-two tunes suggested to be omitted, eighteen were retained, viz., Nos. 103, 114, 124, 135, 136, 155, 193, 213, 255, 286, 328, 361, 367, 375, 392, 413, 473, 600. Seven ancient Irish hymn tunes were also adopted. In all there are to be 734 tunes in the forthcoming Hymnal, of which number 490 are in the book now in use. A further recommendation was passed approving of the omission of No. 268 (Rosenmüller's setting of 'Songs of praise the angels sing'). It was also decided that instead of the two verses of the National Anthem, as in the present Hymnal, the three verses be printed in the forthcoming work.

Mendelssohn's 'Hear my prayer' and Spohr's 'God, Thou art great' were sung at Romford Parish Church on March 24, and Stainer's 'The Crucifixion' on March 31, under the direction of Mr. A. C. Chappell-Haverson, the organist and choirmaster.

Stainer's 'The Crucifixion' was sung at St. Alphage, London Wall, on April 2, with Mr. Arthur C. Tattersall at the organ.

At the Cathedral, Gibraltar, on Good Friday, Stainer's 'Crucifixion' was sung by the choir of fifty voices. The soloists were Lance-Corporal F. M'Guire and Private A. J. Purnell, both of the 7th (Reserve Battn.) Middlesex Regiment, which is at present stationed at Gibraltar. Miss Lane, the organist of the Cathedral, presided at the organ.

Lee Williams's 'The last night at Bethany' was sung at St. Mark's Church, Belfast, on March 28, with Mr. J. F. Neill at the organ.

Stainer's 'The Crucifixion' was sung by an augmented choir of eighty voices at Anfield Wesleyan Church, Liverpool, on Good Friday. Mr. P. Hilton Radcliffe conducted, and Mr. G. H. Ledger was at the organ.

At St. Matthias's Church, Upper Tulse Hill, Dvorák's 'Stabat Mater' was sung by the choir on March 31. The soloists were Miss Alice Lilley, Miss May Peters, Mr. Hubert Baker, and Mr. Topliss Green. Mr. Charles Titheradge, organist of the church, conducted, and Mr. Edgar T. Cook, organist of Southwark Cathedral, was at the organ.

Mr. Harold Moore's cantata 'The darkest hour' was sung at Skelmorlie Parish Church on Good Friday, under the direction of Mr. A. S. Manfield.

At St. Luke's Church, Lancaster, on Good Friday, Gaul's 'Passion' was sung. Mr. W. J. Hodgson accompanied, and Mr. W. Dennett Davies conducted.

At Bolton Parish Church, on March 30, Brahms's 'Requiem' was sung by the choir, with orchestral accompaniment, conducted by Mr. W. J. Lancaster.

At the Spring Festival services held at Broad Street Wesley Chapel, Nottingham, on March 28, Spohr's 'Last Judgment' was sung by an augmented choir under the conductorship of Mr. Charles B. Morris. Mr. C. E. Blyton Dobson accompanied, and also played the first movement of Elgar's Organ sonata in G.

An excellent example! The late Mr. Charles Woollam, J.P., of St. Albans, amongst other charitable bequests left £1,000 to the St. Alban's Abbey Choir Fund.

Evidence of the excellent education received by the boys at York Minster Choir School is to be found in a recent honours list, from which we learn that during the past twelve years no less than 227 successes have been gained at Trinity College of Music, Durham University, Civil Service, and London College of Preceptors examinations. There have been no failures.

ORGAN RECITALS.

Mr. John Brook, St. Philip's Church, Southport—Tone-poems, Oliver King.

Mr. Albert Orton, Walton Parish Church, Liverpool—(Two recitals) Choral Preludes, Bach and Brahms; Coronation March, Saint-Saëns.

Mr. Edward Bartlett, Arundel Parish Church—Nocturne, T. F. Dunhill.

Mr. Paul Rochard, Wolvey Parish Church—Fantasia on two English Melodies, Guilmant; Hinckley Parish Church—March on a Theme of Handel, Guilmant.

Mr. Allan Brown, Wesleyan Methodist Central Hall, Tooting—Suite Gothique, Boellmann; Calfaria Chapel, Porth—Canon in B minor, Schumann.

Mr. J. Godfrey Luard, Holy Trinity Church, Bath—Prelude in E minor, Bach.

Mr. W. G. Parkyn, Northern Polytechnic—(Two recitals) Question and Answer, Wolstenholme; Intermezzo, Hollins.

Mr. Herbert Hodge, St. Nicholas Cole Abbey—(Three recitals) Lied, Wolstenholme; Gavotte, Lemare; Air with Variations, Wesley; St. Stephen's, Walbrook—Air with Variations, Lyon.

Mr. F. A. Mouré, Toronto University—Allegro, Adagio, and Finale, from Symphony No. 6, Widor.

Mr. W. Henry Maxfield, St. John's Church, Altrincham—Intermezzo, Hollins.

Mr. J. A. Meale, St. Peter's Church, Hale—Air with Variations and Fugue, Hollins; Wesleyan Church, Baildon—Prelude and Fugue in D, Bach.

Mr. Claude Forster, St. John's Church, Forfar—Fantasia alla Marcia, Harvey Grace.

Mr. H. C. Tonking, Wesleyan Church, Newquay—Prelude and Fugue in A minor, Bach.

Mr. H. Edward Knott, Tenbury Parish Church—Fantasia and Fugue, Parry.

Mr. G. Bernard Gilbert, Canning Town Public Hall—Sonata No. 5, Mendelssohn; Stratford Town Hall—Cantabile and Finale, Lemmens.

Mr. Harvey Grace, St. Mary Magdalene's, Munster Square—Variations on 'O filii et filiæ,' John E. West.

Mr. Matthew Kingston, Congregational Church, Penge—Sonata No. 1, Mendelssohn.

Mr. Howard Moss, Parish Church, Gravesend—Berceuse, Spendiarow.

Mr. William Dawes, Æolian Hall—Fugue in E flat, Bach.

APPOINTMENTS.

Mr. Walter Bains, organist and choirmaster to St. Barnabas, Clapham Common.

Mr. Harold Fisher, organist and choirmaster, Parish Church of St. John, Rhos, Ruabon.

Mr. Sidney Hann, grand organist in Grand Lodge and Supreme Grand Chapter of England for the ensuing twelve months.

Bro. A. J. Heard Norrish, organist to Prince Alfred Lodge (E.C.), Pietermaritzburg, Natal, and local representative of the Royal Academy of Music.

Reviews.

Rhapsody for the Organ. By Harvey Grace. [Novello & Co., Ltd.]

Mr. Harvey Grace in his 'Rhapsody' shows a command of harmonic resource which he turns to happy account. The work is constructed on a somewhat simple diatonic theme, the rhythmic development of which forms an important feature. The harmonic interest is constantly enhanced with equal facility, and if there be any danger of restlessness in effect, it is counterbalanced by points of simple and direct writing. The principal theme on its reappearance (preceded by an extended section of poignant effect) is accompanied by a charming passage of sixths. A fine peroration brings the attractive work to an imposing close.

The 'Rhapsody' gives the impression of having been extemporized by an organist, with a gift for the art, when in his best form. The piece will be popular with recitalists, being thoroughly well laid out for the instrument, and only moderately difficult.

An Illustrated History of Music. By Thomas Tapper, lecturer at New York University, and Percy Goetschius, instructor at the Institute of Musical Art, of the city of New York.

[John Murray.]

This compact work of 365 pages is by two New York professors of music, and has evidently been compiled for American consumption. On the whole it presents the essential facts in the history of music from the earliest ages to the present day, and it is written in an interesting fashion. It is, however, on Teutonic lines, and is permeated with a strong German flavour. English music and musicians are most inadequately treated, and it is sufficient to note that there is no mention of Bridge, Beecham, Buck, Holbrook, Parratt, Parry, Stainer, and Stewart.

The chapter on 'The Early Christian Church' is not up-to-date, and needs considerable revision. The only authors referred to are Schelle (1872) and Helmore (1880). It is news to learn that Cantus firmus was so called because the book containing the 'intonations (sic) was bound by a chain to the altar of St. Peter's Church at Rome' and 'was to remain an inviolable guide for the music of the Roman Church for all time.'

Hucbald (840-930) is given as the earliest authority on organum, whereas John Scotus Erigena had treated of the subject in 860. Garland is ignored, also Lionel Power. The section on the Troubadours would have been improved had the authors consulted the works of Gaston Paris and Pièrre Aubry. It is scarcely accurate to say that Petrucci (1502) was the inventor of music-printing, considering that musical works with movable type were printed at Rome in 1476, and at Venice in 1480. Palestrina's birth as having taken place 'in 1514, according to the latest authorities,' may with greater probability be assigned to 1526, as pointed out by M. Brenet in his admirable monograph, published in 1908. And surely the 'altar of Simon and Judas' is intended for the chapel of SS. Simon and Jude. The date (1675) for Purcell's 'Dido and Æneas' should be 1689, and there is a wrong date for Handel's 'Messiah.' Few will agree with the estimate that Brahms's German Requiem is 'a masterpiece that ranks with Bach's Passions and Beethoven's Mass in D major.' And certainly Chopin was not the inventor of the Nocturne. Finally, it is doubtful if the fulsome eulogy on Richard Strauss will stand the test of time.

However, with all its limitations, this work,—which, it must be added, is lavishly illustrated,—will prove useful. Some of the portraits are very rough, and no sources are assigned for most of them.

Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis. Set to music in the key of B flat. By W. G. Alcock.

[Novello & Co., Ltd.]

We have here a setting of the evening canticles notable for strength and dignity. While the polyphonic style imparts an ecclesiastical flavour, the work is modern in feeling with some bold harmonic effects. Excellent, too, is the sparing use of full closes, the subject-matter constantly overlapping in such a way that continuity is maintained. Particularly effective are the passages 'For he that is mighty,' and 'He hath showed strength,' both settings of the 'Gloria Patri,' and the broad phrase with which the 'Nunc dimittis' opens. But the whole service is one that will well repay study where there is a good choir. The organ part is important, without being aggressive. The chorus on page 10, by-the-way, would be effective sung if unaccompanied. The Service was composed for the 1914 Festival of the London Church Choir Association, in St. Paul's Cathedral, a fact which accounts for the broad lines on which it is planned.

John Askew, the Stanhope Violin Maker. By William Morley Egglestone, Stanhope, Durham.

[Published by the Author.]

The life-story of a violin-maker in the North of England has recently been issued by Mr. W. M. Egglestone. This well-got-up book with an attractive cover contains the various incidents in the career of the violin-maker, John Askew, who was born in 1834 at the Grey Bull Inn in the town of Stanhope, famed as the Rectory of Bishop Butler and also as giving the name to the Stanhope family, the Earls of Chesterfield. Briefly, Askew served his apprenticeship to a shoemaker, and was an expert in his trade. His early hobby was angling in the river Wear. Afterwards he entered the Stanhope Saxhorn Band, and accompanied the members to the Crystal Palace in 1860, where they took a fifth prize. At this time young Askew joined the Volunteer Force, and won many prizes with his many bull's-eyes.

In the 'seventies of last century he turned his attention to violin-making, and his ups and downs during the fiddle-making period of his life are told in this book. In early work the best tool that he had was his razor. He bought French and English books, and his friend the school-master collaborated to work out and master the craft of violin-making, which was the dream of Askew's life. Ultimately he was so far successful that he gained a bronze medal and diploma at the International Inventions Exhibition in London in 1885, and at the Newcastle-on-Tyne Jubilee Exhibition in 1887 he took a first-prize for two of his oil-varnished violins.

Associated with the 1885 Exhibition the Musical Times is mentioned, and that is twenty-nine years ago. Mr. R. de Lacy, then military musical instrument maker at 84, Holland Road, Brixton, London, S.W., was formerly—in 1860—instructor to the Stanhope Saxhorn Band, and he kept in touch with the northern town after settling in London. De Lacy in 1885 undertook to see the violins placed in the Exhibition, and when Askew's violins were awarded a medal, De Lacy advised the Stanhope violin-maker not to lose sight of his honours, and on page 46 of the book we find: 'I trust you will not let this drop, but push on somehow and let the world know where you can be got at. I fancy if you were to advertise in the Musical Times it would do good.'

The book contains illustrations of the prize violins, medal, diploma, &c. An illustration is that of Miss G. I. Hildyard, a Yorkshire lady, who bought one of the medal violins, and whose family own Horsley Hall Estate in Weardale.

(a.) Wherewithal shall a young man cleanse his way? (b.) Ponder my words, O Lord. (c.) The souls of the righteous are in the hands of God. (d.) Te Deum Laudamus in D. By George Halford.

[Novello & Co., Ltd.]

Mr. Halford's three anthems are smoothly written and devotional in style. 'Ponder my words' is for a cappella singing, and is written in the Æolian mode—an effective essay in archaic style. The setting of 'Te Deum Laudamus' contains good vigorous music, and would be suitable for festal occasions. Orchestral parts may be had on loan from the publishers.

In the Garden. Poem by Robert Buchanan. Set to music for soprano and tenor soli, female chorus and orchestra. By William H. Spear. Op. 18.

[Cary & Co.]

Choral conductors with good female voices available should consider this work. It is highly imaginative music faithfully reflecting the spirit of the poem, with a picturesque orchestral accompaniment. The vocal parts are well written and graceful. Two good soloists are required.

Recitative, and its rendering. By R. J. Pitcher.

[Novello & Co., Ltd.]

Although the performance of recitative is one of the severest tests of a singer, instruction books rarely treat the subject with any fulness. Possibly this is because the setting out of the approximate renderings of various types makes too great a demand upon space. This little book is helpful to singers and accompanists, because it includes numerous examples, in most cases printed both as written by the composer, and also as they should be rendered. These, with the author's practical remarks, make the work a useful guide on a most important branch of the singer's art.

The Organ Voluntary. By Sydney H. Nicholson.
Two Chorales for use at the conclusion of Evening Service. Harmonized by Bach.

[Humphrey Milford, London.]

In No. 6 of the Occasional Papers issued by the Church Music Society, Mr. Sydney H. Nicholson deals with the organ voluntary in all its branches. He also touches on many other departments of the organist's work, and his suggestions generally deserve to be read and pondered by those concerned. The Church Music Society has also issued on a card two evening hymns, set to chorales harmonized by Bach. It is much to be hoped that these or similarly dignified strains will gradually oust the mawkish so-called 'Vespers' which too often bring the Sunday devotions to such a melancholy conclusion.

BOOKS RECEIVED.

Catalogue of Music in the Library of Christ Church, Oxford. By G. E. P. Arkwright. With a preface by T. B. Strong. Part 1: Works of ascertained authorship. Pp. viii. + 128. Price, 7*s.* 6*d.* net. (Oxford University Press—Humphrey Milford.)

The Consort of Music. A study of Interpretation and Ensemble. By J. A. Fuller-Maitland. Pp. 244. Price 6*s.* net. (Oxford University Press.)

An Illustrated History of Music. By Thomas Tapper and Percy Goetschius. Pp. xviii + 365. Price 7*s.* 6*d.* net. (London: John Murray.) See Review, p. 282.

Concerning Hymn Tunes and Sequences. By Athelstan Riley. Pp. 107. Price 2*s.* 6*d.* (London: Mowbray & Co., Ltd.)

Bush Songs and Oversea Voices. By A. Safroni-Middleton. Pp. 159. Price 3*s.* 6*d.* net. (London: John Long, Ltd.)

Carillons of Belgium and Holland. By William Gorham Rice. Pp. 232. Price, 6*s.* net. (London: John Lane.)

Nature in Music. By Lawrence Gilman. Pp. 220. Price 4*s.* 6*d.* net. (London: John Lane.)

Correspondence.

COUNTERPOINT AND HARMONY.

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

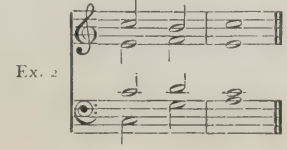
SIR,—Mr. Newman, I think, misses my meaning in his remarks upon the following examples from my 'Evolution of Harmony':

Ex. 1.

(a) is strict counterpoint, (b) is not. But the objection to (b) as strict counterpoint is not one of effect at all.

The material of musical composition, as everyone knows, has gradually evolved according to certain fundamental principles, and the student who has carefully read the literature of music could probably say to what period a composition belonged without seeing the name of the composer. One of the tests applied, for arriving at the conclusion, would be that of the use of harmony. For example, if we saw:

Ex. 2.



we should know that it did not belong to the polyphonic period. And if a pupil wrote (c) in a passage purporting to be in the style of Palestrina, one would cross it out, not because it sounded wrong, but because it did not come within the scheme of harmony at that period of its evolution. This is precisely the objection to (b). Strict counterpoint is the grammar of the polyphonic period, and many procedures which we now know to be good are forbidden simply because they are not a part of the technique of the period. Surely this is the only logical basis for restrictions of this sort. If it is said, 'Strict counterpoint should be abolished,' I have no more to add. Perhaps it should. But if we teach the technique of a definite period that is past, it is obvious that many of the restrictions must not be to us questions of effect, but restrictions in accordance with the stage of evolution at which the art had arrived. For instance, where is the sense of saying quavers must not be approached or quitted by leap, unless it is a restriction of a period?

My point was that the view of the material of composition as consisting of chords and their decoration made (b) a possibility, whereas under the régime of the polyphonic period it would never have occurred to men to use it, though we do see its precursor in (a). The fact that moderns would never argue out their music in such a way does not surely mean that we should not study the methods of the past, and so see the gradual steps by which modern points of view have been reached. No one should gainsay that what sounds right is right, and what sounds wrong is wrong. But in studying strict counterpoint, even if we cannot hear with 16th-century ears, we have to argue from 16th-century points of view. Such a study may be regarded by some as being as useless as Latin or Greek prose. But that is not the point at issue.

Mr. Newman criticises my remarks in reference to 'effect.' My point was in reference to the technique of a period, and not in reference to effect at all. But some one will say, 'Are not all rules of this nature based on effect?' That is true. But again, new effects are generally obtained by breaking through what have been the conventions of a period. The fact that Palestrina never used (b) does not mean that he disliked it, but that it did not come within the scope of his technique.

I tried to show in my chapter on the chord of the six-four that all its best original uses were to be found in the system under which the fourth from the bass was treated as a discord.

O course I might have put down the results of my research as dogma in half a page, and said 'These are the rules for the use of a six-four.' Someone would immediately say, 'Your authority, please,' and rightly so. My aim has been to trace the origin of rules, not as being the laws of the Medes and Persians, but as being precepts based on fundamental principles which are capable of expansion.

I do not say, of course, that a composer requires to be able to write in the style of every master of the past before he can write in the idiom of his own age. The composer is born, not made, and he will come out on top, no matter upon what method he is brought up. But most of us who teach harmony are not teaching it to born composers, nor even to those born with special musical instincts. If such people are taught to see, for example, the process by which the rules for the use of the chord of the six-four are deduced, they will be much more likely to use it properly than if they are given a few dogmatic assertions.

The genius requires no rules; or at least very few. And our aim in teaching harmony is not to produce composers: that cannot be done. It is rather to give the general practitioner an insight into the gradual evolution of the material of musical composition, and to prevent him, if he will rush into print, from making a complete fool of himself. Composition is the gift of the few—the very few; but the rest of us will be better musicians if we study the methods not only of our own age but of the past. We do not aspire to be composers, but we can improve our musicianship by studying and imitating the styles of the great masters of the past. And by so doing we can perhaps be of some service to the genius who just wants the restraining influence of such scholarship.

C. H. KITSON.

CHIN-RESTS.

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

Sir,—Regarding the use of chin-rests, I think that violinists should certainly experiment a little for themselves, and not take too rigidly the accepted views on any matter. The difference of opinion seems to me to arise principally from one cause, viz., the failure to recognise that a violin can be held in several ways even under orthodox conditions.

For instance, most of us have been taught that it should be held entirely by the chin, and this certainly necessitates both chin-rest and pad for the majority of players. Still, from a mechanical standpoint there are certainly other possible ways of holding the instrument which are worth consideration. The most useful of these, perhaps, is balancing the violin on the left hand and shoulder, i.e., supporting with both, but gripping with neither. It is obvious to me that some of our greatest technicians vary the method of support, even in the same solo, according to the passage; sometimes holding entirely with the chin, sometimes with the left hand, and alternating these with the balanced support, which rests both.

I wonder if it has struck many of your readers that the muscular condition of the arms and body when playing the violin should be the same as when performing balancing feats of the Cinquevalli type! I state it in all seriousness, and have just started a new 'school' with this as the foundation-stone.—Yours faithfully,

Percival Hodgson.

Birmingham.

MUSICAL EDUCATION IN ENGLAND.

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

Sir,—The April number of the Musical Times contains some crushing indictments concerning musical education in this country from the able pens of Messrs. Clutsam and Newman. On the Continent, where the Conservatoires are mostly State endowed, the fees are very low, and the courses of study in each branch very long; and no one is accepted as a student who does not demonstrate that he or she will eventually make a better musician than, say, a bootmaker. I have before me the regulations of the Naples Conservatoire. The annual fees payable by students vary from 25 to 80 francs. Every student on joining must take a course of 'rudiments' and 'sol-fege' (ear-training). The fee payable for the 'Corso normale' in wind-instruments and double-bass is 25 francs per annum; for the same course in theory, pianoforte, organ, singing, violin and violoncello, 60 francs; for the 'Corso superiore,' in the above subjects, 50 and 80 francs respectively.

The length of the courses is worth noting:

Harmony, Counterpoint, Composition	9 years.
Singing	4 ,, (minimum).
Pianoforte, Violin, Viola, Violoncello	9 ,,
Double-Bass and Wind-Instruments ...	6 ,,
Harp	8 ,,

Not long ago a musician said to me, 'If we were to exclude all the unmusical students from our Institutions we should have to shut up shop; our "bread and butter" would be gone!' Dr. Buck, in his fairly recent (1911) book on 'Unfigured Harmony,' says: 'To my regret I have found myself obliged to keep examinations in view more than I wished to do,' and throughout the book there are dark hints as to the fate of luckless candidates who cannot dish up melodies, &c., harmonized as he (Dr. Buck) lays down.

If this country is to progress musically, all this nonsense must, as Mr. Clutsam says, be 'scrapped.' To be able to solve examination problems and puzzles (such as the adding parts to an 'inner' part extracted from a 'whole' conceived by an examiner) undoubtedly requires hard study and a considerable amount of ingenuity—but it does not necessarily make a musician. To read anything at sight (both vocally, and instrumentally) and to extemporise—such are the tests of true musicianship; and these evidences are lacking in the majority of people who study and practise music in this country.—Yours sincerely,

Claude Landi.

BRITISH COMPOSERS.

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

Sir,—Will anyone explain why it is that many of our great music schools continue to adopt such an anti-British policy? For instance, in a syllabus for 1913, out of sixty-three pieces there are only three by British composers; in 1914, out of forty-five pieces, there are five, which is a little better; but in 1915, out of eighty-one pieces, only nine are by Englishmen. The good the Press is evidently doing, others apparently try to undo by almost excluding anything British when they can. The result is that schools and the public are having the idea forced upon them, whether they like it or not, that everything foreign is superior, and that British composers are not worth playing or listening to. I do not mean that we should exclude the foreigner, only that we should be fair to ourselves.

H. C. Tonking.

CARILLONS.

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

Sir,—Many readers will be delighted with the interesting articles on 'Carillons' in the April number of the Musical Times.

I remember reading in your issue of August, 1910, the announcement of a series of carillon recitals to be given at Malines, but none of my musical friends could give me a word of information on the subject. I even consulted the editor of a musical journal, but his reply was 'No! they are bells, and we hate 'em.' So off I went to Malines to hear for myself, and found a great 'international contest' had been arranged. The sound of the bells did not impress me at first, but as the day wore on, my ear got accustomed to them, and the evening recital by the famous master M. Denyn revealed a new world to me in the art of music. I have been many times since to hear this fine carillon, but the Musical Times is the first musical journal to give a practical description of this fascinating branch of music; and the splendid reproduction of Malines Tower, showing the largest clock-face in the world (forty-three feet in diameter), will be appreciated by many who had seen it before its introduction to 'German frightfulness.'

Mr. W. W. Starmer, the writer of the article, and, so far as I can discover, the greatest authority on the tuning of bells, mentions the English carillons of Loughborough and Bournville. I have heard M. Denyn's recitals on both these instruments, which certainly show wonderful improvements in the matter of tune; and the local interest displayed at these concerts makes one feel that it is a pity that we have no National carillon, where unlimited numbers could enjoy this fascinating music under such a great artist as M. Denyn, who appears to be 'wasting his sweetness on the desert air.'

Perhaps there may be other unknown carillons in this country waiting for the magic touch; at any rate, we hope one day Mr. Starmer will give us a full account of what is being done in this way at home. G. Kirby.

April 19, 1915.

[We have in hand an article by Mr. Starmer on English carillons, which will appear in our June number—Ed., M. T.]

At a meeting of the Incorporated Society of Musicians, at the Regent Street Polytechnic on April 10, a lecture on 'The Clutsam Cradle Keyboard' was given by the inventor, Mr. F. Clutsam. By means of models, the lecturer convincingly supported his claim that the Cradle Keyboard reduces the resistance of the old system by one-half, and provides equality of touch-weight on both black and white notes. Miss Winifred Christie gave an enjoyable recital on an instrument fitted with the Clutsam Cradle Keyboard. We hope soon to give a full account of this invention.

The Novello Choir announces a Nautical Concert to be given in co-operation with the Arundel Male-Voice Choir on May 15, at the Wesleyan Central Hall, Westminster. The programme will include Stanford's 'The Revenge' and his 'Songs of the Fleet.' Miss Elaine Birch, Mr. Charles Saunders, and Mr. John G. Dean are the soloists. The band (leader, Mr. Thomas Fussell) and choir will number 160 performers. Mr. Harold Brooke will conduct.

Obituary.

We regret to have to announce the following deaths :

John Foster on March 25, at Hampstead. He was born in August, 1827, and was thus in his eighty-eighth year. When he was nine years of age he entered the choir of St. George's Chapel, Windsor. After his voice had broken, he became an articled pupil of Sir George Elvey, and in 1847 he succeeded Richard Redhead as organist of St. Andrew's, Wells Street. Here he formed a professional choir, and established the Cathedral type of service. It was at St. Andrew's that he gave the first hearing of the well-known Ely Confession, composed by his friend Janes, organist of Ely Cathedral. He developed a beautiful alto voice, and became a Gentleman of the Chapel Royal and a lay-vicar of Westminster Abbey. His other activities in metropolitan musical circles were remarkable, and made him one of the most popular and esteemed choral conductors of his time, and he was justly regarded as an authority on the interpretation of glees and madrigals. He resigned his appointment at St. Andrew's in 1856. He directed the music at the Royal Academy banquets, and conducted many well-known musical organizations, including the Civil Service Musical Society, and that connected with the Stock Exchange. He also sang for thirty-four years in the Noblemen and Gentlemen's Catch Club. In 1860 he and Mr. Arthur Lewis formed a male-voice choir under the title of the 'Moray Minstrels' (Mr. Lewis at that period lived at Moray Lodge, Campden Hill), and it is stated that in the course of the forty-eight years of the existence of the choir he had never been absent from a rehearsal or a concert. He married a sister of Madame Sainton-Dolby.

An old member of the Civil Service Musical Society, writing from Rue des Alpes, La Tour de Peitz, Vevey, says :

'My acquaintance with Mr. John Foster was chiefly in connection with the old Civil Service Musical Society, of which I was one of the original members, remaining so until the dissolution of the Society. After the resignation of Mr. Arthur Sullivan, Mr. John Foster remained sole conductor of the Society until the end. As a member of the old semi-choir, I have a vivid recollection of Mr. Foster's extremely animated and genial manner, and of his ideal conducting, for which no praise could be too high. He knew not only the precise effects which he wished to obtain from his choir, but also the best and quickest way to obtain them, and his own enthusiasm was always infectious. He was most deservedly popular, and I am sure that any other surviving members of the old choir would support this description with enthusiasm. Those days can never be forgotten, although many of our number have since joined the majority. I enclose my card, and should be very glad indeed to be put into communication with any living member of the old Civil Service Semi-Choir if it should be in your power kindly to do this. Mr. Henry R. Bird, of Kensington, was our able accompanist in those days.'

Baron Herbert de Reuter, who, overcome with grief at the recent death of his wife, took his own life on April 18. He was born in March, 1852. In his youth he decided to enter the musical profession, and he went to Paris to study. Later he altered his mind, and took up his father's famous Agency. His love for music was great, and he had a most exact knowledge of all musical works of importance, from Palestrina to Offenbach and Gilbert and Sullivan, but he would go neither to concerts nor to the opera. He used to say that it afforded him just as much pleasure to read the score at home as to hear the music. His most absorbing passion was for books, and his library was an immense one.

Walter Bapty, on Good Friday. Born at Leeds in 1852, he went to Dublin in 1876 as vicar-choral of St. Patrick's Cathedral. For close on forty years his beautiful tenor voice was very much appreciated both in St. Patrick's Cathedral and in the Chapel of Trinity College, while he was an esteemed favourite in the concert room. Last Christmas, owing to ill-health, he resigned his vicar-choralship, and he passed peacefully away on April 2, at his residence, 22, Upper Pembroke Street, Dublin. He was one of the original promoters of the Feis Ceoil, and was a prominent member of the Masonic body.

Franz Neruda (the youngest brother of the late Lady Hallé), at Copenhagen. He was born on December 2, 1843, at Brünn, in Bavaria, where his father, Joseph Neruda, was organist of the cathedral. He was an excellent violoncello performer, and for a few years, 1877-79, was a member of the Hallé (Manchester) Orchestra. In 1892 he succeeded Niels W. Gade as conductor of the Musical Society at Copenhagen, and later he conducted the Stockholm Orchestra.

On March 28, at the Mental Hospital, Upper Warlingham, Gustav Louis Amédée Küster, a well-known musician for many years resident at Croydon. He was born at Orbe, Canton de Vaud, Switzerland, on November 25, 1833, and was therefore in his eighty-second year. He failed mentally towards the end of his life. He had lived in England for the last sixty-five years.

Mr. James Sneddon, Mus.Bac. He was born at Dalget, in 1833. His musical life was spent mainly in school music superintendence at Edinburgh.

THE ROYAL INSTITUTION.

Lecture on 'Emergency Music' (February 13).

In our March issue (p. 166) we gave a full report of a 'Lecture to untrained listeners,' given by Dr. H. Walford Davies at the Royal Institution on February 6. In the following week (February 13) he delivered a second lecture, a report of which we are glad to be able to place before our readers.

I.—PRELIMINARIES.

Last week the art of the listener was considered. It was then pointed out that as music is movement and only movement, as it is in fact entirely dynamic by nature, it is wonderfully adapted to record the varied play and interplay of creative energy which is obviously of perpetual interest to every man, whether he is aware of it or not. It was seen that by cultivating the natural powers of reception and response—of intelligent reception and of imaginative response—listeners may also take an active part. With little trouble they may gain the freedom of the city of music; they may quickly learn the innate significances of sounds; and it is easy to do so, precisely because music by its nature can only discourse upon what may be called the free-will energies, and man by his nature seems chiefly interested in the expression of these energies. It was further pointed out that listeners can cultivate a power of aural adaptation. They can as it were filter the music to their own use, receiving that which concerns them and rejecting that which does not. It is to be hoped that the examples given last week may also have made it encouragingly clear that only slight technical equipment is needed to enable the hearer to understand the essential elements of that which is uttered by music.

To-day we are to consider not so much the listener's art of adapting himself to whatever music he may chance to hear, as our power of adapting music itself to the listener's requirement, in any given state or circumstance—in any given emergency, great or small.

Two of the definitions of the word 'Emergency' in Johnson's Dictionary run as follows :

(1) 'The act of rising or starting into view';

(2) 'Any sudden occasion or unexpected casualty.'

To illustrate the first meaning there is a quotation from Newton's 'Optics,' which refers to the 'Emergency of light.' To illustrate the second is one from Glanville, who wrote : 'Most of our rarities have been found out by casual emergency, and have been the works of time and chance rather than of philosophy.' It is fairly easy to find the highest power of the word by compounding these two meanings with a third and generally implied meaning. Thus, 'Emergency' music is in Newton's sense something that emerges; in Glanville's sense it is 'the product of the unexpected casualty,' which we call an emergency; in a third and always implied sense, it is a casualty through which there has appeared an instant and unforeseen need. In the fullest and combined sense, 'Emergency' music would be that which emerges from emergency: it is a second part of the emergency brought about on purpose, and therefore, as we say, 'for love,' to meet or rather to balance the first part of the emergency which was not brought about on purpose, but which occurred as 'a casualty.' Now both meanings, it will be noticed, unite in carrying with them the element of surprise: the emergency of accident was unforeseen or it could not be an accident; and the emergency of action rises to meet it—as Johnson says, 'starts into view.' The last phrase is a felicitous touch of the great man. In one meaning he seems to indicate the unexpected problem—the emergency of fate; in the other the unexpected solution—the emergency of free-will. Both these unexpecteds must have a fascinating interest for us. At their highest, the one has the interest of terror, the other has the interest of triumph. When the emergency problem is less terrible, the emergent solution of it is necessarily less momentous; a small emergency from without brings about a correspondingly small emergent response. We shall always naturally seek, and when we find shall always feel satisfaction and restoration in controlled response to uncontrolled event. The unwilled, unforeseen Emergency Part 1 may produce some disturbance of existing affairs and therefore momentary incompleteness—possibly a painful, terrible or, as we rightly say, a fatal incompleteness. This cannot seem beneficent to those who, looking on, can see no solution. We feel a certain helplessness, and wait for genius to deliver us from the bondage of circumstance. Emergency Part 2 must always intend to be beneficent, since it has always the choosing force behind it. Its processes are creative and deliberate. It arises to meet Part 1, to replace instability with balance, incompleteness with a solution, pain or inconvenient helplessness with joyous power; surprise and perhaps terror give place to Browning's 'triumphant art' which counters and assimilates the 1st Emergency.

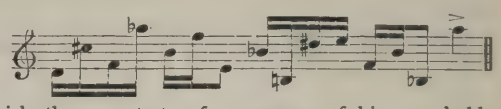
II.—NEED OF FITNESS.

Let this distinction between the two elements—which I will ask you to call Parts 1 and 2—of every emergency be clearly borne in mind; then it will readily be seen that if there is such a thing as emergency music or emerging art of any kind, and of course there is, it can only belong to the beneficent Part 2. Art registers energy. But it is also essentially purposeful, free, existent for choice. Emergency Part 1 is energetic, but fateful and uncontrolled; to us it is mechanically exclusive of choice. It happens not for love. Part 2, viz., the act with which we choose to meet it, has love in it, and it is there only that we can expect to find emerging art. For we know that art all the world over is nothing but the doings of man that are done for love.

There is a momentous distinction to be made here. Art itself may approach us as something from without us, like a fate, which we never choose, thus differing from the art that we ourselves gladly make (or gladly contemplate) for love. Our neighbour's pianola may for example be his art, but our fate; to him beneficent, to us malevolent—his triumphant Emergency Part 2, our terrible Emergency Part 1. From this the deduction follows that art which in any given time or place does not fulfil the conditions of that controlled response to circumstance which may be called emergent art, is for practical purposes not yet art. In other words, it must have fitness,—to human capacity, to time and to place. Last week we assumed that the ideal listener could receive and respond to all music. This is true of man in his creative capacity. As creatures we are different, and can no more enjoy the company of every kind of music at every place than we can enjoy the presence of every shade of character in our fellow-creatures. As creators we can doubtless transcend incompatibilities and dispense with good manners in others. But creative energies must hitch on if mortal creatures are to have part in and enjoy them; and though an omnivorous listener may be able to do wonders in adapting himself to any music, yet it is an obvious condition that on the other side of the bargain there must exist a state of wise penetration and sympathetic adaptation to the listener's needs if both the maker and taker of music are to find art in it. The moment we as hearers or contemplators are led whither we would not, the compact is broken as far as we are concerned; the affair is not for choice and therefore has lost one of its essential factors—that of freedom.* It would be a failure and an outrage if a creative artist being himself free should require us to subject our freedom in contemplating his. To take a simple example, here is energy expressed in angular unsympathetic outlines:

Ex. 1.

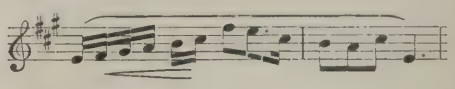


in which the perpetrator for purposes of his own holds melodic movement so cheap that few could care to follow his vagaries for choice. True, there is no possible series of notes in our present system of which some kind of interesting sense could not be made. Still one is face to face here as in so many other matters with the perpetual paradox of life; he who would expect his fellows to appreciate such melodic violence at its proper value must himself appreciate gentleness; conversely, so-called 'good taste' includes the idea of knowing exactly how and when it is proper to be improper or shocking. A little further thought on almost any line of experience will lead us to see that the action or manifestation of creative or free-will energy which is to give us joy must display fitness; and furthermore if it can attain perfect fitness, that is, completeness; if the joyous energy can arise and achieve before our very eyes or ears; if we see the resourcefulness, the skill, the control of fate, the inspiration of it from beginning to end, then our gratitude and wonderment are intense, and our possession of the solution correspondingly complete.

III.—ESSENTIAL CONTINUITY IN ART.

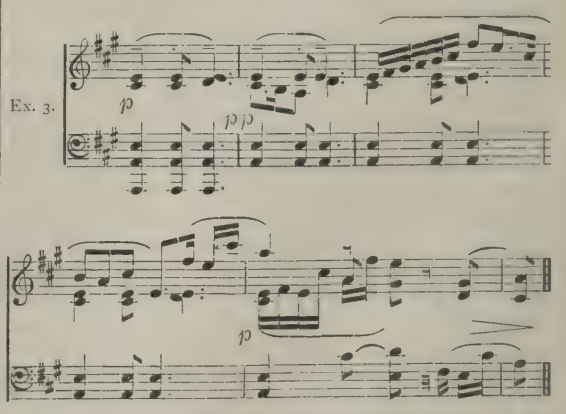
Here it is necessary to beware of a fallacy. Our desire for completeness is not, I think, to be confused with any desire for finiteness. Our persistent, apparently instinctive desire for an Alpha and Omega to all our arts does not contradict or belie our equally persistent intuition that there are none but infinite beginnings and measureless endings; and this sense of infinitude gives a lovable horizon to all definiteness. A giver of artistic gifts does well to present his good things to his neighbours in a definite setting which picks them up where they are and leaves them where they would be with a sense of complete acquisition. Think of the careful beginnings and happy endings of story-books. Or take for example any scrap of melody:

Ex. 2.



which may possess charm and freedom and impulse. But it has no setting: it is a wayward fragment. To give it a setting, a starting point and a confirming cadence, is to follow the constant custom of Beethoven and Schubert:

Ex. 3.



* In passing it should be noted that the use of unpleasant discords, sounds that we should not choose for themselves, offer no exception to the universal rule of the indispensability of choice in art; for we often choose for a greater end that which for smaller ends is unchoosable—in art as in ethics we are constantly willing to traverse dreary ground to reach a joyous region.

This is wise, not because it can improve the fragment (there are dangers that it may clip the melody's wings), but because it is then more likely to become a permanent possession of the hearer. He can as it were hang it upon the walls of his house of sound. It is framed. But truly creative processes are timeless. They can have neither a first nor last. The beginnings and endings, the settings or frames, are their mortal parts which change or fall away, but are none the less necessary.

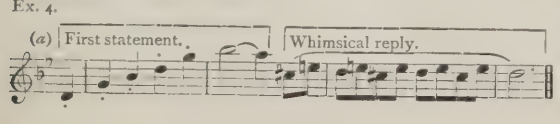
Now our framework, our canvas, our field of interest in all Emergency Art lies in that period of time which falls between Part 1 and the completion of Part 2: between the surprising event and our assimilation or mastery of it. The interest lies in the process of meeting it, and every expression that furthers this process is welcome in proportion to its credentials of power, of freedom, and of fitness. Obviously there must be room for interest between the unwilled arrival of a problem and its willed solution or mastery. If the most stupendous emergency came upon us at 11.59 p.m., and was solved at midnight, there would be little chance to take more than a retrospective and theoretic interest in it all.

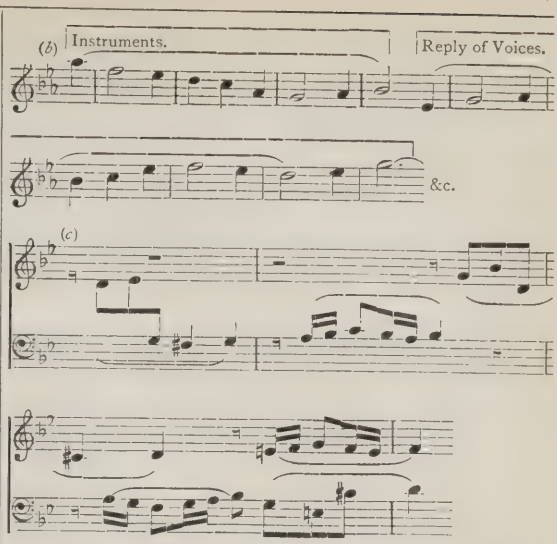
While we enjoy and even exact a sense of unity or completeness, yet our engrossing interest is in processes more than in causes or results; in motive more than in fixed or first appearances. Occasion provokes action. A riddle outside ourselves calls for the answer through or within ourselves—whether it be as active or passive participators (i.e., in music, whether as composer, interpreter, or listener). The occasion impresses us, the completion delights us, but the joyous activity lies in the processes themselves.

IV.—REPARTEE IN MUSIC.

At once the concisest and most generally intelligible form of Emergency Art is to be found in repartee. The three qualities which were referred to last week as typical of complete art—viz., strength, grace, and humour—are all characteristic of reliable repartee; indeed, it would seem that the pleasure we find in a smart repartee is provocative of sudden laughter precisely because we experience all these joyous qualities in a single moment. As I prepared this lecture, I took a walk, and was struck with the resourcefulness of a coalheaver who sat on his cart (as on some grimy throne) being carried home by a traction engine. Two very large lumps of coal had dropped on to the road as I passed, and he shouted to the engine-driver to stop. He then sat still waiting for any passer-by to pick up the coal. I was one of three. We none of us were inclined to oblige him. His hands and clothes were the colour of the coal, and ours were not. Seeing that we did not pick it up, he called to the driver to go on. But the engine failed to move. Then ensued the half-minute of emergency. He had either to seem weak and climb down, or to look foolish and sit still. It would probably be difficult for anyone to find a better emergency remark than the one he made as he decided to climb down. "'Old 'ard, Bill, we're losing the profits,' was all he said; but the manner of covering his own confusion with this quaint assumption of ownership was, as you will readily see, quite masterly, graceful, and humorous. An old lady wrote to her son: 'I wish I could fly over to see you.' A mutual friend instantly remarked: 'She mustn't; she'll be shot for a strange bird.' Slight though it may be, this also seems a perfect remark; it satisfies the literal and pleases the fantastic mind; it has continuity of idea, energy, and not a little humour. Years ago an anxious England heard dubiously that Buller had found the key to Ladysmith. A Fleet Street bus-driver relieved all our feelings with the aptest comment: 'I wish he'd find the keyhole.' It is not appropriate to multiply non-musical instances here. But a few slight melodic instances may now be named in which one remark creates a situation which the next solves by some happy turn:

Ex. 4.





The last instance may well be the most remarkable case of musical retort that exists. The melodies are so deeply informed with feeling that their skill passes almost unnoticed. A moment's analysis however, will show (1) that the drooping sixth in the first bar receives the completest fulfilment in the second phrase built on the only three notes of the scale that were left unsounded; (2) that this second phrase is inverted a moment later to form the first half of the accompanying counter-subject; (3) that the first half of the subject is in its turn inverted to form the second half and cadence of the counter-subject.

These are condensed but significant examples of a great principle, in which the second or complementary inspiration is of the nature of a repartee or emergency remark.

V.—EXPRESSIVE POWER OF SOUND IN EMERGENCY.

Music has full public recognition as a pleasant pastime; but its amazing aptitude to express and communicate energies has not always been equally apparent. The mere power of sound finds perhaps aptest illustration and proof in the part it plays in ordinary speech. That part of a man's speech which may be called the musical part (its rise and fall and rhythm) is precisely that which tells most, and is clear even to those who do not understand the grammar of the language he uses. The analogy between speech and music may well be pursued by those who suspect that musical meanings are specialised and for the few. Let it be imagined that a foreigner in the streets of London overhears two or three different deliveries of the same greeting: for example, 'I am glad to meet you.' In one case it is said in a cursory monotone; in another with effusive and unreal emphasis; in the third with an unmistakable naturalness and heartiness. Let him be utterly ignorant of the literal meaning of the six English monosyllables uttered, yet is it likely that he will have no clue to the real nature of the three greetings? There is a sense in which the man who understands nothing comprehends most. Even a dog recognises the most important variety of truths in the varying tones of a voice. Perhaps only his name is uttered. But in one inflexion it will bring him leaping to his master; in another it will bring him cringing, or send him flying away. Both the foreigner and the dog grasp facts through tones. Both would probably tell you, if they could, that they were in possession of the important part of the communication. Details are not conveyed without the understanding of a pre-arranged language; but broad facts can be conveyed in tones: such facts as that a greeting was affectionate, or that a call was peremptory. Everyone's daily experiences suggest the superficial generalisation that there are two parts to language—its sound, and its sense; and many are prepared to deduce that as music is sound it is probably not sense. Yet music above all things establishes the fact that any sound made on purpose must make sense of some sort. Instead of the rather uncertain deduction that words can convey sense, and tone can convey emotion, it would really seem much more correct to say that one conveys facts, the other conveys energies behind facts; one indicates states of mind, the other states of being. In emergency both count, both combine to fulfil the needs. And of the two it would seem obvious that in the long run states of being count most. Endurance is a state of being: love is a state of being. Mental meanings are necessary to meet special circumstances, to co-ordinate numbers, to steer energies into their right courses and so forth. But whatever the circumstances, it is in states of being that power lies; they alone give grip to all emergency-effort, and release us into the realm of creative consciousness in which art thrives, of which music is a rather unique expression.

Now that which exactly expresses our feelings fulfils two ends: while it records our energies, it both releases and communicates them. For these two reasons it is salutary. When circumstances that are outside control arise (i.e., in emergency), we are automatically provoked to compensating action; and if we can manage it, to transcendent action. Where uncertainty is produced, we instinctively wish to counter it with certainty. We should in approaching sadness look for enough joy at least to annul and if possible transcend the sadness. In shifting ground we look for firm foothold, and so forth. To take an elementary example: the emergency music of pain is a cry; while it records feelings, it communicates and relieves them. It summons sympathy; communicating our agony we share it, i.e., we call upon the health in others to help to counter our emergency; while the cry records our feelings it both relieves and communicates them. What is true of a slender personal instance is true of the great national instance now upon us. The War is a stupendous Part I. Emergency. Instantly the music of national energy is heard. Energies—creative energies—of every kind surge to meet the event, some so heroic and controlled as to serve us splendidly; some seemingly uncontrolled and childish—such as those of the poor lady who offered herself to the War Office as a strong swimmer who might save drowning soldiers. All these creative energies collectively might in the profound sense be called the Music of the War. Music itself occupies a humble but very useful place among them all. Bearing fully in mind the true nature of our art and its innate and associated meanings, we may try to trace the extent of its serviceability in such an emergency as the present, and to note the general bearing of art upon event.

The current of our life was flowing. It came across a resisting circumstance. Our energies, as we have seen, not only continue to flow, they are automatically and immensely amplified. Our state of being is intensified; our sympathies and antipathies have become powerful and formidable. This is the counter-move of creative energy in us. Now two of three things can happen. The hard resisting circumstance becomes as a dam, against which the current of our energies will first accumulate, then, secondly, (a) overflow, or (b) be diverted. As a matter of fact, it is just these three conditions which call out art and, notably, music. In it we find a welcome means of expression when other activities are held up, when an abounding energy leaps circumstance, or when circumstances are so big and unyielding that we seek refuge in diversion. Put shortly, music comes about (a) when energy is arrested; (b) when it leaps ahead; (c) for diversion.

These three ways seem to cover the whole ground of the serviceability of artistic utterance, and we may now proceed to a short concert of illustrations by a choir formed for use in war-time.

[Here a series of illustrations were sung such as are used at soldiers' concerts and in hospitals, all of which are to be found in the lecturer's recently-issued book of 'Thirty songs, old and new, arranged for men's voices.']

Songs of arrested energy, such as 'The flowers o' the forest,' are characterized by contemplative stillness and deep quietude. Songs that leap ahead are always buoyant, triumphant, and energizing in themselves. The nucleus of such songs may be found in any apt battle-cry. The street counterpoint of this nucleus best known at the moment is the cry, 'Are we down-hearted? No!' The best songs of diversion (a) appeal strongly to past associations, and (b) take long views, correlating immediate and urgent surroundings with vaster future issues, and so securing more spacious values. The old glee to Shakespeare's words, 'The cloud-capt towers,' is a simple instance of a spacious song, that refreshes by its very vastness.

It seems scarcely perceived by many people that when there is an emergency probably the last thing for art to do is to expatiate upon the emergency. The only justification for singing about the emergency is to call the hearer's attention to it, to awaken sluggards; and it is sad to note that there have been few occasions when impertinence has so outreached itself as in some of the recent patriotic effusions about the War.

On the other hand, it would be unfit, and indeed impossible, to continue in the pursuit of an art that ignores the great emergency, since art is largely energized by the intuitive effort to surmount present and immediate circumstance.

VI.—CONCLUSION.

The fundamental truth, as it seems to me, is this: There is everywhere observable in human affairs the working of some immense law of compensation. Its appearance is so constant as to make one sure that it is as powerful and unfailing in the world of human experience as is the law of gravity in the physical world. It would be extraordinarily interesting to trace its results in many departments. 'I am so sorry for the man of leisure,' said a hard-worked man, 'because he can never have any holidays.' To endure an intense pain is to become singularly independent of small pains. This is the law that gives us an abundant crop of paradox and epigram and proverb: 'You never hear the clock tick till it stops,' 'Jack of all trades, master of none.' An example of its working in musical experience is to be found in the enchanting sound to the ear of even the poorest music after one has heard no single note for a month. And conversely, the musical critic could doubtless testify to the barrenness of the most glorious chord to one who has heard it every hour for a whole concert season. It is of constant interest to note how often in strict accordance with this law an obstacle or limitation is provocative of the finest art. One of the most wonderful as well as best-known instances of the transcendence of limitations by genius, is to be found in Bach's 'Chaconne.'

[The lecturer played parts of it on the pianoforte, showing how one melody is made to do the work of four.]

A new world of melody is revealed, because the whole is necessarily contained within a single strand, and harmonization in the ordinary sense is impossible. The emergency which reveals such treasures may be simply that no accompanist was available or desirable under the circumstances, and one player must do the work of two or three or more.

It is as though all arts, all our deeds of choice, had a vast and equable energy behind them, which flows unobserved, undemonstratively, till obstacles break it as rocks break a deep swell. It is then that glorious things happen. It is as though sound and light take on no beauty till they are broken up. This would explain the constantly noticeable fact that our joys are most resplendent on the edges of things. An almost is a fine thing in life, productive both of effort and joy. When it becomes a quite, then effort ends and joy subsides till a new almost is reached. Creative energy manifests itself most fully when there is most to do; when there are most obstacles. The loveliest parts of a stream are those where it meets with resistance. Broken surfaces catch the light; and in music, limitations provoke genius. Indeed, where there are none, we probably do well to make some. ['That is the great use of the Royal Academy of Music,' interpolated the lecturer for the benefit of Sir Alexander Mackenzie, sitting near him.] What is the beauty of rhythm itself but the beauty of broken-up energies? Limitations are our glory in this sense, and the American who said, 'Wagner's climaxes are ten minutes long—mine shall be twenty minutes,' would have done better to say, 'I will signify in five minutes all that Wagner said in ten; I will pen as much in a single strand of melody as Wagner did in all his polyphony.' That is to surpass Wagner.

It is from great emergencies that great things must emerge. Was old Glanville, whom Johnson quotes, right when he boldly asserted that 'most of our rarities have been found out by casual emergency and have been the works of time and chance'? If he meant that they have been evoked or revealed by time and chance, it would seem very near the

(Continued on p. 296.)

The Musical Times. EXTRA SUPPLEMENT. May 1, 1915.

This Supplement is part also of the May issue of The School Music Review, and can be obtained with the Review, price 1½*d.*

The Competition Festival Record

No. 82.

THE MANX FESTIVAL (DOUGLAS, ISLE OF MAN).

March 23, 24, 25.

This Festival was established in 1892. The fact that it still prospers even under present adverse conditions is a proof that the movement has vitality on this island. Lady Raglan, who shares the presidency with her husband, the Lieut.-Governor, says in the preface to the syllabus:

'Patriotism and devotion are greatly influenced by the power of Music, and it is when we stand up and sing the National Anthem that we realise how loyal and devoted we are to our King and country: for, no matter how sad we are or what the occasion may be, we always nerve ourselves into enthusiasm when we ask that our King may reign gloriously over us in a long life; and the blood that we shed for our country, or see others shed, kindles in us a warmth of loyalty and courage as the familiar notes rise in dignified strain.

'At the present time, what pleasure and pride we feel that our Guild has sent forth brave and patriotic members to the Front, and we know they will be sure that they have our heartfelt thoughts and prayers. May God protect them, and bring them safely home.

'It is at a time like this that we see the marvellous effect of music, and we cannot too highly value its invigorating and stimulating capacities; and as time goes on I trust we may be enabled to add more gratitude into its tones, as our hearts become more grateful for answered prayers that "Peace may be restored." But at the moment let us be thankful that as a Guild we are able to count on a united "heart and voice," ready to promote the sweet harmony and peaceful concord of our beloved little Manx nation, able to vie with all the world in proving that music encourages a profound contemplation of the noble and wonderful works of the first, Divine, Composer.'

Mr. J. A. Rodgers, one of the adjudicators, thus writes in the Sheffield Daily Telegraph:

'To anyone who knows the remarkable vivacity of the Isle of Man during summer-time, the aspect of the land during winter resembles hibernation. It is the touch of music which awakes it into renewed life. Just when spring is beginning to pulse through its fields and glens, the annual Musical Festival has for a score of years or more called all the people of a naturally musical land to assemble at Douglas and make music for half-a-week. This year the sequence has not been interrupted, though Manxland has given proud toll to war needs.

'The Manx Festival differs from all others that I know in that it is entirely self-contained. All its competitors are home-grown. They come from every part of the island. A scattered hamlet clustering round one of its wind-blown hills sends a small but keenly trained choir. From a lonely cottage on the way to Ramsey, where the rocks thrust their grey snouts into the creaming seas, comes a singer that a big city would be proud of. At little Kirk Andreas, seven miles from the train, the choir rises before the sun and tramps cheerily along to compete in singing an Elgar part-song or a Palestrina motet. The Festival belongs to the whole island. A population of fifty thousand sends a tithe of its number to the final concert, when the massed choirs give their Festival performance. This year it is a fine Elgar selection, and Stanford's inspiring "The battle of the Baltic," an ideal theme for a maritime nation.

'The music of the Festival will compare in choice and performance with any big events on the mainland. Choral test-pieces this year include Stanford's "The Battle of the Baltic," Elgar's "Love's tempest," Palestrina's "In divers tongues," madrigals, glees, &c., by Purcell, Tomkins, Ford, Wesley; songs by Strauss, Brahms, Puccini, Bruno Huhn, Debussy, and Cyril Scott. In performance there is, generally, a high level. It is a tribute to the value of the competition movement to a community to find that the "slatings" of many past years have been taken to heart, and that severe criticisms have resulted in a marked rise in the level of the singing especially.

'A curious characteristic of the singing of the choirs is a kind of veiled, almost woolly tone. They are not a brilliant-voiced people, such as are the Yorkshire singers. The speech habits, which resemble those of the Irish, perhaps account for the mellow character of the tone, even in the children's choirs. This characteristic, though not desirable in general, operates most valuably in one direction. The Manx boys' choirs are a marvel of sweet and rounded tone. There is no trace of the hardness and throatiness against which English choirmasters have to spend such constant effort. The sight-reading abilities are another surprise to the visitor. A sight-test of fifty-eight notes, comprising nearly every possible difficulty, was read separately by half-a-dozen young ladies with but a small fraction of hesitation. A long and very difficult ear-test (fifty notes) was written down entirely correctly by two candidates—a remarkable result. One used old notation, the other sol-fa.'

The Manx Festival pays its way. There is a reserve of £100, it maintains a well-endowed scholarship at the Royal Academy of Music, and it pays half the travelling expenses of every competitor—a tribute to the excellent management of its splendid staff of officials, chief of whom may be named Mrs. Laughton (Peel), for many years the honorary secretary, and Mr. W. A. Craine (Douglas), who now holds that office.

In the choral classes the entries were in no section very numerous, but altogether there were twenty choirs. In the chief section for mixed-voice choirs of not more than 60 voices the tests were 'The Battle of the Baltic' (Stanford) and 'Love's tempest' (Elgar). The Festival Choir (Mr. P. Noah Moore), the Philharmonic (Mr. T. P. Fargher), and the Orpheus Choral (Mr. J. E. Kelly) were the competitors, the result being in the order named. The Philharmonic was first in the sight-reading. In the smaller choral societies (not more than 40 voices) the tests were 'Whispers of summer' (Coleridge-Taylor) and the old madrigal 'The fauns and satyrs tripping' (Tomkins). The chief female-voice choir section brought forward five choirs. The tests were 'Sweet and low' (Von Holst) and 'The tambourine-player' (Schumann). The Onchan Choir (Mr. J. R. Boardman) was first. In another female-voice choir section the Onchan Choir was again successful. In three-part sight-reading the Andreas Choir (Miss Collins) was first. The solo-singing classes were very good. In the special class for winners of former years the results were: Soprano ('L'été,' Chaminade), Miss Ada Kee; Mezzo-Soprano ('Air de Lia,' Debussy), Miss Dorothy Kelly; Contralto ('The May Night,' Brahms), Miss Effie Foyle; Tenor ('Your tiny hand is frozen,' Puccini), Mr. John Christian; Baritone ('Invictus,' Bruno Huhn), Mr. Fred Minay; Bass ('The Floral Dance,' Moss), Mr. Allan Quirk. In the ordinary classes for the same classification of voices the results were: Soprano ('The Enchanted Forest,' Montague Phillips), Mrs. H. Cunningham (11 entries); Mezzo-Soprano ('Awake, Awake,' Wolseley Charles), Miss C. Curphey (25 entries); Contralto ('Thanksgiving,' Cowen), Miss Alice Corkill (10 entries); Tenor ('Cecile,' R. Strauss), Mr. C. W. Craine and Mr. T. Curphey equal (4 entries); Baritone

BOSTON PUBLIC

'My Captain' (Cyril Scott), Mr. J. W. Callister (8 entries); Bass ('Though faithless men,' Halévy), Mr. Andrew Keenan (6 entries).

The solo instrumental classes were well supported. In the open pianoforte class the competitors played Brahms's Rhapsody in G minor, and Miss Mabel Frost was first.

In the junior sections nineteen girls sang 'The mermaid's song' (Haydn), Violet Harvey winning the first place; and ten boys sang 'The Cloud' (Bainton), John Quayle being first. In the children's choir and school classes the entries were not numerous, the first-prize winners being Bucks Road Sunday School ('The Cloud,' Rubinstein); Arbory Board School ('Fall on me like a silent dew,' Coleridge-Taylor); Murray's Road School ('Shepherd, shepherd, leave your labours,' Purcell). Sight-reading and ear-training were tested, and showed fair results.

Besides Mr. J. A. Rodgers, the judges were Mr. Douglas Miller and Mr. Charles Tree.

SALFORD, MANCHESTER.—March 27.

The fifteenth annual Tonic Sol-fa Festival for juniors took place on the above date at the Royal Technical Institute. There were large audiences, especially in the evening. It is a great advantage to this scheme that the Salford Corporation takes a direct interest in its operations. On this occasion the time-table for the day was over-full, inasmuch as there were no fewer than 189 entries in the solo-singing classes and nine entries in the choral class—all for one judge to sort out! The winners were:

Girls (under 12).

Test: 'Come, pretty ladybird' (Schumann).
Bessie Collins.

Boys (under 12).

Test: 'Every bullet has its billet' (Bishop).
Eric Arensberg.

Girls (under 15).

Test: 'The smiling dawn of happy days' (Handel).
Constance Slater.

Senior Boys (under 15).

Test: 'Lord, at all times I will bless Thee' (Mendelssohn).
Reginald Pender.

Ear-Test.

Bessie Chadwick.

Junior Choral.

Test: 'Britannia triumphans' (W. L. Frost), and the sight-test.

1st. Halton Bank Council School, Pendleton (Mr. John J. Ireland).
2nd. Grecian Street C.S., Salford (Mr. G. Sydney Smith).
3rd. Seedley C.S., Salford (Mr. J. W. Stacey).

The sight-test, which was in two parts, is given in the music section of the School Music Review. It was sung with splendid decision, first to Sol-fa syllables and then to laa by Grecian Street and Halton Bank, the winners.

Dr. W. G. McNaught adjudicated.

FEDERATION OF WORKING GIRLS' CLUBS.
March 27.

The advanced class competition held on March 20 was reported in our last issue. The following are the results of the intermediate competition held on March 27. There were two prepared pieces and a unison sight-test:

	Maximum, 200. 100 for each prepared piece.		Total.
Charterhouse Mission	92	86 =	178
Cornwall, Lambeth...	83	86 =	169
St. James's, Coulsdon	89	78 =	167
Olaf Street, W.	84	77 =	161
Daughters of the Empire, Norwood	77	72 =	149
Princess, Bermondsey	75	65 =	140
Trinity Presbyterian, Notting Hill	76	61 =	137

Sight-Reading.

	Maximum, 100.
Daughters of the Empire, Norwood	86
Charterhouse Mission	84
St. James's, Coulsdon	83
Cornwall, Lambeth	80
Olaf Street, W.	79
Trinity Presbyterian, Notting Hill	78
Princess, Bermondsey	73

SLIGO.—April 7, 8, 9.

The competitive idea as applied to musical education is greatly appreciated in this part of Ireland. Not even the great War has seriously interfered with the satisfactory carrying out of the scheme. This year's Festival was the thirteenth of the series.

The Sligo Champion ascribes the continued interest to the fact that 'we have always something fresh and new to look forward to. Each succeeding Feis brings into the limelight some new artist—some fresh vocalist or instrumentalist from whose shoulders the veil of obscurity has suddenly been lifted.' From this we gather where Sligo wears its veils. Georgina Lady Gore Booth, the president of the Feis, presided at the final gathering, at which the vice-president, the Rev. P. O'Leary, expressed the great satisfaction of all concerned with the results of the Festival. He referred to the fact that in previous 'Feiseanna' (we are glad to know of this plural) they had always had excellent adjudicators, and that those responsible this year—Dr. Sinclair, of Hereford, and Mr. W. H. Reed (leader of the London Symphony Orchestra)—were no less able and distinguished than their predecessors. The following are some of the results:

Denis O'Sullivan Annual Memorial Prize (open to all voices).—Test: Two Irish songs (own-choice). Miss W. E. Thompson.

Sligo Cup (open to tenor, baritone, or bass).—Tests: 'Ah, moon of my delight' (Lehmann); 'When the King went forth to war' (Koenemann); 'Allah, be with us' (Woodforde-Finden); and own-choice piece. Mr. T. M'Mullan.

Campbell Cup (open to soprano, mezzo-soprano, and contralto).—Tests: 'L'été' (Chaminade); 'Knowest thou that dear land' (Thomas); 'Sappho's farewell' (Gounod). Miss Marjorie Davies.

Violin and pianoforte duet, Sonata No. 5, in F. Five competitors. Miss Verschayle and Mr. A. J. Crichton (Sligo).

Violin solo (senior), Sonata in A (Handel). Miss Browne.

Pianoforte solo (senior), Spring song, Op. 28 (Kjerulf). Norwegian dances (1st suite) (Muller). Miss Lily Moore.

School Choirs (under 14).—Tests: 'Boatman's song' (Abt); 'The Mountaineers' (Ketèlbey). Forthill National School (Miss M. K. Walsh).

County School Choirs (two-part).—Tests: 'The voyagers' (F. Berger); 'Come o'er the woodland' (Ketèlbey). Templehouse National School (Miss Edgar).

Ladies' Commercial Choirs (S.A.).—Tests: 'I sing because I love to sing' (Pinsuti); 'I would that my love' (Mendelssohn). Connaught Manufacturing Society, No. 1 Choir (Miss Lord).

Ladies' Choir (S.S.C.).—Tests: 'Voice of the Western wind' (Barnby); 'The tree's dream' (Abt). Miss Lord's Choir.

Vocal Solos.

Soprano.—Tests: 'Down in the forest' (Ronald); 'The song of Glen Dun' (Hardebeck). Miss Oona Kell.

Mezzo-Soprano.—Tests: 'Pleading' (Elgar); 'A song of May' (Somerset). Miss Eva Banvard.

Contralto.—Tests: 'Sink, red sun' (del Riego); 'O lovely night' (Ronald). Miss Eva Banvard.

Tenor.—Tests: 'Mifanwy' (Forster); 'I'll sing thee songs of Araby' (Clay), Mr. W. V. Porter (Lisburn).

Baritone.—Tests: 'Where my caravan has rested' (Lohr); 'In summertime on Bredon' (Peel). Mr. C. Loretto.

Bass.—Tests: 'Thou'rt passing hence' (Sullivan); 'The lute-player' (Allitsen). Mr. G. M. Young.

Orchestral Class.—Symphony in D, No. 5 (Haydn). Sligo Orchestral Society.

There were several sections for Irish choirs, who sang in Gaelic. In three sections the St. Lawrence Industrial School was first.

Dr. G. R. Sinclair adjudicated in the choral, solo-singing, and pianoforte, and Mr. W. H. Reed in the stringed, wind, and orchestral instruments.

The total number of entries was 303 as against 309 last year. The syllabus enumerates no fewer than seventy-three classes, vocal and instrumental. The tests selected were generally of a high-class character, and there were good audiences for the chief events.

SALFORD.—April 10.

The annual competitions organized by the Salford Band of Hope and Temperance Union with a view to raising the standard of the programmes usually presented at temperance meetings, were brought to a close in the Royal Technical Institute, Peel Park, the programme comprising pianoforte solos, recitations, solo-singing for juniors and adults, action-song, and choral contests. The War had evidently affected the number of entries, which showed a considerable falling-off as compared with last year, especially in the adult classes.

The tests for the solo classes were, generally speaking, of a high order, including 'The lark' (Rubinstein), Arne's 'Where the bee sucks,' Purcell's 'Nymphs and shepherds,' for the juveniles, and 'At night' (Randegger), Allitsen's 'There's a land' and 'Son of mine,' for the adults.

The chief prize-winners and test-pieces in the juvenile choral classes were:

JUNIOR CHOIRS.

Test: 'A child's evensong' (Stainer).
Deane Street Mission.

SENIOR CHOIRS.

Test: 'Whispering winds' (Labbett).
Broughton Congregational Church.

ACTION-SONG.

Test: 'Wynken, Blynken, and Nod.'
Broughton Congregational Church.

The adjudicator, Mr. Lomas, strove to make his awards educational by handing to each of the competitors a chart setting forth briefly their good and bad points.

BELFAST.—April 16, 17.

The preface of the programme book of this Festival says:

> These Competitions showed a marked advance on previous years, both in the number of entries and in the standard reached in most of the classes. The absence of the customary report from the adjudicator is due to the death of Mr. Harry Evans, which has inflicted so great a loss on the cause of choral music in general and the Festival movement in particular. The committee wish to express their high appreciation of the manner in which Mr. Evans, with characteristic courage, carried out his engagement to come to Belfast, and went through the very heavy work of adjudicating with such splendid energy and success, in spite of the fact that he was even then suffering from serious illness.

Mr. C. H. Fogg, of Manchester, and Mr. W. McNaught, of London, were engaged as adjudicators. As Mr. McNaught has enlisted in the Army his father, Dr. W. G. McNaught, attended in his place.

There were instrumental and vocal classes for juniors and adults, and the entries, especially in the solo classes, were satisfactory in view of the difficulty created by the War.

In the soprano solo class the tests were 'There's a bower of roses' (C. V. Stanford), and there were eighteen entries. Miss Annie E. Bell gained the first place. Seven mezzo-sopranos sang 'Whither' (Schubert), and 'Ye cupids, droop each little head' (M. V. White), and Miss Gwendoline Magee was placed first. In the contralto class, thirteen contraltos sang 'Creation's hymn' (Beethoven) and 'When childer plays' (H. Walford Davies), and Miss Taggart was the winner. There were seven tenors to sing 'If with all your hearts' (Mendelssohn) and 'Eleanore' (Coleridge-Taylor), and Mr. David Thompson was first. Baritone voices seem plentiful in this city. Fifteen came forward to sing 'The pilgrim's song' (Tchaikovsky) and 'Trottin' to the fair' (C. V. Stanford), when Mr. William Allen was the victor. Five basses essayed 'The two Grenadiers' (Schumann) and 'Arm, arm, ye brave' (Handel), and Mr. Jack Blair was an undoubted first He has an excellent voice.

The girls' solo class, in which the test was 'The briar rose' (Brahms), a quite simple song, brought forward some astonishing interpretative talent. There were thirty-seven entries. Stella Myors and Margery Hill each made the song 'live' by their fascinating performances, and after a second hearing they were made equal firsts. Lily M'Masters also displayed talent, and was a very near second. The boys' solo was 'To music' (Schubert). Sixteen attended, and Desmond Kerr came first.

A speciality of this centre is the working girls' choirs. They were divided and sub-divided, so as to avoid pitting choirs of different constitutions and circumstances against each other. One result of this consideration for feeling was that there were seldom many entries in any one of the nine sections. The singing often displayed great merit, and bore evidence of the skill and devotion of the instructors. Baird's Jubilee Choral Society, under Mr. James Woods, was successful in several sections.

In a girls' choir section, in which the tests were 'Cradle Song' (Cornelius) and 'Greeting' (Mendelssohn), both the Brown Memorial N.S. (Miss Vera M'Kay) and the Fountainville N.S. (Miss E. Renton) gave a charming interpretation of Cornelius's beautiful song. Mrs. Whale brought in choirs in several sections, and was almost uniformly successful. In the ladies' choirs, her choir was the only entry. The tests were 'The Lord is my Shepherd' (Schubert) and 'Where the bee sucks' (Arne and Jackson). Both pieces were well sung. This lady also brought in all the four action-song parties that entered for this class. In the G.F.S. class there were seven entries, and Whitehouse, under the Rev. J. A. Carey, was first. The Sunshine Choir, under Miss I. E. Storey, was placed first in a girls' choir section. In the pianoforte classes, the junior section brought forward eighteen girls to play Nocturne (Field) and Gigue from French Suite in G (Bach), and Eva Kerr was first. In the senior section the tests were severe, Fugue in G (Bach) and Novellette in D (Schumann). Mr. Fogg said that he had never heard better pianoforte playing at a competition. Miss E. Lee was first and Miss Violet Patchell was second. Mr. Joseph H. Gurd proved himself to be an excellent violinist in the class for players under 17, and he gained the prize. One of the best performances during the whole competition was that of Miss Kees M'Endoo in the senior class for violinists. The test was the beautiful Sonata in D minor (J. Gibbs) in Moffat's 'Old English violin music' (Novello & Co.).

Two string quartet parties played Mozart's Quartet (No. 14, Peters Ed.) That led by Miss M'Endoo played remarkably well and was placed first.

The arrangements for the competition were admirably carried out under the hon. sec., Miss L. Murphy, and her loyal assistants. Prof. W. B. Morton, the treasurer, was a constant visitor. The audiences were very good at nearly every event.

LONG EATON, NOTTINGHAM.—April 17.

This was the ninth annual junior Festival under the auspices of the Midland section of the Co-operative Choral Association. The following were the chief results:

CHOIRS FOR 30 VOICES (7 entries).

Tests: 'A lake and a fairy boat' (T. F. Dunhill).
'Night time' (G. Bantock).
Long Eaton (Mr. W. Woolley). Winners of the shield seven times out of nine.

Solos (Girls under 16).

39 Entries.

Test: 'Hark, hark, the lark' (Schubert).
R. Hopkins.

(Boys under 16). 11 Entries.

Test: 'The Owl' (C. H. H. Parry).
J. Kelly.

Duet (18 Entries).

Test: 'In summer woods' (J. Ireland).
L. Digby and F. Ray.

Mr. Walter J. Bunney (Leicester) was the adjudicator.

A SCHOOL COMPETITION.

High School for Girls, Tottenham.

The competition of units with one another in a large school is a valuable stimulus to work. The following scheme carried out in the above girls' school is worthy of wide imitation.

The school is divided into four houses, from each of which a secretary is chosen whose duty is to select and train the members of her house for the various competitions. Their efforts are entirely unaided by any member of the staff. Below is a list of the competitions held this year:

(a) Part-song 'What the Nightingale sang' ... Dobson (Seniors)

(b) Unison Song ... 'The hunter' ... ... Brahms (Juniors)

(c) Vocal Solo 'Nymphs and Shepherds' ... Purcell (Seniors)

(d) Vocal Solo ... 'Pirate story' ... ... Macdonald (Juniors)

(e) Sight-Singing.

(f) Accompaniment of a song at sight.

(g) Pianoforte Solo 'Pas des Echarpes' ... Chaminade (Seniors)

(h) Pianoforte Solo 'Solfeggietto' ... C. Ph. E. Bach (Juniors)

(i) Original Composition.

The original work consisted of setting to music as a part-song a simple poem composed by a pupil in the school. The results were distinctly encouraging, for there were eleven entries in this section, and, while some of the attempts were rough and unfinished, others showed originality in idea, which, with wider experience and a further study of harmony, augurs well for the future.

At the close of the competitions the total number of points gained by the houses respectively was announced, the winning house taking possession of the trophy in the form of a silver harp and holding it for the ensuing year.

The adjudicator was Miss Fitch, of Wallington, whose kindly criticisms were a great incentive to future efforts. The music-mistress of the school is Miss L. M. Ballard.

The Stratford and East London Competitions came to a successful conclusion with a prize distribution on March 27. Lady Speyer gave away the prizes, and in addition played violin solos, accompanied by Mr. Cyril Scott, in the afternoon, and Mr. H. Cart de Lafontaine, Sheriff of London, gave the prizes distributed at the evening gathering.

Wirral (Chester), April 17.—This year's scheme catered only for juniors. The Festival is promoted by the Hon. Mrs. H. N. Gladstone. Mr. Adrian C. Boult was adjudicator. The most successful choirs were Burton, Helsby, and Ellesmere Port. A children's concert concluded the proceedings.

Morpeth (the Wansbeck Festival, March 27).—Only junior competitions were held this year. The singing of the school choirs was generally very good. In one class the Belsay Choir especially did well. The tests were Dunhill's 'A lake and a fairy boat,' and Von Holst's 'Song of the shoemakers.' Netherwitton ran them very close. Belsay also carried off the Straker Challenge Shield and the sight-singing prizes. Mr. W. G. Whittaker adjudicated in place of Dr. Vaughan Williams, who has joined the Army.

Haughton (Stafford).—March 27. This is a village choir Festival. Six villages sent choirs to the various sections. Mr. Hylton Stewart was the adjudicator. The female-voice choirs competed in three sections. Weston (Miss Agnes Plant) was first in one section, great Haywood (Mr. C. Hibberd) in the other two sections. In the mixed-choir class, Blymhill (Mr. W. W. Gardiner) was first in one section and Penkridge (Dr. Ernest Darby) in another. Report speaks highly of the singing of the Great Haywood Choir.

COMING COMPETITIONS.

With Secretaries' Names.

Glasgow (April 30 and May 1).—This event was announced to be held on May 1 only. But the entries had proved to be unexpectedly numerous, and April 30 was added. Mr. Hugh S. Roberton and Mr. D. Glen Mackennie, 115, Renfield Street, Glasgow.

People's Palace, Mile End, London, E.—May 4, 5, 6, 7, 10, 11, and 15. Nearly all the junior classes were dealt with in February (reported in our April number). As all the coming competitions are held after 8 o'clock in the evening (except on Saturday, May 15, when they begin at 4.15 p.m.), they are necessarily spread over many days. The public are admitted for one penny! Miss Edith Barran, 46, St. George's Court, Gloucester Road, S.W.

Feis Ceoil (Irish Festival).—Dublin, May 10 to 15. There are twenty-one choral entries (all adult choirs), nearly 250 for solo-singing, 130 for pianoforte, thirty-eight for violin, and numerous classes for which there are smaller numbers of entries. Miss Edith Mortier, 37, Molesworth Street, Dublin.

Hastings (May 10 to 12).—This Festival was postponed from the autumn on account of the War. Mr. John Lockey, 47, Havelock Road, Hastings.

Taunton (May 19, 20).—The entries here are satisfactory in view of the circumstances. Miss Lucy Hook, 11, Middle Street, and Mr. E. Edgecombe, One Ash, Taunton.

Tewkesbury (May 5, 6).—Mrs. Purcell Wilson, Avonbank, Tewkesbury.

The Cornwall Competition (Wadebridge, May 20, 21).—This Festival is not always held in the same town. Wadebridge is a new centre. The Lady Mary Trefusis, Porthgwidden, Devoran, Cornwall.

The Musical Times
No. 933.
EXTRA SUPPLEMENT.
NOVELLO'S PARISH CHOIR BOOK.
May 1, 1915.
Price 2d.

Intercessory Hymn

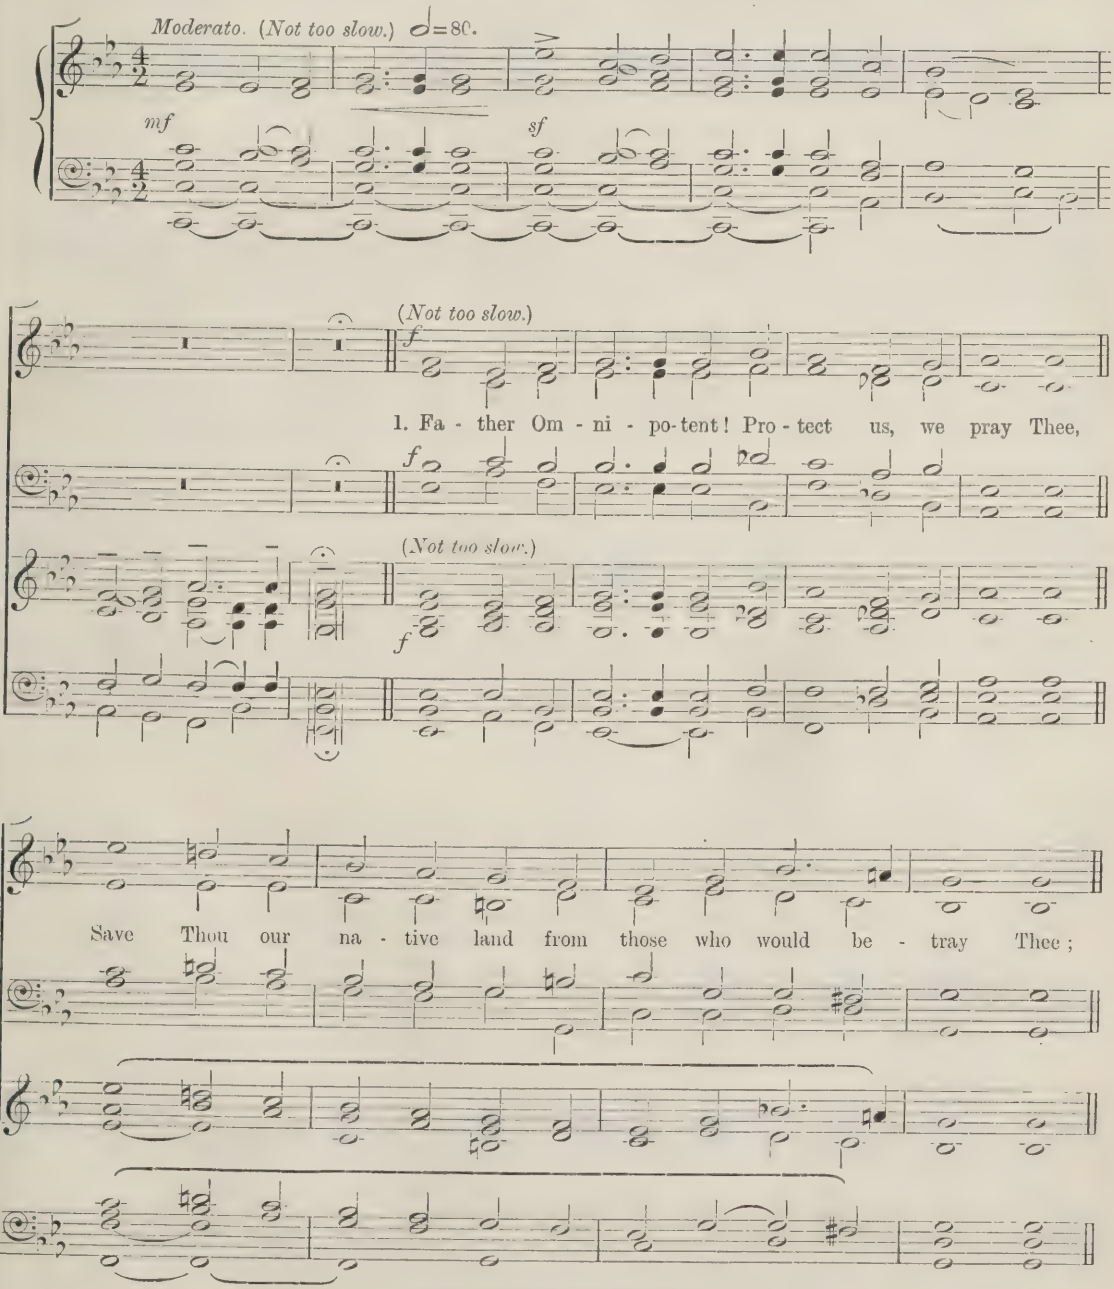
ADAPTED FROM THE HYMN IN KING ALBERT'S BOOK

THE WORDS WRITTEN BY W. HERBERT SCOTT

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

EDWARD GERMAN.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED; NEW YORK: THE H. W. GRAY CO., SOLE AGENTS FOR THE U.S.A.



Moderato. (Not too slow.) ♩=80.
mf
sf
(Not too slow.)
f
1. Fa - ther Om - ni - po-tent! Pro - tect us, we pray Thee,
f
(Not too slow.)
f
Save Thou our na - tive land from those who would be - tray Thee;

Copyright, 1915, by Novello and Company, Limited.

